DEP. GAME WARDEN

PENSION EMPLOYES

Brewster of Grand Rapids Has Been Dismissed by Chapman

Sault Ste. Marie, Nov. 15.—Charles H. Chapman, state game and fish warden, has dismissed Chief Deputy Charles E. Brewster, of Grand Rapids because of items in his expense account deemed unnecessary, and has appointed in his place ex-mayor Charles K. Hoyt, of Grand Haven, former member of the state legislature. Hoyt has been in the service under the Chapman regime.

Brewster won distinction as deputy by capturing some fishing tugs off Benton Harbor and St. Joseph about two years ago, after they had violated the law and tried to escape by crossing the Indiana line. He commenced service under Congressman William Alden Smith, and has served successively under Smith, Osborn, Morse and Chapman.

The dismissal of Brewster is said to be the outgrowth of an investigation of his accounts by the legislature of 1901, when it was claimed that he was using his office as a source of graft. It is understood that Chapman demurred against appointing him to his staff, but that he was prevailed upon to make the appointment by Gov. Bliss, who wished in this way to make good promises to several of his political friends.

It is believed in Lansing that Chief Deputy Game Warden Brewster's expense account was simply an excuse for his dismissal from service, and that back of this there is some other reason. Brewster's expenses were no higher than they have been for years, and the auditor general's accounts showing them to be from $75 to $100, and every expense account had been approved by Chapman.

It is believed that State Game Warden Chapman wanted to show his independence of Gov. Bliss, as the latter was not consulted and knew nothing about Brewster's dismissal. It was at the suggestion of Gov. Bliss that Brewster was made chief deputy.

Mr. Brewster is quite well known in Buchanan having visited here a number of times.

System May Be Adopted By The M. C.

Jackson, Mich., Nov. 17.—An effort is being made to establish a general pension system for Michigan Central railway employees, last week a mass meeting of all classes of railroad workers was held for the purpose of deciding upon what course to take in the formation of the new system. It was learned that the officials of the road are willing to meet the men half way and delegates will be chosen from all organized branches of the employes to meet with the officers and lay plans in the near future.

It is thought the system to be adopted will be for the men to pay a prorata amount according to the wages they receive and the pensions will be graded along the same basis. It is understood that General Manager L'Hommedieu, of Detroit wants the unorganized men to share in the general pension system and steps will be taken to let them have a representation in the meeting to consider plans. Muir Snow, superintendent of the central division, was present at the mass meeting and made an official address.

DAYTON

Miss Emma Richter and pupils will give an entertainment Thursday evening, Nov. 24.

Mrs. Edna Weaver joined the Patricians Tuesday evening, Nov. 8. A fine supper was served and all went home rejoicing.

Mrs. A. C. Weaver received word from Chicago Monday that her brother, E. D. Phillips, was dangerously ill.

Mrs. Lydia Dempsey and children, of Bakertown, visited in town Friday. The rural telephone is very handy, especially when one wants to find a business man after his day's work is done.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Salsbury and son visited Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Denney, Sunday.

John Hall and bride, of Dowagiac, visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hall, over Sunday. John has been married about two weeks, but did not tell any body. We wish them good luck and lots of happiness.

"I owe my whole life to Burdock Blood Bitters. Scrofulous sores covered my body. I seemed beyond cure. B. B. B. made me a perfectly well woman." Mrs. Chas. Hutton, Ber-ville, Mich.

Parcel Shower

The Happy-Go-Lucky club gave a parcel shower to their fellow member Miss Winifred Noble, at the home of Bay Redden Tuesday night.

The affair was a complete surprise to Miss Noble, who was quietly playing cards when she was suddenly enveloped by a shower of parcels of all kinds and sizes the contents of which were varied and beautiful and much merriment was occasioned by opening them. After which to strains of music furnished by Mrs. Glen Smith All repaired to the dining room which was artistically decorated with hearts draped from the ceiling to the corners of the table which was brightly lighted by candles. In the center of the table stood a bride in miniature with bridal veil and orange blossoms carrying in her hands a beautiful bouquet of red and white carnations, the club colors. These were later presented to Miss Noble and given as favors.

A dainty three course luncheon was served after which the following toasts were responded to Miss Georgia Wilcox acting as toast mistress.

"Marriage as it appear to be., by Miss Noble. Marriage as it really is, Mrs. Desenberg. 'The bride of one year' Florence Watson. 'After the baby comes,' Mrs. Glen Smith. 'Wife without a man,' Kathryn Kingery. As these toasts were impromptu much merriment was caused thereby. After wishing Miss Noble a long and happy life the guests departed.

Lecture Course

The second number on the lecture course will be given at the Evangelical church next Wednesday evening, at 8:15 p. m. The entertainment will be furnished by Edwin Kendall Hill, who is an impersonator of the first order and is highly recommended by audiences who have heard him from the Atlantic to the Pacific. He impersonates about fifty characters in looks, voice and actions, without the use of powder, paints, wigs or rags. He is assisted in the entertainment by Mrs. Hill who is a harpist of rare ability. It is said of her that she is "one of the few natural born harpists." She is a perfect master of her instrument. Her harp was exhibited at the World's Fair in Chicago, in 1893, it having formally been owned by Aptomas, the famous favorite harpist of European royalty. Those attending this entertainment can hear the same old harp that has stirred with exquisite joy the souls of kings and queens.

Admission to Hill entertainment Wednesday, Nov. 23, 85c, 10 cents extra for reserved seats. Children's tickets 25 cents, 10 cents extra for reserved seats. Secure your seats early at the Racket. Season tickets still for sale at the Racket. Three more numbers are to follow: Ferguson's Dixie Jubilee Concert Co., Feb. 14, The Otterbein Male Quartette and Miss Truitt, Jan. 27 and L. B. Nickersham, lecture, Mar. 8.

ASKS BIG DAMAGES

Mable Clarke of South Bend Sues Grand Trunk Railroad

South Bend, Nov. 17.—Mable Clarke, one of the trio of girls, who figured in an accident at the Lafayette street crossing of the Grand Trunk Western railroad company several months ago, has filed suit in the circuit court asking for $5,000 damages, alleging she is permanently injured and has expended large sums of money for doctor bills and services.

In her complaint Miss Clarke alleges that at the time of the accident the railroad company was violating a city ordinance in not sounding the proper alarms and warning at street crossings and also that the train was running at a higher rate of speed than that allowed by the statutes. The suit was filed by Talbot & Talbot. Kittie Hough was instantly killed in the same accident and Lola Houghton was badly injured.

The Chicago Market Letter

Weekly review of grain trade and exceptional market conditions furnished exclusively to the Buchanan Record by the house of Fyfe, Manson & Company, Board of Trade, Chicago.

In wheat the simple proposition for the owner of the cash property and the trader in futures is this: The market must in the end be made on the supply and demand. The supply is certain to be reduced; demand is certain to overtake supply. There is another proposition which seems just as plain; if, while supplies exceed demand, the prices are held firm or advanced, what will be the natural action when demands are in excess of supply? For the week past prices reached a level 4 to 5c over low point of previous week. Net gains were 1 1/2 to 2 1/2c. This gain was made while the flour trade was dull, while the rains modified the dry weather and Hessian fly complaints and while stocks of wheat increased.

There are numerous reasons for the support which forced prices higher. There was a drop in the Argentine supply. That country had wet weather and frosts south of Buenos Ayres injuring the approaching harvests. For the first time in weeks Liverpool reported Russian wheats held dearer. It will not be long until ice will stop Russian ports and Europe, in case of accident to the Argentine provinces turn to America to try to buy breadstuffs. Spring wheat receipts at Northwest markets fell off for the week 995 cars. All western markets had on three different days nearly 500,000 bus. daily less than same days last year.

One powerful local interest is bearish and short, declaring that a break of 10c is due. No doubt a decline of half that much would allow the big short lines to be covered nicely. Meanwhile, twenty other interests are waiting for even a moderate drop in price to accumulate lines for the future. There is a Wall street holding in wheat which may become a dead weight if liquidated or a great bull force if held and enlarged. With the lines drawn in this way the market may easily turn on one thing, the falling off in receipts. Another thing fortifies buyers; they see little chance for a break in contracts for December or May while cash prices are at a premium over futures in all markets. This is the fire which keeps up the steam.

Corn traders are crossing a bridge between the old and the new crops. The last of the old corn is going East at fancy prices. The first arrivals of new corn are bringing prices from 45 to 53c, regardless of the water which makes the receipts $4 and no grade. This is the situation which favors buyers temporarily. Will the squeeze for cash corn during the next fortnight force the December price so high as to alarm the short sellers for May? This influence has already lifted the May price from 45 to 47c. But there is before the trade the 2,450 million crop. Illinois, Nebraska and Iowa have bumper yields and they are the great shippers. It looks like sense to expect that these states will move a mountain of new corn before this month ends and that supplies will be burdensome before the year ends. Advance in May price for any reason should invite selling.

There is gradual hardening of oats prices, absence of selling pressure, prospect that sales from present stocks will cause removal of hedges and this likely to result in a more active market.

NEED OF DEPOT MASTER DEMONSTRATED

The need of a depot master or some one to aid passengers at the Michigan Central depot was clearly demonstrated Saturday. Twenty-five or thirty people, including the members of the "Queen of the Highway" theatrical company, got off the 8:35 train from the west and rushed to the lunch counter. While they were being served the train pulled out without a warning of any kind to the crowd of passengers that they were being left behind minus hats or wraps of any kind. When the last coach had passed the depot the crowd realized the situation and made a grand rush for the platform. One lady grasped the handles and was dragged aboard, while the spectators held their breaths in fear that she was about to be killed. Such a commotion was caused that the conductor finally stopped the train. Men, women and children gave an exhibition of their sprinting abilities and boarded the train about a block east of the Franklin street crossing. The company was enroute to Niles and other eastern places, where they will appear before showing here on the 19th.—Michigan City Dispatch.

A Sure Thing

It is said that nothing is sure but death and taxes, but that is not altogether true. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption is a sure cure for all lung and throat troubles. Thousands can testify to that. Mrs. C. B. VanMetre of Shepherdtown, W. Va., says "I had a severe case of Bronchitis and for a year tried everything I heard of, but got no relief. One bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery then cured me absolutely." It's infallible for Croup, Whooping Cough, Grip, Pneumonia and Consumption. Try it. It's guaranteed by all druggists. Trial bottles free. Regular sizes 50c and $1.00.

NOVEMBER 15, 1904.

Boston holds the banner for the biggest Democratic majority. But if there was any danger of the Democrats carrying the country, how Boston would scramble back into line.

Pennsylvania helped to defeat the Republican party in its first presidential campaign. A Republican majority this year of 494,525 shows that though the Keystone state may have lagged at the start, it proposed to keep at the head of the procession now.

Within the past few days several people have received falls on account of defective places in sidewalks. When you discover a bad place in the walks, put yourself out just enough to notify the street commissioner, so that he can have it repaired. Your action might save the town many dollars and a damage suit.

Now that Buchanan has started on the up grade to prosperity and business success, let all of our citizens work together for the best interests of the town. There are many little improvements that could be made that would create a more favorable impression with our many visitors. It has been the policy of the Record under the present management to call attention to these matters from time to time, and we shall continue so to do. One thing that will help to give a favorable impression is clean streets. What we need in the business part of town is about there garbage cans, for waste paper and such litter. These cans could be made of galvanized iron and one placed at the corner by Bainton's Grocery, one by the Bank corner and one at the corner by the Record office. This last one is especially desirable on account of people throwing wrappers from newspapers, and circulars on the street when they get their mail. If we cannot pave Front street this year, we could at least get the habit of keeping the street clean and next year, when we can do the paving, it will be easy to keep the waste paper from the street.

In Honor of Mrs. Watson

The Misses Dalrymple entertained a small company of young ladies at a six-thirty dinner at their apartments in the Sweet block, Wednesday evening, in honor of their guest, Mrs. Will Watson, of Three Oaks.

Covers were laid for eight. The table was daintily decorated, white chrysanthemums being used.

The remaining hours of the evening were passed in music and conversation.—Benton Harbor Review.

Mrs. Watson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Mead, of Buchanan.

Mrs. Anna Foster Dead.

Mrs. Anna Foster, who has resided on Main street opposite the wagon factory for many years: was taken with a stroke of apoplexy yesterday morning and after suffering all day died at 12 o'clock last night.

She was born in Miami county, Ohio, March 16, 1827, thus making her 77 years 8 months old at the time of her death. She was married in 1849 to Wm. Rook and started with him for California by ox team, it taking them six months to make the trip. They remained in that state three years and returned to Buchanan. Mr. Rook died in 1863 and in 1865 she married Dr. Foster, who has been dead many years.

Mrs. Foster has been an extremely eccentric woman and for the past 35 years has lived all alone, and while to all appearances she was very destitute, $344.50 in money and a note against a Buchanan citizen for $400, was found in her house.

She is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Mary Gunter, of South Bend, and Mrs. Cathrine Gore, of California, besides several nieces and nephews in this vicinity.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from her late residence, conducted by Rev. J. A. Halmhuber. Interment will be made in the Howe cemetery, south of town.

Five O'clock Tea

Mrs. F. T. Plimpton was again hostess to a company of twin city ladies Wednesday afternoon at a five o'clock tea.

The three rooms in which the four-course tea was served were tastefully decorated with chrysanthemums, these same pretty blossoms and ferns being artistically arranged on the tables. Misses Louise Plimpton, Homer Portman and Jean Spencer served. Chrysanthemums were given as favors. This is the second of two pretty social afternoon teas at which Mrs. Plimpton has been the charming hostess and a most delightful afternoon was spent.

Mrs. F. G. Worth, of Grand Rapids was an out of town guest.—Benton News-Palladium.

HERE AT HOME

Buchanan Citizens Gladly Testify

It is testimony like the following that has placed "the old Quaker Remedy" so far above competitors. When people right here at home raise their voice in praise there is no room left for doubt. Read the public statement of a Buchanan citizen:

B. S. Crawford, nurse, living on Clark street, says: "Some time ago I strained my back while lifting, waiting on a patient, and the injury had bothered me ever since. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills recommended so highly I thought I would test their merits and I procured a box at W. N. Brodrick's drug store. I am more than pleased with the result obtained. They acted very quickly and promptly, relieving the dull aching pain that had annoyed me so long. I have no hesitation in recommending so valuable a remedy to others."

For sale by all dealers, price 50c. Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name, Doan's, and take no substitute.

A BRIDGE OF ITS OWN

Niles-Buchanan Line Can Do This On Main Street

One important problem that the Niles & Buchanan railroad company will have to deal with in the construction of their proposed line is the crossing of the St. Joseph river in this city. The use of the old Main street bridge is not to be thought of. The structure would not stand the unusual strain put upon it by heavy interurban cars.

The charter granted the railroad company makes specific provision for this bridge so far as the railroad is concerned, and they are bound by its terms to pay the sum of $5,000 towards the cost of construction of a new bridge.

But is Niles city ready to build a new bridge? In fact, can the city build a new bridge even if it should desire to?

The legal point would have to be stretched very hard to establish a real necessity for the construction of a new bridge across the river to take the place of the present Main street structure, notwithstanding that many people believe that the bridge is unsafe and that it has outlived the period for its safe use.

When the South Bend & Southern Michigan railroad effected a crossing of the St. Joseph river at South Bend they built their own bridge alongside the city's Michigan avenue bridge.

This may be the method that company will have to use at Niles. An independent bridge wide enough for the interurban cars and to be used exclusively for their traffic, could be built on either side of the present Main street bridge by the company at its own expense.

This would relieve the city of Niles from any necessity for devising ways and means at the present time to replace or strengthen the Main street bridge.—Niles Sun.

Better than ever are the Spiro Fall Clothes for Men and Boys

It is a fact that "nothing succeeds like success"—and it is the success we have had in selling better made, better fitting and better wearing garments for less money than any one else that has made the standard of merit in South Bend, and brought us the greatest clothing business in the city. Of course, we have a decided advantage over other stores when it comes to prices, inasmuch as we buy for four stores: at South Bend, Ind.; Springfield, Jacksonville and Quincy, Ill., enabling us to buy in very large quantities and at quite a saving in prices over others saving which we gladly share with our patrons. It's the combination of low prices with the highest possible quality that has proved the irresistible inducement.

Progress is our Motto

We give you this fall better cloth, better tailoring, better lining, better trimmings, etc.—lowering prices where prices can be lowered—in short always striving to give you a little more than you expect. This is why we keep old friends, make new ones and satisfy everyone who wears SPIRO CLOTHES. And this is why our clothes are better this fall than ever before.

Come in and see our new Fall Styles

We show an immense line of new fall suits and overcoats for men and boys.
An entirely new stock of fall hats, caps and gloves.
The largest stock in the city of fall furnishings, neckwear and underwear.

This was an unusual command, as it completely deprived the guns of their crews, but he rightly judged that it would take all the men they could muster to repel the coming attack, and none but the main deck guns of the Yarmouth would or could be fired, for fear of hitting their own men in the melee on the deck. The Randolph was a wreck below at best, but while anything held together above her plank shears she would be fought. The men had reached that desperate condition when they ceased to think of odds, and like maddened beasts fought and raved and swore in the frenzy of the combat. The thrice decimated crew sprang aft, rallying in the gangway to meet the shock, Nason at their head, followed close by old Bentley, still unwounded. As the bow of the Yarmouth struck the Randolph with a crash, one or two wounded men, unable to take part in repelling the boarders, but still able to move, who had remained beside the guns, exerted the remaining strength they possessed to discharge such of the pieces as bore, in long raking shots, through the bow of the liner; it was the last sound from their hot muzzles.

The Yarmouth struck the Randolph just forward of the mainmast. The men, swarming in dense masses on the rail and hanging over the bowsprit ready to leap, dropped on her deck at once with loud cheers. A sharp volley from the few marines left on the frigate checked them for a moment, but they gathered themselves together at once and, gallantly led, sprang aft, handling their pistols and pikes and waving their cutlasses. Nason was shot in a moment by Hollins' pistol, Beauchamp was cut in two by a tremendous sweep of the arm of the mighty Bentley, and the combat became at once general. Slowly, but surely, the Americans were pressed back, the gangways were cleared, the quarter deck was gained. One by one the brave defenders had fallen. The battle was about over when Seymour noticed a man running out in the foreyard of the Yarmouth with a hand grenade. He raised his pistol and fired. The man fell, but another resolutely started to follow him.

Bentley and a few other men and one or two officers and a midshipman were all who were able to bear arms now. "Goodby, Mr. Seymour!" cried Bentley, waving his hand and setting his back against the rail nearest to the Yarmouth, which had slowly swung parallel to the Randolph and had been lashed there. The old man was covered with blood from two or three wounds, but still undaunted. Two or three men made a rush at him, but he held them at bay, no man caring to come within sweep of that mighty arm which had already done so much, when a bullet from above struck him, and he fell over backward on the rail mortally wounded.

Seymour raised his remaining pistol and fired it at the second man, who had nearly reached the foreyard arm, Less successful this time, he missed the man, who threw his grenade down the hatchway. Seymour fainted from loss of blood.

"Back, men! Back to the ship, all you Yarmouths!" cried Captain Vincent as he saw the lighted grenade, which exploded and ignited a little heap of cartridges left by a dead powder boy before the magazine. Alas! There was no one there to check or stop the flames. The English sailors sprang back and up the sides and through the ports of their ship with frantic haste. The lashings were being rapidly cut by them and the braces handled.

"Come aboard, men, while you can!" cried Captain Vincent to the Americans. "Your ship's afire! You can do no more; you'll blow up in a moment!" The little handful of Americans were left alone on their ship. The only officer still standing lifted his sword and shook it impotently at the Yarmouth in reply; the rest did not stir. The smoke of battle had now settled away, and the whole ghastly scene was revealed. A woman's cry rang out fraught with agony, "Seymour, Seymour!" and again was her cry unheeded; her lover could not hear. She cried again, and then, with a frightful roar and crash, the Randolph blew up.

"A sail coming down fast—the little brig, sir," reported the officer of the deck to Captain Vincent. "Shall we come about and give him a broadside?"

"No, no; we dare not handle the braces yet—not until the gear and spars have been well overhauled."

"Shall we use the stern chasers then, sir?"

The Yarmouth had left the scene of the explosion some distance away by this time, but she was still within easy gunshot. Captain Vincent earnestly examined the brig. As he looked she came up to the wind, hove to, and dropped a boat in the water. There was a bit of spar still floating there. The captain saw that three or four men were clinging to it.

"No; she's on an errand of mercy. There are men in the water on that tompast there. Let her go free," he said generously. "We're done enough today to satisfy any reasonable man."

The colonel grasped his hand warmly and thanked him. The little brig picked up her boat, swung her main yard and filled away again on the port tack in the wake of the rest of the little squadron, now far ahead. Then, understanding the forbearance of the big ship, she fired a gun to leeward and dipped her ensign in salute.

The force of the explosion had thrown Seymour from his advantageous position aft far out into the water and away from the sinking ship. The contact with cold water recalled him to his senses at once, and, with the natural instinct of man for life, he struck out as well as he might, considering his broken leg and wounded arm and weakened state. There was a piece of a mast with the top still on it floating near by. He struggled gallantly to make it. 'Twas no use; he could do no more; closing his eyes, he sank down in the dark water. But help was near. A hand grasped him by his long hair and drew him up. One of his men, unwounded fortunately, had saved him. The two men presently reached the bit of wreck. The sailor scrambled up on it and by a great effort drew his captain by his side. Two more men swam over desperately and finally joined the little group. They clung there helpless, hopeless, despairing, fascinated, watching the remains of the Randolph disappear, marking a few feeble swimmers here and there struggling until all was still. Then they turned their eyes upon their late antagonist, running away before the wind in flames. They saw her fight them down successfully. Appalled, none spoke. Presently one of the seamen glanced the other way and saw the little brig swiftly bearing down upon them.

"God be praised! Here's the brig, the Fair American," he cried. "We shall be saved—saved!"

The brig was handled smartly. She came to the wind, backed the main top-sail and lay gently tossing to and fro on the long swells. The young captain stood on the rail, clinging to the back stays, anxiously watching. The boat was dropped into the water and with long strokes shot over to them. The men sprang aboard. Rude hands gently and tenderly lifted the wounded captain in. They pulled rapidly back to the brig. The falls were manned and the boat was run up, the yard swung, and she filled away. Seymour was lifted down. Philip received him in his arms.

"I ought to arrest you for disobedience of orders," said the captain sternly. "Why did you pay no attention to my signals? You have jeopardized the brig. You ship can blow you out of the water; you are quite within range."

But they soon saw that no motion was made by the ship, and in accordance with Seymour's orders the gun was fired and the colors dipped—a salute which the ship promptly returned.

"I ought to put you under arrest, Philip," again said Seymour faintly, while he was lying in the tiny cabin, having his wounds dressed, "but I will not. 'Twas gallantly done, but obey orders first hereafter—'tis the first principle of action on the sea." That was rather cool comfort for the young officer, considering that his somewhat reckless action had just saved Seymour's life. He made brief reply, however, and then resumed his station on the deck of his little vessel, which was rapidly overhauling the rest of the fleet. As soon as the night fell, the wind permitting, they were by Seymour's direction headed for the harbor of Charleston once more.

CHAPTER XXXV.

ANOTHER week had elapsed. The Yarmouth had been driven steadily northward and by contrary winds prevented from making her course. She was in a precarious condition too. A further examination had disclosed that some of her spars, especially the mainmast, had been so severely and seriously wounded, even more so than at first reported, as scarcely to permit any sail at all to be set on them and not fit in any way to endure stress of weather. The damages had been made good, however, as far as possible, the rigging knotted and spliced, the spars fished and strengthened as well. The ship had been leaking slightly all the time, from injuries received in the fight in all probability, but a few hours at the pumps daily had hitherto kept her free, and, though the carpenter had been most assiduous in a search for the leaks and had stopped as many as he had been able to come at, some of them could not be found. The weather had steadily changed for the worse as they had reached higher latitudes, and it was now cold, rainy and very threatening. The captain and his officers were filled with anxiety and foreboding. Katharine kept sedulously in her cabin, devoured by grief and despair, and the once cheery colonel, full of deep sympathy for his unfortunate daughter, went about softly and sadly during the long days.

A Startling Test

To save a life, Dr. T. G. Merritt, of No. Mehoopany, Pa., made a startling test resulting in a wonderful cure. He writes, "a patient was attacked with violent hemorrhages, caused by ulceration of the stomach. I had often found Electric Bitters excellent for acute stomach and liver troubles. I prescribed them. The patient gained from the first, and has not had an attack in 14 months." Electric Bitters are positively guaranteed for Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Constipation and Kidney troubles. Try them. Washington Letter

Election is over. The racket is ended. "Silence, like a poultice, comes to heal the blows of sound." Probably no city in the country is less inclined to revolt against the verdict of the people November 8 for, if not entirely and completely happy, we are at least moved to snug and complacent acceptance of the situation. There will be no wholesale discharge of public officials and it will not be necessary for the twenty thousand clerks in Washington to change their politics within twenty-four hours, as they always do when "the opposition" of whatever breed, gets control of the government. Our merchants, theatre managers, bankers and brokers, have been almost unanimously Republican ever since Tuesday night, for they are assured of four years more of uninterrupted toll-taking.

"What caused the deplorable?" This is the question which the foremost Democrats of the capital are asking and trying to answer. One of the most sagacious of them puts it thus: "Roosevelt left no stone unturned. He was young and ambitious and appealed first to one body of voters, than another. He protested to the Russian government against Kishineff massacre and got the Hebrew vote. He compelled the settlement of the coal strike and (in spite of the Miller case) got the organized labor vote. He invited the cardinal, and archbishops to dinner and kept the Catholic vote. He invited Booker Washington to luncheon and paid the salary of the Indianola postmistress and got the negro vote. He pushed to success the suit against the Northern Securities Company, and got the anti-trust vote. He refused to run amuck against corporations and got the trust vote. He pushed great irrigation projects in the Rocky Mountain region and got the Western vote. He made a hurry-up annex of the Panama Republic and got the first voters' vote. How's that for a full explanation?" It seems nearly complete, but one might add "and he has perfect and unwavering belief in the Roosevelt star. To some Democrats here it looks as if the Democratic party would not elect another president during the first quarter of the twentieth century.

Who will be the candidates in 1908? Will the Democratic ticket be headed by Col. Bryan, who seems to have been true to his party during its many vicissitudes; or by Judge Parker who has blazed the way to its latest defeat; or by Folk who has achieved victory against a Republican avalanche that has covered Missouri with political desolation and even against the machine of his own party; or by William L. Douglass, the socialist shoemaker, who has carried Massachusetts in a bewildering contest when all other northern states went solidly Republican? Or may it possibly be Wright, who by that time should have acquired much information as captain-general of the Philippines? And whom will the Republicans set up? Will it be Root "The greatest secretary of war this country ever had"; or La Follette, who gallops in with Spooner and Quarles chained to his chariot wheels; or by Taft, who has exhibited surprising physical stamina and mental alertness as a spell-binder during this campaign? If the latter, he will be the first presidential candidate the country ever had who weighed 400 pounds.

The next notable event in this city will be the unveiling of the bronze statue of Frederick the Great Saturday. It will be presented by the German ambassador, Freiherr Speck Von Steinburg, as personal representative of the Emperor William, and the ceremony of unveiling will be performed by his wife. President Roosevelt will deliver the address of thanks and acceptance. The statue is of heroic size and bears a cane in one hand and a sword in the other. It is to occupy a granite pedestal at one corner of a quadrilateral in the grounds of the war college in the old arsenal grounds on the Potomac, at the foot of Seventh street. It is proposed to occupy the remaining three corners with some of the world's most illustrious warriors.

It is reported that Judge Parker's self renunciation is to be recognized by his appointment as counsel for the New York subway at a salary of $50,000, that Hay is to be secretary of state and that Taft is to go to the supreme bench if he wants to.
