RADICAL ON DIVORCE

Episcopal House of Deputies Declines to Permit Remarriage of Any One

WHO IS ONE PARTY TO A DIVORCE

Regardless of the Cause, Except That Existing Before the Marriage Took Place.

San Francisco, Oct. 15.—The house of deputies of the Episcopal church, sitting as a committee of the whole, yesterday adopted the proposed canon prohibiting the remarriage of divorced persons for causes not arising previous to their former marriage. The canon was adopted just as it came from the house of bishops. The vote stood 182 for; 158 against. The amendment of Dr. Huntington, of New York, making an exception in the case of the innocent party to a divorce granted on the ground of adultery was rejected by a vote of 158 to 173. The result of the vote in the committee of the whole was reported to the house of deputies, which will vote on the matter.

Decision May Be Reversed. The result, however, may not be the same, for in the house the vote of thirty delegations is required to carry a measure, the divided delegations virtually counting among the nays. No time was set for a final vote by the house, but it will presumably be taken today. Previous to this action in committee of the whole the house of deputies adopted the resolutions presented by Dr. McKim, of Washington, providing for a standing joint commission of both houses to consider the relations of labor and capital. It is to consist of three bishops, three presbyters and three laymen, and shall report its proceedings to each general convention.

Deputies Vote on Bishops. The afternoon session of the house of deputies was held behind closed doors, and was devoted entirely to a consideration and voting on the five nominations for missionary bishops handed down from the house of bishops. The election resulted in the choice of the following: Rev. James Addison Ingle, district of Hankow; Rev. Charles H. Brent, district of the Philippines; Rev. Frederick William Keator, district of Olympia; Rev. William Cabell Brown, district of Porto Rico. The only nomination rejected was that of Rev. Charles Campbell Pierce, to be missionary bishop of North Dakota.

Proceedings in the Upper House. The house of bishops created the missionary district of Honolulu, to take effect April 1, 1902. Consent was given, the house of deputies concurring, for the election of a missionary bishop for this district during the interval between this session and the next general convention. A letter was sent to the synod of Mexico stating the terms which must be complied with before bishops for that country can be appointed.

OTHER CHURCHMEN IN COUNCIL

Lutheran Denies an Episcopal Statement—Congregational Council.

Lima, O., Oct. 15.—The biennial session of the Evangelical Lutheran church of North America was honored yesterday by a visit from Bishop Van Scheele, special emissary from the Lutheran church of Sweden, and representative from King Oscar II. The statement that 200,000 Scandinavians in the northwest are looking toward the Protestant Episcopal fellowship, made recently in San Francisco, was emphatically denied by Rev. Dr. Panseen, the president of the council.

Portland, Me., Oct. 15.—The Congregational council yesterday sent two letters. One was to Mrs. McKinley and the other to Theodore Roosevelt. That to Mrs. McKinley was a eulogy of the late president and a feeling expression of sympathy with his widow; that to President Roosevelt assured him of "our hearty sympathy in the different tasks you have to perform, and of our unquestioning confidence in the integrity of your purpose, in the loftiness of your aims and in your ability, under the guidance of God, to meet successfully the high demands of your great office. We invoke God's choicest blessings upon you, and we promise to do our best to hold up your hands."

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 15.—The second congress of the Priests' Eucharistic League of the United States convened last night at St. Francis' Xavier's church, with an attendance of 200 delegates. Including five bishops. The organization is Roman Catholic.

Weather Was Good for Corn.

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 12.—The temperature during September was about one degree above the normal. The warm, dry weather ripened corn nicely and was favorable for the storing of sugar in the beet crop.

Shot Through His Upper Lip.

Bay City, Mich., Oct. 11.—George Sharp, a laborer, of West Bay City, was accidentally shot through the upper lip by a younger brother, who was handling a revolver. The bullet struck the jaw bone and rebounded.

Drink Was Too Much for Him.

Grand Ledge, Mich., Oct. 11.—A. E. Hicks committed suicide Tuesday by shooting. He was once a prosperous business man, but liquor proved his ruin.

HAD TROUBLE MARRYING

Escame Necessary to Send to Europe for Parental Consent.

St. Joseph, Mich., Oct. 15.—Oct. 7 A. J. Warren and Anna Leute arrived in this city from Chicago. The couple went to the court house to secure a marriage license. When the bride was questioned by County Clerk Church as to her age she informed him that she was 15 years and 9 months old, or three months younger than the state law allows. The clerk refused a license without the written consent of her parents.

Miss Leute said that her parents live in Germany. The groom before leaving the clerk's office remarked that within a week he would return with a consent from the girl's parents. Armed with a cablegram, Warren arrived on the steamer Puritan Sunday afternoon and the couple were married.

MICHIGAN'S MODERN DIANA.

Practicing Physician Who Goes Hunting the Succulent Deer.

Bronson, Mich., Oct. 12.—Mrs. J. E. Outwater, of Bronson, is the only woman in Branch county who has ever taken out a deer hunter's license. She is a practicing physician here, with her husband, Dr. J. Elmer Outwater. Mrs. Outwater took up the field sports with gun and dog some years ago, and has been an enthusiast since, joining her husband on his hunting and fishing trips and enjoying the camp life as much as he. Seven years ago she spent eight weeks hunting in Arkansas, and bagged her share of wild turkey and other game.

This fall she took out a deer hunter's license and in company with her husband, daughter and father will spend two months in the upper peninsula hunting and fishing. She has killed much small game, is an excellent shot with both rifle and shotgun, and her ardent desire is to bring down a noble buck before the hunting season closes.

WIFE GETS THE INSURANCE

Although Her Husband Did Play It Low Down Before Death.

Mount Clemens, Mich., Oct. 14.—A case of much interest has just been decided in circuit court. It was that of the K. O. T. M. vs. Nellie Savage and Moses Savage to determine which one of the defendants was entitled to a $2,000 policy in the order held by James Savage, husband of Nellie Savage. When James Savage took out the $2,000 policy in the Maccabees, he named his wife as beneficiary. In 1896 he was taken ill, and thereafter his wife paid the assessments as they came due.

In 1899 Savage made his brother, Moses, the beneficiary of the policy, unknown to his wife. She continued to pay the assessments until her husband's death, which occurred in 1900. Then she had to sue for her claim. The judge holds that her claim to the money is valid, and that Savage could not upset her rights by his act.

Federal Jury Indicts a Niles Man.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 14.—William K. Lacey, of Niles, former president of the defunct First National bank of Niles, was arrested on a warrant issued under an indictment by the federal grand jury, brought here Saturday and arraigned in the United States district court. The indictment contains two counts charging "aiding and abetting in the making of false entries in the books of the bank," and making false report to the comptroller of the currency. Lacey stood mute and furnished bail in the sum of $10,000.

One Killed, Three Injured in Collapse.

Bay City, Mich., Oct. 12.—A heavy framework of girders, supporting the roof of one of the buildings at the Michigan Chemical company's new plant in process of erection, fell yesterday. Frank C. Bence was killed and these injured: Frank Campau, David Mitchell and John Reed. Bence was at work in the basement of the building. The others were at work above and went down with the wreck.

Sportsmen Wild With Rage.

Coleman, Mich., Oct. 14.—The sportsmen of this village are wild with rage. The bird season is close at hand and the local hunters have been making great preparations for a few days' sport among the birds. Some person, however, has decided to send many of the valuable dogs to their last resting place by way of the poison route.

Some Enemy Hath Done This.

Lapeer, Mich., Oct. 15.—A clover huller belonging to A. L. Conant, who lives near this city, was burned by an enemy of that gentleman. Conant found on the machine one day a box of matches with a line: "Stop or I'll stop you."

Scorch at Mount Pleasant.

Mount Pleasant, Mich., Oct. 14.—The restaurant of R. E. Tubbs, Kennedy Bros.' feed store and Gruner's bakery and restaurant and Collins' photograph gallery burned. Loss, $3,000; insurance on buildings, $1,550, and on stock, $2,500.

Celebrated French Writer Stricken.

Paris, Oct. 15.—Pierre Loti, the famous French descriptive writer, officer in the navy and academician, is said to be lying at the point of death on a French battleship now cruising in the China seas. He was recently assigned to duty in the Orient, and the Figaro is now publishing a series of articles from his pen on the Chinese war and impressions of Pekin. News of his desperate illness causes general regret in France, where he is immensely popular. His crisp, romantic style of story-telling has given him a wide vogue.

JANGLING ADVOCATES

Disturb the Placid Propriety of the Court That's Investigating Admiral Schley.

PISTOLS AND COFFEE, IN THE AIR,

For a Few Moments, but the Clouds Pass by—Some Very Important Facts Ascertained.

Washington, Oct. 14.—The most notable event in the Schley case Saturday was the quarrel between Lemly and Rayner. There were remarks indicative of pistols and coffee for two and blue fire in the alley, and finally an explanation on both sides, with the curtain down to slow and melancholy music. The day was rather electric, if that is a good word for a condition in which nearly everybody in the case was on a strain and ready to flash into raked lightning, as it were; while, ever and anon, Admiral Dewey, presiding officer of the court, would be heard snapping out his so frequent refrain to the controversies of the lawyers: "Facts, facts, facts; we want facts, not opinions."

The Way the Row Eventuated.

So it came about that when Rayner produced a chart relative to coal consumption and speed on warships, and proceeded to read a statement accompanying the chart Lemly declared that Rayner was not accurate in his reading; that he read things into a document instead of reading just what was there and nothing more; that he had repeatedly done it. Then the Maryland lightning flashed. Rayner's face grew red and his voice was belligerent as he retorted: "If he states that outside the court I will say it is false."

To which came the quick reply from Lemly: "If he states that outside the court it is another matter, but if he states it in the court it is highly improper."

Instance of What Lemly Meant.

An illustration of what Lemly meant, in part, was given earlier in the session, when Captain Chadwick was finishing his testimony. Rayner stated two questions to the court which he wanted to ask Chadwick and which he was permitted to ask. The "Second—Did you then, in protesting against the sending of this congratulatory dispatch, refer to his blockade of Cienfuegos in dispatch No. 8?" Rayner asked the first question of the witness just as he had stated to the court. The second he put this way to the witness: "Did you have the blockade of Cienfuegos in mind when you protested against the sending of the congratulatory dispatch?"

Dewey Closed the Incident. After Rayner had explained the cause of his anger, and Lemly had said he did not intend to be offensive, Admiral Dewey took the floor and settled the rumpus this way: "I think that ought to be enough. The statement of the judge advocate should be enough. The court understands that the judge advocate had no intention of wounding the feelings of either of you, and the court now adjourns."

DISPATCHES NEEDED EXPEDITING

Latest News Moves Very Slowly in Trying to Reach Schley.

Chadwick stated that he was informed of the purport of dispatch No. 8 when it was sent to the Marblehead for transmission to Schley, but did not see the dispatch until some weeks later, when it was ancient history. He had drafted the dispatch sent from Havana, which was sent about 6 p. m. May 21, while No. 8 was sent about 3 p. m. May 20.

Lieutenant Commander S. A. Staunton told how the information was obtained which was contained in the two dispatches referred to in the foregoing. They came to Key West to Chief Signal Officer Allen, and were sent by an employe of the telegraph company in the office at Havana, who could only send it about 8 p. m., when he was alone in the office. Sudden death would probably have been his fate if he had been caught at it, and so Allen exacted a pledge that no one be permitted to know where the news came from but Sampson and his staff officers. It seems to have been conclusive as to Gerver's whereabouts, especially the confirmation received on the evening of May 20.

On May 21, in the morning, the witness said, Sampson's fleet—the commander-in-chief having this news—sailed for Havana, the commander believing in the conclusiveness of the Havana news, and off Havana about 6 p. m. of that day Sampson called up the Hawk and started it with the news to find Schley and deliver it to him. The witness said that the Hawk carried the dispatch written off Havana, but he did not know whether No. 8 was inclosed with this last dispatch, which was referred to in testimony as a "memorandum."

Rayner commented upon the testimony as follows: "Then the confirmatory dispatch, as I understand it, was received some twenty-four hours before the Hawk left with this memorandum to Commodore Schley?" and later in reply to a remark by Hanna:

LORENZO SNOW PASSES

Fifth President of the Mormon Church Suddenly Crosses the River.

Salt Lake, Utah, Oct. 11.—Lorenzo Snow, fifth president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, better known as the Mormon church, died unexpectedly at his private residence, the historic Bee Hive house, at 3:35 p. m. yesterday, after an illness that had been serious only since Wednesday.

Snow was born in Mantau, Portage county, O., April 3, 1814, and received a classical education at Oberlin college. He became a convert to Mormonism in 1836, and immediately began proselyting.

Suggestions in Cooking Game

The leaves are falling, the smoky stillness of Indian summer is just upon us, dogs and hunters are happy, and on many a table game will be plentiful from now till Thanksgiving. Some let their birds "hang" for a day, others as near a week as they dare; some draw their woodcock and plover, others scorn to impair the gamy flavor by such squamishness; some prefer them well cooked, while others declare, in the words of Lowell:

"Nothin' riles me, I pledge my fastin' word,
Like cooks' aout the natur of a bird,
Jest score 'em with the coals, that's my idee."

But these are points for every man to decide for himself, or accept the dictum of his wife and be thankful. In any case, certain rules may be laid down; for instance, that elaborate seasonings should be avoided, that celery, sweet potatoes, current jelly and cider are always acceptable adjuncts, and that a thickened flour gravy with any wild bird is a hopeless Philistinism.

Doubtless the favorite eastern game-bird is the ruffed grouse, called the partridge in New-England and pleasant further south. This is almost always served roasted, and should be trussed with the wings turned under the body and the legs skewered to the sides near the end of the backbone. The very best stuffing is of native chestnuts, parboiled, shelled and skinned, and delicately seasoned, with plenty of butter. In the absence of these, try bread-crumbs, either browned in butter or moistened with cream. The addition of a few fresh mushrooms, or dried ones soaked over night, will be appreciated by the increasing number of mushroom lovers. In roasting these or other game birds, it is well to fasten a thin slice of fat pork or bacon over the breast. Put in a very hot oven, and at the end of five minutes, baste with half a cupful of hot water, seasoned with salt, pepper and butter. After that baste frequently with the juices in the pan, and cook from 35 to 42 minutes. No sauce is needed, but if you must have one this is a good one.

MAITRE D' HOTEL BUTTER—(Suitable for broiled birds.) Partly melt a lump of the best butter, and to every tablespoonful add the juice of half a lemon and a teaspoonful of minced parsley.

Quail called partridges in the south, may be roasted like grouse, but they need no stuffing, only a lump of butter rolled in flour tucked inside. If you can command a clear bed of coals, split them down the back and broil them, or if you choose "pan-roast" them in the oven in the same shape. That quail should be served on toast is a sort of superstition or shibboleth in cookery. Let the toast be thin, delicately browned and well buttered; some cooks lay it under the birds during the roasting process. Cook prairie chickens precisely like quail; they are dark-fleshed birds, while Bob White has a plump, delicate white breast.

Our "gamiest" wild bird is the woodcock, and the following "appreciation" was evidently penned by an epicure conscious of his responsibilities:

"The meat of the woodcock is all dark. It is tender, yet not mushy, having a delightful firm springiness. It possesses all the delicacy of the quail, without its dryness; is as rich as the snipe, without a suspicion of rankness. Its juices are idyllic, and it is of exactly the right size, in that four of the birds are enough for a hungry man, without being too much. Restaurant cooks are inclined to broil the woodcock, but this is a mistake so grave that it amounts almost to a crime. Light, flaky dough should be moulded into a pan large enough at the bottom to permit of four of the woodcock being laid in it on their backs. Their heads should be in the center, which will cause the long bills to project upward in a bunch. They should be salted sufficiently and liberally dusted with paprika. Water should be poured on them until they are half way submerged. Cover with a thick crust of dough, permitting the bills to project through the center. Bake slowly. The aroma which will arise from this pie when its brown lid is delicately cut is not describable."

As an amusing companion piece to the above—amusing for its contrast, and still more for its likeness—I will give the directions of a southern "uncle" for cooking 'possum—the savory 'coon, fat and young, and the artless woodcock being our nearest substitutes:

"Now, don't you neber forget jest what I se gwine to tell you 'bout how to cook de 'possum. Well, de fust ting you do is to get you 'possum. Dat may be easy fer you 'uns, but 'tain't for me—dat is, always. Well, den, when you se done got you se 'possum, you skins him fust. Den you puts him into de pot with cold water, and put the pot over a hot fire. And den you biles him—not too much, fur don't want to lose any ob his nice, sweet fat. Den you takes him out ob de pot an' you dries him in a clean towel; den you puts him into a clean frying-pan; den you scrapes de skin off you ' sweet potatoes and you puts dem into de same pan wid Mister Possum. Den you has you ' stove red, and den you puts de pan an' 'possum an' potatoes into de oven, an den go away a little while, but not too long. Den, when you comes back, you puts in a little hot water, an' den you begins an' bastes de 'possum and sweet potatoes, an' you keeps on a-basting an' a basting till de 'possum am a good brown—jest like my color—an' de sweet potatoes is soft and juicy, an' de gravy is 'most black, an' plenty of it. Den you takes it out ob de oven, an' den you sots de table, an' den well, den you bars de doors, fo' de smell ob cooked 'possum goes a long ways, an' when you habn't only one, you don't want much company besides yo'sels."

Squirrels are best served as a rich, well flavored and highly seasoned stew. Having jointed a pair neatly, try out a few slices of pork, lay the meat in the kettle, and fry for ten minutes, turning frequently. Add a tablespoonful of flour, and when well browned, cover with boiling water and stew gently for an hour, seasoning with a bay-leaf or favorite sweet herb, as well as the usual condiments. Serve on bits of buttered toast, with mashed potatoes and Chili sauce.

Rabbit potpie, made like veal potpie, with a steamed crust, is excellent; or a young rabbit may be roasted, after larding it plentifully with pork. Serve with applesauce or tart baked apples.

DORR.

Will Carleton's magazine Every Where, for October, is one of the most interesting of the many monthlies that have come to hand. That keen-eyed editor and charming writer seems to know exactly how to make a magazine that will entertain everybody, and, at the same time, instruct without tiring the reader. Two poems by Mr. Carleton in this number, will take high place among the myriad tributes to the martyred President. Not especially comforting, but a truly beautiful expression of an eternal truth, is the following stanza:

"A man has died—and so have myriads more—
They will, while yet this dying earth lives on;
But when a leader makes the utmost shore,
We sadly look toward where his ship has gone,
And only get this message from the dead:
'Study the past: my words have all been said.'"

An article called "A Republic of Republics?" by R. W. Crossman, is a daring conception and not at all uninteresting. The writer suggests a mighty union of all the republics of the western hemisphere. Margaret E. Sangster has her usual collection of new poems in this number, and Kate Upson Clark, in the "Fine Art of Speech" (number four in her series of sketches), gives some good advice to soft-voiced, inaudible orators.

There are some Ralston statements which are worthy of constant repetition, because they are too little regarded, and because their good sense was confirmed by people of judgement long before Ralstonism was discovered. One is that green, unripe fruit is unwholesome, no matter how heavily sugared or softened by cooking, and that no danger can come from eating fruit when it is ripe, soft, melon and not sour; another is that oxygen taken in the form of fresh air, and iron taken in the form of grapes or whole wheat bread are the genuine thing, though in disorganized forms they are spurious.—Good Housekeeping for October.

Sharing the Profits.

At the close of the last Wisconsin Dairy Convention, "Uncle" Stephen Faville gave the following parting word, which every farmer should read and think over:

We have no right to go on, as many of us do, as if we, the heads of families, were the whole thing. Take your boys and girls and wife into partnership, give them a chance to study the business thoroughly, and share in the profits, and don't forget that the cow is a partner too, and entitled to proper consideration. She will stand by you, if you will stand by her. I am the oldest man in the house. I have always been on a farm or had one to fall back on when every thing else failed, and everything is liable to failure. Give the boys a foothold on the farm. They will be happier, more contented there in the long run. There you are dependent only on yourself and the good Father above. Stick to the farm; stick to the cow.

Flanner's Music House, Milwaukee, Wis., has just issued a pretty ballad, entitled, "My True Wisconsin Pearl," by A. J. Vick. It will be mailed to any address for 17 cents. This same house sells all Popular Sheet Music published for 19 cents a copy. Catalogues mailed free.

The Ladies' Home Journal for October is, perhaps, the best number of this magazine ever issued. The literary features include "How the Leopard Got His Spots," by Rudyard Kipling; "A Fifth Avenue Troubadour," by Ernest Seton-Thomson; the first instalment of "A Gentleman of the Blue Grass" by Laura Spencer Porter; the last of "Miss Alcott's Letters to Her 'Laurie,'" and the closing chapters of "Aileen," "Some Things the President Does Not Do," a collection of anecdotes about Whistler, the artist, and Mr. Bok's advice to a young man about to marry are important features. The regular editorial departments are supplemented by nine new ones of great interest, among which Professor Edward Howard Griggs's talks on "The Education of a Child from Eleven to Eighteen," Professor Schumucker's "Seeing things Outdoors," and Miss Withey's "Writing and Speaking Correctly" are noteworthy. The illustrations and art features are superb. By The Curtis Publishing Company, Philadelphia. One dollar a year; ten cents a number.

A History

My Mamma took a piece of cloth,
A lot of yards, I guess,—
She cut it and she sewed it
And she made herself a dress.
She wore that dress a year or two,
Perhaps she wore it three,
Then turned it on the other side
And made it up for me.
A long, long time it served for me,
Till it got old and raggy;
Then Mamma washed it clean and made
A coat for Baby Maggie.
And, when the baby'd grown to big
To wear that any more
We cut it into carpet rags
And wove it for the floor.
So, in our new rag carpet, here,
That purple stripe you see
Is made out of the Sunday clothes
Of Mamma, Mag and me.

Roosevelt's Genuineness.

"Theodore Roosevelt has only one fault," said a well-known New York politician less than two years ago,—"he does not know how to tell a lie." This was an expert's judgment; uttered with every assurance of settled conviction. It was as true as it was naive. Theodore Roosevelt has never learned to tell or act a lie.

The character of the twenty-sixth president of the United States,—of him who enters upon his great office, not amid peans of victory and with the joyful acclaim of happy partisans but bowed with the nation's woe and stricken with its grief,—is not complex; it is extremely simple. It may be summed up in a word: Theodore Roosevelt is genuine. That means that he is natural, not affected; frank, not deceptive; true not false. All his other traits and characteristics follow naturally from his genuineness. His private life, his public activities, his modes of thought, of speech, and of action, are those of a genuine man. They are not to be understood or explained by involved processes of reasoning, or by search for hidden causes and concealed ambitions. The simplest and most natural interpretation of Theodore Roosevelt's words and deeds is always the truest.—From a sketch of Theodore Roosevelt, in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for October.

WILLIAM MCKINLEY.

His Life and Work, by the Memorial Publishing Association.

We have made clubbing arrangements with The Chicago Inter Ocean for the sale with that paper and ours of one of the best memorial volumes issued, containing the life of our late lamented President, William McKinley.

The writer of the same was a life-long friend of his, a comrade in arms, his associate in Congress, was by his side before he closed his eyes in death, and attended the funeral obsequies at Buffalo, Washington, and Canton, Ohio.

The Inter Ocean has secured this work, which makes a good sized octavo volume, 6½x10½ inches, containing nearly 600 pages of matter, and finely illustrated with nearly 200 copper plate pictures, all printed on the best book paper, and bound in a most substantial manner in a finely illustrated embossed cover of cloth.

As stated above, we had several memorial volumes presented to us, and made the selection of this one from the entire list. It is the determination of this paper to give its readers the best the market afforded.

We have made arrangements with The Inter Ocean to club the same with our paper, and the volume can be secured by our readers, in addition to the clubbing rate, at the nominal price of 75 cents, and 23 cents additional for postage. The volume will sell in any book store readily for $1.50 a copy.

Send us your order at once, before the edition is exhausted.

School Notes.
A course of lectures and entertainments under the auspices of our public schools will be given this year. The dates are as follows:
Towne's Picture Play, Oct. 28.
Copley Square Trio, Nov. 28.
Boston Musical and Dramatic Co., Jan. 8.
Dr. Darwin McIlrath, lecture, Feb. 12.
The hearty cooperation of all friends of the school is asked that this course of entertainments may be made a financial success. Full announcements of each entertainment will be made later.

EIGHTH GRADE
The history class are learning portions of the constitution of the U. S. It was decided by a vote of the school that Lucy Baker and Edna Kean drew the best illustration of the last stanza of "The Arrow and the Song."

Each pupil can name the members of the Presidents cabinet.

A framed picture of Mr. and Mrs. McKinley now hangs in the west end of the room.

Margaret Devin and Grace Rosenberg visited the Traveling Library. It is hoped that others will avail themselves of this opportunity to read good books.

October 27, is President Roosevelt's birthday. On that day the hour for history will be occupied in talking of his life. Each pupil is preparing for that exercise.

We are acquainting ourselves with a few of the proof reader's marks. They will assist us in correcting composition work.

Olive Reynold's has given expression to her thoughts on "The Arrow and the Song." When a person speaks some kind word, he does not always know how much good it does. He may even forget what was said and be very much surprised, when, a long time after, he learns how much good he did. A minister may preach a sermon with which he is dissatisfied, but long afterward a friend may come to him and tell him of a thought in that sermon which helped him to do better.

SEVENTH GRADE
Division A has been learning "Old Ironsides" by Oliver Wendell Holmes. The history class was conducted in the form of a question box; each pupil drawing one question and answering it in his turn. The A division was ahead when the time was up.

Miss Shaw drew a very pretty brook on the board and Tennyson's poem "The Brook" is printed at the left of it, making a very attractive design for a calendar by writing the month and date on the rocks by the brook.

Ethel Godfrey has been spending the past week at the Pan-American exposition.

Lillie Proud has been absent several days this week on account of sickness.

SIXTH GRADE
The geography on Friday was conducted as a contest. Div. A answered the most questions.

The questions—What tends to success and what hinders success? have been discussed by the pupils this week.

Richard Henderson and Rexford Glover have been absent several days this week on account of sickness.

The pupils all enjoy their new song "A Lullaby."

FIFTH GRADE
Zelda Wooden is with us again after a siege with neuralgia.

Div. A has finished the study of Asia and begun the review Monday.

Friday was Lowell Quotation Day. The story of his "Vision of Sir Launfal" proved interesting.

"Today" is the new poem memorized by the language classes.

In a recent physiology test eight pupils stood 100.

FOURTH GRADE
John Clark's suggestion that materials for a museum be collected was received with so much eagerness by the rest of the grade that arrangements were at once made to carry out the suggestion.

The A class has been studying "Gemila's Home in the Desert." The camel has been an especially interesting topic.

Goldie Edgin who has been attending school in Niles this fall is with us again.

The B class is struggling with long division.

Mildred Roe is organist this week.

THIRD GRADE
Edith and Richard Wagner are new pupils this week.

Mrs. Myron Smith visited the school Friday.

George Adams was absent a few days last week on account of sickness.

Friday was observed as Columbus Day.

Science and nature work this week will be Leaves and Birds.

SECOND GRADE
Mrs. Troutfetter was a visitor last Friday.

A live turtle furnished a model for the drawing lesson, Thursday and a subject for language and nature study.

Arlie Mittan and Henry Eisenhart are at home on account of illness.

FIRST GRADE
Pansy Ingles, of Benton Harbor entered school last Friday.

Audrey Emerson brought a Martha Washington geranium last week.

Mrs. Ward and Mrs. Swartz visited the school last week.

In our written test of words learned during the week ten pupils stood 100.—Joe Voorhees, Irvie Swartz, Flossie Baker, John Kissinger, Newell Royer, Delbert Bates, Beatrice Bainton, Marion Peacock, Inez Burks, Rex Ward.

COUNTY SEAT NEWS

CIRCUIT COURT

The case of the people vs Walter Ingleright and Willard Marsh was resumed on Friday morning and after a lengthy argument for the defense the jury retired after the noon recess. The jury disagreed.

The criminal cases were adjourned for a week and will be resumed on Monday, October 21.

The case of Edith Navarre vs the City of Benton Harbor was called for Monday, Messrs Gore & Harvey appear for the plaintiff and H. S. Gray and G. M. Valentine for the defense.

Sheriff Collins went to Ionia Friday having in custody Wm Robinson who is sentenced to nine months, and Melvin Henderson for one year in the state reformatory.

In the divorce case of Wise vs Wise the court has ordered that $30 be allowed for solicitors' fees and $45 for the maintenance of the children during the progress of the trial.

By his attorney Frank Sanders, Geo C. Swisher of Buchanan has commenced divorce proceedings against Rose E. Swisher. In his complaint Swisher set forth his grievances against his wife in three typewritten pages.

The case against Charles Ashcraft for stealing went to the jury Thursday morning. The jury disagreed and as the county does not wish to stand the expense of a second trial Ashcraft was set at liberty.

Ashcraft was charged with stealing money from a saloon in St. Joseph. He was arrested in Niles.

From the Autobiography of a High Climber.

In Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly for October.

"Say," he went on, "I fool people great sometimes. High Climbing takes originality. There was a stand pipe in the water works of a Pennsylvania town, and its indicator got out of order. They sent for me and asked me what I would charge to get a rope up. 'Forty dollars,' I says, as soon as I understood the game, and I'll do it today. All I want from you is to lower the water in your stand pipe to ten feet from the bottom for a moment when I give you the word. 'What's that for?' the boss says. 'Never mind,' says I, 'just do it. You can let it go right back to the top again.' The boss had thought that it was going to cost them over a hundred dollars, and he was so tickled at the idea of getting it done for forty that he never said another word.

"I went and got a life preserver and a monkey wrench. I put the life preserver on, and gave the word to lower the water, then when no one was looking, I unscrewed the little door near the foot of the stand-pipe, stepped inside, told my assistant to screw up the door again and tell them to raise the water. Say, I floated up to the top in that pipe as nice as you please. I had my rope with a hook on the end of it with me. I fastened it to the top and came down it hand over hand.

"When are you going to start, young feller?" said the boss when I saw him a few moments later. 'I see you haven't begun with your rigging yet.'

The rope's up now,' I says, 'I'm through.'

"Bless me, how did you do it?" says he. 'Do you want to know?' says I. Well, don't tell any one, but in this little bag here I have a suction-machine with leather straps. This machine goes around, the straps catch on to the pipe and pull me up!"

"Say, I think that fellow believed all I told him."

Fortunes in Backward Countries.
In this industrial era of swift communication many of the greatest fortunes in the world have been made in other and even backward countries. Mr. Kimberley of South Africa is often put down as the richest man on earth, with a fortune estimated at $500,000,000, and it is generally asserted that Li Hung Chang's fortune is nearly as large. J. H. Robinson, another South African millionaire, is thought to be worth $400,000,000. Chili, Guatemala and Mexico each has at least one man whose fortune is as great as $50,000,000.—World's Work.

Mr. F. Hopkinson Smith's most ambitious story, "The Fortunes of Oliver Horn," begins in the November Scribner's. It deals with the career of a young artist who comes to New York to seek fame in his profession. The author has drawn upon his own intimate knowledge of the literary and art life of the past thirty-five years, and gives a vivid and attractive impression of the "artistic atmosphere" in which his characters move and which often seems so full of glamour to the looker-on. These early chapters are characterized by a rare sense of refined humor, and the passages of sentiment and pathos are handled with a certain vigor and manliness that have already done so much to establish the author's popularity. Each instalment will have an illustration by Walter Appleton Clark.

A seasonable atmosphere rises from the various useful and valuable features of the November Delineator. The styles shown are those for early winter; the dressmaking article tells about the making of coats; the fancy needlework article bears upon Thanksgiving and Christmas gifts; the crocheting articles are those of a winter character; the gardening article deals with the pruning and protection of rose trees throughout winter. Every woman who wishes to get splendid value for her expenditure should buy the Delineator for itself. It in turn will help her to economize in household matters at every point.

The November Century—in many respects an unusually striking number—will begin the magazine's thirty-second year, which is to be a year of American humor. A group of humorous stories, poems, etc. including "Two Little Tales" by Mark Twain, "More Animals" by Oliver Herford, and prose and verse by Carolyn Wells, Paul Dunbar and other well known humorists, will be preceded by "A Retrospect of American Humor," by Prof. W. P. Trent, with more than thirty portraits of famous humorists of the past and present, from Benjamin Franklin to "Mr. Dooley."

Increased Use of Postage Stamps.
The government's postage-stamp account for the fiscal year recently ended gives fresh evidence that we have had a banner year of prosperity, says the Wall Street Journal. Sales of stamps maintain the same increase as in the previous year and establish a new record. There were issued all told 5,705,731,709 pieces of stamped paper, of a value of $104,785,986, an increase of 381,643,795 stamps or $7,098,215. In consequence, the postal deficit for the fiscal year will probably fall below $4,000,000, against $5,385,688 last year.

The Michigan Central R. R. Co. will sell excursion tickets to Buffalo on account of PanAmerican at one half of the regular one way limited rate on each Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday during the month of October 1901, with a return limit of six days including date of sale. School Savings Banks.

Statistics show that there are 3,588 school savings banks in this country and 63,567 depositors. The amount deposited since the work began is placed at $876,000; the amount remaining on deposit January 1 of this year was $335,000. In one county in Pennsylvania where the work is well advanced school children have deposited in ten years $175,300. On the first of January there 4,009 depositors had in the banks $40,618. In the schools of Atlantic City last year $6,376 were deposited. Those who have had experience with the work say that it does not place great labor or responsibility on the teachers or school officers. Once a week the teacher makes a call and the pupils deposit whatever amount they like, from one cent upward. The collections are forwarded to a responsible banking institution. Abroad, in France and Belgium especially, the system has long been in use with the best results from every point of view.

GALIEN'S NEMESIS.

The Fire Fiend Again visits our Neighboring Town.

On Sunday morning May 26, 1895, a disastrous fire destroyed nearly all of the business portion of the thriving village of Galien just 8 miles west of here. The inhabitants pluckily rebuilt their ruined buildings with fine brick stores. Now after 6 years the business portion that escaped that fire was wiped out by another visit of the fire fiend. The fire was discovered about 3:30 o'clock Monday morning, in the north west corner of the general store of G. A. Blakeslee & Co., and an alarm sounded. The village has no fire department and depended on some fire extinguishers and buckets to fight a fire. This fact together with the inflammable nature of the buildings caused the fire to gain headway with great rapidity, and an appeal was sent to Buchanan for aid. In fifteen minutes from the sounding of the alarm the hose cart and steamer were at the depot waiting for a special which was being made up at Niles. Owing to a delay in securing an engine it was nearly two hours before the Buchanan boys were on the scene but when they arrived they went to work with a right good will and soon controlled the spread of the flames. When a Record representative visited the scene Monday morning every store was a smoking, blackened mass of ruins not a timber standing. The losses were estimated as follows. G. A. Blakeslee & Co. on stock and buildings $15000 with an insurance of $7500; Post office, loss trifling; R. D. Denison, groceries, loss on stock about $700, with a small insurance; Glen Smith owner of Denison building loss $800 insured for $800; Edw. Babcock, hardware, loss on building and stock $1200, insured for $700; M. Q. Smith stock of drugs and building about $3000 with an insurance of $1700; the rooms over the post office were occupied by Wm McMaster, and those over Denison's by Mrs. Jennie Russell both of whom saved their effects with but trifling loss. Nearly all who were burned out have expressed the determination to rebuild at once with fine brick structures and out of the ashes will undoubtedly rise a new block of buildings that will be a credit to the pluck and perseverance of their citizens. Then if the citizens will go right to work and buy a good fire engine and provide a water supply they will be better prepared for the next visitation and will save the cost of their fire engine in short order.

ATTEMPTED ROBBERY

Blakeslee & Co. Safe Attacked.

Galien is having no end of excitement this week, and an attempted safe robbery is added to the excitement caused by the fire. After the fire of Monday the big safe of G. A. Blakeslee & Co. was taken from the ruins and rolled into the M. C. freight house. About two o'clock Tuesday morning a man came up to the freight house and driving away the watchman attempted to crack the safe which was known to contain quite an amount of valuables. Sheriff Collins accidentally came to town on another errand and his timely arrival frightened away Mr. Burglar, who was chased some distance by Sheriff Collins who also fired a couple of shots in an effort to "wing" the burglar. A search was instituted and about Tuesday noon Sheriff Collins and Deputy Wansbrough rounded up a man near Mt. Zion church who refused to give his name and gave several contradictory reports about himself, and the officers believe they have secured the man who made the attempt at safe cracking. At any rate he is held for examination.

BUSINESS NOTES.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Ry.

Many people unacquainted with the geography of the West imagine that because the names "Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul" are used in the corporate title of the railway owning the Short Line between Chicago and Omaha, they must go via the cities of Milwaukee, St. Paul to reach their destination—if it be Omaha or west thereof. This is a mistaken idea. On a map the line running directly east and west would look like this:

Omaha—Chicago.

There is nothing more simple than that, and it is less than 500 miles between Chicago and Omaha. Two through trains daily in each direction with the best sleeping car and dining car service, and all regular travelers know and appreciate the merits of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway's short line between the East and the West.

LOCAL NOTES

"The Paris" Millinery opening will take place next week Thursday and Friday, Oct. 24 and 25.

We have an interesting letter from an old comrade containing reminiscences of the 25th Mich. which reached us too late to use this week, but will take pleasure in printing the same in next week's RECORD.

There was quite a large attendance at the W. C. T. U. meeting last Friday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. Baird. All present enjoyed the program rendered; the Flower Mission committee reported one hundred and fifty-five bouquets given to the sick during the month. All ladies cordially invited to attend these meetings.

Robbed!

You wouldn't pay for a dozen oranges and accept half a dozen. Yet you pay for a pound of coffee and accept half a pound!

Suppose you look at it in this way:—You buy coffee for its flavor and aroma. Roasted coffee parts very quickly with both when exposed to the air. It is possible for a pound of coffee to lose one-half its strength. It is then of no more value than half a pound of fresh coffee.

When you buy exposed coffee from a bin it has lost more or less of its virtue. You don't get it all! It is just as if you had bought pears and some one had bitten a piece from each pear.

Now, to show you how much you have been losing, take home to-day a one or two-pound airtight can of and try it. It was hermetically sealed as it came from the roaster. You never tasted such coffee! One cup will be worth a world of argument. Just try it! Do it to-day! Every grocer sells it.

THE LADY OF LYNN

By SIR WALTER BESANT

Copyright, 1900, by Sir Walter Besant

The Lady Anastasia, after the morning prayers, at which she was a regular attendant, generally returned to her lodging, where she sat with her maid engaged in the important affairs of the toilet until dinner. Lord Fylingdale was carried to Lady Anastasia's lodging in the market place.

The lady dismissed her maid. "You have something to tell me, Ludovic," she said. "I cannot tell from your face whether you are going to deal truthfully. I have had experience of the other way. Now, what is it?"

"What I have come to say is important, Anastasia, in this matter I have given you my entire confidence. There have been, I own, occasions when I have been compelled— But all that is over. I now confide absolutely in you and in you alone. My interests are yours."

"You have already given me that assurance." She implied, perhaps, by these words that the assurance and the fact were not identical.

"What can I give you except my assurance?"

"Nothing, truly. But, pray, go on. I hear that you have been playing the part of the knight errant and fighting for distressed damsels. I laughed when I heard of it. You to fight on the side of the angels! Where are your wings, my Ludovic?"

"The thing happened exactly as I could have wished. The country bumpkin who carried her off had no knowledge of fence. He could only lunge, and I was half drunk. There was a great appearance of desperate fighting because he was mad with drink and disappointment. I played with the fellow long enough to make a show of courage and danger, then I pinked him."

"Is he dead?"

"I believe that he is in some kind of fever. Well, Anastasia, the result of the affair is that I have now arrived at perfect confidence on the part of my old friend the guardian."

"And with the girl?"

"The girl matters nothing. The first part of the business is done. You can now go back to London."

"To go back to London?" she replied suspiciously.

"You have done all I wanted done here. You have given me a very good character. You have charmed the people of the spa. You have flattered the girl and inspired her with discontent. Why should you stay any longer?"

"To be sure, I am at great expense, and the bank is in a poor way. But what are you going to do?"

"Anastasia," he sat down and took her hand. "I have inquired carefully into the whole business. There is no doubt, none whatever, that the girl is far richer than even her guardian understands. She has a huge income, a great accumulation of money and, what is more, a collection of jewels which is in itself a large fortune. Go back to London tomorrow or next day. Then sit down and write a letter inviting the girl to stay at your house. Bid her bring with her all her jewels and finery. I, for my part, will urge the captain to let her accept the invitation."

"All this is very circumstantial. What then?"

"I will promise the captain to find her a husband, a man of position, a man of rank, and, above all, one as virtuous as myself." He said this without the least blush or even a smile.

"Where is that husband to be found?"

"As yet I do not know. He must be a creation of our own. He must not know; he must simply obey. We shall find such a person somewhere. I have, I believe, a good many of my former friends in the fleet or the king's bench. Now, Anastasia, to find one of these unfortunates, to offer him an allowance, say a guinea a week, in return for a power of attorney to administer the property. True, there are the creditors, but we might take over the debtors. He must not be suffered to get out." He went on suggesting deceptions and villainies.

"You said 'we.' What have I to do with the scheme? It is, you must confess, Ludovic, one of those arrangements or understandings which the world calls a conspiracy."

Lord Fylingdale released her hand. Her words pained his sensitive soul. "If at this time, after all we have done together, we are to talk of conspiracies, we had better act separately," he said coldly.

"No. I am your servant, as you know—sometimes your most unhappy servant, but always at your command—only now and then it pleases me to call things by their proper names. At such times, Ludovic, I look in my glass, and I see not the Lady Anastasia in a company of fashion, but a poor wretch sitting in a cart with her arms tied down, a white nightcap on her head and a prayer book in her hand. There is a coffin in the cart."

"Anastasia, you are ridiculous! What have we done that all the world would not do if it could? These scruples are absurd, and these visions are fantastic. What is your share? You know that half of mine—all that is mine—is yours as well. You shall have my hand and my name. These you should have had long ago had they been worth your picking up. Alas, Anastasia, no one knows better than you the desperate condition of my affairs."

"Well, I will obey you. I will go back to town. I will go tomorrow. The other parties in our innocence—they will also go back. I suppose?"

"They will have done their part, Sir Harry and the colonel and the parson; they will all go back. They cost a great deal to keep, and they have done their work."

"Should I see the girl before I go?"

"Perhaps not. Write to her from London. Invite her to stay with you. For my own part, I will look about me for the man we want—a prisoner; on the poor side; a gentleman, one who will do anything for a guinea a week. The girl will not know that he is a prisoner. It will be quite easy."

This he said, concealing his real intention, and only anxious to get this lady out of the way, but he left her suspicious and jealous. That is to say, she had already become both, and this intricate plot of a husband from the Fleet and the rest made her still more suspicious and jealous.

Having dismissed Anastasia, there remained the parson and the poet. The latter he could send away at a day's notice; the former he would probably want for a certain purpose. He sent for Mr. Scapple, his secretary.

"Semple," he said, "I have now made

Next Sabbath morning at 10:30 a special service for old people will be held under the auspices of the Young People's Society of the Evangelical church. Invitation cards have been issued which will be handed out during the week and any old person who may not be able to walk to the church will be brought and taken home again in a suitable conveyance, if such will make it known to the society. Familiar hymns that the Church has sung for nearly a century will be sung without the use of an organ, nor led by a choir.

The church will be appropriately decorated with fading foliage and everything in their power will be done by the young people to make this service an enjoyable and blessed one for the older people. The sermon by the pastor will be based on the text in II Sam. 19:35. Let all the aged come.

Thought aged and feeble in days and years, With eyes grown dim by light and tears; Whose forms are stooped and with silvery hair;

We bid you welcome to the house of prayer To hear and feel the power of His word; Where God's children will sing the songs of yore.

The young people will also have charge of the 7:00 o'clock service in the evening when reading of papers, speaking and singing will be the order of the program.

POULTRY

HANDLING FOWLS, WINTER AND SUMMER.

Some Successful Examples.

Some time since a subscriber asked information on the cost of keeping laying hens during the winter months the plans and methods employed, cost of and kinds of grain and other food required. We promised to comply with the request, at the time, by setting forth the successful methods of some who keep hens for producing eggs. Many have their own peculiar ways of housing and feeding; but when this considered and summed up it comes pretty close to being the same method.

The style of house commonly used having been described to some extent in our issue of July 4th of the present year, we will simply state that these are the proper houses, and will take up now the important question of floor and litter for the house. It is not generally understood of what assistance this is in the handling of laying hens; but when understood, it will readily be seen that it adds comfort, health and increased egg yield in every flock where the proper provision has been neglected previously. Floors of dry earth or sand, about 6 or 8 inches deep, make a fine foundation for digging and dusting in. When perfectly dry, so that the hens can raise a big dust when they dig, there is ample assurance that insect life will not bother much in that house during the winter, for the fine dust flies into every crack and crevice, and vermin cannot prosper where it is. When the foundation is covered with 6 or 8 inches of litter and it provides an excellent place to throw the grain, which the hens are obliged to hunt and dig for when it is hid in the straw. Thus is provided a dry floor, nicely covered with straw, on which to exercise themselves while hunting for their food.

At Vernon, Connecticut, a successful plant is carried on. About 1,200 hens are kept; good warm houses are provided for their care, in which they are never shut in, being allowed continual freedom, winter and summer, to roam about at will. Each hundred hens have a full acre allotted them in an orchard; and there is plenty of running water through the land for their use. Nothing is fed them but screenings; hoppers full of wheat screenings are kept constantly in the houses, where the hens can help themselves at will. These fowls depend entirely upon the screenings and the fruit, insects, berries and green fruit they find about, for their living. They average about 150 eggs per year. These eggs are sold for incubator use as much as possible; the rest go to market. This plant has always paid well, being a combination of fowls and fruit; each aids the other as they dwell together, the fowls by cultivating and fertilizing the land; the fruit and the bugs which it attracts add materially in the food supply for the fowls.

An egg plant, for market eggs only has been in operation for a number of years; a close calculation based upon records kept, has proved conclusively that it has been made to pay. All the fowls kept are pure-bred Leghorns and Wyandottes. About 1300 chicks are grown each year, to replace the stock discarded, which, while the surplus cockerels and small weakly pullets, are sent alive to market. The eggs from this plant go to wealthy families living in the several towns about Bound Brook, N. J. All of these towns are near New York City.

We have cited these two as examples, one the combination plant, the other an egg plant. The former sells broilers, market eggs, incubator eggs and fancy eggs for hatching; the other simply market eggs. Both pay for the cost and trouble. The one feeds in the most simple manner, the other feeds the fowls after the most approved methods, furnishing a complete ration which is continually being changed that they may have an assortment of grains; oats, wheat, barley, buckwheat and corn with some millet seed are fed; a mash food of ground oats, corn meal and middlings, equal parts by measure, is also given; beef scraps and cut green bone are fed all the year round in reasonable quantities.

To sum up the experience of those who succeed with their hens, we find that comfortable, dry quarters must be provided. Good, dry floors well covered with dry earth or sand are necessary. Additional benefit is gained from covering this with clover hay or straw for the hens to dig among. Their grain should all be thrown into the litter, compelling them to hunt and dig for all they get.

In this way, health and vigor on the flock is assured. This exercise also keeps them out of mischief, keeps them from getting to fat, and adds in the active formation of the eggs.

To best manage a flock of hens for profit, one should feed and water with perfect regularity, fowls should never be over or under fed; their needs should be learned and catered to; they should be fed all kinds of grain; not more than one-fifth of their ration corn—oats, barley, wheat and buckwheat with corn, about equal parts of each, is a good grain ration—using ground oats, corn and wheat middlings, equal parts by measure, for a mixed or mash feed. Cut clover, hay, roots or green rye for green food; cabbage will do. Cooked potatoes, beets and turnips, mixed with the mash, are fine for them.

Any kind of refuse meat, if it is sweet and good (liver and lights), cut fine and cooked, is excellent for them. Water in which the meat is boiled is best to mix the mash with. hot milk, sweet or sour, is also good to mix the mash with. The tops of any or all kinds of roots or vegetables cut fine is good for them; boiled rice is also good. In fact, anything that man can eat is good for hens, if properly prepared. All waste from the kitchen or table can be cut small and cooked for them. To gain the greatest benefit from all these, everything thus fed should be cut up and cooked.

Use and Value of Cut Green Bone.

What the silo has done for the dairyman, the green-bone cutter is doing for the poultryman. Each in its field has solved the problem of supplying a food that will be eagerly relished, and will force production at a season when nature is against us and at a minimum of cost.

The important constituent of animal food for poultry is protein, which produces flesh and feathers and the albumen of the egg. When given a free range, the fowls will supply themselves with animal food by catching bugs and worms, when they are obtainable. The trouble is, nature does not always supply this food in sufficient quantities even in summer, and during the winter months it is not to be had at all. Some seasons there will be plenty of grasshoppers and crickets, and after a shower the ground will be covered with angle-worms, but during a dry season worms are scarce, and if the grasshoppers fail to appear, the poultryman must supply something to take their place. Nothing answers this purpose so well as green bone.

Fresh bones contain a large percentage of protein. The same can be said of the several brands of meat meal on the market, but the fresh product is more palatable, more wholesome, easier to feed and cheaper. Hens have to acquire a taste for meat meal. It sometimes takes several days to get them accustomed to eating the mixed feed containing it. In all my experience as a poultry-raiser, I never saw the hen or chick that looked twice before eating fresh-cut bone. Meat meal is liable to become tainted before use, especially in hot weather. It is sometimes made of scraps and refuse that have reached such a stage of ripeness that no poultryman who caters to first-class trade would think of feeding it. If fed in too large quantities it is liable to impart a disagreeable odor to the eggs or flesh. There are several good, pure brands of meat meal on the market, and they are certainly better than no animal food at all, but are to fresh green bone what dried beef is to beefsteak. Feed the meal when you cannot get bones.

Fresh bone is easier to feed. It does not have to be mixed with ground feed and stirred with water, but can be fed just as it comes from the mill, and may be scattered in the litter, thus affording exercise for the hens in scratching for it. Every year more poultrymen are giving up the use of ground feed and are giving a whole grain diet, reducing the work of feeding considerably. The green bone can be cut in less time than it takes to mix soft feed.

The cost of bones for a small flock is generally nothing; the butcher will supply them. When a large quantity is used, they can be obtained from the large butcher-shops and slaughter-houses at a very moderate price. No matter what the price is, nothing will start hens laying and keep them at it, or make young chicks grow large frames and feather out well, hasten the moult or fit a bird for the show-pen like fresh-cut green bone, when fed in conjunction with a proper grain, grit and green-food ration. —J. FRANKLIN HILLER, in Country Gentleman.

Happenings Throughout the State Received by Telegraph and Put in Type.

Detroit, Oct. 14.—Further investigation made in the case of the Royal Oak, Mich., woman who was found buried in the woods a week ago, results in the conclusion that the woman is Mrs. Christopher Huss, who disappeared from Royal Oak in September, 1900. Mrs. Huss had only lived in Royal Oak for a few weeks when she suddenly disappeared, never again to be heard of. All her relatives are in the western states, and nobody around Royal Oak has been sufficiently interested in the woman to investigate her disappearance in connection with the discovery of the body.

Went to the Woods with a Man.
The description of Mrs. Huss tallies precisely with that gathered of the murdered woman. It is said that Mrs. Huss and Henry Wiseman, now serving a five-year term in Jackson prison for stealing a cow, were seen going into the woods where the body was found on the day the woman disappeared, and that he could, according to the facts produced, tell about the disappearance of Mrs. Huss.

May Solve Another Mysterious Death.
Birmingham, Mich., Oct. 14.—Under Sheriff Richmond of Pontiac, has arrested Phillip Sustin and another man whose name is not given, and it is said they may be able to throw some light on the mysterious death of Chas. Burgur, whose body was found beside the railroad tracks near Grayling, Mich., Sept. 15. On the evening prior to that date Burgur, Phillip Sustin and Carl Seager had been stealing a ride on a freight train toward Detroit from Wolverine, Mich. At Grayling Burgur was missed and Seager inquired of Sustin where his friend was. Sustin replied: "He's dead," and continued his journey. The next day Burgur's body was found beside the track.

Thugs Who Would Grasp a Rope.
Saginaw, Mich., Oct. 14.—Early Saturday morning burglars who had previously blown open the safe in the office of the United States Graphite company here and secured $30 in cash and $600 in checks, captured Night Watchman Jones at Foster's, a village near here, bound and gagged him. Then they took him to Harden's hardware store, where they blew open the safe. Unable to open the strong box they made the watchman conduct them to Harden's home to get the key. They got bullets instead, and they used the captive watchman as a shield to Harden's fire. Jones was shot in the hand, but none of the burglars was hit. The robbers escaped.

CASH WINDFALL FOR A WOMAN.
Gets $25,000 for Restoring Lost Property Valued at $400.

Fenton, Mich., Oct. 11.—In 1886 Mrs. Joseph Allen, who was then Miss Helen Parker, was clerking in Rothschild's millinery store in Detroit. One day she found at the corner of Canfield and Woodward avenues a pocket-book containing $100 in cash, a diamond ring valued at $300, and the name of the owner, Mrs. G. B. Foster. Miss Parker delivered the pocket-book to the owner, Miss Phyllis Lamereaux, a sister of Mrs. Foster, became an intimate friend of Miss Parker, often giving her valuable presents, and in a joking way often remarked she would remember her in her will.

Miss Lamereaux became Mrs. Edward Masone, with whom five years ago, she removed to Scotland. Her friendship for Miss Parker had not waned and she kept up a correspondence with her. Miss Parker meantime had herself married. Joseph Allen being the groom. On Oct. 2 Mrs. Allen received a registered letter from Edinburgh, Scotland, announcing the death of Mrs. Edward Masone, and that the latter had bequeathed her $25,000.

Sturgis, Mich., Oct. 11.—Captain William S. Bunn, well known for deeds of courage and judgment in the civil war, was laid at rest yesterday in Sturgis cemetery. Death, due to age and a complication of ailments, claimed the veteran Wednesday, at the age of 85. He was in Sherman's "march to the sea."

On Trial for Killing His Wife.
Gladwin, Mich., Oct. 12.—William Arnold, the Beaverton hotelkeeper who shot and killed his wife and daughter, is on trial here. A desperate fight is being made by his lawyers. Three days have been consumed in securing a jury. It is not expected the trial proper will last long.

Kentuckians in Queer Conflict.
Lexington, Ky., Oct. 15.—A queer conflict of testimony exists in the cases of John T. Doyle and Martin Clark, white, who are in jail here charged with having killed Henry Campbell, a negro. The negro, after being ejected from a saloon in which the two white men worked, returned and opened fire on them. Clark got a pistol and Doyle a rifle, and each shot once at the negro. The negro fell dead, struck by one bullet. The bullet could not be found, and each man surmised, thinking he fired the fatal shot.

"That is just what we want to prove—that he [Schley] had no orders except those contained in dispatches Nos. 7 and 8." He also declared that the first positive order Schley received to leave Cienfuegos and go to Santiago was the one dated May 27, and prompted by Schley, added: "He [Schley] got it June 10."

Hanna took the witness for re-direct examination. He began by asking if he knew the reason for the lapse of five or six days between the sending of dispatches by the Hawk and the Wasp. To this inquiry Rayner objected, and there was quite a spirited argument on the part of counsel on both sides as to the admissibility of the question. Hanna stated in the course of his argument that the matter could be fully explained, but said that if the court objected he would not press the matter. Whereupon Admiral Dewey remarked: "You had better not ask that question." The last witness of the day was Lieutenant N. C. Twining, formerly of the Iowa. He told nothing new.

SOME POINTS IN COOK'S TALK

Did the Loop to Head Off the Dons—Never Feared Collision.
Washington, Oct. 15.—Yesterday in the Schley court of inquiry Judge Advocate Lemly concluded the presentation of testimony for the government, and the first of Admiral Schley's witnesses was introduced. Captain Francis A. Cook, who commanded Admiral (then Commodore) Schley's flagship, the Brooklyn, during the Santiago campaign, and who acted, though unofficially, in the capacity of chief of staff for the commodore, was on the witness stand the greater part of the day.

Captain Cook told why the "loop" was executed, and said that he never thought of the possibility of a collision with the Texas, although he saw her—and he put her off at a distance of 400 yards at the least, and claimed to be good at judging distances. He said he himself gave the order for the "loop." The reason for the order, Captain Cook said, was:

"When I saw the [Spanish] fleet they were heading southwest, and seemed to be coming straight for the interval between the Texas and the Brooklyn. * * * Finally, when we were getting up fairly close, say between 1,500 to 2,000 yards, it seemed to me clear that they wanted to pass between the Texas and the Brooklyn. The Texas was well on our starboard hand and she was headed to the northward and westward. The Spanish fleet was coming straight for this interval. I stepped out of the tower on the port side to get a good look at this fleet, to see just what they were going to do as to our relative positions, and I saw they evidently put helms hard apart and were turning to the westward."

The Brooklyn was then well around on her loop, and the captain ordered the helm put hard apart—it had been put half way to port at the beginning of the loop—and this sent the Brooklyn around very rapidly until she was parallel with the Spaniards. Cook then told the story of the chase, not materially differing from others who have told it.

One thing he made clear, and that was that whoever said "Damn the Texas," it was not he; nor did he hear the words. He also said he never was in fear of being rammed. The idea of a collision with the Texas never entered his head. He said this in a manner showing that he had no faith in the story that a collision was even possible at that time.

Nunez, Schley's first witness, testified that he did not believe Cervera was at Santiago even as late as May 26. Schley had sent him ashore with a letter to Calixto Garcia, the Cuban leader. He did not see Garcia, but gave the letter to Colonel Cobereco, another Cuban leader, who confirmed the presence of Cervera at Santiago and gave the names of the ships in the harbor. This was on June 1.

LOTTER IS EXECUTED

Boer Commandant Put to Death by the British in South Africa.

Middleburg, Cape Colony, Oct. 14.—Commandant Lotter, the Cape rebel, whose commando, consisting almost wholly of rebels, was captured south of Petersburg in September, and who was sentenced to death, has been shot. Commandant Lotter had been tried and found guilty on eight counts, including sedition, the murder of colored unarmed scouts, the murder of troopers in action, the blowing up of railroads, and the cowhiding of British subjects and Europeans. Lotter pleaded that he was a citizen of the Orange Free State, but this was disproved.

Two young farmers who had twice joined the Boers have been hanged at Vryburg. The death sentences of a number of other condemned men have been commuted to penal servitude.

NO REWARD FOR PAT CROWE

Cudahy Withdraws What He Offered for the Suspect's Capture.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 14.—Chief of Police Donahue has received from Patrick Crowe, through a friend of the latter, an offer to surrender himself and stand trial in the courts if the reward of $50,000 hanging over his head for the alleged kidnaping of Edward Cudahy, Jr., is withdrawn. The chief is now negotiating with him for surrender.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 15.—Edward A. Cudahy has withdrawn his offer of rewards aggregating $25,000 for the capture and conviction of the thugs who stole his son last December. The text of the notice of withdrawal is as follows:

"To the Public and Whom It May Concern: I, Edward A. Cudahy, do hereby withdraw my offer of a reward of $5,000 for the first arrest and conviction of one of the kidnapers; $15,000 for the arrest and conviction of any two of the kidnapers, and $25,000 for the arrest and conviction of three of the kidnapers implicated in the kidnaping of Edward A. Cudahy, Jr., on or about December 18, 1900, hereby unconditionally revoking and recalling my said offer of reward heretofore made by me in any way whatsoever."

LATEST NEWS FROM MANILA

Looks Like the Insurgents Are Growing More Troublesome, at This Time.

Manila, Oct. 14.—The military authorities have received word that General Miguel Malvar, the insurgent leader, is believed to have left the province of Batangas, Luzon, and to be planning an operation in the province of Bulacan, where insurgent conscription has been progressing recently. The country there is mountainous and well adapted to guerrilla warfare.

The police force at Banana, province of Batangas, has been disarmed and the chief of police and several others have been placed under arrest on charge of belonging to an insurgent society and using their offices to obtain information for the insurgents. There is intense feeling among the natives in San Fernando, province of Pampanga, over the killing of a native by a soldier. Strong patrols are out in both San Fernando and Bacolor to prevent a hostile demonstration.

There is considerable criticism here of the recent statements of Representative Edgar Weeks, of Michigan, regarding Filipino character and possibilities. The native press unflinchingly condemns the conclusions of Weeks as "unjust and viciously false." Weeks said the Filipinos must be ruled by fear. The members of the Philippine commission say he is "too sweeping."

PLANS FOR CZOLGOSZ'S DEATH

Official Representative of the Government to Attend the Execution.
Albany, N. Y., Oct. 15.—Superintendent Cornelius V. Collins will send a request to Secretary of State Hay to designate an official representative of the government to be present at the electrocution of Leon F. Czolgosz, the assassin of President McKinley. Only twenty-six witnesses will be present in the chamber of death when the sentence is executed. Warden Mead has received over 1,000 requests to attend the electrocution.

Statements to the effect that Czolgosz is in a continual state of collapse are false. Superintendent Collins had a talk with the condemned man some days ago and at that time he said he knew he had to die and expressed no fear as to the electrocution. Since his confinement in Auburn prison several thousand letters have been received for him at the prison as well as a large number of express packages containing flowers and fruit, sent by Christian societies with a view to consoling him in his last moments.

Confessed to Killing a Policeman.
South Bend, Ind., Oct. 14.—James Braddie in a letter written Sept. 23 at Buffalo, N. Y., to Governor W. T. Durbin of Indiana, confesses that he killed Policeman Samuel Cooper of this city, Oct. 29, 1900. He says Louis Jacquith, who is serving a life sentence at Michigan City for the crime, is innocent. Braddie makes the confession, he says, because he is seriously ill, but had no intention of surrendering to the authorities.

No Hope for Pillsbury.
Minneapolis, Oct. 15.—Practically all hope has been given up for the recovery of ex-Governor John S. Pillsbury. He is suffering with Bright's disease, and during the past week he was unconscious the greater portion of the time. He is weaker than at any time during his present illness, and it is believed that the end is not far away. Mr. Pillsbury is 73 years old, and has not the vitality necessary to fight the disease.

First Snow at Denver.
Denver, Oct. 12.—The first snow storm to visit Denver this season was in progress last night. It melted almost as fast as it fell.

JOKE ON JEFFERSON.

How the Bones of a Sloth Deceived the Sage of Monticello.

Thomas Jefferson was proud of his attainments in natural history, and particularly of their recognition by the great naturalist, Buffon, to whom he sent specimens and information. With the flattery of a French courtier, Buffon wrote Jefferson: "I should have consulted you, sir, before publishing my natural history, and then I should have been sure of the facts." This so his ability in that direction that he was shortly after led into a mortifying error.

In Greenbrier county, Va., in 1796, a deposit of bones, supposed to be those of a mammoth, was found and sent to Monticello, where Mr. Jefferson set them up and pronounced them to be those of a "carnivorous clawed animal animal entirely unknown to science." A curious sight might have been witnessed by people who lived along the route of travel between Monticello and Philadelphia, when the vice president of the United States, on his way to take the oath of office and assume the second place in the gift of the nation, carried a wagon load of bones for his baggage. He delivered them to Dr. Wiser, the naturalist of the American Philosophical society, with a labored report under date of 'March' 10, 1797, entitled "A Memoir on the Discovery of Certain Bones of an Hitherto Unknown Quadruped of the Clawed Kind, in the Western Part of Virginia." Dr. Wiser at a glance pronounced them the bones of the common sloth, or "giant edantate," and showed Mr. Jefferson several other specimens of the same kind. The vice president was greatly humiliated, and the scientist called it "Megalonyx Jeffersonii"—a name by which the animal has since been known to naturalists. Fortunately, for his sensitive nature, Mr. Jefferson's lack of humor prevented him from recognizing the satire. The bones are still exhibited in the Academy of Sciences at Philadelphia.—Baltimore Sun.

SURE CURE FOR DYSPEPSIA.

One Clubman Who Knew the Remedy for His Ailment.

Philadelphia Record: Standing in front of a Locust street stable yesterday afternoon was a man in overalls, pulling bales of hay up into the loft with the aid of a rope and pulley. He looked the picture of health and the exertion was as nothing to him. Presently along came another man. He was fat and pudgy-looking and his skin had an unhealthy color. His general appearance betokened the overfed club man. He was carefully groomed and was evidently a man of leisure. He stood for perhaps a minute watching the other man at work, and then he said: "Would you mind letting me take your place for a while? I am troubled with indigestion and have been suffering all day. I think that would do me good."

The stableman's eyes seemed to pop out of his head. "Sure," he said, "sure." The pudgy dyspeptic carefully removed his gloves and grasped the rope. It was hard work and it made him very red in the face, but he finally landed the bale where another man in the loft could take it in. Then he tried another, and kept it up for about ten minutes. When he relinquished the rope to the stableman he slipped a coin into the latter's hand, saying: "Thank you, very much. That has done me more good than all the medicine in the world." As he disappeared around the corner the laborer was heard to mutter: "Well, I'll be d—d!" That was as near as his vocabulary could come to doing justice to the occasion.

Love of Novelty in Trade.
Ainslee's Magazine: The department store is an evolution of the dry goods store, which exists no longer as an ambitious retail business. One of the greatest department stores in the west was the creation of a man who used to exhibit an educated pig in a traveling circus. When his estate was probated it was appraised at $15,000,000. This man opened a small dry goods store in Chicago and annexed one business after another in his neighborhood until he owned, what some declare was the first department store in America. However, that may be, the idea is older in England and France.

The World's Debt to Asia.
On the whole, when the continent of continents is fairly viewed in her length and fullness of history as in her breadth and wealth of land, Asia must be held at once the cradle of humanity, the birthplace of nations, the nursery of the world's religions; and all right-thinking men must hope that the debt of the western world to the queenly continent will be paid in full measure, and in peace and good will to the men of ancient lineage, whether their skins be brown or yellow.—National Geographic Magazine.
