OPENING OF HAYWOOD TRIAL IS PEACEFUL

FIRST PANEL OF TALESMEN IS EXAMINED BEFORE NIGHT.

ADJOURNED TILL MONDAY

No Juror Finally Accepted, But Good Progress Is Made—Judge Is Liberal With the Counsel.

Boise, Idaho, May 10.—William D. Haywood, first of the alleged participants in the avenging conspiracy by which it is averred the assassination of Frank Steunenberg was plotted and executed, was placed upon trial for his life Thursday. Counsel for state and prisoner entered at once in a business-like way upon the examination of prospective jurors, and kept steadily at the task for five hours.

No juror was finally accepted, but substantial progress was made and the indications at the close of the session were that a jury would be obtained by the end of next week. The opening day of the trial went through to its conclusion in quiet harmony, unmarked by unusual incident. It was earnest and business-like. Its striking feature was the entire absence of crowds or demonstration in any form. At no time was the courtroom more than half filled, and the streets forming the courthouse square contained not a single loiterer.

Adjourned Till Monday.

The case was halted shortly before five o'clock by the exhaustion of the jury panel, and adjournment was taken until Monday morning. Meantime the sheriff will summon a special venire of 100 men. The 11 men under examination, but not yet finally accepted or rejected, were locked up and will be closely guarded.

Haywood was brought to the courtroom sharp at ten in the morning. He found his family in a line of chairs to the right of his seat, and in front were all of his counsel. He paid more attention to his youngest daughter than to anyone else, and throughout the day took practically no part in the selection of jurors. Mrs. Haywood and the older daughter stood the ordeal apparently well, but the younger child cried after the examination of talesmen began. Mrs. Haywood and her children did not attend the afternoon session.

President's Letter a Test.

The questioning of the defense took a much wider range than that of the state, and its most striking feature dealt with the possible effect upon the minds and attitudes of jurors of the letter of President Roosevelt in calling Haywood and his associates "undesirable citizens," the speeches in Idaho of Secretary Taft, the message of Gov. Gooding to the legislature of Idaho, the speech in Boise of Senator Heyburn, and the action of the Idaho legislature in passing a resolution appropriating money for the prosecution of the three prisoners.

Mr. Richardson, who conducted the examination of the talesmen, was also particular to ascertain their attitude toward socialists and members of labor organizations.

A remarkable feature of this examination was that all of the talesmen questioned by the defense swore that they had not been influenced by the letter of President Roosevelt or by the speeches of other officials of the national or state governments, and a majority of them said they were Republicans.

Questions of the State.

The chief concern of the counsel for the state in the examination of talesmen, as indicated by their questions, was their attitude towards circumstantial evidence, the absence of the accused from the state when the crime was committed, the effect of the manner in which prisoner and his companions were brought from Colorado, view of the talesmen as to the death penalty for murder in the first degree, and as to union labor. Their examination brought out the fact that certain labor and socialistic papers are being distributed free of charge in parts of Ada county.

Judge Wood announced that he intended to give both sides a wide latitude in the examination of talesmen. He also showed a willingness to grant challenges where there seemed any reasonable objection to the attitude of the talesmen, and in the one contest of the day he ruled with the defense, which had challenged the talesman and was resisted by the state.

Strike Threatened at South Omaha.

Omaha, Neb., May 10.—A committee representing 5,000 packing workmen in the South Omaha packing houses Thursday morning called on the managers of the plants and asked for increased wages. A strike is threatened if the increase is not granted. The packers asked time to discuss the matter with the Chicago heads of the companies. The workmen who are making the demands were granted an increase only last Monday.

Arrested for Murder at Hamilton, O.

Hamilton, O., May 10.—Charles Doll, wanted on a charge of murdering John Partlow here last Monday, was arrested Thursday afternoon. He was found in a stable and was very weak from lack of food, not having eaten anything since Monday night. He was taken before the mayor and chief of police, and it is said, confessed to killing Partlow, claiming he acted in self-defense.

LAHORE FEARS OUTBREAK

INDIAN CITY PREPARED TO REPEL NATIVE ATTACK.

Bands of Seditious Rustics Crowding Into the City — Authorities Prohibit Meetings of Any Kind.

Lahore, British India, May 10.—Everything seems to point to the imminence of a native outbreak here and the authorities are taking all the steps possible to suppress it by force of arms. The political unrest is hourly assuming graver proportions.

Bands of stalwart rustics, armed with bludgeons, who have been enlisted by the leaders of the sedition, are crowding into the native city, and troops of all arms and bodies of police, mounted and dismounted, are being drafted into the city of Lahore from all parts of the province. The fortifications of Lahore have been subjected to a special inspection and the artillerymen have been reinforced.

The lieutenant governor of the Punjab, Sir Denzil Ibbetson, is taking active measures to circumvent any possible outbreak. He has issued a proclamation prohibiting meetings of every kind and solemnly warning the public not to attend any assemblages under pain of severe punishment. In addition the lieutenant governor has struck at the root of the revolutionary movement by causing the arrest Thursday afternoon of a prominent lawyer, Lalpatral, who practiced in the chief court of the Punjab and who was the leader, financier and organizer of most of the seditious demonstrations and revolutionary riots in the Punjab. Immediately after being taken into custody Lalpatral was deported to another province. His arrest caused a profound sensation among the Hindus, who hitherto had believed that the authorities would not dare to take such drastic action.

FLOWERS AND CAKES INSTEAD OF BRICKS

FRISCO WOMEN GIVE POSIES TO STRIKE-BREAKERS.

PAY TRIBUTE TO BRAVERY

Strikers Do Little But Jeer and Threaten as Two Cars Make Trip Through Western Addition.

San Francisco, May 10.—Roses and carnations, instead of brickbats and cobblestones, were features of Thursday's run of two cars of the United Railroads, manned by 20 strike-breakers, from the car barns at Oak and Broderick streets for a distance of three or four miles through the business and residence streets of the western addition.

Stirred to admiration by the courage of the unarmed strike-breakers in operating the cars in the mob-crowded thoroughfares, women all along the route stood on doorsteps or leaned from windows and waved handkerchiefs, clapped their hands, cheered and threw kisses to the nonunionists as the police-protected cars ran slowly by.

Flowers for Every Man.

On the return trip, on Sacramento street, near Presidio avenue, a young girl ran out from a florist's shop and tossed a handful of bright red carnations to the platform of one of the cars. Lifting their caps and smiling, several of the men leaned far out and caught the flowers. The cars were halted then, while young women brought clusters of carnations and roses from the shop and offered them to the men. So every strike-breaker had a flower in his coat.

From a bakery shop in the neighborhood a woman came hurrying, her hands full of small cakes hot from the oven. They were devoured in a twinkling by the uniformed recipients and she ran back to her shop and brought more.

Strikers Jeer and Threaten.

But the afternoon's trip was not all cakes and flowers. A taunting, jeering, howling crowd of more than 1,000 strikers and strike sympathizers jogged for blocks along the sidewalks, reviling the carmen, yelling frenzied threats to "get them yet," crying "murderers," cowards," and "scabs." Now and then a stone or brick was thrown, but the guilty man—or boy—hidden in the mob, escaped detection invariably.

Though no shooting was witnessed by the police or the company officials, one of the motormen declared that a shot was fired from the sidewalk. In proof of his statement he pointed to a clean hole in one of the ventilator windows of his car.

The program for Friday is to run two cars through a more dangerous section of the city than the western addition. In this event serious trouble is anticipated.

Twelve of the nonunion operatives who were arrested Tuesday for shooting, made affidavits Thursday that when taken to jail they were severely beaten by the police and deprived of food, water and beds for 24 hours.

One Steamship Line Yields.

New York, May 10.—The striking longshoremen gained a victory Thursday when the Savannah line compromised with its 600 employees. The new terms are 35 cents an hour for week day work, 50 cents for Sunday and night work.

The strike leaders claimed that 30,000 men were out in Manhattan, Brooklyn, Hoboken and Staten Island. Throughout the day freight gathered in formidable piles along the piers, and comparatively little of it was gotten aboard the vessels to which it had been assigned.

The passengers came to the aid of the Oscar II, of the Scandinavian line, which sailed Thursday afternoon, and put aboard their own baggage.

THREE FATAL WRECKS.

Disasters in Chicago, Ohio and Kentucky Cost One Life Each.

Chicago, May 10.—A fatal train wreck occurred on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad in Chicago at the Hamlin avenue crossing Thursday. One Chicago woman was killed and more than 20 persons were injured. The wrecked train was in the suburban service, due in Chicago at 9:15 a. m. from Aurora, Ill. The catastrophe, in which the engine, speeding at 45 miles an hour, was thrown from the track with its four coaches, one car almost turning over, took place at 9 a. m. from a cause not positively ascertained.

Cincinnati, O., May 10.—One man was killed, one fatally and two others seriously injured in a rear end collision at Jones Station, seven miles south of Hamilton, O., Thursday.

Lexington, Ky., May 10.—One man was killed and several injured in a collision between a street car and the Chesapeake & Ohio flyer between Louisville and New York here at noon Thursday. The dead man is George Wells, motorman of the electric car.

Gift of $1,200,000 to Princeton.

Princeton, N. J., May 10.—John Grier Hibben, in a communication from the Princeton alumni committee of 50, announces the gift of $1,200,000 to Princeton university by a wealthy family. The money will be spent for physical science, geological and biological laboratories.

LOST PROFITS OF 45 YEARS.

Insurance Companies Given Tremendous Blow by 'Frisco Disaster.

New York, May 10.—The San Francisco conflagration of April, 1906, swept away not only every dollar of profit previously made by the insurance companies out of underwriting since 1860, but cost them $79,708,174 besides, according to a statement made by President George W. Burchell of the National Board of Underwriters in the annual meeting of that organization here Thursday.

President Burchell said carefully compiled figures showed the total property loss by the catastrophe to have been in round numbers $300,000,000. The loss to 243 insurance companies was $175,508,530, and, in addition to this, there was a large amount of reinsurance in foreign companies, which would make the total loss to insurance companies throughout the world between $220,000,000 and $225,000,000.

St. Louis Brokers Will Quit.

St. Louis, May 10.—According to an announcement made Thursday 16 brokerage concerns in St. Louis, which would be affected by the new law going into effect June 16, have agreed to go out of business on June 15. The new law forbids the sale of any commodity or stock that the seller does not actually own and possess at the time the transaction is made.

Dies of Rabies in a Jail Cell.

Gainesville, Ga., May 10.—A. J. Hulsey, who was brought here late last Tuesday for safe keeping, died in a jail cell from hydrophobia Thursday. Hulsey was recently adjudged insane in Stephens county, and as there is no jail there, he was brought here for confinement. It is now declared that the man, instead of being insane, had been suffering from rabies.

Society Belle a Suicide.

Ottawa, Ont., May 10.—Miss Aileen Clemow, aged 26, granddaughter of the late Senator Clemow and a society belle, committed suicide here Thursday. She was found in her room with a bullet hole through her head. She was in poor health and was going to a sanatorium Friday.

Wants Separation from Half-Uncle.

Battle Creek.—Mrs. Jantha Carrier, aged 60, has applied to have her marriage with Eli C. Rodgley annulled, on the ground that her husband is her half-uncle. They have been married five years. The woman's story disclosed the fact that her grandfather was her husband's father by a second wife.

Perish While Parents Dance.

West Branch.—Four small children were burned to death in the home of Martin Campbell, eight miles from here. Mr. and Mrs. Campbell had gone to a dance, leaving their six little ones locked in the house. They left a big fire in the stove, and in some manner this ignited the house, which was destroyed with its contents. The children were awakened by the flames, and the two oldest, aged eight and ten years, managed to escape in their night clothes. The four smaller ones perished in the flames.

Man Convicted of Robbing Richland Bank Said to Have Deserved the Granting of His Freedom.

Richland.—Mrs. John Allison, of Moline, Ill., whose husband was convicted of robbing the bank of this city, and who has appealed to Gov. Warner, of Michigan, for his pardon, will also ask clemency at the hand of President Roosevelt.

Allison was convicted of complicity in the Richland job and was sentenced to Jackson prison. He made his escape, and, going to Moline, married a highly respected young woman and when arrested had been living an honorable life for several years.

WILDCAT DESTROYS GAME.

Makes Destructive Attack on Birds of Grand Island, Lake Superior.

Marquette.—The unpleasant discovery has been made that a wildcat has invaded the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company's big game preserve on Grand Island, Lake Superior. It is supposed that the animal crossed from the mainland on the ice two or three weeks ago, and there is evidence that it has wrought great destruction among the game birds. The cat has been industriously tracked, but so far it has succeeded in keeping out of the range of rifle shot.

Not long ago a wolf was killed in the preserve, and previous to that two wolves had gained access to the island, but were driven back to the mainland before committing depredations in the herd of deer.

It is the intention to fence the island entirely during the summer. A year ago a wolf found in the preserve was hunted down and killed only after a chase of 30 days at an expenditure of nearly $1,500.

Hydraulic Company Ousted.

Grand Rapids.—Judge Willis B. Perkins in the circuit court handed down a final decree in the quo warranto proceedings brought by the state attorney general against the Grand Rapids Hydraulic company. The decision sustains the attorney general and wipes out the hydraulic company as a corporation. The state legislature in 1905 repealed the charter of the company granted in 1849. The company, however, continued to do business, and the attorney general began proceedings to force it to go out of business. The company is a private corporation, operating a water-works system in competition with the city water works.

Escaped Prisoner Gives Up.

Menominee.—Attorney W. N. Mills, of Detroit, who knocked down and made his escape from a Menominee deputy sheriff, when the latter attempted to arrest him, voluntarily returned to this city with R. C. Flannigan, of Norway, and his attorney. Bond was furnished by Mills for his appearance at the next term of court to answer charges of criminal assault and resisting an officer.

Climbs Fire Escape to Kill.

Grand Rapids.—Jealousy of another woman impelled Mary Louis to climb the fire escape of the Fletcher hotel to the seventh floor at one o'clock in the morning, enter the room of Martin Post, and stab him seven times. She made her escape as she came, but was identified by another woman who was with Post at the time. In jail she expressed regret that she had not killed Post.

Battle Creek.—At Tekonsha, where a prohibition bill recently passed by the legislature is in force, the residents are said to have tired of the "dry" spell, and Representative Henry will present a petition to Gov. Warner asking him to repeal the bill. Out of 163 voters, 92 signed the petition, and the rest did not oppose it.

Send Letter to Pastor.

Battle Creek.—Every teacher, officer and adult pupil of the First Baptist Sunday school sent a steamship letter to Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Harvey. At The Grand Opera House.

FRANK DANIELS.

Frank Daniels, the genial and jocund, is to begin a Chicago summer season at the Grand Opera House on Sunday night. He comes with "The Tattooed Man," a new comic opera. No fun-maker who visits Chicago is more popular than the chubby little joker of a score of successes, the first and majority of which have been made at the theatre where his present engagement occurs. All the attributes of the coming performance are auspicious. Harry B. Smith, a librettist who has furnished Daniels with some of the most popular offerings of his career, is noted as co-author of the book, written in conjunction with A. N. C. Fowler. Smith, too, one of the happiest of lyricists, has furnished the words of the songs. The score has been composed by the most steadily tuneful of all the makers of light opera in America, Victor Herbert. The production is sponsored by Charles Dillingham, who has directed the fortunes of the little comedian for the past half dozen years.

The role committed to Mr. Daniels in "The Tattooed Man" is said to afford him facile play for his merriest manners and methods. He appears as a bogus weather man of a Shah's court in Persia, a prototype of the pleasure-loving, labor-evading philosopher after whom he has been named, Omar Khayam. He gets his nick-name of "The Tattooed Man" because of a scarabaeus on his neck. This birthmark is made the comic pivot of the plot.

Included among Mr. Daniels' supporters are Map Vokes, Elina Fassett, Isabella D'Armond, William Pruette, Harry Clarke, Gilbert Clayton, Charles Drew, George O'Donnell, and Mace Bonville.

Forestry Notes.

The forest service of the United States have compiled very complete statistics of the quantity and value of pulpwood used in that country in the year 1905. The total quantity was 3,182,223 cords, made up as follows: Spruce, 1,650,709 cords; poplar, 222,058 cords; hemlock, 375,422 cords; pine, 57,899 cords; balsam, 56,744 cords; cottonwood, 10,507 cords; all other woods, 96,739 cords. Spruce comprised 71.2 per cent of the total.

Of the total amount of wood used, 1,096,794 cords were used in making mechanical pulp, 1,680,396 cords in making sulphite pulp, and 404,936 cords in making soda fibre.

In the last six years the pulpwood imports from Canada increased about 75 per cent. Importations of spruce alone increased 83 per cent. In 1905 the imports from Canada were 622,545 cords of spruce and 22,883 cords of poplar.

The average price per cord ranged from $8.83 in the of Minnesota to $6.26 in New York, the average being $5.01.

The reports as to the estimated length of the timber supply ranged from 13 years in the state of Wisconsin to 28 years in New Hampshire, the average being 21 years.

Glass Living Rooms.

Not only for invalids, but for people of good health, the glass room, or sun parlor, is an added blessing and joy in every country house that possesses one. By sun parlor we do not mean the conventional conservatory for plants; we mean a livable, comfortable room for members of the household, where sunshine is the principal attraction. Flowers and plants will be found there, but only as an adjunct to the room, a decoration. Use the room for a breakfast room, a lounging room or a den, as you will, but—build it of glass. The object of the glass room is apparent. Regulate the temperature, protect yourself from the cold blasts of wind, and you may sit in the sunshine in your sun parlor all the year round, nor do you need to travel to Florida or California to sit on the piazza from October to March. CREEKS AND TEN-LOST TRIBES.

Indians' Story of Their Wandering Away From Palestine

"The Indians are the most superstitious people on earth," said a man a few days ago who had taught for years in a Creek Indian School. "They have myths and legends by the score. Some of them are as beautiful and picturesque as the legends of the old Greeks and Romans."

"I boarded for five years with a Creek Indian who had been educated at Carlisle. He knew the Indian legend that they are one of the lost ten tribes of Israel. This Indian was the son of a medicine man who was once great and powerful in the tribe. All his knowledge of Indian lore came from his father, the medicine man."

"This medicine man said that the Creeks were one of the lost ten tribes of Israel. The legend ran that they were once associated with the other tribes and that they had wandered and became separated. They wandered for years far to the north until they came to a sea. There they built boats and embarked. They steered their course by the wand of a medicine man. Each morning he went to his teepee and set up his divining rod and told them which direction to pursue. They followed this rod from a warm country to a cold sea on which they set sail. The sea was crossed and then they traveled toward the south again."

"The Creeks have a covenant of their tribe which is kept with the chiefs. No one but the elect is ever permitted to see this guarantee of the genuineness of the Creek faith and origin."—Chickasha correspondence Kansas City Star.

SYMPATHY WAS IN ORDER.

But Sam Johnson Was the One Mostly in Need of It.

"Pardon me," says the sympathetic gent on the station platform, "you seem to be in distress."

The woman addressed turns her melancholy eyes upon the inquirer and replies:

"I am."

"Is there any way in which I might be of assistance?"

"I don't know. I've lost my husband, and—"

"Permit me to offer my condolences. Into each life some sorrow—"

"Save your condolences for him when I get hold of him. We were sitting here waiting for the train to go home when a comic opera company came into the station. One of them was a big, fat blonde, and my husband got up and said he was going to get a drink of water. That was an hour and a half ago, and—save your sympathy, young man, save it for Sam Johnson, of Mudford, who will be in sore need of comforting words within ten minutes after he begins to make excuses to me."—London Tit-Bits.

All Were Worried.

The mistakes made by telegraph operators are often very amusing and sometimes rather startling.

A Washington girl, 16 years old, went west recently, and it was her first trip unaccompanied by some member of the family.

After three days had elapsed and she had received no answer to her telegram, announcing her safe arrival, she decided to send another wire. This is the telegram as received by her fond parents:

"Why don't you write? Am married."

Her mother promptly fainted and her father rushed out, first after a physician, and secondly to wire the chief of police of a western city to look after a young girl, lost, strayed, stolen or married.

After many explanations by wire, it was found that a mistake had occurred in the telegraph office, and that the message should have read:

"Why don't you write? Am worried."

Why He Stays at Home.

"Mr. Bigsbee seems like a model husband."

"Yes, lately. He's home every evening now. You see, his wife got the burglar scare and bought one of those pretty little pearl-handled revolvers."

"Well?"

"Well, as Mrs. Bigsbee wakes up at the slightest noise, and is very near-sighted, Bigsbee doesn't take any chances on prowling around the house after dark."

Conversational Niceties.

The requirements of polite conversation occasionally puzzle the student of the English language, but one who has a governess will soon acquire them all.

Thus a young French woman who was learning English while on tour with an Anglican attendant, exclaimed, "O my, I am all of a sweat!"

"Miss Morceau," exclaimed her attendant, "never use that word again! Horses sweat, men perspire, ladies merely glow."—Youth's Companion.

A Quadruped Bird.

A South American traveler has captured a rare bird, whose interest to science is that it is a quadruped. It is known to the natives as the cignana, or gypsy bird. For many days after hatching, before it is able to fly, the young one uses its claws to climb up bushes and trees. The front feet gradually develop into wings. The favorite haunt of this strange creature is among the huge calla-like flowers of the tropics; in low, muddy places. In size the cignana is about as big as the ordinary pheasant.

Where Men Bungle.

Woman likes to play the "go between" where a man and a maid are concerned. She will endure personal discomfort, risk snapping friendship's ties, and plot and scheme and plunge up to her ears in morasses of mendacity just to bring about an understanding between some particular he and she whom she imagines to be suited in some way to each other. Men bungle this sort of thing.—Lady's Pictorial.

All Egoists Now.

Egoism is a positive disease of the day. People talk incessantly of themselves, their motors, their health, their chauffeurs, their achievements at bridge, their prowess at golf, their gardens—a great hobby of the day—their speculations in the city, and so far as the world hedges them around about, so far, and no farther, are they interested in it.—Lady's Pictorial.

Cat Skins Worn as Fur.

According to a Philadelphia paper the securing of cat skins is something of an industry in that city. The skins are sent to France, where they are dyed and returned to this country as popular fur. Good cat skin looks very much like squirrel and is used in a similar way, being especially popular for hats and hat trimmings.

New Hat for English Clergy.

The English Episcopal clergy are discarding the old soft felt hat they have worn so long, and are adopting a stiff one made of smooth black felt, shaped like the straw-top hats, that is called in England a "boater." The new hat is said to be "smart and yet sober."

For little did we think death so near.

Oh tell them not in their sorrow
That baby has left them here,
That he will not return on the morrow
Their broken hearts to cheer.

Then think not of Cecil as though he were dead,
But as only gone on before
And will be waiting and watching and longing for thee

Joy as a Virtue.
Joy is as much a virtue as beneficence is.—Van Dyke.

How can the Record Chronicle the News?

If you know something that has happened, but fail to tell us—

If some one has been hurt or is sick, but didn't tell us—

If a person dies and you don't give us particulars—

If a friend or relative drops in to visit you and you forget to report to us—

If there is anything of a local character that may interest others but you omit or overlook giving the facts to us?

We maintain a corps of live and wide awake correspondents in every thickly populated section of the county.

We have a regular reporter around town ferreting out news at our expense.

BUT, to put more juicy and fresh news in the RECORD we must depend upon every advertiser and subscriber to telephone 9-2 rings, drop a postal or call personally and the editor will put them in the RECORD.

THE BUCHANAN RECORD publishes no foreign news—the daily papers provide that; it has no farm department, the farmer's magazines have that; it has no departments which other magazines and dailies furnish.

Our field is purely local in character—about our societies, churches, clubs, local happenings, personal mention, editorials, advertisers and in fact, every local matter interesting to the readers—and we give 'em out fresh twice-a-week for one dollar a year. What paper can eclipse the RECORD in these choice array of local departments?

To facilitate promptness in getting the paper out early no news item or advertisement copy can be accepted after 10 o'clock on Tuesday and Friday mornings. Phone Number 9-2 rings.

to you mother—very fine ride—no, no more tonight! I'm weary, you understand, away!"

"Aweary, awe-e-ary!" repeated the little things, standing before him in infantile nude rotundity, looking up with bright eyes.

"Aweary, that is it. Good night, Epaminondas; good night, Xantippe! Give ye good hap, most stout Nestorius!"

He stooped and gravely shook hands with each one in turn, and, after forcing a like ceremonial upon Guy Osgard, they reluctantly withdrew.

"They have not joined us, I suppose?" said Osgard as he followed his companion into the house.

"Not yet. They live in this place. Nestorius, I understand, takes care of his mother, who in her turn takes care of this house. He is one and a half."

Guy Osgard seemed to have inherited the mind inquisitive from his learned father. He asked another question later on.

"Who is that woman?" he said during dinner, with a little nod toward the doorway through which the object of his curiosity had passed with some plates.

"That is the mother of the stout Nestorius," answered Jack—"Durnovo's housekeeper."

He spoke quietly, looking straight in front of him; and Joseph, who was drawing a cork at the back of the room, was watching his face.

There was a little pause, during which Durnovo drank slowly. Then Guy Osgard spoke again.

"If she cooked the dinner," he said, "she knows her business."

"Yes," answered Durnovo, "she is a good cook, if she is nothing else."

It did not sound as if further inquiries would be welcome, and so the subject was dropped with a silent tribute to the culinary powers of Durnovo's housekeeper at the Msala station.

The woman had only appeared for a moment, bringing in some dishes for Joseph—a tall, stately woman, with great dark eyes, in which the patience of motherhood had succeeded to the soft fire of West Indian love and youth. She had the graceful slow carriage of the creole, although her skin was darker than that of those dangerous sirens.

"They call me," she had said to Jack Meredith in her soft, mumbled English a fortnight earlier, "they call me Marie."

The children he had named after his own fantasy, and when she had once seen him with them there was a notable change in her manner. Her eyes rested on him with a sort of wondering attention, and when she cooked his meals or touched anything that was his there was something in her attitude that denoted special care.

Joseph called her "missis," with a sort of friendliness in his voice which never rose to badinage nor descended to familiarity.

The man who had found the simiacine was eager, restless, full of suspicion. To the others the scheme obviously presented itself in a different light. Jack Meredith was dilatory, light hearted and unsatisfactory. It was impossible to arouse any enthusiasm in him, to make him take it seriously. Guy Osgard was gravely indifferent. He wanted to get rid of a certain space of time, and the African forest, containing as it did the only excitement that his large heart knew, was as good a place as any. The simiacine was, in his mind, relegated to a distant place behind weeks of sport and adventure such as his soul loved.

"You men," said Durnovo eagerly, "don't seem to take the thing seriously."

"I," answered Meredith, "intend, at all events, to take the profits very seriously. When they begin to come in, J. Meredith will be at the above address, and trusts by a careful attention to business to merit a continuance of your kind patronage."

Durnovo laughed somewhat nervously. Osgard did not seem to hear.

"It is all very well for you," said the half caste in a lower voice. "You have not so much at stake. It is likely that the happiness of my whole life depends upon this venture."

A curious smile passed across Jack Meredith's face. Without turning his head he glanced sideways into Durnovo's face through the gloom. But he said nothing, and it was Osgard who broke the silence by saying simply:

"The same may possibly apply to me."

There was a little pause, during which he lighted his pipe.

It did not seem to occur to any of them that the only person whose individuality was still veiled happened to be Jack Meredith. He alone had said nothing. He it was who spoke first, after a proper period of silence.

"It seems to me," he said, "that we have all the technicalities arranged now. So far as the working of the expedition is concerned we know our places, and the difficulties will be met as they present themselves. But there is one thing which I think we should set in order now. I have been thinking about it while I have been waiting here alone."

The glow of Victor Durnovo's cigar died away as if in his attention he was forgetting to smoke; but he said nothing.

"It seems to me," Jack went on, "that before we leave here we should draw up and sign a sort of deed of partnership. Of course we trust each other perfectly—there is no question of that. But life is an uncertain thing, as some earlier philosopher said before me; and one never knows what may happen. I have drawn up a paper in triplicate. If you have a match I will read it to you."

Osgard produced a match and, striking it on his boot, sheltered it with the hollow of his hand while Jack read:

"We, the undersigned, hereby enter into partnership to search for and sell to our mutual profit the herb known as simiacine, the profits to be divided into three equal portions, after the deduction of one-hundredth part, to be handed to the servant, Joseph Atkinson. Any further expenses that may be incurred to be borne in the same proportion as the original expense of fitting out the expedition—namely, two-fifths to be paid by Guy Cravener Osgard, two-fifths by John Meredith, one-fifth by Victor Durnovo."

"The sum of £50 per month to be paid to Victor Durnovo, where-with he may pay the thirty special men taken from his estate and headquarters at Msala to cultivate the simiacine, and such corn and vegetables as may be required for the sustenance of the expedition; these men to act as porters until the plateau be reached."

"The opinion of two of the three leaders against one to be accepted unconditionally in all questions where controversy may arise. In case of death each of us undertakes hereby to hand over to the executor of the dead partner or partners such moneys as shall belong to him or them."

At this juncture there was a little pause while Guy Osgard lighted a second match.

"And," continued Jack, "we hereby undertake severally on oath to hold the secret of the whereabouts of the simiacine a strict secret, which secret may not be revealed by any one of us, to whomsoever it may be, without the sanction, in writing, of the other two partners."

"There," concluded Jack Meredith, "I am rather pleased with that literary production. It is forcible and yet devoid of violence. I feel that in the commerce of the century has lost a ornament. Moreover, I am ready to swear to the terms of the agreement."

There was a little pause. Guy Osgard took his pipe from his mouth, and while he knocked the ashes out against the leg of his chair he mumbled, "I swear to hold to that agreement."

Victor Durnovo took off his hat with a sweep and a flourish, and, raising his bared brow to the stars, he said: "I swear to hold to that agreement. If I fail, may God strike me dead!"

CHAPTER XI.

THE next morning Jack Meredith was awakened by his servant Joseph before it was fully light. "Woke you before yer time, sir," he said. "There's something wrong among these 'ere darky fellers, sir."

"Not rebellion?" he said curtly, looking toward his firearms.

"No, sir, not that. It's some mortal sickness. I don't know what it is. I've been up half the night with them. It's spreadin' too."

"Sickness! What does it seem like? Just give me that jacket. Not that sleeping sickness?"

"No, sir. It's not that. Missis Marie was tellin' me about that—awful scourge that, sir. No, the poor chaps are wide awake enough—groanin', and off their heads, too, mostly."

"Call Mr. Durnovo."

"Met Mr. Durnovo, sir, goin' out as I came in."

In a few minutes Jack joined Durnovo and Osgard, who were talking together on the terrace in front of the house. Guy Osgard was still in his pajamas, which he had tucked into topboots. He also wore a sun helmet, which added a finish to his costume. They got quite accustomed to this get-up during the next three days, for he never had time to change it, and somehow it ceased to be humorous long before the end of that time.

"Oh, it's nothing," Durnovo was saying, with a singular eagerness. "I know these chaps. They have been paid in advance. They are probably shamming, and if they are not they are only suffering from the effects of a farewell glorification. They want to delay our start. That is their little game. It will give them a better chance of deserting."

"At any rate we had better go and see them," suggested Jack.

"No, don't!" cried Durnovo eagerly, detaining him with both hands. "Take my advice and don't. Just have breakfast in the ordinary way and pretend there is nothing wrong. Then afterward you can lounge casually into the camp."

"All right," said Jack rather unwillingly.

"It has been of some use, this scare," said Durnovo, turning and looking toward the river. "It has reminded me of something. We have not nearly enough quinine. I will just take a quick canoe and run down to Loango to fetch some."

He turned quite away from them and stooped to attach the lace of his boot.

"I can travel night and day, and be back here in three days," he added. "In the meantime you can be getting on with the loading of the canoes, and we will start as soon as I get back."

He stood upright and looked around with weatherwise, furtive eyes.

"Seems to me," he said, "there's thunder coming. I think I had better be off at once."
