GUEST OF THE NATION

Prince Henry of Prussia and His Suite Are Welcomed to Washington.

DRIVEN TO THE WHITE HOUSE

Received by President Roosevelt—Given a Noisy Welcome on Arriving in New York.

New York, Feb. 25.—In a drizzling rain and in the presence of a brilliant assemblage, amidst cheering and the roar of cannon, the German emperor's new schooner-yacht Meteor was launched from Shooter's island. Unlike the weather, the arrangements were perfect and no untoward incident marred the occasion.

The yacht was christened by Miss Alice Roosevelt.

Washington, Feb. 25.—Prince Henry of Prussia and suite, accompanied by the welcoming delegations from both the president and German embassy, arrived here at 10:20 o'clock in the morning, promptly on schedule time. The trip from Baltimore to Washington was without incident. Secretary of State Hay, Secretary of the Navy Long, Assistant Secretary of State Pearce, who had immediate charge of the arrangements at the depot, and Count Quadt and two other attaches from the German embassy awaited the arrival of the train at the depot. They remained in an improvised reception room, the walls of which were heavily draped with intertwining American and German flags. The atmosphere was redolent with the fragrance of flowers. The embassy officials were in full uniform.

REAR ADMIRAL PRINCE HENRY.

Bugle Call Announces Train. A bugle call by a cavalryman stationed outside announced the arrival of the train. It was halted just outside the depot, the engine detached and the cars backed into position opposite the receiving room, midway down the trainshed. The welcoming party passed quickly into the prince's car and informally extended to him the welcome to the city.

A few moments later the party emerged and passed to the reception room. Commander Cowles, President Roosevelt's brother-in-law, and Adjutant General Corbin were the first to alight and the prince was not far behind them. Walking rapidly and with the erect bearing of a trained naval officer, smiling to the group of officials, detectives and newspaper men, through a double line of whom he passed, saluting with a touch of his hand to the glittering chapeau he wore, he crossed the carpeted depot aisles and entered the reception room. There he remained for about ten minutes. Assistant Secretary Pearce and Chief Wilkie stood at the door while the prince was waiting.

Driven to the White House.

Finally Prince Henry, accompanied by Secretary Hay and Rear Admiral Evans, entered the last of the open carriages. The carriages of the others were drawn up in line and the prince's carriage dashed at rapid speed to the head of the column. Instantly the police and military escorts wheeled into position and the party started up Pennsylvania avenue for the White House.

At the White House President Roosevelt and his cabinet received the royal party with appropriate honors. The executive branch of the government played the host in the morning, and at 4 o'clock the prince took a glance at the legislative branch, going to the capitol, where he saw both house and senate in session.

Banquet at the White House.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The dinner given to Prince Henry by President Roosevelt at the White House last night closed the honors bestowed on the royal visitor by official Washington for the day. The affair was on an elaborate scale and brought together a most distinguished company. It was an assemblage such as has rarely if ever before gathered in the White House. To accommodate the large number of guests the dinner table was set in the East Room, the decorations of which were on the most magnificent scale ever attempted. An effective and new feature of the decorations was the electric light illumination. Several thousand little electric lights of all colors and arranged in fanciful designs supplemented the illumination from the great chandeliers.

Seats of the Prominent Guests.

After the dinner the guests repaired to the parlors, where for an hour or more they remained in social conversation. The prince chatted freely with the company. At 10:40 the party dispersed, the prince leaving directly for the railroad station, where his special train awaited him, leaving at midnight for New York city.

Following was the programme for the day:

Arrive at Shooter's island at 9:45 a. m. Launching of Meteor at 10:30 a. m. Luncheon to president and party on Hohenzollern at 1:30 p. m. Received by Mayor Low at New York city hall at 4 p. m. Dinner by Mayor Low at Metropolitan club at 7 p. m. Metropolitan opera house, gala performance arranged by citizens, at 8:30 p. m.

THE ARRIVAL AT NEW YORK

Cannons Thundered Salutes to Prince Henry of Prussia.

New York, Feb. 25.—The Kronprinz Wilhelm, with Prince Henry of Prussia and party on board, arrived at Thirty-fourth street pier, North river, at noon Sunday, about twenty-four nours oenma schedule time. High winds and heavy seas delayed the big liner, and the programme for the first two days of the prince's visit as originally planned had to be abandoned. Prince Henry was officially welcomed by Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans and staff, who met the Kronprinz at the narrows in the naval tug Nina.

Cannons at Fort Wadsworth and Fort Hamilton thundered salutes as the big liner steamed up the bay and the salutes were taken up by the ships of the American squadron, each vessel firing twenty-one guns. Steam whistles on all kinds of craft, large and small, shrieked out a continuous welcome as the prince's steamer made its way up the harbor and to its dock.

After the prince boarded the imperial yacht Hohenzollern he received official calls from Mayor Low, Admiral Barker and his staff, General Brooke and staff and Ambassador Holleben and staff. More impressive than any official welcome, however, was the great popular welcome given the visitor by thousands upon thousands of people who lined the shore and crowded every pierhead, cheering continuously as the vessel passed up the river.

Captain Nathan Sargent called on the prince as the special representative of Admiral Dewey. The captain said that he had been sent by the admiral especially to express to the prince the admiral's regret at not being able to greet him personally and to pay his respects. In the afternoon the prince and his staff boarded the tug Nina and returned the calls of Admiral Barker and General Brooke. Prince Henry gave a dinner at night on board the Hohenzollern and at 1 o'clock in the morning Prince Henry's train left Jersey City for Washington.

LOST IN THE NEW YORK FIRE

Names of Those Who Were Caught in the Blaze in the Park Avenue Hotel.

New York, Feb. 24.—Sophia Beach, 61 years of age, a guest of the Park Avenue hotel, who was burned about the face and body, has died in the hospital. This makes the nineteenth victim. All the other fire victims in the different hospitals will probably recover. Rev. Wm. Boardman, of Norwalk, Conn., who is suffering from burns about the face, hands and body, is improved. The property loss, including that of the hotel guests, will hardly reach $1,000,000. The hotel is damaged $50,000 and the armory cost $700,000 to build. It contained some relics that cannot be valued, one being a portrait of George Washington. The cause of neither fire is known.

One of the saddest incidents of the fire was the death of Mrs. Salome Foster, the "Tomb's Angel," who for fifteen years had done service in behalf of female prisoners in the Tombs and other city prisons. Mrs. Foster was the widow of John W. Foster, and had lived for the last five years at the Park Avenue hotel. Her income, which was at one time considered large, was for the most part expended upon the deserving poor.

The following is a list of persons who lost their lives in the fire, or who died from injuries received therein: Acton, Norman, of Colorado Springs, Colo.; Burdett, Col. Charles L., of Hartford, Conn.; Bernhardt, William J., of Chicago; Bernhardt, Mrs. William J., wife of foregoing; Conrad, Lee G., of this city; Hovey, Fred S., of Lyons, N. Y.; Hames, J. R. (not certain, may be Thomas Horne), Denver, Colo.; Iverson, John, Denver, Colo.; Liggett, Minnie E., of Denver, Colo.; McManus, Mrs. J.; O'Connell, Captain Charles Underwood; Robbins, ex-representative Gaston A., of Savannah, Ga.; Schlessinger, Esther, of Chicago; Spahn, Jacob, of Rochester, N. Y.; Walker, John G., of Columbia, Tenn. Piper, Colonel Alexander M., U. S. A., retired; Foster, Mrs. Salome, known as the "Tomb's Angel"; Mrs. William S. Boardman, wife of Rev. William S. Boardman; Sophia Beach, of this city.

There were sixteen persons injured—burned about face and hands, or partly suffocated, but among these the name of Rear Admiral Miller, who was at first reported fatally injured, does not appear.

Kansas City in a Bad Way.

Kansas City, Feb. 21.—Kansas City is without its five principal charter officers as a result of the decision of the state supreme court ousting City Comptroller Lund, City Physician Coffin, Clerk Curry, Assessor Yost and City Counsellor Middlebrook, hold-over Republicans. After the decision had become thoroughly understood and they had sought the advice of their attorneys, each of the ousted Republicans left their offices, refusing to assume responsibility for their future conduct. Thus, practically all the city's business came to an abrupt standstill.

Hobson Engaged Once More.

Bloomington, Ills., Feb. 24.—Capt. R. P. Hobson, hero of the Merriam, has arrived at Bloomington and is the guest of ex-Vice President A. E. Stevenson. There is a report that he is engaged to the latter's daughter, Letitia, but all deny its correctness.

Michigan Athletes Beat Illinois.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 24.—In the track meet here Michigan defeated Illinois by making sixty points to her twelve.

No More "Smokers" Allowed.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 21.—President Angell, of the University of Michigan, has peremptorily forbidden all "smokers" in the future among the undergraduate body. It has long been expected that some decisive faculty action would be taken, and especially since the notorious "barbecue" given recently. "While we cannot prevent gathering of students as individuals," said President Angell, "we can, however, and will prevent them getting together in the name of the university and their class, and filling up on beer to their own disgrace and the discredit of the university."

A SHOE CLASSIC

WE commend to our trade the PEDALIS Ladies' Shoes as embodying every valuable essential which makes a shoe a thing of beauty, perfect grace and utility.

As maintained by the manufacturer of this shoe, the PEDALIS is the result of an ambition to make a perfect shoe—one, in which, is embraced the highest artistic construction and best material, and a shoe which conforms to the foot so as to give the wearer the utmost ease and comfort. That the manufacturer has fully succeeded in his aims, we have only to mention that the PEDALIS is frequently referred to as a classic in schoolcraft.

A NEW AND ORIGINAL FEATURE

A novel addition to the many superior points in the PEDALIS and one which meets with the warmest approval of ladies, is that of a patented pocket for containing the shoe laces. By means of this original idea, untidy, straggling shoe laces are a thing of the past. Only a moment's time is required to unfasten the clasp and tuck the laces within and to refasten the clasp, but when this is done the natty, stylish appearance of the shoe is a source of much gratification to every lady who has an eye for the artistic.

CARMER & CARMER

FEED BABY SLOWLY.

ONE OF THE MOST IMPORTANT FACTORS IN CHILD REARING.

Reasons Why Food Should Not Be Tumbled Rapidly Into the Little Stomach—Advice Which Applies to Grown Folks as Well as Babies.

In the proper bringing up of a child there is nothing absolutely more important than this one thing—to teach it to eat slowly.

Every groom knows and observes the rule in the care of a horse that rapid eating is fatal to digestion. There are all sorts of patent mangers to prevent the horse swallowing his oats too quickly. The man who has no patent manger knows enough, when necessary, to put a stone in the manger, scattering the oats around it, so that the horse may be compelled to eat slowly. If the horse's inclination is to gulp down water too fast, the careful man will put a big sponge in the water, compelling slow drinking.

A child's appetite, when he is allowed to eat rapidly, is always in excess of his actual needs unless the child is in bad health. The reason for this is extremely simple. The child craves food because his body requires to manufacture new tissue. He is growing, and he must not only replace the used up tissues that his daily life destroys, but he must make new flesh, new muscles, new bone and new blood every day, adding weight and size.

The sensation of hunger is not the craving of an empty stomach, satisfied as soon as the stomach is filled; it is a craving that is felt by the nerves all over the body. This craving cannot possibly be satisfied until the stomach has begun the work of transforming the food into blood, flesh, muscles, etc.; consequently the sensation which we call hunger persists long after the child or grown person has rapidly absorbed as much food as it really needs.

A million foolish parents urge their children to eat a great deal and always let them eat as much as they want to. Yet all of these know that a famished man taken off a wreck will eat himself to death if allowed to do so. The very hungry child goes to the same excess, only in a lesser degree. The great safeguard against that excess in eating, which kills 90 per cent of men before their time and which accounts for 99 per cent of children's diseases, is slow eating.

Nearly all children eat too rapidly. They do so by nature. Slow eating is a matter of education. But too often the mother or the nurse teaches the child the habit of eating fast. When the baby is little, it is fed one spoonful at a time. Before it has time to half chew or even gulp down the first spoonful of food another is held to its lips. Of course it swallows what it has in its mouth and seizes upon the next mouthful. The habit thus inculcated by foolish adults often ruins the child permanently.

Four factors count in the healthy assimilation of food, factors which parents and nurses should remember. Assuming the food to be properly prepared, thoroughly cooked and wisely selected, there comes, first, the work of the teeth, which prepare the food for easy digestion; second, the action of the saliva, with which the food must be thoroughly mixed in order to minimize the necessary work of the gastric juices in the stomach; third, the work of the stomach itself; fourth, and most important, a proper supply of blood and of heat.

Force your child to chew slowly and thoroughly every mouthful. If nothing else will do, compel him at frequent intervals to lay down his knife and fork that the importance of prolonged chewing may be impressed upon him. Don't allow your child to gulp down water or any other liquid with his solid food. If you allow him to drink while he eats, the salivary glands will not act. They will not need to act, for he will be able to swallow his food easily when it is made moist by water.

You can't do anything to help along the unconscious process which goes on in the stomach, but you can do everything to help that process by attending to the fourth necessity, which demands blood and the heat of the blood in the stomach. Allow no child after eating to take violent exercise, to study or even to read an exciting book. The brain has first call upon the service of the heart, and as soon as the brain is excited the blood leaves the stomach and goes to the head. The muscles also when too violently exerted draw the blood away from the stomach.

It is absolutely impossible for a child or a grown person to digest properly or to get strength and vitality from what he eats unless for at least a half hour after eating the stomach be allowed to monopolize the blood supply. Children should be kept quiet in some way, especially very young children, after they have eaten. In the case of very young babies nature attends to this mercifully by making them go to sleep as soon as they have absorbed their milk. Older children ought not to go to sleep directly after eating for physiological reasons which may be explained at some other time; but they ought to be quiet and calm. Tens of thousands of children in homes where this newspaper is read are ruined in health by studying right after meals. The public school system which gives children too short a resting period in the middle of the day is responsible partly for this, and the home studies at night are also responsible.

Every word that is said here applies to grownup people, of whom not one in a hundred has ever been taught to apply to himself such common sense care as is bestowed on a second class horse.—New York Journal.

The Willing Worker.

"Why is it," asked a modest young breadwinner, "that when I stay at the office after hours to voluntarily do an extra amount of work somebody who is in charge pounces upon me as his justifiable victim and gives me still more to do?"

"That has happened to me time after time in my business, and at each repetition I have taken a vow that if I am ever in charge of an office I shall give any one of my subordinate who sits down and does work which isn't specifically required of him credit for what he does do and let it go at that, without adding insult to injury, as it were, by giving him something further to do. Of course it's an old saying that the man who does the most work is the man usually 'worked,' but it's discouraging, though, he goes ahead and lets himself be 'worked,' with only a weak objection to ease his feelings."—New York Mail and Express.

Mushrooms Are Filling.

One virtue of the mushroom that oftentimes is not realized by its champions even is its nutritive qualities, for it is often considered fit only for a sauce or a side dish. Recently I ate dinner with a friend who is a bon vivant and gifted with an abnormally large appetite. To my surprise, he ordered nothing but mushrooms, bread and butter and, of course, drinkables. We had mushrooms raw, stewed, fried and broiled on toast. It was my first experience, but I found them excellent. I certainly thought they would not "stay by me," but, to my surprise, for many hours afterward I had as complete a sense of fullness as rare roast beef or juicy steak ever imparted.—New York Telegram.

CURIOSITIES OF MICA.

Its Appearance Before It Is Split Into Sheets.

The mica as it comes from the mines is in blocks which are theoretically short rhombic prisms, but practically are scarcely recognizable as such, having a very rough and uneven contour. They have a very perfect cleavage parallel to the base and may be split into laminae thinner than the thinnest tissue paper, and these laminae form the familiar transparent stove panes and lamp chimneys. The exterior portions of these blocks are opaque, brittle and worthless, presumably from the penetration of water, for mica soon decomposes when exposed to any considerable weathering. A thick layer of plates has therefore to be removed from either face of the blocks before any mica of commercial size or value is reached, and the sheets split from the remainder are surrounded by a wide margin of worthless material.

But the difficulties and losses of mica mining are far from being all enumerated. Even when occurring in blocks of commercial size it is rendered valueless, or comparatively so, by one or more of a series of defects, which may be classed as color, specks, ruling, ribbing and wedge formation. It sometimes occurs literally pitted with black dots, consisting in general of black oxide of iron or garnet, and when even a few of these are present its commercial value is destroyed, because such mica when used as an insulator is peculiarly liable to puncture, the specks forming practically short circuits for the electric current. The same is true of streaks, which are sometimes turned to red rust.

Some otherwise excellent mica is found to be ruled or cut, as it were, with a series of perfectly straight lines, parallel to one side of the crystal, so that on being split the mica falls immediately into strips; or, again, instead of being striped or ruled, the mica is often deeply ribbed or corrugated parallel to the adjacent edges of the crystal, so as to give the appearance of the letter A, or, rather, V, whence it is termed "A mica." As the ribbed portion has to be cut away in the sheet, such mica is unprofitable unless the blocks be large. Wedge mica is that in which the block is thicker at one end than the other, the laminae partaking in the unevenness. Such blocks are wholly worthless except as scrap.—Engineering Magazine.

OLD FASHIONED.

What has become of the old fashioned woman who said, "Oh, now you hush?"

What has become of the old fashioned man who had his picture taken in lodge regalia?

What has become of the old fashioned woman who wore a long gold chain around her neck?

What has become of the old fashioned woman who did things in three shakes of a lamb's tail?

What has become of the old fashioned woman who referred to the best room in her house as "the room?"

What has become of the old fashioned home where the children sat with their noses at the window every night watching for their father?

What has become of the old fashioned girl who, as soon as she became engaged, got out her crochet needle and began to make her own trimmings?—Aitchison Globe.

Look the Hint.

A story is told of a certain English bishop well known for his verbosity who rose to address the house of lords on a very important occasion. "I will divide my speech under twelve heads," he said, to the discomfort of his audience.

The Marquis of Salisbury begged to be allowed to interpose with a little anecdote. "A friend of mine was returning home late one night," he said, "when opposite St. Paul's he saw an intoxicated man trying to ascertain the time on the big clock there. Just then it began to strike and slowly tolled out 12. The man listened, looked hard at the clock and said: 'Confound you, why couldn't you have said that all at once?'"

The bishop heartily joined in the laughter which followed and took the hint contained in the story.

Two Good Whist Hands.

Once upon a time two young men and two young women were playing whist, and quite frequently one of the young men and one of the young women found that their fingers were intertwined under the table, out of sight.

This finger contact did not in the least disconcert them—in fact, they appeared to enjoy the play much more than did the other young woman and young man.

Moral.—The enjoyment of the game depends on the hands that are held.—New York Herald.

All Over Again.

"Here are half a dozen prescriptions I would like to have you fill as soon as you can," wheezed Rivers.

"I can see they are all for the cure of a cold," remarked the druggist, looking them over.

"It's this way," explained Rivers. "When I had the other cold, I tried all these. One of 'em cured me, but I can't remember now. Confound it, which one it was!"—Chicago Tribune.

"Good! She has decided that she will marry me if you will supply the means."—Detroit Free Press.

DISTILLED WATER.

It Is the Purest, Best and Only Absolutely Safe Water.

Boil a gallon of water until there is but a quart left, and the quart will contain all the impurities of the gallon and be nearly four times as impure as before. Continue the boiling, and all the impurities—animal, vegetable and mineral, except the gases thrown off—will be reduced to one solid mass. The water which is evaporated and passed off as steam is very nearly pure. But, you will say, it kills the dangerous germs. We will suppose it does, but their remains furnish material for bacterial life to feed upon. Do you relish the idea of eating in food or drinking their dead and decomposing bodies, which poison the water by their decomposition? The fact is scientific investigation has proved that boiling only kills the feeblest, the least injurious, germs.

Try a simple experiment. Put unboiled city water in one bottle and the same that has been boiled for half an hour or more in another, cork tightly and keep in the sun or in a warm place for a week or longer and note the difference. The unboiled water will show a marked depreciation in looks, taste and smell, but that which has been boiled will be so much worse in these respects that no one would think of using it. In comparison with these you can submit a properly sealed bottle of pure distilled water to the same conditions, and at the end of a year it will be found to be as pure, sweet and perfect as when first bottled.

The purest and best and the only absolutely safe water to use for drinking and the preparation of all foods and artificial drinks is that produced by distillation, but the most imperfect one produces a water far superior in purity and healthfulness to the very best spring waters under their most favorable conditions. The nearest approach to it in purity is rainwater, which is distilled water of nature's own production, when collected on clean surfaces, in uninhabited sections, where the air is pure and uncontaminated by smoke, dust, city and factory gases, etc.—Sanitarian.

SOME WRITERS.

Locke is said to have spent over six years in the preparation of his essay, "On the Human Understanding."

Lamartine, the great French poet, was happily married and received great aid from his wife in all his undertakings.

The great Dante was married to a notorious scold, and when he was in exile he had no desire to see her, although she was the mother of his six children.

Wolfe is said to have written "The Burial of Sir John Moore" in one evening directly after news had been brought of the defeat at Coruna and the death of the gallant British officer.

A friend of the late Walter Besant relates that the novelist always kept on his desk before him a list of the characters of the novel he happened to be at work on, their relationship and appearance.

Hans Christian Andersen formed his style by narrating his stories to various groups of children before he wrote them down. His one thought was to become famous, and he was very careful not to make any enemies.

Dickens says in the introduction to "David Copperfield" that he spent two years in the composition of that novel. He did not usually require so long a time, many of his novels being finished in less than a year and most of his shorter stories in a few days.

Animals and Salt.

Among certain people there is a strong idea that nothing is worse for dogs than salt, but as a matter of fact, when administered in small quantities, it materially assists the process of digestion. There is no doubt, however, that to give dogs or any other animals broth or pot liquor in which salt pork or bacon has been boiled would be almost equivalent to giving them a small dose of poison. The use of salt among horses, cattle and sheep is advocated by the highest veterinary authorities. Pigs, on the contrary, are extremely susceptible to the poisonous influence of the agent, and experiments have been made which had, after small doses regularly administered, fatal results. Habitually, as a matter of course, all animals consume a certain portion of salt, as it exists in certain proportions in most articles of food.—London Mail.

Tilden's Dog.

At one of the early dog shows Samuel J. Tilden bought an immense Great Dane dog. "What's his name?" asked a visitor.

"Ask him," said Mr. Tilden. "What good would that do?"

"It's his name," was the reply. "So it was."—"Ask him."

The dog knew a number of tricks, but would only perform when fed. "He'd make a good politician," said his owner as he gave him a bone.—New York World.

At the Parting of the Ways.

"Do you take this man to be your wedded husband?" asked the justice of the peace.

"I don't know whether to do it or not, squire," said the young woman, wiping her eyes. "He's got the money from me to pay for the license. I don't like to marry a man of that kind, and yet I hate to see $2 wasted."—Chicago Tribune.

Dog's Teeth.

De Style—He pulled fifteen teeth from me.

Gunbusta—He's no dentist.

De Style—I know it, but he pried open the dog's mouth and yanked him off.—New York Telegram.

The Coming Of the King

By Clinton Dangerfield

Copyright, 1901, by Clinton Dangerfield

When Jack Harden at last succeeded in filing his prison bars and dropping out of his window into the kindly shadows of the night, his heart was aglow with exultation. He determined to work his way south and bury himself there from the eyes of the law. In the bygone years when he had termed himself a gentleman, before the lures of Wall street had tempted him into the use of other people's money, he had won a wager of a thousand dollars by crossing the whole country with not a cent in his pocket, and it seemed to him now that he could easily do so again.

But he soon found that the man who must evade and conceal, who still has on the fatal stripes, is far, far behind the penniless but lucky individual who

THERE STOOD THE TWO MEN.

can look the world boldly in the face.
When the third night came, he was sullen from hunger and pitifully weary from endless walking and the cruel anxiety of one who hears danger in every sound. He crawled into a wayside barn and slept exhaustedly. It was late in the morning when he awoke, and he then became aware that a shrill but sweet voice was reading aloud, steadily and surely, on the floor beneath him.

Parting the waves of hay, Jack looked down to see a child of perhaps seven years in a white frock which admirably suited her unusual beauty. Now and then the long golden locks on her shoulders fell on the page, but she tossed them aside and read on with breathless interest.

"And so King Charles, who was quite worn out with travel and hunger," read the voice, "came at last to a large barn. He slept all night with nothing to eat, and nobody knows just what would have become of him if he had not found an egg, which he devoured eagerly."

As Harden listened a whimsical determination moved him, and, leaning a little farther down, he said gently:

"All that is very true, except that I have not found the egg."

His musical tones glided so easily into the story that the little reader looked up without even a start. In the restless and handsome dark eyes gazing down on hers and in the lines of the face she saw only the countenance of the tired Charles. That the story had come to life was nothing wonderful. All stories were alive if one only recognized it properly. She looked up at him seriously, dropping her chin on a supporting hand.

"Why have you shaved off your pointed beard?" she asked gravely and with feminine irrelevance.

"I am too young yet to have it," said
King Charles as gravely in return.

"That was later on, you know."

"The egg couldn't be there," observed the reader thoughtfully, "because we have no hens, but there's a dozen bought from the store. They are in the house, only they are boiled hard,
ready for the picnic this afternoon."

"They will do," returned the king hastily. "Bring all of them, and mind you don't say a word to any one, on account of the Roundheads, you know!"

"I know," said the reader confidently. She hurried away, leaving the book of historical tales forgotten on the floor. Had not the king himself stepped out of the leaves? It seemed to the hungry man an age before she returned, holding up her skirts, in which lay the promised eggs. He began to eat them with starving haste, the reader watching him critically.

"You devour them eagerly, just as you should," she observed, "but you ought not to choke so. Your eyes are almost sticking out."

"Get me some water!" gasped the king. "That last egg is sticking half way down my throat and refuses to go any farther."

She brought the water hurriedly, remorseful that she had no raw eggs to offer instead, but the king was not difficult to please. The last one disappeared, and he sighed as though he might have eaten more. However, he felt greatly refreshed and told the reader so. She looked at him with a new timidity in her air.

"I do so want to ask you something,"

she murmured, "but I don't know if I ought to do it."

"Ask away," said the monarch cheerfully. "I'll answer."

"It's about a long word in his book.
I thought you could explain it."

"Bring it up here on the hay. You did not tell anybody that I am here?"

"Course not," said the reader very reproachfully. "Sides, there's no one to tell. They left me in charge of Susan while they went to town, but Susan had a message to come to her mother's right quick, 'cause Sammy—that's her smallest brother—had done scalded himself—himself, I mean—dreadful. So now there's nobody here but just me and Towser."

She scrambled up on the hay as she spoke, while the king promptly resolved that he would rummage the house for suitable clothes. Meanwhile their two heads bent together over the page,
and the reader delivered her words with a labored air, troubled by their undue length:

"King Charles might have succeeded in after life in making a good king, for he had many talents, but he was always of a va-ci-la-tin dis-po-si-tion."
Now, what does that mean?"

"It means," began the king bitterly, and then a sudden intuition made him look over the edge of the hay. There stood the two men whose presence on his track he had most dreaded and who met his startled gaze with cynical amusement.

"Come down!" said the nearest curtly. "We don't want no nonsense."
The reader saw the color die away from the king's face, leaving a dull ashen gray, and she wondered if so many eggs had disagreed with him.
She also peered over the edge.

"Who are those people?" she demanded. "Are they royalists?"

"Yes," said the king quietly. He laid down the book and made his way to the floor below, while the reader slid after him.

"You didn't think we'd find you," grinned the second man, "but we are old hands at this game. Put out your wrist. I'll see there ain't no divorce twixt you and Jim here."

The king held his wrist out silently, while the wondering reader looked on,
watching them handcuff him to the man called Jim.

"Are those silver bracelets?" she asked perplexedly. "And do you like him so much that you let him be fastened to you? Is it because he is so loyal to you? Are you per-f'y sure everything is all right?"

"Perfectly sure," returned the king,
with great gentleness. "Goodbye, little maid. Be certain I will never forget."

"Nor me," she answered, a sob catching in her throat. "I had you for such a little while, and now you are going away—going into your kingdom."

"Yes, into my kingdom."

"Will all the people meet you? Will they be very glad?"

"They will be glad."

She saw the three forms pass out of sight, the king walking between them, as befitted his rank. When they were utterly gone, she thought forlornly of how she must return once more to mere empty pages. A sense of strong desolation smote her, and, climbing up again upon the hay, she cried herself softly to sleep.

The Human Nose.

The human nose is an apologetic pimple compared with the magnificent organ of the horse or dog. Our sense of smell is, when contrasted with our sight and hearing, singularly undiscriminating. We can arrange sounds into series; we know B is between D and F; we appreciate octaves and harmonies. Similarly we can put the colors into order, decide upon the amount of blue in a purple and get almost to emotion at the sight of a white star in the blue of a summer twilight or of the amber sunlight glinting between the blades of grass.

But this serial arrangement, this sorting and selective choice, is entirely beyond our rudimentary senses of smell. To us the idea of the scent of the violet being a rich harmony or the suggestion that the frying of onions is a discord or that patchouli and the new mown hay are pleasant things in different times and keys sounds utter nonsense. Our noses are entirely too dull to effect the analysis necessary before scents can be distinguished as complex and sorted and recombined so as to be made an aesthetic pleasure.—
London Globe.

Being a Good Fellow.

The man who has an income of $10,- 000 a year and spends every cent of it on his wife and family and friends is a good fellow and is blessed by everybody even after he has died and left not a cent to keep his children in school, to save his wife from going to work for their bread and butter or to pay his bills scattered around the town. He dies a royal good fellow, with the reputation of living only for his family.

The man who takes $1,000 a year off his wife's back in clothes and $1,000 a year off his own back and off his drinks and cigars and puts it into insurance for them against the time when he is dead and another $1,000 a year out of other things that make a man generous and lovable and puts that into a bond every twelvemonth for them and then dies and leaves them where his children can stay in school and his wife go on living in comfort—well, he is a curmudgeon
with a mind not above sordid things, every time!—New York Press.

A HUMAN FOREST.

How Indian Tribesmen Succeed in Escaping the Police.

Some of the Indian tribes over which we rule give us a great deal of trouble, notably the Mahuds. The Mahuds, however, are not by any means the worst of the Indian robber tribes, the unenviable distinction probably falling to the Bhils, who are the cleverest scoundrels in the world, both in their methods of acquiring other people's property and in evading pursuit.

They are very proud of their skill in pilfering and openly boast of it. One of them once told a British officer that he could steal the blanket from under him and was promptly challenged to show his ability. That night when the officer was fast asleep the Bhil robber cut a hole in his tent, crept noiselessly in and gently tickled the hands and feet of the sleeping man. The officer stirred uneasily and turned over. In this way the Bhil was able to pull the blanket out a little way. By repeating his performance he finally succeeded in "coaxing" the blanket completely from under the sleeper.

When engaged in his nefarious little games, the Bhil wears hardly any clothing, and his lithe body is rubbed with oil to facilitate escape from any would be captors. When hotly pursued by the British troops, the robbers make use of a very clever device. They conceal their scant clothing under their small round shields and scatter them about to resemble stones or bowlders;
then, picking up a few twigs—if there are any to be had—they assume all sorts of grotesque attitudes, their almost fleshless limbs silhouetted against the dark night sky closely resembling the charred limbs of a tree. Absolutely motionless, they hold their positions till the enemy has passed them.

In this way a British subaltern in charge of a party sent to capture some Bhils was considerably startled one evening. The pursuit had completely lost sight of the robbers, and finally the party drew rein by a clump of gnarled and bent tree trunks, tired and hot from their hard exertions. The officer in charge took off his hat and placed it on the end of a broken limb, when instantly there was a wild scream
of laughter, and the tree trunks suddenly came to life and vanished in the darkness.—London Express.

HARD TO GET STARTED.

Things Which Overcome a Writer
When Beginning an Article.

There is a feeling of timidity that oftentimes overcomes a writer when beginning an article. As in writing a letter, it is getting started that puzzles.
It is the custom to begin with slow moving piston and work gradually into full speed, until the flow of words is free, and then the difficulty with some of us is to find the brake valve. Again, a writer sometimes discovers that his beginning is a more fitting ending, and vice versa. The newspaper style is to throw general conclusions up strong under the headlines, while the sermonizer reserves them until his final climax.

Thackeray remarked once that he could never tell exactly what he was going to say until his pen was in hand and under motion and then did not fully realize just what he was saying until it was written. There is a subconscious-ness that shapes writing as it does speaking. This, I know, disturbs some well known theories of speaking and writing—as to weighing everything and then measuring it out as a druggist compounds a prescription—but my observations are that the preparation is more in getting full of a subject and then letting the mind work free under the impulse of the dominating idea.

There are as many ways and methods in writing and speaking as there are individuals, and yet the fundamental law in the transmission of thought and speech runs largely in the same groove, whether it be the jargon of the Hottentot or the polished periods of the scholar. Human nature has its own primitive impulses that defy all rules of rhetoric and the power of expression—that is, the power, mind you—is deeper seated than any artificial formula of stylists.—National Magazine.

Cheap at the Price.

A certain pompous and officious judge in a western town had just fined a young lawyer $10 for contempt of court. After it had been paid a grave old attorney walked up to the bench and laid down a ten dollar goldpiece.

"What is that for?" asked the judge.

"For contempt, your honor," was the reply.

"But I didn't fine you for contempt," answered the judge. "There must be some mistake."

"Oh, no, there isn't," replied the old man. "I have cherished a secret contempt for this court for a long time,
and I'm willing to pay for it."—Chica-

Some years ago at a Mardi Gras ball
at the Hopkins Institute of Art a man, masked, approached a woman, masked,
and asked her for a dance, as is con-

"But I don't know you, sir," said the lady in her most icy tone.

"Well, I'm taking as big a risk as you are," retorted the man.

"Male suffrage," replied the rude

DENTAL CONVENTION TO BE GREAT SOCIAL EVENT.

Fisher's Orchestra to be present. Big Banquet and Dance.

Arrangements are being completed to make the dental convention to be held in Buchanan April 8th and 9th a great social event as well as an instructive session. The regular work of the society will be done in the regular way, and in the evening a fine banquet will be served by Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Ingalls, and they are the people who know how to do that, as their patrons will all agree.

After the banquet the members of the society together with their friends will "trip the light fantastic toe." Charles Fisher and his men from Kalamazoo will furnish the music both for the banquet and the dance. They are well known to Buchanan people and need no comments.

What we want to do is to show the Dental fraternity that though Buchanan is not so large, yet she knows to entertain her guests. We welcome them among us and will do all in our power to give them a good time.

Dr. Roe informs us there will be from seventy-five to one hundred dentists here. That is more than we are accustomed to, but we will give them the best the town affords. The regular sessions will be open to the public, and as many as will avail themselves of the opportunity of listening to the papers and discussions of some of the best dental talent in Michigan, will be welcome.

Memorial to John Bell

A meeting of the Berrien County medical association was held in St. Joseph at the Lake View hotel Thursday afternoon and was well attended by the doctors of the twin cities.

The president, Dr. Henderson of Buchanan, was unable to be present and the only physician from out of town was Dr. Fred Belknap of Niles.

The next meeting will be held the second Thursday in April in Benton Harbor and there will be a special program and memorial exercises for the late Dr. John Bell.

The following resolutions drawn by Drs. C. N. Sowers, H. V. Tutton and Fred Belknap were adopted:

WHEREAS, We are called upon to mourn the death of our esteemed colleague and the first president of the Berrien County Medical society. Dr. John Bell of Benton Harbor; and

WHEREAS, We realize that in his death this society loses a wise, honorable and active member, whose genial ways and kindly counsel endeared him to us all; one who took a deep interest in our welfare and always strove to uplift the standard of our noble profession; one who in his life exemplified the courteous gentleman, the loving husband, the trusty friend and the conscientious physician; therefore be it

Resolved, That we extend to the bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy in their great affliction.

Resolved that the next regular meeting of the society be set apart as a memorial to him, that the lessons of his life may be properly studied by us all; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the grief stricken family and be spread upon the records of this society.

CONGRESS IN BRIEF

Synopsis of the Proceedings in the Senate and the House—Bills and Resolutions.

Washington, Feb. 21.—With the exception of a few minutes given to routine business the senate devoted its entire session to the Philippine question, the speeches being made by Patterson of Colorado, Nelson of Minnesota, and McCumber of North Dakota. A bill was passed authorizing a bridge over the Missouri at Kansas City; it was agreed to meet at 11 a. m., and an executive session was held.

The house spent the day working on the Indian appropriation bill. Forty-two of the sixty-two pages were disposed of. Several amendments were adopted, but none of much importance.

Washington, Feb. 22.—The senate put in the day debating the Philippine tariff bill, the principal speakers being Bate of Tennessee, Spooner and Tillman.

The house passed the Indian appropriation bill. No amendments of any importance were attached. The latter part of the session was devoted to the consideration of private claims bills, a number of which were passed; also a resolution to investigate Nardin's relations with the Shoshone Indian school.

Washington, Feb. 24.—Saturday's senate proceedings were rudely broken into when, in reply to an insinuation from Tillman that he (McLaurin of South Carolina) had been paid in favors for his vote to ratify the Spanish treaty, McLaurin told his accuser that he was a willful, malicious and deliberate liar. Tillman sprang at McLaurin, blows were exchanged, the one Tillman got landing on the nose (for blood), McLaurin's in the face, and both are now in contempt of the senate and have neither speech nor vote until purged. As to other business, the senate spent the balance of the day and a night session on the Philippine tariff bill. Immediately after convening in the morning Washington's farewell address was read by Burrows of Michigan in honor of the day.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The senate yesterday passed the Philippine tariff bill 46 to 26, with no material amendment. It gives Philippine products 25 per cent. off the Dingley duties. Tillman tried to present a protest against the action in his case, but it was not received. An executive session was held.

The house transacted some unimportant business and then took up the diplomatic and consular appropriation. Members excepted to speak on any old thing except the bill. Prince Henry visited both houses and was enthusiastically cheered.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The names of Senators Tillman and McLaurin, both of South Carolina, have been restored to the roll of the senate.

IN MEMORY OF WASHINGTON

His Natal Day Observed in an Appropriate Manner at Chicago and Other Cities.

Chicago, Feb. 24.—Washington's birthday was observed all over the country, the celebrations taking the form of political meetings at some points. At New York Democrats from many states were the guests of the Manhattan club and talked of Democracy. Bryan was not present, though Hill and many other leaders were.

Here there were exercises in the schools and banquets by the Union League club, where Senator Beveridge talked, and the Marquette club. There was also a great meeting at the Auditorium. Then there were meetings at a number of other points, including Peoria, Ill., and Ann Arbor, Mich. At the latter place Bryan was the speaker.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The names of Senators Tillman and McLaurin, both of South Carolina, have been restored to the roll of the senate.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The names of Senators Tillman and McLaurin, both of South Carolina, have been restored to the roll of the senate.

SITUATION AT BARCELONA

Denial That It is Near as Terrible as Reported—Prudence in Sending Out News Recommended

Madrid, Feb. 22.—Official dispatches received here from Barcelona deny that the troops there have met with serious resistance, or that any need has occurred for the use of artillery. They admit that one striker was killed yesterday in an attack on the police made with the view of preventing the arrest of revolutionists.

Private dispatches received here say that the captain general of Barcelona assembled the newspaper correspondents there and recommended that they exercise the greatest prudence in sending out news.

Scots Greys Are Out Up.

London, Feb. 21.—A detachment of the Scots Greys (Second dragoons), one of Great Britain's crack dragoon regiments, has been cut up by the Boers at Klipdam. Major C. W. M. Felden and Captain E. Ussher were severely wounded, two men were killed, six were wounded, and forty-six were captured. The news was received from Lord Kitchener in a dispatch, dated Pretoria, Feb. 19.

Mayor Shilling Not Guilty.

Decatur, Ills., Feb. 21.—The jury in the case of Mayor Charles Shilling, charged with misfeasance in office, has returned a verdict of not guilty. It was the first case of the kind tried in Illinois under the statute providing for a penalty of not to exceed $1,000 fine and removal from office upon conviction. The charge was permitting gambling rooms to run allowing Sunday liquor selling, making illegal slot-machine contracts, and letting immoral shows give exhibitions.

Fatal Bob Sled Accident.

Pittsburg, Feb. 21.—At Wilmerding, in a bob sled accident, one young woman was killed and four other coasters were injured. The dead woman is Miss Mary Purseley, aged 19, neck broken and skull crushed. The wounded are: Miss J. Margaret Jones, aged 18; William Rath; Miss Frances Chambers, aged 17, and Miss Alice Burns, aged 19. All these suffered severe lacerations and bruises. No bones were broken.

More Pay for Rural Carriers.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The postmaster general has issued a general order announcing the increase of pay of rural free delivery mail carriers $100 each per annum.

COMING THIS SPRING

The Indiana Railway Company Will Extend It's Line to St. Joe.

According to information given out Monday the Indiana Railway company will begin work on an extension of the road from South Bend to St. Joseph, Mich.

For some time past, large quantities of steel rails, ties and other material have been delivered at South Bend, but although the feasibility of various proposed extensions have been discussed. It was stated by an official of the company that the first thing to be considered was the building of the new line to St. Joseph.

The enormous summer excursion crowds that flock to the Michigan Greta Green, together with the chance of carrying the bulk of the big fruit crop into South Bend, Elkhart and Goshen, make the new line seem to be very attractive as an investment.

It is not stated officially what towns the line will touch, but the probabilities are that both Niles and Berrien Springs will be reached. It is hoped to do much of the work on the road this summer but it is not considered probable that the line will be open for traffic until next year. Elkhart Truth.

OBITUARY.

JOHN WESLEY DEMPSEY

Was born in Allen township, Allegany Co. New York, July 30, 1827, and died February 23, 1902, at the age of 74 years, 6 months, 23 days. He moved with his parents in 1838 to Berrien Co., settling in Bertrand township. He assisted on the farm until the death of his father, when he took full charge of the place.

July 4, 1866 he was joined in marriage with Libbie R. Dakin of Ingham Co. Mich. Immediately after the wedding the happy couple settled on the old homestead, where they lived till his death.

Their union was blessed with four children, Chas. H. of Alaska, Nora of South Dakota, Zelma and William of Berrien Co., Mich. Mr. Dempsey united with the M. E. church at Buchanan 27 years ago, continuing a faithful member of the same till death. He was also a member of the Masonic order.

The funeral services were held at home Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 25, conducted by Rev. W. J. Douglass. Interment at Howe cemetery.

Detroit, Feb. 24.—A dispatch from Valparaiso, Ind., says: "After a bitter fight of two weeks in the Lake circuit court the sensational Davidson murder trial has ended in a verdict of acquittal for the three defendants, Michael Curtin, Robert Fleming and Roy Sowards. The occupants of the crowded court room received the announcement of the verdict with cheers and applause. It is now reported the mother of the Davidson boy will file a large damage suit against the city of Valparaiso for his death, claiming negligence of the police was responsible for his death."

What John Sprencil Said He Saw.

"Edward Davidson, whose home was in Michigan, was visiting his sister at Valparaiso last December, and it is said he engaged in a quarrel with Curtin, Fleming and Sowards while they were all more or less intoxicated. The next morning his lifeless body was found lying beside the Pennsylvania railroad tracks. John Sprencil, a watchman at the railroad crossing, testified before the coroner's jury that he had seen Curtin, Fleming and Sowards drag Davidson's body along the tracks."

"At the grand jury investigation he said he had perjured himself and told the murder story because he feared he would lose his position if it became known that Davidson was killed by a train. Prosecutor Tinkham moved to dismiss the men and he was removed from office and Judge Heard was placed in charge of the case. On a change of venue the trial was held at Crown Point. During the trial Sprencil returned to his first story, alleging that Prosecutor Tinkham had influenced him to testify in favor of the defendants. The accused men are all members of prominent families."

Caught Her Red-Handed.

Coldwater, Mich., Feb. 25.—A flourishing business was unceremoniously squelched here when a farmer's wife was arrested, charged with shoplifting. A salesman in the largest dry goods store in the city caught the accused in the act, it is charged, after which it developed that she had apparently gone about the business systematically, taking the goods to her carriage as fast as gathered. Six merchants have identified goods found there, and it is believed that several others have suffered, as the woman had a buggy full of plunder.

BOY THAT HAS A BAD RECORD

It Has Just Landed Him in Jail—Theft Is His Passion.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 22.—A rapid turn career of thieving has just landed Will Loomis, 13 years old, in Mason jail. First he took a $40 gun from Smith & Vesson's hardware store in this city. He next stole a revolver at Groat's hardware store in Leslie. At Bunker Hill a gold watch was missed at Swaze's jewelry store, and the loss charged up to Loomis. Loomis worked a few days for an old man at Bunker Hill, whose suspicions were aroused by the lad's newly acquired possessions.

He questioned Loomis, whereupon the boy demanded his pay and said he wanted to leave. The old man of 70 years determined that the boy should not leave except in the custody of an officer. The boy ran, with his employer as pursuer, and over several fields they went until the farmer was about to grasp the boy. Then the boy with "kid" ingenuity climbed to the top of a tree. For a couple of hours the pursuer waited until a neighbor brought down the fugitive and later placed him in the custody of Officer Hodge, of Leslie.

CZAR REED IN THE CLAN

He Settles a Dispute Over a Shortage in Short Order.

Ypsilanti, Mich., Feb. 21.—The "Good Samaritans" here say they have a Czar Reed "in their midst." The "Samaritans" are a body of colored folk. Secretary Davis has failed to turn over to his successor, Thomas Rodman, $118 of the society's money and the books, it is alleged, and a special meeting was called to take action.

The discussion was at its height when a friend of Davis' offered the resolution that he be given ten days to return the money and books, on which the chairman rapidly repeated: "All in favor of the motion say 'aye'; the 'ayes' have it," and then turned out the lights, thus adjourning the meeting.

CHICAGO INVALID HANGS HIMSELF

Leather Strap and a Bedpost Used as a Means of Suicide.

Alma, Mich., Feb. 25.—H. A. Breytsbraak, a patient at the Almasanitarium, committed suicide by hanging himself to a bedpost in his room. The deceased was a prominent resident of Chicago, in the employ of A. S. McClurg company. He came here about four weeks ago to take treatment for nervous exhaustion. He was apparently getting better, and the evening before the suicide he seemed quite cheerful and engaged in card playing with other guests.

When an attendant went to his room to call him next day for the bath treatment he was found dead. He had taken a common telescope strap, and slipping it through a buckle placed it around his neck. He then tied it to a bedpost and raised his feet from the floor and slowly strangled himself. As soon as found his family in Chicago was notified by the sanitarium authorities. He was a German, about 50 years old.

Fredericks was a German and 45 years old. For several years past he had worked as sawyer in Dencor & Co.'s sash and door factory at Twenty-fourth and Putler streets.

In pursuance of the wish expressed by Judge Tuley the attorneys have agreed on the wording of the bill, which practically eliminates all charges of fraud and confines the allegations to the evidence given during the trial.

MAKING BONELESS HAMS.

Housekeepers May Do It as Well as a Professional Butcher.

Little though one may think, the process of making a boneless ham is quite a fine art and one that requires no small degree of skill in the undertaking. In fact, it is not every one who can "bone" a ham successfully. In the event a housekeeper unfamiliar with the art of removing the bone from hams were to undertake the job she would be almost certain to begin operations by first of all splitting the ham open and endeavoring to carve out the bone by cutting around it. The result would be failure and vexation of the worst sort, to say nothing of a ruined ham. The proper way to remove the bone would never suggest itself to the average housekeeper.

The operator stands the ham on end against a supporting block and proceeds to carve around the bone from one end as deep as it is possible for him to run his hand and knife down into the flesh and around the bone. Having reached the extreme limit (as far, in fact, as it is possible to extend the knife), he reverses the ham and begins cutting around the bone from the other end, cutting downward until he reaches the point that he attained in cutting from the end on which he began, the entire operation being scientifically correct and on the principle of skinning an animal. The bone then slips out clear and smooth, free from any adhering flesh.

As soon as this is done stout twine is wrapped around the ham and drawn taut, completely closing the aperture left by the removal of the bone. The twine is thus made fast and the ham laid away for a day or two, at the end of which time the hole has closed so neatly that, in slicing the ham, it is difficult to determine the exact spot from which the bone was removed. This is the proper mode of making boneless ham, and with a little practice any housekeeper can learn to do the work as well as a professional butcher. They will observe that first of all the bone is surrounded by a tissue, and by starting the operation from the ends they will be surprised with what facility this tissue, dividing the bone from the flesh, peels loose from the former.

A CURE AND A FEE.

Peculiar Experience of a Doctor With a Business Man.

In conversation one day about the peculiar views that commercial men sometimes entertain about professional services Dr. S. Weir Mitchell told me the following story:

"A very wealthy man from the west came to consult me about an attack of vertigo. He said that he had just returned from a trip to Europe, where he had consulted eminent specialists, but that they had failed to afford him any permanent relief. 'A physician in London,' he said, 'asked me why I did not make an attempt to be cured nearer home. I thought on my way out west I would stop over to see you.'

"Has any physician you have visited looked into your ears? I asked.

"No," was his reply.

"I made an examination of his ears, removed some wax and a substance that appeared to be hardened remnants of cotton wool. I sent him away then and told him to come again in a day or two. He did so.

"Well," he exclaimed, "I am cured. How much do I owe you?"

"About $50," I replied.

"As he drew a check he asked, 'Did you know when you first examined my ears that you could cure me?'

"When I told him that I had a very fair conviction that I could, he said: 'Well, you are a blanked fool. You should have said to me: 'I think I can cure you, and I will do so for $10,000. No cure, no pay.' You would have got your money without a murmur.'

"Oh," I said, "if you feel that way about it there are several little charities in which I am interested, and—"

"No, no," he interrupted, "that is not business. I have my cure, and you have the price you asked. The transaction is closed."

Brass in England in Chaucer's Time.

A metal resembling brass, but said to have been superior in quality, was known in England as "maslin" as early as the time of Chaucer, and in the reign of Henry VIII. an act of parliament was passed prohibiting the export of brass out of England. Whether the earlier monumental brasses still to be found in our churches were made originally in England is not absolutely certain, the probability, according to some antiquaries, being that they were of French or Belgian workmanship.—Chambers' Journal.

An Urgent Case.

When the doctor's telephone rang late one night, he went to the instrument himself and received an urgent appeal from two fellow practitioners to come down to the club for a quiet game.

"Emily, dear," he said, turning to his wife, "I am called out again, and it appears to be a very serious case, for there are two doctors already in attendance."—New York Times.

"I intend to, my small friend," replied the burglar courteously. "I am merely after the contents. When I take houses, I do it through the regular real estate channels."

THE JAPAN CURRENT.

Kuro Siwo Piles Great Loads of Driftwood on Alaska's Shores.

In one sense the Kuro Siwo, or Japan current, is the most interesting in the world because many oceanographers believe it was the direct means of peopling America. This much at least is certain: If a boat were to be set adrift on parts of the Asiatic coast and survived all storms, the Japan current could be depended upon to carry it across the Pacific and deposit it on the American shore. Such a thing has happened. In 1832 nine Japanese fishermen were left derelict and unable to find their way back to shore. They went with the current, and after a drift lasting during several months they were carried to Hawaii.

Trees torn by storms from the banks of Asiatic rivers frequently float across the Pacific to the American coast. Between Kakatag and Kyak islands, about 1,200 miles northwest of Seattle, enormous piles of this driftwood cover the beaches. There can be no question of the Asiatic origin of the timber. They are the trunks of the camphor tree, the mango and the mahogany. Logs 150 feet long and eight feet in diameter are frequently found. May of them are seen floating shoreward, with fantastic roots standing high above the waves. In places the logs are piled twenty feet high. They are generally without bark, which has been peeled off by the waves, and most of them have become white and heavy from impregnation with salt water. As they pile up the sands drift over them and gradually they sink out of sight and new beaches are formed. This process has been going on for ages, and the shore line is being steadily extended. Excavations along the beach show that texture of the buried timber gets harder and harder the farther in you go, until in some instances petrification has taken place. Other excavations show logs that have turned to coal.

The presence of Siberian driftwood on the shores of Greenland convinced Nansen that his idea of drifting across the Polar sea in the Fram was feasible. Great quantities of the wood are annually cast on the coasts of Spitzbergen and Nova Zembla, and there are tribes of Greenland Eskimo who depend for sled runners and other wooden implements on the drift from Siberian forests. For years it depended for iron implements on the hoops of casks which came from overseas.—Theodore Waters Raineslee's.

The Congressional Record.

To appreciate the value of the Congressional Record one must see it. It is the only means by which members themselves keep informed of progress of legislation when sessions of measures are often considered in a day. It is on the desk of the president of the United States and is read by every executive officer, from chief of division. Every government in the world envies ours the possession of such a publication, forming once an indispensable current record and a permanent history of events of more value through the centuries—Argonaut.

Cigars and Tobacco.

There are between 1,500 and 2,000,000 brands of cigars sold in this country, and your average smoker thinks that every brand means a different kind of tobacco. As a matter of fact 150 is an outside estimate of the different kinds of tobacco that can be procured from all sources, and experts can't tell some of these apart.

I will give you my experience on ventilation of stables, writes Mr. D. K. Ross of Simcoe to The Farmers' Advocate. My barn is 52 by 92 feet; height of basement, nine feet. My cattle stalls are placed across the short way, or the fifty-two feet, and under the feed alleys I have eight inch tile running the entire length and through the south walls. About a foot from surface, one side only, I have gas pipe inserted in the tile opposite every stall (double), which projects over the parting block in the feed manger. There is concrete floor laid over tile and pipe in alleys. For ventilating shafts I find that the small shaft, say 4 by 8 inches, running up posts of barn, are much better than larger ones, as there are no down drafts and no dampness or frost attaching to them to fall down in mild weather, and they draw better. I find this system the most perfect. There is always a small current of fresh air tempered coming through the tile and coming out of small pipe just where it is wanted—at the animals' noses—which current of air is sufficient to lift the foul breath of cattle and send it up ventilating shaft, yet without any cold air on the cattle. You are unable to smell the odor from feeding turkeys in my stables at any time. I stable from forty to fifty head of cattle, besides other stock. I have about twelve shafts with covers on top, so I can close any or all of them if necessary. The shafts are about sixteen feet long from the ceiling of stable. I would advise two through roof. I have tile in my stables which continues through under my root bins, with ventilation, which works very successfully. One can bore hole in tile for gas pipe with an ordinary bit. Temperature never varies 5 degrees with this system.

Improve Your Herd.
Many dairymen possessing common cows get discouraged because they say they cannot compete successfully with more fortunate farmers owning blooded herds. To such let me say the remedy for improvement lies in your own hands. If you think you cannot spare the money to purchase a blooded bull, attempt to secure the services of one this season for at least a portion of your herd. Select only your best milk animals to be the mothers of your future grades, and you will soon have a herd of the latter of which no dairyman need be ashamed.—Dairy and Creamery.

Cleanliness the Watchword.
Every man, woman and child who has anything to do with the work of butter making, from cow to package, should be cleanly and neat. Uncleanliness is the rock upon which thousands go down. It is possible to do some things in a slovenly manner and yet succeed fairly well. This is not true in butter making. Every pail, can, churn, ladle, package, cloth and worker must be scrupulously free from anything which will impart a taint to the finished product. The hands especially must be clean.

Foods That Taint Milk.
The presence of wild garlic or wild onions in pastures, the use of turnips and other feeds containing oil must be avoided where cows are giving a large amount of milk. Feeds which have a bad odor, such as silage, must be fed right after milking and at no other time; otherwise the milk and resulting butter is apt to show the effects. In all cases keep these feeds away from the cow during milking time. Taints from silage or other foul feeds are transmitted through the air; consequently if the air is full of silage odor the milk is apt to show it. If, however, feeds of this kind are given directly after milking the product from the cow cannot be distinguished from that produced from other feeds, although condensing factories and some creameries prohibit its use.—New England Homestead.

A Good Record.
The illustration shows the fine Jersey cow Sharab, owned by Dr. Herbert Watney, Berks, England. She was five years old Dec. 16, 1901. She yielded in JERSEY COW SHARAB.

21 months and 18 days in her third and fourth years 943 pounds of butter. Sharab has won one gold and two bronze medals. Her dam, Sherbert II, won a certificate of merit, her granddam, Sherbert, has won one gold and one silver medal, and her great-dam, Sherry, won one gold medal.

Feed For Dairy Animals.
Never feed fattening foods to dairy animals. The tendency to lay on flesh should be discouraged. Feed peas, oats, clover hay, pea hay, bran and the like and avoid so far as possible corn, barley and other highly carbonaceous foods.

INCREASING BUTTER FAT.

The Kind of Feed Given Hasn't Anything to Do With It.

A correspondent writes to Dairy and Creamery to ask how he can so feed his cows that their milk will be richer in butter fat. The old belief that cows will produce milk rich or poor in butter fat according to the feed they are given has a strong hold in this country. This belief led to the saying, "Nothing comes from a cow's teats that has not gone into her mouth." While this is true in every sense of the word, long continued and careful experiments have proved that except within very narrow bounds it is impossible to improve the quality of the milk of a cow by feeding her.

The quality of the milk is a characteristic of the individual cow. She gives milk that is rich or poor in butter fat from some natural tendency which is not well understood. This tendency is transmissible to her descendants, and by careful selection it is possible to improve the average quality of the milk from a herd of cows to a wonderful degree.

Given a cow that naturally gives good milk—that rich in butter fat—and breed her to a bull that is from a cow that gives good milk, and the progeny is likely to be better than the dam, although this is not invariably the case.

Butter fat does not differ from tallow in any essential way. It is animal fat and is elaborated from the feed given the cow that produced the milk from which it is separated. One cow will turn the fat in her feed to butter fat, and another will store it up in her body. The one cow will be a good butter maker and the other a poor one.

It is now pretty generally conceded that milk is elaborated largely during the process of milking. That it is separated from the blood in some way is certain. Feed a cow more of the elements that go into the composition of milk, and she will become fat. The cow that gives poor milk will fatten much easier than the one that gives rich milk.

According to recent exhaustive experiments made by Professor Haecker, it does not make much difference what is fed to a cow if she is given a plentiful supply of sound feed. Give a cow all she needs of sound forage and grain, and she will produce to the utmost possible limit butter fat or tallow. If she turns her feed into milk and butter fat, she is a good cow. If she turns it into tallow, she is a poor cow from the dairyman's standpoint.

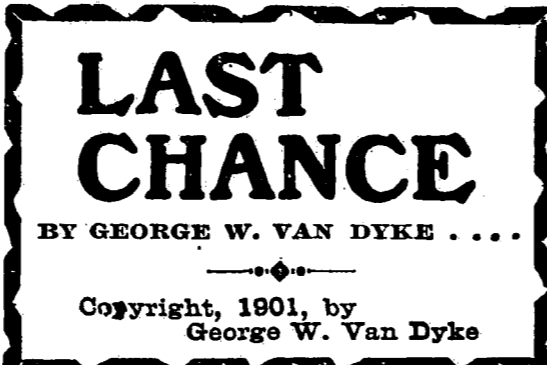

If our correspondent will follow this plan, he will get more butter fat from his cows, but not richer milk. His cows will give more milk than they would if poorly fed and every 100 pounds of that milk will contain just as much butter fat as is natural for a given cow to give. If she gives 3 per cent milk and only 100 pounds a week, the milk will contain three pounds of absolute butter fat, or about three and a half pounds of butter. Feed her so she will give double the quantity of milk, and that milk will give double the quantity of butter fat, but will not be richer than the smaller quantity. The way to get more butter fat is to feed the cows better. Just what it is best to feed them is a matter on which learned doctors disagree at this moment. However, it is safe to feed them enough, even if the ration is not quite balanced.

The hot wave last summer struck the dairy portion of Iowa more severely than any other part, says The Creamery Journal. A study of the weather maps issued from Des Moines during the summer showed that a strip running south by southwest from near the northeast corner of the state received no rain at the critical time when the corn needed it most, and consequently this strip suffered extremely. This winter farmers living in this strip are feeding shredded corn fodder almost exclusively, the high price of grain and of bran and even of hay being practically prohibitive. What is the result? Not bankruptcy. There is not enough protein in the fodder ration to make much more than half a mess of milk, but the feed cost of this half mess is practically nothing compared with former methods of wasting the fodder. And, furthermore, a big fraction of the farmers when they did feed grain fed it so "unbalanced" that the milk yield was little greater than it is this winter with no grain.

To Feed a Cow For Milk.
We keep a few cows, so I am most interested in them and want to make it a specialty, says "Subscriber" in National Stockman. Our cows look well and do well. We feed oats and corn ground together; also sugar beets, some of which weighed seven and three-quarter pounds. They eat them very greedily, a peck apiece. I would not be without them. Also fed timothy and clover mixed. We have no fodder, but it is equal to grass if it can be saved green. I have a box for salt on the side of the barn, where the cows can help themselves. I think the best time to feed a cow for milk is when it is a calf. Feed it well, keep it growing, vigorous and healthy until it gets to be a cow, and you can be assured of a good cow if the stock is right. I think as much of keeping a calf in good order as I do a cow. Everything is stable and in stanchions. In this way we keep two more than formerly in the same space.

Refuse From the Cow Manger.
Cows which are producing milk under heavy feeding should not be compelled to eat up forage too close. Let them eat what they will readily, then give what is left to young stock. They will do well on it, and the cows will not be compelled to eat material which is not palatable.

Old Trinity had just tolled the hour of 2 when John Paine alighted from a Broadway car at Wall street. Walking slowly down the "hill of millions" to William street, he entered the counting rooms of Charles Paine & Co., bankers and brokers, and passed quickly through the main offices to the private room of the senior member of the firm. Paine was private secretary to Charles Paine, the Wall street financier and millionaire. He had been in the firm's employ for fifteen years and had worked his way from office boy at $3 a week to private secretary at $8,000 per year.

Yet as he sat in the luxuriously fitted office he was not the happy hearted, "lucky dog" his associates deemed him, for he was in love—and he told himself hopelessly—with beautiful Margaret Paine, daughter and sole heiress of his employer. It was hardly possible that the millionaire would accept his secretary as his son-in-law, even if Margaret—Jack Paine's heart beat faster at the thought—did she love him?

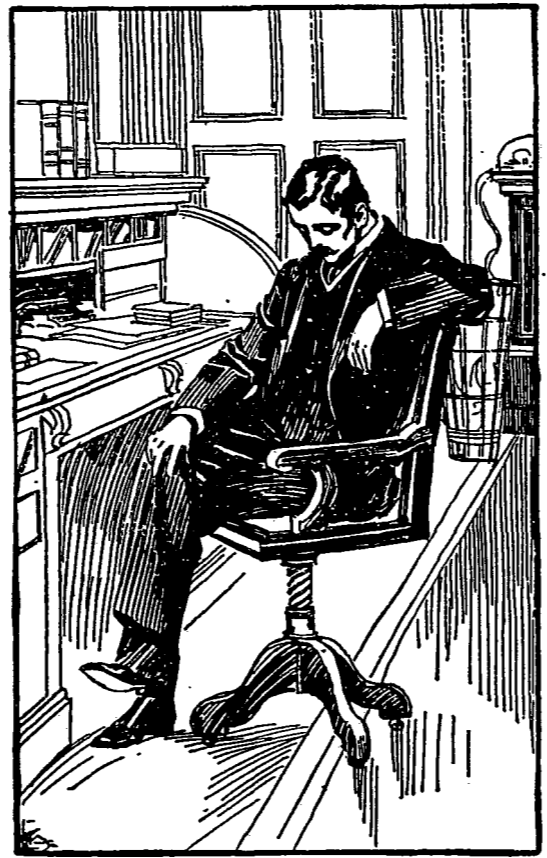

He knew the banker's dread that some man would marry his daughter for her money. He had told him in their confidential relations that no man should ever pay court to Margaret unless he could prove his ability to support her unaided in the fashion to which she had been accustomed. The old man had evidently no suspicion of the romance that had been going on under his very eyes.

It had all taken place during the last six weeks, while Mr. Paine was confined to his home on Fifth avenue with a fractured knee. His secretary brought him every noon whatever papers demanded his personal attention and received further instructions.

During these daily visits Jack found himself fast succumbing to the young girl's charms. The more he struggled the deeper he became engulfed in the all absorbing passion. Margaret, too, had given him to understand, as only a woman can, that she cared for him, yet he dared not speak. To gain the coveted prize he must first convince her father of his financial capabilities.

This seemed impossible, for all that he possessed in the world beyond his salary were a few acres of nonproductive Pennsylvania land, which he had purchased several years before during the oil boom.

He recalled all this with a sigh. Then his face flushed with newborn hope as he reread the letter received that morning from his uncle, Charles Paine, a South Dakota mine expert:

My Dear Nephew—Forgive haste and brevity. The matter is urgent. The representatives of an English syndicate are here to examine the Last Chance with a view to purchasing and operating it on a large scale if the experts report favorably. I am convinced from a cursory examination that they will do so. The mine has not been operated lately on account of friction among the stockholders. The stock, I am told, is selling for almost nothing in New York. Now, Jack, my boy, I am in a position to know twenty-four hours ahead of the syndicate just what the experts will report and will let you know by wire if favorable. I enclose check for $16,400, every penny I possess, which you are to invest in Last Chance stock immediately on receipt of my wire. As for yourself, my boy, beg, borrow and steal every dollar you can lay your hands on, and buy, buy, buy Last Chance. Your uncle, CHARLES.

"Yes," muttered Jack as he settled himself more comfortably in his easy chair. "The first thing in the morning I'll accept Horgan & Eby's offer for my land. I hate to part with it at that figure, but it's my last chance."

As he sat speculating dreamily on the hope that the letter had awakened in his heart a clerk entered and handed him a telegram. Jack took the yellow envelope and, hastily tearing it open, read:

Report O. K. Buy at any price. Sell at no price. —CHARLES PAINE.

"Eureka!" he cried, jumping to his feet. "If any one asks for me, I am gone for the day." Grabbing his hat, he rushed from the office and hurried up the street.

"There is yet time," he muttered, glancing up at Trinity's clock as he entered the Drexel building, where the offices of Horgan & Eby were located. It was just half past 2.

Shortly after 3 o'clock he emerged from the same building richer by $10,000, but no longer the owner of the Pennsylvania land. The Mining Exchange was started the following morning by the wonderful activity of Last Chance, a stock long considered a "sleeper." The wild rumors that flew about the street credited the rise to old man Paine. The stock bounded from 25 to 50 to 100 and then to 200 per share amid great excitement, which increased to frenzy when it became known that Paine's private secretary was actively engaged in the deal. At 1 o'clock Last Chance stood at 300.

Bending over the ticker in the private office of Paine & Co. with stern and haggard face stood Jack Paine, nervously running the tape through his fingers. It seemed to say to him over and over again, with its r-r-r-r, tick-tick, tick:

"Last Chance is up, up, up!" until Last Chance sold at 350.

He stood for a moment as if dazed by the sudden fortune that was now his, and then as he thought of Margaret he flew to the outer office, already crowded with excited brokers. He would close his deals. No; there was only an hour more before the exchange closed. He would wait till morning. His fortune might then be doubled, for the syndicate had undoubtedly acted by this time.

He ordered a hansom. He must carry the news to Margaret.

While waiting he received the congratulations of his friends. Already he heard himself called a Napoleon of finance. The hansom arrived. He ran to the inner office for his hat. R-r-r, tick-tick, tick. He would take one more look before going. What was that he saw?

"Last Chance 270!" No; it could not be. His eyes had deceived him—r-r-r-r, tick-tick, tick—L. C. 250!

Cold perspiration stood on his forehead. Again that ominous ticking, again and again, and down, down, down went Last Chance until with scarcely a rally it broke to 75.

He stood by the ticker fascinated, and as the tape ran through his nerveless fingers he felt his fortune slipping through his grasp—tick-tick, tick-tick. L. C. 50! A deadly faintness seized him. L. C. 20! He gasped for breath. One more point against him and he was a ruined man.

R-r-r-r, tick-tick, tick—L. C. 19—and the clock struck 3.

"Margaret, my love," he cried wildly, "I have lost you!"

"Jack," cried a sweet voice in his ear, "you have been dreaming!"

It was Margaret, and the next moment he was telling her of his unpleasant dreams.

"I am glad that I was the one to wake you," she whispered. "It ought to be a good omen. Papa wanted some papers from the bank, and as I had some errands in the neighborhood I volunteered to get them."

At this inopportune moment a messenger boy entered.

"A telegram, sir."

Jack tore it open and read:

We are authorized to offer $300,000 for your Pennsylvania property. Wire answer. —GOLDMARK & MORGAN.

He forgot the waiting boy as he caught the girl in his arms, crying:

"We have struck oil!"

Popular Books Unread.

Some light is thrown on the position which a public library should take in regard to the fiction of the day by the recent statement of a London librarian as recorded in The Library World. According to his experience, many of the books most conspicuously advertised are in great demand, but are not read. This one huge book, which could hardly be read inside a week, was drawn eleven times in a month, and it is a common thing for one of these books of the moment to be drawn one day and returned the next, the consumer evidently finding the goods not up to the advertisement. This shows that an artificial demand can be created for a book just as for any other article of merchandise if sufficient effort and skill are used in advertising it. But a public library can well afford to wait a little and see how much real worth there is in a new novel, and librarians are more and more coming to this point of view. The statement that such and such a novel has been "rejected" by a library is usually an error, the truth being simply that the library has not selected it. No library could afford to buy everything, even if it had the funds.

Strong Monosyllables.

Instructors in the art of literary composition usually condemn a string of monosyllables, but in the well known hymn "Lead, Kindly Light," written by a master of the English language, you may count thirty consecutive words of one syllable only. They offend neither the eye nor the ear.

Milton often uses a series of monosyllables. In the second book of "Paradise Lost" we have:

O'er bog or steep, through strait, rough, dense or rare, With head, hands, wings or feet, pursues his way, And wins or sinks or wades or creeps or flies.

Such lines are not uncommon in the book: Rocks, caves, lakes, fens, bogs, dens and shades of death.

And again: Of neither sea nor shore nor air nor fire.

—Notes and Queries.

Inconsistent.

Brown—it's curious about people's beliefs. They will give entire credence to the most absurd things and put no faith whatever in the most obvious truths.

Black—Yes, I've noticed it. There's Greene, now. He hasn't the least confidence in hash, but he'll eat all the croquettes and mince pie you can set before him.

Convincing.

"Oh, that's a very poor painting," exclaimed Aunt Sue at the art gallery. Eagerly we asked how she knew, for no one believed Aunt Sue to be an art critic.

"The signature of the artist is so small," she replied convincingly. —Judge.

TILLMAN ELIMINATED

President Withdraws Invitation
Sent Senator to Attend
Prince's Banquet.

HE REFUSED TO TAKE A HINT

Senate Clerks Notified Not to Call the Names of Either Tillman or McLaurin.

Washington, Feb. 23.—Senator Frye, president pro tempore of the senate, has given directions to the clerks of the senate that the names of Senators Tillman and McLaurin of South Carolina must not be called on roll-calls until further notice. This fixes the status of the senators, who are practically suspended from all senatorial functions.

President Roosevelt has withdrawn his invitation extended to Senator Tillman of South Carolina to attend the dinner to be given in honor of Prince Henry of Prussia at the White House. It is stated that this action on the part of the president was made necessary from the fact that owing to occurrences on the floor of the senate last Saturday the senator from South Carolina was declared in contempt of the senate.

Sequel Was Sensational.

There was a sensational sequel to the decision of the president to eliminate Senator Tillman from the list of dinner guests. The president sent for Senator Cockrell of Missouri and asked him as a friend and Democratic colleague of Senator Tillman to suggest to the latter the propriety of withdrawing his acceptance of the dinner invitation. The president explained his attitude in the matter and said that in view of the contempt proceedings Mr. Tillman's presence would not only be an affront to the senate, but a discourtesy to Prince Henry. Mr. Cockrell accepted the commission and later telephoned to the president that Mr. Tillman absolutely refused to withdraw his acceptance in response to the president's suggestion. The president immediately cancelled the invitation in a note which he dispatched directly to Mr. Tillman shortly before noon.

Feeling of the Senators.

The committee on privileges and elections will probably meet at once to act on the case of Tillman and McLaurin. It will be decided then whether they shall be cleared of contempt or whether further punishment shall be visited. It is felt that Tillman, by his questionable apology, has not done sufficient to purge himself of contempt. The feeling toward McLaurin is far different. There is a question even whether he is rightly in contempt. It is believed by some of the older senators like Platt and Spooner that his language was not unparliamentary. He did not brand Tillman as a liar, but branded as a lie the statement which Tillman repeated, but for which Tillman did not assume responsibility. McLaurin, it is said, had a right to defend himself when attacked and should not be punished for returning a blow. It may be, therefore, that McLaurin will be purged of contempt at once, while Tillman's punishment is allowed to continue.

GOES AGAINST SCHLEY

President Roosevelt Renders His Decision Adversely on the Appeal of the Admiral.

Washington, Feb. 21.—President Roosevelt decides against Admiral Schley. His reply to that officer's appeal from the verdict of the court of inquiry has been made public. For the first time Admiral Sampson is officially and categorically declared to have been in command at the battle of Santiago. This declaration is made by the highest possible authority, the commander-in-chief of the army and navy of the United States.

The president holds that while Sampson's command was "technical and nominal," Commodore Schley did not assume command and the command was in no way passed to him by reason of Sampson's distance from the scene of the actual fighting. Therefore Sampson must stand in history as the responsible commander.

As to the question of credit for the battle, independent of the question of technical command, the president holds that Sampson must have first credit because of his excellent blockade and his responsibility. Sampson commanded the fleet and Schley the western division. But in the president's opinion neither is entitled to credit for meritorious or important service in the battle itself.

"The actual fact, the important fact," says the president, "is that after the battle was joined not a helm was shifted, not a gun fired, not a pound of steam was put on in the engine room aboard any ship actively engaged in obedience to the order of either Sampson or Schley, save on their own two vessels. It was a captain's fight."

President Roosevelt sustains the verdict of the court of inquiry, which he declares was unanimous in its findings on all important points. This leaves the censure unanimously passed by the court standing of full force upon the records.

Death of "Billy" Emerson.

Boston, Feb. 25.—"Billy" Emerson, the famous minstrel, is dead in an obscure hotel in this city, where he had been living some months in poverty and all but forgotten. During the latter part of his career he is said to have received the highest salary ever paid to an individual performer in minstrelsy. The cause of death was consumption, and of his poverty horse racing.

Decision on Merger.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The United States supreme court has delivered its opinion in the case of Minnesota versus the Northern Securities company in application of the state to file a bill of complaint in that court. The opinion was read by Justice Shiras and the motion for leave to file the bill was denied on the ground that this court is without jurisdiction.

FOURTH GRADE.

Mrs. Peacock gave us a pleasant call, Friday.

Our new song, "Little Soldiers," is enjoyed by all, but especially well by the boys.

A class has been making a study of Longfellow's life and a few of his poems. On Feb. 27, the poet's birthday quotations from his works will be given in response to roll call.

FOR INDECENT PHOTOGRAPHY

Flint Doctor Fined $100 or Serve Four Months to the House of Correction.

Flint, Mich., Feb. 21.—Dr. Frederic A. Cady, the physician who was arrested several days ago charged with having photographed and printed obscene and immoral pictures of local young women, was disposed of with great celerity when his examination was called. He waived examination before Justice Stevenson and was bound over to the circuit court. He gave bonds for $300, and then walked five blocks to the court house where he was arraigned and pleaded guilty to the charge.

Judge Wisner listened to a plea for leniency from Justice Stevenson and Prosecuting Attorney Williams, and then sentenced the doctor to pay a fine of $100 or serve four months in the Detroit house of correction. It was shown that for some years past the doctor has been a victim of the cocaine habit. While under the influence of this drug he resorted to the acts which resulted in his arrest.

PECULIAR CASE OF PARALYSIS

Woman Answers All Questions but Like One in a Delirium.

Bay City, Mich., Feb. 24.—Mrs. Fred Barclay is suffering from an apoplectic stroke, which has developed a curious phenomenon. Owing to the pressure of blood released by the bursting of an artery upon the speech center, Mrs. Barclay answers at random all questions put to her, much as a person in delirium. Yet it is evident that she can hear any questions asked, but her replies are simply vagaries of her mind, as she never comprehends the import of the questions asked. Her right arm and side are also paralyzed, and physicians pronounce it a rather unusual case. Her condition is serious.

No Panic at a Fire Alarm.

Adrian, Mich., Feb. 21.—The sister on night watch at St. Joseph's academy discovered smoke arising from the basement. The 100 pupils were awakened and in four minutes and twenty seconds were all in the lower corridor, facing places of exit, fully appareled even to hats and rubbers, each with a blanket neatly bestowed upon her arm. The smoke was found to be issuing from smoldering cinders in the basement.

Just Simply Can't Do It.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 22.—The real contention which the Detroit, Grand Haven and Milwaukee Railway Co. will make to oppose the proposed action of Railroad Commissioner Osborn to compel them to establish 2½-cent fares according to the general railroad law, is not that the law of the last legislature repealing the special charters is unconstitutional, but that the road cannot make the rate and live.

The recent rapid run made by an American mail train from San Francisco to New York, carrying Australian mail bound for England, has resulted in a contract being awarded our railroads by the British government, and hereafter the Australian mail will come by way of America instead of by way of the Suez canal, the speed of the American railroads making it possible to reduce the time for the long journey seven days.
