

RAISE FOR MR. BARR

Salary of Probate Register Increased to $75 A Month. Proposition Carried By a Vote of 18 to 13, Representing the Strength of Republicans and Democrats

By a vote of 18 to 13 representing the strength of the democrats and republicans on the board, the supervisors Wednesday morning passed a motion raising the salary of the probate register to $75 per month.

The original motion was for an increase to $60 per month but an amendment was made and carried providing that the increase should be $25 per month.

The office of probate register, as assistant to the judge of probate, carried with it great responsibility in matters concerning estates, and Mr. R. E. Barr, who has served under Judge Ellsworth, has been faithful to his duties. For some time it had been considered that the salary was too meager.

Mr Barr is a Buchanan boy and his many friends here will be pleased to learn of his good fortune.

Sold 5,000 Ginseng Seeds

George C. Tappan made a shipment of ginseng seed today to Seattle, Washington. There were 5 000 seeds in the little package and for them, Mr. Tappan received the snug sum of $75 cash, or at the rate of a cent and a half a seed. This shipment was contained in a one quarter pint baking powder can, so that proportionate to its bulk it was about as valuable a package as has been shipped across the continent in many a day.

Mr. Tappan is beginning to realize results from his little garden plantation on Oak street, having already sold this season $180 worth from a patch that occupies a portion of his garden along the fence.

He has given intelligent study to the subject of ginseng culture and his unbounded faith in the industry is already beginning to bear fruit and profit, as will be seen—Niles Sun.

A Thoughtful Man.

M. M. Austin, of Winchester, Ind., knew what to do in the hour of need. His wife had such an unusual case of stomach and liver trouble, physicians could not help her. He thought of and tried Dr. King's New Life Pills and she got relief at once and was finally cured. Only 25c, at all Drug stores.

613 The Number

The Rickett automobile, owned at Niles was raffled off at Hammond, Ind., Monday and ticket No. 613 was the lucky one.

Quite a number of tickets were bought by Buchanan people, and yesterday morning Frank Merson electrified the people by the announcement that he held that number. Frank has been promising to take all of his friends riding.

October's Stone—The Opal

"October's child is born for woe,
And life's vicissitudes must know;
But lay an opal on her breast,
And hope will lull those woes to rest."

Sir Walter Scott was really very much to blame, though it all came about innocently enough.

He wanted a superstition that could be used in connection with some gem—couldn't find what he wanted, ready-made, so invented one, on the spur of the moment, that did just as well, but made trouble for years for the opal trade.

Woven in and out of the plot of one of his novels were references to an opal—an heirloom—that lost its fire at the approach of ill fortune to any of the family.

Everybody read the story, of course, and commented upon the opal end of it, with the result that a feeling of dread became unconsciously associated with the stone. Women went so far as to refuse to allow it in their homes, while even matter-of-fact men—wouldn't wear it.

But the stone was so beautiful that, by degrees, its "baleful influence" began to be less believed in. The superstition was investigated, and proved to have its origin in a mere bit of fiction. Other superstitions were looked up, and to the surprise of almost everyone, were all found to be connected with good luck it brought.

Now more opals are sold—and worn—each year, and when a stone dulls, its wearer, instead of flinging it away in positive fear, takes it to her jeweler to be repolished.

The best opals come from Hungary and Australia, and are about equal in value, though Hungarian opals are considered the finer of the two.

From Mexico come opals, too—good ones but not to be compared with the other richer stones.

Scientists say that the colors in opals come from tiny fissures in the stone, that reflect the rays of light as colors.

In olden times, people called it the jewel of hope, and believed that every color it showed was borrowed from some other stone and carried the other stone's especial good luck with it. Opals with plenty of fire carried the ruby luck, that of courage and strength; green stones brought emerald luck—faithfulness and renewal of hope; blue, turquoise luck, prosperity.

This year the settings have got away from the purely fanciful, and gone over to plain gold settings. Curious coils of snakes—symbolizing wisdom and health—set off a true fire opal, while a princess ring is made stunning by tiny emeralds that surround the stones and call out the green tones.

30 Club.

The 30 Club met with Mrs. Blake Wednesday, Oct. 19. Opening exercises were conducted by the vice president, in the absence of the president.

A paper "The English of Shakespeare" was read by Mrs. Cook. Romeo and Juliet, act V, was in charge of Mrs. Wells who gave a thorough review of the entire play. Music furnished by Miss Vera Jennings was an instrumental solo played by Miss Jenks, who very kindly responded to a hearty encore. Roll call was quotations from the play just studied. A paper "Michael Angelo as a painter and His Love for Victoria Coloma" read by Miss Wilcox, brought to light a very pretty love story. "Michael Angelo as a Sculpture" a paper read by Mrs. Bishop was well prepared and spoke of several of his most noted pieces of sculpture. "The Last Judgment" Angelo's masterpiece was the subject of a paper by Mrs. Curtis and was enjoyed by all.

The club will meet with Mrs. Peck next week.

"U. S. Corn Cure for ladies is good for men too. I travel all over the United States but have found nothing equal to it, one bottle took the soreness out of two very bad corns and took the corns out in a few days." Mr. M. P. Fox, New York City. Price 15c or two bottles for 25c at Dr. E. S. Dodd & Son.

A Numerical Mistake

"Private" John Allen tells us of an oldtime politician of Mississippi who was making a personal canvass of his territory.

"One day," relates Mr. Allen, "the statesman was doing the southern portion of the state. Suddenly he struck a community that appeared fairly a-swarm with children. Never had he seen so many little ones in so small a place. Clustering about one doorway were some fourteen tots of various ages. In their midst stood an extremely good-looking young woman.

"Madam," said the politician, with a gallant bow, 'you must permit me to kiss these charming little ones.' "The woman merely smiled. "After he had affectionately saluted each of them, he asked, with a genial smile, 'All yours?'

"The young woman blushed. "The statesman, with another bow then said, 'I trust, madam, that I may further trespass upon your good-nature by asking that you will be so good as to inform your husband that Colonel— candidate for congress from this district called upon him this afternoon.'

"Pardon me," gasped the woman, 'but I have no husband!'

"But these children, madam!' exclaimed the astonished statesman. "You are not a widow?'

"Oh, no sir,' was the reply. 'This is an orphan asylum!'"—October Home Companion.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, is narrated by John Oliver of Philadelphia, as follows: "I was in an awful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite, growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Then I was advised to use Electric Bitters; to my great joy, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50c, guaranteed at all drug stores.

Not a Bad Fault

Paterson, N. J., Oct. 20—The unpopularity of the candidates placed at the head of the Democratic ticket for election in November was made manifest in the courtroom at Paterson Saturday morning. It occurred while Judge Scott was taking the affidavit of a number of persons who took out their naturalization papers. The central figure was a typical Russian, with a long beard. The man was 55 years old. His beard was sprinkled with gray, and he was slightly bent with age.

His papers were being prepared, and he stepped before the judge to take his oath. The judge looked the man over, and asked:

"Can you read and write English?"

"Yes, a little," was the reply in broken English.

"Where do you live? What state is it?" came the double query.

"Passaic."

"Do you understand me? What state do you reside in? What state is this?" asked the judge in a quick stern voice.

The man shrugged his shoulders and made no answer.

Again the court asked, "Don't you know which one of the United States this is?"

"Oh, yes, I know; New Jersey."

"There is going to be an election soon?"

"Yes an election," said the man.

"What for?"

"President," replied the man being catechized.

"Who is running for the office?"

"Mr. Roosevelt," came the prompt reply.

"What is he now?"

"President."

"Who is running against Mr. Roosevelt?" asked the court.

To this the man made no answer, except to move his shoulders and look uncomfortable.

"Don't you understand me?" asked the court.

"I don't know," the man replied.

"What! Don't know who is running for the office of President against Mr. Roosevelt?"

"No."

"Rejected," said the court.

At this exclamation Lawyer Wood McKee stepped up and, addressing the court, said: "Your honor, this seems unfair. This man is entitled to his papers as many other men you have made into American citizens."

"What! You would say that the court is unfair in rejecting such a man as this? He is too ignorant to have his first papers, let alone become a ward of Uncle Sam," was the prompt and stern reply of the court.

"Yes, your honor," returned Mr. McKee, "but there is not one man in 10,000 who knows who is running against President Roosevelt."

"That is true," returned the court. "I will sign the papers."

With what consistency or sincerity can the man who neglects his duty at the caucus and leaves it for his neighbor to perform, complain of that neighbor for the manner in which he performs it? Is he the man to reproach others for performing the duty he shirked, and call a "machine"?

Judge Cahill said in his Ann Arbor speech that such a man is not a good citizen, and it fits Prof. Ferris like a wet shirt. For twenty years, as he confessed in a speech to his own neighbors in Big Rapids, he had not taken any part in their conventions; and now he is going up and down the state denouncing those who have done so as "the machine."

CORRESPONDENCE

WEST BERTRAND.

W. J. Tarrant, wife and Mrs. Sweet took dinner with Mrs. H. I. Cauffman, Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Swank visited their daughter, Florence, in South Bend, Sunday.

A small party assembled at A. Dalrymple's Saturday evening, for another social dance.

The party telephone line to Dayton was finished Tuesday.

John Leiter has sold his place south of the high bridge to Richard Keen, of Buchanan.

BERRIEN SPRINGS.

Mrs. Wm. Graham, of Niles township, visited at the Shaker Farm Saturday and Sunday.

Six children from the Hopkins family entered school at district No. 9, last week.

G. N. Otwell, principal of the Berrien Springs school, was elected county examiner last Saturday.

V. Harrington and wife have gone to New York for several weeks visit.

DAYTON

Mrs. S. Martin visited her daughter, Mrs. John Burrs, Thursday.

Jessie Leggett went to Lansing, Monday morning, as a delegate to the Grand Lodge I. O. O. F.

Mrs. B. Redding and daughter, Hazel, returned to their home here, Friday night.

Rev. Royer closed his meetings here Wednesday evening, until next Monday evening.

Frank Redding, of Niles, was in town Monday.

Miss Maude Matthews went to Chicago, Sunday.

Mrs. Edna Weaver and children are visiting relatives near New Carlisle, this week.

Mr. Petterson moved on his farm last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Wentland and sister, of Texas, are visiting relatives here.

Mrs. Laura Smith, of New Carlisle; Mrs. A. C. Weaver, of Dayton, Mrs. John Broceus, of Buchanan and Mrs. Gussie Griffin, of Sundance, Wyoming, visited at the home of Mrs. Lou Smith in Buchanan, last Thursday.

GLENORA

Fall work well under headway. Many are husking corn.

Miss Rua Kempton, of Sylvester, Mich., is spending a few weeks with her relatives in this vicinity.

Mrs. Ives has been tending the post office during the absence of Mr. Kimbel, who spent a few days in Dowagiac.

Mrs. Lydia Weaver was called suddenly to Cassopolis, on account of the sickness of her sister, Mrs. Minnie Dunbar.

Frank Orris has secured a position as motorman on the electric railroad in South Bend, his duties to begin at once.

Mr. Frank Henderson gave two temperance lectures at the Christian church, last week. From a christian and political standpoint they ought to have been very convincing for prohibition.

The I. O. O. F. sent Mr. Louis Paul and the Rebekah's sent Mrs. Carrie Pennell to represent their orders at the state convention in Lansing, this week.

Mr. Albert Shepardson and family spent Tuesday of this week in St. Joseph.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Boyce, Sr., started for South Bend, Tuesday, to visit their daughter, Mrs. Milton Parmenter.

There are several cases of chicken pox in town.

Alvin Morley and James Raber each took a load of truck to South Bend on Tuesday.

Granger & Hatch have put in a set of scales in front of their store.

BENTON HARBOR.

Attorney Jim O'Hara estimates that this county has a population of 50,000.

The coming election is making about 75 foreigners hustle in St. Joseph for naturalization papers.

The officers of the W. H. M. S. of the M. E. church entertained Wednesday afternoon at a "Rally Day," at the home of Mrs. Geo. Bakeman.

Instead of the difficult game of football expected last Saturday, our team rolled up a score of 64 to 0 against the South Havens. Knocking them out of sight of the championship.

There have been several small fires lately. One Sunday evening in Young's dry goods store was caused by the dropping of a piece of carbon from an electric light, which would have caused very great loss, had it not soon been discovered.

A big crowd is expected at the football game at Eastman Springs, next Saturday. Our boys expect to have their hands full if they defeat the heavy, fast team from Englewood. It will not be an interscholastic game however, so the state championship will not be endangered.

A Republican club was organized last Saturday night with C. K. Farmer, Pres.; J. J. Sterling, Vice Pres.; Ezra Kelley, Sec.; and Geo. Weldon, Treas. The club has arranged for a special train to your village Friday night, to hear Warner and Hamilton. Fare 50c round trip. These speakers will be entertained in the Twin cities during the afternoon.

Col. Bean failed in getting an extension of his franchise (which runs however for quite a number of years more) as the council this time utterly refused to come to his terms. Tuesday night the council granted a franchise to McMichael and others to build his interurban road here from Dowagiac. The citizens generally, are pleased that we are to have two street railways instead of one.

IN MEMORIAM

MARCUS CARPENSER

Marcus Carpenter, one of eight children, of Richard and Sarah Carpenter of Springfield, Ohio was born June 4, 1821 in Norton, Summit Co. Ohio and died in Buchanan October 15, 1904, aged 83 years 4 month 11 days.

He was married to Martha Lape Aug. 1, 1860 in Delta, Ohio and came to the farm in Buchanan which he purchased the preceding March. Here they have lived and reared their children. Two sons and a daughter were born to them, who with their mother mourn his death. Amos E. and Sarah O. wife of Frederick Briggs lives in Weesaw and Sanford E. with his parents. Two of his brothers, L. L., of Wabash, Ind. and Lewis, of Decatur and a sister Mrs. Mary Gibson, of Madison, Iowa, are still living.

He was converted over fifty years ago and united with the First Day Adventists of Buchanan. After his marriage his wife being a member of the Christian church he joined with her in the fellowship of that denomination. Some years since they changed to the Reformed Dunkards of New Troy, Mich. with whom he continued through life.

He chose for his funeral text, Paul's words in 1 Timothy 4:7, 8. The funeral services were held at his residence Tuesday Oct. 18, at 10 a. m. Sermon preached by Rev. J. C. Beach Music by Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Bradley, Mrs. Mary Bates and Mrs. Ada Kinney. The interment was in Weesaw Cemetery, near Glendora. Another name is thus added to the rapidly lengthening list of departed pioneers.

Babies in Toyland

The last week of "Babies in Toyland's" extraordinary engagement at the Grand Opera House, Chicago, is announced and souvenirs are promised in honor of the 150th performance, Monday, Oct. 24. These souvenirs of one of the most successful runs in Chicago's theatrical history will be up to the Grand's usual standard, and already the announcement has occasioned an unusual demand for seats at the box office.

Who would not like to live in Toyland where sun never ceases to shine and where all the trees are Christmas trees and the bridges and streets are made and paved with bright building blocks? And then out upon the bridge steps a wooden trumpeter who blows a blast on his wooden trumpet. At the signal all the dwellers in the city—and they are all toys—come tumbling into the square. Another blast. Then comes the measured tread of soldiers. Four by four, wooden, shiny, stiff, they file across the bridge. Their varnished hats reflect the yellow sun high in the sky and they don't bend their knees, but walk just as you would expect wooden soldiers to walk and form in line as straight as a string behind the Dutch dolls in wooden shoes, who dance their delight in the sunshine of the public square. Then the Master Toymaker comes and personally presents the soldiers he has made to the city, and there is great rejoicing. The wooden soldiers each choose a partner from the prettiest of the girl toys and participate in a fantastic quadrille.

Better than ever are the Spiro Fall Clothes for Men and Boys

It is a fact that "nothing succeeds like success"—and it is the success we have had in selling better made, better fitting and better wearing garments—for less money than any one else that has made the standard of merit in South Bend, and brought us the greatest clothing business in the city. Of course, we have a decided advantage over other stores when it comes to prices, inasmuch as we buy for four stores: at South Bend, Ind.; Springfield, Jacksonville and Quincy, Ill., enabling us to buy in very large quantities and at quite a saving in prices over others saving which we gladly share with our patrons. It's the combination of low prices with the highest possible quality that has proved the irresistible inducement.

Spiro Clothes

Progress is our Motto

We give you this fall better cloth, better tailoring, better lining, better trimmings, etc.—lowering prices where prices can be lowered—in short always striving to give you a little more than you expect. This is why we keep old friends, make new ones and satisfy everyone who wears SPIRO CLOTHES. And this is why our clothes are better than ever before.

Come in and see our new Fall Styles

We show an immense line of new fall suits and overcoats for men and boys.

An entirely new stock of fall hats, caps and gloves.

The largest stock in the city of fall furnishings, neckwear and underwear.

Dustan Guilty

Fred Dustan, of Niles, charged with assaulting the 12 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Knauff, was formed guilty at St. Joseph, Wednesday, by a jury after they had deliberated two hours over the testimony. Dustan, it will be remembered, is the young man that was married on the stage of the Niles opera house, last spring, during a play. He was fireman at the Garden City Fan Works.

A Great Sensation.

There was a big sensation in Leesville, Ind., when W. H. Brown of that place, who was expected to die, had his life saved by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. He writes: "I endured insufferable agonies from Asthma but your New Discovery gave me immediate relief and soon thereafter effected a complete cure. Similar cures of Consumption, Pneumonia, Bronchitis and Grip are numerous. It's the peerless remedy for all throat and lung troubles. Price 50c, and $1.00. Guaranteed by all druggists. Found He Courted a Man

James Perryman of LaPorte read the advertisement of "Mrs. E. C. Franks" of Bayonne, N. Y., to the effect that she would share a fortune of $70,000 with the man she could learn to love. He then courted the supposed widow by mail and she promised to marry him. He forwarded her money with which to come to LaPorte to have the ceremony solemnized. That was the last heard of Mrs. Franks who proves to be a man. The swindler is in custody of the federal authorities.

Investigation develops the fact that Franks had several scores of victims in Indiana, from each of whom he obtained a contribution.

was most anxious to get the help of some of the South Carolina state cruisers to go in search of the British ships. The indefatigable Governor Rutledge, when the news had been communicated to him, had worked assiduously to provide the state ships, and the young captain of the Randolph speedily found himself at the head of a little fleet of war vessels outward bound.

The departure of the squadron, the Randolph in the lead, the rest following and all under full sail, made a pretty picture to the enthusiastic Carolinians, who watched them from the islands and fortifications in the harbor and from a number of small boats which accompanied the warships a short distance on their voyage. Beside Seymour's own vessel there were the eighteen gun ship General Moultrie, the two sixteen gun ships Notre Dame and Polly and the fourteen gun brig Fair American, the last commanded by a certain master, Philip Wilton. They made officers of very young men in those days, and mere boys often occupied positions of trust and responsibility apparently far beyond their years. Even Seymour himself, though now a commodore or flag officer by courtesy, was very young for the position, and Governor Rutledge, moved by a warm friendship of long standing for old Colonel Wilton and upon Seymour's own urgent recommendation, had intrusted the smallest vessel to young Captain Philip. We shall see how he showed himself worthy of the trust reposed in him in spite of his tender years.

Forward on the fore-castle old Bentley was planted, surrounded by such of the older and more experienced petty officers and men as he permitted to associate with him on terms of more or less familiarity. Not only the position he occupied, that of boatswain of the frigate, gave him a vast importance with the men, but his age and experience, his long association with the captain, as well as some almost incredible tales of his familiar companionship with certain men of awe inspiring name and great renown, with various mighty feats of arms in recent campaigns, vaguely current, conducted to make him the monarch of the fore-castle and the arbiter of the various discussions and arguments among the men, who rarely ventured to dispute the dictum of their oracle.

"Well, here we are pointing out again, thank the Lord!" he said to his particular friend and comrade among the crew, the carpenter, Richard Spicer, a battered old shellback, like himself "There is only one place from which I like to see the land, Richard."

"And where is that, bos'un?"

"Over the stern, as now, mate, when we're going free with a fair wind and leaving it fast behind. I feel safer then."

Six rather uneventful days passed by, during which prizes to the number of five fell to the lot of the squadron, one loaded with military stores and another with provisions of great value. The lively little Fair American, being far to windward of the fleet, had also a smart action with a heavily armed British privateer, which struck her flag before the others could get within range and was found to be loaded with valuable portable goods, the siftings of a long and successful cruise. Young Wilton had maneuvered and fought his ship well and had been publicly complimented in general orders by Seymour for skill and gallantry. The fleet had been exercised in signals and in various simple evolutions, the weather was most pleasant, the men in excellent spirits, and all that was necessary to complete their happiness was the appearance of the looked for squadron of the enemy. The eager lookouts swept the seas unwearyingly, but in vain, until early in the afternoon of the sixth day, the fleet being in longitude 65 degrees 15 minutes west, latitude 14 degrees 30 minutes north, about forty leagues east of Martinique, heading due west on the starboard tack, it was reported to Seymour, who was reading in the cabin, that the Fair American, again far in the lead and somewhat to windward, had signaled a large sail ahead. A short time should make her visible if the vessels continued on the present course, and after having called his fleet about him by signal Seymour stood on for a nearer look at the stranger. An hour later she was visible from the deck of the Randolph, a very large ship, evidently a man-of-war under easy sail. The careful watchers could count three tiers of guns through the glass, which proclaimed her a ship of the line. Seymour at once formed a desperate resolution. Signaling to the four state cruisers and the six prizes to tack to the northeast, escape if possible and afterward make the best of their way back to Charleston, he himself stood on with the little Randolph to engage the mighty stranger.

In a few moments the familiar tones of Bentley's powerful voice, seconded by the cheery calls of his mates, rang through the frigate:

"All hands clear ship for action! Ahoy!"

The piercing whistling of the pipes which followed was soon drowned by the steady and stirring roll of the drums, accompanied by the shrill notes of the fifes, beating to quarters.

His open hand, which he had extended to her, held two little objects. What were they? The bright sunlight was reflected from one of them, the locket she had given him. There was a dark discoloration on one side of it which she had never seen before. The other was his prayer book. O God—prayer! Was there then a God, that such things could happen? Where was he that day? She had given that book to him when he was yet a child. "Dead"—she whispered—"dead!" shrinking back and staring at him.

"Would God I had died in his place, dear madam!" he said with infinite pity.

"How—how was it?" she went on, dry eyed, in agony, moistening her cracking lips.

"Fighting like a hero over the body of General Mercer at Princeton. His men retreated and left them."

"The rebel cowards!" she interrupted.

"Nay, not cowards, but perhaps less brave than he. The British charged with their bayonets. Our men had not that weapon. They fell back."

"Were you there, sir?"

"Surely not. Should I be here now if I had been there then, madam?" he replied proudly.

"True, true. You at least are a gentleman. Forgive the question."

"General Mercer and some of his officers sprang at the line. I had it from his own lips. Some one cut the general down. Hilary interposed and enabled him to rise to his feet. They were attacked, fought bravely until—until—they died."

Stricken to the death at least, but determined to die as the rest had died, fighting, she drew herself up resolutely and lifted her hand to that pitiless heaven above her. "So—be—it—unto—all—the—enemies!" When had he heard her say that before? He wondered in horror. She stopped. Her face went white before him; the light went out of it.

"Oh, my son, my son—O God, my son, my son—oh, give him back, my son—my son!" She reeled and fell against him, moaning and beating the air with her little, feeble hands. The break had come at last. She was no longer a Talbot, but a woman. With infinite pity and infinite care he half led, half carried her into the house, and then, after being bidden not to summon assistance, he sank down on his knees by her side, where she lay on the sofa in the parlor, crushed, broken, feeble, helpless, old. With many interruptions he told her the sad story. He laid the long dark lock of hair he had cut from her son's head in her hand. There was a letter from George Washington which he read to her, in which, after many tender words of consolation, he spoke of Talbot as "one who would have done honor to any country." He told her of that military funeral, the kind words of Cornwallis, the guard of honor, the soldiers of the king, and then he put Talbot's own letter to him before her, and she must be told of the loss of the frigate. Kate dead, too, and Colonel Wilton! Alas, poor friends! But all her plans and hopes were gone. What mattered it—what mattered anything now?

"Oh, what a load must those unrighteous men bear before God who have inaugurated this wicked war!" she cried, but no echo of her reproach was heard in the houses of parliament in London or whispered in the ante-chamber of the king, to whom, assuredly, they belonged.

And by and by he left her. It wrung his heart so to do, but the call of duty was stronger than her need. His ship was ready, or would be in a short time, and he had snatched a few days from his pressing work to fulfill this task. His presence was absolutely necessary on the vessel, and he must go. Saying nay to her piteous plea that he should stay, and most reluctantly refusing her proffers of hospitality, and after leaving with her the letters and the pictures, he left the room. But in the doorway he looked back at her. The tears had come at last. Moved by a sudden impulse, he ran back and knelt down by her side and took her old face between his hands and kissed her. "Goodby, dear madam," he whispered; "would it had been I!"

She laid her thin hands upon his head.

"Goodby," she whispered; "God bless you. Oh, my boy—my boy!" She turned her face to the wall in bitterness, and so he fled.

On the brow of the hill one could see, if he were keen eyed, the Wilton place. There was the boathouse. There she had said she loved him. He struck spurs to his horse and galloped madly away. Was there nothing but grief and sorrow, then, under the sun?

The lawyer and the doctor and the minister were with Madam Talbot all that day, but it was little they could

He looked back at her. She added a codicil to her will with the lawyer, submissively took the medicine the doctor left her and listened quietly to the prayers of the priest. In the morning they found her whiter, stiller, calmer than ever. She had gone to meet her son in that new country where none rebel against the King!

CHAPTER XXX.

IT was a delightful morning in February. The Continental ship Randolph, a tight little thirty-two gun frigate, the first to get to sea of those ordered by congress in 1775, was just leaving the beautiful harbor of Charleston, S. C., by way of the main ship channel on her maiden cruise, under the command of Captain John Seymour, late first lieutenant of the Ranger. This was the second departure she had taken from that port. Forced by severe damages, incurred in an encounter with a heavy gale shortly after leaving Philadelphia, to put into that harbor for needed repairs to the new and unsettled vessel, she had put to sea again after a short interval and in one week had taken six valuable prizes, one of them, an armed vessel of twenty guns, after a short action. After this brief and brilliant excursion she had put back to Charleston to dispose of her prizes, re-collect her prize crews and land her prisoners.

There was another motive, however, for the sudden return. From one of the prizes it had been learned that the English thirty-two gun frigate Carrysford, the twenty gun sloop Perseus, the sixteen gun sloop Hinchinbrook, with several privateers, had been cruising off the coast together, and the commander of the Randolph
