STRAWBERRIES A LIGHT CROP

Good Prices for Early Berries the Rule

Benton Harbor, June 6.—The strawberry crop will be far lighter than was anticipated a few weeks ago, and the shipments will fall far short of what was expected. The schooners of the Graham & Morton line brought in good loads from all directions, the steamer May Graham brought a good load down the river, the interurban brought some and the Michigan Central brought in a good many which were transferred to the boats.

The farmers who were fortunate enough to have good crops of the earlier varieties are reaping a harvest for the prizes are holding up remarkably well. The Illinois and southern berries as a rule made the market for the earlier Michigan berries poor, but Tuesday the prices paid by local commission men varied from $1.40 to $1.65 per case for fancy stock. The local buyers are at present buying all the berries that are offered there being no buyers from abroad.

The shipment made by the boat companies amounted Tuesday evening to 5,900 cases.

MARRIAGE MILL GRINDS

South Bend Lovers Flock to St. Joseph

St. Joseph, Mich., June 6.—The marriage mill in this city is making a new record this week. On Sunday there were 10 licenses issued, on Monday five and on Tuesday as many more. South Bend parties find the interurban very convenient when they have but a little time to spare and yet wish a short honeymoon trip. There have been a number of licenses issued to South Bend parties in the past 10 days. If the present rate keeps up, the number of licenses issued this year will go far ahead of 1906 which was the banner year.

Joseph Bailey, an aged farmer living near Dearborn, met death early Monday morning while wheeling a barrow over the Michigan Central tracks, near his home. Why Mr. Bailey failed to notice the approach of the swiftly moving train is a mystery. He was struck by the steam chest of the locomotive and thrown thirty feet. One of his arms and several ribs were fractured. It is thought that a broken rib pierced his lungs. He died immediately. Mrs. Bailey has been a sufferer with rheumatism for a long time and her husband was a most patient nurse to her. Deceased was 77 years of age.

Must Shut THE SALOONS

But Nothing is Said Concerning Banks on Primary Day

Lansing, June 5.—Is primary election day, June 12, a bank holiday? This question was put to the attorney general's department and is still undecided. The primary law is still undecided. The primary law itself provides that saloons shall be closed on primary election day, but makes no provision as to banks and courts.

There is a provision of the general election laws, however, that banks shall be closed on all days on which state, county and city elections are held, but there is some doubt as to whether the primary election law is within this classification.

The Supreme court has arranged to sit on primary election day, but the question was not raised until today; and the judges may alter their arrangements.

"The Clansman"

The attraction at McVicker's Theatre, Chicago, beginning June 18, will be Thomas Dixon, Jr.'s remarkable play, "The Clansman," the most talked of play in the past forty years. Dealing, as it does, with probably the most dramatic period in American history, it possesses an emotional interest which carries its appeal to both North and South. Although the scenes are laid in South Carolina there is not one line of sectionalism in the play, not one word to show a prejudice against the North, but rather the reverse is true, for the heroine who wins the love of the leader of the Ku Klux Klan is a Northern girl. It is undeniably true that Mr. Dixon's play presents the race problem in a powerful manner, and Mr. Dixon is firmly convinced that his message to the North on this question will meet with careful thought and consideration. At the same time it is also true that "The Clansman" as a play possesses so many elements of interest that it cannot fail to be tremendously effective in any portion of the country. The New Orleans States on December 22d in an editorial spoke of "The Clansman" as one of the most notable productions of the present century, a play which should be witnessed by every man and woman in this country." The play has a powerful appeal. Since the 22d of last September not a single vacant seat could have been found in any theatre where Mr. Dixon's play was being presented.

All out-of-town orders should be accompanied by remittances payable to Litt & Dingwall, McVicker's Theatre, Chicago.

IS ADMITTED TO ASYLUM

Wilhelmina Heimert Was Taken to Kalamazoo

The case of Miss Wilhelmina Heimert, the Galien lady whose mind became weakened over to great study of religious subjects, was given a hearing in the probate office Tuesday morning before Judge Ellsworth. The application for her admittance to the asylum at Kalamazoo was granted and the lady was taken to the asylum on Wednesday.

Kingling Bros.' Excursions

Special excursion rates on all lines of travel have been arranged for by the management of Kingling Brothers World's Greatest shows, and those who wish to go to South Bend where this great circus exhibits Wednesday June 27, can do so at very little expense. This will be the only point in this vicinity where the show will exhibit this season, and no one should miss the opportunity to witness it. Kingling Brothers' circus has been the leading arena exhibition of America for years, but the show has never been permitted to rest upon its reputation. Although it long ago passed the point of competition, every season sees a greater and grander show. This year's performance is entirely new, and entails the combined efforts of 375 wonderful artists in the equestrian, gymnastic, equilibriatic, acrobatic and aerial line, together with fifty famous clowns and hundreds of lesser lights. Six hundred and fifty horses are used and a marvelous trained animal department is presented. The circus this season is greatly enlarged by the spectacular production of The Field of the Cloth of Gold, a pantomimic presentation of the well known and beautiful historical meeting between the young Kings of England and France. The vast menagerie has among hundreds of features the only living pair of giraffes, the first baby elephants successfully bred and reared in America, and the only rhinoceros in captivity. There is a gorgeous revival of the Roman hippodrome races, and many other stupendous features in this great circus. Circus day opens with a brilliant street parade, three miles in length. Don't fail to see it.

A Graphical Sketch of Niagara Falls

The following letter is from Hon. J. C. Rough, giving a minute description of his honeymoon trip

Pittsburg, Pa.,
June 6, 1906.

Dear Pearl:

I had intended writing before, but could not find the time. We started for Newport, but it clouded up and looked so much like rain we stopped off here at Pittsburg. Yesterday we took a run down to the Falls. They are great, grand, magnificent, much better than advertised. If I were a painter or had Harry Weaver along with us, I would have him dash off a water color of it and send you folks a copy. The Falls look about the same as you see them in the third act of the Fast Mail.

Charlie Chapin certainly over looked a good thing when he let the Falls get away from him. He could probably have gotten Bonine or Nils to buy it for him. Knowing Pete Fuller so well, kind a put the cave of the winds to the bail, but the whirlpool was great, it just made the hair on my neck stand on edge. I wish the rest of you folks could come down and look the place over.

I just had my fortune told by a gypsy, who said I would be successful in my chosen profession. Of course my experience is limited, but from what I can find out, marriage is a sure enough success, even if Geo. Black does say its a foolish failure. Give my regards to Front street and tell the boys when I get home we will all go skating at my expense. Regards from Mrs. Rough.

Yours as ever,
Jake.

For The Public Good

An independent and ably edited newspaper which commands a great circulation is probably the most potent influence for good in the United States to-day. The power for the better-things in public affairs and policies, for instance, which is wielded by such a newspaper as The Chicago Record-Herald can scarcely be exaggerated, and much of that strength comes in the case of this leading Chicago daily from the fact that it is absolutely independent, fearless and fair. It is not the mouth-piece of any interest except that of the public. The Record-Herald champions the cause of the good, the clean, the beneficial in every matter of city, state or national moment. It is the knowledge on the part of its readers that it cares not whom it hits or what enemies it makes, so long as it is battling for the welfare of the community, which gives to The Record-Herald much of the influence it enjoys. It gives in its news columns the most complete and impartial reports of political events, another evidence of its splendid news service.

Henry Kuhlman Missing From Glenlord—Wrote a Note To His Wife

St. Joseph, June 7—Considerable anxiety has been felt all this week over the disappearance of Henry Kuhlman, a successful farmer of Glenlord, Berrien county, who left home Monday morning and has not been seen since.

Kuhlman is 58 years of age, and has been in poor health for the past year, being very poorly this spring, and he has grown despondent.

Monday he wrote a note to his wife which he left on the bed, together

He says: "I sowed my wild oats" when young. A change came over me. I could feel it; my friends noticed it. I became nervous, despondent, gloomy, had no ambition, easily tired, evil forebodings, poor circulation, pimples on face, back weak, restless at night, tired and weak morning sensation. To make matters worse, I became reckless and contracted other diseases. I tried many doctors and medical firms—all failed till Drs. Kennedy & Kergan took my case. with his watch and all his money. In the note he stated that he was despondent and left the impression that he was about to commit suicide. He was tracked as far as Lake Michigan where the trail was lost and it is believed that his body has been carried out into deep water. Searching parties are out in launches dragging the lake. The man's daughter has arrived from Chicago to comfort the aged wife.

THE MAN ON THE BOX

He was desperately in love. I do not know what desperately in love is, my own love's course running smoothly enough; but I can testify that it was making Mr. Robert thin and appetiteless. Every morning the impulse came to him to tell her all; but every morning his courage oozed like Bob Acres', and his lips became dumb. I dare say that if she had questioned him he would have told her all; but for some reason she had ceased to inquire into his past. Possibly her young mind was occupied with pleasanter things.

He became an accomplished butler, and served so well in rehearsals that Pierre could only grumble. One afternoon she superintended the comedy. She found a thousand faults with him, so many, in fact, that Pierre did not understand what it meant, and became possessed with the vague idea that she was hitting him over the groom's shoulder. He did not like it; and later, when they were alone, Warburton was distinctly impressed with Pierre's displeasure.

"You can not please her, and you can not please me. Bah! Zat ees vat comes of teaching a groom table manners instead of stable manners. And you vil smell of horse! I do not understand Mees Annesley; no!"

And there were other humiliations, petty ones. She chid him on having the stirrup too long or too short; the curb chain was rusting; this piece of ornamental silver did not shine like that one. Jane's fetlocks were too long; Pirate's hoofs weren't thoroughly oiled. With dogged patience he tried to remedy all these faults. It was only when they had had a romping run down the road that this spirit fell away from her, and she talked pleasantly.

Twice he ran into Karloff, but that shrewd student of human nature did not consider my hero worth studying; a grave mistake on his part, as he was presently to learn. He was handsome, and the only thing he noticed about the groom was his handsome face. He considered it a crime for a servant to be endowed with personal attractions. A servant in the eyes of a Russian noble excites less interest than a breedless dog. Mr. Robert made no complaint; he was very well satisfied to have the count ignore him entirely. Once he met the count in the Turkish room, where, in the capacity of butler he served liquor and cigars. There was a certain grim humor in lighting his rivals cigar for him. This service was a test of his ability to pass through a room without knocking over taborets and chairs. Another time they met when Betty and the two of them took a long ride. Karloff did notice how well the groom rode his mettlesome mount, being himself a soldier and a daring horseman. Warburton had some trouble. Pirate did not take to the idea of breathing Jane and Dick's dust, he wanted to lead these second-raters. Mr. James' arms ached that afternoon from the effort he had put forth to restrain Pirate and keep him in his proper place, five yards to the rear.

Nothing happened Sunday; the day went by uneventfully. He escaped the ordeal of driving her to the Chevy Chase Club, William being up that afternoon.

Then Monday came, and with it Betty's curious determination to ride Pirate.

"You wish to ride Pirate, Miss?" exclaimed James, his horror of the idea openly manifest.

"Saddle him for me,"—peremptorily. "I desire to ride him. I find Jane isn't exciting enough."

"Pardon me, Miss Annesley," he said, "but I had rather you would not make the attempt."

"You had rather I would not make the attempt?"—slowly repeating the words, making a knife of each one of them, tipped with the poison of her contempt. "I do not believe I quite understand you."

He bravely met the angry flash of her eyes. There were times when the color of these eyes did not resemble sapphires; rather disks of gunmetal, caused by a sudden dilation of the pupils.

"Yes, Miss, I had rather you would not."

"James you forget yourself. Saddle Pirate, and take Jane back to the stables. Besides, Jane has a bit of a cold." She slapped her boot with her riding-crop and indolently studied the scurrying clouds overhead; for the day was windy.

Soberly Warburton obeyed. He was hurt and angry, and he knew not what besides. Heavens, if anything should happen to her! His hopes rose a bit. Pirate had shown no temper so far that morning. He docilely permitted his master to put on the side-saddle. But as he came out into the air again, he threw forward his ears, stretched out his long black neck, took in a great breath, and whinnied a hoarse challenge to the elements. William had already saddled Dick, who looked askance at his black rival's small, compact heels.

"I am afraid of him," said Warburton, as he returned. "He will run away with you. I did not wholly subjugate him the other day. He pulls till my arms ache."

"I AM NOT AFRAID OF HIM."

Miss Annesley shrugged and patted Pirate on the nose and offered him a lump of sugar. The thirst for freedom and a wild run down the wind lurked in Pirate's far-off gazing eyes, and he ignored the sign of conciliation which his mistress made him.

"I am not afraid of him. Besides, Dick can outrun and outjump him."

This did not reassure Warburton, nor did he know what this comparison meant, being an ordinary mortal.

"With all respect to you, Miss Annesley, I am sorry that you are determined to ride him. He is most emphatically not a lady's horse, and you have never ridden him. Your skirts will irritate him, and if he sees your crop, he'll bolt."

She did not reply, but merely signified her desire to mount. No sooner was she up, however, than she secretly regretted her caprice; but not for a hundred worlds would she have permitted this groom to know. But Pirate, with that rare instinct of the horse, knew that his mistress was not sure of him. He showed the whites of his eyes and began pawing the gravel. The girl glanced covertly at her groom and found no color in his cheeks. Two small muscular lumps appeared at the corners of her jaws. She would ride Pirate, and nothing should stop her; nothing, nothing. Womanlike, knowing herself to be in the wrong, she was furious.

And Pirate surprised them both. During the first mile he behaved himself in the most gentlemanly fashion; and if he shied once or twice, waltzed a little, it was only because he was full of life and spirit. They trotted, they cantered, ran and walked. Warburton, hitherto holding himself in readiness for whatever might happen, relaxed the tension of his muscles, and his shoulders sank relievedly. Perhaps, after all, his alarm had been

Stylish Hats

There is no article of apparel which counts so much in a man's appearance as his hat, and it is remarkable to notice the number of men wearing stylish well fitting clothes and unbecoming hats. This is usually not the fault of the man, as he tries to get a hat that will look well on him, but rather because he can't find the shape or style he wants. Adlers hat section offers every popular shape in all proportions, in both stiff and soft hats. You might think it would hardly pay you to go from Buchanan to South Bend for a hat but when you know you can get just the shape and style you want in a hat which we absolutely guarantee as to wear, then it will certainly pay you.

needle's. The trouble with Pirate might be the infrequency with which he had been saddled and ridden. But he knew that the girl would not soon forget his interference. There would be more humiliations, more bitter pills for him to swallow. It pleased him, however, to note the ease with which Dick kept pace with Pirate.

As for the most beautiful person in all the great world, I am afraid that she was beginning to feel self-important. Now that her confidence was fully restored, she never once spoke, to or looked at her groom. Occasionally from the corner of her eye she could see the white patch on Dick's nose.

"James," she said maliciously and suddenly, "go back five yards. I wish to ride a'one."

Warburton, his face burning, fell back. And thus she made her first mistake. The second and final mistake came immediately after. She touched Pirate with her heel, and he broke from a trot into a lively gallop. Dick, without a touch of the boot, kept his distance to a foot. Pirate, no longer seeing Dick at his side, concluded that he had left his rival behind; and the suppressed mischief in his black head began to find an outlet. Steadily he arched his neck; steadily but surely he drew down on the reins. The girl felt the effort and tried to frustrate it. In backing her pull with her right hand, the end of her crop flashed down the side of Pirate's head—the finishing touch. There was a wild leap, a blur of dust, and Mr. Pirate, well named after his freebooting sires, his head down where he wanted it, his feet rolling like a snare-drum, Mr. Pirate ran away, headed for heaven only knows where.

For a brief moment Warburton lost his nerve; he was struck with horror. If she could not hold her seat, she would be killed or dreadfully hurt, and perhaps disfigured. It seemed rather strange, as he recalled it, that Dick, instead of himself, should have taken the initiative. The noble sorrel, formerly a cavalry horse, shot forward magnificently. Don't ss his horse-sense took in the situation, or else he did not like the thought of yonder proud, sup'rcilious show-horse beating him in a running race. So, a very fast mile was put to the rear.

The girl, appreciating her peril, did as all good horsewomen would have done; locked her knee on the horn and held on. The rush of wind tore the pins from her hair which, like a golden plume, stretched out behind her. (Have you ever read any thing like this before? I dare say. But to Warburton and the girl, it never occurred that other persons had gone through like episodes. It was real, and actual, and single, and tragic to them.)

Its perfect purity and dryness, its luxurious elasticity and life, make it as desirable as the costliest hair mattress made. It is non-absorbent, and will not become lumpy nor lose its delightful resilience in a lifetime.

The Stearns & Foster Co's mattresses must be seen to be appreciated. We have just received a shipment of them—we know you can be suited.

Let us show you the S. & F. mattress and convince you of their superiority. Come to-day—delay means regret on your part.

A small Petosky boy has the right idea. He went to a local store and asked for a dime's worth of fly paper. He told the storekeeper he was going to make a kite.
A Niles man went to Detroit to have an operation for appendicitis, but as the conditions were not right he bought a $2,700 automobile instead. Bound to be in style.

The postoffice department announces a cut in salary of the postmaster at Berrien Springs from $1,500 to $1,400, while the Buchanan postmaster gets a raise from $1,700 to $1,900.

We are pleased to note that there are not any drunks on the streets during the carnival, as has been prophesied by the citizens. This is an unusual event, for as a general rule, when any event is transpiring in this village, the habitual drunkards celebrate in their usual fashion. This speaks well for our city marshal.

The people of Buchanan will have the opportunity on next Thursday evening of greeting one of the finest lecturers, that has ever appeared on a commencement program in this place. Judge Alfred Ellison ranks with the best.

Word has been received that Miss Dunham, who resigned her position here to accept a similar one in the Detroit schools, is now nicely settled in her work. Her many friends will be glad to know of her success and the promotion was well deserved.

Mr. Tennyson Bunker is on the injured list, he having smashed and fractured the bones in his middle finger on his left hand, while working on a lathe, yesterday morning, at the Axle Factory. Dr. J. A. Garland dressed the injured member, and he is reported as doing nicely.

The Senior class exercises will be given in the Opera House on next Tuesday evening. The program consists of two parts. The first part will be a play in two acts, entitled "Handicapped." The second part of the program will consist of the usual class day parts, with a drill by the senior girls.

Fire originated at the home of Mr. Alta Denno, Wednesday evening from a gasoline stove. A coat was hanging on the wall back of the stove, and in some manner this caught on fire. The fire alarm was sounded and upon arrival of the fire department the fire had been extinguished. No serious damage is reported.

Misses Carrie and Minnie Shafer accompanied by Miss Florence Redden went to Chicago, Wednesday afternoon, where they will attend the wedding of the Misses Shafer's brother, Martin L. Shafer, who was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Miss Katherine O'Connell, of Chicago. Mr. Shafer is well and favorable known in this village, and his many friends with the Record extend congratulations to him and his charming bride.

A great amount of damage was done, in and around this vicinity during the heavy rain and wind of last evening. The beautiful large maple tree on the east side of Amos House's residence was split in two parts, spoiling this lovely tree. The Pilbeam carnival company suffered more from the storm than anyone else. Three of their tents were blown to the ground, besides damaging two of them so badly that it is doubtful if they will again be put up during the remainder of their stay here. We are sorry that the company has met with such adverse fortune, and hope they will meet with better luck as the season advances.

A Niles man who is pretty close to Chas. A. Chapin states that the opponents of the franchise sought from Niles under which the current generated at Buchanan would be taken to Niles for factory use are mistaken in assuming that the Chapin company desire to enter into competition with that city for commercial lighting. Mr. Chapin is quoted as expressing himself on that point and has been prevailed upon to seek a franchise from Niles now at the repeated solicitation of certain interests in Niles which want to use his current. It will cost Mr. Chapin fully $5000 to install proper transformers to make his current available there and he has not until recently looked with any favor on the proposition to put the current in Niles.

The Carnival was in full swing on Tuesday and Wednesday nights, and everybody seemed to have a glorious time. Owing to the rains of yesterday and today, however, the carnival is at a standstill. We trust that tomorrow, their last day, they will have a fine day and a big crowd.
Kindness of Mr. H. O. Perrott
Through the kindness of Mr. H. O. Perrott, who recently returned from San Francisco, we have been afforded a rare treat. Upon his return home from California, he purchased two books containing glimpses of the San Francisco disaster, graphically describing the fire and earthquake, which he has given us the privilege of viewing.
The photographs illustrate the world's greatest conflagration, portraying the awful convulsion of nature, which spread, consternation and death in that once beautiful city. No one can realize the horror which the inhabitants went through until viewing these pictures.
These books contain pictures of the horrible storm of fire and flames fleeing refugees, falling skyscrapers, government troops, dynamiting squads at work, improvised homes in the streets and parks and many other scenes of interest.
We thank Mr. Perrott for given us this privilege of viewing these scenes as it is indeed a rare treat.

Opera House, Chicago

Cyril Scott in "The Prince Chap" at the Grand Opera House, Chicago, now in its third week, is a tremendous success. There never has been seen in this city, a drama that takes such a strong hold on the hearts of everyone, filling them with the joy of laughter and occasionally starting the eye-improving tear. The fondness of Mayor Dunne, of the city of Chicago for "The Prince Chap" has been remarked upon by his friends and constituents. He attends the performance each week accompanied by two or three of his children and keenly enjoys every moment of the delightful drama.

In order to accommodate school children the management has arranged to admit the little ones at half price at all Saturday matinees. Last Saturday advantage was taken of the accommodating prices by a large number of children from various institutions in Chicago. They helped with the enthusiasm which was bestowed on Cyril Scott throughout the entire three acts. Mr. Frank Lamb playing the role of Ronion the butler, has become very popular with Chicago audiences, giving them many a cheerful moment with his uncrossed humor. Lucile Flaven as Princess Alice is playing this difficult part better than it has ever been played before, making it more piquant, and so to speak the sance of the literary feast, to the delight of everybody. The Misses Helen Pullman and Edith Speare, Clafidias of Act first and Act second, have made many friends in Chicago and have been entertained at almost every spare moment. The third act Clafidias, Miss Grace Scott, who by the way is not related to Cyril Scott, the star, but whose name is merely similar, seems to gain fresh interest in her work at every performance and has undoubtedly achieved a personal success. Beyond any doubt Cyril Scott in "The Prince Chap" has demonstrated that Chicago appreciates a high class, subtle, sentimental comedy-drama. In former summers musical comedy only could obtain attention in Chicago, but "The Prince Chap" being a drama of a new style, has aroused the interest—that all new and original things obtain, and Chicago has pronounced it the best play of its kind seen here this season.
