SPECIAL FIGHT LAST SUNDAY

Program Replete With Features Had Been Arranged

A special bullfight of unusual excellency, a post-season affair full of features from start to finish, was arranged for last Sunday by Felix Robert manager of the Juarez arena.

A number of interesting stunts not seen before in the Juarez ring will be pulled off, and all told this special and final fight promises to be one of the most, if not the most entertaining fight of the entire season.

There will be eight numbers on the entire program, beginning with a roping contest by Indians from Sonora, a particularly wild and vicious bull having been selected for this feature. The second feature will be a foot race five times around the ring between Cuco, the long-winded Mexican, and an American. The other part of the program includes the act of riding a wild bull by an Indian, the noted Don Tancredo or statue act, the participants to be dressed in flaming red, an amateur fight, a pantomime, and the regulation bullfight in which two bulls will be killed. Such a program has never been arranged before. Special prices of admission 50 cents, shade 75 cents.

May 16, 1906

Editor RECORD,
Buchanan, Mich.

My dear Sir:

Enclosed please find clipping taken from the El Paso Texas Evening News, May 16, 1906. I send this thinking perhaps a reproduction in the RECORD might awaken the sports in Buchanan and arrangements, through their enthusiasm, might result in pulling off a bull fight in the quiet old town of Buchanan.

If there should be a shortage of bulls, I will guarantee to furnish a thorough-bred, and so far as the matadora is concerned, I think Bill Palmer would fill the bill, as he reminds me very much of the matadora I saw in Juarez this afternoon. For bull handlers and assistant you would want three heavy rugged men that would make a good impression dressed in tights. I would suggest for the position George H. Black, Dr. Orville Curtis and Buchanan's greatest financier, Honorable Chas. F. Pears. If through the fact of proper agitation, Buchanan should decide to pull off such an entertainment, and it is the decision that I am to furnish the bull, please notify me in time so that I can deliver the goods, as I will be obliged to borrow the bull from some ranchman after sundown and ride him through.

Very respectfully yours,
H. A. Hathaway.

Died at Her Daughter's Home

Mrs. Caroline White, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Hamlin, Saturday, May 5, aged 88 years. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Hamlin, of Perry, three sons John F. White, of Mt. Morris, Eli, of Sodus, N. Y.; James, of Buchanan. The funeral was held from the home of the daughter's, Monday. Rev. Martin, of Mt. Morris officiating and the remains taken to Mt. Morris for interment.

The above is taken from the Herald & News, Perry, N. Y., and has reference to the mother of Mr. J. R. White of Buchanan. She was well known in our village, and her demise is a sad blow to her many acquaintances.

STREET CAR SERVICE

On the Interurban Road From Niles to St. Joseph, Opened up Yesterday

The street car service on the Southern Michigan Railway company's tracks, between Niles and St. Joseph, opened up Monday. The fare from Niles to St. Joseph will be 80 cents for the round trip or 45 cents one way. The cars make an hourly trip. This will be a great change from the usual fare not only for the connecting towns but Buchanan as well.

The rate on the Pere Marquette as well as the Michigan Central, is 81 cents one way or $1.62 round trip. By going to Niles and taking the interurban you can go to Benton Harbor for $1.16, besides making better time, which is a still greater inducement.

Services on the railroads out of Buchanan are exceedingly poor, and the citizens welcome this new change of service as much if not more than the people of Niles.

The new cars to be used at the St. Joseph line are modern in every particular, 52 feet long and carrying four 75 horse power motors, geared to a speed of 50 miles an hour. The roadway is ballasted with the finest quality of gravel, insuring as smooth a journey as on the highest grade steam railway in the county.

State Items

As the result of being struck on the back of his head by a large stone, thrown by Jack Maitland, during a quarrel Thursday, John Hamilton died Friday night, and Maitland is in jail at Charlevoix facing a charge of murder. Maitland is 40 years of age and a robust fellow. Hamilton was 74 and feeble. Maitland says he was drunk and that he threw the rock in self-defense, Hamilton having hurled a number of stones at him. Bad blood existed between the men, as Maitland claimed Hamilton's horses broke into his fields and injured his crops a few days ago. Thursday noon he went to Hamilton's house and took the matter up again, resulting in the fight and the death of the older man. Both were farmers living about one mile south of Charlevoix.

Mrs. Laura Parmenter, of Grand Rapids, 35 years old, committed suicide Friday afternoon by taking strychnine. She died shortly afterwards in the bakery of Mrs. F. J. Fleischhaver, where she had been working. Despondency over family troubles is said to be the cause of the deed. After taking the drug, the woman claimed she had done so by mistake, but this is not believed by friends who had heard her talk much of her troubles of late.

Maddened by the heat, a cow which had been left lying in a ditch attacked a party of school children returning from school, Friday. All escaped but Grace, 10-year-old daughter of Thomas Bracey, of Jackson. After being hooked the child was trampled upon. Men arrived in time to save the girl's life, beating the beast off with clubs. While the child's condition is serious there are strong hopes for her recovery.

Fatally burned, her house on fire, Mrs. Joseph Bresseau, of Morley, dragged herself half a mile to the home of her brother-in-law, John Bresseau. Too weak to arouse the family, she dropped dead on the porch. Neighbors, discovering her home ablaze, searched for her. Following a trail of blood they finally found her body on the porch at the home of her relative. Pieces of clothing and flesh were found on the bars of two wire fences, through which she had crawled. Ascending the stairs at 10 o'clock Thursday night she was seized with an epileptic fit. The lamp which she was carrying, set fire to the house. She extinguish-could sit down at my desk and go over the facts regarding the INTERNATIONAL BANANA FOOD COMPANY, you would see instantly the enormous money making power of the proposition.

If you and I

I could show you in a few moments just how easy it is to take a banana of the tropics and by a simple process, make it into Banana Coffee, by another process into Banana Flour, and by other equally simple processes, into twenty or thirty other commercial products.

Then I could put before you figures, showing the enormous profit at which all these articles can be sold, and take from my files contracts for more than our present facilities can turn out for more than a year.

All this would go to show you that a small amount of money invested in the INTERNATIONAL BANANA FOOD COMPANY now will bring you immense returns. Stock bought now will be worth two times its value on Sept. 1st a profit of 100 per cent in less than four months.

Large dividends will be earned and will keep on increasing.

Remember that the Company is already formed and doing business.

Since perhaps you cannot come to my office, I shall be glad to send you proof of all these statements by mail, together with many other interesting facts.

I can prove to you that this is the most valuable, sterling investment in the country now. Will you let me for our mutual good? Just drop me a postal. Address me personally, ed the blaze in her clothing, but not until she had been fatally burned. She had been married only a year.

Mrs. Elizabeth Anderson, of Adrian aged 84 years, is dead from starvation as a result of a paralytic stroke a week ago. After the shock she was unable to take nourishment, even a drink of water.

The postoffice, the residence of Wm. H. Swan, of Gowen, and four vacant stores were burned Friday, by a fire which was probably started by children playing with matches in one of the store buildings. The total loss is $7,000. Three of the stores were owned by Henry Poulsen and the fourth by W. H. Munsell. The village has no fire protection and the blaze was checked only by a vacant lot.

The Majestic Theatre

The prevailing fad for unique smoking rooms, has evidently reached its culmination, if the gentleman's smoking room in the Majestic Theatre, Chicago, is any criterion.

This room purposely bears a strong resemblance to the smoking parlor of an ocean liner. Finished in black English oak, with port holes, skylights, lockers, binnacle, ship's bell and clock, life boats, life preservers and all the nautical paraphernalia that can be crowded into such a space, it presents a most pleasing appearance and with its comfortable lounging chairs is a Mecca, not only for sight seers but for those who care to enjoy a quiet smoke amid restful and luxurious surroundings.

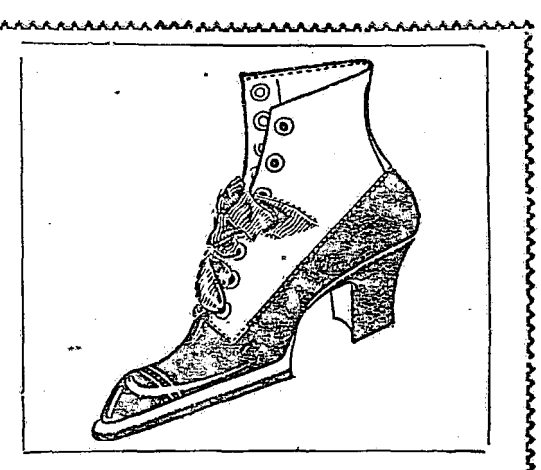

This room and the ladies rest room are open to the inspection of visitors, who will be ushered by uniformed attendants if they express a desire to avail themselves of this privilege. It is confidently believed by the management that in respect to these charming rooms, as in many other particulars, The Majestic is far in advance of any other theatre yet constructed in the United States.

A bill of exceptional strength is offered the coming week commencing Monday, May 21st. Headed by that Prince of fun makers, Peter F. Dailey and his Lulu girls, whose smart sketch has all Chicago laughing, this being their second week. Harry Tate's Motoring is the name of an entirely new and original act. The four Piccolo Midgets in a novelty comedy act. Callahan & Mack with a brand new Irish comedy and musical act. The famous Bootblack Quartette singers and dancers. Abdul Kader the celebrated Mohammedan artist, assisted by his three wives Miss Agnes Mahr, the bewitching toe dancer, Miss Charity Martin the popular soprano. Burt and Bertha Grant the ragtime duo in a clever singing and dancing number. The Melroy Trio of Comedians, vocalists and dancers. Barry and Wolford in a comedy sketch. Pope and his Dog. A canine that can do everything but talk. The Tennesseans musical artists, and the Kindrome.

THE FORMAL OPENING

Of The Reading Room at Rich's
Factory, Transpired Last Saturday Evening

The Rich Mfg Co., held their opening for their new reading room and smoker last Saturday evening, about forty guests being present.

The company has fitted up this room in a pleasing manner for the employees of the factory. The room is very large, and the floor is covered with bright linoleum. Scattered around the room are numerous easy chairs, magazine racks, writing desks, library table and other conveniences, thus giving them a comfortable room to while away their lonely hours.

After the guests had gathered to attend this festivity, short but very appropriate speeches were delivered by both Messrs. M. L. Hanlin and W. E. McCabe, they welcoming the boys, in behalf of the company to take possession of this room at all times, and trusting this would be the means of furnishing a great deal of pleasure for them. After the short addresses by these gentlemen, a dutch lunch was partaken of. The remainder of the evening was passed in social chat, intermingled with music furnished on the phonograph.

The employee are very grateful for this kindness shown by the company, in not only fitting up the room so nicely, but furnishing the writing material, papers and magazines for their use.

THE NEW VISIBLE

At Last a Perfect Visible Typewriter

The One Typewriter That Correctly Solves the Objections That Have Always Heretofore Been Made Against "Front Strike" Machines.

Visible writing has always been considered as desirable by practically all typewriter manufacturers, but the difficulties to be overcome in construction in order to secure durability have discouraged the very large adoption of these machines. The invention of the method of assembling the type bars as it is done in the Fox Visible has, however, made possible the use of a wide pivot bearing in the type hanger, thus insuring the most perfect alignment at all times and a durability that is equal to that claimed for any "basket type" machine. In building this new model, we have all the advantage of the knowledge that we have gained in building and placing the regular Fox models on the market and we are able to avoid all those experiments found in new machines which are so expensive to the purchaser.

Here is a Short Description.

THE TYPE HANGER—The hanger has a pivot bearing 7-16 of an inch wide. This allows the use of a heavy type bar, providing an adjustable pivot bearing which takes up wear as it occurs, thereby giving a permanent alignment that is impossible to secure with a narrow bearing without adjustment, and avoiding the trouble caused where "forced alignment" is necessary. This is the feature that has heretofore been considered as being impossible to secure in a visible writing typewriter. It is found only in the Fox and places the Fox Visible in a class by itself.

TWO COLOR RIBBON—The ribbon movement on this machine is simply perfection. It reverses and oscillates automatically, requiring no attention from the operator from the time it is put on until worn out. When a two color ribbon is used, by simply touching a button on the keyboard the second color is secured instantly without raising the hand or even looking.

THE INTERCHANGEABLE CARRIAGE—The carriage is so constructed that it can be quickly removed and a carriage of different length substituted. One machine can be purchased with different sizes of carriages, thereby effecting a great saving over the ordinary method of buying a long carriage machine complete. The carriage is ball bearing and runs with a tension of only 1 lb. PERFECT VISIBLE WRITING—The entire line is visible all the time.

THE KEY TENSION—The force required on the part of the operator to print a letter is only 2½ ounces. This is from 25 to 50 per cent. less than any other. It is a vital thing both from the operator's standpoint of less fatigue and the owner's of greater durability.

THE LINE LOCK—When the carriage reaches the end of a line, the keys lock and nothing more can be written until the release button is used or the carriage returned to begin a new line.

ALUMINUM KEY LEVERS—Key levers are made of aluminum. It is more expensive than steel or wood, but it is very much more desirable.

TABULATOR—The Fox ten stop decimal tabulator is attached when ordered, at slight additional expense. It is the only decimal tabulator in use on a visible typewriter.

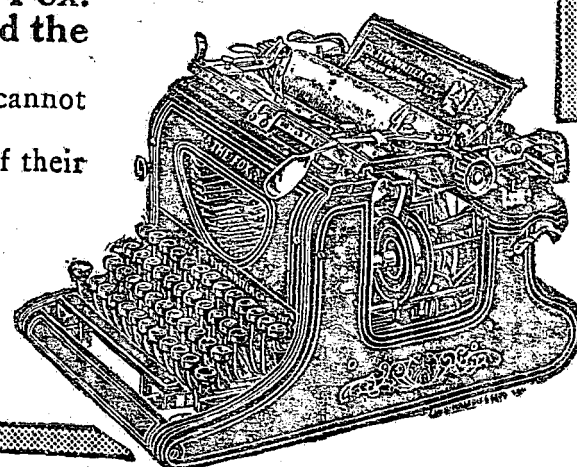

Every feature on this machine has been tried out and demonstrated as successful on the Regular Models of the Fox. Unprejudiced experts have without hesitation pronounced the machine a marvel.

Ask your nearest typewriter dealer to show you this machine. If he cannot we will make it easy for you.

The regular models of the Fox are still the most perfect machines of their kind and their manufacture will be continued as before.

CHAPTER X.
PIRATE.

On the opposite side of the road there was a stone wall about five feet in height; beyond this was a broad, rolling field and farther on a barbed wire fence and a boggy stream which oozed its way down toward the Potomac. Far away across the valley the wooded hills were dying and withering and thinning, with splashes of yellow and red. A flock of birds speckled the fleecy October clouds, and a mild breeze sent the grasses shivering.

Toward the wall Pirate directed his course. Warburton threw back his full weight. The effort had little or no effect on Pirate's mouth. His rider remembered about the tree, but the nearest was many yards away. Over the wall they went and down the field. Pirate tried to get his head down but he received a check. Score one for the man. Warburton, his legs stiffened in the stirrups, his hands well down, his breath coming in gasps, wondered where they would finally land. He began to use his knees and Pirate felt the pressure. He didn't like it at all. Oddly enough, Warburton's leg did not bother him as he expected it would, and this gave him confidence. On, on; the dull pounding of Pirate's feet, the flying sod, the wind in his face; and when he saw the barbed wire fence, fear entered into him. An inch too low, a stumble and serious injuries might result. He must break Pirate's gait.

He began to saw cow-boy fashion. Pirate grew indignant: he was being hurt. His speed slackened none, however; he was determined to make that fence if it was the last thing he ever did. He'd like to see any man stop him. He took the deadly fence as with the wings of a bird. But he found that the man was still on his back. He couldn't understand it. He grew worried. And then he struck the red-brown muck bordering the stream. The muck flew, but at every bound Pirate sank deeper, and the knees of his rider were beginning to tell. Warburton, full of rage, yet not unreasonable rage, quickly saw his chance. Once more he threw back his weight; this time to the left. Pirate's head came stubbornly around; his gait was broken, he was floundering in the stream. Now Warburton used his heels savagely. He shortened the reins and whacked Mr. Pirate soundly across the ears. Pirate plunged and reared, and after devious evolutions, reached solid ground. This time his head was high in the air, and try as he would, he could not lower his neck a solitary inch.

Warburton knew that the animal could not make the barbed wire fence again, so he waltzed him along till he found a break in the wire. Over this Pirate bounded, snorting. But he had met a master. Whether he reared or plunged, waltzed or ran, he could not make those ruthless knees relent in their pressure. He began to understand what all beasts understand, sooner or later—the inevitable mastery of man. There was blood in his nostrils. A hand touched his neck caressingly. He shook his head; he refused to conciliate. A voice, kindly but rather breathless, addressed him. Again Pirate shook his head; but he did not run, he cantered. Warburton gave a sigh of relief. Over the field they went. A pull to the left, and Pirate wheeled; a pull to the right, and again Pirate answered, and cantered in a circle. He was mastered.

After this Warburton did as he pleased; Pirate had learned his lesson. His master put him through a dozen maneuvers, and he was vastly satisfied with the victory. He had conquered the horse before the eyes of one woman.

He guided Pirate close to the wall and stopped him, looked down into the girl's wonder-lit eyes and smiled cheerfully. And what is more she smiled faintly in acknowledgement. He had gained, in the guise of a groom, what he might never have gained in any other condition of life, the girl's respect and admiration. Though a thorough woman of the world, high-bred, well-born, she forgot for the moment to control her features; and as I have remarked elsewhere, Warburton was a shrewd observer.

"Bully Mr. Osborne!" shouted William leaping down. "It was simply great!"

"There are some bars farther down" said the girl, quietly. "William, run and open them."

Warburton flushed slightly. He could not tell how she had accomplished it, whether it was the tone or the gesture, but she had calmly re-established the barrier between mistress and servant.

"I think I'll put him to the wall again," said the hero, seized by a rebel spirit.

He wheeled Pirate about and sent him back at a run. Pirate balked. Round he went again, down the field and back. This time he cleared the wall with a good foot to spare. The victory was complete.

When it was all over, and Pirate was impatiently munching an extra supply of oats, the girl bade Mr. James to report early the following morning.

"I hope I shall please you Madam."

"Address me as Miss Annesley from now on," she said; and nodding shortly, she entered the house.

To Warburton, half the pleasure of the victory was gone; for not a word of praise had she given him. Yet, she had answered his smile. Well, he had made a lackey out of himself; he had no right to expect anything but $40 a month and orders.

He broke his word with me. He did not return to the house that night for dinner. In fact, he deliberately sent for his things, explaining that he was called north and wouldn't have time to see them before he left. It took all my persuasive oratory to smooth the troubled waters and then there were areas upon which my oil had no effect whatever.

"He is perfectly heartless!" cried Nancy. "He couldn't go to the embassy, but he could steal away and play poker all night with a lot of idling army officers. And now he is going off to Canada without even seeing us to say good-by. Charlie, there is something back of all this."

"I'll bet it's a woman," said Jack, throwing a scrutinizing glance at me. But I was something of a diplomat myself, and he didn't catch me napping. "Here's a telegram for him, too."

"I think I'll take the liberty of opening it," said I. I knew its contents. It was the reply Warburton had depended on. I read it aloud. It is good to have friends of this sort. No question was asked. It was a bald order: "Come up at once and shoot caribou. Take first train."

"Bob's a jackass," was Jack's commentary. I had heard something like it before, that day. "He'll turn up all right,"—and Jack lit a cigar and picked up his paper.

"And Betty Annesley is going to call to-morrow night," said Nancy, her voice overflowing with reproach. Her eyes even sparkled with tears. "I did so want them to meet."

I called myself a villain. But I had given my promise; and I was in love myself.

"I don't see what we can do. When Bob makes up his mind to do anything, he generally does it." Jack, believing he had demolished the subject opened his Morning Post and fell to studying the latest phases of the Venezuelan muddle.

Nancy began to cry softly; she loved the scalawag as only sisters know how to love. And I became possessed with two desires; to console her and to punch Mr. Robert's head.

"It has always been this way with him," Nancy went on, dabbing her eyes with her two-by-four handkerchief. "We never dreamed that he was going to the army till he came home one night and announced that he had successfully passed his examinations for West Point. He goes and gets shot and we never know anything about it till we read the papers. Next, he resigns and goes abroad without a word or coming to see us. I don't know what to make of Bobby; I really don't."

I took her hand in mine and kissed it, and told her the rascal would turn up in due time, that they hadn't heard the last of him for that winter.

"He's only thoughtless and single-purposed," interposed Jack.

"Single-purposed!" I echoed.

"Why, yes. He gets one thing at a time in his brain, and thinks of nothing else till that idea is worn out. I know him."

I recalled my useless persuasion of the morning. "I believe you are right."

"Of course I'm right," replied Jack, turning a page of his paper. "Do you know where he has gone?"

"I think the telegram explains everything,"—evasively.

"Humph! Don't you worry about him Nan. I'll wager he's up to some of his old-time deviltry."

These and other little observations Jack let fall made it plain to me that he was a natural student of men and their impulses and that his insight and judgment, unerring and anticipatory, had put him where he is to-day, at the head of a department.

"Father," said Betty Annesley at the dinner-table that same night, "I have engaged a new groom. He rode Pirate to-day and thoroughly mastered him."

"Pirate? You don't say! Well, I'm glad of that. Pirate will make a capital saddle-horse if he is ridden often enough. The groom will be a safe companion for you on your rides. Are you too tired to do some drawing for me to-night?"

"The fortification plans?"

"Yes." His eyes wandering from her face to the night outside. How gray and sad the world was! "You will always love your father, dearie?"

"Love him? Always!"

"Whatever betide for weal or woe?"

"Whatever betide."

How easy it was for her to say these words!

"And yet, some day, you must leave me to take up your abode in some other man's heart. My only wish is that it may beat for you as truly as mine does."

She did not reply, but stepped to the window and pressed her brow to the chilled pane. A yellow and purple line marked the path of the vanished sun; the million stars sparkled above; far away she could see the lights of the city. Of what was she thinking, dreaming? Was she dreaming of heroes such as we poets and novelists invent and hang upon the puppet-beam? Ah, the pity of these dreams the young girl has! She dreams of heroes and of god-like men and of the one that is to come. But, ah; he never comes; and the dream fades and dies and the world becomes real. A man may find his ideal, but a woman, never. To youth, the fields of love; to man, the battle-ground; to old age, a chair in the sunshine and the wreck of dreams!

"The government ought to pay you well if those plans are successful." She moved away from the window.

"Yes, the government ought to pay me well. I should like to make you rich, dearie, and happy."

"Why, daddy, am I not both? I have more money than I know what to do with, and I am happy in having the kindest father." She came around the table and caressed him, cheek to cheek. "Money isn't everything. It just makes me happy to do anything for you."

His arm grew tense around her waist.

"Do you know what was running through my mind at the embassy last night? I was thinking how deeply I love this great wide country of mine. As I looked at the ambassador and his aides, I was saying to myself, 'You dare not!' It may have been silly, but I couldn't help it. We are the greatest people in the world. When I compared foreign soldiers with our own, how my heart and pride swelled! No formalities, no race prejudice, no false pride. I was never introduced to a foreign officer that I did not fear him, with his weak eyes, his affected mannerisms, his studied rudeness, not to me, but the country I represented. How I made some of them dance! Not for vanity's sake; rather the inborn patriotism of my race. I had only to think of my father, his honorable scars, his contempt for little things, his courage, his steadfastness, his love for his country, which has so honored him with its trust. Oh! I am a patriot; and I shall never, never marry a man whose love for his country does not equal my own." She caught up her father's mutilated hand and kissed it. "And even now this father of mine is planning and planning to safeguard his country."

"But you must not say anything to a soul, my child; it must be a secret till all is ready. I met Karlott to-day at the club. He has promised to dine with us to-morrow night."

"Make him postpone it, I have promised to dine with Nancy Warburton."

"You had better dine with us and spend the evening with your friend. Do you not think him a handsome fellow?"

"He is charming." She touched the bowl of poppies with her fingers and smiled.

"He is very wealthy, too."

Betty offered no comment.

"What did they do to that infernal rascal who attempted to run away with you and Mrs. Chadwick?"

"He was arrested and locked up."
