SCENES AT ST. PIERRE

Justifying Everything That Has Been Told of the Horror of the Catastrophe.

CITY OF DESOLATION AND DEATH

Corpses in Piles Show the Fury of the Volcanic Blast.

Relief Measures Are Prompt and on Large Scale in This Country
—Congress Votes
$200,000.

Fort de France, Martinique, May 13.—It now seems to be generally admitted that about 30,000 persons lost their lives as a result of the outbreak of the Mont Pelee volcano at St. Pierre on Thursday last. The United States consul at Guadeloupe, Louis H. Ayme, has reached the desolate spot where St. Pierre stood, and confirms the awful story in all its essential details. From an interview with Colonel Ayme, who is a trained newspaper man, a correspondent of the Associated Press learned the following facts:

Awful Story Briefly Told.
Briefly put, last Thursday morning the city of St. Pierre disappeared within ten minutes, in a whirling fire vomited from Mont Pelee; thirty thousand persons were instantly and horribly killed, and the volcano whose ancient crater for more than fifty years had been occupied by a quiet lake in which picnic parties bathed, suddenly discharged a torrent of fiery mud which rolled toward the sea, engulfing everything before it. Then the last of cable communication was broken and the doomed city was isolated from the world.

Preliminary to the Catastrophe.
Thursday morning the inhabitants of the city awoke to find heavy clouds shrouding the Mont Pelee crater. All day Wednesday horrid detonations had been heard. These were echoed from St. Thomas on the north to Baradose on the south. The cannonading ceased on Wednesday night, and fine ashes fell like rain on St. Pierre. The inhabitants were alarmed, but Governor Mouttet, who had arrived at St. Pierre the evening before, did everything possible to allay the panic. The British steamer Roraima reached St. Pierre on Thursday with ten passengers, among whom were Mrs. Stokes and her three children, and Mrs. H. J. Ince, swept by a cyclone of fire.

They were watching the rain of ashes when, with a frightful roar and terrific electrical discharges, a cyclone of fire, mud and steam swept down from the crater over town and bay, destroying the fleet of vessels at anchor off the shore and wiping out St. Pierre at the same instant. There the accounts of the catastrophe so far obtainable cease. Thirty thousand corpses are strewn about, buried in the ruins of St. Pierre, or else floating, gnawed by sharks, in the surrounding seas. Twenty-eight charred, half dead, human beings were brought here, sixteen of them are already dead, and only four of the whole number are expected to recover. The Associated Press steamer, chartered in Guadeloupe, neared Martinique at 6:30 Sunday morning.

SCENES IN THE ILL-FATED CITY
Not a House Intact—Human Corpses Scattered and in Piles.

The city of St. Pierre stretched nearly two miles along the water front and half a mile back to a cliff at the base of the volcano. The houses of the richer French families were built of stone. The still smoking volcano towered above the ash-covered hills. The ruins were burning in many places and frightful odors of burned flesh filled the air. With great difficulty a landing was effected. Not one house was left intact. Viscid heaps of mud, ashes, or piles of volcanic stones, were seen on every side. The streets could hardly be traced. Here and there amid the ruins were heaps of corpses. Almost all the faces were downward.

In one corner twenty-two bodies of men, women and children were mingled in one awful mass, arms and legs protruding as the hapless beings fell in the last struggles of death's agony. Through the middle of the old Place Bertin ran a tiny stream—the remains of the River Gayave. Great trees with roots upward and scorched by fire were strewn in every direction. Huge blocks of still hot stones were scattered about. From under one large stone the arm of a white woman protruded. Most notable was the utter silence and the awful overpowering stench from the thousands of dead.

Careful inspection showed that the fiery stream which so completely destroyed St. Pierre must have been composed of poisonous gases, which instantly suffocated every one who inhaled them, and of other gases burning furiously, for nearly all the victims had their hands covering their mouths, or were in some other attitude showing that they had sought relief from suffocation. All the bodies were carbonized, or roasted. A. G. Austen, the manager of the Colonial Bank of Barbados, landed at St. Pierre with a party from the British Royal Mail steamer Solent. He found the bank clock stopped at some minutes before 8 o'clock. A horse and buggy and a policeman were in a dead group at the door.

UNITED STATES CONSUL A VICTIM
He and All His Family Dead—British Consul Also—Terrible Aftermath.

Three hours' exploration of the ruins of St. Pierre resulted in the finding of no trace of the United States consulate. Consul Thomas T. Prentiss, his wife and two daughters are undoubtedly dead. That quarter of the city is still a vast mass of blazing ruins. Nor has any trace been found of James Japp, the British consul. Japp had a large family at St. Pierre. Governor Mouttet, who was at Fort de France when the first indications of eruption were seen at St. Pierre, declared that the danger would not increase, and sent a detachment of soldiers to prevent a general exodus of the inhabitants. He later went to St. Pierre himself with his wife.

The coast villages near St. Pierre were destroyed simultaneously with that town. The entire island up to within a few miles of Fort de France is covered with mud and ashes. The cattle of the island are either all dead or dying. The streams have dried up or are polluted. Thousands of persons are flocking to Fort de France. Unless relief is promptly sent famine is imminent, and there is urgent need for the services of the Red Cross society. The central and southern parts of St. Pierre are still burning. The countryside is deserted. Every family on the island is mourning the loss of relatives or friends. Business is at a complete standstill. St. Pierre was the financial and provisioning center of the island. Mont Pelee is still in eruption and even more violent and disastrous eruptions may follow. Volcanic ashes have fallen against the wind on the islands of Dominica and St. Vincent.

The authorities are doing everything possible to relieve the suffering. The means at their hands are terribly inadequate. Unless prompt measures are taken for the disposal of the thousands of dead bodies at St. Pierre a fearful plague is almost certain to develop there.

PROMPT MEASURES FOR RELIEF

Congress Appropriates $200,000—Other Countries Are Not Idle.

Washington, May 13.—Captain Yates Stirling, commandant of the naval station at San Juan, Porto Rico, has notified the navy department that the collier Sterling is being loaded there with voluntary contributions of supplies, and will leave for Martinique as soon as possible. Secretary Moody found that the navy had a lot of food supplies at San Juan, and he directed Commandant Stirling to have these put aboard the ship. Secretary Root also discovered that the army had a good many provisions stored there, and authorized these to be loaded on the Sterling, so it is expected she will soon be able to sail with a full cargo.

The president himself turned his attention yesterday to the extension of relief to the sufferers from the terrible catastrophe in the Lesser Antilles. One of the first things he did was to send a message to congress urging the immediate appropriation of $500,000 for the relief of the sufferers. Congress responded with an appropriation of $200,000, believing that private contributions will make it more than $500,000 from this country. The president also saw the cabinet officers and ordered all machinery in motion that could help the sufferers or expedite aid.

The war department in a short time had issued official orders for the guidance of the three supply departments, giving the scheme of distribution as follows: Three medical officers, with $5,000 worth of medical stores, etc.; one subsistence officer, with $70,000 in stores, consisting of rice, dried fish, sugar, coffee, tea, canned soups, condensed cream, salt, pepper and vinegar; one officer of the quartermaster's department, with $20,000 worth of clothing supplies for men, women and children.

To Consul Ayme, who had sent a message briefly stating the facts, this message was sent: "The president directs me to express to you his wish that your department go to the furthest limits of executive discretion for the rescue and relief of the afflicted islands in the Caribbean."

REGENT'S REIGN AT AN END

Mother of the Spanish King Weeps as She Bids Her Ministers Farewell at Madrid.

Madrid, May 13.—With tears coursing down her cheeks the queen regent took leave of her ministers, ending her official service as ruler of Spain. As the farewells were spoken all taking part in the ceremony in the palace displayed emotion. Every eye was moist and Premier Sagasta and his colleagues showed how grieved they were at the ending of the regency. The final request of the queen regent—that she be excused from taking any formal part in the crowning of her son, she to attend the ceremonies only as widow of the late king—was denied as contrary to custom.

When the queen regent withdrew her pen from the parchment conferring the order of the Golden Fleece upon the duke of Cumberland her eyes were moist. Her regency really terminated at this time, although until the king takes the oath in the presence of the chambers on May 17 his mother remains officially the queen regent.

Mine Work Suspended.

Scranton, Pa., May 13.—President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers states that the tie-up in the three anthracite districts is complete. Approximately 140,000 men and boys are idle, of which number only one-half are in the Lackawanna and Wyoming region. In every instance, Mr. Mitchell says, the order to suspend operations had been obeyed. About 20,000 mine workers are out in the Lehigh district, and 50,000 in the Schuylkill field. An official of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railway company said that that corporation had no intention of "sorting to a lockout."

Deposit of Potter's Clay.

Sparta, Mich., May 10.—A big deposit of potter's clay has been discovered on the farm of A. J. Stebbins. Business men are interested, and a factory for the manufacture of pottery will probably be erected soon. The tract covers many acres.

Death's Arrow Hits Milliners.

Coldwater, Mich., May 13.—Death seems to have picked out the milliners here of late. Six have died within a short time. Mrs. Lavina Lake, aged 60, and for twenty years prominent in business here, is dead.

EXPLOSION OF NAPHTHA IN CARS

Thousands Collect to Look at a Blaze
When the Blast of Death Occurs—Hundreds Are More or Less Burned.

Sheraden, Pa., May 13.—A remarkable series of explosions between 4 and 7 o'clock last evening caused the death of at least twenty-five persons, the burning and injuring of two or three hundred others, and a property loss that will run into hundreds of thousands of dollars. The list of dead, so far as obtainable, follows:

Albert McKean and John Swan, brakemen, Sheraden; unknown boy, about 14 years; H. E. Smithley, Ulrichsville, O.; Finerty, Sisterville, W. Va.; Charles Hertig, Chestnut mines; W. W. Taylor, of Miller's Station; G. E. Hunter, of Sheraden; W. E. Wright, of Sheraden; Dallas Bort, of Sheraden; unknown white man; Douds; David Smith, aged 9 years, of Sheraden; James Keenan, Carnegie; Pascoe Mader; Italian section hand; unknown boy, aged 10.

Those Most Seriously Hurt.

Partial list of seriously injured: Among the more seriously burned are Albert Haertig, aged 12; Carl Eatings, of Tipton, Tenn.; Henry Denzine, of Allegheny; Sadie Seymour, deaf mute; Fick Connidi, grocer, Cecil, Pa.; Clyde Grimage; Roy Guthridge, aged 9; Clyde Fair, McDonald; Charles Keenan, aged 14; W. H. Enoch, Pittsburg, will die; Frank Doerr, condition serious; William Henderson, Elliott Borough; Hugh Henderson; J. E. Hanna, justice of the peace, Bridgeville, serious; J. J. Wallace, Trevescan, serious; James Callahan, Elliott Borough; Albert Verry, Sheraden, will die; Mrs. Julia Ansell, Sheraden; Frank Culture, Carnegie; Matthew Moreland, McKee's Rocks, will probably die. The many others who were injured live in all parts of Allegheny county and their names cannot be secured.

Cause of the Terrible Horror.

The Sheraden yards of the Panhandle railroad are a few miles below this city, and yesterday evening and last night were a very furnace of burning cars, naphtha, oil and merchandise. The cause of the catastrophe was the explosion of a naphtha car, brought about by a leak in the car which communicated to a switch light near by, causing a terrific explosion. Crowds of people—men, women and children—quickly gathered to look at the fire, and were lined about the yard on the hillsides to the number of thousands.

Second Did the Awful Work.

When all danger had apparently passed a second explosion of naphtha followed, far worse than the first. The flames from the second car were thrown 500 feet into the air, completely enveloping the onlookers. In an instant the scene was one beyond description. The air was superheated to a degree impossible for human life to exist in. Those nearest the exploded cars were caught and fell to the ground. The clothing of those farther away was soon afire, and the victims ran frantically about, tearing their burning garments from their bodies and screaming for help.

Sewers Spread Death and Ruin.

In the meantime the fire had spread to other cars and in an incredibly short time the entire yard was ablaze. The heat was so intense that firemen were unable to get anywhere near the fire. The burning oil was carried through the sewers to distant parts of the district, one of the results being an explosion in a pool room at McKee's Rocks, where hundreds of men were gathered. Four men are reported killed at this point. Hundreds of people were lying around on the ground in the railway yards, in all conditions of injury and death.

Property Loss Is $600,000.

The Panhandle Railroad company has thirty-six tracks through Sheraden and has succeeded in keeping communication open. The property loss will amount to at least $600,000.

Hetty Green to Carry a Gun.

New York, May 9.—Hetty Green, the noted woman of finance, has been granted a permit to carry a revolver by the police department of this city. Mrs. Green applied for the permit a week ago to Captain Stephen O'Brien of the Leonard street station, and it was on his recommendation that the permit was given. Captain O'Brien's report on the application says Mrs. Green declared she was in the habit of carrying large sums of money, stocks, bonds and jewelry. She also said it was her intention to secure pistol permits in all the large cities in which she does business.

Minister Confess to Murder.

Springfield, Ill., May 13.—The Rev. John Polest, the pastor of a Baptist mission at McClusky, Ill., who has been in jail in this city several days on suspicion of murdering his traveling companion, Charles Isaksson, has confessed. The confession was written to his father-in-law, John Walker, who came to Springfield and who firmly believed the man innocent. Polest, in his confession, says he killed Isaksson for his money. Polest has a clear record and was known as a most devout young man. He is only 24 years old, and he has a young wife and two children.

Items Prepared with Special Care for the Convenience of Our Own Readers.

Detroit, Mich., May 12.—A mass meeting of the conductors and motormen of the Detroit United railway began at midnight Saturday night to consider the company's answer to their recent demand for a raise in wages from 21 cents per hour to 25 cents.

The negotiations between the men's representative and the company, which have been in progress several days, ended in a letter from the company offering its employees 22½ cents. This was refused by the executive committee of the local union, and Saturday's mass meeting was called to place the matter before the men themselves.

The company declared 22½ cents to be its final figure, but coupled with it an offer to arbitrate the matter should the men refuse to accept the 1½-cent raise.

Had an Agreement to Arbitrate.

"Our men have no confidence in arbitration," said President Mahon, of the street railway union, "and the situation looks pretty serious." There was said to be considerable sentiment among the men in favor of a complete rejection of the company's offer and a strike to enforce their demands. But after an hour's discussion of the situation the agreement committee and executive board decided to recommend to the men at a meeting to be held later that the company be asked to arbitrate the wage question, as is provided by the existing agreement between the company and the men.

Daily mean temperature for the week was 51.9 degrees 0.8 above the normal; sunshine 51 per cent of the possible amount.

The first four days were warm; latter part of the week frosts, and snowstorms; little if any damage was done by the frosts and snow; high winds on the 8th did some damage to fences, buildings and a few fruit trees; it also blew out some late oat seeding on light soil.

Cold and wet has delaying field work considerable and retarded the germination of oats and peas; early potatoes are coming up nicely; fruit trees are blossoming heavily; early strawberries are in bloom. Berrien Co. wheat and grass look fine; oats germinating well; corn planting begun, no frost damage known.

Editor O'Meara of the Boston Journal compliments the "Great Round World."

Boston, Mass.,
March 8, 1902.

Mr. W. C. Gates,
Publisher, "Great Round World."
My Dear Sir:—

Though immersed constantly in the news of the time and in daily newspapers I have been for some time a subscriber to "The Great Round World" because I recognize the value and usefulness of the publication even to one situated as I am myself.

To persons not engaged in the publication of newspapers its weekly summary of news must be of even greater interest and importance. The merit of the idea upon which the publication is based cannot be questioned and according to my observation it is admirably carried out in your magazine.

Very truly yours,
STEPHEN O'MEARA,
Editor of Boston Journal.

The Information Contained in this Gentleman's Statement is Priceless.

The hale, the hearty the strong can afford to toss this paper to one side impatiently when they read the following, but any sufferer in Buchanan who has spent a mint of money and hours of excruciating torture caused by kidney complaint, will stand in his own light if he does not follow the valuable advice offered by.

I procured a box at Sherwood & Burlingame's drug store, used it in my family and undoubted results followed the treatment. I have no hesitation in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills to any sufferer of backache or any of the incidentals which follow in the wake of that far too prevalent annoyance kidney complaint."

BETTER FACILITIES NEEDED

Many Children Compelled to remain Away From School. Ignorance Breeds Crime.

That Niles stands in need of better and more enlarged school facilities no one acquainted with the situation will deny. All of the buildings are now crowded to overflowing, and many children are denied admission. This is a bad state of affairs and demands that provisions be made at once to take care of the youth in our institutions of learning.

The Board of Education, at a recent meeting, passed a resolution deciding upon May 19th as the day of holding a special election when the people of the school district will be asked to give their consent for the issuing of $10,000 in bonds to provide for the erection of a six-room school building and the betterment of our school facilities. There should be no question about this issue. The people should give their unanimous consent, as we have many children who are now denied the privilege of attending school. "Ignorance breeds crime," is a true saying, and this is exactly what we must guard against. We cannot do too much for the rising generation in the way of education, and with the improvements contemplated we can take care of all, and can then point with pride to our school facilities. By all means grant the Board the authority to issue the bonds, Don't complain about high taxes, because this additional tax will amount to little. We need and must have the enlargement if we want to rank among the leading cities in the way of education.—Niles Herald May 1

BRITISH ISLANDS ALSO SUFFER

Great Loss of Life on St. Vincent—Whole Families Are Swept Away.

Kingston, Island of St. Vincent, B. W. I., May 12.—After numerous earthquakes during the preceding fortnight, accompanied by subterranean noises in the direction of the Soufriere volcano on the northwest coast of the island, a loud explosion from the crater occurred Monday last, and the water in the crater lake ascended in a stupendous cloud of steam and exploded heavily. The noises grew louder continually till Wednesday morning, when the old crater, three miles in circumference, and the new crater formed by the last eruption, belched smoke and stones, forcing the residents of Wallibou and Richmond Valley, beneath the volcano, to flee to Chateau Belair for refuge. The thunderous noises, which were continually increasing, were heard in neighboring islands 200 miles away.

At midday the craters ejected enormous columns of steamy vapor, rising majestically eight miles and expanding into wonderful shapes, resembling enormous cauliflower, gigantic wheels and beautiful flower forms, all streaked up and down and crosswise with vivid flashes of lightning, awing the beholder and impressing the mind with fear. The mountain labored to rid itself of a mass of molten lava, which later flowed over in six streams down the side of the volcano; and the greater noises following united in one continuous roar all evening, through the night, to Thursday morning, accompanied with black rain, falling dust and favailla scoria, and attended with midnight darkness all Wednesday, creating feelings of fear and anxious suspense.

On the morning of Friday there was a fresh eruption, and ejections of fiery matter, more dust covering the island, in some places two feet deep. The crater is still active as this dispatch is sent, and great loss of life is believed to have occurred. The lava has destroyed several districts, with their live stock. People are fleeing to this town, streams are dried up, and in many places a food and water famine is threatened. The government is feeding numbers of sufferers from the outbreak.

Several districts have not yet been heard from, and the scene of the eruption is unapproachable. Every hour brings sadder news. The nurses and doctors are overworked. Among the deaths are whole families, whose corpses are, in several places, still lying unburied. The dead will be interred in trenches. It is estimated that the loss of life on the island will reach 500 persons.

A New Departure.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway has recently put in service on its Pioneer Limited trains the largest and handsomest dining car ever built. It is 82 feet in length from tip to tip, and its body is 6 in. wider and higher than the usual dining car. It seats 36 people comfortably in moving chairs, and has a kitchen large enough to permit the working of six cooks which with six waiters and a conductor make up the crew. The dining cars heretofore in service did not provide sufficient space to properly care for the large number of patrons of the Pioneer, so that it became necessary to have a larger car.

RIDGEVALE'S ... TRAGEDY

By Horton Arnold

Copyright, 1902,
By the S. S. McClure Company

Ridgevale was all excitement, and so was Harrison, three miles down the North river road. Harrison, which took to itself airs and graces owing to the fact that it was on the railroad, while Ridgevale was not, had had a celebration in the morning, in which the town parade had merged with the procession of a one ring circus that showed that afternoon and evening. There had been a "real" Goddess of Liberty robed in the stars and stripes, who had read the Declaration of Independence in the grove and had ridden on top of the lions' den in the parade.

The Harrisonites had never ceased to crow over the good people of Ridgevale, and now Ridgevale was preparing to take its revenge. Harrison was invited over to witness a Washington's birthday celebration concerning which all facts were refused. But when Seth Haskins drove over to Burden's grocery store for the mailbag he loftily informed the crowd of loungers that Ridgevale was preparing an intellectual treat that would cause such a commonplace thing as a circus parade to resemble a stranded minstrel troupe counting the ties toward home.

The secret was pretty well kept, but toward the end all Harrison knew that Gregory Kinsman, the schoolmaster, had written a little play to be performed in the schoolhouse yard. George Haskins, Seth's youngest son, was to impersonate the Father of His Country, while Dan Smith was to be the elder Washington.

For this reason they were not surprised on the morning of the 22d when they trooped into the schoolhouse yard to find the benches and some extra chairs arranged in rows in front of the building. At the farther end the snow had been shoveled from the frozen earth, forming a sort of stage. Branches of cut evergreens masked the bare brown fence boards, and in the geometrical center of the cleared rectangle a single small evergreen was firmly planted.

Around the lower part of the tree a band of bark, wired on, showed where the shrub had been nearly chopped through. It had been demonstrated when the boys were over in Haskins' lot for the evergreens that, with the toy hatchet furnished young Haskins, the demolition of the tree would require something like an hour and a half. This would have greatly retarded the crispness of the performance. A piece of white cloth fastened on the side farthest from the audience showed the little fellow where to make the initial attack.

Most of the Ridgevale people had already gathered in the inclosure when the guests from Harrison began to arrive. But seats had been saved for the visitors. When the last sleighload had driven up, Kinsman, who was called "professor" in Ridgevale and plain "Greg" over in Harrison, opened the proceedings with an oration which had originally appeared as an editorial in a New York paper two years before. Silas Hopkins followed with an extemporaneous address punctuated by "er" and "as I was saying." The First Reader class sang an ode to Washington composed by Kinsman and set to the tune of "Bringing in the Sheaves." Ella Garrison, who was known to fame as a child elocutionist, recited a poem on Washington from Spelman's Fourth Reader. There was a quartet by the choir of the First M. E. church, and then the stage was cleared for the event of the afternoon.

Around the corner of the woodshed strolled Master Haskins in a gorgeous Continental costume. A bag wig of cotton batting was surmounted by his Sunday hat of black felt, carefully pinned into an imitation of cocked headgear, while he wore the patent leather pumps that the previous June had been the admiration of all on the occasion of the annual school "commencement and exhibition."

Fully conscious of his importance as a historical personage, Master George strutted forward and in a childish treble informed the audience that this was his birthday and that great joy had been brought to his heart through the bestowal of many gifts. His joy was not in that he valued the intrinsic worth of the offerings, but in the kindly sentiments of the givers. This view of the matter was heartily applauded, and then through the gate came Dan Smith, who had scorned the use of paper cambric and had devised a costume that was startling, if not historically correct.

Under his black cutaway coat he sported a yellow vest, cut into squares by red and green stripes and set off by a massive brass watch chain and a flaming red necktie. His legs were incased in a pair of blue bicycle knickerbockers, the extremities being clothed with a pair of white stockings, which Danny McKeever of Harrison promptly declared belonged to Dan's Aunt Mary. In default of patent leather pumps a pair of brand new rubbers glistened almost as effectively.

Pausing a moment to allow the rude Harrisonian laughter to subside, the senior Washington approached his son and in a copy book speech bestowed upon his hopeful offspring a toy hatchet. After this he retired to enable the youngster to chop down the evergreen, which by courtesy was supposed to be a fruit bearing tree.

All Ridgevale and the most of Harrison held its breath as the future hero of the American people raised his ax on high. With a swinging stroke he brought it down on the carefully marked patch of bark, quite in accordance with instructions. There was a ringing crash, with a louder howl, and the hope of the Washingtons executed with great spirit an unrehearsed war dance upon his left foot only while he nursed with one hand a bruised foot and brandished with his other the remains of his hatchet.

Harrison shouted and Ridgevale waxed indignant. A hurried examination showed that a bar of steel had been carefully placed under the bark at the point indicated for the cut and that this unexpected addition had caused the breaking of the cheap hatchet, which in falling had bruised George's foot and effectually stopped the performance.

The visitors from Harrison departed after much chaffing, which did little to soothe the injured vanity of the Ridgevallians. The latter charged bad faith, but could not locate the culprit. They do say, though, at Burden's store, that Blanche Burden, in whom local pride ran high, became engaged to Ray Bronson, the Ridgevale blacksmith, that evening. And Bronson declared it was the first time he had ever forged a wedding ring out of a bar of steel.

The Musical Guamites.
The Guamites are a musical people. The well to do own pianos and are fair musicians. Others have organs, and many, many more possess accordions. They enjoy singing and are fond of American popular songs. Their own songs are rather weird and mournful, though always harmonious. At night the voices rise in sharp, nasal tones, singing the "novena," a term applied to nine days of special worship to some particular saint. Novenas are ever in evidence, for no sooner do they finish with one than it is time for another to begin; consequently "neighborhood sings" are frequent.

The accordions are pleasing to the natives at their dances and fandangoes or weddings. These latter always occur Thursday mornings at 4 o'clock. The names are cried in the church three times before the wedding. Wednesday evening there is a social gathering of the families and friends of the bride and bridegroom, with dancing and refreshments. Guests accompany the happy pair to the church, where the priest unites them. Often there are three or four weddings on the same morning, and happiness reigns supreme.—Independent.

Origin of the Wedding Ring.
The wedding ring is the subject of quaint historical facts and endless superstitions. It was probably chosen as the symbol of marriage more for convenience than anything else. It is supposed to be a symbol of unbroken love and of power and to carry special curative virtues with it. The old good luck saying about it is, "As your wedding ring wears your cares will wear away." The ancients, Pliny among the rest, believed that a delicate nerve ran directly from the "ring finger" to the heart and that the ring placed on that finger was very closely connected with the heart. In early Christian marriages the bridegroom put the ring first on the bride's thumb, then on the first finger, then on the second and last of all on the third, saying as he did, "In the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost." The thumb and first two fingers represented the trinity, the next finger was the one the ring was left on, to show that, next to God, a woman's duty was to her husband.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Hardly Complimentary.
A certain author, having explained the nature of his occupation to an old Manx woman, was hardly prepared for the comment, "Well, well, what does it matter so long as a body makes his livin' honestly?" the words being evidently meant to put him on better terms with himself. But worse still fared an English clergyman, for some time vicar of a Manx parish and from ignorance of the people and their ways not a very popular one. Having received preferment elsewhere, he started on a round of farewell visits, but without hearing a single regret.

At last one old woman told him she was "mortal sorry." In his delight the vicar let curiosity outrun discretion, and he asked for her reason. "Well," said she, with touching candor, "we've had a lot o' pass'ns over here from England, and each one has been worse than the last, and after you're gone I'm afear'd they'll be sen'in' us the devil himself!"
The vicar left hurriedly.—London Saturday Review.

THE DAIRYMAN

It is an interesting question and one worthy of some thought as to how far we may force a cow when seeking for a big yield of milk and butter and whether such forcing is ultimately desirable, writes D. H. Stovall in Farm and Home. Many are prejudiced against forcing at all, and this prejudice is not without foundation, as the premature death of some cows that have been forced up to the limit testifies. There is no doubt that this high feeding process, for the purpose of getting a big milk and butter yield, weakens the constitution of the cow and sooner or later must tell on her general health.

Now the question arises: How far may we go with the forcing process? All realize that a certain amount of forcing is beneficial, in that this is the only means of developing the organs of the cow and in turn making her calves better stock, for breed is, after all, only a matter of generations of feed and care, and it was by forcing that a cow was brought through several generations from a yield of three pounds of butter to a yield of fifteen. But what is the limit?

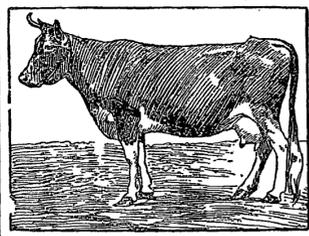

It is not hard to remember when a horse was fast that could go at a 2:40 gait, but now we are getting mighty close to the two minute mark, and we cannot say that the limit has been yet reached. So it seems reasonable to suppose that the limit of milk production in a cow has not yet been reached. It must be admitted that many cows, those possessing weak constitutions, are hurt by overfeeding, by forcing, yet it is only by forcing that we can hope to increase the milk producing capacity of a cow and increase the value of the breed.

Keep an Account.
Perhaps there is no one thing which will so well repay the breeder of dairy cattle for his time and trouble as that of keeping an accurate account of each cow's production of milk and butter fat. It is not a complex or difficult matter. Have a spring balance in the stable, and weigh on it each cow's mess as soon as milked; set the amount opposite the cow's name on a sheet ruled for a month; give each cow a separate page in a blankbook and transfer it to her total production month by month. At the end of the year the record will show which cows are earning money for their owner and which losing it. The quality of the milk from time to time may be tested.

Oleo Sold For Butter.
The oleo people have always made a strong point of oleo being a cheap butter for the poor man, and many have been the crocodile tears shed by the oleo trust over the inability of the poor man to pay the high price for cow butter, says Hoard's Dairyman. Of course every one knows how readily the oleo makers sacrifice themselves for the poor, butterless laboring man, but we have never been able to obtain figures showing the exact extent of the sacrifice until the last report of the Pennsylvania dairy and food commission came to hand.

This report shows that out of 1,482 samples bought for butter in the Pennsylvania groceries 1,105 of them were oleo. As the above was sold at butter prices, the poor man had to pay about $119 over what he could have bought the oleo for under its own name. This is philanthropy at 10 cents per pound excess profit.

A Good Guernsey Cow.

CASSIOPEIA 4885 A. G. C. C.
model dairy herd. In the six months' test this cow gave 6,270 pounds of milk, which tested 4.26 per cent butter fat, or 267.73 pounds butter fat, which made 315.01 pounds of actual butter. The financial record of the cow for these six months stands as follows:

1,118 pounds hay.....	$3 54
4,142 pounds silage.....	4 14
3,580 pounds green clover.....	3 12
1,241 pounds bran.....	—
68 pounds oats.....	—
734 pounds gluten.....	—
42 pounds ormeal.....	—
42 pounds mixed meal.....	—
89 pounds cottonseed meal.....	—
Total value of grain.....	17 56
Total.....	$28 36

This left a profit of $50.40 on the production of butter fat.

Know Your Cows.
Much of the profits of dairying is eaten up by the cows. A single cow may be all right in appearance and even in the quantity of milk yield, and yet she may be merely an expensive luxury, her feeding and care weighing more financially than her butter product. Every cow should be carefully tested not only as to the amount of butter yield, but as to the amount of feed she requires to make it from. The test should involve a careful weighing of feed as well as butter, and cows that do not yield a reasonable profit should be disposed of.

DAIRYMAN AND FARMER.

The Best of the Former Always Makes the Best of the Latter.
As a general rule the best farmer makes the best dairyman, and the best dairyman has the best crops on his farm, says Dairy and Creamery. There is no mystery as to why this should be. It is because the man who attends carefully to his business, no matter what it may be, makes a success of it. The dairyman or farmer who thinks his business is just a little beneath his dignity is likely to spend so much of his time thinking what sphere in life he would have occupied if the world had known what he really might have done that he will leave undone a good many things that should have prompt and careful attention.

The dairyman, in order to make his business profitable, must of necessity produce a large portion of the feed his cows consume. At ordinary prices for feed and at present prices for dairy products there is no money in buying feed for cows—by this we mean in buying all the feed. That dairy which is made up of cows bred on the farm on which they are kept and fed on feed produced on that farm is more profitable than one where the cows have been bought and the feed they consume is bought.

A good farmer delights in producing the largest possible crop, and the same man will try to have the best cows and so care for them that they will produce the largest possible amount of milk. For this reason the good dairyman is interested in the production of large crops and looks upon farming as the most important factor in making the dairy a profitable adjunct to the farm or the farm an economical way of supporting the dairy.

A Guernsey Cow's Record.
Following is the record of the Guernsey cow Millwood's Perseverance 12935, born Aug. 27, 1892. The cow is the property of N. I. Bowditch of Framingham, Mass.

TEST FOR FIVE YEARS.

	Pounds milk	Per cent fat	Pounds butter
1897.....	5,473	5.6	466.61
1898.....	7,511	5.1	384.06
1896.....	6,665	5.3	353.24

1901.....	5,870½	5.3	311.13

She was dry twenty-seven weeks in the five years; is due to calve April 24, 1902, and is giving now nineteen pounds of milk per day. Owing to carelessness she was dry thirteen weeks in 1901.

BALANCED RATIONS

A correspondent asks Breeder's Gazette, "Which is more profitable feed for dairy cows, bran or shipstuff (middlings), bran usually selling at 10 cents per hundred pounds less than the middlings?"

W. A. Henry makes the following reply: "Good wheat middlings contain more nutriment than good wheat bran and will generally be found more useful than the same weight of the bran. In matters of this kind a good deal depends upon the other constituents of the ration. Where one is feeding cornmeal as a part of the concentrates it is generally better to use bran for the other part, because the corn furnishes the carbohydrates and is heavy in character and needs lightening by the bran, which, being loose and flaky in character, effects that result very nicely. Where one does not care to get the lightening effect due to bran, then middlings would be the more economical feed of the two. Middlings are a better feed for young pigs than wheat bran because the bran is too chaffy in character for the digestive tract of the young pig. We have found at our station farm that some of our horses could not utilize middlings to any extent with advantage. Their use was almost sure to induce colic with certain individual horses. Such trouble never followed the use of bran as a horse feed."

Cottonseed and Its Feeding.

Cottonseed and its products are valuable milk and butter producers. They do not injure the milk for drinking purposes, but when fed in too large quantity they do affect the quality of the butter produced, giving it a higher melting point and making it firm, which is an advantage in a warm climate, but at the same time the texture is injured, the butter being sticky and the flavor poor. When, however, seed and meal are properly combined with grain and hay feed, so that the cottonseed products do not form over one-fourth of the grain ration, this injurious effect on the quality of the butter is not apparent.

Two or three pounds of cottonseed or meal may be fed per cow per day without materially affecting the butter. Cottonseed meal is rich in flesh formers and milk producers, and its value as a dairy food is unquestioned and undoubted. For mixing with cottonseed hulls, corn fodder, ensilage and the grass bays, feeds of the opposite kind from cottonseed meal, it has no superior. Numerous experiments have shown cottonseed meal in the same rations to produce, pound for pound, more milk and butter than cornmeal, wheat bran or the other grains and concentrated feeds in common use.—Farm and Home.

Silage From Shredded Cornstalks.
A subscriber asks Hoard's Dairyman why it is not a practicable plan to put shredded cornstalk in a silo, wetting it properly as it goes in.
The most serious objection to this plan would be the difficulty in getting such material to pack sufficiently close in the silo to displace the air. We think the material should be cut into short lengths as well as shredded. This being done, there is no reason why this would not be an economical and safe way to store and secure corn stover.

Sour Kraut Factories.

In to-day's RECORD will be found an item stating that the M. B. H. & C. R. R., are considering the establishment of sour kraut factories along their road, and it would be well for the farmers to consult some of the officials in regard to the matter. There can not be much mistake to put out a good cabbage crop at any rate, for it will always pay.

Our Response to Those in Need.

The president, after a conference on Tuesday met several members of the cabinet, ordered the war, navy and treasury departments to cooperate in the adoption of steps for relief of the Martinique sufferers. He has recommended that an appropriation of $500,000 be made available.

The house upon receipt of the president's message passed by an overwhelming vote a bill granting $200,000 for the relief of the sufferers.

The Island of Martinique.

Nearly two months ago there occurred in Guatemala the first seismic disturbance there for some time, and since then volcanoes considered extinct for years have become active, and their eruptions have finally culminated in the St. Pierre horror on the island of Martinique, last week, in which there perished all but 80 people in a town of 40,000 population. The appalling nature of the calamity is hard to realize for the suffering of being buried in molten lava must have been unspeakably terrible.

One is tempted to moralize on occasions of such disasters and wonder if there will be found people who will take up their abode on this scene of a modern Pompeii. There are to-day people living on the hillside of Vesuvius, utterly indifferent to the fact that an eruption from this erstwhile destructive volcano may occur any time, and in all probabilities there will be found those who will risk their lives on the island of Martinique for the probable gain to be acquired.

Gen'l Palma in Cuba.

The heartiness of the welcome extended Gen'l. T. Estrada Palma on his return to Cuba is quite in contrast with the disfavor in which he had been held when he left the island in chains.

Some days ago when the steamer carrying Gen'l Palma anchored in Gibara Harbor a salute of twenty-one guns greeted him, and every craft flew the flag of Cuba Libre and the stars and stripes. Mayor Cespedes spoke a few words of welcome and then proposed "Three cheers for the first president of the Cuban Republic," which were given heartily. Gen'l Palma was much affected. From Gibara he went to Holgun. At Bayams the body of his mother, who had died 32 years ago and been buried near the Canto river, was re-interred. The village priest headed the long procession which received the body and mass was sung in the same little church which the Gen'l. had attended when a boy.

On May 13th the party reached Santiago where about 40,000 people were assembled to welcome him. Now the people are making great preparations for his inauguration, and are putting up triumphal arches all over Havana, which are being paid for largely by Spanish merchants, which implies that the Spanish residents of Havana seem to be in perfect sympathy with the new government and satisfied with the idea of home rule.

Beautifying a Town.

There are various ways of beautifying a town, either by improvement associations, by action of the municipal authorities or by individual action of the citizens, and another highly successful method has been inaugurated by the people of Carthage, Mo., where the matter is taken in charge by the school children, induced to the effort by the award of prizes.

Carthage has a population of less than 10,000, but its improved scheme has given it considerable fame. The Superintendent of Schools instituted the system of prizes, which are contributed by public spirited citizens and range from $20 down, and last summer 150 boys and girls competed for them. There were 36 prizes altogether, the members of the woman's club acting as judges, and they were awarded for the prettiest vegetable garden, the most attractive flower beds, the most decorative vine-covered porch or tree stump, the neatest lawn etc. Inspired by the example, people out of school began to improve the exterior of their buildings and as a result the city has acquired a reputation for beauty and people travel miles to visit it.

We all think we have a pretty town and justly too for we have, but could we not improve it so that our reputation might spread? Let someone take charge of the work. The RECORD will be willing to furnish one of the prizes.

Songsters.

Do you ever think of the birds? They add much to the sweetness of life, especially at this season of the year.

Watch and listen some day, from an unobserved point and a half hour's attention will reveal how interesting birds really are.

Perhaps the most numerous are the robins, and, as you listen, you hear their liquid notes as the robins are carolling them from a tree near by.

It is quite the habit of the robin to daily visit the same perching place to sing his evening song.

While you are listening, you hear a "chirp, chirp," and, darting rapidly before you, flies the sparrow in his sober dress.

"So light from post to wicket Hops the sparrow, blithe, sedate, Who, with meekly folded wing, Comes to sun himself and sing."

Quite in contrast to the birds which come near you is the meadow-lark, pouring forth his song from the very top-most branch of some distant tree. He says quite plainly, "Spring is here, spring is here," repeating it again and again. From an old tree a little distance off comes "tap, tap, tapping" of the red-headed wood-pecker, as he sits upright his tail being used as a support.

The blue-bird you will see, too, and hear the song,—that first note of early spring "a note that may be called the violet of sound, and as welcome to the ear, as its floral type to the eye, a few weeks later." The oriole, with its bright, beautiful plumage and its equally characteristic note, and the high-holder, too, will be observed.

The flocks of wild geese flying northward arrest our attention and recall to our minds a few lines from Bryant's "To the Water-fowl": "He who from zone to zone Guides thro' the boundless sky thy certain flight, In the long way that I must tread alone Will lead my steps aright."

There is something that stirs our emotions as we think how the birds are ever the same. The passing years leave their impress on us,—our friends die or change their place of abode, but the birds remain,—practically the same as in our childhood. The far away notes of the dove,—its solemn lugubrious call, the shrill metallic cry of the black-bird—how these sounds strike the ear, ignoring all the years that lie between our first memory of them and the present.

Thoughtful President's Wife.

Each day from the flower beds and conservatories of the White House, the gardeners, by Mrs. Roosevelt's order, gather bouquets of choice flowers and send to Mrs. McKinley, former mistress of the executive mansion, at her home in Canton. This is certainly a very gracious act of the lady of the White House which will serve to endear her to every one.

The M. B. H. & C's. Good Service.

The M. B. H. & C. is a record breaker for running trains on time. Upon conversing with Agt. Ward we learn that their local trains have not been more than two minutes late arriving or departing from this station in the last five months. Such are the services rendered by the management of the M. B. H. & C.

The practically new engines Nos. 20 and '80 give excellent service and offer the people of Buchanan fine opportunities of going to Benton Harbor and also make good connections with the P. M. R. R. and G. & M. lines and the Big 4. As the trains arrive so promptly the passengers are sure of making connections with other roads.

New Industries On The Line Of The M. B. H. & C. Ry.

The Officials of the M. B. H. & C. Ry. have under consideration the erection of sauer-kraut factories on the line of their road. There is an abundance of acreage tributary to the road, well fitted for the raising of cabbage, and it is the desire of the Company to render all possible aid in this direction and all farmers interested should take the matter up and discuss it with the officials of the road, who will be glad to meet them and go into the matter thoroughly.

Past years records have demonstrated the fact that the raising of cabbage has been a good investment and with the aid of kraut factories, success should be assured.

Junior Reception

The Juniors Reception given to the Seniors was a great success. At 8 o'clock the Class of '02 assembled and marched to the home of Miss Elsie Smith where the Juniors awaited them. The rooms were all beautifully decorated and festooned. The parlor decorated in the Senior's colors, purple and cream. The dining room in red, white and blue. The sitting room in pink and green, the Junior's colors. While the library was in the university colors, blue and yellow. Other rooms were also daintily decorated. From nine to ten the Juniors gave a very nice program. The time from ten until eleven was spent in amusements of various sorts, and at eleven all retired to the dining room to enjoy an exceedingly fine lunch. After this cabbage was again taken up, and all left for their homes at about 1:30.

No one can say that he had not a fine time.

With thanks in behalf of the Seniors, I am

One of them.

IN MEMORIAM

Mrs. H. P. BINNS

Edith Harris was born at Gospel Hill near Stevensville, Mich., April 16, 1869, at the home of her grandfather, Jno. W. R. Lister, who in 1874 removed to Buchanan where the family has since resided. She was known and beloved by many as a child, and grew to womanhood in the village.

She was united in marriage with Harry P. Binns, August 21, 1889, at Chattanooga, Tenn. They came immediately to Buchanan, Michigan, where they have since made their home. Three children were born to them, Reba Lenore aged 11 years; Nina Marie 8 years; and Ruth Elizabeth 9 mos., all of whom are living.

Mrs. Binns' health failed rapidly after the birth of the last child and January last she and her husband went to Las Vegas, New Mexico, hoping to improve her condition. She gradually grew worse and they returned here May 5th. On May 10th she died.

Besides her husband and children she leaves her mother, Mrs. Isaac Brown; and one sister, Mrs. H. G. Wagner who reside here; also her father, Charles W. Harris who lives at Harriman, Tenn.

The funeral service was held Tuesday at 1:30 p. m. at the family residence on Oak St., Rev. E. R. Black officiating. The interment was made at Oak Ridge cemetery.

Good Roads

The other day we had occasion to take a drive of about four miles into the country. We stopped with one of the pushing and wide awake men of the community; without any mention of our experience on the road, he spoke to us about them and seemed very much discouraged and talked of no longer driving to Buchanan for his supplies etc. He said he had tried to get the business men to help him to get better roads, and I am sure he needs them as you would say had you been with us, but they did not seem to care. I am sure he was mistaken for every business man in Buchanan does care for he knows that on good roads depends the business of the village, and all it would need would be the proper move and cooperation of farmers and merchants. Here is how some farmers in Missouri do and Michigan farmers can do what others can do.

One of the best kept roads I know of anywhere is in Caldwell county, Mo. between Nettleton and Hamilton writes W. H. Hamby in American Agriculturist. I have driven over this road at all times of the year, but have never seen it rough and muddy. It is not because Missouri has superior road laws. There are roads in the state that would wreck a leather bag in a spring wagon. Neither is it because the township trustees compel the road overseer to attend to his business. Township trustees and road overseers here are about ordinary, but are ordinarily not about when needed.

This is the explanation. On each side of that road are fine farms, beautiful farms with clean cut hedges, well kept orchards and fine meadows. On these farms are well built, well painted and nicely ornamented farm-houses, with beautiful lawns and trees about them. In those houses live progressive men who have agreed that this road shall be well kept. Each man owns a scraper. Each farmer takes the piece of road along his farm just as the city resident does his sidewalk. When one is busy another takes care of his road. When a bridge is to be built they all come together and build it. The road is graded in the middle, so the water runs off at once. When it begins to get rough they run a scraper over it. During parts of the year they go over this road from three to six times a week, sometimes even oftener.

It takes some time? Yes, but not half as much as it does some other men trying to sell their farms when they want to change. An average of three hours per week for each farm keeps the road. When they want to go to town, as they often do, the drive is a pleasure. It's a pleasure for other people, too, and when one of them wants to sell his farm he gets from $5 to $10 more per acre than if he was located at the side or end of a narrow gullied, buggy breaking by-path. Then they have free mail delivery along that road now. Some of the rest of us haven't and I am told the road had something to do with it.

A bill has been introduced in the house by Representative Otey of Virginia providing an appropriation of $100,000,000 to be expended for good roads in the forty-five states and four territories of the United States in proportion to their population. The construction of the roads is placed in the bill under the supervision of the department of agriculture.

Candidate Stearns Discusses State Affairs.

Mr. J. S. Stearns, candidate for nomination for governor, in a general talk on state affairs recently, said:

"A question of great importance to the people is that of state taxation. During the last five years there has been an enormous increase in taxes. In 1896 the state tax levy was $1,443,849.61, while in 1901 the aggregate was $3,835,844.97, an increase of more than two millions of dollars in five years. It is easy enough to increase taxes, but when they have once reached a certain sum they rarely grow less. I think everybody will agree with me that they have now reached the maximum, so far as the present needs and necessities of the state are concerned. In fact, I believe state taxes could be safely reduced a million dollars per annum. I am convinced that the state is paying salaries to a lot of useless and unnecessary employes, and that a great many official positions have been created for men who are now using the state's time, and in some instances the state's money, in traveling from county to county building up political fences. If successful, I shall endeavor to conduct the state's business with a view to getting more for the money than is now had, and expending less than is now being expended, without causing any of the state institutions or state interests to suffer.

Double Taxation.

We must not only make the burdens of the taxpayers lighter, but there should be no discrimination, especially against those upon whom the burden will fall the heaviest, and it always falls the heaviest upon the man who is in debt. I favor a law that will do away with the double taxation now existing, which compels payment of taxes upon the real estate, and then again upon the mortgage. Such legislation was enacted by the last legislature, but vetoed by the governor.

I believe the Lowrey-Ward bill was a good one for these reasons: It would have taxed all property that should be taxed, and to the owners of the same; on mortgaged premises a mortgage would have been assessed to the owner or mortgagee, and the value of the real property to the owner of the fee, after deducting the value of the mortgaged interest.

Second. It would have taxed both of these interests in the assessing district where the real property is located, and both at the same rate of taxation.

Third. It would have reached the mortgage of the non-resident who loans money in Michigan, so that mortgages amounting to millions of dollars, owned by such parties, would have been taxed in this state; whereas, under the present law, they escape taxation here.

Fourth. It would have reached mortgages amounting to millions of dollars held by savings banks and trust companies, which now escape taxation.

Fifth. It would have materially reduced the rate of interest, and would have done away with the double taxation, from which thousands of people in the state are now asking relief.

Sixth. It would have put an end to the discrimination now existing, by which non-residents are able to loan money in Michigan on more favorable terms than our own citizens can.

Corruption in Politics.

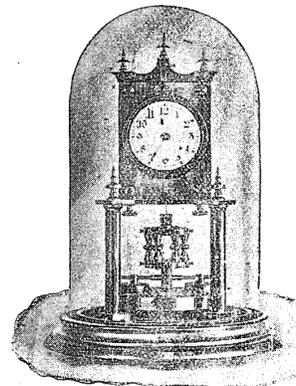

The people in this state are not exercising their rights in those communities where the boss steps in and substitutes his will for theirs. The evil factors and influences now dominant in the state are not born of the will of the people, but are the outcome of jobbery and trickery at the caucus and convention. The "Immortal Nineteen" in the state senate was not born of a free exercise of the people's will.

The best men of the country are now conscious of the evil that threatens our institutions, and a movement has been started with which I am in full accord, and to which I am willing to devote my energy, and means when necessary, to abolish the political convention and substitute for it a direct vote of the people. I believe the voters of the different parties should name the candidates by direct vote; and that the candidates should make the platform upon which they wish to stand, both in the state, and in the legislative districts, and that caucuses and conventions with all their evils should be abolished.

If the public business of this state is to be in charge of good and honest men who will be faithful to the interests of the people, all political methods must bear the light of day. The present system of nominating state and legislative candidates is open to severest criticism, because it invites jobbery and corruption. Until the present laws are changed, it is of the utmost importance that the friends of good government get control of the caucuses and conventions, now soon to be held, in order that no man shall be elected to office in the coming elections who can be controlled by men or corporations whose interests are in conflict with those of the people.

I have prepared a synopsis of the best features of the primary election laws introduced in the several states, and am mailing copies of it to persons sending me their addresses."

NILES DELAYS ROAD

Indiana Railway Company is Ready to Construct Electric Line to St. Joseph.

The South Bend Tribune gives the following resume of Indiana railway affairs:

J. McM. Smith, vice president and general manager of the Indiana Railway company, has been notified that the common council of Niles, Mich., acted on an ordinance prepared by the company providing for the passage of its proposed electric line from South Bend to St. Joseph, Mich., through Niles. The ordinance was not passed as the company desired it should be, but was burdened with a proviso. The amendment provides that the company may pass through the Second street tunnel under the Michigan Central railroad providing the latter will not consent to the construction of another tunnel under its tracks. The amendment is not satisfactory to the Indiana Railway company and the matter of the construction of the proposed line is therefore in an unsettled state.

The company is prepared, as soon as a satisfactory settlement of the difficulties in Niles can be arranged, to go ahead with the construction of the line. The route is practically settled, the first step will be the letting of contracts. These let, the work could be pushed with rapidity and cars be in operation from South Bend to Niles within about four months. A 70 pound standard T rail would be used and the equipment would be of the best. The construction of the line to St. Joseph from Niles, about 30 miles, could be completed within about a year should no unreasonable delays occur.

The route north from South Bend as laid out contemplates crossing the St. Joseph on an independent bridge west of the Leeper bridge, passing under the Michigan Central tracks and in the rear of the Leeper residence. From this point it is proposed to parallel the Michigan Central on the east to the Big Four railway crossing near Niles.

From this point two routes are mapped out. One contemplates a private right-of-way to Main street, thence to Second, if a grade crossing over the Michigan Central at Ninth street may be secured, and then on Second street through the Second street tunnel under the Michigan Central. The other proposition is to cross the Big Four and Michigan Central railroads over head, run west of the latter and enter Niles on Fifth street. The route then goes to Main to Second and out of the city through the Second street tunnel. Most of the route from South Bend would be over a private right-of-way.

From this point the company proposes to run east of the Big Four and then cross overhead the Big Four and three highways about a mile and a half north of Niles. A northwesterly course is then planned which would keep the road west of the highway to Berrien Springs, Mich. At the latter point the road would cross the St. Joseph river on an independent bridge then pass nearly through the center of Berrien Springs and take to the highway in order to avoid cutting into the many small fruit farms which would be necessary were a private right-of-way used.

About two thirds of the way to St. Joseph the road would leave the highway so as to cross Yellow creek and go under the Milwaukee, Benton Harbor & Columbus railroad. Returning to the highway the road would again use the highway to Hickory creek where it would diverge to cross the Three I railroad overhead. Entering St. Joseph from the south on State street the proposed route is to Main, to Ship, to Front, to Broad and on out of the city by the entering route.

The ultimate results of the differences in Niles will, however, materially affect the whole plan. The company means business and would have been at work on construction had it been able to deal satisfactorily with the Niles authorities.

A News Service Without Parallel.

There is ample justification for the claim made by The Chicago Record Herald that its readers enjoy every day in the week, Sundays included, a news service that is without parallel in range and completeness. The reason is obvious—the combination of the varied and extensive facilities of the two great dailies, The Chicago Record and The Chicago Times-Herald. In addition to the independent news facilities of both papers, The Record-Herald receives the complete news service of the New York Herald and the Associated Press, and when it is considered that its news columns are supplemented by all the special features so popular in The Chicago Record and The Chicago Times-Herald, it will be seen that The Record-Herald holds a unique place among the great newspapers of the United States.

TO HAVE ASSEMBLY

SIX PUBLIC SPIRITED CITIZENS OF BENTON HARBOR GUARANTEE SUMMER CHAUTAUQUA—EAST-MAN SPRINGS PARK LEASED

Ellen Stone, Lieut. Hobson and Other Notables to be Here.

Rev. S. C. Dickey, of Indianapolis, secretary of the Winona Chautauqua Assembly at Warsaw, Ind., was in Benton Harbor last week in conference with a number of citizens who had decided to carry out the plans for a summer Chautauqua assembly. The conference was held in the parlor of the Benton Harbor State bank.

As a result of the conference six energetic and public spirited citizens resolved to assume the burden and responsibility of the enterprise, hoping the community will stand by them in a project that otherwise would prove to them a very expensive luxury. In effect they guarantee $1,500, which it will cost to hold the assembly here.

The six gentlemen are Rev. S. C. Dickey of Indianapolis, and Rev. E. A. Hoffman, Geo. S. Avery, N. A. Herring, Wm. Rupp, Jr., and J. N. Klock of Benton Harbor.

It was decided to lease the Eastman Springs Park from that date to Sept. 15th, at a price agreed on with the owners of the park, and to hold the first summer assembly there the last week in July and the first two weeks in August.

The list of speakers secured by the National Chautauqua association to make the round of the summer assemblies in various states will be available for Benton Harbor and will be arranged for by Mr. Dickey, who is a member of the National association and whose aid in carrying out the Benton Harbor plans is both fortunate and indispensable. The last includes such notables as Miss Ellen Stone, the missionary who was held in captivity by the Bulgarian brigands for several months and was only recently released; Lieut. Hobson, U. S. N., who sank the Merrimac at Santiago; Sam Jones, the great evangelist preacher; Frank T. Bullen, a famous English orator; Lerado Taft, the great artist and art lecturer, and others equally celebrated and entertaining, it will be a really remarkable list of widely known speakers and should attract to our city thousands of visitors.

The projectors of the enterprise will proceed at once to incorporate under the name of the Benton Harbor Assembly, with a capital stock of $25,000, and will sell shares to others as desired.

The business men of Benton Harbor will undoubtedly give cordial support to this enterprise which means so much to the community not only in mental and moral uplifting but commercially as well. In the three weeks of the continuance of this assembly hundreds of people of means and high character who will visit and come to know Benton Harbor will be a great advertisement.

Benton Harbor is to be congratulated on the assurance of the summer assembly. The people of Buchanan will appreciate the privilege.

H. C. Smith

The Portland Oregonian of April 15th has the following of our towns fellow so well known in this village.

Chairman Walter F. Matthews has selected Herbert C. Smith, of this city, as secretary of the committee and his choice meets with approval in all quarters. Mr. Smith is a competent, systematic political worker. He has large acquaintance throughout the state, and he understands what is to be done in a campaign, and how to do it. He served as County Clerk of Multnomah county from 1894 until 1898, and left an excellent record as a public official. The duties of secretary of the State Central Committee are many and arduous, requiring unlimited tact and skill. Mr. Smith will commence his work at once, as the committee has a great deal of accumulated business which it becomes necessary to dispose of immediately.

The "hard lot of the farmer" is one of the commonplaces of political discussion, but few people realize the extent to which the farmer has been aided by science within the last decade. In Scribner's Magazine for June the remarkable results of the Agricultural Experiment Station work will be described for the first time in a popular manner by W. S. Harwood. He shows that a revolution in methods has been accomplished through the researches of one thousand trained scientific men, and that whole regions of the United States have turned to raising new products through the lessons taught by these stations. The article, which is fully illustrated, is a glimpse into "a book of practical magic."

HOW TO HANDLE GUNS.

Advice to the Sportsman When He Wanders Afield.

Before getting into a wagon it is no more than common prudence and foresight to remove the shells from one's gun. It is also the task of a moment, says Forest and Stream. If the horses should run away, if the wagon should break down, if the shooter should slip and fall in getting in or out, there is no possibility of death from the discharge of his gun.

If the same precaution is observed when crossing a fence, there again can be no "accident" from the gun. If one keeps one's gun pointed in the air or entirely away from the person of others, even if the gun should be discharged when in hand, there again could be no accident. If the gun is placed against a tree, the cartridges being first withdrawn, and if the dog knocks it over or if it falls down from any cause, there can be no accident.

If the shooter takes care to know absolutely what kind of animal is moving, he cannot by mistake shoot a man for a deer. It is quite as easy to think that a deer is a man as it is to think that a man is a deer. Wait till you know definitely: then you will not afterward have to tell what you thought, with the added knowledge that a man does not remotely look like a deer and that all regrets cannot restore a life.

In short, the matter of "accident" may depend on the matter of care and foresight more than on the unforeseen. Think about these things, and think about them before and not after.

How to Make a French Omelet.

To secure the semiliquid delicacy of the omelet served by French cooks, great care is required. It should be made in a perfectly clean saucepan—one that is neither burned out nor defective in any other way. Beat the yolks of three fresh eggs until light and creamy; add a tablespoonful of sugar and one of lemon juice, and, lastly, the whites of three eggs, beaten stiff. These should be folded in, not stirred or beaten. Put the mixture in the pan, in which a good lump of best butter has been melted, but not burned, and cook slowly until done. Fold and serve on a hot platter, preferably on a folded napkin. This omelet admits of indefinite variation. Appetizing in combination with it is fresh pineapple. Two full tablespoons of the fresh fruit, grated or chopped, are sufficient. Fold in just before serving and dust the top with powdered sugar.

How to Use Cold Meat.

Suppose you have some pieces of cold roast lamb on hand. The supposition is that your family is well tired of the idea of stewing up these pieces in the gravy for a second day's repast. Therefore cut the meat into fine bits and stew it till soft in milk. Thicken with flour to a creamy consistency and half fill the little gem pans that have been lined with good pie crust. Cover the tops with seasoned crumbs and bake. These little meat pies should be served warm. They may be made of cold veal or pork just as well as of lamb.

How to Clean Lamp Chimneys.

An easy way to clean lamp glasses is to hold them for a moment in the steam from a boiling kettle, rub dry with a clean cloth and polish with soft newspaper. Remember that no lamp can be expected to burn well unless the burner is kept clean. Duplex burners can be taken apart if the little bolt which is on the side opposite the handle for turning the wick is removed. Then they can be brushed clean. Boiling them in soda water is sometimes recommended, but this is not necessary.

How to Freshen the House.

A few drops of oil of lavender in a silver bowl or ornamental dish of some kind half filled with very hot water and set in the dining room just after dinner is served give a delightful and intangible freshness to the atmosphere of the apartment. Hostesses often put a small vessel in the parlor and dressing rooms when arranging the house for a festivity. The suggestion is especially valuable to the hostess in a small apartment, which sometimes in the bustle of preparation becomes stuffy.

How to Treat Burns.

Lime-water, olive oil and glycerin mixed in equal parts and applied to a burn will relieve the pain. An application of tar is also excellent, as it excludes the air. Common baking soda is an old and reliable remedy, though it has the disadvantage of causing intense smarting when first applied. A paste made by slightly moistening powdered borax is very cooling and effective; great relief may likewise be obtained by bathing the burn in borax water.

How to Clean Rugs.

Make a strong suds with white soap; to each gallon of suds add one tablespoonful of borax dissolved in half a pint of boiling water. When the suds are tepid, put in the rug and let it soak for half an hour or more. Wash well; then wash in a weaker suds and rinse in cold water to which a very little soap has been added. Press out the water and hang the rug in the shade to dry. When it is half dry, rub it between the hands. This will soften it.

How to Make a Clam Cocktail.

The clam cocktail is prepared very much as the oyster relish of the same name. Put half a dozen little neck clams in a tall glass, and over them pour a sauce made of a tablespoonful of the clam liquor, a pinch of cayenne, a teaspoonful each of vinegar and tomato catchup and a drop or two of tabasco sauce. Stir thoroughly and chill before serving. The cocktail is eaten with an oyster fork, and a few sips of the sauce are taken afterward.

Stonewall's Boldest Coup

SUCCESS in the combined attack on Richmond seemed sure the last week in May, 1862. The Merrimac had been destroyed, the James river was open to the Federal warships and transports to within seven miles of the goal, and McClellan's advance was rapidly closing in upon the outer defenses of the Confederate capital.

At Fredericksburg, on the Rappahannock river, General McDowell's command, 40,000 strong, was under orders to march forward and unite with McClellan on the north of Richmond. In the Shenandoah valley, west of the Blue Ridge, the armies of Banks and Fremont lay convenient to railways communicating with Washington and Fredericksburg. In an emergency the troops in the valley could be thrown in front of Washington at any point to defend it from front attack or even rushed to the banks of the James.

The only foe nearer to Washington than that marshaled for the defense of Richmond was the command of Stonewall Jackson, last heard of by the Federals in the vicinity of Staunton, at the head of the Shenandoah valley, on the 8th of May. Some of the military chiefs of the north hoped that Stonewall might be sent to help defend Richmond at the very gates. It would be easier to locate him there and at least one threatening danger to the peace of Washington happily disposed of by his remoteness from the Potomac.

Stonewall's ideas of the things he ought to do for his flag were not in harmony with those of his enemies. News traveled swiftly within the southern army lines, and Jackson knew that either the whole or part of McDowell's troops and portions of those of Fremont and Banks would be sent to swell the besieging lines in front of Richmond unless he furnished excitement for them on the slopes of the Blue Ridge. He had already proved this by attacking Banks' line after it had been stripped of soldiers to send eastward. The troops speedily came back and more with them and, in order to be ready for a second attempt at the same clever trick, settled down behind fortifications at Strasburg, about the center, lengthwise, of the valley. From Strasburg a good piece led back to the Baltimore and Ohio railway and the Potomac river, and a railroad running through a gap in the Blue Ridge placed Strasburg within a few hours of Washington and Fredericksburg.

Fremont's army lay within easy marches of Banks' post, and he held his troops ready to support Banks by falling upon Jackson should he march direct from Staunton to give Banks battle on his fortified front. Needless to say that credulous people believed that Jackson was securely "bagged," a favorite expression in certain circles at that time. The old fog generals of Europe declared that Napoleon violated every principle of the art of war every time he moved an army. Jackson, with Banks in front of him, Fremont to the left of him and McDowell on the right rear of him, had but one move left according to the art of war. He must sneak away between the lines of Fremont and McDowell to the southwest, by way of Lynchburg. He was looked to do this or to turn up anywhere except where he actually landed the morning of the 25d of May.

Stonewall was too much of a soldier to see glory in the mere dodging of a trap set to catch him. He proceeded to smash the trap. After he had turned back Fremont's advance from its march upon his base at Staunton by a sudden stroke at the village of McDowell the 5th of May he sent his few companies of cavalry to press Fremont's outposts and also to keep up the scare in the center of the valley in front of Banks at Strasburg. All his enemies were by this time deeply mystified as to Jackson's way of doing things. They couldn't fathom his plans, and without risking even a skirmish he kept three armies on the alert for his sudden appearance. The opposing generals assumed that where Jackson's cavalry was there Jackson's infantry would be sooner or later; so they waited in their tracks for the infantry. But Jackson's cavalry was ubiquitous, and his infantry had already won the nickname of "Jackson's foot cavalry" by their rapidity in turning up where the enemy least expected them. The chief of Stonewall's mounted men was worthy of his master. Long before the war Turner Ashby was in training for the kind of outpost work Jackson needed in the valley campaign of 1862. Born and reared on the slopes of the Blue Ridge, he knew every footpath and hunter's trail between the Potomac and the headwaters of the Shenandoah. He was a social hero, a crack hunter and an all round saddle sportsman of the hills. Besides, he had soldier blood in his veins, tested in all the wars back to Braddock's field. With his mounted militia Ashby had patrolled the Potomac during the John Brown trouble of 1859 and there made the acquaintance of the serious military professor.

Jackson had been through West Point and had also seen service in Mexico, and Ashby had the good sense to yield the palm of leadership to him. They became friends, and when the war broke out in 1861 Ashby followed Jackson to the field. As soon as Stonewall became an independent commander he chose Ashby for his chief of cavalry. For the purpose of mystifying the enemy Jackson, with Ashby on the warpath, was multiplied by two. Ashby let it be known that Jackson was going to attack Banks, and as his troopers were riding down the valley pike toward Banks' front at Strasburg the good people of the region supposed that Jackson was going down the valley too. What the people knew the enemy was quickly in possession of through the medium of scouts, and, according to data inside the Federal lines, Jackson was due at Strasburg about May 22. He did not come. But trifles delay an army; perhaps he would be along next day.

After paying his respects to Banks' pickets and giving the impression that Jackson would soon rush headlong down against those impregnable barricades at Strasburg, Ashby vanished from the valley. He led his troopers eastward through the Blue Ridge and the morning of the 23d of May marched around Banks' flank guard at Front Royal, the pass of the railroad from Strasburg to Manassas plains. This pass Banks had left under guard of Colonel Kenly's Maryland volunteers, with detachments of artillery and cavalry. Kenly had no warning from Strasburg that the enemy was moving his way. His pickets were surprised and captured or brushed aside, but he rallied the reserves and made a desperate fight at the bridge and along the railway track and wagon road back toward the Shenandoah pike in the rear of Banks.

Colonel Ashby had but few troopers in his fighting ranks. Some whole companies and large detachments of others had been left to guard the crossroads on the way and to buffet and mystify the enemy. His task was to cut the telegraph and destroy the tracks so that Banks could not get word of his plight east of the Blue Ridge and call up help. But Kenly's men were good fighters. They turned every building into a blockhouse and used the railway embankment for a breastwork. At Buckton Station they gave Ashby his little Waterloo.

Failing to dislodge Kenly's men from their citadel at the station by feints farther down the line, Ashby gathered a handful and called upon them to follow. Speeding like hunters after game, they flew over the intervening fence

ASHBY'S CHARGE ON THE RAILROAD GUARD. and ditch, up the steep bank and with pistols and sabers rushed on the bayonets of the Marylanders. From the unequal fight the troopers fell back, but Ashby rallied them a second and a third time. Two captains were shot down by his side, and at the third failure he rode away, leaving the road for Jackson's infantry to clear.

Jackson's infantry had traveled farther than Ashby's troopers in their flank march against Banks, but they had started earlier. Crossing the Blue Ridge through several passes, they reached Front Royal the afternoon of the 23d and swept up all that Ashby had left of Kenly's guard. The alarm of what Jackson was doing at Front Royal spread to Banks in time to save his army, but not to save Strasburg. Stonewall attacked his retreating column at Newtown, Middletown and Winchester on the 24th and 25th, capturing guns and wagon trains and cutting off detachments of troops' all the way to the Potomac. The Banks end of the trap to catch Jackson was smashed.

For two days Washington was in terror. It was not known where Jackson would stop or whether he would stop at anything until he raided the northern capital. When Banks sent word that his army was safe on the Maryland shore, the military authorities took breath and ordered Fremont to close in upon Jackson's pathway in the valley and also that Shields' division east of the Blue Ridge should return to the valley at once and help Fremont "bag Jackson."

SOME CARRIE NATION INCIDENTS

She Falls to See Gov. Bliss—Her Advice to Flint Women.

Lansing, Mich., May 10.—Soon after her arrival in the city Mrs. Carrie Nation announced her intention of calling on Governor Bliss. "I want to see just how he stands on the liquor business," said she. "I'll talk with him and get him to tell me. I want to know if he believes in legalizing by license the unlawful sale of liquor. I don't believe in license. Licenses are protection, and unlawfulness should not be protected." Governor Bliss took the noon train to Saginaw.

Carrie was an uninvited caller at the Congress saloon. She was ordered to leave and refused to go. The proprietor took her gently but firmly by the shoulders and put her out. Carrie told him he ought to be ashamed of himself, but he refused to be convinced.

Flint, Mich., May 10.—Carrie Nation spoke to a small audience here. She admonished the women in her audience not to tolerate a "nicotine soaked, tobacco stinking young man," and told them to use the telephone so as not to contaminate themselves. She also scored the saloons for decorating their walls with pictures of nude women. "You have a perfect right to smash them," she said. "When they paint us and then strip us of our clothes what else have we left to fight for?"

OWER YOUNG TO BE MARRIED

Mother Sues for Divorce for Her Son, Who Is Under Age.

Grand Rapids, Mich., May 13.—A somewhat unusual condition of affairs is disclosed in the bill of divorce filed in the circuit court by Julia Scribner, who appears as next friend, in behalf of her son, Charles Scribner, who in the eyes of the law is an infant. Young Scribner is not quite 20 years of age, but has been married for more than a year. The suit is brought against Frances Scribner, who is her husband's senior and who was a widow.

The bill of complaint makes the statement that the infant husband has no trade, and in consequence is enabled to earn only a mere pittance. In view of his helplessness in this particular his parents have assisted him in the support of his wife, and it is claimed never refused to do so. Desertion and extreme cruelty and refusal to live in the home provided by her husband, that is, with his parents, are urged as the reasons why a decree of divorce should be granted.

CARELESS BLOW IS DEADLY

Boy of Thirteen Gives the Blow to a Little Girl of Five.

Owosso, Mich., May 12.—As the result, it is alleged, of a blow struck in a childish altercation, Helen, the 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Stever, is dead of concussion of the brain. The little girl was playing with other children about a building owned by L. E. Woodward, the wealthy furniture and carpet manufacturer. The children were throwing shingles into a creek to float them.

Carl Woodward, son of L. E. Woodward, aged 13, drove them away, and it is told, struck Helen in the face. The child complained of pain at the temple when struck, became delirious and died in great pain. Woodward employed three local physicians to save the child, and sent to Ann Arbor for a nurse. Dr. Long, of the Ionia asylum, was also called when the child became delirious. The boy, Carl, has worried himself ill over the occurrence.

Recovery is considered very doubtful.

Three Tough Boys Fined.

Bay City, Mich., May 13.—Three boys of the names of Mogge, Turvey and Miller were fined $15 each in the police court for printing and circulating obscene literature. Some of the offensive matter was given to a girl in the Sherman school, who circulated it among some of the pupils. The girl was fined $3, and they all paid their fines.

Broken Heart at Small Price.

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 13.—Seventy-five dollars was the price paid in settlement of a broken heart in court here. Elizabeth Wylie, a divorcee, sued Charles Alber, an employe of the university, for breach of promise. After the jury was drawn the counsel on both sides got together and compromised the case for $75 in cash.

Dropped and Died in the Road.

Owosso, Mich., May 9.—Because a man who owed him a small sum for farm work done did not pay him, Charles Van Austin, of Bancroft, had to walk when he set out from Bennington for his home, eight or nine miles distant. After walking two miles he dropped in the road, and died of exhaustion.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a cold disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proved catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case that fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. When you compare our prices with those who buy through jobbers you see the proof of what we are telling you. You save the jobbers profit; this means 25 to 33 per cent. Consider this, its worth thinking about.

The Happy Go Lucky club held their last regular meeting of the year last Tuesday evening. A committee had made previous arrangements to entertain the club, and the members were therefore treated to a progressive luncheon. Beginning at Mrs. Frank Steiner's where the first course was served, and then to Mrs. Emory's where the second was likewise enjoyed. The principal feature here was the appropriate little verses by which each guest found their places at the table. From there we journeyed to Miss Shafter's. Mr. Claud Roe furnished music during the time the last course was served. After the luncheon was finished each member was given a word and told to compose some poetry using that word. Miss Kathryn Kingery whose word was rheumatism, captured the prize. After some little time spent in conversation the club disbanded until next fall.

Hon. O. W. Coolidge. The republicans of Berrien county are urging Hon. Orville W. Coolidge of Niles to become a candidate for the supreme bench.

Judge Coolidge is acknowledged to be the best jurist and scholar in the county. He has a host of admirers who feel that this county is entitled to representation on the supreme bench.

Next year a successor to Chief Justice Long will be nominated by the republican party, at which time it is the intention to name, if possible, Hon. O. W. Coolidge of Niles and Berrien county. It is safe to say that a better selection could not be made.

Oratorio The Messiah. Last evening in the Bell opera house in Benton Harbor, the choral union of the twin cities, under the able direction of Mrs. W. S. Bracken, rendered Handel's Oratorio, "The Messiah".

There were about seventy voices in the choruses, and the hearty applause from the audience attested their appreciation of this magnificent oratorio so finely sung.

The soloists, Miss Marie Carter, soprano, Mrs. Bessie Fox-Davis, contralto, Mr. W. Carberry, tenor, and Mr. W. S. Bracken, bass, sang their parts very acceptably. The opening words: "Comfort ye my people saith your God", were sung in a very impressive manner.

When that inspiring climax, the Hallelujah chorus was reached Mrs. Bracken turned toward the audience and said: "At the first rendering of this oratorio, at the words, 'For the Lord God Omnipotent reigneth', the audience arose and remained standing during the chorus, thus was the custom initiated of standing during the Hallelujah chorus. Will the audience please follow the established custom and rise?"

The choral union may well feel proud of their achievement; this is their second concert. Special mention should be made of Mrs. F. Christopher, accompanist, and of Mr. O. A. Morse, organist, and of their skillful work.

There were about 30 of the music lovers of Buchanan went last night the M. B. H. & C. running a special return train.
