*ON the porch he proudly sits,
In his straight backed wicker chair;
Buttons bright and coat well brushed,
Slouch hat over silvered hair;
Listening with eager ear,
Peering out with kindling eye,
For the fife and drum and flag
When "the boys" go marching by.*

*A FEW years a-back, and he
In the ranks was keeping step;
Now it is his heart alone
Follows to the warning "hep!"
Follows through the dusty streets,
Banners drooping overhead,
To the oak embowered slope,
To the bivouac of the dead.*

*HE can only wait and dream,
In his sun's declining rays,
Of the muster rolls that marked
Other Decoration days.
And adown the aisles of Time
He reviews, with subtle thrill,
Camp and foray, song and cheer,
And that charge at Malvern Hill.*

*ON the porch he proudly sits,
In his threadbare suit of blue,
Thinking of the hours ago,
Hours when he was marching too,
And his cane upon the floor
To the drum beats makes reply:
"Thump" and "thump" and "thump, thump, thump!"
As "the boys" go marching by.*

Plan for Paper

In all your plans for improving your home take wall paper into consideration. If you leave that out you omit the most essential feature. Eventually people will change the dress of their room each year; many do it now, that is why wholly new styles of decorations come out each season.

All the most attractive and artistic designs for this year are now here and we wish you to feel at any time and see them.

Underground Waters in Michigan.

Hydrologic work, consisting of the investigation of underground waters, by the United States Geological Survey, has recently been begun in Michigan, through the newly created division having this branch of investigation in charge. Mr. W. F. Cooper, who is also connected with the State Geological Survey, has been appointed to take charge of the collection of this information. Mr. Cooper's work will be done under supervision of Dr. A. C. Lane, State Geologist. The investigation will include the determination of the chemical and sanitary character, output, and the uses of water from artesian and other deep wells, and of the geologic conditions that govern or affect the occurrence of the water. It is hoped that information that will be of considerable importance to those in search of a supply of underground water will be obtained by this study, the results of which will be published in reports for free distribution.

The occurrence, composition, and uses of spring water will also soon be investigated, and this research will probably be followed, within the next year or two, by co-operative work by the United States Geological Survey and the investigation of water powers, water supplies for farms, cities, factories, and boilers, and of brines and other mineral waters within the State.

"49 Message."

A tip-top short story of a favorite McClure type is Charles B. DeCamp's "49 Message" in the June issue of the magazine. It is a telegraph yarn, and relates how an extremely important passage of a presidential message leaked out into Wall Street from the office of a big news association, the false accusation of the star operator, etc. With the exception of the train despatcher of railroad-story fame, telegraph operators have somehow strangely escaped exploitation in magazine fiction. More yarns of the type of "49 Message" are in order.

One Better.

Last week we published an account of a certificate of Land Grant in the possession of George Howard signed by Martin Van Buren, but Mrs. Ion Hamilton goes one better. By presenting a certificate of land grant to Harrison Wilson in the year of 1834 and signed by Andrew Jackson. This grant has never passed out of the hands of the Wilson family as Mrs. Hamilton is one of the family.

This was published last Tuesday and on account of errors in names is reproduced in this issue.

Reduction for Prompt Payment.

Owing to our press of work, which seems to grow as the days pass by, we have entirely neglected our subscription list, but we have now taken the time and informed every subscriber whose subscription is due or will be due that if they will pay on or before a certain date, a reduction will be made from the regular price of $1.25 per year, but we wish to state here as we have there that we can allow the discount unless paid by the time stated. Hereafter we will inform each subscriber before the paper is due and if prompt payment is made we will allow a liberal reduction but if not paid when due we will expect $1.25 per year to be paid, which is the lowest price for from 12 to 14 pages of news printed anywhere.

Although we have not been able to give the attention deserved our subscription list is continually growing, which is an evidence that the people at least appreciate our efforts and our constant aim will be to improve the work.

COUNTY SEAT NEWS

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS.

Twenty-six Botanists.

Twenty-six of the graduates and former students of the University of Michigan who took special studies in the department of botany are now engaged in work of a botanical nature. Eighteen of the twenty-six hold positions as professors, assistant professors, or instructors in thirteen universities or colleges; and eight of the twenty-six are connected with the national department of agriculture.

Of the eighteen engaged in university and college work, five have the title of professor of botany; three, that of professor of biological sciences; one, that of junior professor of botany; three, that of assistant professor; and six, that of instructor. The five who are professors of botany are at the Universities of Vermont, Washington, and Michigan, Leland Stanford University, and the Rhode Island College of Agriculture and Mechanical Arts. The professors of biological sciences are at the University of Rochester, the Michigan State Normal College, and Hope College. The other institutions having Michigan men on their faculties are the University of Chicago, Wisconsin, Missouri, Ohio State University, and Cornell University.

Not a Sick Day Since.

"I was taken severely sick with kidney trouble. I tried all sorts of medicines, none of which relieved me. One day I saw an ad. of your Electric Bitters and determined to try that. After taking a few doses I felt relieved, and soon thereafter was entirely cured, and have not seen a sick day since. Neighbors of mine have been cured of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Liver and Kidney troubles and General Debility." This is what B. F. Bass, of Fremont, N. C. writes. Only 50c. at W. N. Brodrick, druggist.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. C. D. SHELDON

Mary E. Miller was born in Crawford Co., Ohio, June 21, 1850, died at her home in Bakertown May 24, 1903. In 1868 she came to Michigan and was united in marriage to C. D. Sheldon Nov 15, 1877. To this union three children were born, Elton A., Blanche E. and Claud L. Sheldon, who with her husband and mother survive and mourn their loss.

The funeral was held at the Mt. Zion U. B. church where the Rev. W. J. Tarrant of Buchanan preached to a large congregation. Mrs. Sheldon was highly respected.

A. C. ANDREWS.

Mr. A. C. Andrews was born in Richland Co., Ohio, August 11, 1830. In 1853 he came to Indiana and on June 29, 1854, he was married to Elizabeth Bickel. He moved to Buchanan 19 years ago and lived here until three years from the day he was brought back. He was the father of 3 children, all of whom are living; Mrs. Wm. Southerton and Mrs. Allen Johnson, of Battle Creek, and Mrs. Fred Edwards of Marion, Indiana. He died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Johnson, of Battle Creek, May 27, 1903. He was brought here this morning at 5:45 and taken to Solomon Rough's. He will be laid by the side of his wife who was buried 13 years ago. Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon at Battle Creek.

SISYPHUS A MODEL?

An Old View of Punishment Which Has Become a Model for Modern Effort.

In the pleasant days of antiquity, when people were content to take life tranquilly and worshipped a race of gods and goddesses as easy-going as themselves, a certain discontented mortal, Sisyphus by name, jealous of his papa-in-law (Atlas, supporter of the universe), started out to achieve a reputation for himself as financier and founder of enterprises. He, however, quickly got into trouble, being both rapacious and avid, so was promptly ordered off to Hades for his sins. To be energetic and grasping was then the surest way to exasperate public opinion, for it was an epoch when all reasonable people and even the gods themselves asked for nothing better than to sit in the shade and be comfortable.

In order to make his punishment coordinate to this culprit's crime, he was condemned for all eternity to shoulder a rock up a mountain side, only to see it go bounding down into the valley again as soon as he had got it laboriously to the top.

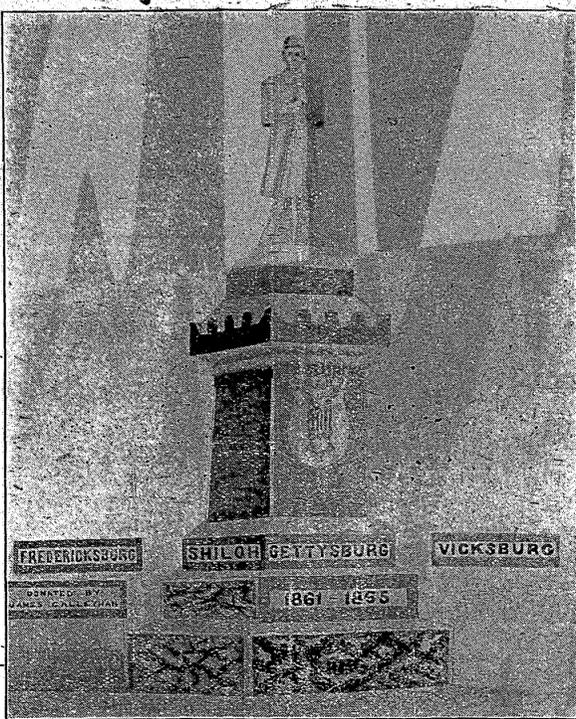

This story and that of the hungry wight who was always being tempted by good cheer just out of reach, crop up continually in the writings of that day, both tales being amusingly illustrative of the Greek spirit and an age when to enjoy a cultivated leisure was considered as about the summa bonum of existence.

Fancy the amazement of those Attic peoples (who, between ourselves, may not have been so very far wrong in their view of life) had they been told that a race would one day spring up, quite as civilized as themselves and possessing far greater opportunity for cultivation and enjoyment, every member of which, rich as well as poor would look upon weary Sisyphus task as the one reasonable and commendable occupation for a gentleman.

Yet this view is almost universal in our land to-day, where an all-pervading rattle of bank notes distracts men's minds so completely from the real aims of existence. Sisyphus is now held up as a model of industry and application. Parents urge their offspring to waste no time in preliminaries, but knuckle down as early as possible to the chief problem of to-day, the rolling of stones uphill, or to put the idea minus the metaphor, the endless and aimless piling up of treasure, not for any enjoyment the store may bring its possessor (that is a minor consideration), but simply for the sake of accumulation.—From Eliot Gregory's "Unavailing Wealth" in the June Century.

Mr. Cornelius Smyer, South Bend, says: "Give me an other bottle of your Wine Lo-ti Coonley's Beef, Iron and Wine with Nervine. I took a bottle last Spring and it helped me just like you said, I slept better right away." It is sold by E. S. Dodd & Son's. Large bottles 50c. Take no other for there is no other equal to it.

ORDER OF EXERCISES FOR MEMORIAL DAY

Ceremonies at Oak Ridge Cemetery—Honors for the Dead by Loving Friends, Who Decorate Their Graves.

The following program has been arranged for Memorial Day, Saturday, and it will undoubtedly prove one of the most interesting Decoration Days ever observed in our village.

The line of march will form at the engine house at 1:30 and proceed to the cemetery.

- 1st.—Dirge by band while the graves are being decorated.
- 2nd.—Ceremony of decorating the graves of the unknown dead.
- 3rd.—Selection by the band.
- 4th.—Song by chorus of eight voices.
- 5th.—Prayer.
- 6th.—Address Rev. W. J. Tarrant.
- 7th.—Song.
- 8th.—Benediction.

The line of march will then form again and leave the beautiful cemetery,—the silent city of the dead.

CORRESPONDENCE

DAYTON.

Mrs. Cora Foster returned from Chicago Wednesday evening.

Mr. Arly Bromely who is suffering with inflammatory rheumatism is some better at the present writing.

Mrs. Emma Smith, of South Bend, is visiting friends here this week.

Miss Mellie Rittiner visited Mrs. A. C. Weaver last Monday.

Miss Edith Ballard went to Buchanan Monday.

Mr. Will Richter and several friends from Michigan City visited at the home of Mr. Julius Richter.

Miss Clara Marsh, from Galien, was in town Monday getting up a class in music. We wish her success.

Mr. A. Althere, of Niles, attended the funeral of Mrs. Chester Sheldon, at Mount Zion, last Tuesday.

After the regular meeting of the Royal Neighbors last Friday evening, Mrs. A. C. Weaver sang a solo, and Mrs. Esther Leggit gave a select reading, after which was served fruit, salad, cake and lemonade.

Roy Redding returned to Chicago last Friday.

PORTAGE PRAIRIE

Rev. A. Ostroth who had been confined to his bed for a few days is again able to be about.

Marie, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Mortimer was buried Saturday.

Rev. Wm. Putnam of Niles delivered a fine sermon, at this place last Sunday morning filling the vacancy of our sick minister.

Children Day Services will be held at this place the Sunday evening of June 7.

Quite a number from this place attended the memorial services at Buchanan Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Cauffman, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Swartz, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Rhoades Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Arney took dinner with Wesley Swartz and family Sunday.

A much needed rain fell at this place.

Mr. and M. J. Erdley visited Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ehninger Sunday. Rev. Wm. Putnam and lady friend of Niles and Mr. Henry Broceus of So. Bend took dinner with Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Rough Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cauffman of So. Bend and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rhoades visited their parents Mr. and Mrs. James Cauffman Sunday.

Mrs. Charles Kriehbaum and little Lou Wallace with a lady friend of theirs took supper with E. S. Arney Monday evening.

GLENDORA.

The much desired rain has come and prospects look brighter.

Mr. and Mrs. John Young from near Niles spent Saturday and Sunday with her siser, Mrs. John Hartsell.

Mrs. W. C. Weed and daughter who have been visiting Mrs. Morley, returned to their home, New Buffalo, on Monday.

Mr. Ed. Shepardson moved his family to Mishawauka on Monday. He and his daughter have secured work in the felt boot factory.

Measles are in the neighborhood. Grace, Katie and Bertha Shirk are very sick with them.

Mrs. Mont Inglewright and three children are bed fast with measles. The youngest child also has whooping cough.

Mrs. Chas Wolkins who was reported very ill with rheumatism is better.

The infant child of Carl Wright has been very low with pneumonia is improving.

The putting up of a long distance telephone through this section of Berrien County is again being agitated and probably in the near future work will begin.

WEST BERTRAND.

Mrs. Allie Blodgett and daughter Naomi expects to spend a few weeks in Bertrand before making her home in Jackson.

Mrs. Chester Sheldon passed away Sunday after a lingering illness. She was buried at Mt. Zion Tuesday in sight of her old home.

Mr. Phillip Smith has bargained for the old Patrick Curran homestead. We understand he will remain where he is for a year or two.

School closes at No. 8, with a picnic on the school grounds. Miss Enos has been very successful in her work and will come back as teacher for another year.

Mr. J. B. Stryker sold his farm and wood lot to Milton J. Erdley last week, consideration $4300. Mr Stryker has lived on the place for over thirty years and has not yet decided where he will go.

If you have a pet dog see that he is securely fastened at home as war has been declared against all strange, stray dogs along the road from high bridge, south to state line. It took three families on that road to kill one supposed mad dog. It turned out to be Mrs. Gogle's pet dog that had strayed away from Mr. Stryker's where she had been staying.

Better a dozen innocent dogs suffer martyrdom than to have community shocked as it was two weeks ago when Mrs. Foster was bitten.

Mrs. Foster returned Wednesday from Pasteur institute.

Ray Frame is working on the R. R. between Buchanan and Niles.

BENTON HARBOR.

The G & M line will begin their Saturday night excursions to Chicago this week.

2,500 Knights of Pythias from Chicago will picnic at Eastman Springs, July 22.

Hon. J. G. Wooly, the famous temperance advocate and orator, will deliver the address at the high school commencement exercises at the Bell, tomorrow night.

The street car service will be better than ever this summer. It takes just an hour to make the round trip, so twelve of the best cars will be used and one will leave every five minutes. Other improvements have also been made to make it the best system in the state.

The annual memorial sermon was preached last Sunday by Rev. Fowler at the Baptist church and was largely attended by the old veterans, the W. R. C., naval brigade and others. In the afternoon a special train was run on the Big 4 to Crystal Springs cemetery. A thousand people attended the impressive decoration services.

There is a big kick coming from those who are financially embarrassed by the Sunday closing movement inaugurated by the grand jury and different plans are rife for evading the law. This is the latest: Next Sunday Henry Gentner, of St. Joseph, will anchor his boat about a half-mile outside the harbor and be prepared to furnish drinks for all the thirsty ones. This will combine business and pleasure. His example will doubtless be followed by others who feel they must get the almighty dollar in almost any old way, so it comes.

Wine Lo-ti Coonley's Beef, Iron and wine with Nervine—is a perfect tonic. It is made of the finest old Port and Sherry Wines with pure Ext. of Beef, Iron, Nervine and Cascaia with Aromatics carefully selected and combined so as to be readily taken up by the most delicate stomachs and carried into the blood, giving renewed and permanent vigor. It does not interfere with other medicine of any kind but helps and improves their action. Large bottles, pints 50c. Take no other, there is no other like it nor as good. Sold by E. S. Dodd & Son.

May Lose His Thumb.

On Tuesday afternoon about an hour before closing time, Mr. Dana Phelps, at the Cabinet works, had the misfortune of cutting the thumb and fore finger of the right hand very badly on a cut-off saw. He was sawing some small blocks, and was at the saw only a few moments, when the wood slipped from under his hand and the saw cut the end of his thumb nearly off, and badly lacerated the forefinger. Dr. Henderson dressed the wound, he thinks the forefinger will heal all right. There is danger that the thumb or part of it will have to be amputated.

Disastrous Wrecks.

Carelessness is responsible for many a railway wreck and the same causes are making human wrecks of sufferers from Throat and Lung troubles. But since the advent of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, even the worst cases can be cured, and hopeless resignation is no longer necessary. Mrs. Lois Cragg of Dorchester, Mass., is one of many whose life was saved by Dr. King's New Discovery. This great remedy is guaranteed for all Throat and Lung diseases by W. N. Brodrick druggist. Price 50c. and 1.00. Trial bottles free.

Music Memorial Day

By M. E. RUTLEDGE

[Copyright, 1903, by W. L. Vail.]

MEMORIAL day music has a double office to perform—that is to say, it is adapted to heighten or inspire two and even more than two widely different feelings. The dead heroes are remembered because they were comrades, and they are honored because they died gloriously for the country.

Since the exercises of the day are a festival to commemorate noble deeds the mind is attuned to earnestness and soberness, not, however, to mournfulness. Sometimes the feelings swell to regions so lofty that the solemn and majestic strains of "The Star Spangled Banner" alone have strength to bear up the mighty impulse. That noble tune and the still nobler thoughts it suggests when the heart is filled with stirring memories never appear too exalted for any stage of the ceremonies. The words and air of "The Red, White and Blue" will often seem extravagant and out of harmony with experience even on the Fourth of July, but after the memorial praises have been spoken over the ashes of the dead soldiers and the strewn flowers have thrilled the senses with their bright hues, stirring the soul to a deep response, the voice joins in the chorus as naturally and as irresistibly as the feet of dancers at a ball move to the measures of a waltz.

The army and navy forever! Three cheers for the red, white and blue!

Military pageantry is not so easy for the participants as outsiders imagine, and the veterans come to the parade ground on Memorial day more or less fatigued with the work of preparation. The air "Hail to the Chief" which greets the leader is restful for the nerves and at the same time slowly stimulating. It acts as a tonic, not as a spur, for a spur is not needed. The feelings will wake up later on when the column gets into swing and some marching tune, old or new, native or foreign, puts spring into the jaded muscles and spirit into every faculty. Veterans are not past the stage of enthusiasm even though they went "marching on" forty years ago. The average age of civil war survivors is sixty-two, which means that there are as many below that figure as above it.

Of course the ranks become weary on Memorial day with waiting and maneuvering and later with tramping in close column, but they soon rally to the cheering notes of "Marching Through Georgia," and if they acted up to their feelings the chorus would be shouted on the march by lungs powerful enough for the men of an active army.

After the ceremonies at the graves are ended and the marching enthusiasm is somewhat staled the heart is ready for melodies of pathos and patriotism. Even the newest popular favorites are welcomed if tuneful and sincere. At this stage, also, the fife and drum give a musical novelty and stir fresh feelings which have grown a bit somber and heavy. The recruiting of fifers and drummers in G. A. R. posts was a happy stroke of genius. A full band is expensive on Memorial day, and only a large and prosperous post can afford to retain one, but the sons of the veterans yearn to be in the procession somehow, and they can fife and drum.

There is so little room for the bugle in military functions that its notes never seem commonplace. When it sounds the calls of assembling, of attention, of marching and halting, the mind of the veteran sweeps back over the twoscore years as readily as it would to the crack of rifle or the roar of cannon volleys.

And at the end of it all, when the speech making, the marching, the tribute giving, are over, comes the social reunion as a prelude to farewells which may be the last. With hands joined in square or circle, the music playing "Auld Lang Syne," the veterans raise the sober and tear moving song, every verse of it, every word of it, reluctant to reach the end.

Climate and Crop Report.

The United States Department of Agriculture, climate and crop bulletin of the weather bureau, Michigan section, publish the following for the week ending May 25, 1903.

The mean daily temperature for the week ended May 25 was 63.3 degrees, or 7.6 degrees above the normal; the average total precipitation was 0.86 of an inch, above the normal; the sunshine averaged 59 per cent of the possible amount.

The week has been warm with generous showers in most localities, except the extreme southwestern counties, where the rainfall was insufficient for present needs. Generally, wheat, rye, oats, barley, meadows and pastures have improved; wheat is still somewhat backward, but has taken on a much better color and made fair growth. The warm showers have been very beneficial to the germination of corn and late oats, and have improved the soil for plowing.

Corn planting has made good progress in all counties of the Lower Peninsula, and the early seeding is germinating finely. Sugar beet seeding is well advanced and has germinated finely; the early seeding is sufficiently advanced; early potatoes are growing nicely, and in the extreme southern counties are receiving their first cultivation. Plowing for buckwheat and beans is in progress in the southern and central counties. Pasture is good in most counties, but meadows are backward and need more rain to mature a full crop.

Apples, late peaches, pears and late straw berries are blossoming heavily; early peaches, early strawberries, cherries and plums will have short yields on account of frost damage.

In the Upper Peninsula the season is advancing nicely; spring wheat, oats, peas and meadows are making good growth. Fruit is coming into blossom and looks very promising.

Berrien Co: All vegetation improved; corn planting well advanced; wheat fair; drought damaged oats and young clover.

An Impressive Scene Just Before the Battle of Antietam.

As these vast American armies, the one clad in blue and the other in gray, stood contemplating each other from the adjacent hills, flaunting their defiant banners, they presented an array of martial splendor that was not equalled, perhaps, on any other field. It was in marked contrast with other battle-grounds: On the open plain, where stood these hostile hosts in long lines, listening in silence for the signal summoning them to battle, there were no breastworks, no abatis, intervening woodlands, nor abrupt hills, nor hiding places, nor impassable streams. The space over which the assaulting columns were to march and on which was soon to occur the tremendous struggle, consisted of smooth and gently undulations and a narrow valley covered with green grass and growing corn. From the position assigned me near the center of Lee's lines, both armies and the entire field were in view. The scene was not only magnificent to look upon, but the realization of what it meant was deeply impressive. Even in times of peace our sensibilities are stirred by the sight of a great army passing in review. How infinitely more thrilling in the dread moments before the battle to look upon two mighty armies upon the same plain, "beneath spread ensigns and bristling bayonets," waiting for the impending crash and sickening carnage!

Behind McClellan's army the country was open and traversed by broad macadamized roads leading to Washington and Baltimore. The defeat, therefore, or even the total route of Union forces meant not necessarily the destruction of that army, but, more probably, its temporary disorganization and rapid retreat through a country abounding in supplies, and toward cities rich in men and means. Behind Lee's Confederates, on the other hand, was the Potomac River, too deep to be forded by his infantry except at certain points. Defeat and total route of his army meant, therefore not only its temporary disorganization, but its possible destruction; and yet that bold leader did not hesitate to give battle.—From "Antietam and Chancellorsville," by Gen. John B. Gordon, in the June Scribner's.

The General's Orders

By HOWARD FIELDING

[Copyright, 1903, by C. W. Hooke.]
FRANK CUSHING stood by the iron fence which surrounded the family plot in the cemetery of his native town. A brisk, warm wind caught up the fragrance from the flowers upon his father's grave and rustled in the folds of the flag that flew from a short staff planted before the headstone. The scene was impressive; its vitality gave the lie to death. On rising ground, opposite Cushing's position, a great choir of girls and young women were taking their places. Along the path came General Parker, Denham's war hero, and his little staff of veterans. They saluted the flag and passed on. Instantly Cushing's mind, which had been the abode of thoughts appropriate to the occasion, was occupied by his own personal concerns. General Parker had not looked at him. The general's disfavor was not a new affliction. For a year it had been the heaviest burden and the darkest mystery of Cushing's life. He was in love with the general's daughter, Dorothy, and he had claims to be favorably considered. In this mercenary world the fact that at thirty years of age he was president of the Denham bank and the richest man in those parts should count for something. Moreover, the general had been a warm friend of the elder Cushing, whom he always spoke of as "a grand soldier, sir; the ideal of a soldier," though he had been only Sergeant Cushing at the close of the war.

It was well known that General Parker judged men by their fitness or unfitness for a military life. As to the general's disfavor, it could hardly rest upon the absence of soldierly virtues in a civilian, but all that Cushing knew about it was that the general had said a year ago: "Frank, your attentions to Dorothy are becoming conspicuous. They must cease."

They had not ceased, but Cushing vainly imagined that they had not been conspicuous. He would have liked to ask Dorothy whether the fact that he had gone walking with her for about half an hour on the previous evening could account for her father's added displeasure, but Dorothy stood with the girls who were to sing, and to speak with her then would have been conspicuous indeed, for Cushing was not only a personage in Denham; he was also very tall, and Dorothy was above the average height, and her blond beauty was not of a quiet type. A conversation between them then would have attracted the eyes of the whole town.

It was probable that no opportunity would occur during the day, but one might be made in the course of an entertainment which was to be given in the evening, and to that Cushing looked forward. Accordingly, about half past 8 o'clock he toiled up the narrow and crooked stairs leading to old Armory hall, where the entertainment was to be held. The stairs led from a side entrance to a vestibule, which was on the front of the third story of the big wooden building. Cushing, pausing at the door, beheld the hall extraordinarily crowded. He caught a glimpse of Dorothy's golden crown in the far distance and instantly afterward met the cold, gray eyes of the general, who stood just within the portal.

Cushing turned away and looked out of the window in the end of the vestibule. Directly across the narrow street was the Redding block, an old wooden structure much like Armory hall. In the second story windows of this building he saw a strange light that wavered, flashed and brightened. He gazed at it, terror-stricken.

With his mind's eye Cushing beheld every incident of the wild, stampede from this crowded hall that must follow the inevitable cry of "Fire!" He staggered the length of the vestibule and came face to face with General Parker.

"General, the Redding block is on fire!" he whispered.

The old officer straightened up until he was as erect as a youth. He marched to the window, glanced out and then returned to his former position.

A double door separated the vestibule from the hall. Only half of it was open; the other half was fastened by movable bolts running up into the casing and down into the floor. Cushing stooped to loosen the lower bolt.

"Don't do that," said the general calmly in his ear. "Pretend that it's stuck and stand by it. Don't let anybody get it open."

Cushing put his foot on the bolt and stared at the general. Did he intend to quell a panic by shutting the people into the hall?

"Ladies and gentlemen," the general began. And at the sound of his resonant and commanding voice the hall became quiet.

Then in that very moment of silence arose the wild cry of fire in the street. The rush was instantaneous. Cushing felt the shock as the crowd struck the closed part of the door. He thought it must break; but men built honestly in the old days.

"Open this door! Open this door!" screamed fifty voices.

Cushing, faint with panic, bent down to the bolt, but the general's words still rang in his ears. Frantically he held the bolt down, as if it could have jumped out of the socket without assistance. Nobody within could reach it, and those that came out had something else to think about. A few men turned back, but Cushing pushed them away.

It takes a long time for 500 people to get through a space four feet wide, especially when they are in too much of a hurry. There was a terrible jam at the door, but the general and some of his old comrades maintained their positions against the wall between the door and the near corner and managed to accomplish something in straightening out the tangle. Occasionally one of the old soldiers would be caught in the vortex and would come through, gasping with such breath as remained in his body: "Steady, steady, boys! Plenty of time." Then he would be swept on down the stairs.

The building opposite was flaring like a giant torch. Suddenly a gust of wind caught the flame and thrashed it across the street as if it had been a whip of fire. It struck the side of Armory hall with a crash, bursting the glass in the window of the vestibule and letting in a torrent of heat.

The people at the head of the stairs screamed and rushed down faster. A man turned to Cushing, crying, "For heaven's sake, pull that bolt!"

"It won't come," stammered Cushing. "I'm a coward," he was saying to himself. "I'm afraid right now. I want to run, though blast me if I know why. That's what the general has seen in me all along."

It was constantly in Cushing's mind that he ought to be at Dorothy's side. Of course it was utterly impossible for him to enter the hall against the tide of humanity. He must simply wait for her, but he resolved to desert his post when she appeared and protect her down the stairs.

Suddenly he was aware of her. She had tried to stop by her father's side. The struggle to extricate herself had turned her about, and she was thrust through the doorway backward. As soon as it was passed the pressure of the crowd relaxed, owing to the width of the vestibule. Relieved of this support, the girl fell helpless at the foot of the stairway that led upward to the loft.

Cushing forced his way across to where she had fallen and raised her in his arms. Instantly he was aware of the general just beyond the door. His voice was clear above the noise of the crowd, the roar of the fire and the incessant beating of the water which an engine was now throwing upon the face of the building.

"Carry her upstairs!" he cried. "Upstairs? The word came to Cushing as in a dream. He knew that the building was already afire, and to go higher up in it was to invite death."

CUSHING CLASPED DOROTHY IN HIS ARMS AND FLED UPSTAIRS.

Yet under this feeling was his conviction that the general meant what he said; that he was cool in the midst of this excitement, with a tried soldier's courage. Cushing was not cool, and he knew it. His judgment at the moment was not worth a penny, and he had the sense to perceive this fact. He clasped Dorothy in his arms and fled up the stairs.

To his great surprise, a great number of people followed him. Nearly half of those remaining in the hall were deflected and took the stairs that led higher.

The general overtook Cushing in the loft above and led the way to the rear where there was a small window. Everybody else had forgotten it. It opened just over the flat roof of another building, and upon this occasion it furnished a very easy exit for about fifty people.

Dorothy revived even before Cushing had carried her to the window, and she descended through the other building without assistance. She and her father and Cushing were the last to emerge.

No sooner had Cushing's feet touched the sidewalk than he was recognized and surrounded. It seemed that dozens of hands were extended toward him.

"By George, sir," cried some one, "that was magnificent! Talk about presence of mind! If you had opened the other half of that door and let loose that flood of people on that narrow, crooked stairway, there'd have been a hundred killed. And as it is, there's nobody hurt."

"I!" gasped Cushing. "Presence of mind! I was scared silly. I haven't found out yet what I was about. It was the general's orders."

He turned toward Parker, who extended his hand. "Frank," said he, "I've misjudged you. You're your father's son. You have the making of a fine soldier in you."

"Soldier!" echoed Cushing, with a bitter and choking laugh. "I guess not! I've found out tonight what I am."

"The first requisite of a soldier," said the general, "and the most important element of human character is obedience. If you had obeyed my order a year ago—but never mind that. Tonight has made all right. When you discovered the fire, you reported it, and from that moment you carried out every order to the letter. If you were nervous, sir, it only makes your conduct more honorable. I could have done little without you. I could not have held that door myself. Nobody but you would obey my order to go upstairs. I had bawled myself hoarse. But when you led the others followed, and pressure on the lower stairs was relieved at the most critical moment."

"I may have deserved a little credit," Cushing began, "for grabbing Dorothy up from under all those feet?"

"That showed intelligence," responded the general, smiling. "It is a minor consideration. Many men have intelligence, but few have the instinct of discipline. He who has it is a safe man, a man to be trusted. And now I must see if I can be of any assistance with this fire. You will take Dorothy home."

"Yes, sir," said Cushing promptly.

Kicking Cow Cures.

These three cures for kicking cows were sent to Rural New Yorker in answer to a correspondent:

If H. W. C. would strap Julia's hind legs together, I think she would forget to kick.—E. L. V.

I will tell you how I managed the worst kicking young cow that I ever had in more than seventy years of farm life. As the cow was fastened in her stanchion I took a light walking stick about one-half inch in diameter and about two feet in length and stood behind the cow at a safe distance and commenced to thump her right hind leg just above the ankle. She kicked, and again and again she kicked, and I followed up the light raps on her leg until I tired her completely out, so I could not get her again to kick; and I had no more trouble milking her.—H. E. P.

Put a small rope with a slip noose around her lower jaw and when she starts to kick pull on the rope.—Dairyman.

The High School team will play a game of ball with a team from the Axle Works next Saturday after the close of the exercises. The usual admission will be charged. It is the last high school game of the season.

So great was the demand for South Bend transportation on Thursday that Mr. House sent over the wagonette, the four seated buckboard and a carriage, to accommodate the crowd. Among those who went were: Mesdames S. A. Vinton, O. P. Woodworth, P. N. Weaver, Ed. Weaver, Howard Smith, Mrs. S. E. Johnson and Kingery; Misses Cora Smith, Clara Hubbell, Mattie and Callie Richardson.

To see little children playing is not surprising but to see a little dog alone and playing as intelligently as a child is surprising. A RECORD representative while passing a home a few days since was exceedingly interested in seeing a small black and white dog playing with a ball. He would take the ball in his mouth carry it to the top of the terrace lay it down so that it would roll to the street; he would then run after it, bring it to the top and roll it down again. If for any reason it would stop rolling he would move it along till it would roll again. So interested was the little fellow that pedestrians did not disturb him.

An exchange says: One cannot help noticing the difference in the number of young ladies and young gentlemen graduating from the high schools all over the county. A boy will go to school just so long, and then he gets a notion into his head that he knows all that is necessary, and quits school. It is different with the girls. They keep on going to school, and the result is the girls are supplanting the boys in many lucrative positions. You will find them holding places that a few years ago were held by men. Many of the boys who had good opportunities to finish the high school course find themselves crowded out of good positions, and must be content with common, hard everyday labor. The parents are not always to blame in such cases, as many of them try to keep their boys in school, but are unable to do so. —Niles Star.

MR. AND MRS. J. A. SHELDON,
 MR. C. D. SHELDON
 AND FAMILY

Death of Mrs. W. A. Gosline.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Smith received the sad news on Thursday night of the death of Mrs. W. A. Gosline of Toledo, well known here.

Mrs. Gosline had been in ill health for some time, and went to New York to have the care of a specialist during a siege of appendicitis. Recovering from this she succumbed to an attack of nervous prostration and went to Atlantic City to have the benefit of the sea air. She was too weak however to recover her strength and died last Thursday. She leaves a son and daughter.

Laugh and Grow Fat.

Life is such a serious business to the average mortal that an opportunity for a hearty laugh is more than welcome to most people. "A merry heart doeth good like a medicine," and so do the humorous features of that great metropolitan daily, THE CHICAGO RECORD-HERALD. The first thing that greets you on the first page of every issue is the humorous cartoon by John T. McCutcheon, the well-known artist, that frequently tells more at a glance than could be conveyed in a column of reading matter. Every issue contains also a humorous small story on the editorial page and the "Alternating Currents" column written by S. E. Kiser, one of the most popular humorists in the country. In addition to all these, the Sunday issue always includes a comic section guaranteed to produce laughter.

TEN OF BUCHANAN'S OCTOGENARIANS

Who Have Lived Here for Many Years. Combined Age is 798. Photograph Taken June 29, 1900.

The above cut represents ten of the oldest men of Buchanan, most of whom have spent all or the greater part of their lives in Berrien County.

Commencing with the photograph from the left hand the names are as follows: H. G. Holliday, Geo. Treat, Alfred Richards, Homer Hathaway, Nathaniel Hamilton, Chas. Snyder, Hiram Mowrey, seated in front are Dr. Dodd, Joseph Sparks, Sanford Smith.

HIRAM G. HALLIDAY.

Mr. Halliday first saw light in Seneca County, New York, April 7, 1821, and moved to Michigan, settling near Battle Creek in 1836. In 1859 the family came to Buchanan.

He was given the advantage of a school room education until his 16th year, and late in life had the advantages of travel and a wide experience.

He spent part of his life in Canada, where he learned the carpenter's trade, which occupation he followed as long as he lived. In 1847 he married Charlotte LaMore, and they were the parents of six children, only two of whom are living. He united with the Methodist church in 1851 and continued his membership through life. He was an active member of the Masonic order. He left Buchanan in 1902 to make his home with his son, Leonard, in New York state, where he died Feb. 6, 1903. He was buried at Buchanan, with Masonic honors, Feb. 11, 1903.

Mr. Halliday is the only one of the above group who is not living.

GEORGE R. TREAT.

In Monroe Co., N. Y. there was born on Nov. 27, 1823, George R. Treat. He moved to Ohio in 1844, settling in Medina Co., in 1850. For twenty years he was employed by the M. C. R. R. first serving as hand-car boss and later as agent at Buchanan. Mr. Treat was married three times; the first time, Jan. 1, 1845, to Mariette Merrill, and on April 10, 1853 to Theodolinda Cooper, and on June 17, 1858 to Mary E. Baker. He is the father of eight children who are living.

For many years Mr. Treat was engaged in the grocery business and in buying and shipping fruit, and later retired from business and lived on a farm. In politics, Mr. Treat was a Republican, and in the earlier years of his life, he was a member of the Masonic lodge. He served on the Common Council, a number of times, and always an active citizen. He holds membership in the Larger Hope church. At present Mr. Treat is very ill at his home on 4th street.

ALFRED RICHARD.

On Nov. 5, 1822, near Wilmington, Delaware, there was born a baby-boy, who through life bore the name of Alfred Richards. In 1838 the family moved to Marietta, O., and in 1849 moved to Buchanan. Early in life Alfred learned the trade of carriage making and about fifteen years was engaged in wagon and carriage business, and later engaged in buying and shipping lumber which last occupation employed him for ten years. Mr. Richards had the first lumber yard in Buchanan and for eleven years was a dealer in lumber and broom handles, retiring from this business in 1885.

He was a member of the first Common Council after Buchanan became an organized village, was supervisor of the township for five years, and treasurer three years.

In Nov. 24, 1847 he married Laura E. Martin, and six children were born to this union, all of whom are living.

He was married the second time Sept. 6, 1862 to Mrs. Emily Legore. He is a Republican and is a member of the Christian Advent Church.

HOMER N. HATHAWAY.

Was born in the town of Russia, Herkimer Co., N. Y. June 8, 1833. He lived in Livingston Co., N. Y., in 1840-1 from there came to Berrien Co. Mich. March 19, 1842 and settled on the farm now owned by D. L. Vander-slice, one mile east of Buchanan where he lived for 12 years. Since then he has lived in the village except six years spent at Bakertown two and one half miles away.

He was married March 2nd 1856 to Mary L. Smeed and there was born to them seven children, two of whom are living.

Mr. Hathaway's education was acquired in the public school. In 1848 he was employed by the M. C. R. R. making the big file east of Buchanan which has now been abandoned. For a number of years he was engaged in threshing. It was during this period that he met the serious loss of the death of his son by the explosion of the boiler of his threshing machine. There occurred the total destruction of his machinery, killing his horses, etc., a material loss of about $1500.

Mr. Hathaway does not belong to any secret order. He has always voted the Republican ticket since the birth of the party, except the time he voted for Peter Cooper. He is not a member of any church but was reared a universalist.

He was constable, and township treasurer for five years, marshal for eight years, and highway commissioner for two years.

While at Bakertown he was engaged in a sawmill, and also did wool carding.

Mr. Hathaway has a remarkable memory and a very entertaining manner of relating his experiences.

NATHANIEL HAMILTON.

Mr. Hamilton was born in Preble Co., Ohio, Feb. 12 1821. His family came to this section in 1834. Mr. Hamilton came to Buchanan in 1847 where he has since lived continuously. His education was secured at the "District School." On March 30, 1848 he was married to Julia A. Burrus. From this union there were born six children all but one of whom are living. Mrs. Hamilton died Jan. 10, 1901.

A few of the earlier years of Mr. Hamilton's life were spent in farming; he then engaged in the sale of agricultural machinery and auctioneering, which he has followed for fifty years. He joined the St. Joseph valley lodge of Masons at Niles in 1843 and still maintains his membership in the order.

His father before him as well as himself were Jacksonian democrats, but in Lincoln's campaign he voted the Republican ticket which he has voted ever since. He has been a member of the M. E. church but at present does not belong to any. He was under sheriff and deputy sheriff in the county for sixteen years and constable and treasurer of the township about twenty years.

CHARLES SNYDER.

The subject of this sketch was born in Richmond, Ind., Sept. 2, 1826, and moved to Berrien Co., Mich., in 1832. He had but about one year of school, which was at the pay school. In 1846 he was married to Rebecca Alexander. Two children were born to this union, both are living. In 1894 his wife died and on July 21, 1895 he married Nancy Noyes.

Mr. Snyder enlisted in the civil war and served about one year and eight months in the 12th Michigan Infantry, and was honorably discharged in Aug. 1865. He is a mason by trade, and a member of lodge 68 F. & A. M. Since the beginning of the Republican party, he has voted with that party. He is a regular attendant at the Presbyterian church.

HIRAM MOWREY

The subject of this sketch was born in Shenandoah Co., Virginia, Mar. 20, 1835, and came in 1854 to make his residence in Berrien Co., settling in Buchanan. He had the advantage of a common school education, and after completing school, learned the blacksmith trade which occupation he followed until 1899, when he sold out his business interests and retired.

On Nov. 24, 1856 he married Jane Ready, they were the parents of four children, of whom three are living. Some time after the death of his first wife, he married, on April 26, 1867, Mrs. Lydia A. Remington, three children of the union are still living, one having died.

Mr. Mowrey is a member of the F. & A. M. For fourteen years he was a member of the Common Council, and for two years he served as assessor of the village.

DR. E. S. DODD

Dr. Dodd was born in Franklin Co., Va., Jan. 4, 1819, moved to LaPorte Co., Ind., 1836. He studied medicine four years, then went to Cincinnati and graduated from the Electric Medical College 1849. He practiced medicine in Indiana ten years and in 1859 moved to Buchanan where he has practiced his profession successfully ever since, and is still at the age of 84 in possession of every faculty and attending to his professional duties.

Since 1852 he has been manufacturing Dodd's Liver Pills, German Cough Balsam and Dodd's Sarsaparilla; the firm originally consisted of E. S. & T. A. Dodd, a brother. He established the present drug store of Dr. E. S. Dodd & Son in 1866.

He was married Oct. 3, 1850, to Sophronia McKinney to whom were born four children, two of whom are living. He was again married on April 30, 1891, to Jennie L. Champ, his present wife. He is a member of F. & A. M. In politics he is a Republican. He is a member of the M. E. church.

JOSEPH SPARKS.

Mr. Sparks was born Jan. 14, 1814 in Rowan Co., North Carolina, and moved to Wayne Co., Ind. in the same year, then moved to Berrien Co., Mich. Oct. 28, 1828, where he has lived ever since. There are but two other people living in the county today who were residents of this county at that time.

He was for some years engaged in farming and sawmilling. At the age of 25 he married Mary Jarvis, with whom he lived till 1851, when she died. March 30, 1851 he married Caroline Flanigan, his present wife. On the 10th of last March they celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. There were born ten children of this marriage, of whom five are living.

Mr. Sparks, like some of the others in this group, had very limited school privileges, and these were secured at pay schools during winter seasons.

In politics he is a Republican and is a member of the Christian Church.

SANFORD SMITH.

Mr. Smith's first thirteen years were spent in Monroe Co., N. Y. where, on Jan. 13, 1817, he was born. He moved to Salama, Mich., in 1830, and well remembers the unusual sight of the falling stars in 1833. In 1834 he moved to LaPorte Co., Ind., and came to Buchanan in 1847.

He was married Oct. 4, 1846 to Elinda, Barmore, there were born to them seven children, six of whom are living. He engaged in the business of carpenter and cooper, also in the profession of veterinary, surgeon from boyhood with marked success and even at his advanced age he is called on repeatedly for work along this line.

In politics he has been a whig, and later a Republican. He has filled the office of village marshal five years. His education was acquired in less than one year at school.
