WARNER FOR GOVERNOR

Nominated at Detroit Yesterday on First Ballot.

GOOD TICKET NOMINATED

A Fine Speech Made by the Hon. E. L. Hamilton, Temporary Chairman.

The Republican State Nominating Convention held at Detroit yesterday went down in history as one of the most harmonious ever held in Michigan. Seven of the nine candidates nominated were selected by acclamation.

The first ballot taken for governor was only two-thirds polled when Geo.

FRED M. WARNER,
Candidate for Governor.

B. Horton moved that Fred M. Warner be nominated by acclamation.

There were only three names presented for governor, Fred M. Warner, of Oakland; Homer Warren, of Wayne, and Geo. B. Horton of Lenawee.

All the candidates on the ticket except Dr. J. B. Bradley for auditor general and W. H. Rose for land commissioner were nominated by acclamation, and they were nominated upon the first ballot. The only fight of the Convention was upon the adoption of the report of the resolution committee, there being a minority report by two of the twelve members of that committee. When the roll was called the majority report was adopted by a vote of 774 to 304.

Hon. E. L. Hamilton of the fourth district, acted as temporary chairman of the convention and gave an excellent address.

The greatest demonstration of the convention took place when Mr. Hamilton was presented as temporary chairman. The delegates from the fourth district, ninety-four strong, arose as one man, each waving an American flag, while the crowd cheered.

E. L. HAMILTON,
Fourth District Congressman, who was Temporary Chairman of the Republican State Nominating Convention.

Following are some of the strong points brought out during his talk:

The character of the men whose names will be presented to this Republican convention is a guaranty for the good government of the state of Michigan and the continuance of the sober, safe and honest business methods, which in all the departments of state, without ostentation and without bluster, have characterized the administration of Gov. Aaron T. Bliss.

The Republican party has not waited for the states to regulate trusts, knowing that where one state invites the formation of trusts by laws especially framed for that purpose, and another state restricts trusts, state co-operation for the regulation of trusts is impossible; but having passed the Sherman Anti-Trust law and the Inter-State Commerce Commission law, we have also created a Department of Commerce and labor, and have gone on strengthening the law, until it is now settled by the decision of the supreme court in the Northern Securities case that "every corporation created by a state is necessarily subject to the supreme law of the land and cannot interfere with the free course of trade among the states."

By our last national census it appears that only 12.8 per cent of the manufactured output of the United States is trust made, and only 7.5 per cent of all the labor employed in manufacturing in the United States is employed by trusts.

Some days ago Gov. Vardaman, of Mississippi, is reported to have said: "The issue this year is Roosevelt." That suits us. We are ready to maintain the affirmative of that issue.

The gentlemen on the other side don't like Mr. Roosevelt; the craft of his diplomacy is to tell the truth and shame the devil, and go straight from premise to conclusion, and he some times goes across lots.

During the Civil War some people came to Mr. Lincoln and asked him to remove Gen. Grant, and he said: "I can't spare Grant; he fights." We can't spare Theodore Roosevelt; he fights, but he fights fair and he fights for the right.

The ticket nominated is as follows: For Governor, Fred M. Warner, of Oakland.

For Lieutenant Governor, Alexander Maitland, of Marquette.

For secretary of state, Geo. A. Prescott, of Iosco.

For State Treasurer, Frank P. Glaizer, of Washtenaw.

For Attorney General, Chas. A. Blair, of Jackson.

For Auditor-General, Dr. J. B. Bradley, of Eaton.

For Commissioner State Land Office, Wm. H. Rose, of Clinton.

For Supt. of Public Instruction, Patrick H. Kelley, of Wayne.

For Member of State Board of Education, Luther L. Wright of Iron.

Judge Coolidge's campaign committee were in attendance at the convention looking after his fences in regard to the supreme judgeship. They say his prospects are good for the nomination.

ONLY A FEW DAYS.

Not Long Until Celebration at South Bend.

A few days more and the small boy will be in his element for the Fourth of July will be here. And every older person with a spark of American patriotism in them will want to celebrate too. Many of our townspeople have arranged to go to South Bend on that day as the trains run very conveniently and special arrangements have been made to bring everybody home after the magnificent display of fire-works in the evening. Arrangements have been completed there for one of the biggest celebrations this part of the state has seen in a number of years. A grand floral parade, civic and military parade, ball games, vaudeville shows, speeches, contests, drills, slide for life by a woman from the top of the water tower, sensational fire run, balloon race, automobile fast speed parade with 125 decorated machines in line and a dazzling array of fireworks in the evening.

A big day, truly, and all who can possibly arrange to do so, should go.

WANT TO PUSH WORK

Plans of the Indiana Railway Company.

MONEY MARKET TIGHT

Lenders are Dictatorial and Won't Touch Street Railway Bonds.

South Bend Tribune: The Indiana Railway company is doing practically nothing so far this year in the way of line extension, but the possibility exists of its taking up some work before the construction season is far advanced. The company is in no sense in a lethargic condition nor has it in any material way changed its general plans for extension and other improvements.

Like many other great enterprises where progress means the expenditures of vast sums the existing situation is dependent mainly upon the ability of the company to obtain money on satisfactory terms. The company usually goes to the eastern money market when large sums are required, the president, Hon. Arthur Kennedy, being a resident of New York City.

The New York money market holds an abundance of cash at this time, but the lenders are dictatorial and conservative in policy and insist upon gilt edged security that can be converted into cash upon a moment's notice. Most of them will not touch a street railway bond and some refuse other bonds of high class because they desire only quickly convertible holdings that will give them cash upon the shortest warning.

In view of these conditions street and interurban railway construction is not making as great headway now anywhere in the country as a few years ago, so that the Indiana Railway company finds plenty of companionship when it looks over the situation and endeavors to effect loans.

The plans of the company embrace a line westward from the terminus of the Washington street line past Chain lakes, through New Carlisle, past Hudson lake to Michigan City, Ind., the extension of the Niles line to St. Joseph, Mich., a branch of this line to Buchanan, Mich., for which the abandoned roadbed of the Michigan Central railroad between Niles and Buchanan has been acquired; the building of a great park at Chain lakes, and the construction of a line to Notre Dame.

CUCUMBER GROWERS FIGHT RAGING PEST

Prof. Pettit of Agricultural College Tells of Best Method to Destroy Insect.

Berrien and Cass counties will have more cucumbers in planting this year than ever before known. The acreage will be double that of last year. This is due to the fact that the pickling companies have entered into the business on a larger scale and have given contracts for large quantities of cucumbers in every stage of growth. G. B. Gehlert has established a large salting station in Dowagiac and his agents in that vicinity have secured scores of acres of cucumbers on contracts with farmers. Prices offered have been good and many have found that profits from cucumbers exceeds the gain from other products to which their soil has been devoted.

The prospect at this time for a large crop of cucumbers is not exceedingly bright. Although it is rather early to judge, yet the continued dry weather has worked no good to the vines. Not only is the growth retarded to a great extent but the vines became effected with a pest which has swept the state in the past few years, doing great damage to the cucumber crop. To cope with this disease has been almost impossible. Experts have made a study in the nature and best methods of treatment of the pest and Prof. R. H. Pettit of the Agricultural college gives the growers the benefit of his experiments. He says:

During the present season we have found many of the small, striped, yellow and black cucumber beetles which have always been present on cucumbers, melons, squashes, etc., and the past few days of dry weather have brought them out in very great numbers. They usually may be controlled at small expense by the following two methods: Dusting the leaves with dry-slacked lime and sulphur and by putting tobacco dust about the roots. Secure a few lumps of fresh, unslacked lime, put it in a kettle or tin pail and sprinkle with hot water. This will cause the lime to heat and slack down dry into a very fine powder. After this dust has become cool, mix about one part of flowers of sulphur with three or four of the lime and dust onto the plants through coarse cloth, either burlaps or three or four thicknesses of mosquito netting. Do not use air-slacked lime in place of the dry-slacked lime, as it is much less efficient. The beetles dislike this powder very much and most of them take occasion to leave immediately.

The immature stages of this insect are passed in the roots of the plants, the eggs being laid just at the surface of the soil and the young larvae or grubs boring down into the succulent roots. This causes many plants to wilt and die with no apparent reason. (There is a bacterial disease which attacks the leaves and which must not be confounded with the work of the insect.) If precautions are taken early enough, it is usually possible to prevent the laying of the eggs on the roots by throwing a liberal amount of fine tobacco dust on the soil underneath the leaves. A good sized handful to each hill of cucumbers will usually prevent most, if not all, of the beetles from laying their eggs. Tobacco dust is one of the best forms which is obtainable and costs about two cents a pound in reasonable quantities, perhaps a little more if obtained in lots of ten pounds or less. It is handled by florists' supply dealers and usually small amounts can be obtained at tobacco factories. Of course the lime and sulphur must be renewed after being washed off by rains, but the material is so cheap and the work required so slight that it does not become a burden.

SWALLOW IS CHOSEN

Testotallers Put Him Again at the Head of Their Ticket for President.

TEXAS MAN FOR SECOND PLACE

Miles Ends the Debate on His Account by Withdrawing.

Michigan Republicans Nominate Warner for Governor—Trouble Over Contests in Minnesota—Iowa Populists.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 1.—The Prohibition party in national convention nominated Silas C. Swallow, of Pennsylvania, for president, and George W. Carroll, of Texas, for vice president. The platform was adopted without argument after a long deadlock in the resolutions committee. It was described by I. H. Amos, of Oregon, secretary of the committee, as the broadest platform ever placed before the people by the party.

Pith of the Platform.

In addition to the planks on the liquor question it declares the party to be in favor of international arbitration, a suffrage law based on mental and moral qualifications, uniform law for the country and dependencies, popular election of senators, civil service extension, and the initiative and referendum. The trust question was recognized by a demand for a rigid application of the principles of justice to all organizations of capital and labor. A reform of divorce laws is demanded and polygamy denounced.

REV. DR. SILAS C. SWALLOW.

Nub of the Liquor Plank.

The "nub" of the liquor plank is contained in the fifth paragraph of the platform and pledges the party "to the enactment and enforcement of laws prohibiting and abolishing the manufacture, importation, transportation and sale of alcoholic beverages."

Miles Withdraws His Name.

General Miles put an end to the movement to nominate him for president by sending to John G. Woolley a telegram from New York, which reached him shortly after noon, asking that his name be not presented. This was considered final and the movement to Swallow was unanimous, no other name being considered. The convention adjourned sine die at 5:40 p. m.

Nucleus of a Campaign Fund.

Over sixteen thousand dollars was raised by subscription pledges from the floor of the convention, which with $11,000 in the treasury will be the nucleus of the campaign fund. The Prohibition editors organized for the campaign by electing Edward Clark, of Indianapolis, president. The convention programme closed at night with a mass meeting at which addresses were made by National Chairman Stewart, John G. Woolley, and others. Several hundred of the delegates have left for St. Louis to visit the exposition.

MICHIGAN REPUBLICANS

Warner Nominated for Governor—Action on Primary Election Reform.

Detroit, July 1.—But two contests worthy of the name marked the state Republican nominating convention. One of these was the fight in the resolutions committee and in the convention by Representative William Alden Smith and State Senator Chas. Simonds for a broader declaration in the platform in favor of primary reform than the county local option declaration favored by the so-called "machine" element of the party, and the other was on the nomination of auditor general.

In addition to the name of Fred M. Warner, of Farmington, who was nominated for governor, Homer Warren, of Detroit, and George B. Horton, of Fruit Ridge, were placed in nomination. Before the first ballot was finished, however, it was evident that Warner had received a large majority, and Horton moved that the rules be suspended and the unanimous vote cast for Warner, which was done amidst much enthusiasm.

The amendment to the resolutions prepared by Representative Smith and Senator Simonds pledging the party to the nomination of governor by direct vote was defeated by a vote of 774 to 304. Three candidates were placed in nomination for the auditor generalship—Dr. J. B. Bradley, of Eaton Rapids; Malcolm J. McLeod, of Detroit, and E. A. Wildey, of Paw Paw, the present state land commissioner.

On the first ballot Bradley polled 496 votes; McLeod, 349, and Wildey, 249, with 548 votes necessary to nominate. A break was started on Bradley and he was nominated by unanimous vote.

The full ticket is as follows: Governor, Fred M. Warner, of Farmington; lieutenant governor, Alexander Maitland, of Negaunee; treasurer, Frank P. Glazier, of Chelsea; secretary of state, George A. Prescott, of Tawas City; auditor general, Dr. J. B. Bradley, of Eaton Rapids; attorney general, Charles A. Blair, of Jackson; superintendent of public instruction, P. H. Kelley, of Detroit; member state board of education, J. L. Wright, of Ironwood; land commissioner, W. H. Rose, of Clinton.

The platform, which was very short, indorses the platform adopted by the national convention at Chicago; indorses Roosevelt and Fairbanks, and expresses confidence in a memorable victory for the state ticket and "our fearless leader and typical Republican, Theodore Roosevelt."

TROUBLE OVER THE CONTESTS

Minnesota Republicans Take an Unusual Course on the Subject.

St. Paul, Minn., July 1.—The state Republican convention held two short sessions, and then, following out a programme agreed upon by the leaders of the partisans of the various candidates, adjourned for the day. The leaders had been in conference since Wednesday night, trying to devise a plan whereby the numerous contests might be settled with as little friction as possible.

It was finally determined to allow Chairman Clapp to appoint a credentials committee of fifteen, seven members to represent the Dunn interests, seven the Collins adherents, and one the Eddy candidacy, and to adjourn the convention until this committee had acted. The committee on credentials met at 3 o'clock and at once began the work of hearing the merits of the various cases.

BRYAN NOT TO BOLT PARKER

So Chairman Jones, of the Democratic National Committee Says.

Pittsburg, July 1.—"William J. Bryan will not bolt his party ticket if Judge Parker is nominated for president. Of this I am confident," declared ex-Senator Jones, national Democratic chairman, in this city while en route to the St. Louis convention.

"As to what Mr. Bryan might do if Mr. Cleveland is nominated I could not say, but I regard the nomination of Cleveland as little short of an impossible contingency. Outside of Judge Parker Mr. Hearst will have the greatest number of instructed delegates. I regard Mr. Gorman as one of the strongest possibilities."

Iowa Populist Favorite Son.

Des Moines, Ia., July 1.—The state Populist convention met here and elected twenty-one delegates to the national convention at Springfield, Ill., instructed to vote for ex-representative Weller for vice president. No state ticket was named. The platform adopted is a brief document and indorses in a few words the Omaha platform of 1902.

Swallow May Not Accept.

Harrisburg Pa., July 1.—The Patriot says that Dr. Silas C. Swallow may decline the Prohibition nomination for president. He has sent a telegram to Chairman Stewart saying that his wife's health, unless it greatly improves, will require his presence at home, and that if acceptance involves his absence from home he will have to decline.

Continue Work at the Old Scale.

Anderson, Ind., July 1.—The plate workers, affiliated with the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers, have been ordered by President Schaffer to continue work at the old scale, which expired yesterday. The tin plate manufacturers have demanded a reduction of 18 per cent, which has been refused by the association, which is willing to accept a reduction of 8 per cent.

People's Party Convention.

Springfield, Ill., July 1.—J. A. Parker, of Louisville, Ky., chairman of the national committee of the People's party, has arrived here to see if all arrangements have been completed for the national convention of the party, which convenes at noon July 4 at the state arsenal here.

Washington, July 1.—President Roosevelt has had an interview with Lou Payn, former railroad commissioner of New York. Payn came to Washington from his home at Chatham, N. Y., especially to have a talk with the president regarding the political situation in New York. National Chairman Cortelyou also met Payn at the White House and had a brief chat with him.

Tin Men Accept the Reduction.

Pittsburg, July 1.—At a conference which closed late last night the American Sheet and Tin-Plate company and the Amalgamated association agreed upon the scale for the coming year. The men accept the reduction of 18 per cent.

LAUGH ON BOTH SIDES.

Night Policeman Searching For Hoboes Has Experience.

Del Murphy and George White had rather an exciting experience with two supposed hobo holdups on the Big Four tracks Saturday night. While walking quietly along the tracks two men suddenly appeared commanding them to halt. The boys started to run when they were again told to stop. However they pluckily kept going until they reached the water station and telephoned for the night police.

In the meantime the "holdups," who had so frightened the boys having taken flight the opposite direction now made their appearance, proving to be none other than Night Policeman Dixon and two other men who were searching for hoboes.

The two parties thoroughly misunderstood the identity of each, causing the difficulty which arose. Told in daylight the affair is laughable but it took on a different color when they met in the darkness.—Benton Harbor News-Palladium.

Del Murphy was a former Buchanan boy and has many friends here who no doubt will enjoy the joke.

HAPPY WOMEN.

Plenty of Them in Buchanan, and Good Reason for it.

Would't any woman be happy, after years of backache suffering, days of misery, nights of unrest, the distress of urinary troubles, she finds relief and cure? No reason why any Buchanan reader should suffer in the face of evidence like this:

Mrs. M. Griffen, of West Frontstreet, says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills procured at W. N. Brodrick's drug store and I think them an excellent remedy for backache and kidney complaint. I was troubled for some time with a dull aching feeling in the small of my back often quite severe, more especially if I overexerted myself or took a slight cold. I used a great many remedies, of which some were worthless and others relieved me for a time. This I cheerfully say about Doan's Kidney Pills. I received more permanent relief from them than from any other remedy I ever took."

TO ERECT A MEMORIAL.

Fremont Voters' Organization Plan a Lasting Monument.

The RECORD is in receipt of the following letter from S. G. Antisdale, of Benton Harbor, the head of the Fremont voters in Berrien county, regarding the "Under the Oaks" meeting:

The arrangements for the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the republican party at Jackson, July 6th, are now about completed. Addresses will be made by Hon. John Hay, Secretary of State; Hon. Joseph G. Cannon, Speaker of the House of Representatives; Senator Julius C. Burrows, Senator Russell A. Alger, Hon. Charles A. Blair, Hon. Thomas T. O'Brien and others.

You, being a Fremont voter, are especially invited to attend; and it is hoped that all Fremont voters will make special efforts to be present. Reduced rates of about one fare for the round trip have been secured on all railroads in the state. Badges will be provided for all Fremont voters who call at the secretary's office in Jackson on their arrival there. That sufficient seats may be procured you are requested to notify the secretary, George A. Marston, 809 Hammond building, Detroit, before July 3rd, of your intention to attend; he will reserve seats for all those so doing.

The executive committee would state that a wide spread interest in the celebration has been taken by the people of Michigan, and its success is assured and sufficient funds have now been secured to pay the actual expenses. It is proposed, however to erect a suitable memorial in Jackson with all remaining money, and the committee requests subscriptions to this fund. This letter is sent to over 2,000 Fremont voters in Michigan. If each one sends $1 the amount will be sufficient to erect a worthy memorial. The names of all the subscribers will be printed with the proceedings.

It's the most certain cure in the world for all throat and lung troubles. Guaranteed. Bottles 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free—at W. N. Brodrick's drug store.

Chased by a Loaded Dog.

Editor Robinson of the Wilkesboro (N. C.) Hustler, is congratulating himself over his extraordinary escape from a most remarkable death. Robinson was training a half-grown setter dog to retrieve. He was standing the dog by his side, on the bank of a pool, when some men came along and threw a dynamite cartridge in the water to kill the fish. A lighted fuse was attached to the cartridge.

To the horror of the editor the dog jumped into the pool and took the cartridge between his teeth. The editor started on a wild run, the dog after him, the fuse burning shorter and shorter. Fortunately the editor came to a wide ditch, which he leaped and continued running for fully a half a mile. At the moment the dog reached the ditch the cartridge exploded, blowing him into fragments. Only the ditch saved the editor.

SHE IS HELEN MORTON AGAIN

Daughter of Hon. Levi P. Morton is Free of the Frenchman Who Married Her.

Paris, July 1.—The duchess of Valençay, who was Helen Morton, daughter of Levi P. Morton, before her marriage, has been granted a divorce from the duke of Valençay.

The charges against the duke were ill treatment and neglect. The hearing was brief. The court gave the defendant's name as "Saint Louis Marie Archambault Bazon, Comte de Talleyrand-Perigord, Duc de Valençay." The duchess becomes plain Helen Morton again, because she must by law abandon the duke's name and title.

ONE MORE UNFORTUNATE

Who Didn't Intend to Steal, but Was Stealing for Years from His Father's Bank.

Aurora, Ill., July 1.—When the doors of the German-American National bank were opened a large number of depositors was on hand ready to withdraw deposits, following the announcement of the defalcation of Cashier J. H. Plain. The bank was well provided with money however, and showed no hesitancy in paying depositors in full. The other banks in the city rallied to the assistance of their associate and plenty of money was placed on the counters. Not long after the opening there was a change in the other direction and many who had withdrawn their money deposited it again.

Cashier Plain, like so many of his kind, "intended" to put back what he stole, but his speculative deals went wrong until it is said the bank is out about $90,000. His father, who is president of the bank, has made up $30,000 of the loss and more of it will be made up. It is said that young Plain will be saved from prosecution and imprisonment, because the Aurora people have no desire to see him punished for his crime.

His own hopes, however, the decision had come too late, and it may be safely presumed that his hesitation was one of the main causes through which the woman he loved escaped him, for Katharine's heart was given to young Seymour, after a ten days' courtship, almost before his eyes. In any event, a wiser man would have seen in Seymour a possible—nay, a certain—rival by no means to be disregarded. An officer who had devoted himself to the cause of his country in response to the first demand of congress, who had been conspicuously mentioned for gallantry in general orders and reports, who had been severely wounded while protecting Katharine's father at the risk of his life, as well bred and as well born as Talbot, of ample fortune and with a wide knowledge of men and things acquired in his merchant voyagings as captain of one of his own ships in many seas, Seymour's single hearted devotion eminently fitted him to woo and win Miss Katharine Wilton as he had done.

Nevertheless a friendship had sprung up between Seymour and the unsuspecting Talbot which bade fair to ripen into intimacy, and it may be supposed that the stories of battles in which the older man had participated, his attractive personality, the consideration in which the young sailor was held by men of weight and position in the colonies, as a man from whom much was to be expected, had large influence in determining Talbot in the course he proposed taking and which he had not yet communicated to his mother.

The evening repast had just been finished, and the mother and son were walking slowly up and down the long porch overlooking the river in front of the house. There was a curious and interesting likeness between the two—a facial resemblance only, for Madam Talbot was a slender, rather frail little woman, and looked smaller by contrast as she walked by the side of her son, who had his arm affectionately thrown over her shoulder. She was as straight, however, as he was himself, in spite of her years and cares, and bore herself as proudly erect as in the days of her youth.

Her black eyes looked out with undiminished luster from beneath her snowy, white hair, which needed no powder and was covered by the mobcap she wore. She looked every inch the lady of the manor, nor did her actions and words belie her appearance. The subject of the conversation was evidently a serious one. There was a troubled expression upon her face in spite of her self control which was in marked contrast to the hesitating and somewhat irresolute look upon the handsome countenance of her son.

"My son, my son," she said at last, "why will you persist in approaching me upon this subject? You know my opinions. I have not hesitated to speak frankly, and it is not my habit to change them. In this instance they are as fixed and as immutable as the polar star. The traditions and customs of 400 years are behind me. Our family—you know your father and I were cousins and are descended from the same stock—have been called the 'loyal Talbots.' I cannot contemplate with equanimity the possibility—even of one of us in rebellion against the king."

"Mother, if I am to believe the opinions of those whom I have been taught to respect, the rightful rulers of this colony, of our country, of any country, are the people who inhabit it."

"And who says that, pray, my boy?" "Mr. Henry."

"And do you mean to tell me, a Talbot, that you have been taught to look up to men of the social stamp of Patrick Henry or to respect their opinions?" she said with ineffable disdain.

"Mother, the logic of events has forced all men to do so. Had you heard his speeches before the burgesses at Williamsburg you would have thought that he was second to no man in the colony or in the world beside. But if he be not satisfactory, there is his excellency General Washington."

"Mr. Washington," she replied, with an emphasis on the "Mr." "Now, there, I grant you, is a man," she said reluctantly. "I cannot understand the perversion of his destiny or the folly of his course."

"And, mother, you know his family was as loyal as our own. One of his forefathers held Worcester for King Charles with the utmost gallantry and resolution. And he had as a companion in arms in that brave attempt Sir George Talbot, one of our ancestors. There is an example for you. I have often heard you speak with the greatest respect of George Washington."

"It is true, my son," she replied honestly, "but I am at a loss to fathom his motive. What can it be?" "Mother, I am persuaded of the purity of his motives. His actions spring from the very highest sense of his personal obligation to the cause of liberty."

"Liberty, liberty," 'tis a weak word when matched with loyalty. But be CHAPTER VIII.

HERE were two roads which led from Fairview Hall to the home of the Wiltons, one by river and the other over the hills farther inland. Talbot had chosen the river road and was riding along with a light heart, forgetful of his mother and those tears which indeed she would not have shown him, and full of pleasant anticipations as to the effect of his decision upon Katharine.

As he rode along in the moonlight his mind, full of that calm repose which comes to men when they have finally arrived at a decision upon some point which has troubled them, felt free to range where it would, and naturally his thoughts turned toward the girl he loved. He was getting along in life, twenty-four his last birthday, while Katharine was several years his junior. It was time to settle himself, and if he must ride away to the wars it were well, pleasant at least, to think that he was leaving at home a wife over whom he had thrown the protectingegis of his name.

He, a mob, in which so career equality stands in very unstable equilibrium; fight for the rightful ruler of the land, not against him."

"Mother, if I am to believe the opinions of those whom I have been taught to respect, the rightful rulers of this colony, of our country, of any country, are the people who inhabit it."

It was time to settle himself, and if he must ride away to the wars it were well, pleasant at least, to think that he was leaving at home a wife over whom he had thrown the protectingegis of his name.

Katharine would be much happier—his thoughts dwelt tenderly upon her—and the definite arrangement would be better than his tacit understanding. He would speak out that very night, never doubting the issue, and get it done with. Of course that was all that was necessary.

When she knew that he was engaged heart and soul in the cause of the Revolution she would be ready to yield him anything.

So musing the light hearted gentleman galloped along. The intervening distance was soon passed over, and Talbot found himself entering the familiar stretch of woodland which marked the beginning of the colonel's estate. Under the trees and beneath the high bank of the river the shadows deepened. Scarcely any light from the moon fell on the road. It was well therefore that our cavalier drew rein and somewhat checked the pace of his horse, advancing with some caution over the familiar yet unseen road, for just as he came opposite the land end of the pier which led out to the boat-house the animal stopped with such suddenness that a less practiced rider would have suffered a severe fall. The horse snorted and trembled in terror and began rearing and backing away from the spot. Looking down in the darkness, Talbot could barely discern a dark, bulky object lying in the road.

prover of the hill and sat down heavily, following with straining eyes and yearning heart his rapidly disappearing figure. The same pang that every mother must feel, those who have a son at least, once in her life, if no more, came to her heart. All her prayers had been unavailing, her requests unheeded, her pleas and wishes disregarded. She had an idea, not altogether warranted perhaps, but still she had it, that the influence was not so much the example of General Washington, nor the eloquence of Patrick Henry, nor the force of neighborly example, nor rigid principle, but the influence of a sunny head, and a pair of youthful eyes, and a merry laugh, and a young heart, and a pleading voice. These have always stood in the light of a mother since the world began, and these have taken her son from her side. All her hopes gone, her dreams shattered, her sacrifice vain, her love wasted, she bowed her white head upon her thin hands and wept quietly in the silent night. The deep waters had gone over her soul, and the rare tears of the old woman bespoke a breaking heart.

CHAPTER VIII.

HERE were two roads which led from Fairview Hall to the home of the Wiltons, one by river and the other over the hills farther inland. Talbot had chosen the river road and was riding along with a light heart, forgetful of his mother and those tears which indeed she would not have shown him, and full of pleasant anticipations as to the effect of his decision upon Katharine.

As he rode along in the moonlight his mind, full of that calm repose which comes to men when they have finally arrived at a decision upon some point which has troubled them, felt free to range where it would, and naturally his thoughts turned toward the girl he loved. He was getting along in life, twenty-four his last birthday, while Katharine was several years his junior. It was time to settle himself, and if he must ride away to the wars it were well, pleasant at least, to think that he was leaving at home a wife over whom he had thrown the protectingegis of his name.

Katharine would be much happier—his thoughts dwelt tenderly upon her—and the definite arrangement would be better than his tacit understanding. He would speak out that very night, never doubting the issue, and get it done with. Of course that was all that was necessary.

When she knew that he was engaged heart and soul in the cause of the Revolution she would be ready to yield him anything.

So musing the light hearted gentleman galloped along. The intervening distance was soon passed over, and Talbot found himself entering the familiar stretch of woodland which marked the beginning of the colonel's estate. Under the trees and beneath the high bank of the river the shadows deepened. Scarcely any light from the moon fell on the road. It was well therefore that our cavalier drew rein and somewhat checked the pace of his horse, advancing with some caution over the familiar yet unseen road, for just as he came opposite the land end of the pier which led out to the boat-house the animal stopped with such suddenness that a less practiced rider would have suffered a severe fall. The horse snorted and trembled in terror and began rearing and backing away from the spot. Looking down in the darkness, Talbot could barely discern a dark, bulky object lying in the road.

"Here, Dick," he called to the groom, who had stopped and reined in his own horse, apparently as terrified as the other, a few paces back of his master, and tossing his bridle rein toward him, "take my horse while I see what stopped him."

FEMALE WEAKNESS

642 1-2 Congress St. FORTLAND, MAINE, Oct. 17, 1902.
I consider Wine of Cardui superior to any doctor's medicine I ever used and I know whereof I speak. I suffered for nine months with suppressed menstruation which completely prostrated me. Pains would shoot through my back and sides and I would have blinding headaches. My limbs would swell up and I would feel so weak I could not stand up. I naturally felt discouraged for I seemed to be beyond the help of physicians, but Wine of Cardui came as a God-send to me. I felt a change for the better within a week. After nineteen days treatment I menstruated without suffering the agonies I usually did and soon became regular and without pain. Wine of Cardui is simply wonderful and I wish that all suffering women knew of its good qualities.
With sincere regards
Treasurer, Portland Economic League

Periodical headaches tell of female weakness. Wine of Cardui cures permanently nineteen out of every twenty cases of irregular menses, bearing down pains or any female weakness. If you are discouraged and doctors have failed, that is the best reason in the world you should try Wine of Cardui now. Remember that headaches mean female weakness. Secure a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui today.

A fire caused by the spontaneous combustion of oily rags broke out in the Benton Harbor Review office, Tuesday morning. The fire department quickly got the fire under control, the most of the damage being caused by water. The presses and typesetting machines were badly rusted, and a carload of paper that had just been put in the basement the day before was ruined by water. The Review came out on time however, through the courtesy of the Banner-Register and the News-Palladium, who gave the use of their machinery.

A comely looking Benton Harbor lady went to Chicago last winter. She took with her a sample of chiffon braided muff and collar, of her own design and workmanship. She was at once engaged by a well known millinery establishment in the Venetia building. She made other sets of chiffon muffs and collars. One day Mrs. George Pullman called, and the lady proprietor said to Mrs. Pullman that she would like for her to try on the new collar just finished and designed by a lady from Benton Harbor. She did so and was then shown the muff comprising the set. Mrs. Pullman said: "You need not take the collar off as I will take the set at your price, $125." The daughter of Otto Young, the millionaire, came in shortly after and ordered three sets in as many shades and at the same price each. The Benton Harbor lady is to go to New York city the coming winter and work on her own account. But the case is one illustrative of what originality and ability can accomplish even today under the present stress of competition.—Niles Sun.

Watch Your Shade Trees.

Owners of fine shade trees in Buchanan are warned to keep a sharp lookout for a parasite commonly called the tree louse which at the present time is devastating adjacent cities and towns and trees are dying from their attack.

Especially is the fact to be marked on elms. When the sidewalk or ground under a tree is covered with a sticky substance which drops from the tree. In the tops of the elms the leaves are withering and the tree is dying. This has been a most propitious year for the parasite and the pest is in this vicinity in greater numbers than ever before.

There is a species of the louse for every distinct variety of trees, and not only the elms but the maples and nearly every kind of foliage is suffering from the terrible attack of the midget. Before the summer is over there seems to be a very strong chance of losing some of the majestic trees. The ravages of the louse can be stopped if a declaration of war is made in their good season. The work of destruction once done the lost portions of the tree can never be replaced and nature refuses to work on the twigs and limbs which have been eaten away.

In speaking of the St. Rose Academy closing exercises at Laporte, Ind. the Herald of that place speaks of Miss Vera Fritts' playing in very complimentary terms. She is mentioned in the write up three times as follows:

"Habanera and March from 'Carmen' by May Sawkins and Vera Fritts, put the audience in good humor, being bright and sparkling."

WINS SWIFT LAKE RACE.

New Record for Trip is Made by Steamer Eastland Across the Lake.

The Chicago Inter Ocean gives the following account of the race Sunday between the Eastland and City of South Haven.

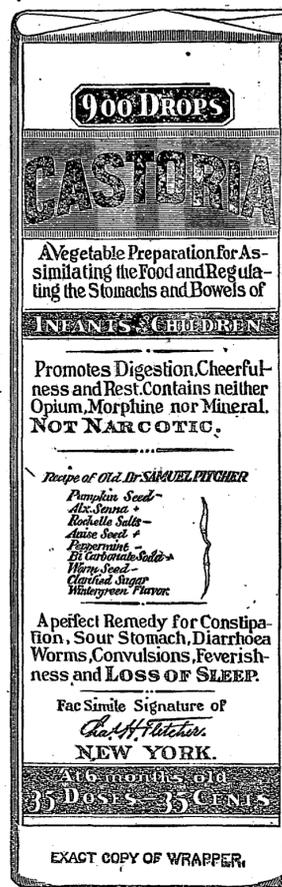

A new record for the trip across the lake and the first race of the season was won Sunday by the steamer Eastland. The steamer City of South Haven was her competitor, and it was only after three hours and thirty six minutes of fighting that the Eastland won the pennant for which she had struggled in vain last year.

The time, taken by the Nicholson ship log, which registers accurately the speed made, showed that the big steamer had held an average of but a fraction less than twenty-one miles an hour for the trip.

The two white lake coursers were abreast fifty-seven miles out in the lake. The Michigan shore was then a faint line, twenty-one miles distant. Over this last stretch it was nip and tuck, and the giant engines were forced to their utmost. When the Eastland bumped against its pier at South Haven, its vanquished rival was a mile and a half out in the lake.

When the two boats left Chicago for South Haven there was no intention of indulging in a Sunday race. The Eastland carried 1800 passengers, and the City of South Haven carried about 1500 passengers. The Eastland left the outer pier of the Chicago harbor at 10:22 o'clock. The City of South Haven was ahead of her, four miles out in the lake. By the time the Eastland passed the intake crib the word quickly passed among the passengers that a race was on. It took fifty-seven miles of racing for the Eastland to overcome the four mile handicap of the other boat. The two boats came abreast about a quarter of a mile apart. The excitement among the passengers was intense. The Eastland slowly drew ahead of the City of South Haven and finally acknowledging defeat, the engines on the latter slackened speed and she fell behind rapidly.

A little life may be sacrificed, to an hour's delay. Cholera infantum, dysentery, diarrhoea come suddenly. Only safe plan is to have Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry always on hand.
