WILL SCRUB THE CITY

Club Women Plan Wore for Good Friday

GOOD EXAMPLE FOR US

Novel Scheme to Get Everybody to Work

Benton Harbor, March 25.—Next Friday will be Good Friday. Besides it will be the official clean-up-day for Benton Harbor.

Mrs. E. F. Bard, chairman of the civic committee of the Ossoli, has taken charge of the plans for a systematic cleaning up of the city. She has interviewed many of the merchants, and they have signified their intention of taking hold of the work. The committee may ask the manufacturers to give a half holiday for the purpose of beautifying the city. This has not yet been decided.

The school children are looked to for the greatest aid. Mrs. Bard will divide the city into districts and will place some competent boy in charge of each district. He will be given a star and vested with the authority of an inspector. Prizes will be offered to the best cleaned district and the Ossoli plan to offer prizes for the best kept districts during the summer.

It is likely that Mayor Morrow will issue a proclamation and that cleaning up day will be made a memorable event in the history of the city. It is the purpose of Mrs. Bard to make the day result in so much good that the people will demand that "Clean Up" day shall be given a regular place each year in the Benton Harbor calendar.

CHAPIN GETS $1,200

Asks for $50,000, But Jury Grants Only Small Amount

Grand Rapids, March 25.—A verdict for the plaintiff in the sum of $1,000 was returned at 10:30 yesterday by the jury in the United States circuit court in the case of Chas. A. Chapin against Marion F. Gray. The jury retired at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Chapin, the plaintiff, is a Chicago millionaire, and the defendant, Gray, is a well known capitalist of Niles. Several years ago the two became interested together in a project for buying up certain water power rights in this state, Gray acting as agent for Chapin.

A deal was entered into for the purchase of a water power franchise in the village of Buchanan, and Gray secured the option for $100,000. Testimony introduced into the case showed that he had turned over to the Lees of Dowagiac, who then owned the franchise, two farms which he owned as half payment. When Chapin learned that the option had been obtained at the figure named he immediately turned over the entire amount in cash and Gray was given $50,000 of this as the value of his farms.

Learning of this, Chapin brought suit for damages, declaring that Gray was simply acting as his agent and had no right to turn in the farms and receive $50,000 for them when in truth they were not worth more than $25,000 or $30,000. At the trial in 1905 the jury disagreed and the trial just concluded holds that his damage amounted to but $1,200.

One of His Reverses.

SUSIE ARMSTRONG'S MISSION

Or One Night in the Enemy's Line

By J. L. YORK

This time it was the hospital steward, who said that he had not forgotten her, but that he had brought her a man who would relieve her until morning, as she needed some rest; for says he, "We will not reach Annapolis until tomorrow evening, that is if we have fair sailing. You will be needed much more at daylight than now." So Susa returned to a comfortable berth and was soon in the land of dreams.

(As nothing of importance happened on the following morning, the writer will accompany the doctors on their morning-round among the sick and dying.) The great steamer had on board six hundred soldiers from Libby prison and some that were from the Western army, as U. S. Grant was pressing on every side and driving Johnny Reb into close quarters. No pen can describe, nor sculptor paint the sad picture we beheld on that morning as we accompanied the doctors and nurses. The first scene that met our view was that of fifteen bodies of persons who had died through the night, unwatched, uncared for; no message left to their loved ones. They had braved many dangers; suffered more than death itself both in body and mind and clung to life with the hope that they might again see their loved ones. But at the fourth watch as it were, they had fallen asleep, the sleep that knows no waking, until the great God of the universe shall call them forth by His mighty trumpet; when the multitude of warriors shall arise to be marshalled before Him, and there understand why they had to suffer and die uncared for.

We then passed along among the sick, where we heard some crying for water, others for something to eat; some were praying; others singing hymns, and while we were passing often-times, a long bony arm would find its way out from under the blankets, a hand shrunken by starvation grasp ours, and a feeble voice say, "We are going home." Oh, how many out of that six hundred never reached Annapolis alive, for I have been told by those who knew that there were one hundred and forty-seven of the six hundred who had died on board ship and at Annapolis before they could reach home. Those were days when North and South ooth wept rivers of tears, as it were, and few homes on either side but made a sacrifice to their country. But we will let the curtain drop on these sad scenes, as the great ship is casting anchor off Annapolis and the tug is coming out to pilot us in.

CHAPTER XVIII

The steamer was taken in tow and just at dark moored at the dock in Annapolis harbor. The prisoners of Libby and others were transferred to the large two-story brick hospital, where were in waiting a full corps of hospital surgeons, stewards and nurses. Everything around that great institution was in perfect order, but Miss Armstrong procured rooms at the hotel for her brother and William and employed her own physician, and with an attendant nursed them herself. As soon as she had them comfortably located she telegraphed to her father and to Squire Townsend to come at once. The following morning brought her father and mother and Mr. and Mrs. Townsend; then there was a happy yet sad reunion, for Sudge Armstrong and wife saw their dear and only son unaimed for life; although both James and William had improved in strength and could sit up part of the time. At the shades of evening gathered around them, just before the lighting up time Susa says to her father, "Take these pardoning papers to William and explain to him, so that his cup of happiness may be as full as ours."

OBITUARY.

JAMES KETCHUM

James Ketchum, an old and respected citizen of this place, died at his home in the north part of town Monday morning. The funeral was held Wednesday forenoon in the Presbyterian church, Rev. Dingle officiating and the burial was at the South Paw Paw cemetery.

Members of the I. O. O. F., of which order the deceased was an honored member, attended in a body and had charge of the services at the grave. Following is the obituary.

James Ketchum was born in Long Island, Suffolk Co., N. Y. Jan. 26th, 1828. In 1844 he came west to Niles, Michigan. On Dec. 6th, 1853 he united in marriage to Miss Caroline McCumber. Of this union there were born six children all of whom are living. Mrs. Allie Dailey of Oklahoma, Edwin W. of Paw Paw, Chas. R. of Zion City, Wm. J. of Wallowa, Oregon, Mrs. Mary Foster of Paw Paw, and Frank I. of Chicago.

Two years after their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Ketchum came to Illinois and settled on a farm on the southeast side of Paw Paw Grove, where they made their home until 1895 when they moved to the village of Paw Paw where they have since resided.

Mr. Ketchum became a member of the I. O. O. F. in 1861 at East Paw Paw, and came to Anchor Lodge when the East Paw Paw Lodge was consolidated with it some years since. He was also a member of the Camp. Mr. Ketchum united with the church twenty-eight years ago. He was a quiet, unobtrusive christian, kind in spirit, and firm in faith. For many years he was a trustee in the church.

His health for many years had been impaired. Gradually his eyesight failed him and a short time ago disease attacked his frail body weakened by sickness and worn with age. Last Monday morning Mr. Ketchum passed into the summer land where old age cometh not and the vision is never blurred. He was more than 79 years of age at the time of his translation.

NILES FEARS SHORTAGE

House Bill, if Passed, Would Cut Off Water Supply

Niles, March 25.—A remonstrance has been signed by scores of Niles people against the passage of the house bill, which would make it unlawful for any person or corporation to lower the level of the water in any meandered lake in Cass county in any manner whatever. This would cut off this city's water supply from Barren lake, four miles east of here.

Railroad Managers Talking Of Discontinuing The Cheap Rates.

INTERESTS LAKE TOWNS

Taking Off Sunday Trains Would Mean a Big Loss to Benton Harbor and St. Joseph—Big Four Will Give Better Service.

Benton Harbor, March 25.—Managers of the railroad companies doing business in Indiana will hold a meeting at Indianapolis tomorrow and the question will come up of discontinuing the running of Sunday excursion trains. Many of the managers are said to favor the plan as a sort of retaliation for the passage of a 2 cent passenger rate in the Hoosier state.

L. G. Smith, local agent of the Big Four in Benton Harbor, was asked this morning if his company was likely to take off the Sunday excursion trains and he replied:

"That is a question that I cannot answer. Traveling Agent Kellum was here this week and he was asked the question and I overheard the answer, which was to the effect that there was a discussion along that line but he did not know what would be done. As a matter of fact, there has for years been talk of taking off the Sunday trains every spring but the decision has always been in favor of the business. The freight department men always claim that the road loses money by running Sunday excursions. They argue that if the same engines were used on Sunday in hauling freight trains and thus improving the freight service that the company would be dollars a head."

The passenger department of the Big Four has come to the conclusion that if it is to make the Michigan division pay that it must give better passenger service. All the trains run out of this place for Indianapolis, Louisville, Cincinnati and other points are slow trains. It is the same distance from Benton Harbor to St. Louis as from Chicago to St. Louis and yet all the passengers from this place who wish to go any distance south or southwest go to Chicago and take a train there. If good trains were run on the Big Four they could secure a large volume of business for through points. If a passenger could take a train here in the evening and wake up in Cincinnati or St. Louis the road would secure a large amount of first-class travel.

It is whispered that the Big Four realizes the mistake that it has been making with Benton Harbor and that more and better trains will be the rule in the near future.

I am now practically 20 years younger than before I took Electric Bitters. I can now do all my work with ease and assist in my husband's store." Guaranteed at W. N. Brodick's drug store. Price 50c.

AFTER EARLE'S SCALP

Representative Colby Would Abolish Office of Highway Commissioner

Lansing, March 25.—Representative Colby is drafting a bill which is intended to get under the skin of State Highway Commissioner Earle. He wants to abolish the office and provide a commission of three, who will serve without salary. The bill will provide for the employment of a competent engineer and will also limit the number of miles of road that can be built under the State bounty system. Colby claims that under the present law a township can build as many miles as it desires and claim pay from the state at the rate of two miles a year.

IT'S EASY MONEY

Detroit News-Tribune Has on Beauty Contest

BUCHANAN LADIES TRY?

Every Woman in Michigan is entitled to Enter

Who's the beautiful woman in Michigan? The Detroit News-Tribune is trying to discover her, and is offering prizes aggregating $100 for three fascinating faces, to be selected from photographs sent in to the beauty editor. The selection will be done by a corps of experts, and their pictures will appear with others in the half tone magazine section of that newspaper. The whole will form a great gallery of Michigan beauties.

This Michigan contest started from a bet. Only the bet did not refer to Michigan, but to Chicago. A Chicago man bet an eastern man $5,000 that he would show a Chicago beauty that couldn't be equalled by the eastern fellow. But to win it was necessary to collect photographs by the thousands, and so the Chicago Tribune was induced to solicit the photos. From something over 6,000 sent in the prize beauty was picked out.

But the Chicago newspaper wasn't content with winning. It presumptuously insisted that this beauty was "the most beautiful woman in America." This is denied by Michigan, as well as by other sections of the country, and now the Detroit News-Tribune publishes requests for photographs of beautiful women, in order to select at least three to set against the Chicago prize beauties, the chief one of which is a working girl, a stenographer, earning $12 a week.

The pictures of these Michigan beauties the News-Tribune will publish from week to week, and as every woman in Michigan is eligible, the list will be a long one, if the friends of the beauties do their duty.

Knew Her Superiority.

One of Washington's high school principals relates an incident in connection with last commencement day. A clever girl had taken one of the principal prizes. Her friends crowded about her to offer congratulations. "Weren't you awfully afraid you wouldn't get it, Hattie," asked one, "when there were so many contestants?" "Oh, no!" cheerily exclaimed Hattie. "Because I knew that when it came to English composition I had 'em all skinned."

FOUND AT LAST

Clean Up

With spring already here the "clean up" duties become imperative. Other cities such as Benton Harbor and South Bend are spurring their people to make their cities beautiful by bringing out prominently and persistently the slogan "Clean Up!"

Why cannot the people of Buchanan do likewise?

Look around your yard, in your cellar and in your alley, and see if you have any use for your rake, shovel and broom. The work of cleaning out dirt that ought to be cleaned seems to be especially tough on men who are not accustomed to being told what to do about their private premises. But we are inclined to hope that they will take kindly to this timely advice. When the health officer comes across a citizen's alley that hasn't been attended to there's pretty sure to be a lively time for violating the village ordinance.

We might offer some valuable suggestions about cleaning your property, but think we will withhold them until we can be sure the weather is not so treacherous.

Probably, some will resent this advice just as much as a "hobo" does when confronted with visions of "soap and the bath tub."

Why Be Grouchy?

What's the use of being grouchy most of the time when those around you would esteem you so much more highly were grumbling and growling kept more in subject on?

How much more profitable it would be to cut out the grouchy business and boost Buchanan with a broad smile, unselfish spirit and a ready willingness to work all together.

We never heard of a town growing with a lot of grumbling fossils trying to undermine the good efforts of those who are planning to put spurs on the town's progress.

The Board of Trade certainly deserve all your assistance. If you have suggestions, give them to the board. If you want to knock, keep silent.

But, why be grouchy, any? If it's a habit, get rid of it. If it's born in you try so much harder to overcome that defect in your nature.

Boost Buchanan!

Not all those people who congest the streets on Saturdays are shoppers. Some have come to town to break the monotony of farm work. But since they generally read the Record this should be an excellent opportunity for merchants to reach their buying instinct through the power of attractive and well written advertisements

EDITOR RECORD:—I see in connection with the Geo. Swink obituary a bit of history of the M. E. church in Buchanan. The carpenter work on that structure was done by Nathan York, now of Brooklyn, Iowa, and a ship carpenter, named Frank Rivers. Directly upon the completion of that work, Mr. Rivers did sixteen days work at his trade for my father, taking in pay, a Colt's revolver, valued at sixteen dollars. Immediately after that he enlisted in response to President Lincoln's call for 75,000 volunteers to put down the "insurrection", and was never again heard from in that vicinity. To me this locates the completion of the church in the early Spring of 1861. J. G. HOLMES Formerly Proprietor and Editor of the Buchanan Record.

Tunisian Bazaars. Real stencuses of delight for the visitor are the bazars of Tunis. One merchant has a $5,000 carpet which he likes to display. This huge, filmy creation he will fling into the air for the benefit of a possible customer and allow it to settle itself gradually on the ground. This it does, unlike an ordinary carpet. So exquisitely fine is the weaving that it imprisons air bubbles large enough to hold a man.

CHAPTER III.
JACK had an appointment with Millicent Chyne at half past 11 the next morning—an hour when Lady Cantourne might reasonably be expected to be absent at the weekly meeting of a society.

Jack went into the first jeweler's shop he saw and bought a plain diamond ring. Then he walked on to keep his appointment with his affianced wife.

Miss Millicent Chyne was waiting for him with that mixture of maidenly feelings of which the discreet novelist only details a selection. When Jack Meredith entered the room she was standing near the window, holding back the curtain with one hand and watching, half shyly, for his advent.

What struck her at once was his gravity, and he must have seen the droop in her eyes, for he immediately assumed the pleasant, half reckless smile which the world of London society had learned to associate with his name. She saw the diamond ring and looked upon it with the beautiful emotions aroused by those small stones in the female breast, but she did not seem to recognize her own finger within the golden hoop.

It was at this moment—while she dwelt in this new, unreal world—that he elected to tell her of his difference with his father, and when one walks through a maze of unrealities nothing seems to come amiss or to cause surprise. He detailed the very words they had used, and to Millicent Chyne it did not sound like a real quarrel such as might affect two lives to their very end. It was not important; it did not come into her life, for at that moment she did not know what her life was.

"And so," said Jack Meredith, finishing his story, "we have begun badly—as badly as the most romantic might desire."

"But it will be all right in a day or two, will it not? It is not serious," she said.

"I am afraid it is serious, Millicent." He took her hand with a gravity which made matters worse.

"What is to be done, Jack?" she said, laying her two hands on his breast and looking up pleadingly.

"There are two things," he answered. "The first and the simplest," he went on in the tone of voice which she had never quite fathomed—half cynical, half amused—"is to pretend that last night—never was."

He waited for her verdict. "We will not do that," she replied softly; "we will take the other alternative, whatever it is."

She glanced up half shyly beneath her lashes, and he felt that no difficulty could frighten him.

"The other is generally supposed to be very difficult," he said. "It means—waiting."

"Why?" "Because I am dependent on my father for everything. We could not marry without his consent."

"But we can surely get that, between us?" "I propose doing without it."

"Do you know what I should like you to be?" she said, with a bright smile and one of those sudden descents into shallowness which he appeared to like.

"What?" "A politician."

"Then I shall be a politician," he answered, with loverlike promptness.

"That would be very nice," she said, and the castles she at once began to build were not entirely aerial in their structure.

This was not a new idea. They had talked of politics before as a possible career for himself. They had moved in a circle where politics and politicians held a first place, a circle removed above the glamour of art and wherein bohemianism was not reckoned an attraction.

"But," he said, "it will mean waiting."
