Pere Marquette Train Runs into Open Switch on Lake Shore Track.

TRAIN LEAVES TRACK

Mr and Mrs. Arthur Hildebrandt and Others of Benton Harbor in the Wreck

Running at the rate of fifty miles an hour Tuesday evening the Pere Marquette train, due in Benton Harbor at 7:35, left the tracks at Dun Park on the Lake Shore, thirty-five miles out of Chicago. The train was derailed and many passengers injured, none of them fatally. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hildebrandt, a Mr. and Mrs. Crawford and the Misses Smith of this city were on the train.

The Pere Marquette trains leave Chicago over the Pennsylvania tracks for a short distance and then run over the Lake Shore to Porter. It was on the Lake Shore tracks that the accident occurred and the train was running at high speed, trainmen say fifty miles an hour. A Lake Shore sand train was on the siding at Dun Park waiting for the Pere Marquette to pass. A brakeman of the sand train was at the switch ready to turn it for the work train as soon as the passenger shot by. He lost his head and turned the switch just before the Pere Marquette train, which was a few feet away. The Pere Marquette train in running on the sharp switch was thrown from the track. The Pullman at the rear jumped clean over the tracks and it sunk in a sand bank up to the body of the coach. This acted as a brake.

The engine and one baggage car broke loose and crashed full speed into the engine of the freight. The two locomotives were locked together but were not badly damaged. The engineer of the passenger was badly bruised, and so was the Pere Marquette conductor. It was one o'clock Tuesday morning when the passengers on the train reached Benton Harbor.

"The fact that the Pullman on the rear of the train landed in the sand and its trucks buried out of sight saved us," said Mr. Hildebrandt. "It held the other cars back from destruction. The baggage car that broke loose and followed the engine was a mass of kindling wood.

"Mrs. Hildebrandt and myself were riding in a cafe car, the part finished as a day coach. The train came to a sudden stop but it did not seem to be a very severe crash. I saw that we were all right and I heard the crash in the rear of the car, the part used as a diner, and I hurried there to see what assistance might be needed. I saw the passengers picking themselves up from the floor and crawling through the mass of dishes that had been scattered over them.

It was a lucky escape all around." —Benton Harbor Palladium.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, is narrated by John Oliver of Philadelphia, as follows: "I was in an awful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite, growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Then I was advised to use Electric Bitters; to my great joy, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50c, guaranteed at all drug stores.

ELECTION FORECASTS

Outlook is That Hamilton's Majority Will be Large, as Usual

A careful and purely unbiased estimate of the election prospects in the fourth congressional district, would seem to indicate that Hon. E. L. Hamilton will, at least, have as large a majority as he received two years ago, when his plurality over the vote received by Hon. Thos. O'Hara the Democratic nominee, was 5,249.

The above forecast seems plausible when a comparison with conditions two years ago, is made. Then O'Hara, whose popularity with the voters of his own party is attested by the fact that he was once elected circuit judge of this county, was the regular nominee of the congressional convention, whereas Fred Collins, the regular nominee of the congressional convention of this year, declined the honor, which was finally handed to our fellow townsman, Attorney T. G. Beaver, by the congressional committee. And this bantering about of the office certainly cannot be expected to increase the vote received by O'Hara two years ago. And the fame that Hamilton won in the last congress should not be lost sight of, as the people, in many instances, will express their approval of the man's genius and executive ability at the polls in November.

Mr. Hamilton's opponent is a deserving gentleman, but no amount of sophistry would serve to change conditions. Hamilton is a credit to Niles and Berrien county, as well as to the entire fourth congressional district; he wields a potent influence in the legislative halls at Washington, and the people of the entire district, owe it to themselves and to him to give him a rousing majority.

Following is a statement of the result on congressman in the fourth district, two years ago:

County	Hamilton's Vote	O'Hara's Vote
Allegan	3610	1537
Barry	2784	2152
Berrien	5544	4786
Cass	2405	2164
St Joseph	2440	2533
Van Buren	3794	2246

Hamilton's majority 5,249.—Niles Star.

Republican Club Meeting

A very enthusiastic meeting of the Buchanan Republican club was held in the club room, in the old Record building, Wednesday evening.

Attorney Chas. E. White, of Niles, addressee the meeting and gave his hearers a fine speech. He spoke upon the national, state and county issues, and brought forth much applause. Mr. White is an eloquent speaker and an able attorney and will be a credit, not only to his own party, but the whole county, as a prosecuting attorney, and it looks very much as if he will fill that position in the near future.

Mr. White came over from Niles on the evening train and about 30 of the Niles young men came with him to attend the meeting. At the close of Mr. White's speech, Atty. Thomas Hance, of Niles, made a few remarks as did Wm. Radican and I. L. H. Dodd.

Arrangements are being made for the big Republican rally which will be held here on the 21st, when Hon. E. L. Hamilton and Hon. Fred Warner will be here. The Niles Republican club are making arrangements to bring a crowd over on a special train with their band and torches, and it is expected that the north end Republicans will also arrange for a train on the Pere Marquette.

This is the first time, in a good many years, that Buchanan has had a candidate for governor hold a meeting here, and the fact that Mr. Warner will be here the same night that Congressman Hamilton is here, assures us of having the largest rally in the county during this campaign.

It is requested by the Buchanan Republican Club that as many as can, will decorate their homes and places of business on that day.

The Chicago Market Letter

Weekly review of grain trade and exceptional market conditions, furnished exclusively to the Buchanan Record, by the house of Fyee, Manson & Co., Board of Trade, Chicago.

There has been complete change of professional sentiment in wheat for the week. Holders who are unsuccessful in getting any material advanced in prices became discouraged and turned sellers. As the market weakened there was a lot of stop loss selling by people who had holdings which they were unwilling to realize on while the market was going their way. The causes of the change to weakness in wheat are many. The Northwest movement continues longer and heavier than expected. Southwest movement did not fall off as predicted. There was a let up in the volume of public buying. The pressure of the enormous movement became too great and as a river sometimes rises and breaks its banks so this great flood of wheat seemed to fill up the cash demands and then overwhelm the whole speculative trade by its weight. The sudden weakening of the corn market induced wheat sales. The approach of the government report which is expected to be bearish, the accumulation of stocks, the larger Russian shipments supplying European demands, all helped to depress the market.

At the decline Minneapolis is selling round lots of flour, some for export. Pacific coast reports sales of flour in Japan.

The thing for the trade to discover now is the commercial basis. A period of bullish enthusiasm over the exaggerated reports of damage to the northwest crop is over. Speculative holders have taken their profits or their losses; it remains to be seen how long the big run will continue. It is timely to look ahead and remember that last year in November the western movement was one million and a half a day and no such movement can possibly be expected this year. Conservative operators are calculating the present stampede of holders will clear up the situation and that the next move of the trade and the public on the buying side will be based on a more accurate knowledge of the actual yield of the year and that the next period of improvement will be of a more stable character.

Corn operations have been marked by a radical change also. The unexpected happened, the largest acreage ever planted and the largest percentage of green corn ever seen late in September all helped forward to a degree thought almost impossible a fortnight before by perfect weather conditions and absence of killing frosts. The big corn crop is made. There is some shortage in old corn supplies but the new corn is king from this on. Offerings of millions of bushels of new corn for shipment to meet future contracts became the mountain which overwhelmed the bull leaders regardless of their financial strength. The men nearest the corn fields were right. The powerful operators who banked on ridiculously low estimates of yield and an accident to the crop were wrong. From a 50c level May corn is back near 45c. It will take more than ordinary developments in cash and export demands to check the sinking tendency of the price in face of such magnificent promise.

CORRESPONDENCE

WEST BERTRAND.

Misses Ruby Cauffman and Minnie Dempsey attended an oyster supper at Charles Clemmens', on Portage Prairie, Saturday evening.

Messrs. Frank Cauffman, Frank Blodgett and two gentlemen friends, from Jackson, spent Sunday at H. I. Cauffman's.

Archibald Dalrymple is repairing and remodeling his house. The young people took advantage of the opportunity and had a dance Tuesday evening.

A number of Bertrand ladies went to Eau Claire to a county convention of the Degree of Honor lodge, Tuesday.

May Dalrymple and Blanche Sheldon returned from the St. Louis fair last week. They think their money well spent.

Frank Wilson is on the sick list. The corn is nearly all cut and the farmers are digging potatoes.

The time has now come after patiently or otherwise, waiting several months, for the Terrecoupe people to say "hello." The linemen were at work Monday and Tuesday and the phones will probably be in before this goes to print.

Bertrand can beat the world for snake stories, but Eugene Farrer will be glad to tell you his fish story. Tuesday, with Bert Denny's help, he succeeded in landing some fine pickerel from Dayton lake. Denny landed nine the day before without Eugene's help.

Summer Coughs are often the worst to cure. Coonley's Cough Balsam, 25c and 50c size sold by Dr. E. S. Dodd & Son, will stop the coughing and check the irritation at once. One or two doses taken when your cough commences may save you from pneumonia or consumption.

DAYTON

Mr. Bartlet has a sister-in-law visiting him from the west.

Mrs. Burrus and sister Mrs. Strunk was in South Bend Tuesday.

Jerome Judy visited A. C. Weaver over Sunday.

Mrs. Emma Redding went to Niles Monday.

Mrs. Laura Smith, of New Carlisle and Mrs. A. C. Weaver, of Dayton called on friends at Buchanan Saturday.

Cass DeArmond, of Baroda is in town this week.

Miss Myrtle Bromley, of Chicago is visiting relatives here a few days.

Mrs. Byron Redding went to St. Joe Wednesday to visit her mother.

Mr. and Mrs. August Storms and son, of Boyne City, Mich. are visiting relatives here.

Blanche Shelden and May Dalrymple came home from St. Louis Monday night.

Henry McNelly who bought Sim Hamilton's house has put a new foundation under it and a new roof on it.

The old men played ball again last Sunday. The old men came out ahead as usual.

Mr. Phillips, of Buchanan was here fishing Saturday. He took home a fine pickerel.

The Royal Neighbors served coffee and sandwiches at the meeting last Friday evening.

Mrs. A. C. Weaver and daughter Bernice was in Galien Friday afternoon.

"U. S. Corn Cure for ladies is good for men too. I travel all over the United States but have found nothing equal to it, one bottle took the soreness out of two very bad corns and took the corns out in a few days." Mr. M. P. Fox, New York City. Price 15c or two bottles for 25c at Dr. E. S. Dodd & Son.

BENTON HARBOR.

There has been several weddings lately.

The officers of the L. O. T. M. are to have their pictures taken Friday.

Several of our club ladies left yesterday for Bay City where they will attend a federation of women's clubs this week.

The young men of Mrs. J. S. Barker's class in the Methodist S. S. are giving an entertainment at the church tonight in which they do every thing themselves.

Miss Grace Shauman for a long time cashier at Herr's grocery, left tonight for California to spend the winter.

The city of Chicago, of the G. and M. line went into winter quarters last Saturday, after having made 209 trips to Chicago this season.

Rev. Cady, of the cong. church left Monday for Grinnell, Iowa as a delegate to the American Board of Missions.

The Grand Rapids football team had not been defeated this season until last Saturday, when they met their Waterloo at the hands of our boys at Eastern Springs. Score 33 to 0. Our team is coming nearer and nearer the state championship again this year. They will meet the South Haven team next Saturday.

The body of A. M. Northrup, 406 Terretorial St. was found last Sunday near Miller's station Ind., riddled with bullets and Ed Donohue who had been with him to help sell a horse is suspected of the murder. Officers have been searching for him, but as yet without success. They ferreted out his movements for several days but lost the trail again near Hammond where he had started back toward the scene of the crime.

Mr. Northrup was 56 years old, a sober and industrious man and leaves widow and three grown children.

B. O. B. Opening

The B. O. B's., in honor of their third anniversary, entertained their girl friends at the Pears East grain hall, Friday evening, October 7.

About twenty-five were present and light refreshments were served. They departed at a late hour, having spent a most enjoyable evening.

The County Convention

The Berrien County Sunday school association will hold its 26th annual convention at Three Oaks on Oct. 25 and 26. A strong, helpful program will be carried out. The following speakers from outside the county will be present: Rev. F. C. Berger, the State president; Mrs. G. L. Fox, State Primary Supt.; D. B. Allen, president of Van Buren County S. S. Association, and E. K. Mohr, of Grand Rapids. Besides these a large number of the best local workers will take part.

Every Sunday school in the county should next Sunday elect at least two delegates besides the pastor and superintendent, who should always attend. Three Oaks has extended the invitation and every school should send representatives who will spend a couple of days in the interest of the Sunday schools of the county and for the advancement of their own spiritual welfare.

Entertain Their Friends

Mrs. Frank Lamb and Mrs. Tannerson Merrill entertained about sixty of their friends at the home of the former, last night.

The arriving guests were met at the door by Miss Edna Hayden and passed on to the cloak room by Miss Elsie Sellers, thence returning to the parlor where the hostesses stood to receive them.

Games of various kinds provided the entertainment for the evening. Mrs. C. D. Kent winning the prize for the card games and Mrs. W. L. Mercer the prize for finch.

The house was very prettily decorated with autumn leaves and converted the rooms into a veritable bower. Dainty refreshments were served and a very pleasant evening passed by all.

A Great Sensation.

There was a big sensation in Leesville, Ind., when W. H. Brown of that place, who was expected to die, had his life saved by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. He writes: "I endured insufferable agonies from Asthma but your New Discovery gave me immediate relief and soon thereafter effected a complete cure. Similar cures of Consumption, Pneumonia, Bronchitis and Grip are numerous. It's the peerless remedy for all throat and lung troubles. Price 50c, and $1.00. Guaranteed by all druggists. Shipping Peaches to Europe

South Haven, Oct. 13.—The reputation of J. N. Stearns as a fruit grower and packer is such that he recently received two orders, which he shipped Wednesday last, one for three bushels to a party in London, England, the other for one bushel to Cork, Ireland.

The variety sent on this long journey is the Beer's Smock. Mr. Stearns made a similar shipment last year, which left here Sept. 20 and arrived at its destination Sept. 30. The parties receiving the fruit wrote that after they had the fruit a week every peach that had not been eaten was still perfect. The present shipment to England was made to a friend of Wm Shakespeare and the one to Cork to the brother of a Kalamazoo man.

Fifty Years of Wedded Bliss

On October 12, 1854, Mary Clara Lyon and George J. Richerson were united in marriage by the late John Lister, at the home of the bride's father, L. Lyon, on what is now known as the Dutton farm.

Wednesday afternoon and evening of this week the aged couple were helped to celebrate their fiftieth anniversary by the home coming of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Bristol and daughter, June, of Battle Creek, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Richerson and family, of Cassopolis, and Mr. and Mrs. George Otto, of this place. They were kindly remembered by each of the home family and also with a generous gift from Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Gilbert, of Minneapolis, Minn., brother and sister of Mrs. Richerson.

The juvenile population is having a memorable treat in "Babes in Toyland," the new musical extravaganza which is playing at the Grand Opera House, Chicago. When the curtain rises on the second act of Victor Hebert's gorgeous extravaganza, they will see before them the public square in the capital of Toyland and the sight will make them gasp and grow big-eyed. In the middle distance they will see a bridge made all of building blocks, red, green, black and blue, with letters of the blocks fully two feet high. In the background visible through the arch of the bridge they will see the houses and shops of the city; all the roofs are red and the windows swing out and in every window sits a doll baby waiting and watching for the grand military review. A gentle slope leading to the castle of the master toy-maker shines fringed with Christmas trees, with dolls and cornucopia and glowing balls, Noah's arks and popcorn strands growing on them in place of blossoms.

DAYS OF DIZZINESS

Come to Hundreds of Buchanan People

There are days of dizziness; spells of headache, sideache, backache; sometimes rheumatic pains; often urinary disorders. All tell you painfully the kidneys are sick. Doan's Kidney Pills cure all kidney ills. Here is proof.

Mrs. J. Mitten, residing on Regent street, Niles, says: "I took several boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, and they did me a world of good. I had nearly all the symptoms common to kidney complaint, but those which caused me the most trouble and suffering were backache and dizziness. My back was so sore and lame most of the time that I could hardly get around and many a night it pained me so after I went to bed that I had to get up. When the dizzy spells came on which was quite often, I had hard work to keep my balance and staggered when I tried to walk. After I got Doan's Kidney Pills and took them they relieved me so much that I kept using the remedy until my dizziness and backache and other symptoms had entirely left me."

Plenty more proof like this from Buchanan people. Call at the drug store of W. N. Brodrick and ask what his customers report.

For sale by all dealers, price 50c a box, Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name, Doan's, and take no substitute.

Better than ever are the Spiro Fall Clothes for Men and Boys

It is a fact that "nothing succeeds like success"—and it is the success we have had in selling better made, better fitting and better wearing garments for less money than any one else that has made the standard of merit in South Bend, and brought us the greatest clothing business in the city. Of course, we have a decided advantage over other stores when it comes to prices, inasmuch as we buy for our stores at South Bend, Ind., Springfield, Jacksonville and Quincy, Ill., enabling us to buy in very large quantities and at quite a saving in prices over others saving which we gladly share with our patrons. It's the combination of low prices with the highest possible quality that has proved the irresistible inducement.

Progress is our Motto

Will address the meeting.

"What were you proposing to do with the body?"

"Bury it near here, sir, in the cemetery on the hill by the college. We have no means of transporting it hence."

"Well, you shall do so, and we will bury him like a soldier. I remember the family now in England very well. Don't they call them the loyal Talbots? Yes, I thought so. He was a rebel and so far false to his creed, but a gentleman nevertheless, and a brave one too. Look at the fight he made here, gentlemen. He shall have an escort of the king's own troops, and Lord Cornwallis himself and his staff for his chief mourners; eh, Erskine?" said the gallant earl, turning to the officer who rode near him.

"How will that suit you, Mr. Seymour? You can tell that to his poor old mother, too, when you see her once again. Some of you bring up a company of troops and get a gun carriage—there's an abandoned one of Mavhood's over there—and we'll take him up properly. Have you a horse, sir? Ah, that's well. And bring a prayer book if you can find one. I doubt if there be any in my staff. I presume the man was a churchman, and he shall have prayers too. We have no coffin for him either. But, stay; here's my own cloak, a proper shroud for a soldier. Surely that will do nicely. And now let us go on, gentlemen."

In a short time the martial cortege reached the little Presbyterian cemetery. The young man, wrapped in the general's cloak, was soon laid away in the shallow grave which had hastily been made ready for him. Seymour, attended by the two other American officers, Armstrong and Lewis, after cutting off a lock of Talbot's dark hair for his mother, read the burial service out of the young soldier's own little prayer book, which he had found in the pocket of his coat. As the earth was put upon him Cornwallis and his officers stood about reverently uncovered while the sailor read with faltering lips the old familiar words which for twenty centuries have whispered of comfort to the heartbroken children of men and illumined the dark future by an eternal hope—nay, rather, fixed assurance—of life everlasting.

There was one tender hearted woman there too, one of the sweet faced daughters of the kindly Quaker, Miss Clark. She had taken time to twine a hasty wreath from the fragrant ever verdant pine; when the little mound of earth was finished, softly she laid it down, breathing a prayer for the mother in faroff Virginia as she did so. Then they all drew back while the well trained soldiers fired the last three volleys and the drummers beat the last call. "Twas the same simple ending which closes the career of all soldiers of whatever degree when they come to occupy those narrow quarters where earthly considerations of rank and station are forgot.

"Sir, I beg to thank you for this distinguished courtesy," said Seymour, with deep feeling, extending his hand to the knightly Briton.

"Do not mention it, sir, I beg of you," replied Cornwallis, shaking his hand warmly. "You will do the same for one of us, I am sure, should occasion ever demand a like service at your hands. I will see that your other men and officers are properly buried. Do you return now?"

"Immediately, my lord." "Pray present my compliments to Mr.—nay, General—Washington," said the generous commander, "and congratulate him upon his brilliant campaign. Aye, and tell him we look forward eagerly to trying conclusions with him again. Goodby, sir. Come, gentlemen," he cried, raising his hat gracefully as he mounted his horse and rode away, followed by his staff.

CHAPTER XXIX.

IT was with sinking heart that Seymour rode up the hill toward Fairview Hall a few days later. His arrival had not been unnoticed, and Madam Talbot was standing in the doorway to greet him. Seymour bowed low to her, and she returned his salute with a sweeping courtesy, old fashioned and graceful.

"Lieutenant Seymour is very welcome to Fairview Hall, though I trust it be not the compelling necessity of a wound which makes him seek our hospitality again," she said, faintly smiling.

"Oh, madam," said Seymour softly, yet in utter desperation as to how to begin, "unfortunately it is not to be cured of wounds, but to inflict them, that this time I am come. I—I am sorry—that I have to tell you that—!" he continued with great hesitation.

"You are a bearer of ill tidings, I perceive," she continued gravely. "Speak your message, sir. Whatever it may be, I trust the God I serve to give me strength to bear it. Is it—!" she went on, with just a suggestion of a break in her even, carefully modulated tones.

"Yes, dear madam. He—he—" "Stop! I had almost forgotten my duty. Tell me first of the armies of my king—the king first of all with our house, you know."

Poor Seymour! He must overwhelm her with bad news in every field of her affection. For a moment he almost wished the results had been the other way. The perspiration stood out upon his forehead in spite of the coldness, and he felt he would rather charge a battery than face this terrible old woman, who put the armies of a king—and such a king, too—before the fate of her only son! And yet he knew that what he had to tell her would break down even her iron will; and reaching the mother's heart beating warm within her in spite of her assumed coldness and self repression, would probably give her a deathblow.

He felt literally like a murderer before her, but he had to answer. Talbot's own letter, General Washington's command and the promptings of his own affection had made him an actor in this pathetic drama. He had no choice but to proceed. The truth must be told. Nervous himself to the inevitable, he replied to her question.

"The armies of the king have been defeated and forced to retire. General Washington has outmaneuvered and outfought them; they are now shut up in New York again. The Jerseys are free, and we have taken upward of 2,000 prisoners, and many are killed and wounded among them—on both sides, in truth," he added.

"The worst news first," she replied. "One knows not why these things are so. It seems the God of justice slumbers when subjects rebel against their rightful kings! But I have faith, sir. The right will win in the end—must win."

"So be it," he said, accepting the implied challenge, but adding nothing further. He would wait to be questioned now, and this strange woman should have the story in the way that pleased her best. As for her, she could not trust herself to speak. Never before had her trembling body, her beating heart, escaped from the domination of her resolute will. Never before had her mobile lips refused to formulate the commands of her active brain. She fought her battle out in silence and finally turned toward him once more.

"There was something else you said, I think. My—my son?" Her voice sank to a whisper; in spite of herself one hand went to her heart. Ah, mother, mother, this was indeed thy king! "Is—he wounded? My God, sir! Not dead?"

B. D. DENISON'S STORE ENTERED BY ROBBERS TUESDAY NIGHT

Thieves Secured Merchandise to the Amount of $25 but no Money

The grocery store of B. D. Denison was entered by burglars Tuesday night and merchandise consisting of cigars, soap and miscellaneous articles to the extent of about $25 was stolen. A search had been made for money but the thieves failed to find any.

Entrance was gained to the store by smashing the glass in the front door. Ordinarily the crash would have been heard, as Mr. Denison's place of business is on Main street but a few rods from several residences but it is believed the robbers waited until a train passed so the noise would be smothered.

News of the burglary was sent the sheriff's office and deputy Dwan was dispatched to the scene. He found several minor clues but chances of apprehending the robbers are slight.

This is the second time within four months that Mr. Denison's store has been entered by midnight prowlers, the other visitation taking place last spring. Nothing was taken at that time, and it was Mr. Denison's theory that money was the sole object of the would-be thieves.—Galien Advocate.

ADVERTISE IN THE RECORD

For Love of Country

By CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY,
Author of "The Grip of Honor," "The Southerners," "Sir Henry Morgan, Buccaneer," "A Doctor of Philosophy," Etc.

Copyright, 1898, by Charles Scribner's Sons

Details of the British were already marching toward the field of action to engage in the melancholy work of burying the dead when Seymour, under Major Armstrong's guidance, went over the ground in a search for Talbot. He had no difficulty in finding the place where his friend had fallen. The field had not been disturbed by any one. A bloody frozen mass of ice and snow had shown where Mercer had fallen, and across the place where his feet had been lay the body of Talbot. In front of him lay the lieutenant with whom he had fought, the sword still buried in his breast; farther away were the two men that the general and he had cut down in the first onslaught, and at his feet was the corpse of the man he had last shot, his stiffened hands still tightly clasping his gun.

Seymour with a sad heart stooped and turned over the body of his friend, lifting his face once more to that heaven he had gazed upon so bravely a few hours since—for it was morning again, but oh, how different! The face was covered with blood from the wound in the forehead, by which he had been beaten down. Sadly, tenderly, gratefully, remembering an hour when Talbot had knelt by his side and performed a similar service, he endeavored to wipe the lurid stains from off his marble brow. Then a thought came to him. Taking from his breast Katharine's handkerchief, which had never left him, he moistened it in the snow, and, finding an unstained place where her dainty hand had embroidered her initials "K. W.," he carefully wiped clean the white face of his dead friend. There was a little smile upon Talbot's lips and a look of peace and calm upon his face which Seymour had not seen him wear since the sinking of the frigate. His right hand, whiter than the lace which drooped over it, was pressed against his heart, evidently as the result of his last conscious movement. Seymour bent down and lifted it up gently; there was something beneath it inside his waistcoat. The young sailor reverently inserted his hand and drew it forth. It was a plain gold locket. Touching the spring it opened, and there were pictured the faces of the two women Talbot had loved—on the one side the mother, stately, proud, handsome, resolute, the image of the man himself; on the other, the brown eyes and the fair hair and the red lips of beautiful Katharine Wilton. There was a letter, too, in the pocket. The bayonet thrust which had reached his heart had gone through it, and it, and the locket also, was stained with blood. The letter was addressed to Seymour. Wondering, he broke the seal and read it. It was a brief note, written in camp the night of the march. It would seem that Talbot had a presentiment that he might die in the coming conflict; indeed, the letter plainly showed that he meant to seek death, to court it in the field. His mother was to be told that he had done his duty and had not failed in sustaining the traditions of his honorable house; and the honest, soldierly little note ended with these words:

"As for you, my dear Seymour, would that fate had been kinder to you! Were Katharine alive, I would crave your permission to say these words to her: 'I love you, Kate—I've always loved you—but the better man has won you.' My best love to the old mother. Won't you take it to her? And goodby, and God bless you!"

HILARY TALBOT.

"Weeping? Tears do not become a soldier!"

The brilliance went out of the sunshine, the brightness faded out of the morning, and Seymour stood there with the tears running down his cheeks—not ashamed to weep for his friend. And yet the man was with Kate, he thought, and happy—he could almost envy him his quiet sleep. The course of his thoughts was rudely broken by the approach of a party of horsemen who rode up to where he stood. Their leader, a bold, handsome young man of distinguished appearance, in the brilliant dress of a British general officer, reined in his steed close by him and addressed him.

"How now, sir! Weeping? Tears do not become a soldier!"

"Ah, sir," said Seymour, saluting and pointing down to Talbot's body at the same time, "not even when one mourns the death of a friend?"

"Your friend, sir?" replied the general officer courteously, uncovering and looking down at the bodies with interest, his practiced eye immediately taking in the details of the little conflict. "He did not go to his death alone," he said meaningly. "Fore God, sir, here has been a pretty fight! Your name and rank, sir?"

"Lieutenant John Seymour of the American Continental navy, volunteer aid on his excellency General Washington's staff."

"And what do you here? Are you a prisoner?"

"No, sir; I came with Major Lewis to visit General Mercer and to look for my friend under cover of a flag of truce."

"Ha! How is General Mercer?" "Erightfully wounded. He cannot live very long now."

"He was a gallant fellow, so I am told, sir, and fought the father of his majesty in the '45."

"Yes," said Seymour simply. "This is where he fell." The general looked curiously about him.

"And who was your dead friend?" he continued.

"Captain Hilary Talbot of Virginia, of General Washington's staff."

"What! Not Talbot of Fairview Hall on the Potomac?" said one of the officers.

"The same, sir."

"Gad, my lord, Madam Talbot's a red-hot Tory! She swears by the king. I've been entertained at the house—not when the young man was there, but while he was away—and a fine place it is. Well, here's a house divided truly!"

"Is it indeed so, Mr. Seymour?" The young man nodded affirmatively.
