MR. ANDREWS WILL SUCCEED WHITE

Practically Conceded He Will be Next Pros. Atty.

There has come to be a sort of a tacit understanding that the next Prosecuting Attorney of Berrien county, succeeding Chas. E. White of Niles, whose last term will expire Dec. 31, 1908, will be Attorney W. H.
Andrews of the law firm of Cady & Andrews.

Last year every attorney in the county as if by common consent conceded a second term to Mr. White, and it will be remembered that the Niles man had very little opposition, in fact none at all, when he received his first nomination in the last delegate county convention held.

Last year although the primary law had come in to work a radical change in the method of nominating candidates, making it practically a free-for-all, still no one aspired to contest the honor of a renomination with Mr. White, and he secured practically a unanimous vote.

During the last campaign an understanding, was reached, at least as much of an understanding as can be reached by politicians in such matters, that Mr. Andrews should have the inside in the succession to Mr.
White, and the present indications are that he will be allowed to have about his way in the primary and that the principal of rotation will be involved to satisfy the most ambitious aspirant for the place, who will be promised that when Mr. Andrews is through that everybody will turn in and help him and so on.

Mr. White has made a first class attorney for the people. He has been industrious, energetic, painstaking and efficient.

Mr. Andrews has a good record in court in the handling of business entrusted to his care as a member of the firm of Cady & Andrews.

Mr. Andrews was formerly located at Berrien Springs a fact that gives him a strong hold on that locality, and his present residence in Benton Harbor the largest city of the county will help him to attain his present ambition.

PEARL SHOT L. T. MOORE

Bullet Extracted From Back of Would-be Murderers Head

Although he is lying in bed, with bullets in his body from the gun of a would-be murderer, Deputy Sheriff Rodney Pearl has some small consultation, for weak and dizzy as he was from the loss of blood, he shot L. T. Moore as he was trying to escape.

It has just developed that one of the wounds, found by the physicians in Moore's head could not have been self-inflicted. It was well to the back of the head, where it is almost impossible for a man to point a gun and from the direction which the ball had taken, the revolver had evidently been fired on a line with the center of the head.

To illustrate how difficult it is to place a bullet in this spot, one has only to attempt to bend their arm about, their hand clutching an imaginary revolver and try to draw a bead on the back of the head. It is easy enough to get the hand back, but to hold it in such a position that the bullet from the revolver will be driven straight in, is another thing, and is practically impossible.

Owing to this, and also to the fact that the bullet appears to be larger than the one found in the front of the skull, and which was fired by Moore himself, the physicians and the officers believe that they have certain proof that Pearl's aim was good and that he winged his enemy.

Pearl's gun was a 38 and the bullet would naturally be somewhat larger than that of Moore's whose gun was but a 32.

Both Pearl and Moore are resting easily and no complications have set in. The absence of these has relieved the physicians greatly and they have great hopes for the lives of both their patients.

BIG FOUR KILLS TWENTY

Mistaking Signals in Heavy Fog Caused Disaster at Fowler, Ind.

Fowler, Ind., Jan. 19.—At 3:30 this morning passenger train No. 4, running east at the rate of 60 miles an hour, collided with a freight near here, and twenty lives were snuffed out in a twinkling.

The two locomotives were hurled down an embankment and the cars caught fire. Of the 25 passengers riding in the forward coach only five have been accounted for.

The Cincinnati sleeper, Chicago to Cincinnati, attached to the train took fire, and soon after the Indianapolis sleeper broke out in flames. The burned and wounded people were carried to the private car of President Schoff of the Big Four, which was attached to the rear of the train.

Several doctors from Fowler were soon on the scene. The dead are estimated at twenty, while many others are terribly burned and mangled and ill die.

The engineer on the express train did not see the black signal to stop at Fowler for the freight on account of the fog.

TWELFTH ANNIVERSARY

Twelve Years Ago Yesterday That the Chicora Went Down

Twelve years ago yesterday, the ill-fated steamer Chicora of the Graham & Morton line, was made a victim of one of Lake Michigan's treacherous moods and with her entire crew disappeared from the face of the lakes forever.

Not in all these twelve years, has the lake once made a motion to give up her secret, never has it been possible to locate the lost steamer and the lake has kept its secret, with its dead.

The Chicora was making her run from Milwaukee to St. Joseph when she was overtaken by the terrible storm that proved her undoing and although she battled for hours with the gale and fought her way through the ice until her machinery was disabled she was finally conquered and battered to pieces by the elements and sank beneath the waves.

The only news ever received, came in a bottle, which had been cast overboard by the chief engineer Robert McClure and this stated that the machinery had been disabled and the vessel was rolling in the trough of the sea. No message in any form came after that and although it is twelve years ago since the Chicora sank St. Joseph and Benton Harbor have never forgotten the day or the date.

STOP SALE OF CIGARETTES

Reform Measure Proposed in Legislature

Lansing, Jan. 18.—The Indiana anti-cigarette wave which went on the rocks of a supreme court decision in that state is headed towards Michigan

Representative L. D. Dickinson of Charlotte is the sponsor. To stop the sale or giving away of cigarettes or cigarette papers in this state is the purpose of this bill. The provisions of the bill permit jobbers to sell cigarettes outside of Michigan.

"If there is any form of dissipation," said Representative Dickinson, "that dwarfs the intellect of the young it is the smoking of cigarettes.
Matured men of course are not particularly injured, but we know that it injures the nervous system of young men and children.

"Proof of these facts comes from physicians and others who are in position to know and only too often we have the sad examples of wrecked young manhood in the daily press.
The injurious habit has sent many persons to the insane asylums and I believe that the only way to keep cigarettes out of the hands of children is to stop the sale of cigarettes entirely."

Susa Armstrong's Mission

One Night in the Enemy's Lines

By J. I. York

"You have plenty of money, have n't you," questioned the father? "Ah, yes" replies the son. "I don't use a third you send me; you know I never use tobacco in any form nor drink, and put all my spare change in the bank. But, father I am impressed that this riot, as you call it, is the beginning of a war that will not only take the idle men but require every able-bodied man that lives north of the Dixon line. For thirty years this trouble has been brewing and the feeling of hate and discord between the North and South has been cropping out ever since John Brown's raid, capture and execution, which at that time almost threw the country into a Civil War. No, father not a riot, but a awful war stands on the threshold of our once happy country and blood will flow as water when the two armies come together, for we fight not a foreign foe, but our brother." "Oh, no, my son are three months have passed, peace will be restored." But how well we all know that after the three month's men's time was out, a darker cloud hovered over us than at first, and when our armies met the foe at Bull Run and were defeated and utterly demoralized they fell back in such confusion that it seemed as if our Capitol at Washington should be lost, and if the God of War as of Peace had not put forth His hand and stayed the foe until order could be restored, no one could say what might have happened.

CHAPTER III

Six months had passed since this conversation between father and son and the son had returned to his school. One morning Judge Armstrong picked up the paper to read the news when his eyes fell on this paragraph: "A company of volunteers was raised at the College of—and one hundred young men, with James Armstrong as their captain have joined the 14th, N. Y. Zouaves and will be ready to leave for the front of the morrow on the 8:30 p. m. train."

One day as Armstrong was passing by the recruiting office on his way to school, he heard the band playing and there lined up was the new regiment of nine hundred men. The enthusiasm that permeated the air was such as to stir the heart of every lover of right and liberty.

While the young man partially halted to look at the soldiers, the recruiting officer said, "we lack one hundred able-bodied men to make up our quota of one thousand men" and turning to young Armstrong says, half in jest and half in earnest, "Armstrong here is a chance for you, turn yourself into a recruiting officer and bring down one hundred men from the college and I will see to it that you go to the front as their captain." Three cheers went up from the men in line. Young Armstrong stepped upon a large drygoods box, laid down his books and addressed the assembly as follows:

"Ladies and Gentlemen, Fellow Citizens and Soldiers, I have longed to place my name with those brave sons of liberty and lay down my life if need be for a country that is dear to me and to all of us, I hope. I would have been in the ranks, ere this, but am not of age and father has not given his permission until now." Then taking from his pocket a letter from his father, he read, "My son the time has come when every able bodied man should take up arms in defence of his country." Laying the letter down he resumed, "now if the recruiting officer will give me a day I will gain the reward he offers me, and will add to those men in line one hundred more brave boys, who are only glad for an opportunity to answer their country's call."

So great was the enthusiasm at the college that by three o'clock there were one hundred and nine boys or young men in line and one single drum beat the time for the young company, as they passed out of the college grounds in single file, led by young Armstrong. They marched down to the recruiting office and enrolled their names as soldiers, were examined and one hundred and two passed the examination; among them James Armstrong. He at once wrote his father but by some means this letter was delayed and almost at the same time that the latter had read the paragraph in the paper, his daughter came from the post-office with a letter which she handed to her father. He opened it and glanced over its contents which were as follows: "Dear Father,—I have enlisted in the Fourteenth N. Y. Zouaves and will pass through New York City, bound for the front on the 8:30 p. m. train. Meet me with mother and Susa. We will have four hours to wait before we can get transportation, as every train is loaded to its utmost capacity. Was sorry that I had not the privilege of consulting you before taking such a step, but know you are not the man to flinch when our country says, 'come,' for in your last letter you said the time was at hand when our government should put every able-bodied man to the front. Good bye.

Your affectionate son, James T. Armstrong.

Co. H. Fourteenth N. Y. Zouaves." The paper containing the paragraph had dropped to the floor just as Susa entered with the letter and as soon as she glanced at her father she noticed that he was very pale and seemed to be in deep thought.

However he soon recovered himself and took the letter. Susa sat down to hear what her brother had to say, for she had recognized the hand writing. Her father, after reading the letter says, "Susa call your mother." Mrs. Armstrong came in and as she gave one glance at Mr. Armstrong and saw the open letter she said with a smile on her sweet face, "It is well. I know by your face that James has enlisted." "That is so," said Mr. Armstrong, "and he wants us to meet him in the city," relating the contents of the letter and with trembling hands picked up the paper and read the paragraph to his wife. She smiled through her tears and said, I do not blame him. "If I were a man I would go too."

All this time Susa had not uttered a word, but now asked, "Did William Townsend enlist or didn't he say?" "He has mentioned no names," says her father. She said no more, but went to her room very sad for William was more to her than any other earthly friend and well she knew if James had enlisted Will had too, for they were the best of friends and always together.

At the appointed time the great, lumbering train rolled into the depot where thousands had gathered to see their loved ones and as it came to a stop the soldiers filed out and formed a long line and stacked arms; they were then at liberty to chat with their friends.

Will be Offered the Citizen's of Buchanan Next Wednesday Evening

A rare treat will be offered to the citizens of Buchanan and vicinity on next Wednesday evening, January 23, 1907, at the Evangelical church. Bishop S. C. Breyfogel, one of the most brilliant orators in America today, will deliver his celebrated and surpassing lecture on "A Tour Around The World." This story of travel, history, scenery, humor, wit, paths and personal experiences sounds like a romance. Bishop Breyfogel has more than pleased packed houses in America's largest cities, and always holds his audience spell bound from beginning to end. Bishop Breyfogel is a word painter without a peer. Do not fail to hear this marvelous lecture for it is the next thing to going around the world yourself.

Bishop Breyfogel has been in Buchanan before, and has here many admirers who have often expressed the desire of hearing him again. To grant their wishes and also to give many others the privilege of hearing Mr. Breyfogel, Rev. Halmhuber has for the last nine months been putting forth strenuous efforts to have this lecture given. It will be given under the auspices of the Y. P. A. at the Evangelical church. No one can afford to miss this high class entertainment. Admission adults 25c, children 15c. Tickets on sale at Van Meter's bakery. You can have your seat reserved without extra charge at VanMeter's bakery at any time after 8 o'clock on Saturday morning.

JANUARY 23 1907

Some of the Americans who emigrated to western Canada wish now that they were nearer Uncle Sam's coal pile.

Uncle Sam has already revised the map of the world, and in the construction of the Panama canal he proposes to change the face of nature.

Texas, the biggest state in the Union, can always be relied upon to furnish its full quota of excitement. Without Bailey and Brownsville there would be very little doing this winter.

China is not a land famous for progress, but it has the wisdom to improve its main rivers so as to admit ships for many hundred miles. And China is able to support a population of four hundred millions.

In spite of the presence of Jeff Davis of Arkansas the senate will venture to hold a special session after March 4. Mr. Davis will be a sad disappointment if he fails to shake up the senate beyond recognition by the end of March 5

OVER A 100 WITNESSES

Grand Jury Just Adjourned Subpoenaed Many

The grand jury just adjourned created a few facts that are interesting. Exactly 126 witnesses were called before the jury to testify. Niles easily led in the number of witnesses called, Benton Harbor, Three Oaks and St. Joseph following in the order named. Not a few of the witnesses came from the smaller villages, where crime and vice are supposed to be non-existent.

County Treasurer Schultz paid out in witness fees the sum of $323.10. The costs paid into the general fund of the county by the indicted violators will more than offset this amount. In discharging the grand jury Saturday Judge Coolidge stated that from the fines of the violators enough money would be taken out to pay the costs of the jury, the remainder to be turned into the general library fund.

BASKET BALL

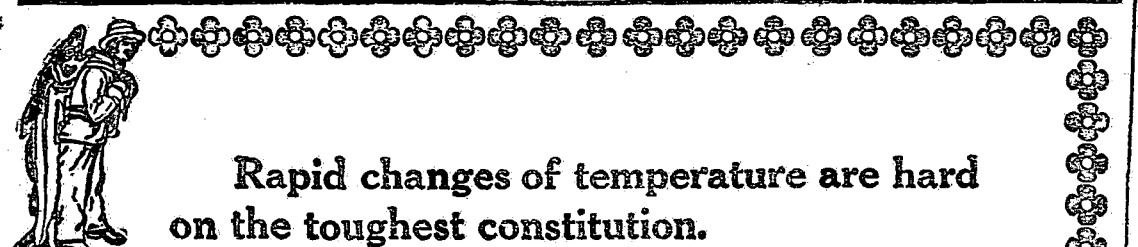

In spite of the rain a large and enthusiastic crowd came out to see Buchanan play St. Joseph and New Carlisle, Friday evening.

The giving of the High School yells, led by Max Penwell and the waving of the many B. H. S. banners added much to the spirit of the games.

The New Carlisle girls and Buchanan girls played the first game. It was fast and snappy and showed good work on both sides. The visitors were all much taller than the home team, but our girls showed better team work, the centers playing a star game. The New Carlisle guards are among the best that have ever played here. Pearl Smith was highly commended on her manner of throwing free throws. The score resulted Buchanan 14; New Carlisle 15.

Following this the boys met the champions of 1906. The game was full of clever individual work on both sides, although St. Joseph had the better team work. We were handicapped here as in the girls game by the greater height of the opposing team. Our boys did some exceptionally good work in the second half. Hamilton's free throws were a decided feature, while Miller starred in his all round playing. The sportsman like conduct of the teams is to be commended. The score was St. Joseph 22; Buchanan 18.

Mrs. Barnhouse celebrated her 71st birthday anniversary last Thursday by a sleigh ride, and then a bounteous dinner at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Alice Koons. Mrs. Barnhouse is very spry for a woman of her age. Her friends wish her many more birthday anniversaries.

Rapid changes of temperature are hard on the toughest constitution.

Mr. Frank Mead was the recipient of a letter Saturday from his son, Maurice or better known among his Buchanan friends as "Mort" which was dated Ballard, Washington, Jan. 4, and bore the tidings that he was married the previous Wednesday. He neglected to state the young ladies name, so we are unable to publish the full particulars. This is a great surprise to his parents as well as his many friends, who however extend hearty congratulations to the groom and his happy bride. Maurice is one of Buchanan's highest esteemed young man, and was born and raised in this village.

A newspaper man bears no ill will toward any subscriber who pays up and stops his paper. He is more apt to sit quietly down and endeavor to sum up the short-comings of his weekly (or weakly) effort. The fellow who stirs the paperman's ire is he, who carries every issue of the paper home from the postoffice for years and then suddenly—after a very mild suggestion that he cancel his obligation to the editor—decides that he has no use for the periodical and notifies the publisher, without enclosing the amount of the indebtedness, that he don't want the paper any longer, or worse still, refuses to take it from the office.

"You must not touch the top of the baby's head," said the mother to her four year old boy. "She has a soft spot there that is very tender." The youngster gazed at it curiously for a moment and then asked: "Do all babies have soft spots on the top of their heads?" "Yes." "Did papa have a soft spot on the top of his head when he was a baby?" "Yes," replied the mother, with a sigh, "and he has got it yet." The old man who had heard the conversation, said, "Yes, indeed he has. my boy, or he would be a single man today."

Cuban Funerals.

A funeral in Cuba, is an interesting spectacle. The hearse, which is as large and gaily decorated as a circus van, leads the procession. Behind it comes the carriages with no one in them. Then follows the mourners on foot. These mourners are always men, as women are never allowed to attend burials.

The body is interred in a grave usually occupied by two or three or even four other bodies and then the cabs carry the mourners back to their homes.

Oftentimes the coffin is rented simply to carry the corpse to the grave, where protected only by a shroud, the remains are buried. The graves are gorgeously decorated with flowers made of porcelain. This ornamentation is overdone and gives the entire cemetery a tawdry appearance.

Graves are leased and as soon as the surviving relatives fail to pay the exorbitant rents the bones are dug up and unceremoniously thrown in one corner of the graveyard, where they may be seen piled high.

Rather peculiar weather we are having. Only last Saturday men were seen carrying their coats on their arms, and ladies without any wraps when behold Sunday morning upon awakening, we find the earth covered with a carpet of white.

You have an hour longer to live, said the physician, solemnly, to the wealthy miser on his deathbed. "Is there anything you wish attended to before you pass away?" Yes, answered the stricken man, in faint, yet eager tones. "I am glad you spoke of it. Send for the barber at once and have him shave me before I die. I only have to pay him 50 cents for coming in to shave me now, and the regular price is $5 for shaving a dead man. Might as well save that $4.50 while I'm about it."

MICHIGAN AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE

Special Course in Fruit Growing. Begins February 11 to February 22, '07

The object of this course is to give the essentials to success in fruit growing, boiled down. The fruit interests of the state have suffered severe losses during the past few years from San Jose scale, little peach, codling moth and other troubles. Mismanagement lies at the root of failure in some cases. Most of these losses and failures can be prevented; the men who know how are making the fruit business pay. This course will aim to give the "know how." It will be like a long farmers' institute on fruit growing; not technical, but practical, and with full opportunity for each man to take part in the discussions of all subjects treated. The college thus cooperates in a special way with the State Horticultural Society in its efforts to better the conditions of Michigan fruit growing. We hope many Michigan fruit growers may spend at least one of these weeks at the college.

Note that the course has been so arranged that a fruit grower can be here for a few days only, if he is especially interested in the subjects under discussion during those days; as from February 22, if anxious to know more about the most successful way of fighting pests.

Mix This at Home

The following simple home-made mixture is said to readily relieve and overcome any form of Rheumatism by forcing the kidneys to filter from the blood and system all the uric acid and poisonous waste matter, relieving at once such symptoms as backache, weak kidneys and bladder and blood diseases.

Try it, as it doesn't cost much to make, and is said to be absolutely harmless to the stomach.

Get the following harmless ingredients from any good pharmacy: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Mix by shaking well in a bottle, and take a teaspoonful after each meal and again at bedtime.

This simple mixture is said to give prompt relief, and there are very few cases of Rheumatism and Kidney troubles it will fail to cure permanently.

These are all harmless, every-day drugs, and your druggist should keep them in the prescription department; if not, have him order them from the wholesale drug houses for you, rather than fail to use this, if you are afflicted. 108
