Reform, like charity, should begin at home, yet every reformer has a burning desire to try his theories on the other fellow.

You may not know why you are on earth at this particular time, but the fact remains that you are here and your time is limited. Get busy.

Some people's idea of right and wrong is regulated by a line drawn by the law. The supposition is false. There can be a good deal of a stinker and yet remain inside the protecting arms of the law.

The members of the legislature were given their usual annual passes by the railroads yet they have nothing to give in return unless they accept the pass as a bribe for legislative favors. Ministers of the gospel are granted their usual half fare permits yet the ministers offer no return for the courtesy. The newspaper man who has an equivalent in advertising for every dollar's worth of transportation received, open and above board, gets nothing. Great is reform.

Buchanan is the Place

Every little village has an ambition to become a trade-center and a boom city, with no special natural features or geographical advantages. Under such conditions what is most needed is some enterprise on the part of its local capitalists. They must make the first advance in the uncharted field of development. When the local business is finally developed and proves to the world that they are successful, then outside enterprises will be sure to step in and enjoy your prosperity with you. Just like a fellow who finds a favorite fishing hole and catches fish, and all the other fishermen who see that he is catching will drop their hooks right by the side of the lucky fisherman. The business men of any town should get together themselves and prove to the world that they have a money-making town. No outsider will want to fish in our swimming hole until we prove that they can catch fish.

Court Proceedings

Wm. Barlow was up before the grand jury, during their session for liquor for a man on the Ind. t. He pled guilty and was $30 or 30 days in the county. Not being able to secure the amount, he is now serving up before Justice of Peace, Atty. G. H. Batchelor.

Mr. F. J. Banke was up before Justice of Peace, Atty. G. H. Batchelor, Wednesday, for violation of the School law. His son Edward, who is under the age of 16 has not been in school as the law demands, so truant officer, Fred Eldredge, made the complaint. The case will be contested, and the trial is set for Feb. 6.

Mr. Geo. Shockley was arrested Wednesday for buying liquor for Edward McGee, who is a minor. He pled not guilty, and his hearing is set for Feb. 6.

Home-Made Catarrh Cure.

Any one can mix right at home the best remedy of its kind known. The name "Cyclone" is given to the following prescription, it is supposed, because of its promptness in driving from the blood and system every vestige of catarrhal poison, relieving this foul and dread disease, no matter where located. To prepare the mixture: Get from any good pharmacy one half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Syrup Kargon and three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Shake well and use in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime.

This is a harmless, inexpensive mixture, which has a peculiar action upon the eliminative tissues of the kidneys, assisting them to filter and strain from the blood and system all catarrhal poisons, which, if not eradicated, are absorbed by the mucous membrane, and an open sore or catarrh is the result.

Prepare some and try it, as it is the prescription of an eminent catarrh specialist of national reputation.

BUCHANAN CASE DISMISSED

The case of Thomas F. Cox against George W. Noble, former postmaster of Buchanan, has been dismissed without costs to either party. The Cox-Noble case was of deep interest to the citizens of Buchanan as it had many sensational features. Attorney Geo. A. Lambert, of Niles acted for the plaintiff and Allison C. Roe was retained by the defendant. News-Palladium.

Susa Armstrong Mission

or

One Night in the Enemy's Lines

By J. I. York

As the drum and fife began to play the death march the guard with William Townsend came through the opening end of the square followed by a company of infantry, they marched up the long line of troops, and as William passed by his company, he nodded a farewell to them. There was not a man in all that great assembly, whose sympathy was not aroused and tears flowed down their soldierly faces. But not a tear dimmed William Townsend's eyes, nor a tremor shook his manly frame; and on that holy Sabbath morn, with head erect he seemed to be drinking in all the sunshine and stepped with a firm tread as on dress parade. He had now counter-marched back to the rear or opening and was nearing his open grave, when all at once he shouted, "the enemy, the enemy."

CHAPTER VI

And there sure enough came Lee's cavalry, followed closely by infantry and artillery, and ere the commander of our army was aware of their approach, a volley from the cavalry carbines awoke the stillness of the morning and many a brave boy went to his long home. They made a sudden dash on the brigade in line, but at the first alarm our men had poured a volley of musketry into the enemy's ranks, causing them to waver and emptying many saddles. Confusion arose in their ranks and at the same time the artillery opened fire on our lines with grape-shot, which soon caused our lines to fall back. Then the enemy made a flank movement and captured several of our regiments or parts of regiments.

But when they reached Co. H, 14th N. Y. Zouaves, that Capt. Armstrong commanded and which had fallen back to where the prisoner was, Capt. Armstrong cut the chain on the leg of the prisoner and placed a musket in his hand, saying, "William die like a man." He ordered a charge on the enemy's flanks and William Townsend bolted through the lines and went straight for the enemy. They were brave and determined men and came on with fixed bayonets, but when they met Co. H, 14th, N. Y. Zouaves there was a bloody struggle. William struck right and left with his musket. James Armstrong and his Company followed close after and at last the enemy fell back, but at the same time re-enforcements came up and Co. H. were made prisoners. Although William Townsend had fought like a demon, he had not received a scratch, while there was hardly one of Co. H. that had not received some kind of a wound. Capt. Armstrong was shot through the body and one arm hung helpless at his side. They were hurried to the rear and soon on their way to Richmond, there to suffer prison life, and none but those brave men that lived through those long and dreary days of starvation and hardships, can ever understand what life was at the Libbey prison. Our army fell back to Warrenton Junction and there gave Lee's army a good thrashing and thus the two armies quivered all winter, until U. S. Grant took command and marched on to Richmond, in the Spring of '64 and '65, while many of our brave boys lay languishing in Southern prisons.

It was Dec 23, 1863 at the town of Whiteplains, N. Y. and everyone was sending boxes of goodies to the soldiers at the front. Among the number were the families of Judge Armstrong and Squire Townsend. The young people had gathered in the large dining room at Squire Townsend's house, where many small packages and boxes lay on the table and several large boxes were being packed for Co. H. and others of 14th, N. Y. Zouaves. Susa Armstrong was here with presents for one she loved more than anyone else on earth. She had made several keep sakes and had bought not a few presents for James, her brother. Judge and Mrs. Armstrong were packing the boxes when the morning train rolled in. If not delayed would reach the depot at Christmas.

Nor the William was to be shot in the morning, the 24th of December. As the morning train rolled into the station the news boys went hurrying through the crowd, crying out, another big battle; the army of the Potomac surprised and driven back to Washington. Lee in hot pursuit and had captured several brigades. The whole army of the Potomac demoralized. This was the greeting that met Judge Armstrong and Squire Townsend as they neared the depot. But they loaded their boxes on the train in time, for the heavy laden train puffing and snorting, soon pulled out, carrying not only boxes but fire soldiers, not all volunteers, for Uncle Sam had lost a great many men and now when the call came for one hundred thousand more, drafted men made up that quota.

Judge Armstrong and Squire Townsend bought the morning paper as they drove home, were a little easy about their boys. Their fears were realized, for when they opened the paper they read of the capture of Co. H, 14th, N. Y. Zouaves; how a brigade was in line formed in a hollow square ready to execute a man for sleeping on post and how they had held Lee's army in check until the army could form a line of defence. By the time the Judge and Squire reached home they were pretty well agitated over their boys and their country's misfortune, and continued to be so for many days to follow. They waited several days for news more favorable, but none came and their suspense was so great that at last the Judge and Squire went to the front to ascertain the full particulars. They there learned concerning William what the reader already knows. It seemed miraculous that he had been set at liberty in the last moment. Surely God's hand was in it and preserved the life of one that was worthy, which no earthly power, save that of Abraham Lincoln President of the U. S. could execute. When Judge Armstrong had gathered from the Court Martial all the facts in the case, he and Squire Townsend went to Washington and presented their cards at the White House, but the press of business at that time was so great they could not get a hearing. They then took up their lodging at a hotel and waited, they went every day for a week, hoping that they might be admitted to the President, but of no avail and at last gave up and returned home.

When the Judge made his family acquainted with the facts, Susa was almost distracted with grief, for her brother, but more especially for her lover, this being the first inkling of the horrible truth that had reached her. She wept for several days, until Mrs. Armstrong became alarmed for fear she would lose her reason; that would be worse than death to her. But on the ninth morning she came down to breakfast, all smiles, not a trace of grief on her lovely face. She greeted her father and mother with a cheery good morning; sat down to the table and ate a hearty breakfast. She seemed to be as cheerful as of old, before sorrow had clouded her beautiful brow. After the family had had worship, for this was the custom at the Armstrong home, she called her father and mother into the library and told them her plans. Although the same did not meet with their approval, they thought it best to humor her and assisted her in carrying them out.

A NEW BOOK ENTITLED A JOURNEY TO THE HOLY LAND AND

Countries and of the Mediterranean

Has just been published by the son of the late REV. JOSEPH F. BARTMESS Who visited the Orient on the steamship New England which sailed from Boston, February 1, 1900.

The book is edited from Rev. Bartmess' diary notes which were written by him while visiting the various points of note on this interesting trip. The book treats of the ocean voyage, incidents of travel, and places visited, among which are the following: Isle of Madeira, Gibraltar, Algiers, Isle of Malta, Valetta, Citta Vecchia, Alexandria, Cairo, The Pyramids, Jaffa, Jerusalem, Jericho, Jordan, Dead Sea, Bethlehem, Bethany, Caifa, Mt. Carmel, Nazareth, Galilee, Beyrout, Smyrna, Cyprus, Rhodes, Constantinople, Piraeus, Athens, Naples, Pompeii, Rome, Transcontinental trip via Florence, Paris, London, to Liverpool, and homeward voyage via Halifax, Portland Boston and New York.

The book is duodecimo in size, printed in small plea. on best quality paper, bound in English cloth, with gilt top, and title displayed in gilt on back and side. The subject matter comprises 185 pages, including the preface, biographical sketch, and an excellent half-tone portrait of Rev. Bartmess.

There are only a limited number of copies published. Price of single copies $1.50. Anyone sending $18, the price of one dozen copies, will receive an extra copy gratis. Remittances may be made by Post Office Money Order, Express Money Order, or draft on New York. Books will be promptly forwarded by mail or express. Remittances should accompany all orders and should be sent direct to Edward A. Bartmess, 44 Pine St., Yonkers, New York.

The publishing of this book is not a business enterprise. The editor, son of Rev. Bartmess, is selling the book at less than cost. In his preface he says, "One day while reading from two small memoranda books which my father used on his trip to the Holy Land, it occurred to me to publish his notes in book form, believing that his relatives, many old friends, and others interested in foreign travel, would find pleasure in possessing his own daily record of the trip." In the closing paragraph he further states, "If the reader of this volume, besides gaining a little knowledge derives only a small portion of the pleasure that has come to me in the preparation of its pages, I shall be very glad. I shall be very glad to let this memory, it shall accompany me."

Ezra Kendall

Ezra Kendall, who has created a distinct style or humor on the American stage, has been given a play this season in which the elements of fun in which he has been successful have been taken as the basis. "Swell Elegant Jones" is a rural comedy of the typical Kendall style.

Under the direction of Harry Askin & Co., Mr. Kendall began his Chicago engagement of two weeks at the Grand Opera House Sunday night, January 27.

"Swell Elegant Jones" is by Herbert Hall Winslow, who gave Mr. Kendall his previous success "The Vinegar Buyer." The scenes of the new comedy are drawn from Martinsville, Indiana, a small village near Indianapolis. Mr. Kendall appears as the quaint philosopher, sharp at repartee, keen in his witticism and prolific in his observations. Surrounding him are characters as quaint and rural as the environs. They prove effective foils for Mr. Kendall while strengthening the comedy element.

Although the play is written essentially for fun and to give Mr. Kendall scope to appear in the moods at which he is best, "Swell Elegant Jones" tells a coherent and interesting story. Mr. Kendall appears at first as the overly rich mine owner and then later as a poor lawyer who has been elected to the office of the justice of the peace. Not only has he lost his money but through the intrigue of a divorce lawyer he has become estranged from his wife. Despite his many woes, Swell Elegant Jones, now ordinary Poor Jones, remains happy and a cheerful philosopher and finally wins back money and love.

"Swell Elegant Jones" was staged by John Stapleton who was chosen because of his success in developing locals and color in "The Heir to the Hoorah" and "The Virginian." He has been successful in bringing out rural "atmosphere" in "Swell Elegant Jones" as he was in permeating the two western plains plays with the spirit of the plains. Among those in the cast of "Swell Elegant Jones" are William McKee, Alfred Britton, George Neville, George T. Welch, Joseph Wright, Rose Tiffany, Margery Taylor, Caroline Eckert, Margaret Wells and Margaret Shaw.

"The Shepherd King"

At McVicker's Theatre, Chicago, on Tuesday evening, Feb. 12, (Lincoln's birthday), Mr. Wright Lorimer will present for the first time in Chicago his stupendous production of the powerful four act romantic drama, "The Shepherd King." This wonderful play, now in its fourth successful season, with the possible exception of "Ben-Hur," is the largest production on the American stage. Its plot is founded on the Old Testament narrative of the early life of David of Israel and the beauty of its costuming, the picturesqueness of its mounting and the interest of its story makes it one of the most interesting dramas of its time. Mr. Lorimer, who is under the management of Wm. A. Brady, is surrounded by a supporting company of 200 people, prominent people who are Carl Ekstrom, Ethelbert Hales, Mark Price, Daniel Gilfeather, Walter Edwards, Sam Forrest, May Buckley, Nellee Reed, Eleanor Carey and Marian Ward. Matinees will be given on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Seats will be reserved on receipt of money order, check or registered letter.

Neighbors Got Fooled

"I was literally coughing myself to death, and had become too weak to leave my bed; and neighbors predicted that I would never leave it alive; but they got fooled, for thanks be to God, I was induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery. It took just four one dollar bottles to completely cure the cough and restore me to good sound health," writes Mrs. Eya Uncapher, of Grovertown, Stark Co., Ind. This King of cough and cold cures, and healer of throat and lungs is guaranteed by W. N. Brodick Drugist, 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

First publication Nov. 1, 1907.

"Special Social Day." An interesting and pleasing program was presented. Vocal duet by Mesdames Dodd and Knight. Ladies quartet by Mesdames Friday, Dodd, Graham and Knight. Instrumental duet by Mesdames Knight and Graham. A lovely talk on Gipsy Smith was given by Mrs. Redden. A bright description of things as Mrs. Casey saw them, was told by Mrs. Stryker. A charade, proverbs, and a game, "What would you do?" closed the program.

Miss Hahn assisted by Mrs. Roe, served fine refreshments. After a good social time, the afternoon came to a close, all expressing themselves as well pleased with the social day. Credit is due the committee as the chairman was unable to be present.
