DEATHS FROM QUAKE MORE THAN HUNDRED

AIR WAS FILLED WITH THICK
SULPHUROUS FUMES.

STREAMS ALSO TAINTED

Further Details of the Destruction
Wrought at Chilpancingo and Chilapa—Government Active in Relief.

City of Mexico, April 19.—Direct communication was established Thursday with a number of towns situated in the district most affected by the recent earthquake. From these recent telegrams it is now certain that the death list will exceed 100. There are a number of small towns yet to be heard from, but up to date the average number of fatalities at these places has ranged from nine to twelve and the number of injured from 30 to 40.

Air Full of Sulphur Fumes.

One peculiar phenomenon which has been just made known is that after the first great shock the air was filled for many miles with a thick, sickening, sulphurous odor. This caused great distress to the survivors. There are many speculations as to the cause of the peculiar freak of nature and some consider it as a proof that the earthquake had its origin in some subterranean explosion. For this reason considerable anxiety will be felt until news is received from the sections surrounding the active volcanos of Colima and Jurello.

Even the water in the streams was made sulphurous, as the following telegram received from Chilpancingo will show:

"Chilpancingo, April 19.—On the 14th of April, at 11:30 p. m., an earthquake shock of terrible intensity was felt here. In the beginning the movement was oscillating and then changed to trepidatory. Nobody could tell how long it lasted on account of the intensity of the phenomena, but it must have been more than four minutes. At the same time there was a very pronounced odor in the air. On the following day almost everybody complained of headaches. In some parts of the city the odor could be detected when excavations for water were made. On the night of the 14th the same odor was detected on the road to Acapulco, and in the streams as far as Aguadulcerro, at a distance of 98 kilometers from here.

Ten Dead at Chilpancingo.

"There are ten dead, among them being the wife of Inspector of Postal Service Senor Leopoldo Lopez Guerra, and a child of eight years, son of the postmaster, Senor Jose Aleman, who perished under the debris of his house. Among the dead is also Mrs. Inez Morales Bonilla.

"Up to the present it is almost impossible to calculate the amount of property loss because, with the exception of the city hall and about 20 other houses, the whole city is in ruins."

Devastation at Chilapa.

From Chilapa, one of the cities most injured by the earthquake, a telegram was received here Thursday which reads:

"The number of injured in this town is 33. For the most part they are of the poorer class. A child of one month was instantly killed by falling walls. Thirty-one houses were completely destroyed. Seven hundred and seventy-nine houses are partly destroyed, including the telegraph office. The total loss of property, including the cathedral, the various churches, the city hall and other buildings, amounts to over $2,000,000.

"The whole population is panic-stricken and nobody is thinking of rebuilding the destroyed houses.

"Since Sunday 25 distinct shocks have been felt."

A big movement is under way in the City of Mexico to furnish relief to those who were rendered homeless and destitute in Guerrero, and already plans are being made for the gathering of a substantial sum for the sufferers.

Vice President Ramon Corral, acting for President Diaz, has taken an active part in the propaganda of measures for the relief of the stricken districts.

Two Shocks at Manila.

Manila, April 19.—Two severe earthquake shocks were felt here Friday morning. No damage is reported.

Once Rich Chicagoan a Suicide.
Chicago, April 19.—John Alling, 38 years old, member of a wealthy family, formerly member of the Chicago Stock exchange and of the Chicago Athletic club, and conspicuous in social and business circles, went to his room in the Hannah & Hogg hotel, 122 Clark street, Thursday and committed suicide by cutting deep gashes in his wrists, and finally turning on three gas jets. To a friend he had said shortly before that being a "good fellow" had cost him $200,000.

THAW JUROR APPROACHED

REPORT THAT POLICEMAN TALK-ED WITH ONE DURING TRIAL.

Jerome Begins Investigation of Story
—Question of Counsel for Thaw
Not Yet Settled.

New York, April 19.—It was announced Thursday that the district attorney had begun the investigation of a report that one of the jurors in the recent trial of Harry K. Thaw had been "approached" by a policeman before the trial closed.

Henry C. Brearley, one of the jurors, had an interview with District Attorney Jerome late in the day at Mr. Jerome's office. Later it was announced that several other of the Thaw jurors would be asked to come to the district attorney's office Friday and tell of anything they know of the report in question.

It was reported that a policeman talked with a juror on one of the walks the jury took from the criminal courts building to the Broadway Central hotel.

It became definitely known Thursday that the question of counsel for Harry Thaw has not been permanently settled. The publication of a letter sent by Thaw to Hartridge & Peabody Wednesday in which he informed the firm that they would continue as counsel of record, was generally accepted as disposing of that phase of the case for the present at least. However, Clifford W. Hartbridge gave out a formal statement in which he said the supposition that he is senior counsel was absolutely unwarranted. He said that at the present time there is no senior counsel in the Thaw case. This statement was given out at Thaw's request, it is said, after a heated interview in the Tombs between the prisoner, Mr. Peabody and Daniel O'Reilly.

SHORTAGE IN THE U. OF W.?

Rumor of $400,000 Discrepancy in the University's Accounts.

Madison, Wis., April 19.—A startling report that a discrepancy of $400,000 exists in the accounts of the University of Wisconsin was circulated at the capitol Thursday.

Several months ago the university regents put a New York expert to work on the books. Recently the expert made a report to the regents. President Van Hise said Thursday that there was absolutely no suspicion of any misappropriation of funds, but admitted that there has been failure properly to charge up certain investments to their proper accounts. When the report was circulated at the capitol President Van Hise immediately came to the state house in person. He explained as best he could the details of the alleged $400,000 discrepancy.

The matter probably will be investigated by the legislature. The university affairs were investigated by a special legislative committee last year, but this alleged discrepancy escaped the notice of the investigators.

SEEKS TO WED DYING MAN.

Chicago Girl's Pitiful Wait in a New York Hospital.

New York, April 19.—Kneeling at his bedside in Bellevue hospital and trying to recall him to consciousness long enough to murmur the word of consent that should make them man and wife, while a clergyman stood by ready to perform the ceremony, Miss Elizabeth Garvey, of Chicago, spent hours Thursday in the ward where lay her fiancé, William G. Morgan, also of Chicago, gravely ill of nephritis.

At the end of that time the hospital rules concerning visitors compelled her to leave, but before going she arranged to have information sent her when the ailing man should recover his senses, so that the marriage could be performed. Morgan, who is a traveling salesman about 30 years old, was taken to the hospital five days ago from a hotel. His condition is critical.

AT CHICAGO THEATRES

More Charming Than Ever

Mrs. Fiske and the Manhattan company in "The New York Idea," at the Grand Opera house, Chicago, are again on the crest of the wave of popularity. The theater is filled at every performance with a delighted audience. This goes to show that Chicago didn't have nearly enough of this brilliant play last Autumn, and that there was a real demand for its return. The performance retains its place as the brightest, wittiest, and best acted that Chicago has seen.

Fascinating before, Mrs. Fiske's performance of Cynthia Karslake, is even more charming now. Many new touches and delicate shading having been added to it. Mrs. Fiske has never had a role in which the most delightful side of her art was better shown. The acting throughout is incomparable, the Manhattan company doing the remarkable team work that has made it the best balanced group of actors on the American stage.

The engagement will end on Saturday, April 27. These will be Mrs. Fiske's final performances of "The New York Idea" in Chicago. She has no other bookings in the vicinity so that the engagement at the Grand Opera house will afford the only opportunity for playgoers of Chicago and tributary cities to see the most successful play of her career.

LEGION GROWS RAPIDLY

Over 120 Members Added Within Two Months.

At a regular meeting of the National Protective legion Friday evening nine members were initiated and eight applications were voted upon. The officers elected in March were installed by Past President J. N. Bilderback. During the last few months over 120 new members have been added, making a total of nearly 450 with 550 certificates in force. The annual financial statement of the trustees was read Friday evening, showing the legion to be in excellent condition.—Dowagiac Daily News.

We Can Reforest Michigan

The lesson of Arbor Day is the use and value of the tree in the life of the nation, says a Forest Service bulletin. The sentiments and emotions aroused on Arbor Day pass only too quickly; the important thing is that permanent results be left—lasting impressions in the minds of the children, and, flourishing in the earth, an object lesson in a tree plantation of use of beauty, or both combined.

The tree that is significant in the life of the nation is, of course the forest tree. Isolated trees, along the roadside, in the city streets, or in the school yard, please the eye and cool the air with their refreshing shade. But the forest of trees, where wood is growing to supply material for homes, for fuel, for a hundred industries; where the forest litter is storing the waters for streams to quench men's thirst, to irrigate their lands, to drive their mills, to fill their rivers deep for the vast traffic of inland navigation; in a word, the forest as producer and custodian of the necessities of life and happiness, is the true message of Arbor Day. Forestry is based on this idea of the forest, and all its teachings aim to put this into actual practice.

We can reforest Michigan again if we will.

I am now doing business again as of old, and am still gaining daily." Best of all tonic medicines. Guaranteed by W. N. Brodick, druggist. 50c.

DECISION AGAINST THE UNION PACIFIC

COMMERCE BODY'S OPINION IN PEAVY ELEVATOR CASE.

ALLOWANCE IS A REBATE

Declared Illegal Because in Excess of the Actual Cost of Service and Must Be Reduced.

Washington, April 19.—In what is known as the Peavy elevator case, the interstate commerce commission Thursday announced its decision against the Union Pacific Railroad company. The commission holds that the arrangement between the Union Pacific and the Peavy elevators was unlawful, as the allowance was in excess of the actual cost of the elevation of the grain, and, therefore, a rebate.

The decision was prepared by Commissioner Harlan and his opinion was concurred in by a majority of the commission. Commissioners Clements and Lane, however, filed dissenting opinions.

Summary of Opinion.

The opinion of Commissioner Harlan is summarized as follows:

"Since a carrier subject to the act to regulate commerce is entitled to provide elevation for grain shipments, such carrier may either construct and operate the elevator itself or furnish elevation by arrangement with an owner of an elevator; and the amount of compensation paid by the carrier to the owner of an elevator rendering the service, is of no concern to shippers or other carriers, unless it operates to affect the rates charged by the carrier upon the grain traffic or by some device a portion of the allowance is returned to shippers and thus becomes a rebate.

"An allowance made to a shipper of grain who furnishes elevation service under an arrangement with a carrier is a rebate and an unlawful discrimination when it involves a profit over and above the actual cost to such shipper of the service rendered. It is not a rebate when the allowance does not so exceed the actual cost.

Allowance is Unlawful.

"The arrangement between the Union Pacific Railroad company and the Peavy elevators at Council Bluffs and Kansas City is not in itself unlawful. But the allowance of one and a quarter cents per 100 pounds paid by the railroad company to these elevators, controlled by the Peavy interests, who are large shippers of grain and own practically all the grain going into the elevators, is in excess of the actual cost of the service, and is a rebate and therefore unlawful.

"The commission orders that the allowance by the Union Pacific Railroad company to the Peavy elevators shall be reduced and shall not exceed three-quarters of a cent per 100 pounds, such order taking effect on June 1, 1907."

It is Essential to Give Practical Information

The public always welcomes with open arms the man who can give them facts and figures and who gets the information at considerable time and expense, rather than from a man who possesses very little information that is of material benefit, and who cannot, when advocating his principles, practice them. The more practical knowledge a man has of existing conditions the more he will impart to others, especially when given through a newspaper.

The man behind the Argus evidently was not sufficiently armed with the weapon of facts and figures, else his meaningless statement in the Wednesday issue would not slide through a sieve, or in other words miss the bull's eye.

The RECORD always strives to enlighten its readers with whatever practical information, gained through long research and contact with men of affairs. We do not claim to be immune from an occasional mistake and are always glad to admit it if our attention is called to such matters.

We believe in keeping everlastingly at an object which in the end will be of great benefit to the city. No paper is as earnest and sincere as the RECORD in wishing this city to boost. Nothing venture nothing won.

In speaking of the unnecessary installation of a lighting system at our water works plant, the Argus man claims it means additional expense, but did he ever study this matter closely before dodging this important point? The Argus suggests letting well enough alone about that enormous water shortage. What's the use of bringing this subject up anyway if the Argus refrains from suggesting a practical remedy? We are inclined to believe the Argus man grossly misinformed on these facts and figures which he calls strange as "ticklers" to boost the town.

The town will always need men to help boost it, not by one individual, but by a solid combination of law-abiding and town-expanding citizens.

The RECORD is in possession of an indisputable array of facts and figures which will be ready at the beckoning call of information seekers, and which will shade more light on the water works subject.

BOOST BUCHANAN

What Flint Has Done We Can Do.

If a city is to prosper and grow, if new manufacturers are to be secured, there must be a united effort on the part of business men. It is indeed a case of "united we stand, divided we fall," and cities in which the business men are imbued with the right spirit of progress secure results of a substantial nature. Flint, Mich. is a city which has been doing things and making other cities sit up and take notice, and which sets a good example for our own town to follow. Gloating over the record that the city made, one of the citizens of Flint in a recent newspaper issue had the following to say:

"We get on because our business men stand shoulder to shoulder on every proposition calculated to make Flint grow and prosper. We haven't a knocker in the city. Every citizen is up and dressed. And our town has earned a reputation of being one of the most prosperous and go-head cities on the map."

Flint is a city of boosters. The business men know the results which can only be attained by getting together and hustling for their city.

Buchanan can and should do like Flint. The same principles that made Flint bigger can be applied to Buchanan. We should keep on getting new manufacturing concerns to our town—it adds to our population and there are other possibilities for making a town boom which our readers may have overlooked but which have so often been repeated by gentle hints.

It is a fact that a city can be of the "go ahead" kind if it wants to. Buchanan is doing well for a start. Once we have started we must not recede. To stop and wail over petty differences is fatal.

If you are a business man and a loyal citizen of this town you will stand very closely together with your fellowmen on every proposition having for its object the making of a bigger and better town.

There should be no hitch, no quarreling—but Sweet harmony.

BOOST BUCHANAN

Look Back—And Then Think!

On February 8th the RECORD had an editorial, entitled "Will Buchanan Wake up." The article from beginning to end was a solid statement of plain facts.

March 18 we chronicled another fact which the voter read, pondered, and then cast his vote and by so doing applied the remedy.

Again, on April 16th the RECORD had an editorial which gave "Facts and Figures Concerning Our City Water Works." In that very article we quoted only facts as obtained from the village records which we sincerely hope are absolutely correct.

Plain figures don't lie.

Of course these records have been seriously picked to pieces by attorneys of our heaviest assessed tax payer, and the results indicate that before we get through with those records, judgments to the estimated extent of $7500.00 may be rendered against the village.

When the RECORD stated that we paid out $3848.41 and only took in $2094.55 it simply quoted the plain facts as shown indelibly in black and white in the village records, and we will leave these points to any child with a limited knowledge of civil government to say on which side of the ledger the shortage belongs.

These facts were published to bring out a remedy for the evil if evil it can be called, and up to date numerous good suggestions have been brought to our office which we shall be pleased to give to our readers later. So far only two dissenting voices have been recorded, but they emerged from knockers—one who is a regular curb stone demagogue—and the other from one who always waits until everyone declares themselves and then takes the other side of the pasture, and who runs a paper for—must we say who?

No, we will reserve that till the future.

Col. Fred Felton, manager of the Bell opera house for several years, will build a $15,000 theatre on the lot next the city hall and run it as a 10c house. It will seat 800 and is to be done by August.

Our high school track team had the first meet of the season last Saturday at Notre Dame with the South Bend team and won by 72 to 18. Next Saturday they will have a contest at Eastern Springs with the Elkhart team.

Rev. Fifield, the Kansas City evangelist, is preaching to full houses every night. The opening service Sunday night was to be in the Congregational church, but it was so crowded and still hundreds waiting to get in, they were adjourned to the Methodist church which has the largest seating capacity of any in town and it was filled. He uses no sensational methods but quietly preaches the plain, straight gospel in such a way that it takes hold of the people.

There is no danger of a strike among the 60 or more street car employees. They have just had their wages raised for the third time within a year and that without asking for it. They now receive as good pay as any street car employees in this section of the country. The cars are to be equipped with illuminated signs. During the heavy summer traffic cars will run every 5 minutes between the cities. Several new cars are expected soon from the factory at St. Louis.

With Edged Tools

By HENRY SETON MERRIMAN
Author of "The Sowers," "Roden's Corner,"
"From One Generation to Another," Etc.

Copyright, 1894, by Harper & Brothers

Imparted such a feeling of safety and comfort to the scene, that he gave way to that impulse of expansiveness which ever lurks in West Indian blood.

"I say," he said, "when you told me that you intended to make money, were you in earnest?"

"In the deadliest earnest," replied Jack Meredith in the half mocking tone which he never wholly learned to lay aside.

"Then I think I can put you in the way of it. Oh, I know it seems a bit premature; not known you long enough and all that. But in this country we don't hold much by the formalities. I like you. I liked the look of you when you got out of that boat so cool and self possessed. You're the right sort, Mr. Meredith."

"Possibly for some things. For sitting about and smoking first class cigars and thinking second class thoughts I am exactly the right sort. But for making money, for hard work and steady work, I am afraid, Mr. Durnovo, that I am distinctly the wrong sort."

There was a little pause. Durnovo looked round as if to make sure that Joseph and the boatman were out of ear shot.

"Can you keep a secret?" he asked suddenly.

Jack Meredith turned and looked at the questioner with a smile. His hat had slipped to the back of his head, the light of the great yellow moon fell full upon his clean cut sphinxlike face. The eyes alone seemed living.

"Yes! I can do that."

"I can see you're a gentleman," Durnovo said. "I'll trust you. I want a man to join me in making a fortune. I have got my hand on it at last. But I'm afraid of this country. I'm getting shaky; look at that hand. I've been looking for it too long. I take you into my confidence, the first corner, you'll think. But there are not many men like you in this country, and I'm beastly afraid of dying. I want to get out of this for a bit, but I dare not leave until I set things going."

"Take your time," said Meredith, quietly and soothingly. "Light that cigar again and lie down. There is no hurry."

Durnovo obeyed him meekly.

"Tell me," he said, "have you ever heard of simiacine?"

"I cannot say that I have," replied Jack. "What is it for, brown boots or spasms?"

"It is a drug, the most expensive drug in the market. And they must have it, they cannot do without it, and they cannot find a substitute. It is the leaf of a shrub, and your hatful is worth a thousand pounds."

"Where is it to be found?" asked Jack Meredith. "I should like some in a sack."

"Ah, you may laugh now, but you won't when you hear all about it. The scientific chaps called it simiacine, because of an old African legend which, like all those things, has a grain of truth in it. The legend is that the monkeys first found out the properties of the leaf, and it is because they live on it that they are so strong. Do you know that a gorilla's arm is not half so thick as yours, and yet he would take you and snap your backbone across his knee? He would bend a gun barrel as you would bend a cane, merely by the turn of his wrist. That is simiacine. He can hang on to a tree with one leg and tackle a leopard with his bare hands—that's simiacine. At home they are only just beginning to find out its properties. It seems that it can bring a man back to life when he is more than half dead. There is no knowing what children that are brought up on it may turn out to be. It may double the power of the human brain; some think it will."

Jack Meredith was leaning forward, watching with a certain sense of fascination the wild, disease stricken face, listening to the man's breathless periods. It seemed that the fear of death, which had got hold of him, gave Victor Durnovo no time to pause for breath.

"Yes," said the Englishman, "yes, go on."

"There is practically no limit to the demand that there is for it. At present the only way of obtaining it is through the natives, and you know their manner of trading. They send a little packet down from the interior, and it very often takes two months and more to reach the buyer's hands. The money is sent back the same way and each man who fingers it keeps a little. The natives find the leaf in the forests by the aid of trained monkeys and only in very small quantities. Do you follow me?"

"Yes, I follow you."

Victor Durnovo leaned forward until his face was within three inches of Meredith's, and the dark, wild eyes flashed and glared into the Englishman's steady glance.

"What," he hissed—"what if I know where simiacine grows like a weed? What if I could supply the world with simiacine at my own price? Eh-h-h! What of that, Mr. Meredith?"

He threw himself suddenly back and wiped his dripping face. There was a silence, the great African silence that drives educated men mad and fills the imagination of the poor heathen with wild tales of devils and magic.

"Then Jack Meredith spoke without moving."

"I'm your man," he said, "with a few more details."

Victor Durnovo was lying back at full length on the hard, dry mud, his arms beneath his head. Without altering his position, he gave the details, speaking slowly and much more quietly. It seemed as if he spoke the result of long pent up thought.

"We shall want," he said, "at least £2,000 to start it, for we must have an armed force of our own. We have to penetrate a cannibal country of the fiercest devils to Africa. It is a plateau, a little plateau of two square miles, and the niggers think that it is haunted by an evil spirit. When we get there we shall have to hold it by force of arms, and when we send the stuff down to the coast we must have an escort of picked men. The bushes grow up there as thick as gooseberry bushes in a garden at home. With a little cultivation they will yield twice as much as they do now. We shall want another partner. I know a man, a soldierly fellow, full of fight, who knows the natives and the country. I will undertake to lead you there, but you will have to take great care of me."

"Yes," said the Englishman, "yes, go on."

You will have to have me carried most of the way. I am weak, devilish weak, and I am afraid of dying, but I know the way there, and no other man can say as much. It is in my head here; it is not written down. It is only in my head, and no one can get it out of there."

"No," said Meredith in his quiet, refined voice—"no, no one can get it out. Come, let us turn in. Tomorrow I will go down the river with you. I will turn back, and we can talk it over as we go downstream."

Better Engineers for Farm Machinery

At some time in the life of every young man comes a desire to run an engine. The fever may be of short duration or it may be so deep seated as to be a controlling factor in his life. In either case there has been little opportunity up to the present time for a rational satisfaction of the same. Every other trade or profession has had its schools, but the men who run engines, particularly farm engines, have been left to obtain their knowledge through years of experience or from books.

This, however, is about to be changed. Recognizing the great need of practical instruction on farm engines, both steam and gasoline, Schools of Traction Engineering have been organized at Madison, Wisconsin, under the direct charge of Agriculture, University of Minnesota. Their plan of work as outlined by Prof. Mayne is simple, instructive and very practical. In order to reach the majority of those interested they will hold four Schools during this year, the first of which is now in session at Wichita, Kansas, with one hundred students enrolled the first week. Other Schools will be held as follows: Indianapolis, Indiana, in May; St. Paul, Minnesota, in June, and Fargo, North Dakota, in July. Each School lasts four weeks, in which time the student is instructed in all branches of engineering, mounting the footboard, and actually operating the engine under all conditions. From twelve to fifteen engines, steam and gasoline, are used for demonstrating purposes at each School.

This would seem a splendid opportunity for the man seeking knowledge of farm power machinery. Full particulars may be had by writing direct to the Schools of Traction Engineering at Madison, Wis.
