WILL HAVE A BIG CROP.

County Treasurer McCracken Has Corner in Huckleberries.

County Treasurer McCracken, besides being a wise politician, is the huckleberry magnet of Berrien county. His great marsh near Buchanan has the largest field of huckleberries in southwestern Michigan. Every year his crop amounts to thousands of cases but this year the prospects are bright for the greatest yield within ten years.

Huckleberries have become a luxury in this part of the country and they always find a ready market at a good price. Mr. McCracken employs many pickers in season to handle the crop.

He has just returned from his marsh farm and reports the crop in excellent condition.—Benton Harbor News-Palladium.

Wine Lo-Ti.

Made of beef, iron, wine, nerve, cascara and Aromatics, is the most perfect food tonic in existence. It agrees with all other medicines and never fails to give permanent strength and vigor. Pleasant to take, it increases the weight and improves the appetite. Large bottles, 50c at Dr. E. S. Dodd & Son's.

Bring your printing to the Record office.

CHILDREN'S DAY

Observed Sunday Evening at the Advent Christian Church.

Sunday evening the Advent church was filled to overflowing with those desirous of witnessing the exercises of the Sunday School.

The church was very prettily decorated with flowers and ferns. The exercises were very good, each taking their parts well. The duet by the Misses Bessie and Mattie Royer, however is deserving of special mention as are also the recitations by Miss Lena Emmons and Miss Gertrude Leonard. Newell Royer preached a sermon on the cheerful giver that loosened up many a purse string and brought in a big collection.

At the conclusion of the exercises each of the smaller pupils was given a plant to take home with them.

Sunday's Excursions.

The excursions Sunday were well patronized by Buchanan people.

The Pere Marquette for St. Joseph, South Haven and Grand Rapids left at 7 o'clock in the morning. Among those who patronized this road were the following:

To St. Joseph, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Graffort, Miss Bessie Graffort, W. W. Waterman and son Charlie, Oscar Brown and son Nate.

To South Haven, Mrs. Byron Brant and Mrs. Nettie Lister.

To Grand Rapids, Mr. and Mrs. William Roantree, Mrs. Harry Paul, Misses Georgia Wilcox, Lyle and Vera Carter, Vera Jennings, Chas. F. Pears and Frank Sunday.

The Michigan Central for Michigan City and Chicago went through here at 8:33 a. m. and took the following people out of town.

For Michigan City, Wallace Riley, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Babcock, Mr. and Mrs. Zed Jarvis, Geo. Smith, R. R. Rouse, Clyde Curtis, Bryan Treat, Harry Curtis, Jay Shook and Charles Bugby.

For Chicago, Mrs. C. C. Wilson and daughter Vivian, Mrs. Tamerson Merrill, Miss Ella Hahn, Mrs. Samuel Swenson, Mrs. Milton Fuller and daughter Irene, Mrs. Bugby, Mrs. John Broceus and daughters Ada and Lulu, Miss Dora Hershenow and brother Willie, W. H. Kellier, O. F. Richmond and son Arthur, Al Sherwood, J. C. Rough, Dr. John Butler, Jesse Spennetta, Ned Fuller, Mrs. Ellis Clark, Arlin Clark, Miss Alta McDonald, John Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Burton Weaver, Ed Broceus Miss Linnie Broceus.

There were thirty tickets sold for Chicago and twenty-two to Michigan City.

Washington Letter.

The White House is the center of much natural and innocent hilarity over the consummation of presidential hopes at Chicago. The rather insignificant, not to say contemptible, addition where the President and his advisers draw together around a long mahogany table is haunted by many visitors this week, and a good many of the more prominent are invited to lunch or more convivial dinner in the adjoining mansion.

Mr. Cortelyou at his superior's command has taken up the burden of the campaign, but it is rendered very heavy by the necessity of his simultaneously pushing investigations into the causes of the East River horror the responsibility for which seems to lie at his door. Steamboat inspectors were formerly under the Treasury Department, but when the Department of Commerce and Labor was organized, it assumed control of their functions. That several inspectors must bear the fearful responsibility of that disaster, goes without saying, but the question remains, Will all the guilty be punished? Or will one or two inferior officers be called upon to suffer as scapegoats to placate an indignant public? When the Chief Inspector whose duty it was to certify the efficiency of this very steamboat is given his freedom on $500 bail, there is abundant reason for apprehension. When Mr. Cortelyou in a public letter says "I will stand by our officers until they are shown to be capable," would it not be well for him to add "I will stand by the people until those officials are sternly dealt with who are responsible for this slaughter of the innocents."

Again, on the nomination of the President arises through all the departments here a discussion of a six year term and no re-election. This policy has been adopted in Mexico for the very purpose of depriving the President of the temptation to intrigue for a second term by the distribution of official favors and the debasement of his high office. I met a Senator yesterday who said on this point: "If the President could be elected for six years without the possibility of re-election, and then if Congress should be assembled in December a month after its election, instead of waiting a year, it would seem to be the ideal condition. The election of Congress a year before it is called upon to assemble resulted of course from the old stage-coach times when it took weeks and sometimes months to get to the capital from remote states, but those times are long since past and it is strange that so enterprising and progressive a people as we are should have stepped in the lazy old way so long. As the National Business League of San Francisco points out, much of every President's time is now employed planning for re-election, instead of exercising all his powers to make the best possible record for himself. This not only debases politics, but it interferes with business for weeks and months together.

The Heathen Chinese no doubt resorts to tricks to evade our exclusion law, but he will have to get up early in the morning if he gets much ahead of our Treasury Department. A man born in Oregon of Chinese parents went to China last year, having a certain number of months in which to return. He left Hong Kong in ample time to reach home and got in sight of the Golden Gate with a fortnight to spare. Here the vessel was detained in quarantine for a month, and when he tried to go ashore he was blandly informed that his time had expired and he could never set foot on this continent again: Washington was appealed to and approved of the exclusion. The man is now in jail in San Francisco, waiting for official exile. Bret Harte ought to write one more poem.

Public Printer Palmer today signed the contract for forty-six Mergenthaler machines for the government printing office. They will be of the double magazine kind, permitting the operator to set two different faces of type without leaving his chair. There will also be thirty two duplex attachments making practically six times the number of machines and fonts. Not only the ordinary Roman type, but small caps, italic and various faces of black letter can be used by touching a lever.

General William Birney, son of that Birney who made the famous freesoil campaign for President in 1844, said to your correspondent yesterday, "this visit of the Filipinos doesn't mean anything, not even fundamental friendship. Suppose Japan victorious over Russia, in possession of Port Arthur and Korea, and with naval supremacy in the eastern seas, and a fleet treble that of United States in the Orient. She has a very large merchant marine, and under pressure of a heavy war tax seeks all the business she can get on the seas. She wants the coasting trade of the Philippines and could do it more cheaply than any other nation. But our congress has just enacted a law which confines that trade, after July 1, 1906, exclusively to American vessels as a permanent monopoly. Suppose Japan should object and demand 'the open door.' If we persisted in refusing, what would happen? Could we defend the Philippines against Japan, Manila is not so strong as Port Arthur and Subig Bay is not Vladivostok. We can't shorten our line of supply. Could we send 500,000 men to fight the Japs? Could we send a fleet strong enough to beat her battleships, cruisers and torpedo boats? Could we coal it? In that crisis of our affairs, would the Filipinos stick to us and fight for us or would they go over to their fellow Malays and Japs? If the Japs triumph over Russia, they will annex the Philippines, peaceably or forcibly.

This will never do. Some one who is not employed by the department of agriculture has found a new remedy for mosquito pest. It is a Chinese plant called phu-lo. It grows best in the shade and has black seeds. It needs careful cultivation. After it has killed all the mosquitoes it may be fed to cattle and will make tender and cheap beef. This wonderful plant will work a revolution in professor L. O. Howard's coal-oil business and will knock alfalfa out of sight.

MASONS CELEBRATE

Their Fifty-first Anniversary Last Night.

The Buchanan lodge No. 68, F. and A. M. celebrated their fifty years existence at their lodge room last night.

Work in the third degree was conferred. Herman Hattenback being the lucky individual.

After the meeting at the lodge room was over they betook themselves to Hotel Lee, where a three course banquet was spread for them. W. M. B. R. Desenberg acting as toastmaster.

Mr. N. Hamilton was the only charter member of the lodge that was present. Speeches were made by a number, the principal one being given by Attorney A. A. Worthington.

A number of visitors were present from other towns.

JUDEMENT HOLDS GOOD.

Supreme Court Affirms Decision of Lower Court.

A case which has excited more interest than any other case ever tried in Berrien courts has been decided and the supreme court has affirmed the judgement in the case of A. L. Pearl vs. the township of Benton.

The case commenced in 1898, has been tried three times in the circuit court and three times in the supreme court, and this decision is a final one.

The suit was for personal injuries which Mr. Pearl received by falling through a bridge belonging to Benton township.

The last verdict was for $5,000 and the judgement affirmed for this amount.

There has been more legal controversies over this case than any other case in these courts, and the decision is a big victory for Gore & Harvey and James O'Hara, who appeared for the plaintiff. G. M. Valentine and M. L. Howell, of Cassopolis, appeared for the defendant.

FOURTH OF JULY

Street Improvements.

A new sidewalk is being built over the creek east of Burch's feed barn. Iron beams are being put under the planking and it will be there to stay. The sidewalk at the engine house bridge will be fixed the same way.

A Costly Mistake.

Blunders are sometimes very expensive. Occasionally life itself is the price of a mistake, but you'll never be wrong if you take Dr. King's New Life Pills for Dyspepsia, Dizziness, Headache, Liver or Bowel troubles. They are gentle yet thorough. 25c. at W. N. Brodrick's Drug Store.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. BENJAMIN DIMENT

Eliza Carlyle, daughter of George and Anna Gray, was born in Poman, Scotland, on Christmas day in 1839. She came to the United States in 1853, and joined her brother and sister in Niles, Michigan. In 1855 she was married to Benjamin Diment with whom she lived ten years in the vicinity of Watertown, Wisconsin, they returned to Michigan in 1865, soon after which they bought the farm which has been their home, since 1866.

To them were born four children, William, John, Mrs. Anna Wolkins and Mrs. Frank Beck.

In her girlhood days she united with the Presbyterian church and she led a consistent christian life to the end. She died June 24, 1904, being 74 years, 5 months, and 29 days old.

A large concourse of people attended the funeral services at the house on June 26, Elder William M. Roe assisted by Rev. John C. Beach, officiating. The body was laid to rest in Oak Ridge cemetery to await the resurrection morn.

Learn How to Swim.

Scores of persons drowned from the Slocum died within a few feet of shore. Dozens died in the water for lack of courage to stand upon their feet and wade out to safety. Strange that man of all animals is most helpless in the water, and strange that as an adult he exhibits less capacity for self-preservation in it than does the infant. Falling into the water and strangling slightly, the frightened adult throws his arms into the air and sinks out of sight. Plunge a year old babe in the water and he will right himself and strike out dog fashion with both hands, swimming.

Immersed in water, the body of the average man weighs one pound. If he keeps his mouth closed and his breath shut off, he will float, head up, to the line of his eyes. Just how little additional effort there should be to keep his nose out of water is apparent. In thousands of emergencies a person needs only to keep afloat for a few minutes in order to be rescued.

But fright and shock and chill rob man of this power unless he be trained to the buoyancy of water. In the opening of the bathing season just at hand, no vacation resolve should be more closely adhered to and carried out than the resolve of a person to learn to swim. It may mean life to himself because of the knowledge; it may be life to others. In any degree of efficiency at swimming, there is pleasure and recreation, while in an emergency, it is more than an art. It is a mistake for any man not to know how to swim.—Chicago Tribune.

Elmer Hawblitzell, Lakeville, says "Wine Lo-ti" (Coonley's beef, iron and wine with nerving) brought my wife out and done her more good than any other medicine we gave her. Give me two more bottles for my father." Price 50c a bottle at Dr. E. S. Dodd & Son's.

For Love of Country

By CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY,
Author of "The Grip of Honor," "The Southerners," "Sir Henry Morgan, Buccaneer," "A Doctor of Philosophy," Etc.

Copyright, 1898, by Charles Scribner's Sons

"He is not dead, Katharine," he whispered. "I do not even think he will die; he will be all right in an hour. If we don't go soon, Katharine, Philip and Bentley will return and be taken also," he continued rapidly. "Come, Katharine," he said more loudly, rising. "Dearest child, we must go—you must bear this, my daughter; it is for our country we suffer." But the talismanic word apparently had lost its charm for her.

"What's all this?" said Johnson roughly. She must go. She only moaned and pressed her lover's hands against her heart.

"And go now! Do you hear? Come, mistress," laying his hand roughly upon her shoulder.

"Have a care, sir," said Desborough warningly.

"Keep to yourself, my dear sir; no harm is done. But we must go, and if she won't go willingly she will have to be carried, that's all. Do you hear me? Come on!"

"What's all this?"

"Come, Katharine," said the colonel entreatingly.

"Oh, father, father, I cannot leave him! I love him!"

"I know you do, dear, and worthy he is of your love too. Please God, you shall see him once again! But now we must go. Will you not come with me?"

"I cannot, I cannot!" she repeated.

"But you must, Kate," said the colonel, lifting her up, in deadly anxiety to get away before his son returned. "You are a prisoner."

"I can't, father; indeed I can't!" she cried again.

She struggled a moment, then half fainted in his arms.

"Who else is here?" said Johnson.

"Only the slaves," replied the colonel.

"Well, we don't want them. Move on, then! Your daughter can take her maid with her if she wishes," he said, with surly courtesy. "Is this the wench? Well, get your mistress a cloak and be quick about it!"

Assisted by Chloe, the maid, and Lord Desborough, the colonel half carried, half led, his daughter out of the room.

"Seymour, Seymour!" she cried despairingly at the door, but he lay still where he had fallen, seeing and hearing nothing.

CHAPTER VI.

A FEW miles up the river from Colonel Wilton's plantation, upon a high bluff, from which, as at that point the river made a wide bend, one could see up and down for a long distance in either direction, was the beautiful home of the Talbots, known as Fairview Hall.

On the evening of the raid at the Wilton place Madam Talbot and her son were having a very important conversation. Madam Talbot was a widow who had remained unwedded again from choice. Rumor had it that many gentlemen cavaliers of the neighborhood had been anxious to take to their own hearthstones the person of the fair young widow, so early bereft, and incidentally were willing to assume the responsibility of the management of the magnificent estate which had been left to her by her most considerate husband.

Among the many suitors gossip held that Colonel Wilton was the chief, and it was thought at one time that his chances of success were of the best, but so far at least nothing had come of all the agitation, and Madam Talbot lived her life alone, managing her plantation, the object of the friendly admiration of all the old bachelors and widowers of the neighborhood. She had devoted herself to the successful development of her property with all the energy and capacity of a nature eminently calculated for success and was now one of the richest women in the colony. One son only had blessed her union with Henry Talbot, and Hilary Talbot was a young man just turned twenty-five years of age and the idol of her soul. Too self contained and too proud to display the depth of her feelings except in rare instances, and too sensible to allow them to interfere in the training of the child, she had spared neither her heart nor her purse in his education, with such happy results that he was regarded by all who knew him as one of the finest specimens of young Virginia that it were possible to meet. Of medium height, active, handsome, dark eyed, dark haired, fiery and impetuous in temperament, generous and frank in disposition, he was a model among men. Trained from his boyhood in every manly sport and art and educated in the best institutions of learning in the colonies, his natural grace per-fectured by a tour of two years in England and abroad, from which he had only a year or so since returned, he perfectly represented all that was best in the young manhood of Virginia. For many years there had been hopes in the minds of Colonel Wilton and Madam Talbot that the affection between the two young people, who had played together from childhood with all the frankness and simplicity permitted by country life, would develop into something nearer and dearer and that by their marriage at the proper time the two great estates might be united.

The two children, early informed of this desire, had grown up under the influence of the idea. As they reached years of discretion they had taken it for granted, considering the arrangement as a fact accomplished, by tacit understanding and habit rather than by formal promise. Personally attached to each other—nay, even fondly affectionate—the indefinite tie seemed sufficiently substantial to bring about the desired result. Katharine had, especially during Talbot's absence in Europe, resisted all the importunities and rejected all the proposals made to her, and on this account refused all the hearts laid at her feet. Since Talbot's return, however, and especially since he refused, or hesitated, rather, to cast his lot in with her own people, his neighbors and friends, in the Revolution, the affair had on her part at least assumed a new phase. Still there had been nothing said or done to prevent this consummation so devoutly to be wished until the advent of Seymour. Then, too, Talbot, calm and confident in the situation, had not noticed Seymour's infatuation and was entirely ignorant that the coveted prize had slipped from his grasp. The insight of the confident lover was not so keen as that of the watchful father.

It was believed by the principal men of Virginia that Talbot's sympathies were with the revolted colonies, but the influence of his mother, to whom he had been accustomed to defer, had hitherto proved sufficient to prevent him from openly declaring himself. His visit to England and the delightful reception he had met with there had weakened somewhat the ties which bound him to his native country, and he found himself in a state of indecision as humiliating as it was painful. Lord Dummore and Colonel Wilton had each made great efforts to enlist his support on account of his wealth and position and high personal qualities. It was hinted by one that the ancient barony of the Talbots would be revived by the king, and the gratitude of a free and grateful country, with the consciousness of having materially aided in acquiring that independence which should be the birthright of every Englishman, was eloquently portrayed by the other. When to the last plea was added the personal preference of Katharine Wilton the balance was overcome, and the hopes of the mother were doomed to disappointment.

Coonley's Cough Balsam, made of wild cherry, horehound, spikenard and honey, is a perfect remedy for coughs and colds, particularly recommended for children. Pleasant to take and helps at once. 25c and 50c at Dr. E. S. Dodd & Son's.

A well dressed man of good appearance applied at the barn of George Fletcher at Berrien Springs last Friday to hire a horse and buggy and was given a fine rig. The man did not return and Saturday Mr. Fletcher began to think that something was wrong, and notified Sheriff Collins, but no trace of the man could be found. The time elapsed had given the robber ample chance to make good his escape, but the sheriff is working on the case and it may be possible to bring the stranger to justice even at this late date.

It is suggested that a company be formed to engage in the salt business here. The lease the Umholtz Oil Co holds, could, it is said, be bought for a small sum, and vats, about 10x20 feet long and four feet high, might be installed at the wells, for the purpose of filling them up with salt water and securing the salt through the sun evaporation process. The water in the Umholtz wells contains over one-fourth salt, and this commodity sells for 73 cents per barrel. The sun evaporation process is working in good shape in Detroit, and it would, undoubtedly, work as well here.—Niles Star.

Republican State Convention.

To the Republican Electors of the State of Michigan: The State Convention of the Republicans of Michigan is hereby called to meet at the Light Guard Armory in the city of Detroit, Thursday, June 30, 1904, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon, for the purpose of nominating candidates for State offices, (not including however, candidates for Justice of the Supreme Court), and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before the Convention.

In accordance with the resolutions of 1876 and 1900, every county will be entitled to one delegate for each five hundred of the total vote cast therein for Governor at the last election in a Presidential year (November, 1900) and one additional delegate for every fraction amounting to three hundred, each organized county being entitled to at least two delegates.

Under the resolutions of 1868, no delegate will be entitled to a seat in the Convention who does not reside in the county he proposes to represent. The delegates from the several counties in each Congressional District are requested to meet in district caucus at 9:30 o'clock a. m., on the day of the State Convention, and select officers as follows, to be presented to the State Convention for confirmation:

- 1.—One Vice-President;
- 2.—One Assistant Secretary;
- 3.—One member of the committee on "Credentials;"
- 4.—One member of the committee on "Permanent Organization and Order of Business;"
- 5.—One member of the committee on "Resolutions."

In compliance with the resolutions adopted in Detroit, June 28, 1890, the secretary of each county convention is urged to forward to the Secretary of the State Central Committee at Clare by the earliest mail after the delegates to the State Convention are chosen, a certified list of delegates to the State Convention from his county and the chairman of each county delegation is requested to deliver the credentials of his delegation to the members of the Committee on Credentials chosen at his district caucus.

By order of the Republican State Central Committee.

GERRIT J. DIEKEMA, Chairman.
DENNIS E. ALWARD, Secretary.

A captain of a tug hailing from Chicago reports that he has discovered a sunken wreck near the Wisconsin shore between Chicago and Milwaukee and which he supposes is the famous "Chicora," lost during the winter about ten years ago. The hold of the vessel is at a depth of forty-eight feet and one spar projects above the water. Sailors are of the opinion that the "Chicora" was sunk on the eastern shore but it is possible that the lake currents carried it across.

John Talbert one of the oldest freight conductors in point of service on the Michigan Central, was killed at Battle Creek about 10 o'clock Saturday morning. He was in the yards with a work train and having a few minutes' leisure time, he lay down under a box car on a sidetrack. Shortly after, an engine backed down the track and struck the box car under which Talbert was lying, and he was cut in two. His home is in Jackson, where he leaves a wife but no children.

Scarcely a day passes but someone with a grievance requests us to rip somebody up the back. We don't rip. Who ever heard of anyone tearing their shirt and making enemies just to help an editor out of trouble or defend him from an attack of some kind? Nobody. If you are badly used, have the manhood to fight your own battles. Editors have learned by experience that individuals whose axes they grind often use those axes to chop the stuffing out of the editor. If you have anything to say to a man through the medium of the press, take it to the editor, sign your name, pay for the space, the same as the merchant does, and let her go Gal'agher; but don't ask the editor to father your grievance.—Frankfort Patriot.

Thrilling Experience.

Galesburg, Mich. June 25.—The family of Judson Newberry, of Charleston township, including himself, passed an anxious half hour this morning.

Mr. Newberry who had been complaining for several days was asleep in the hammock, back of the house, when a little daughter going out to the orchard, soon ran screaming to the house and told her mother that her "pa's head was all swelled up and as black as everything."

Mrs. Newberry at once went to her husband, to discover that a large swarm of bees in their flight through the orchard had chosen her husband's head as the place on which to alight, and that from his eyebrows upwards to a distance of a foot or more and having a diameter equal to the height, was a compact mass of bees.

Mr. Newberry whose rest had been much broken during his sickness, continued to sleep on and it was not until his wife carefully awakened him that he became aware of his singular situation. Remaining perfectly quiet Mr. Newberry directed that the hired man be called, and under his further direction, a barrel was placed above his head and the bees "hived" with out further inconvenience.

Fred S. Kemf, the wonderful boy genius of Capac, who started out three years ago to build a miniature city, is still at work on the marvelous imitation of a real live city, on a working scale of one-eighth of an inch to the foot. When the machinery was recently set in motion, miners and mules were operating a coal mine, a dredge was digging mud out of the river bottom, automobiles and street cars dodged each other around street corners. "Flyers" came puffing through tunnels, stopped at stations, dropped off a couple of passenger coaches, took the baggage car on to a siding, uncoupled, engine went on to a turn-table, backed in on a switch, recoupled to the baggage car; in fact, made up a train on two different switches. It was a real railroad episode in every way with the exception of the essential "mileage."

INSULTS FRANCE AND GERMANY

Palace Guard at Forte au Prince Stones the French and German Ministers and Their Ladies.

Washington, June 24.—The report of an attack on the French and German ministers in Hayti comes to the state department in the shape of the following cablegram from Minister Powell at Port au Prince, dated June 22:

"French and German ministers with their ladies, while passing the palace in their carriages, were stoned by the palace guard. French minister slightly injured. Apology demanded, but none given. Both have cabled their governments."

The most serious feature of the affair is that the attack was made not by an irresponsible mob but by the palace guard, which directly connects the Haytian government with the occurrence. It is understood to be the outgrowth of the Haytian bank trouble, which involved the incarceration by the Haytian government of certain foreign officers of the bank on a charge of misapplication of funds and subsequent intervention by the French and German governments in behalf of their citizens.

DEAD WILL NUMBER 1,000

Latest Estimate of the Slocum Disaster—Many of the Missing Are Discovered Alive.

New York, June 24.—Twenty-four additional bodies were recovered yesterday, bringing the total number of known dead as the result of the General Slocum disaster up to 907. One hundred policemen who have been making a canvass of all districts where persons were reported to be missing have completed their work. Inspector Schmittberger, who was in charge of the canvass, estimated the total number of dead, including the missing, at about 1,000.

He said that the police in many instances found at their homes persons who have been officially missing since the day the steamer was burned. Others were in hospitals, and some had not been on the excursion, and scores did not know they were on the list of missing.

Guphill Wins the Great American.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 24.—With a thousand enthusiasts crowded about the handicap lines, and in what was probably the most exciting finish ever witnessed in a Grand American Tournament, Richard L. Guphill, of Aitken, Minn., handicapped at nineteen yards, won the grand American trophy, a silver tea service and $1,000 in cash, in the third shoot-off of a tie, with William Randal, of Telluride, Colo., at ninety-six breaks.

Mrs. Roosevelt Leaves Washington.

Washington, June 24.—Mrs. Roosevelt and her sister, Miss Carow, left here today for Oyster Bay. Miss Carow sails for Italy on July 5th. Mrs. Roosevelt will not return to Washington until the latter part of September.

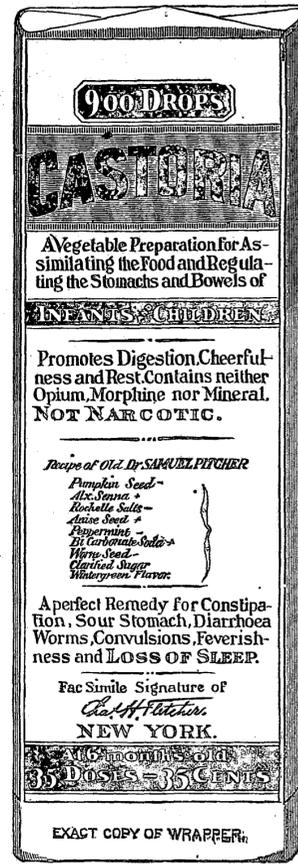

Santos Dumont, the airship inventor, has arrived at St. Louis.

Commander A. G. Kellogg, U. S. N., accidentally fell from a fourth story window in the Monroe Hotel in Portsmouth, Va., and died an hour later.

Eugene Tuller, a well known local character, who has seen better days, stated last night that the best time he ever had in his life was in Chicago in 1864. He says that he was working in the Michigan Central T-rail shop in Niles at that time and that D. D. Robinson was foreman. One day the late Master Mechanic Jack Riley, who was then an engineer, entered the T-rail shop and stated to the forenoon that he wanted a good man to fire for him on a trip to Chicago, he having been chosen to pull a special, containing some of the chief officials of the road, over the west end. The upshot was that Tuller was assigned to toss the wood under the boilers (there were no coal burners in those days) and Gene says he never rode so fast in his life. He says Riley threw the throttle wide open and ran into Chicago an hour and a half ahead of time; that Vanderbilt himself approached the engine at the end of the run and complimented Riley, and informed him that he and his fireman would have three days to themselves in the city, adding that their hotel bill would be looked after and that they were entitled to all the cigars and other luxuries that they cared for. Gene says that on that trip Riley broke all previous records.—Niles Star.
