PANEL IS EXHAUSTED

Jury Still Missing for the Trial of Haywood by the Court at Boise, Ida.

CALL FOR SIXTY-ONE MORE MEN

Counsel for the Defense Suggests Luck in Odd Numbers.

Juror Tourtellotte's Curious Position—Schmitz Jury Also Drags—Frisco Millionaires Give Bonds.

Boise, Ida., May 28.—The Steunenberg murder trial has again been interrupted by the exhaustion of the jury panel. The last man of the second special venire has been disqualified and Judge Fremont Wood postponed the trial until Friday morning, when Sheriff Hodgins is to produce another special venire of sixty-one men. The odd number was jocularly asked for by the defense in the hope of changing the luck that has dogged the even numbers used. The work of jury filling is stopped at the vacancy created by the seventh preemptory challenge so that there remain three more preemptory challenges.

Two More Places May Be Vacant.

Beside that there is a chance that Juror Tourtellotte, who objected to the infliction of the death penalty save in war or anarchy, will be excused when it comes time to finally swear the jury, and Juror A. P. Burns is suffering from lumbago. These circumstances leave the date of the completion of the jury in doubt. They may accomplish the trick by Saturday night and clear the decks for the actual action of the trial on Monday morning, and then again the jury may not be completed until some time next week.

Makes Charges of Unfairness.

Prior to the issuance of the new venire E. F. Richardson, for the defense, strongly intimated that the previous lists had been made up in a manner unfair to the prisoner. He said that of the 5,000 citizens available for jury duty fully 1,200 were members of labor unions. One hundred and sixty talesmen had been before the court, yet only one of the number was a member of a labor union, and only two others were workmen. He said that there were only fifty or sixty bankers in the county, and that if they had been found in the lists. Judge Wood, in reply, said that he had absolute confidence in Sheriff Hodgins, and that he would make no suggestion to him as to the manner in which he made up his lists.

Juror Tourtellotte's Protests.

Scruples against capital punishment and prejudice against the acceptance of circumstantial evidence, rather than opinions that gave bias, were the stumbling blocks of the last talesmen examined. Juror Tourtellotte made a protest against his own retention on the jury. He said that he had various doubts about his ability to take the oath; that he thought both sides were foolish to hold him on the jury, and asked that he be given a chance to explain and qualify one of his answers given on direct examination. Judge Wood put him off until Friday, when some action will probably be taken as to his presence on the jury.

SCHMITZ JURY INCOMPLETE

Indicted Frisco Millionaires Busy Giving Bail.

San Francisco, May 28.—The trial of Mayor Schmitz, accused of extortion, was resumed in Judge Dunne's court, the examination of talesmen being continued. The state interposed a challenge for cause against Otto Fehrenbach. The ground for the challenge was that Fehrenbach, up to Saturday night, had been running a hand-book on the Emeryville races in connection with his cigar stand business at Bay and Powell streets. Fehrenbach confessed the accusation, which was brought out by Attorney Heney. The defense resisted the challenge, but Judge Dunne allowed it and Fehrenbach was compelled to stand aside. At adjournment for the day the permanent jurors numbered eight.

The eight men named in the new batch of indictments returned by the grand jury on Saturday appeared before Judge Coffey prepared to give bail, with the exception of Abraham Ruef, who already is in custody. They are Eugene de Sable, John Martin, Frank J. Grum, G. H. Umben, Joseph E. Green, W. I. Whitlock, Mayor Schmitz and Abraham Ruef. George Umben and Joseph E. Green, of the Umben Real Estate company, and W. I. Brobeck, of the law firm of Morrison and Brobeck, gave bonds in the sum of $140,000 each. Mayor Schmitz gave bond in the same sum.

The cases of Patrick Calhoun, of the United Railroads; Thornwell Mullally, his assistant, and Tiley L. Ford and W. M. Abbott, of counsel for that corporation, charged with bribing fourteen members of the board of supervisors, were continued until next Saturday morning, at the request of counsel for the defense, and it was made a matter of record that the defendants demand separate trials on each indictment for each defendant.

It may be stated by authority that the grand jury has in mind the returning of at least 100 more counts against men who have already been indicted. Delphin M. Delmas, the San Francisco lawyer who attracted wide attention to himself by his defense of Harry K. Thaw for the murder of Stanford White, has been retained to defend President Louis Glass and Agent Theodore V. Halsey, of the Pacific States Telephone and Telegraph company.

MRS. M'KINLEY'S FUNERAL

Her Body Will Be Viewed by Many Canton Friends and by the School Children.

Canton, O., May 28.—Although it is not intended that the funeral of Mrs. McKinley shall take on the form of a ceremony of state, yet the coming of the president and members of his cabinet, the vice president, the governor of Ohio and many other people of note will make it such in a degree, at least. It has been determined to change the arrangements for the funeral so as to allow the remains to be viewed by Canton friends of the deceased. The time fixed for this is from 3 to 5 today.

To show their love for the departed thousands of school children will be included in the throng that will go through the McKinley home and pass by the bier. The city council met, made arrangements for a floral piece to be sent to the McKinley home, adopted appropriate minutes, decided to attend the funeral, and adjourned out of respect to the memory of Mrs. McKinley. The city board of education did likewise. Business will be suspended tomorrow afternoon. Floral tributes in profusion from friends in many states are arriving.

A Narrow Escape.

G. W. Cloyd, a merchant, of Plunk Mo., had a narrow escape four years ago, when he ran a jimson bur into his thumb. He says: "The doctor wanted to amputate it but I would not consent. I bought a box of Bucklen's Arnica Salve and that cured the dangerous wound." 25c at W. N. Brodrick, Druggist.

In Memoriam

BY WRIGHT A. PATTERSON.

Tick-Tick Ticky-Tick-Tick.

The telegraph instruments spelled out the nation's cry for help. Unto every city, village and hamlet went the rallying call to Columbia's sons.

A nation's emblem—Old Glory—had been fired upon. Flying from the mast head it had been met in a southern port by the ominous boom of defiant cannon.

War, grim visaged war, had come. A conflict that was to leave its record of heroic deeds, of unexampled valor, upon all history.

A conflict that was to pit brother against brother, friend against friend, each battling for the right as he saw the right.

From the farm and factory, the store and office, the pulpit and schoolroom came the answer. It echoed from ocean to ocean, from east to west and north:

"We're coming, Father Abraham,
Five hundred thousand strong!"

The roll of the drum, the shrill notes of the bugle, marked the mustering camps, and into them gathered the flower of the nation's manhood.

From out these mustering camps there marched an army clad in blue, each hero eager to perform that duty, no matter what it be, assigned to him.

"Southward, ever southward," was the battle cry. "Southward to meet the foe, an army clad in gray."

For four long years the din of battle resounded through the land. For four long years there was an incessant boom of cannon, a rattle of musketry, the clash of steel upon steel. For four long years the army in gray proved a valiant foe for the army in blue. Sons of the north and of the south fell upon hundreds of stubbornly contested battlegrounds, and found a last long resting place side by side in nameless graves. The prayers that ascended unto heaven from those battlefields were for both blue and gray; one bugle's strains sounded the final "taps" for the valiant sons of both the north and south.

Near half a century has passed away since the disbanding of those two mighty armies; since the victorious blue and the defeated gray parted with a handshake at Appomattox. The heartaches and pain of four years of strife swallowed up in the glories of peace and a reunited nation. Back to the plow and the factory, back to the store and office, back to the pulpit and school room, back to the duties of peace, to the work of repairing the devastations of war, went Columbia's sons, north and south.

As we gather today with spring flowers to do reverence to the heroes who have gone we must look back that half a century to review those scenes of conflict.

The cannon that then dealt death and destruction are today moss covered and buried beneath the debris of the battlefields of old.

Time has healed the ravages of war, and covered with a softening hand the evidences of that four years of warfare.

But we have the remaining gray-haired veterans, and the graves of those passed away, to remind us of the valor of Columbia's sons.

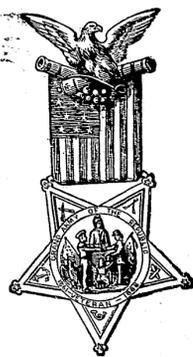

The generation of today has not forgotten, and the generations yet unborn will not forget, the care due these final resting places of a nation's dead.

We scatter flowers upon them in token of our appreciation for their services to their country of yesterday, our country of today.

Whatever their place in life, whatever their station, whatever their fortune, they are deserving of equal honor at our hands.

And unto them a grateful nation has dedicated this day; a day on which we, with freshest flowers, pay tribute to the memory of the nation's heroes.

In the immortal words of him who called that army in blue into being; who directed it during its hard fought campaigns; who bid the men that comprised it a God speed back to their homes when its work was done: "But in a larger sense we cannot dedicate, we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow this ground. The brave men, living or dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it far above our power to add or detract. The world will little note, nor long remember, what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here."

WATCH THE RECORD JUNE 7TH. SOMETHING EXCITING!

PRISONERS NOT TO DIE

Cabrera Orders the Cases of the Condemned Nineteen Taken to Higher Court for Revision.

City of Mexico, May 28.—Guatemala will not summarily execute the nineteen men now in prison charged with complicity in the alleged attempt made upon the life of President Cabrera. The state department has received a note from its representative to the effect that the matter had been sent to the court of second instance for revision.

It is believed here that Cabrera will probably instruct the court to acquit.

Presidential Party Is Muddy.

Washington, May 28.—A badly mud-splattered party at the head of which was President Roosevelt got off a car of the Washington, Alexandria and Mount Vernon electric railway here shortly before 6 p. m. They had been on a visit to Mount Vernon, part of the trip being by horseback and had been caught in a heavy shower. The other members of the party were Mrs. Roosevelt, Ethel Roosevelt, Postmaster General Meyer and Captain Fitzhugh Lee, one of the president's military aides. It was a "rough rider" trip.

Indians Win Their Case.

Washington, May 28.—In the case of the United States against the Paine Lumber company, of Wisconsin, the supreme court of the United States construed the long-disputed problem of the land rights of the remnant of the Stockbridge and Munsie Indians that remain in Wisconsin, favorably to the Indians. The Indians claimed the timber on their lands, while the government held the timber to be public domain.

Ore-Laden Ships Ashore.

Detroit, May 28.—The steamer C. F. Biehman and her consort, the barge McLachlan, bound from Duluth to Cleveland with iron ore, ran on a reef in Lake Huron a mile and a half off Port Austin in a heavy snow storm. The Port Austin life-savers succeeded in bringing ashore the crews of both vessels. There are hopes of saving the steamer, but the barge is thought to be a total wreck.

Carl Schurz Memorial Fund.

New York, May 28.—Subscriptions to the Carl Schurz memorial fund received by Isaac N. Seligman, the treasurer, amount to $72,576. In sending his check for $200 Grover Cleveland wrote: "I deem it a privilege to contribute to the cause. I inclose my check for an amount which would be much larger if my means were in keeping with my desire to aid a project so deserving."

Chicago Doctress Commits Suicide.

Duluth, Minn., May 28.—Dr. Mary Crosby, of Chicago, committed suicide here by drowning herself. While in Chicago Miss Crosby partly lost her mind, and suddenly disappeared. She came to Duluth in search of a brother who lives here. The brother is J. A. Crosby, and he identified the woman's body as that of his sister.

Council Backs Mayor Busse.

Chicago, May 28.—The city council has approved the appointments of Mayor Busse to take the places of the discharged members of the board of education.

$16,000 FOR 80 ACRES

In St. Joseph Township, Berrien County, Michigan

St. Joseph, Mich., May 27.—Eighty acres of land in St. Joseph township, Berrien county, have been sold for a big price. The land brought in the aggregate $16,000, which is $200 per acre. The price per acre has been duplicated in the township many times, but it is seldom that so large a transaction, involving so many acres and so much money occurs.

The land has been purchased by the Hastings Investment Company, an Indiana corporation, which intends to plat the property into suburban lots and sell them as such.

RY. COMPANY WANTS TO BULID LOOP

J. Mac Smith of Southern Michigan Railway Company Interviewed

BUCHANAN LINE INVOLVED

Would Block Company's Plans if Niles Council Force the Company to Tear up Spur

Relative to the resolution, which an attempt was made to have the Niles council adopt, to compel the company to take up and remove all rails and ties from Main street north on Front street as now laid within 20 days. Mr. Smith expressed surprise that such action should be taken without giving the company a chance to say anything in their own behalf, and stated that it has always been the intention of the company to ask for a loop there, that cars may be operated from Niles to South Bend, Niles to Buchanan, Niles to Dowagiac and elsewhere, and that, in any event, their franchise gives them the right to build turnouts or branch outs, and that the piece of track, in question, might just as well be used for that purpose at present as for the company to build another, especially in view of the fact that, just as soon as the Buchanan line is built, they will ask the city for permission to complete a loop by building north on Front street to Sycamore, thence east on Sycamore to second, where they would connect with their present second street tracks.

Mr. Smith says the company wishes to give Niles and South Bend a half hour service, and that they will have to have a loop, as all the cars they have built hereafter will be single-line cars, or cars to be operated from one end of the line.

Ament Buchanan Line

Speaking of the interurban situation in Niles and vicinity and the future outlook of the Southern Michigan Railway company's northward progress the Niles Star says: "Manager McSmith states that work on the Buchanan line is delayed owing to the demoralized condition of the bond market, it being well nigh impossible to give away bonds in the east at present, but that they are endeavoring to make a showing on the St. Joseph line, which will make their bonds very attractive, and that the chances are that they will be able to work them off this summer, so that the line from Niles to Buchanan can be built.

The line which Mayor Earl would tear up will be of immense value to the company while the proposed Buchanan line is building, and surely the people of Niles do not wish to lay any obstacles in the way of the building of that line.

MUST GIVE UP PAPERS

Texas Law Is Upheld by the Judge in the Waters-Pierce Oil Company Case.

Austin, Tex., May 28.—The recently enacted state law requiring defendant corporations to produce in court any papers or records desired was upheld in the trial of the ouster and penalty suit of the state of Texas vs. the Waters-Pierce Oil company. Replying to a writ of duces tecum the defense declared that certain papers called for were not in their possession. Testifying in the matter J. D. Johnson, representing the oil company, insisted that the descriptions given in the application were not sufficient for him to judge as to what papers were desired.

Johnson refused to answer any questions relating to other papers or records. The state finally called the court's attention to the new law requiring the corporation to produce papers, which was upheld. The papers were then produced, but were not complete and the writ was secured. This last writ, however, had not been replied to when the court adjourned for the day.

Secretary Taft Has a Cold.

Washington, May 28.—Secretary Taft has returned to Washington from Oakland, Va., but is confined to his home by a cold. Owing to his engagement to address the millers' convention at St. Louis on Thursday next, necessitating his leaving Washington soon after midnight today, Secretary Taft will not be able to accompany President Roosevelt and his fellow members of the cabinet to Canton to attend the funeral of the late Mrs. McKinley.

JUNIORS ENTERTAIN THE SENIORS

A Solid Evening of Mirth and Merriment Not Long to be Forgotten

MAKE ELOQUENT SPEECHES

Add Great Interest to the Evening—Seniors Embark on New Life's Journeys

The juniors of the high school entertained the seniors in a most charming and pleasing manner at the residence of Miss Edith Tabor last Friday evening. The rooms were beautifully decorated in gold and white colors suitable for the occasion, the colors being the standard adopted by the seniors. After a delightful program the classes retreated to the dining room where a bounteous spread of choicest and finest dainties were prepared. Having satisfied the ravings of tickled palates the party spent the remainder of the evening in games. Exactly what games were played was not told but a book prize was won by Miss Currier. One of the special features of the program most interesting to the classes were papers read by Miss Lucile Bocket and Mr. Milton Bachman. The subject of the former was "Class Prophecy" and created no end of merriment and interest. The theme chosen by Mr. Bachman was "Slams and Knocks" which also added much to enlivening the evening's entertainment. The seniors owe a deep gratitude to the juniors for so royally entertaining them and, the event will always be remembered as one bidding the seniors Godspeed and goodluck in the journeys of life which they are about to travel at the end of their school term.

"COSTS TOO MUCH"

How often have you heard a man say this and that costs too much? He may have ample funds in the bank and may be classed as a "tight wad," or he may be in dire straits and says "costs too much" because he honestly can't afford to pay for it; or he may have plenty of money to burn yet says "costs too much," probably as an excuse for dodging the main point.

It doesn't seem right to protest when you are asked to pay a reasonable price for a really good, strong and durable article.

It is worse to ask one to pay an excessive price for an inferior article. We believe a man should get honest value for his money.

But the man, whether he gets fair value for his money or not, who continually decries "costs too much" is a bore and a nuisance. He is a pessimist of the deepest dye.

Whenever a customer tells the dealer that the article "costs too much" just watch and hear what the dealer says. He will tell you that it's genuine wool, absolutely pure wool, warranted to last six months, or probably a year. You finally decide to buy the article on the strength of the merchant's convincing argument. If, by and by, you discover that instead of being pure wool it is really cotton, or a mixture of wool and cotton, wouldn't it make your blood boil at the deception?

The article really "cost too much" and you have a perfect right to kick over being "duped"

This actually happened, but we are merely saying this by way of illustration to discourage the idea that every article "costs too much."

The RECORD is issued twice a week. The price of paper has gone up. Type in pound lots have doubled in prices the past year. Everything that goes to printing a newspaper costs a lot of money. There is the force of help to be paid promptly each week. There are other items that go in the above class where prices have doubled.

The RECORD has never raised its subscription price—and not likely to. Its advertising rates have remained the same.

Its circulation is double that of the other paper. It reaches the cream of Buchanan's population—it visits the best homes in the rural districts—it goes out as far as the Pacific and Atlantic coasts—and down to the Gulf of Mexico, in fact, scattered wherever former residents of Buchanan can be traced.

Despite all these considerations of quality, age and prestige—somebody had the brazen audacity to tell us that our charge of a few cents per inch space "costs too much."

There are HOGS APLENTY!

All the fools who are after something for nothing are still alive.

Being chronic in their beliefs that it "costs too much" to live, we wonder if they will continue to yell from their graves that it "costs too much" to keep DEAD.

Obituary

CHARLES FREDERICK MUTCHLER.

Charles Frederick Mutchler was born in Brunswick Center, Medina County, Ohio, May 11, 1847, and he died at his home in Berrien County, Mich., May 22, 1907, being 60 years and 11 days old. He was the youngest of five brothers, and the only one who was born in the United States. He lived in Berrien county since he was nine years of age. When about 15 years old he started in life for himself. Nov. 17, 1865, he was united in marriage to Miss Sarah Behner in Medina County, Ohio, and soon thereafter they took up their abode on the farm which has been the family residence ever since. To this union were born eight children of whom Ella, Bertha and Myrtle E. have gone on to the better land. Those who still survive are Elder Frank W., of Iowa, Lillie Bartness, of South Bend, Walter E., Charles, and Grace, all of Buchanan. A loving wife who will sadly miss his presence and benediction, five children, one brother who on account of sickness was unable to attend the funeral services, and two little granddaughters are left to mourn his departure.

Mr. Mutchler was an honest hard working man all his life. He was fearless in the defense of his honest convictions. He was a kind and loving father, always on the lookout for the welfare of his children. He rejoiced in the triumph of their prosperity and when adversity was thrust upon him he was still hopeful. He passed away without a second's warning into that dreamless sleep that kisses down his eyelids still. We shall miss him, miss his smiles and benedictions, and the smile he wore in life is on his very face in death. From God he came and unto God he has returned.

Funeral arrangements were made under the direction of Undertaker George B. Richards; funeral services very largely attended, and conducted by Elder Wm. M. Roe, were held at 11 a. m., May 24 at the late residence of the deceased. Appropriate music was furnished by J. J. Roe and his daughter, Mrs. Clara Richards. Interment was made in Oak Ridge Cemetery.

From the State Capital

Information and Gossip Furnished by Special Correspondent at Lansing.

Lansing.—One of the matters to be taken up by the senate at once is the reapportioning of the senatorial districts. Wayne county must be given a fifth senator and some of the other counties joined together. St. Clair would like to continue alone, but it is probable that Sanilac will be added to it. Senator Bland has introduced a bill along these lines, while Senator Peck introduced one which re-enacts the present law. Senator Fuller will introduce one which differs a good deal from the Bland bill and the committee will have to effect some sort of a compromise.

Say Law Retards Railroads.

Prominent electric railway men say that construction of electric lines in Michigan is retarded by the Michigan securities act which provides that unless electric railway companies have paid at least four per cent. dividends on capital stock for a period of five years their bonds may not be taken by state banks. A bill introduced by Senator Tuttle amending the present law so as to authorize the approval by the securities commission of the bonds of companies having certain net earnings has passed the senate, but is pigeon-holed by a house committee. A majority of the members of the securities commission, consisting of the state banking commissioner, attorney general and state treasurer, are said to be opposed to the amendment. The Tuttle bill is regarded as most important, but up to this time it seemed to have escaped public observation. Officers of the Michigan United railways assert that under the law at present the bonds of no electric railway company except possibly the Detroit United can be held by Michigan banks. This is declared to be a handicap to electric railway construction in the state as eastern capitalists hesitate to purchase bonds that have no market in the banks of the state where they are issued.

Mourn Death of Maj. Conger.

The news of the death of Maj. Edwin H. Conger, former United States minister to China, was received with much sorrow in this state, where he was well known. Maj. Conger leaves three brothers and two sisters. The brothers are Rev. E. L. Conger, of Pasadena; Frank D. Conger, of Benton Harbor, and John W. Conger, of Mexico; Mrs. A. C. Baldwin and Mrs. Edwards, wife of Maj. Edwards, U. S. A., were sisters. Maj. Conger often visited his brother at Benton Harbor and was known and loved by a large number of the people of the county. Ambrose H. Rowe, a former mayor of Benton Harbor, served in the One Hundred and Second Illinois regiment in company K, while Mr. Conger was captain of company I of the same regiment and the two men became well acquainted and their friendship has ever been quite intimate. Maj. Conger's last visit to the city was on September 8, 1905.

Pay Fares to High School.

The Tuttle bill to allow school districts which have no high school to vote eligible pupils transportation to the nearest high school aroused oratory and applause in the house. Representative Campbell urged that American success has not been won by easy education, but by the uphill path. Representative Greusel said it was the duty of the state to do all she could. Representative Newkirk urged that Representative Campbell's argument would prevent state aid to the Grand Rapids fair, which could thereby do better if it had to struggle uphill. Representative J. J. McCarthy, of Arenac, pleaded vigorously and with emotion—with interruptions of much applause—for the boys who have to struggle for an education. A few members voted with Campbell, but the bill had a triumphant passage.

Stop Ticket Speculation.

The house committee of the whole passed the Newkirk bill prohibiting speculation in tickets to public amusements. Athletic Director Baird, of the U. of M., promoted the bill. Under penalty of a fine of $25 to $100 any person is forbidden to sell tickets to a theater, circus or athletic ground in excess of the advertised or printed rate. Tickets to these amusements must have printed on them the number of the seat and the price. The bill, Judge Newkirk says, is aimed at speculators in baseball, football and field day tickets at Ann Arbor. It is a copy of the Illinois law.

May Get New Wing for Capitol.

At least a partial victory seems certain for Representative Stanley Montgomery on the bill providing for a new west wing on the state capitol.

Vital Statistics of State.

Michigan's population increased 4,262 and decreased 3,212 by death in April, according to figures given out from the office of the secretary of state. Pneumonia led as a cause of death, there being 308 from that disease. Pulmonary tuberculosis caused 232 deaths, other forms of tuberculosis 38. There was one death from smallpox and one by lightning. Infant mortality was: Under one year, 521, from one to four years 200. The number of deaths of persons over 65 years old was 1,024.

CHAPTER XIV.

ONE morning three months later Guy Osgard drew up in line his flying column. He was going back to England with the first consignment of simiacine. During the twelve weeks that lay behind there had been constant reference made to his little body of picked men, and the leader had selected with a grave deliberation that promised well. The lost soldier that was in him was all astr in his veins as he reviewed his command in the cool air of early morning. The journey from Msala to the plateau had occupied a busy two months. Osgard expected to reach Msala with his men in forty days. Piled up in neat square cases, such as could be carried in pairs by a man of ordinary strength, was the crop of simiacine, roughly valued by Victor Durnovo at $40,000. Ten men could carry the whole of it, and the twenty cases set close together on the ground made a bed for Guy Osgard. Upon this improvised couch he gravely stretched his bulk every night all through the journey that followed.

It was on the open ground in front of the tents that Guy Osgard drew up his quick marching column before the sun had sprung up in its fantastic tropical way from the distant line of virgin forest. As he walked along the line, making a suggestion here, pulling on a shoulder rope there, he looked stanch and strong as any man might wish to be. His face was burned so brown that his eyebrows and mustache stood out almost blond, though in reality they were only brown. His eyes did not seem to be suffering from the heaviness noticeable in others; altogether, the climate and the mystic breath of the simiacine did not appear to affect him as they did his companions. This was probably accounted for by the fact that, being chief of the hunters, most of his days had been passed on the lower slopes in search of game.

Osgard gave the signal for the men to start, and the long caravan defiled. The porters nodded to Meredith with a great display of white teeth, while the head men, the captains of tens, stepped out of the ranks and shook hands.

Before they had disappeared over the edge of the plateau Joseph came forward to say goodbye to Osgard. "And it is understood," said the latter, "that I pay in to your account at Lloyd's bank your share of the proceeds."

Joseph grinned. "Yes, sir; if you please; presumin' it's a safe bank." Meredith walked a little way down the slope with Osgard.

"Goodby, old chap!" he said, when the parting came. "Good luck, and all that. Hope you will find all right at home. By the way," he shouted after him, "give my kind regards to the Gordons at Loango."

And so the first consignment of simiacine was sent from the plateau to the coast.

Guy Osgard was one of those deceptive men who only do a few things and do those few very well. In forty-three days he deposited the twenty precious cases in Gordon's go-downs at Loango and paid off the porters, of whom he had not lost one. These duties performed, he turned his steps toward the bungalow. He had refused Gordon's invitation to stay with him until the next day, when the coasting steamer was expected. To tell the truth, he was not very much prepossessed in Maurice's favor, and it was with a doubtful mind that he turned his steps toward the little house in the forest between Loango and the sea.

"And when did you leave them?" asked Jocelyn, after her visitor had explained who he was.

"I left them forty-four days ago," he replied.

"And were they well?"

"Oh, yes," he replied. "You know Meredith?"

"Yes," she said. "We know Mr. Meredith."

The visitor did not speak at once, and she looked up at him over the flowers, with grave politeness.

"Meredith," he said, "is one of the most remarkable men I have ever

"Really," she replied, with a kindly interest. "How?"

"He is not the man I took him for. He is so wonderfully polite and gentle and pleasant."

"Are you going back to them?"

"No, I leave tomorrow morning early by the Portuguese boat. I am going home to be married."

"Indeed! Then I suppose you will wash your hands of Africa forever?"

"Not quite," he replied. "I told Meredith that I would be prepared to go up to him in case of emergency, but not otherwise. I shall, of course, still be interested in the scheme. I take home the first consignment of simiacine; we have been very successful, you know. I shall have to stay in London to sell that. I have a house there."

"Are you to be married at once?" inquired Jocelyn, with that frank interest which makes it so much easier for a man to talk of his own affairs to a woman than to one of his own sex.

"As soon as I can arrange it," he answered, with a little laugh. "There is nothing to wait for. We are both orphans, and fortunately we are fairly well off."

He was fumbling in his breast pocket and presently he rose, crossed the room and handed her, quite without afterthought or self-consciousness, a photograph in a morocco case.

Explanation was unnecessary, and Jocelyn Gordon looked smilingly upon a smiling, bright young face.

"She is very pretty," she said honestly.

Whereupon Guy Osgard granted unintelligibly.

"Millicent," he said, after a little pause—"Millicent is her name."

"Millicent?" repeated Jocelyn. "Millicent what?"

"Millicent Chyne."

Jocelyn folded the morocco case together and handed it back to him.

"She is very pretty," she repeated slowly, as if her mind could only reproduce—it was incapable of creation.

Osgard looked puzzled. Having risen, he did not sit down again, and presently he took his leave, feeling convinced that Jocelyn was about to faint.

When he was gone the girl sat wearily down.

"Millicent Chyne," she whispered. "What is to be done?"

"Nothing," she answered to herself after awhile. "Nothing. It is not my business. I can do nothing."

She sat there alone, as she had been all her life, until the short tropical twilight fell over the forest. Quite suddenly she burst into tears.

"It is my business," she sobbed. "It is no good pretending otherwise; but I can do nothing."

Four months elapsed and the excitement created in the small world of western Africa by the first dazzling success of the simiacine expedition began to subside. The thing took its usual course. At first the experts disbelieved and then they prophesied that it could not last. Finally the active period of envy, hatred and malice gave way to a sullen tolerance not unmixed with an indefinite grudge toward Fortune who had favored the brave once more.

Maurice Gordon was in daily expectation of news from that faroff favored spot they vaguely called the plateau. And Jocelyn did not pretend to conceal from herself the hope that filled her whole being, the hope that Jack Meredith might bring the news in person.

Instead came Victor Durnovo.

He came upon her one evening when she was walking slowly home from a mild tea party at the house of a missionary. Hearing footsteps on the sandy soil, she turned and found herself face to face with Durnovo.

"I was coming along to see you," he said, and there was a subtle offense in his tone.

She did not trouble to tell him that Maurice was away for ten days. She felt that he knew that.

"When do you go back?" she asked carelessly.

"Almost at once," in a tone that apologized for causing her necessary pain. "I must leave tomorrow or the next day. I do not like the idea of Meredith being left too long alone up there with a reduced number of men. Of course, I had to bring a pretty large escort. I brought down $60,000 worth of simiacine."

"Have you had any more sickness among the men?" she asked at once in a tone of half veiled sarcasm which made him wince.

"No," he answered; "they have been quite all right."

"What time do you start?" she asked. "There are letters for Mr. Meredith at the office. Maurice's head clerk will give them to you."

She knew that those letters were from Millicent. She had actually had them in her hand. She had inhaled the faint, refined scent of the paper and envelopes.

They had reached the gate of the bungalow garden. She turned and held out her hand in an understandable manner.
