TO THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF MICHIGAN.

A calamity, appalling in its magnitude and in the suffering it has caused, has befallen the people of the State of California. They have received assurances of sympathy from every country of the civilized world. The people of the United States are called upon to do more than send sympathy, and the opportunity is presented to us as citizens of the State of Michigan to prove that we are responsive to the call for aid from a stricken sister state. It is time when it should be remembered that "he gives twice who gives quickly" The co-operation of mayors of cities, presidents of villages and other officials is asked in getting this matter before the people by call ing public meetings or by taking such steps as they may deem best adapted to bring about the result which it is our plain duty to accom plish. The aid of churches, fraternal societies and other organizations, is requested, and the good work that can be done now by the press cannot be over estimated. Every contribution, large or small sent to me for the relief of the sufferers in California will be at once acknowledged and transmitted to the proper authorities.

The first theatre to be erected under the new and exacting fire ordinances or chicago, it is believed to be the safest theatre in the world, as it cer tainly is the most substantial. Lo cated on Monroe street, in the very heart of the retail and financial district, it occupies probably the most valuable plot of ground in Chicago being surrounded by broad street and alleys, thus providing instant egress from every part of the theatre, a consideration the value of which cannot be overestimated,

Built with the heaviest structural iron ever put in a Chicago buildirg and constructed otherwise of stone, brick and concrete, with five times the exit space required by law, this theatre presents essential charactersties that may worthily command public attention and interest. That the west should confessedly take the lead in theatrical construction may be a surprise even to the citizens of the great west, but it cannot fail to be a gratifying circumstance as a new evidence that "Westward the course Empire takes its way."

Visible Typewriter The One Typewriter That Correctly Solves the Objections That Have Always Heretofore Been Made Against "Front Strike" Machines.

Visible writing has always been considered as desirable by practically all typewriter manufacturers, but the difficulties to be overcome in construction in order to secure durability have discouraged the very large adoption of these machines. The invention of the method of assembling the type bars as it is done in the Fox Visible has, however, made possible the use of a wide pivotol bearing in the type hanger, thus insuring the most perfect alignment at all times and a durability that is equal to that claimed for any "basket type" machine. In building this new model, we have all the advantage of the knowledge that we have gained in building and placing the regular Fox models on the market and we are able to avoid all those experiments found in new machines which are so expensive to the purchaser.

a permanent alignment that is impossible to secure with a narrow bearing without adjustment, and avoiding the trouble caused where "forced alignment" is necessary. being impossible to secure in a visible writing typewriter. It is found only in the Fox and places the Fox Visible in a class by itself.

TWO COLOR RIBBON—The ribbon movement on this machine is simply perfection. It reverses and oscillates automatically, requiring no attention from the operator from the time it is put on until worn out. When a two color ribbon is used, by simply touching a button on the keyboard the second color is secured instantly without raising the hand or even looking.

This is from 25 to 50 per cent. less than any other. It is a vital thing both from the operator's standpoint of less fatigue and the owner's of greater durability.

> THE LINE LOCK—When the carriage reaches the end of a line, the keys lock and nothing more can be written until the release button is used or the carriage returned to begin a new line.

GOOD LAND LEVELER.

How to Arrange a Pole Drag Which Will Pulverize the Soil Satisfactorily.

For many seasons I have found a pole drag, such as shown herwith, to be very useful in leveling and pulverizing the soil, writes a Michigan correspondent of the Farm and Home. The sketch shows the arrangement which consists of three hardwood poles six inches in diameter and eight feet long. The poles are fastened together about one foot apart by means of short pieces of chain. A board is bolted to the front piece and allowed to extend beyond the third. To this board is fastened an old mowing machine seat which forms a comfortable place for the driver. The double-tree is attached to the front pole by a short chain.

POTATO SCAB.

Application of Corros. Sublimate to Seed Will Prevent the Disease Appearing.

The effect of corrosive sublimate in preventing scab will be made plain when we understand the cause of scab to be a minute microscopic plant which penetrates the skin of the potato, lives on the substance of the tuber and matures its seed there. When scabby potatoes are planted without treatment, the seed of the fungus is also planted, and with the new crop of potatoes an increased crop of the fungus is produced, until the market value of the potatoes is almost destroyed. It has been found that a bath of the seed potatoes in a solution of corrosive sublimate kills the door. It should be long enough the scab fungus, and if the soil has to be reached from the floor. It is not had potatoes grown upon it re- manipulated by the lever B. cently, the new crop will be quite free should be heavy, enough to overbalfrom the disease. Take three ounces ance the weight of the piece marked of corrosive sublimate and dissolve in A. There is a pin in the door below ten gallons of water, using a barrel that you do not use for any other purpose for the solution. Put what seed potatoes this water will cover in a thin bag, and let them remain in the bath two hours. I have treated seed sufficient for two acres without renewing the strength, writes a correspondent of the Country Gentleman. We sometimes cut the potatoes before the bath, sometimes after, without any difference in results. Do not forget that corrosive sublimate is a poison. Keep the treated potatoes and the barrel containing the solution out of the reach of animals. I more than suspect that the rot fungus, if any adheres to the seed potatoes, is in large measure destroyed by this bath.

RETAINING THE HUMUS.

Exposure to Sun After Plowing or the Application of Lime Apt to Be Destructive of This Element.

What is known as humus in the soil is vegetable matter in the process of decay. Some of this vegetable matter decays in a few weeks, while others require several years to change their form. This mass of vegetable matter in the soil adds bulk to it, which bulk both helps to let in the air and to retain moisture. The decaying vegetable matter holds more moisture than the soil particles, and it has been shown that soil rich in humus has a larger per cent, of moisture at all times of the year than does soil out of which the humus has been exhausted. Humus is destroyed not only by this natural tendency to decay, but by its exposure to the sun, when it has been turned up by the plow. It is also destroyed by quicklime, which in doing so liberates the plant food. For this reason, says the Farmers' Review, the application of fresh lime to soil is frequently destructive in its results. The loss of humus in the soil weakens it in regard to its ability to resist drouth and to produce crops.

BELIEVER IN DEEP PLOWING

What a Missouri Farmer Thinks Are the Benefits to Be Derived by the Method.

I believe in deep plowing, writes a Missouri farmer, because it will deepen the soil and soil reservoir which where the soil is shallow I like to plow a little deeper each year, and in so doing I will gradually increase the should be turned so that the harrow do the work after plowing. The surface of the field should be left in a corrugated form so that harrow or cutter can get hold to do the work. The furrow slice must not stand on the end or be turned flat. Another important point is to not plow when too wet, for it will greatly injure the soil and the ground will be harder to work afterwards. Don't get in too much of a hurry for it never pays to plow ground when it is too wet.

TREATING SEED GRAIN.

Method of Applying the Formalin Solution to Kill Smut and Other Germs.

In a level field one can of water. Put the solution in a barrel make a number of miles of ditch in a or tub, thoroughly mixing it so the day. The device can be made accordformalin will be well distributed. Two ing to size of ditch wanted. gallons of the solution will treat 100 pounds of grain.

This solution can be applied with the garden sprinkler. Care must be taken to thoroughly moisten the grain. Sprinkle, stir the grain up thoroughly and sprinkle again, until you feel certain every kernel is wet with the solu-

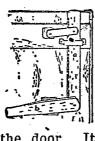

When you have completed the sprinkling process, place the grain in a conical pile and cover with horse. blankets, gunny sacks, etc., to hold the gas from the formalin within the pile able stimulant to the needed quick which kills all smut spores. After the grain has remained in a covered pile two to four hours, spread it out again where the wind can blow over it, to air and dry as rapidly as possible.

As soon as one can take the grain in the hand without the kernels sticking together, says the Farm and Home, it can be sown in the field. Since this treatment swells the kernels it hastens germination and should be done in the spring just before seeding time. Set the seeder accordingly.

I dare say that we hadn't gone 20 minutes before Robert stole out to the stables, only to return immediately with a bundle under his arm and a white felt hat perched rakishly on his head. He was chuckling audibly to

"It will frighten the girls half to to death. A gray horse and a bay; oh, I won't make any mistake. Let me see: I'll start about 12 o'clock. That'll get me to the spot just as the boys leave. This is the richest yet. I'll wager that there will be some tall screaming." He continued chuckling as helped himself to his brother's perfectos and fine old Scotch. I don't know what book he found in the private case; some old rascal's merry tales, no doubt; for my hero's face was never in repose.

We had left Mrs. Secretary-of-the-Interior's and were entering the red brick mansion on Connecticut avenue. Carriages lined both sides of the street, and mounted police patrolled up and "Not the shadow of a doubt!" Miss Annesley, I frankly admitted on the spot, was, next to Nancy, the handsomest girl I ever saw; and as I thought of Mr. Robert in his den at home. I sincerely pitied him. I was willing to advance the statement that had he known, a pair of crutches would not have kept him away from No. 1300 Connecticut avenue.

I found three chairs, and we sat down. There was, for me, very little opportunity to talk. Women always have so much to say to each other, even when they haven't seen each other within 24 hours. From time to time Miss Annesley glanced at me, and I am positive that Nancy was extolling my charms. It was rather embarrassing, and I was balling my gloves up in a most dreadful fashion. As they seldom addressed a word to me, I soon became absorbed in the passing scene. I was presently aroused,

"Mr. Henderson, Count Karloff," Miss Annesley was saying. (Karloff is a name of my own choosing. I haven't the remotest idea if it means anything in the Russian language. I hope not.) "Charmed!" The count's r's were very pleasantly rolled. I could see by the way his gaze royed from Miss Annesley to Nancy that he was puzzled to decide which came the nearer to his

"And where are you staying, Betty?" "Father and I have taken Senator Blank's house in Chevy Chase for the winter. My horses are already in the stables. Do you ride?"

"I do." "Then we shall have some great times together."

"Be sure to call. I want you to meet my brother."

"I believe I have," replied Miss

Annesley. "I mean my younger brother, a lieutenant in the army."

"Oh, then you have two brothers?" "Yes," said Nancy.

"The dance is dying, Mademoiselle," said the count in French. "Your arm, Monsieur. Au revoir,

Nancy." "Poor Bobby!" Nancy folded her hands and sighed mournfully. "It appears to me that his love affair is not going to run very smooth. But isn't she just beautiful, Charlie? What color, what style!" "She's a stunner, I'm forced to admit. Bob'll never stand a ghost of a show against that Russian. He's a great social catch, and is backed by many kopecks."

"How unfortunate we did not know that she would be here! Bobby would have met her at his best, and his best is more to my liking than the count's. He has a way about him that the women like. He's no laggard. But money ought not to count with Betty. She is worth at least $250,000. Her mother left all her property to her, and her father acts only as trustee. Senator Blank's house rents for $8,000 the season. It's ready furnished, you know, and one of the handsomest homes in Washington. Besides, I do not trust those foreigners,"—taking a remarkably abrupt curve, as it were. "There's two B's in your bonnet, Nancy," I laughed. "Never mind the B's; let us have the last of this waltz."

This is not my own true story; so I shall bow off and permit my hero to follow the course of true love, which is about as rough-going a thoroughfare as the many roads of life have to offer.

CHAPTER VI.

THE MAN ON THE BOX.

At 11:30 he locked up his book and took to his room the mysterious bundle which he had purloined from the stables. It contained the complete livery of a groom. The clothes fitted rather snugly, especially across the shoulders. flitted across his face. The black halfboots, the white doeskin breeches, the brown brass-buttoned frock, and the white hat with the brown cockade.

. . . Well, my word for it, he was the handsomest jehu Washington ever turned out. With a grin he touched his hat to the reflection in the glass, and burst out laughing. His face was as smooth as a baby's for he had generously sacrificed his beard.

I can hear him saying to himself: "Lord, but this is a lark! I'll have to take another Scotch to screw up the edge of my nerve. Won't the boys laugh when they hear how I stirred the girls' frizzes! We'll have a little party here when they all get home. It's a good joke."

Mr. Robert did not prove much of a prophet. Many days were to pass ere he reentered his brother's house. He stole quietly from the place. He hadn't proceeded more than a block when he became aware of the fact that he hadn't a penny in his clothes. This discovery disquieted him, and he half turned about to go back. He couldn't go back. He had no key. "Pshaw! I won't need any money;"

-and he started off toward Connecticut avenue. He dared not hail a car, and he would not have dared had he possessed the fare. Some one might recognize him. He walked briskly for ten minutes. The humor of the escapade appealed to him greatly, and riage at night, becomes a round of he had all he could do to smother the frequent bursts of laughter which surged to his lips. He reached absently for his cigar-case. No money, no cigars.

"That's bad. Without a cigar I'm likely to get nervous. Scraping off that beard made me forgetful. Jove! with these fleshings, I feel as self-conscious as an untried chorus girl. These togs can't be very warm in winter. Ha! that must be the embassy where all those lights are; carriages. Al-

"It is, my man," replied the gen-"Thank you, sir."

And each passed on to his affairs. "Now for William: we must find William, or the joke will be on Rob-

He maneuvered his way through the congested thoroughfare, searching the faces of the grooms and footmen. He dodged hither and thither and was once brought to a halt by the mounted

"Here you! What d'ye mean by running around like this. Lost your cartakin' a sly nip, probably, an' they've sent yer hack down a peg. Get a gait on y', now."

Warburton laughed silently as he made for the sidewalk. The first man he plumped into was William—a very much worried William, too. Robert could have fallen on his neck for joy. All was plain sailing now.

"I'm very glad to see you, sir," said William. "I was afraid you could not get my clothes on, sir. I was getting a trifle worried, too. Here's the carriage number."

Warburton glanced hastily at it and stuffed it into a convenient pocket.

"It's 16 carriages up, sir; a bay and a gray. You can't miss them. The bay, being a saddle-horse, is a bit restive in the harness: but all you have to do is to touch him with the whip. And don't try to push ahead of your turn, or you will get into trouble with the police. They are very strict. And don't let them confuse you, sir. The numbers won't be in rotation. You'll hear 115, and the next moment 35, like as not. It's all according as to how the guests are leaving. Good luck to you, sir, and don't forget to explain it all thoroughly to Mr. Warburton, sir." "Don't worry, William; we'll come out of this with colors flying." "Very well, sir. I shall hang around till you are safely off,"—and William Warburton could occasionally hear the faint strain of music. From time to time the carriage-caller bawled out a number, and the carriage would roll up under the porte-cochere. Warburton concluded that it would be a good plan to hunt up his rig. His search did not last long. The bay and the gray stood only a litle way from the gate. The box was vacant, and he climbed up and gathered the reins. He sat there for some time, longing intensely for a cigar, a good cigar, such as gentlemen smoked.

"Seventeen!" came hoarsely along on the wings of the night. "Number 17, and lively there!"

Warburton's pulse doubled its beat.

His number. "Skt!" the bay and the gray started forward, took the half-circle and stopped under the porte-cochere. Warburton recollected that a fashionable groom never turned his head unless spoken to; so he leveled his gaze at his horses' ears and waited.

But from the very corner of his eye he caught a glimpse of two women, one of whom was enveloped in a crimson cloak. He thrilled with exultation. What a joke it was! He felt the carriage list as the women stepped in. The door slammed to and the rare good joke was on the way.

"Off with you!" cried the pompous footman, with an imperious wave of the hand. "Number 99!"

"Ninety-nine! Ninety-nine!" bawled

the carriage man. Our jehu turned into the avenue, holding a tolerable rein. He clucked and lightly touched the horses with the lash. This was true sport: this was humor, genuine, initiative, unforced. He could imagine the girls and their fright when he finally slowed down, opened the door, and kissed them both. Wouldn't they let out a yell, though? His plan was to drive furiously for half a dozen blocks, zigzag from one side of the street to the other, taking the corners sharply, and then make for Scott Circle.

Now, a lad of six can tell the difference between 17 and 71. But this astonishing jehu of mine had been conspicuous as the worst mathematician and the best soldier in his class at West Point. No more did he remember that he was not in the wild west, and that here in the east there were laws prohibiting reckless driving.

He drove decently till he struck Dupont Circle. From here he turned into New Hampshire, thinking it to be Rhode Island. Mistake number two. He had studied the city map, but he was conscious of not knowing it as well as he should have known it, but, true to his nature, he trusted to luck.

Aside from all this, he forgot that a woman might appreciate this joke only when she heard it recounted. To live through it was altogether a different matter. In an episode like this, a woman's imagination, given the darkness such as usually fills a carterrors. Every moment is freighted with death or disfigurement. Her nerves are like the taut strings of a harp in a wintry wind, ready to snap at any moment; and then, hysteria. With man the play, and only the play, is the thing. Snap-crack! The surprised horses, sensitive and quick-tempered as all highly organized beings are, nearly leaped out of the harness. Never before had their flanks received a more unwarranted stroke of the lash. They reared and plunged and broke into a mad gallop, which was exactly what the rascal on the box desired. An expert horseman, he gauged the strength of "Pardon me, sir," he said, touching the animals the moment they bolted, and he knew that they were his. Once the rubber-tired vehicle slid sidewise on the wet asphalt, and he heard a stifled scream.

He laughed, and let forth a sounding 'whoop," which nowise allayed the fright of the women inside the carriage. He wheeled into S street, scraping the curb as he did so. Pedestrians stopped and stared at him. The screams were renewed. A hand beat against the forward window and a muffled but wrathful voice called forth a command to stop. This voice was immediately drowned by another's prolonged scream. FARMANCGARDEN

Insect Which Causes Great Loss to and Destroy It.

They contain more valimprovements There is perhaps no insect that the grain farmer considers more of an enemy than the chinch bug. Its depredations, amounting as they do to an annual loss of $60,000,000 in the United New Pianos from $150 States, are well known, and as many as 12 bushels of the insects are said The best line of to have been obtained from a 40-acre corn field in Illinois at one time. on each outer edge. When first hatched from the minute oval egg, the young bug is yellow, but it gradually changes to red and then to black, as its growth proceeds. At all stages it is accompanied by a rank disagreeable odor. In the first warm days of spring the adult bug comes forth from the grass roots, stubble or rubbish where it has hibernated and deposits its eggs on the roots of wheat or other plant. Here the eggs are hatched and the depredations then begin. When the wheat is harvested the bugs make for the nearest oat or corn field, where they continue their work Our Prices are Right. of destruction until autumn, when they return to wheat again. > natural size. There have been many methods of prevention and cure suggested and experimented with, among others that of distributing white fungus disease, several of the experiment stations having supplies of diseased chinch bugs which they distribute free among farmers for this purpose. But this means has not been found very efficient and the most practical plan seems to be that of plowing a strip around the field to be protected, thoroughly pulverizing the soil thus turned up, and making a deep furrow in this soil with the steeper side toward the field not infested. The insects when they endeavor to migrate from one field to another will fall into this furrow and if the ground is sufficiently pulverized they will be unable to get out. If the day is hot the heat of the sun will kill them or a smooth log dragged up and down the furrow several times will answer the same

> Another plan, suggested by the Prairie Farmer, and which has been tried with great success, is that of spreading a line of coal tar in front of their line of march and digging post holes along this every few feet. The bugs when they reach the coal tar barrier will turn off and follow it until they fall into the holes, where they may be easily killed. Care must be taken in
