The Pere Marquette has an immense end of the week traffic from Chicago to these resorts, business men who have their summer homes there running over to spend Sunday. The noon train appealed to most of them as it would land them at the resort in ample time for their dinners, yet, as many did not desire hearty meals in the middle of the day, they were obliged either to go with out eating for several hours or to wait for the late afternoon train, which

Aged Nerro Dying Who Has a Rantory from Before the War of the Rebellion.

SUBJECT OF A COURT RULING

Which Helped on the Unpleasantness -John Miller's Strange Disappearance-Itams.

Battle Greek, Mich., July 22 .- Perry Sanford, an aged ex-slave, is dying in this city. He was "one of the causes of the rebellion," in that he was in the party of escaped slaves for whom their protectors fought in Cass county in 1848. An outcome of this contest was the passage of the "fugitive slave law," and this law was one of the firebrands of discussions which led to war. Sanford was born and brought up in Greenup county, Ky. He escaped from his master when he heard that he was to be sold "down the river." Sanford settled in the famous Quaker settlement in Cass county with dozens of other negroes in what is now the only township in the state where the colored population today is in excess of the white.

Raid of Kentuckians,

Not long after he had arrived there a party of some forty Kentuckians made the famous raid on the colored settlement. Sanford had gone to work for Stephen Bogue, the noted Quaker leader, who assisted many slaves to liberty. The Kentuckians attacked the slave settlement in the night, but Bogue managed to get word to the sheriff of Cass county before the raiders were across the border with their recaptured slaves, and they were met by the sheriff and a posse that outnumbered theirs. The matter came into the courts, and a long and tedious litigation was carried on. Weren't Property in Michigan. The Kentuckians came up in tobacco wagons, but before the lawsuit was ended not a wagon had a wheel, the Quaker youths having taken them off one by one at night and thrown them into Diamond lake, where they still repose. The courts held that slaves were not property in Michigan, and the colored men were freed from duress, though by some unaccountable carelessness on the part of the sheriff most of them had "escaped" before the case was decided. Sanford is the only survivor of the score or more of ex-slaves involved in this matter.

The pitiless river still flows on, Unmindful that somebody's darling is gone, In manhoods strength, lifes work before him, Why should the cruel waves close o'er him?

Lines on the Death of Harry Zerbe

How can we ever give him up? How can we drink this bitter cup? How can we bear this crushing pain? And take up the burden of life again. Our hearts give forth this bitter cry-In our anguish we cannot answer why, Sadly we think of the days in store,

When the places that knew him, know him no more. Still we must say, "Thy will be done," 'Tho the darkness of midnight, shrouds lifes sun, For God, who notes the sparrows fall, Pities our sorrow, and hears our call.

And the powers of darkness shall not prevail,

For His loving kindness shall never fail. Still to Thy promises we cling. "They that sleep in dust shall awake and sing." MRS. C. W. SMITH

Convention at Dowagiac, Tuesday.

The republican senatorial convention held in Dowagiac, Tuesday ncminated John Q. Haydon for state senator by a unanimous vote.

After the nomination was made a hot row sprung up before the delega tions of Berrien and Cass county. In 1902 a resolution was passed in the senatorial convention giving Berrien and Cass counties an equal representation in the senatorial conventions of the district. This was an unfair deal as Berrien has nearly double the population of Cass county.

Carmi R Smith of Niles offered a resolution that hereafter the two counties have their legal representation in the convention. This was oprosed by the Cass county delega tion lead by Charles E Sweet. The fight was so warm that it was even suggessed that unless the resolution was passed that Berrien would put up a candidate of her own. Then

The great Weber Pianos at the old

There can be no question that the Cabbage Patch atmosphere has been secured in this version and has been transferred most effectively to the stage. The quaint characters of Mrs Wiggs and all her neighbors have been happily realized in the play and are most colorfully depicted by the notable cast of twenty six expert comedians who interpret their eccenpress one with a convincing human realism, as well as to bring out all

This expertness of character portrayal is demonstrated in almost every one of the sharply differentiated characterizations and is surprisingly personation of the little sons and daughters of the patch by the group of chi'dren who make so many of the scenes merry and charming with the Watervliet, Coloma, Niles, Berrien light-hearted innocence and restless mischievousness of childhood. Seldom, indeed, does any company carry such a bright cluster of juvenile players as figure in Mrs. Wiggs. The Sunday School class in the second act is a delightfully amusing episode, absolutely true to childish conduct and nature. The sympathetic work of Madge Carr Cook as Mrs. Wiggs, and of Mabel Taliaferro as Lovey Mary, has already been noted as has the mirth-provoking ludicrousness of Helen Lowell as Miss Hazy and W. T. Hodge as Mr. Stubbins. * * *

Chicago like, most of these men when they much preferred to be were in the habit of running into the hury-up lunch places and grabbing a piece of pie or a sinker with one hand and a cup of coffee with the other, disposing of the task of eating in a few moments, while at the same time they eagerly scanned the news in the noon papers. Men trained to this sort of meal did not want a course dinner on the train, and this being apparent to the commissary and other officials of the road, they evolved the lunch car.

An old parlor car of the company was set aside for the experiment. The furnishings were torn out and the interior renovated. The car is seventy feet long and a lunch counter, in every respect like those in the Windy City, was built down the center. This was then equipped with coffee and tea urns and milk recepticles. while a choice collection of sandwiches, pies, cakes and other standard eatibles, were contracted for, not even omitting that Chicago delicacy, pie a la mode.

It didn't take long to equip the car and it was placed on the run Friday of last week, taking from the start. Now the Chicago resorter can go right from his office to the train, assured that he wilt find the luncheon to which he is accustomed. He must stand up while eating, but he has long been inued to this. The company carries from 500 to 1,500 of these passengers on its noon trains, and has supplies and help sufficient to care for the wants of all who can find standing and eating room enroute.

RIOT CALL AT ST. JOSEPH

Attacks on Non Union Men of the Packing Plants Call for Frequent Police Attention.

St. Joseph, Mo., July 22 .- A riot rall was turned in from the stock yards district at 9 o'clock at night and every available policeman was on duty endeavoring to control frenzied members of the labor unions who went out on a strike several days ago. The packers are not discharging the non-union men fast enough to suit the strikers. The managers of all the packing plants in South St. Joseph notified the union men that but 60 per cent. of the strikers will be put to work at once. The strikers say the packers are endeavoring to hold all non-union men, and that all of the union men cannot get back to work if the packers are permitted to. carry out their plans. Consequently, wherever a nonunion employe of the plants is found he is at once assaulted.

[Original.]

I fell in love with the name of Cyril St. Cyr, the great actor, as soon as I heard it. Soon after, my flance, George Marsh, took me to see him play. St. Cyr took the part of a civil engineer upon whose management rested a great enterprise. The thoughtful expression of his face, his noble brow, his massive head, were all well fitted to the part. He was not only "star" in name, but in reality. The whole play hung upon him.

I sighed when I left the theater. Cyril St. Cyr and George Marsh-there was as much difference in the men as in the names. George was a good fellow, had been graduated with honors at college and was a gentleman, but he was not Cyril St. Cyr.

Within two weeks I had seen St. Cyr play three times. While George's photograph, prettily framed, decorated my dressing case St. Cyr's was in my handkerchief case, where no eye but mine ever saw it and from which I took it many times during the day and every night before going to bed to gaze on it rapturously. Week after week Cyril St. Cyr grew more splendid; week after week George Marsh more commonplace. It was plain to me that I had made a mistake. I was of an artistic temperament, and George was a business man. With me the world was art. not business; with George it was business, not art, and when he claimed that the two were incompatible I mentioned St. Cyr and the money he coined every night.

One evening my dream received a shock. At dinner several people were discussing the great actor.

"Everything about him," said a lady, "is artistic, even to his name."

"His name?" said one of the men. "St. Cyr isn't his name. He's Thomas Branagan Murphy."

I gave a gasp and looked for some one to refute the statement as a base allegation, but no one seemed to think there was anything improbable or unusual in it. When I looked at my treasure that night I put it back into my handkerchief case disappointed. There were the same noble expression, lofty brow and massive head, but somehow they did not fit Thomas Branagan Murphy.

One evening George came in hurriedly and asked me to get ready at once to go to the theater. He had made the acquaintance of St. Cyr, and we were to go behind the scenes. I flew upstairs and down again. my heart throbbing like a kettledrum.

We were at the theater half an hour or more before the play began and Democratic Ticket a North End Affair.

For years the Democratic party in this county has scored the Republi cans, especially those of Benton Harbor and St. Joseph about wanting all the county offices, and have made a fine grand stand play for geographical location of candidates.

This year, however, it is different and in the convention at Niles they seemed to forget all about geography and only gave the south end one nomination and that for the office of coroner.

And now we are wondering how the prediction of the Galien Advocate, that the south end Republicans will vote the Democratic ticket, will make good. There is small chance of a republican who has become disgruntled, because his candidate was not nominated, to find consolation in voting the democratic ticket made up as it is for locations, with the Sheriff, Register of Deeds, Prosecuting Attorney are all from St. Joseph. The Clerk from Benton Harbor, the Treasurer from Bainbridge and the Surveyor from Berrien Springs. Seems to us as if that is a north end ticket with a vengence.

went directly to the stage door. We were admitted on George's sending in a card and asked to come to Mr. St. Cyr's dressing room. At the door we were given chairs while some one was inside with the actor. The door was open, and we could hear what was said.

"I have considered your proposition to write me up," said the sonorous voice of St. Cyr, "and accept it provided you permit me to do the writing myself. Here is what I have written: 'Cyril St. Cyr, the greatest living actor, owes his success to his natural adaptation for his work. There is nothing artificial about him. In private life he is the character of the modest, brainy engineer he personates' "---I heard no more of this, which was already sufficient to destroy my dream of that sublime modesty I had seen in my adored one. I fancied George was watching me and took out my handkerchief to conceal a blaze in my cheeks, muttering something about a "stuffy" atmosphere. Presently a man came out, folding up a paper, and hurried away. Another came to the door, and said in St. Cyr's voice:

"Come in, Mr. Marsh. I have five minutes before I begin to dress."

This wasn't St. Cyr. It couldn't be St. Cyr. St. Cyr was a god. 'This man was as ordinary a creature as I ever saw. The noble brow was a bald dome; the massive head was the shape of a football; the ears stuck out like those of an ape. His body was thick; his legs were thin. He was Murphy. I will never call him St. Cyr again. He put out a big red hand to me, then handed me a seat and said to George: "You won't mind if I make up my head and face, will you?"

George assured him that we would not, and, sitting on a stool before a mirror, he put on a whole head, hair and all, slipped springs over his ears, then covered his pug nose with a Roman. This done, he took up paint brushes and began to blend the artificial with the natural. As he worked he talked.

"Fine line of business we're doing, Mr. Marsh. The secret of my success is knowing how to do it. Most young people who go on the stage waste a lot of time blundering about art. It isn't art; it's business. The only art in it is to fool the public, especially the silly young. There's the letters I got today," pointing, "from young ladies who admire this stuffed head. Don't open any more. But I like to get 'em. I never knew a great run without 'em." When he came to a pause 1 told George I couldn't stand the air in there and asked him to take me out. At the stage door I told him I didn't want to stay for the play. We got into the carriage, and George told the coachman to drive home. As soon as we were seated I saw that George was laugh-

AN OPEN

In last Friday's issue of the RECORD we published an article in regard to the smallpox cases at the Berrien Sorings College. The article was taken from the Niles Sun and we gave them credit for it. It now transpires that there was no foundation for the report. Prof. Magan of the college called us up over the telephone Tuesday and asked if we would be willing to publish a true statement of the facts in the case, which we are only too glad to do, as it is not our purpose to print Mrs. Jesse Rough and Mrs. Otis anything in the RECORD that is not Berrien Springs, Mich.,

Buchanan RECORD,

Buchanan, Mich.

Dear Sir: In confirmation of my conversation with you over the telephone this morning, I respectfully, supposed to be exposed have taken beg leave to submit the true facts in the case relative to the alleged epidemic of smallpox at the Emanuel Missionary College, Berrien Springs, Mich., the same being duly attested to by the doctor of Berrien Springs and by Dr. Armstrong, the health offiver of Berrien Springs.

You, gentlemen, will undoubtedly realize that the article which appeared in your paper the other day relative to this matter has done us considerable injury, and we most respectfully request you to publish the truth in the matter with sufficient promin-who already had had the disease was placed with the patient to care for her. The others who were supposed to have been exposed, as above stated, were also quarantined and were kept separate from the patient so that all were isolated from the other mem bers of the school and each was isolated from the other.

A young man who had had the d: ease and who was therefore immunit, was also placed in proximity to those in quarantine to bring food and water The strictest quarantine was maintained, the attending physician using the utmost precaution in disin fecting his clothing and person after each visit to the patient. During the earlier stages of the trouble no letters were allowed to come from this isolated camp, those isolated being permitted only to make their desires relative to information for friends known to the physician, who had such messages written out and transmitten in a safe and proper manner. Afterwards letters were permitted to be written and were then thoroughly fumigated with formaldehyde and passed out. I further beg leave to state that practically every member of the school needing vaccination was vaccinated. The time for the legal quarantine has now expired. The health officer has made a complete and thorough investigation of conditions existing at the college and has found that the patient is well, that none of those the disease, that the time limit set by law for quarantine has expired and

At the same time our managers have been unable to realize that there was any special virtue in circulating lies relative to the true status of the case and giving unnecessary alarm to our friends and neighbors thus injuring the school ence so as to counteract the wrong and the social and material interests which has been done us. Rapid Bridge-Building

Wherever the demand is made, the engineer must make the face of the earth fit his purpose. In the wilds of the Andes he must throw his struct ure of steel across a torrential ravine from a precipice on one side to the mouth of a tunnel on the other. At a distance of thousands of miles from the place of manufacture, the parts of the bridge must fit like watchworks structure.

Five years ago the Pencoyd Bridge Company of Philadelphia manufactured for the English government the famous Atbara bridge in seven spans of one hundred and fifty feet each, weighing one and one half million pounds, in twenty-nine workingdays. The metal was shipped to destination it was put together on its piers, ready for railroad traffic within staging and with absolute accuracy of fit in all its parts. This bridge was imperative for the success of the plans of Lord Kitchenor in the campaign that made his fame and fortune.

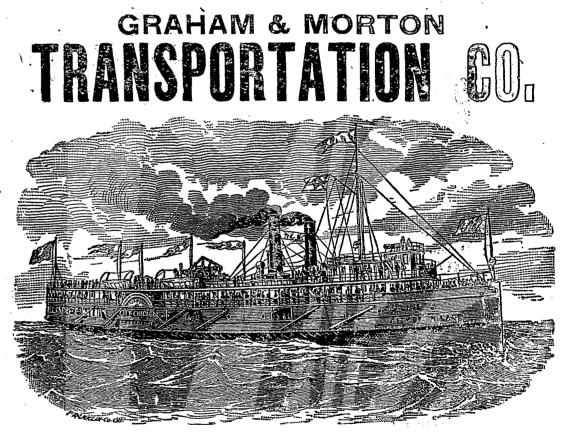

In 1900 the Pennsylvania Steel Company built the Gokteik doubletrack railroad viaduct to cross a ravine in Burma. This viaduct is nearly half a mile long and three hundred and twenty feet high in its highest portion, and the weight of tion, the dire need of just such additions to the equipment of the army, had been plainly communicated to Captain Jones, and he was resolved to effect the capture if it were humanly possible. The matter had also been reported to General Washington, and such was his opinion of the necessity of a prompt distribution and a speedy forwarding of the supplies, if they could be secured by the blessing of Providence, and so little was his faith in the inefficient commissariat, which, moreover, had to endeavor to keep the you. balance between different colonies and different bodies of troops, more or less loosely coherent, that he had detailed pany the ship, with explicit instrucwas Talbot, of whose capacity and enthought highly, the three weeks of ship. their military association only confirming his previous opinion. It was understood that Seymour, who was Jones' promoted to a captaincy, would bring back the transport if they were lucky enough to capture it. In case they were unsuccessful Talbot was to report himself to the commissioners at Paris as military secretary until further orders, and Seymour was to command the Ranger when Jones should get a better ship in France.

The Ranger was a small sloop of war, a corvet of perhaps 500 tons, with a raised poop and a topgallant forecastle, built at Portsmouth, N. II.; a new ship and one of the first of those built especially for naval purposes. She was originally intended for twenty-six guns, but the number,

He still carried the blood stained handkerchief, and many and many a time had laid it, with its initials, "K. W.," embroidered by her own hand, upon his lips. This was not his only treasure, however. In a wallet in the breast pocket of his coat he carried and treasured a letter, only the veriest scrap of paper, with these few lines hastily written upon it:

These by a friendly hand. We are to accompany Lord Dunmore to England next week as prisoners in the ship Radnor. Both well, but very unhappy. I love KATHARINE.

Seymour found Talbot and the captain together, when, after giving his name to the negro boy. Joe, who waitfirst lieutenant and would shortly be ed in attendance, for Captain Jones was one of the most punctilious of men, he was ushered into the captain's cabin.

"Come in, Seymour," said the captain genially, laying aside the formal address of the quarter deck. "Joe, a glass of wine for Mr. Seymour. Has the watch been set?"

"Yes, sir, and Lieutenant Wallingford has the deck."

"Ah, that's well; he knows the channel like a pilot. Sit down, man." "Thank you, captain. How do you ties of the ship. The already warm friendship between Seymour and Talbot, nows thrown into close association by the necessary confinement of a small ship, had grown into an intimacy, and they held many discussions concerning their absent friends in the long hours of the night watches. Talbot had learned through common rumor before they sailed that Colonel Wilton would probably be sent to England with Lord Dunmore, whose retirement under the vigorous policy pursued by the Virginians under the leadership of Patrick Henry, who had been elected governor, was inevitable, and he did not doubt but that Katharine would accompany her father. He had never told Seymour of the plans which had involved the destinies of Katharine and himself, and something had restrained him from mentioning either his hopes or his affection for her, though time and absence had but intensified his passion until it was the consuming idea of his soul.

This reserve was matched by a similar reticence on the part of Seymour, who had said nothing of the note he had received and had not communicated the news of his own successful suit to his unsuspecting rival. Seymour had a much clearer apprehension of the situation than Talbot and, intrenched in Katharine's confession, could endure it without disquiet, magnanimously saying nothing which could disturb nis less favored rival.

The situation, however, was clearly an impossible one, and that there would be a sudden break in the friendship, when Talbot found out the true state of affairs, he did not doubt. This was a grief to him, for he really liked the young man and would gladly have spared his friend any pain if it were possible. However, since there was only one Kate in the world, and she was his, he saw no way out of the difficulty and could only allow Talbot to drift along blindly in his fool's paradise until his eyes were opened. Both the young men were favorites with Captain Jones, and he treated them in a very different manner from that he usually assumed to his subordinates, for Jones was a man to be respected and feared rather than loved.

Late in the afternoon, the ship being under all plain sall on the port tack. heading due west, the voice of the lookout on the main royal yard floated down to the deck in that hail which is always thrilling at sea and was doubly so in this instance:

who had fathomed the qualifications of the ship, had been reduced to eighteen, four long twelves and the rest six pounders and smaller, with one long eighteen forward. She had been some days in commission, and the effect of Jones' iron discipline was already apparent in the absence of confusion and in the cleanness and order of the ship. The vessel had been very popular with the good people of Philadelphia, her commander and officers likewise, many of the latter, like Seymour, being natives of the town, and a constant stream of visitors had inspected her at all permitted hours. The presence of these visitors. of course, including many ladies, coupled with an inherent vanity and love of finery and neatness on the part of the captain—and, to do him justice, his appreciation of the necessity for order and neatness-had caused him to maintain his ship in the handsomest possible trim, and he had not scrupled to employ his private fortune to beautify the vessel in many small ways, the details of which would have escaped any eye but that of a seaman, though the general results were apparent. That general appearance which should always distinguish a trim and well ordered vessel of war from the clumsy and disorderly trader was due entirely to his efforts. The crew, as we have seen, had chafed under the unusual restraints of this stern discipline, but they were unable, as, indeed in the last resort they would have been unwilling, to oppose it. Some of the older men, too, and some of those who had sailed with Jones in his already famous cruises, held out the hope of large prize money, and, what was better with many of them, the chance of a blow at the enemy, if any of her cruisers of anything like equal force appeared—a chance sure to come about in the frequented waters of the English channel.

The crew of an American man-ofwar at that period, at least the native portion of it, always in overwhelming majority, was of much higher class than the general run of seafaring men. Among those in the Ranger were several who had been mates of merchantmen-Bentley again among the number-men of some education and able to serve their country as officers with credit, had the navy been increased as it should have been, and whose subordinate positions only indicated their intense patriotism. "A ship, sir-aye, and there is anoth er one with her, and a third. I can't tell what she is, sir. The first one looks like a large ship."

"Mr. Wallingford, take the glass and go up the crosstrees and see what you make of them, sir," said the captain. "Very good, sir," replied the lieutenant, springing into the main rigging and rapidly ascending to the crosstrees, glass in hand.

"Gentlemen, we will have a nearer look at these gentry," continued the captain, glancing back at the officers, who had all come up from below, while the men, equally interested, were crowding on the forecastle and gazing eagerly in the direction of the reported sails, which were not yet visible from the deck.

"On deck, there!" "Aye, aye! What is it?"

"I can make out five ships, and two brigs, and a schooner, and some other sails just rising, all close hauled on the port tack. I think there are more of them, sir, but I can't say yet. We are rapidly drawing on them and shall be able to make them out in a minute. I think it is a convoy or a fleet."

"That will do, Mr. Wallingford. Lay. down on deck, sir. Give the glass to the man on the royal yard, though, before you come. Who is he?"

"It is me, sir-Jack Thompson." "Keep a bright lookout then, Thompson, and if yon's an enemy's fleet or convoy it means a glass of grog and a guinea for you when your watch is over."

"Thankee, sir!" cried the delighted seaman.

"Mr. Wallingford, could you make anything out of the size of the ships?" "One of them I should say was a large ship, a frigate or ship of the line possibly. The others were too far off." "It can't be a fleet," replied Captain Jones. "There are not so many of the enemy's ships together in these convoy!"

For the next few moments the decks presented a scene of wild confusion, which gradually settled down into an orderly quiet, the various directions of the captain were promptly carried out and the ship was speedily prepared for the conflict, though outwardly she had lost her warlike appearance and now resembled a peaceful trader. While the Ranger had been slowly drawing nearer to the sluggish fleet of merchantmen and their convoy the early twilight of the late season faded away and soon gave place to darkness. The night was cloudy, the sky being much overcast, and there was no moon, all of which was well for the present purpose.

The men thoroughly appreciated the hazardous nature of this advance upon the unsuspecting fleet, protected by two heavy vessels of war, either of which was probably much stronger than their own ship, but the very audacity and boldness with which the affair was being carried out thoroughly suited the daring crew.

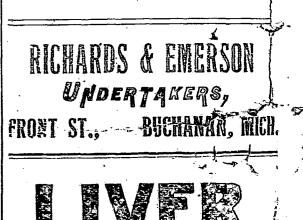

Most of them had stripped to the waist in anticipation of the coming conflict, for they felt confident that the fleet would not escape without a battle, and during the next hour they clustered about the guns, quietly whispering among themselves and eagerly waiting the events of the night. The nervous strain appeared to affect everybody except the imperturbable captain, but the deep silence was unbroken save by low voiced commands from the first lieutenant. All sail had been made as soon as it had become thoroughly dark, the yards properly braced and the guns run out again.

Entertaining Fletion One advantage of reading a serial story in a daily newspaper is that an installment of convenient length is received every day that does not consume an undue amount of the reader's time. An installment of a highgrade serial story appears in every issue of the Chicago Record Herald, a popular feature of that enterprising Chi cago daily. Among the successful stories which have been enjoyed by Record-Herald readers are Soldiers of Fortune, by Richard Harding Davis; The Thrall of Lief the Lucky.

'I find Thedford's Black-Draught a good medicine for liver disense. It cured my on after he had spent $100 with doctors. It is all the med-icine I take."—MRS. CAROLINE MARTIN, Parkersburg, W. Va.

If your liver does not act regularly go to your druggist and secure a package of Thedford's Black-Draught and take a dose tonight. This great family medicine frees the constipated bowels, stirs up the torpid liver and causes a healthy secretion of bile.

Thedford's Black - Draught will cleanse the bowels of impurities and strengthen the kid-neys. A torpid liver invites colds, biliousness, chills and fever and all manner of sickness and contagion. Weak kid-neys result in Bright's disease which claims as many victims as consumption. A 25-cent package of Thedford's Black-Draught should always be kept in the house.

"I used Thedford's Black-Draught for liver and kidney com-plaints and found nothing to excel it."-WILLIAM COFFMAN, Marblehead, IIL

PARKER IS SAYING NOTHING

Bryan Annouces His Future Political Programme.

New Doetrines He Will Advocate Hereafter-Ticket Selected by the Missouri Democracy for State Officers.

New York, July 22.-Thomas Taggart, member of the Democratic national committee for Indiana, has had a consultation with John W. Kern. He still refuses to discuss the subject of national chairman, but nothing has yet occurred to alter his determination to stand for the place if the committee is of the same mind next Tuesday that it was when it assembled in St. Louis the day after the convention adjourned. Kern is just as determined as ever to insist upon Taggart being selected, and is still talking about the importance of the west in connection with the campaign.

Kern Sees Only Taggart as the Man. He asserts that Taggart knows the conditions in that section better than any other man suggested for the place, and that if it is desirable to have men connected with the committee who are in close touch with the financial interests. An executive committee may be chosen to have the management of the campaign in the three eastern states which are considered necessary for Democratic success. He expresses confidence that the indorsement which was given Taggart at St. Louis will not be reversed, and says that so far nothing has occurred to show why that action should not be indorsed by choosing Taggart for chairman.

Would Go to Esopus if Invited.

Taggart says that there is nothing for him to say now, and he does not intend to discuss the matter. Taggart is not going to Esopus, although it has been suggested to him that he should visit Judge Parker. A special invitation from Judge Parker would alter his determination, but that is not looked for. August Belmont settled all talk about himself in connection with the national chairmanship by telling his friends that he would not be conbecause that would mean enormous centralization of power, and puts forward a scheme of state ownership, which would, he says, eliminate this centralization. His plan embraces a board composed of representatives of the various states to deal with interstate traffic. He also favors city ownership of public utilities.

He declares the time has come for the postoffice department to take charge of the telegraphs, adopting the | STATUS OF THE MALACCA CASE example of other nations. He says: "Private monopoly must be destroyed. As for the income tax he says the Report That Russia Has Agreed to party has stood for two campaigns in favor of that tax, and it was omitted this year for fear of its effect in the vote of the eastern states.

This propaganda he says must go forward regardless of the result next November. He closes: "For more than a century the Democratic party has stood forth as the representative of certain great ideas. Jefferson founded.it, Jackson defended it, and even Cleveland could not destroy it. If Mr. Parker is elected his administration will rid us of imperialism and of the threat of a race issue and give us greater freedom in the taking up of economic questions."

Jones Calls the Committee. St. Louis, July 22,-Hon. James K. from the Front - Fierce Fighting.

London, July 22.—Twenty guineas per cent. was quoted at Lloyd's for insurance against the outbreak of an Anglo-Russian war within three weeks. This is the rate which prevailed at Lloyd's on the Russo-Japanese war three weeks prior to the outbreak of hostilities.

London, July 22.-- A dispatch from Liao-Yang, dated July 20, says: "News was received from Ta-Tche-Kiao vesterday that the Japanese had broken through the Russian left flank between Lieutenant General Count Keller's position and that of General Rennenkampff, and that they were marching on Mukden."

Confirmed at Moscow.

London, July 22.-According to a special dispatch from Moscow, the Russky Listok of that city confirms the Associated Press report from Liao-Yang that the Japanese have broken through the Russian left flank and are marching on Mukden.

Fierce Fighting Is Reported.

London, July 22.-- A Russian correspondent of The Daily Telegraph at Mukden, under date of July 19, says: "A fierce fight has been raging during the past two days and it still continues. The Japanese, who are in superior strength, attacked with great daring and coolness. The Russians are contesting the ground splendidly.

Suggestive of Japanese Success.

"The Japanese flanking movements to the east are the real cause of our retirement. Heavy losses have been sustained. The Japanese artillery has again shown its superiority." The scene of the fighting is not mentioned

Lord Lansdowne is that Great Britain will not permit a lightning change from a merchant vessel to an armed cruiser.

"In other words, if these unchartered libertines of the Russian navy attempt to stop or to search a British vessel they will be called upon to desist, and if they refuse to obey the demand they will be fired upon and sunk."

The Standard also sees little abatement in the gravity of the crisis as a result of the statements from St. Petersburg that the Malacca will be released. "Our dignity and self-respect," says the paper editorially, "demand that she be released before she reaches the Baltic. The admiral in command of the Mediterranean squadron has received his instructions. His cruisers are being rapidly directed to the proper points and we presume that if the Malacca is not voluntarily surrendered she will be intercepted before she can pass the straits of Gibraltar."

Dealing with the idea of submitting the broad question of the passage of the Dardanelles by volunteer fleet vessels to The Hague tribunal The Times says: "This idea is one which we might perhaps entertain, provided, of course, that Russia undertook not to allow her volunteer steamers to make any further seizures pending a decision; but the release of the Malacca is a condition precedent to any possible arrangement of this kind."

Russian Editor Is Calm St. Petersburg, July 22, 7:07 a.m.-The general tone of the newspapers this morning in commenting on the Malacca incident is calm and non-provocative. It is assumed that the Malacca will be released on the assurance from Great Britain that her cargo consisted of British government property, but this assurance will be demanded.

Chicago, July 22.-The interest in the packing house strike now centers in the personnel of the board of arbitration, which has not yet been chosen. The non-union men have begun leaving the works already. The forty-five days allowed for the packers to take back all the strikers will probably not be needed. Donnelly, speaking of the non-unionists, said: "We never insisted on the discharge of the men, for we knew that when the strikers returned the others would go out of the doors and windows."

sidered for the place. It is understood that Belmont favors Taggart for chairman.

Gorman Hardly a Possibility.

Unless Taggart should voluntarily withdraw it is not believed that Gorman would allow his name to be used, and, perhaps, not even in that contingency. With Gorman absolutely out attention will be turned to William F. Sheehan, who, it is believed, would be Judge Parker's personal choice on account of their long friendship. But unless some direct word comes from Judge Parker to the effect that he wants Gorman or Sheehan the friends of Taggart will keep him in the field and insist upon electing him.

DEMOCRACY OF MISSOURI

Joseph W. Folk Heads the Ticket Nominated-Couldn't Beat Cook.

Jefferson City, Mo., July 22.-Governor, Joseph W. Folk, of St. Louis; lieutenant governor, Thomas L. Rubey, of La Platta; secretary of state, Samuel B. Cook, of Mexico; auditor, Albert O. Allen, of New Madrid; treasurer, Judge James Cowgill, of Kansas City; attorney general, Elliot W. Major, of Bowling Green; railroad and warehouse commissioner, H. Rubey Oglesby, of Warrensburg.

This is the ticket nominated by the Democratic state convention which convened here last Tuesday and adjourned sine die late yesterday after one of the most harmonious conventions that ever had been held in the history of the state Democracy. The only fight in the convention was on the nomination of Cook for secretary of state, it being held by his opponents, some of whom had been instructed for him, that he could not stand on the platform adopted, but when the test of strength came Cook was nominated on the first ballot with a great ovation.

BRYAN OPENS HIS CAMPAIGN

New Doctrines He Wants Engrafted on the Future Democratic Creed.

Lincoln, Neb., July 22.--William J. Bryan's plan for the reformation of the Democracy has been given publicity. In it Bryan favors radical changes, but advocates the election of Judge Parker for president as a good beginning. He declares for state ownership of railroads, government control of telegraphs, abolishment of the private monopoly, favors the income tax, and election of federal judges by the people. Bryan says that while he

"In the present instance it is understood that twenty-five bricklayers have quit work. The only thing to be done in the matter is for the officer in charge to secure substitutes as required by civil service law as in the case of any other vacancy, and if such cannot be obtained to report the facts to his superior and await instructions."

by the correspondent. Russian Fleet Again Sighted.

Tokio, July 22, 2:10 a. m.-A fisherman reports that the Vladivostok squadron was off Myako yesterday, going in a southeasterly direction at a speed of 10 knots. If this course and speed is maintained the squadron will be off Yokohama late today. The eastern coast of Japan is shrouded in fog. Shipping has been suspended, awaiting the location of the Russian fleet.

STATUS OF THE RED SEA AFFAIR

Russia Is to Make Amends, but Balfour I Not So Advised.

St. Petersburg, July 22.-The Asso ciated Press can state authoritatively that the Malacca will probably be released at once. The exact status of the case at present is as follows: Count Benckendorff. the Russian ambassador to Great Britain, has asked for Lord Lansdowne's official assurance that the munitions on board were British government-stores. If this is given orders will instantly be issued to release the vessel. At the same time Great Britain will be notified that ships stopped by Russia whose manifests are not in order will be held. Russia will maintain the legality of the status of the Smolensk and St. Petersburg as warships. They are under the orders of the admiralty, and were commissioned by the admiralty's instructions. Under the regulations of the volunteer fleet Russia claims that ships belonging thereto can be converted into warships without previous notice upon orders from the admiralty. When the Smolensk and St. Petersburg reached Suez on their way out they received from the Russian consul the admiralty's instructions commissioning them as warships. London, July 22.—The authoritative assurances that the Malacca will be released cabled by the Associated Press from St. Peterspurg to the United States do not appear in the British morning papers today. Special dispatches to a somewhat similar effect from St. Petersburg do not allay the alarmist views of the leading organs, which construe Premier Balfour's post midnight announcement that the government had received no confirmation of the reported release of the Malacca to mean that the incident is not yet closed.

LONDON EDITOR STILL "QUI VIVE"

Telegraph Thinks the Issues of War or Peace Are at Stake.

London, July 22.—The papers here continue to discuss the Red sea seizshoulders and look wise. One of them said: "We are not worrying about the non-union men. They will be glad to get out of there with their lives." Dispatches from other plants of the big packing companies tell only of quietness and preparations to resume work.
