REVOLUTIONARY STOCK.

Charles Elihu Sabin, a Civil War Veteran.

Was born at Orland, Steuben Co., Indiana, June 6, 1838. He traces his ancestry back to 1643, when the first one of the name settled in Rehoboth, Mass. Several members of the family were engaged in the various Indian wars and we find them represented in the Revolutionary war.

The subject of this sketch spent his boyhood on the farm and in the district school. At the age of 17 he went to Vermont and staid a short time, then bent his footsteps westward to the then territory of Kansas, where he was during the border ruffian troubles, of that territory, and under the leadership of James H. Lane, the brave and intrepid leader of the Free State forces, helped to drive out the border ruffian hordes and restore peace to that country. Having returned to Indiana, he was clerking in a store when Sumpter was fired on, and in September of that year, 1861 he enlisted in Co. A 29th regiment infantry volunteers, Col. John F. Miller, of South Bend, Ind., commanding.

After remaining with his company about three months he was detailed as surgeon's orderly in which place he served about six months and was then appointed hospital steward, of the regiment, which place he filled during the rest of his stay with the regiment. He participated in the battles of Shiloh, Stone River, Liberty Gap, Chicamauga and numerous skirmishes through which his regiment passed.

On November 27 1863, the regiment began to re-enlist, it being the first organization to take that step, in the department. On December 26, about two-thirds of the regiment having re-enlisted for three year more, they were re-mustered into the United States service. On the first day of January 1864 (that cold New Year's) the subject of this sketch while enroute from Bridgeport, Alabama, to Indiana, received an injury to his right knee which finally resulted in his losing his leg by amputation. After being honorably discharged from the service by reason of wounds and disabilities he returned to his home in Indiana and engaged in mercantile pursuits until 1889, when with failing health, he purchased a farm in the vicinity of Buchanan, and engaged in agriculture. In 1891 he was elected justice of the peace which office he now holds.

He was married in 1869 at Edgerton, Ohio. Three children have been born to them, the eldest, Frank E., being now in California, Harry O. is in Minnesota and Clara A. is at home with her parents.

Mixed on Her Geography.

The postmaster of the house of commons tells a story of his early experiences of postal work a good many years ago. It was a London branch office, and a customer came in and handed a letter over the counter to the young woman who was serving stamps and who, after reading the address, said it would be five pence. "But I have never paid more than twopenny halfpenny before," objected the customer. "Is it overweight?" No, it wasn't overweight, said the clerk, but all letters to China were five pence, and as this was addressed to Dresden—

Forgot Something.

It was in a hotel, and a girl of sweet sixteen had left the table, at which her parents were still seated, and had gone the entire length of the dining room, when she paused in the doorway, and her fresh young voice cut the air with the word:

"Maw!"

"Well?" replied her "maw" shrilly. "I forgot my gum. Fetch it when you come upstairs." It's stuck under the table right underneath my plate. I'll want it for the matinee this afternoon, you know."—Lippincott's Magazine.

Relatively Poor.

"Alas," said the unhappy woman, "and we were once considered wealthy!" "But, my dear," said her husband soothingly, "we have as much money as ever." "Oh, yes, I know, but there are so many who have a lot more that nobody pays any attention to us any longer!"

WORTHY RECIPIENT

Frank Stryker of Our Village
Honored By Being Elected

AS DRAIN COMMISSIONER

In All Probabilities the Last Democratic
For Some Time.

The people feel that the board of supervisors did well in selecting Mr. Frank Stryker as drain commissioner. He is industrious, conscientious, intelligent and has the universal respect of the community in which he lives regardless of his political views. The Benton Harbor News publishes the following: F. A. Stryker, of Buchanan, yesterday elected county drain commissioner by the board of supervisors, will be the last of his race for years to come. The republicans of the county will have Hon. Nathan V. Lovell, of Eau Claire, to thank for the fact that the supervisors of Berrien county will never have the choice of another drain commissioner upon their shoulders. Unless Berrien county becomes a democratic county Mr. Stryker will be the last democratic drain commissioner the county will ever know.

At the last session of the legislature Representative Lovell secured the passage of a bill making the office of drain commissioner elective in Berrien county, and removing that plum from the grasp of the supervisors. Mr. Lovell has noticed that many times the county board is democratic while the county goes republican by a large majority. Besides making the office elective he has made it one of the best offices in the county. The drain commissioner will receive $3 per day and $2 per day for his horse and he puts in much of his time in the work. The office is worth $1,200 to $1,500 a year.

Spoken.

The Thrice-a-Week World long ago established itself in public favor and it is now recognized as the strongest publication of its kind in the United States. Advertisers and publishers seeking clubbing combinations—and they know best—universally testify to this. It is widely circulated in every State and Territory of the Union, and even in remote South Africa and on the gold fields in the deserts of Australia. These are the things that tell.

Next year we have the Presidential campaign, in which all Americans are deeply interested. Already the issues are being discussed and the two great parties are preparing for the first moves. You will not want to miss any details, and if you subscribe now your year's subscription will cover the campaign from beginning to end.

The Thrice-a-Week World is absolutely fair in its political news. Partisan bias is never allowed to affect its new columns, and Democrat and Republican alike can obtain in its pages truthful accounts of all the great political contests.

In addition to all the news, the Thrice-a-Week World furnishes the best serial fiction, elaborate market reports and other features of interest.

CITIZENS' COURSE

First Number Given Tuesday
Evening in the Presbyterian Church.

MR. LOU J. BEAUCHAMP

Amuses and Instructs a Large Audience.

If the attendance at the first number of the Citizens Entertainment Course is to be taken as a measure, then the course will be a great success as to attendance, and if the numbers to follow come up to the one of Tuesday night, by Lou J. Beauchamp, lecturer, traveler and writer, then those who miss any of them will never know how much they have lost.

Mr. Beauchamp is quoted as the thinker who makes you laugh and a humorist who makes you think; and those who heard him in "Take the Sunny Side," on Tuesday evening will testify, that he is not wrongly quoted. When he first began the people generally were somewhat disappointed because he talked so rapidly that it was with difficulty each word could be heard, but one soon became accustomed to him and understand him very well.

He began by making everyone laugh, but he was only leading the people to a point when they would grasp the forcible truths he would tell.

He was certainly on the right track when he said that the American home was in danger, and some of the facts he gave were startling, and it is to be hoped that the words so fitly and forcibly spoken may inspire every parent who was present to greater endeavor in making home the most desirable place on earth, as the great creator certainly intended the home should be, next door to heaven, but how many are just next door to the other place and the number of boys and girls under 16 years slipping out of home into that awful pit is appalling.

He drew the people into a very clever trap in giving the common expressions of the different card games, and it seems that the church people who fell into it would be ashamed of it and strive to be engaged in some thing that will be of more value to the world. The church also merited the reproofs given her, and it is to be hoped that at least in Buchanan it may produce good results by a more cheerful and faithful life, a life of service. The people ought to give Mr. Mercer a vote of thanks, but for him we would not have enjoyed the great treat.

A gentleman living in Palmyra, N. J., staid home this summer and paid some bills owed instead of going to Tuxedo. A lady dwelling in Pennsylvania, N. J., who owns a dog she dearly loves, never takes the canine shopping with her for fear he will ruin goods and make the merchants angry. A man from Wenonah, N. J., who rejoices in a good cigar, never puffs the smoke in a lady's face, even on a street car, because it might hurt her feelings. A fond mother in Manhattan, N. J., thinks so much of her children that she never takes them to evening entertainments to annoy the audience by talking and weeping. A merchant in Ahamuchy, N. J., always buys what he can in his own town, because he figures that if everybody went away to make their purchases, he would have to put the shutters. A society belle of Helmetta, N. J., sent her mother into the parlor to practice "The Last Rose of Summer" on the piano while she did the washing; and, while engaged in this homely task, was discovered by a young millionaire, who proposed marriage at once, because he said that he believed the belle was the last of her kind, and he would take no chances hunting for another. A politician of Pequannac, N. J., who held five paying jobs, declined a sixth on the ground that some one else might need it. A youth of Mullica, N. J., took a job

A One Price Store

The days when a customer came into a clothing store prepared to spend perhaps half a day in "beating down the price," "looking around," and "in making up their mind" before buying a suit of clothes, have gone by. Then—and the custom is still adhered to by some stores—the merchant puts his price up at least fifty per cent. higher than he expected to get and was prepared for the usual "knock down" in price. He asked $15.00 for a $10.00 suit and if he could close the sale at $12.50 he was that much ahead.

It was the timid buyer who suffered then. The one who "hated to ask them to come down" in the price and 'twas he who paid the profit that the shrewd and presistant trader would not pay.

The business methods of such stores as Sam'l Spiro & Co. have changed all this.

A fair legitimate profit is asked on all goods and the price is marked in plain figures—usually printed.

A perfect stranger could come into our store and sell goods—as far as the price was concerned—and never vary a cent from the oldest salesman's figures.

In some clothing stores only the cost price in secret marks is placed on a garment and the clerk "guesses" at what it ought to bring. If the one who waits on you happens to be a particularly bad guesser you are liable to be asked twice what the article is worth.

All these unbusiness-like methods have been done away with by Spiro's. The price of every article in this big, splendid stock is marked in plain figures and is always the same to each and every one of our customers. It remains the same—at any and all times.

Only when lots are broken—clearance sales at the end of a season inaugurated—are prices changed and then the goods are re-marked in our stock room, not at the time a sale is made and because a customer is unusually eloquent in argument or persistent in his refusal to decide to buy.

This method protects all alike. The child and the mother can trade here quickly, comfortably and secure in the knowledge that the store is "one price." That they are paying no more for the same article than any one else and that prices are as low as it is consistent to mark them. Buying in large quantities for four stores makes possible much lower prices, than other stores can afford to offer and the same prices to all insures impartial treatment.

LOOK OUT FOR OIL

Operation of the Umholtz to Commence at once—E. R. Chitty Arrived Wednesday.

Once more an effort will be made to compel mother earth, in this section, yield some of the treasures she has so long held in her bosom.

The Umholtz Oil Co. having secured the services of E. R. Chitty, of Milledgeville, Ill., will begin operation at once. He took the rig from the cars yesterday and will soon be ready to set it up and we may confidently expect to have announced that oil has been struck, by Christmas.

There is no reason why any one need be discouraged because every effort to get something for Buchanan has not been a success sooner or later. Oil will be struck sooner or later and Buchanan will blossom like the rose.

IMPORTANT GATHERING

Michigan State Federation of Women's Clubs Meets in Grand Rapids.

MANY EXCELLENT PAPERS.

Given by Prominent Speakers and Educators.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 15, 1908 (Special to the Buchanan Record)—The State Federation of Women's Clubs, which has been in session in this city for the past few days, is proving an important gathering, and every where on the streets, in the trolley cars, and in the public buildings may be seen the pretty ribbon badges of the delegates.

The meetings are held in the Fountain St. Baptist church where there is a seating capacity of about 1,000 and the auditorium and balconies are well filled at every session. There are 155 clubs in the federation, 180 of which have delegates in attendance at the convention.

One of the most important committees to report thus far is the Lucinda Stone Memorial Committee, who are receiving money for a scholarship fund for the woman's department of the state university. The fund is named in honor of the late Mrs. Stone, the mother of woman's clubs in Michigan. It now amounts to $8,000. An important social function occurred yesterday afternoon when, Miss Anna Caulfield, one of the wealthiest ladies in the city opened her spacious and beautifully decorated parlors for a reception. There are four fine houses for women in this city, where the guests will be received before leaving.

Rev. Lee S. McCollister of Detroit, gave an illustrated lecture on "Tolstoy and His Russia" on Tuesday evening, which was thoroughly enjoyed. Rev. Caroline Bartlett Crane, pastor of the People's church, of Kalamazoo, gave a report of the Domestic science Department and her committee's success in having a bill passed at Lansing in the interest of the work.

One of the principal speakers of the convention is Mrs. Robt. J. Burdette, of Pasadena, Cal., who gave a delightful address Wednesday evening on the "Training of the Junior Citizen." An able paper on "Present Literary Tendencies" by D. N. Demmon, professor of rhetoric and literature in the University of Michigan, was also read that evening.

There are about 800 delegates present enjoying the occasion.

IN MEMORIAM

EMILY ENOS

Was born in Niles, Mich., April 19, 1839 and died in Buchanan Oct. 14, 1908. Of the family of seven children, but three are left Mrs. Francis Finch, of California, Mrs. Jane Webb, of Wisconsin and Mr. Riley Enos, of Dakota. The father, Uriel Enos, was one of the founders of the Presbyterian church of Buchanan, and organized the first Sunday school in the village.

The deceased was married to John P. Carr, in Edwardsburg, September 26, 1865 and leaves beside a devoted husband, two children, Edward Carr, of South Bend and Mrs. Mary Swartz, of Niles.

Forty-seven years ago, with her husband, she joined the Presbyterian church, and has ever lived a faithful and consistent Christian. During her recent illness she prayed for strength to be patient and to bear her suffering which was most intense. After a pastor had called, she said to a friend, "he asked me if I was sure I was trusting?" "Oh! how could I doubt my Saviour." But a few days before she was called home she said, "she felt the presence of her Saviour. His presence filled the room, I did not know He could be with me so that I could feel His presence with me as I do." She was a member of the Ladies Circle of the G. A. R. where her cheerful sunny presence will be missed, as well as by a host of relatives and friends.

The funeral was held at her home on River street, at 9 a. m. this morning, Rev. W. D. Cole assisted by Rev. Halmhuber conducted the service and the remains were taken to Edwardsburg for interment.

LOST OPPORTUNITIES

Mean Loss of Money—Does it Mean You?

I was standing in a hardware store last fall when an advertising solicitor came in and said:

"Mr. Brown, we want to run an ad in our paper for you."

"No, I don't think we have anything for you this week."

"We can get you up a good ad, and we haven't had any business from you for some time."

"Well, we haven't had any advertising in the papers of late. We may later on."

"All right, we'll see you then."

On the floor at the time was a long row of refrigerators. It was in the fall. It meant they must be stored away until next spring, insurance paid on them, and possibly sold at a discount the next spring because they were not the latest style or showed the marks of time. There was the chance for a big ad. Had he called attention to the fact that it was getting late and the refrigerators would have to be carried over; that if there was to be a discount to be made on them, then was the time. That the cash would buy other goods on which a profit could be made, that the solicitor could write a good ad for him and put it in a good position, on a local page, where several hundred people would see it, that in that number there were certainly enough who would take advantage of his prices and clean out the whole line, he certainly ought to have secured an ad then.

FIVE DIPHTHERIA CASES.

City Health Department is Kept Busy.

Five new cases of diphtheria have been reported to the city health department since last Saturday afternoon and the proper means taken to prevent a spread of the disease.

The cases reported are the two-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Kraczyk, 895 Pulaski street; the five-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Cholewezyński, 1820 West Poland street; the three-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanislaus Jaskowiak, 1020 West Dunham street; the seven-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Szymon Rybicki, 1522 Poland street.

Five cases of diphtheria and one of scarlet fever were released from quarantine this morning.—South Bend Tribune.

The above is a sample of what can be seen in the papers from other towns almost every day, and no one seems to think anything about it. But when one poor girl had a case, from which she recovered in about two days, some of our people were making a great hub bub and found fault with the papers for publishing the facts. If they were only as careful to prevent worse evil.

We have been repeatedly asked if we were going to have a pumpkin contest this year, but we have not been able to answer. Our last year contest was very pleasant and we feel like having another one, only one thing would prevent us, and that is the attention we must give to it, as we are so busy that we fear we can not do it the justice we would wish to. In our next issue we will state positively what we will do.

U. S. Corn Cure for Ladies is a perfect cure for hard or soft corns, Bunions and calouses. Use it once and you will use no other. Only 15c. E. S. Dodd & Son's.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, is narrated by John Oliver of Philadelphia, as follows: "I was in an awful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite, growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Then I was advised to use Electric Bitters; to my great joy, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50c. guaranteed, at W. N. Brodick's drug store.

Likes His Country Paper.

"It's a fashion I know, among city folks to ridicule the country paper," says a reformed traveling man in the Tipton (Ia.) Advertiser, "but I have been a regular subscriber to Unionville Banner for over thirty years. There's one evening in the week that I look forward to with zest. That's Monday night when I light my old pipe, put on my slippers and lie back in the rocker for a musing and a dreaming over my copy of the Banner.

"Yes, there it is. Hasn't changed a font of type, I guess, in forty years. Same old, queer job type. Same old Washington press still grinds it out, I'll bet, as it did when I was a freckled boy and used to hang around the front door of the tumbling rookery where sneaky haired Editor Moure used to be picking up the type or methodically scratching down the fact that 'Miss Smith is visiting with friends in a neighboring burg' or 'John Loftus is preparing to build a new barn. Most of the lumber is already on the ground.'

"I turn to the front page, of course, and here, in my local news, I ascertain that 'Miss Elsie Stuart has quite a class of music pupils here in town and also conducts a class in Pattonsburg.' Why, dear me, bear me! Don't it beat all how things do move! Why, I used to go to high school in Unionville with Elsie Stuart's mother. And many a time I have hung May baskets with her and then hung over the old white paling gate and held her hand until an ominous raising of an upper story window indicating that a parent of Ella's mother desired the daughter's presence within.

"And, let's see. Why, here's something. 'Walter Thomas has been to the city this week, laying in a new stock of goods. Peter Figel is helping out in the Emporium during Walter's absence.' Well, it is surprising how some boys will come up in the world in spite of poverty and distress. Know who that Walter Thomas is? Well, sir, he's the grandson of old Pap Thomas, who used to live away down there by the railroad in that little hut of a place, and had a cabbage patch all around the house. Desolate a looking place as you ever saw.

"Pap was a sort of half witted and had a son who, I should say was three-quarters witted. A peaceable, law abiding well digger he came to be. Married a real bright girl, considerably above the average, and there's their son become the leading merchant of Unionville.

"I shouldn't know the faces that would greet me on Main street, now. Most of them come up since I was a boy. I wonder who has made the truest success the boys who stayed at home or those who were going to conquer the great world outside. There were my schoolmates who married and settled down in Unionville, and their sons and daughters are today young men and women. I was going to do such big things when I struck the city that I couldn't exactly make up my mind to take time to come back and court Susie Williams. I kept putting it off until I should get a little better position, and the first thing I knew Phil Kearns up and married her and I was left. So that's how it is, and, bless me, if I don't wonder if the boys who stayed at home have made such a miserable failure of it after all.

"So I read along to ponder over the memories that those quaint items in the local news call forth. Well, you may poke fun at the country weekly as you will, but I fail to see why the fact that a resident of Unionville has lately bought the place of another resident of Unionville, and intends to move into it, may not be as well worth chronicling in the local paper as the fact that the dog of a famous actress died on the steamer is worth two column pictures and a half column description of it in the city dailies. Blamed if I can see much difference in merit between a poodle dog editorial in a city daily and a 'big cabbage laid on the desk of ye editor, of a country weekly.'—Press and Printer.

FARM FIELD AND GARDEN

ROOT CELLARS.

Common Way of Building Them in Great Potato Growing Regions.

A common and practical way of building root cellars is shown in the illustration, concerning which Country Gentleman says: This method of construction is commonly used in the great potato growing sections of the country: Excavate by means of a scraper and then set up the retaining walls. The upright pieces at the sides should be 2 by 4 studding, placed not more than four feet apart. The floor may be of plank or may be simply of earth. If no planks are used the studding should have the lower end imbedded in the earth to prevent it from slipping.

The siding may be of inch boards and should be nailed to the studding before they are raised into position. The joists B D C should be of 2 by 4, and the supports for the roof should be of the same material. The space above the joists may be filled with straw or leaves or hay, to prevent freezing in the cellar. The plates, which are secured at the top of the studding, may be placed somewhat above the level of the surface of the ground. Part of the earth which is removed in excavating should be banked up against the walls under the roof, so that the slope of the ground will be away from the cellar.

Doors may be placed at intervals in the roof, so that roots can be shoveled from a wagon directly into the cellar. At one end of the pit there should be solid double doors, so that entrance may be had to the cellar in cold weather without permitting the cold to enter. The upright centerpiece A E should not be more than five to six feet high, and the length of the cellar may be made as great as desired. The width may be from eight to ten feet. If this can be constructed on a slight slope of land it will be all the better.

RENEWING THE RANGE.

The Various Merits of the Blue Joint and the Buffalo Grasses.

The value of grama, or buffalo grass, on the range is well known. Concerning two other grasses of great importance in the renewal of the ranges J. W. Blankenship of Montana says:

The blue joint (Agropyron spicatum and related species) is one of these, and its value for hay and for grazing is too well known to need mention. This is found throughout most of the plains region and occurs in low ground mainly, where there is not too much alkali, and forms the best native hay lands of this region. Where it is too wet it is drowned out and replaced by wire grass, rushes and sedges. In the drier situations its place is taken by other dry land species. This makes the best hay on the market, and the only thing that prevents it from becoming a leading grass in cultivation is its relatively thin distribution and consequently small yield. It spreads freely by underground shoots and can stand a good amount of pasturage, but a variety has not yet been found that will afford a growth sufficient to compete with timothy, alfalfa or clover. Its chief economic use is to afford a wild hay on uncultivated ground where irrigation is not possible. It is probable that by experimental cultivation we may find a variety or secure one by selection that will become one of the important hay crops for the arid regions.

There is a grass worthy of mention because its value has been long and well tested in the plains of Nebraska, Kansas and Texas and because its habits approach closely those of the grama or buffalo grass, with which it has been often confused. This is the true buffalo grass, or the "little buffalo grass" (Bubblis dactyloides), as it is sometimes called to distinguish it from the grama. This is now spreading into the state from the southeast. It is smaller and even closer set than the grama grass, and its fruiting stalks are not half as high. It spreads in the same way, by runners lying close to the ground and rooting at the joints, but these runners are much longer than in the grama, and consequently its spread should be much faster.

These three grasses seem to offer a solution for the exhausted ranges of the state, for the last two at least cannot be killed by ordinary pasturage and furnish far more and better forage than the common range grasses.

Typhoid Fever in Cattle.

Typhoid fever is affecting horses and cattle in Dane county, Wis., to an alarming extent. Within a year past 100 horses have been treated for it, twenty dying, and nearly as many cattle. It is also called swamp fever, in belief that horses become affected by eating grass and hay grown in low lying regions.—Country Gentleman.

Sheep at the Big Show.

Sheep have fifteen classes and goats three, with a total class allotment of $42,800, at the Louisiana Purchase exposition. The Merino types are placed in three classes, being separated into the wrinkly and delaine and an intermediate class.

R. C. Addis, with his wife and three children, came here last spring from California and joined the flying Rollers, giving their money some $900 to $1,000 into the hands of Benjamin and Mary, as the custom is, leaving them entirely dependent. They became tired of the sect, principally because their children must be taken from them, as the little ones are kept in a separate house, and managed secretly to send a letter to relatives in California, asking help. These friends had tried to reach them by letter or telegram ever since their arrival here, but could not succeed, as all communications, sent or received, must pass through the hands of Benjamin and Mary and they had withheld them. Mrs. Addis' brother arrived here yesterday from California with a lawyer and a big revolver and finally succeeded in getting the family away, though the Rollers protested at first that there was no person of that name among them.

WEST BERTRAND.

Misses Grace Moyer and Bernice Ferguson gave a little party at the home of the latter, to their school friends Saturday afternoon.

As the family and help were eating supper at Mrs. Hannah Redding's one evening last week, the kitchen parted from the main building and fell into the cellar. The workmen had dug to near the prop in excavating the cellar. No one was hurt and only the standard of one lamp was broken.

Some people think that all the good people are in their church, others that they are all in their lodge, but we of West Bertrand know that the best people are our neighbors. This year help has been so scarce and the neighbors are ever ready to respond when called upon to help get in the crops. What better blessing could we expect than a good neighborhood.

Harry Salisbury who, with his family, has been staying at his father's this summer, moved to Buchanan Monday.

Try for Health

222 South Peoria St., CHICAGO, ILL., Oct. 7, 1902.

Eight months ago I was so ill that I was compelled to lie or sit down nearly all the time. My stomach was so weak and upset that I could keep nothing on it and I vomited frequently. I could not urinate without great pain and I coughed so much that my throat and lungs were raw and sore. The doctors pronounced it Bright's disease and others said it was consumption. It mattered little to me what they called it and I had no desire to live. A sister visited me from St. Louis and asked me if I had ever tried Wine of Cardui. I told her I had not and she bought a bottle. I believe that it saved my life. I believe many women could save much suffering if they but knew of its value.

Surgar Dumber

Don't you want freedom from pain? Take Wine of Cardui and make one supreme effort to be well. You do not need to be a weak, helpless sufferer. You can have a woman's health and do a woman's work in life. Why not secure a bottle of Wine of Cardui from your druggist today?

Apple Eaters.

Right things may become wrong according to the circumstances.

Now eating an apple is not wrong, but to eat an apple in church or school is wrong. And because of this it became necessary for one of our teachers to give a new, but not the best, name to some of the pupils, whose names it is thought best not to publish.

SLUMBER DISTURBER

Could Well Be Applied to the Fire Alarm Whistle.

Just enjoying a first nap when a most unearthly screech awoke me from my peaceful sleep," was what a number of our citizens said this morning, while a few, some from legitimate, causes said, "I had not got in to bed yet," or, "I had just gotten in."

The noise proved to be the fire alarm whistle and soon the fire ladies, in all stages of dress or undress uniforms, were hustling toward the brick yard, where the fire seemed to be. As they neared the scene of the conflagration they were informed that it was only a shed and that Blodgett Bros. had a department of their own that was successfully coping with the flames, so they retraced their steps and again wended their way homeward to their beds.

PLOWING SOD.

Types of Work in Various Regions and on Different Soils.

The plows of our forefathers cut a narrow furrow, and even now in England and Scotland more plowing is done in which a nine or ten inch furrow is turned than wider. Even in this country in an early day the narrow furrow plow was in common use. However, as men settled on the broad prairies it was found necessary to use implements that would accomplish more in a day than the narrow plow; hence the introduction of plows cutting fourteen or sixteen inches.

Fig. 1 shows the general appearance of plowing when turned in furrows six inches deep and nine inches wide.

This indeed is truly setting furrows on edge. This style of plowing is adapted to a comparatively small region of the central west, it being appropriate only on clay soils that are inclined to run together.

Fig. 2 represents about a fourteen inch furrow four inches deep, this being turned with a plow of this width, and in this case the entire furrow slice is cut off by the share, there being no cut and cover whatever about it.

In this case any trash that may appear on the surface is well covered, while on the other hand a little comb, represented by the upper edge of the furrows, greatly facilitates the preparation of an ideal seed bed. The disk run crosswise on such plowing will not only pulverize four or five inches of the surface, but will press the furrows down so that there will be practically no space left underneath.

Another type of plowing is represented in Fig. 3. Land that contains any considerable proportion of clay, if turned completely over in this fashion in the fall, is liable to bake considerably, so that more work is required in the preparation of a seed bed in the spring than is the case where furrows are laid at an angle.—Iowa Homestead.

Feeding Value of Apple Pomace.

It has often been claimed that apple pomace has no feeding value. The practice of almost all the cider mills in throwing away the pomace shows that this belief in its worthlessness is widespread.

The Vermont experiment station has fed apple pomace silage during three different years with entire satisfaction. As the result of one season's experiment it has stated:

About six tons of pomace was put into a small silo and a month later was found in a state of perfect preservation, and remained so. The cows like it exceedingly. When there is any in their mangers they take it in preference to any other fodder and eat all before beginning on hay or corn fodder. There was no decrease in the milk flow, as has often been claimed to be the result of feeding apples or pomace. We fed ten pounds a day in two feedings. Feeding in this way, a cow would eat a ton during the winter season. It would be a good investment for any dairyman to put up as many tons of apple pomace as he has cows.

Canada Thistle in New Sections.

Near here, on a farm owned by a city man, we have an example of how weed pests get a foothold in new sections. It is overrun with Canada thistle, which is gradually spreading to the adjoining farms. As far as known, they are the only weeds of this variety within many miles around, and were doubtless brought in by seed oats. Some roots were transplanted by washing rains to a meadow pasture on my farm, and from a small beginning spread from year to year until it became necessary to take measures to subdue it. I have done nothing to it excepting to mow close to the ground while it is in bloom. In two or three years this so enfeebled its vitality that it didn't amount to much, but a few more years of close cutting were required to completely destroy it. It is a comparatively slow spreader, as it depends upon underground root stocks to carry it along. It is a light seeder, and in that respect unlike the Russian thistle, which is a prolific seeder and does not spread by its roots.—New Jersey Cor. American Agriculturist.

Its Redeeming Trait.

"Manner than purslane" runs the familiar saying. But even purslane finds its apologist. A Rural New Yorker correspondent claims it is "the richest plant for greens that grows out of the ground. Spinach cannot be compared with it, and young beets should not be mentioned in the same day."

CORN FED. POULTRY.

Do Not Fear the Plump, Comfortable Looking Hen in the Fall.

The early development of the pullets—getting them started to laying, etc.—and the incoming to laying again of the early molted hens depend very largely on the system of feeding during the early fall months, writes a Tennessee poultry man to the Southern Cultivator.

"In the first place it does not pay to be too economical. The hens must have more than enough to merely sustain life and pull through the shedding process. They must have all they will eat and can digest. Indeed, at no time in the year is liberal feeding more imperative than in the fall. It is necessary to enable the fowls to molt out healthy and vigorous and to start that peculiar process of storing up miniature eggs to develop as soon as the strain of retooling for the winter is past. And in accomplishing this purpose nothing is more helpful than plenty of corn.

The corn fed hen is vigorous, she takes on fat, and it requires oil to make feathers, and for this reason a liberal supply of corn at this time accomplishes a double purpose—it grows feathers and flesh as well as fat and lays the basis for a fine clutch of eggs. Do not fear the overfatted hen in the fall, but beware of the underfed, scrawny thing that hasn't enough oil in her body to sustain the new feathers, and so goes only half clothed until the cold weather comes on, leaving it in no condition to lay until the next spring.

It is the same way with the pullets. They require an abundance of food to keep up the growth of feathers, to give them full, plump bodies and to start the egg formation process. The plump, healthy pullet soon takes to the nest in the fall, while the half starved, thin creature lives through the winter in a debilitated condition, to lay only after the warmth of the springtime shall have rekindled the spark of vitality and brought into action those natural attributes that might have been developed the previous fall by proper feeding and care.

Right now is the time for us to put the hens and the pullets into condition for a successful late fall and winter campaign in eggs, and if we neglect to do so now we need not expect eggs where there is neither vitality nor sufficient development to produce them. It may be added that liberal feeding at this season is economical, too, for there are in every flock a few hens that will continue to lay during the molting period when fed right—hens that would not lay under a light feeding plan—and the eggs so gathered will offset the additional cost of food, while we will at the same time put the whole flock in prime condition.

These thoughts are drawn from the experience of a long series of years—years that have demonstrated the wisdom of priming the hens and pullets in the early fall for the winter laying.

TWO KINDS.

Farming for a Living Only or as a Business Proposition.

There are two classes of farmers—one which farms because the farmers do not know how to do anything else and because it is the easiest way to make a living and get along somehow for the time being; the others farm not so much for a living as because it is their chosen business. They do not think of getting along somehow, but of getting ahead, accumulating, improving the farm, increasing its fertility, all with the object of making it a better manufacturing plant and a better business proposition.

The man who farms as a business adopts business methods as far as they are applicable to farm operations, keeps books, knows his income and outgo, takes an inventory of stock, has system in all his methods and knows approximately what every crop each year has cost him in cash or its equivalent in labor. We have small hopes of a man who is simply farming as a means of getting through the world somehow. Our past experience is that he does not take hold of the problems that are presented to him from week to week in the farmer's papers. The probability is that he does not take a farmer's paper at all and would not read it if he did. He wants some paper that is cheap and will not compel him to think too much and won't get after him. It is the man who farms as a business, farming for dear life, farming to make a success of it and to make a success of himself and family, that is the kind of farmer we are looking for. We can get his attention.

These men may not believe all we say; they differ from us in a good many things, and we think none the less of them for that, but we can do them some good. We have not much hope of doing the other fellows very much good, even if we could reach them. Our only hope is in reaching their boys.—Wallace's Farmer.

What Others Say.

We need fully developed farmers, that we may surround ourselves with fully developed farms. There is more in the man than there is in the land.

The farm is a good place on which to be born, on which to live through one's prime work, on which to die.

The best preventive of bad luck is good management on a farm or elsewhere.

Mighty little moss you will find between the square and active shoulders of the modern farmer.

The time is rapidly approaching when a young man will be ashamed to attempt farming without an agricultural education.

Many of us are too narrow; we have not broadened out as we should have done. We are the creatures of habit rather than of thought.

Property Found on Criminals.

"The question as to what final disposition is made of money and jewelry found in the possession of criminals was frequently asked me when I was on the force two years ago," said an ex-captain of the New York police force. "As a rule, everything found upon an arrested criminal which obviously is not his lawful property is held in trust, as it were, by the police for possible claimants. If no claimants turn up the property is returned to the criminal on being released from his term of imprisonment, provided the commissioner of police is perfectly satisfied that the property actually does belong to him.

"If the commissioner has reasons to think otherwise, however, the articles, often valuable, are held indefinitely or until it is certain that they will never be claimed by their rightful owners, when the stuff is finally disposed of and the proceeds handed over to benefit one or another of the various police funds.

"There are certain things, however, which the police never return to those on whom they have been found, such as burglarizing tools, firearms, gambling devices, begging letters—anything, in fact, that might be used by criminals again in their nefarious occupations."

Missed a Train That Was a Day Late.

When the Swift City division of the Illinois Central was built it was known as the Indiana and Illinois Southern. It was a narrow gauge road, the road-bed was bad, the engines and cars were built on a miniature scale, and, while there was a schedule, had a train been on time the fact would have been regarded as a miracle. The road was known as the "Try-Weakly."

On one occasion Josiah McConnell desired to go to Swift City from Sullivan, but missed the train by a minute or two. The clock at the station showed that the train had left Sullivan five minutes ahead of time, and McConnell sued the railroad company for $5,000 damages. On a trial of the case it was proved beyond a doubt that the train McConnell missed should have gone the day before and was really twenty-three hours and fifty-five minutes late.—Indianapolis News.

Covering Books.

To cover paper bound books take two pieces of cardboard a tiny bit larger than book. Paste fly leaves at front and back to cardboard, which of course is outside. Then take a strip of strong cotton cloth; paste it down back of book; have it wide, so it will cover about one inch of each piece of cardboard, thereby joining the two pieces together. Now put a cover of brown paper over all, pasting securely, and your decorated cover goes over this.

The books may be covered with decorated silk, pique or duck if you paint or embroider, but the simplest way is to cover with tissue paper (not crepe). Paste a pretty card on the front and after cutting title and author's name from old cover arrange them prettily on the new one.

Judges' Wigs.

The wig is only worn by English barristers to give them a stern, judicial appearance, and no one can say that it fails in this respect. The custom was originated by a French judge in the seventeenth century, when, happening to don a marquis' wig one day, he found it gave him such a stern and dignified appearance that he decided to get one for himself and wear it at all times in court. This he did, and the result was so satisfactory from a legal point of view that not only judges, but barristers also, took up the custom throughout Europe.

Varnished Books.

"We have to varnish all our books in my country," said a Chinese. "Otherwise they would soon be eaten into a gray powder by a little black insect, like a beetle, that takes to books as a cat takes to ashes. Everybody in China when he receives a consignment of books from Europe or America mixes a little pot of varnish at once and proceeds to go at his books with it. This fluid is a perfect protection. It is made of creosote, Canada balsam, resin, spirit of wine and mastic."

Hard to Tell.

"What is that you're baking there, my dear?" inquired young Mr. Newlived. "Bread or some cake?" "I don't know. I have not finished yet," replied the young bride.—Philadelphia Press.

Didn't House Them Properly.

Owosso, Mich., Oct. 9. — Charles Derham, a sugar beet farmer in Caledonia township, was charged with having herded fifty laborers in a sheep pen. The board of health has ordered him to provide tents.
