CHICAGO KEY MEN QUIT AT MIDNIGHT

WESTERN UNION NIGHT FORCE GOES ON SUDDEN STRIKE.

LOS ANGELES THE CAUSE

Operators Decline to Receive Messages Sent by Nonunion Men—Day Force Expected to Follow.

Chicago, Aug. 9.—The Chicago offices of the Western Union Telegraph company were tied up Thursday night by an unexpected strike of the entire night force of operators on duty in the city. There were 200 of them. There are 785 others on the day force.

The men employed in the company's general headquarters at Clark street and Jackson boulevard, as well as those detailed to work in the newspaper offices, walked out without receiving authority or orders from their general union officers.

The company's business was paralyzed. The day force of operators is not expected to appear for work Friday.

Follow Los Angeles Walkout.
The unheralded strike was the outcome of the strike in Los Angeles. The Chicago men walked out of the offices when they saw the company required them to handle messages to and from Los Angeles, where non-union men are now at the keys.

Some were ordered to leave the offices when they refused. The majority marched out of their own accord on the stroke of 12 o'clock.

Even the messenger boys, in sympathy with their elders, walked out, refusing to carry those messages that were to be delivered at the time the walkout took place.

Slim Chance of Returning.
The strike being thus far without the sanction of President Small or the union's executive board, there is a possibility that the men may be ordered back to work when this branch of the union is heard from. There is every probability, however, that if such an order comes, it will be disobeyed, as the men are now in no mood to act upon orders of this sort from any source.

Postal Men Are Still Working.
The Postal company has not yet been touched by the strike, but the union officials promise nothing for Friday. This company escaped tie-up owing to the fact that it has no strike-bound offices that might be used as an excuse for a general walkout on the part of the men.

Friday morning some of the Western Union wires at the board of trade—excepting those operated as leased wires—will be tied up. There are almost as many Postal operators employed there, and these, with the operators employed by individual brokers on leased wires, will prevent any paralysis of the board's operations.

Denver Men May Quit.
Denver, Col., Aug. 9.—As soon as word came from Chicago that the operators in the Western Union office there had gone on strike at midnight, a petition was started in circulation among the operators in the office of the Western Union in this city, which approved of the action of the Chicago men and also stated that under no conditions would the local men work with nonunion operators in the Chicago or Los Angeles offices. President Fred Wessell, of the local union, hurried from his home to the operating room of the local office for the purpose of advising the men not to take any definite action until orders were received from the head officials of the national body.

St. Joseph Planning Big Labor Day Celebration

St. Joseph is to have another big July Fourth, over one hundred dollars remaining in the treasury, and their donations a fund large enough to provide amusements such as the city presented to thousands of excursionists on July Fourth.

Business men feel that the present season has been none to good, and that another day's business, such as they experienced July Fourth, would be very acceptable. They have discussed ever since July Fourth, the prospects of a big celebration on Labor Day and there is little doubt that they will contribute to the cause, now that the matter is being promoted.

The committee has something in the shape of a nest egg, left over from July Fourth, over one hundred dollars remaining in the treasury, and this amount will be used to a good advantage in the fund now being collected. Five hundred dollars, however, is the mark which the committee wishes to attain and if possible they will collect four hundred to add to the amount which they already have on hand.

One of the things which the committee now has under consideration is an air-ship ascension. There are now companies which furnish these machines with daring operators and it is believed that if properly advertised, this would prove as great an attraction as it would be possible to secure

HOLY WAR STARTED AT RABAT, MOROCCO

CAID AND FANATICAL PRIEST ARE AROUSING MUSSULMANS.

SULTAN NOT INFORMED

Advisers Afraid to Tell Him the Truth—Calm and Order Have Been Restored at Casa-blanca.

Paris, Aug. 9.—Special dispatches received here from Tangier represent the situation as being more alarming on the coast and in the interior. Caïd Sale, the administrator of customs at Rabat, is said to be openly preaching a holy war among the Mussulmans, as a result of which the French consul has distributed arms to the Europeans.

In addition a fanatical priest named Maclain, at the head of a horde of followers, is traveling through the Littoral inflaming the anti-foreign sentiment.

Angera tribesmen were firing two miles from Tangier at half past 11 Thursday night. The European residents, including the British minister, Gerard A. Lowther, and his family, have left their mountain dwellings and returned to the town.

Reports from Fez say that the advisers of the sultan are terrified and have not yet informed him of the gravity of the situation.

Up to six o'clock Thursday evening the foreign office here had no confirmation of the reported bombardment of Mazagan.

All Quiet at Casablanca.

Tangier, Aug. 9.—The latest news received here from Casablanca says that calm and order have now been established. The military governor requested permission to go on board a ship in the harbor, but was refused. He fears for his personal safety, and although money has been sent from here to pay the troops at Casablanca and insure the performance of their duties, he is unable to secure a body-guard.

The shooting inside of Casablanca lasted for two full days and only came to an end Wednesday morning. The Kabyles have gone back out of range of the fire of the warships, but they are ready to swoop down on the town at the first opportunity.

British Consulate a Refuge.
French sailors are guarding the British consulate at Casablanca, where the consular agents of the United States, Germany, Austria-Hungary and Sweden have sought refuge. The Italian and Portuguese consuls are at the French consulate. A minecart from which a heavy sustained fire was directed against the French consulate was demolished by the guns of the Moroccan authorities.

The European shops were pillaged, but no Europeans were killed. The state bank agency at Casablanca has been robbed of about $15,000, but no details of the robbery have been made public.

The French consulate was attacked by Moors during the night of August 5. One bluejacket of the guard was killed and three were badly wounded.

Custom House Looted.
The custom house at Casablanca was looted by natives on Tuesday and many other buildings were set on fire and destroyed.

A French gunboat, the Cassini, which was detached from the northern squadron, now proceeding to Casablanca, was communicated with by wireless telegraphy and arrived here Thursday. She will await the orders of the French charge d'affaires, pending the arrival of the armored cruiser Jeanne D'Arc, as the French officials here consider it is not safe to be without a warship at their disposal. The Spanish torpedo cruiser Destructor has arrived at this port.

The Marabout Sidî Malouf, one of the principal Moors of Casablanca, has requested to be allowed to go on board a warship.

A sailor of the Du Chayla was killed and four others were wounded, three of them sustaining serious injuries, during the recent fighting. The Du Chayla sailed hurriedly at six o'clock Wednesday night for Mazagan, where the population has risen against the caïd.

RAILROAD WAR IN ALABAMA IS ENDED

GOVERNOR AND SOUTHERN ROAD REACH AGREEMENT.

STATE GAINS A VICTORY

Company Will Put New Laws Into Effect, Pending Court Decisions, and Recovers Its License.

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 9.—Gov. Comer and the officials of the Southern railroad reached an agreement late Thursday afternoon and the license of the railroad in Alabama will be reinstated.

Beginning September 1, 1907, the railroad and its allied lines will put into effect the two and a half cent passenger-fare act and the measure reducing the freight rates on 110 commodities commonly shipped in Alabama.

Victory for the State.

The agreement was not reached without concessions being made by both sides, but in the main it is a victory for the state. The laws in question will not be put into effect permanently. The agreement specifically declares that their operation beginning September 1 is only subject to the final determination as to their constitutionality and their reasonableness, when a decision on these questions is finally rendered by the court of last resort. Meanwhile, the other laws enacted by the legislature at its winter session affecting the railroads of the state will remain in force by virtue of the injunction granted by Judge Thomas G. Jones, of the federal court.

The railroad's representatives agreed that they would appear before Judge Jones and ask him for an order modifying the restraining orders issued by the United States court two months ago, to permit of the immediate operation, subjected to the final decision of the courts, of the two acts in question.

License to Be Restored.

In consideration of the agreement of the railroad representatives to permit of the operation of these two laws, the one affecting the passenger traffic, and the other the freight, it was agreed by Gov. Comer that the revocation of the license of the Southern in Alabama should be canceled and the company permitted to do business without hindrance by the state. The compromise affects only the one railroad system, the Southern. The other railroads of the state were not parties to the conference.

AMERICANS SAFE IN PERSIA.

Reassuring Message Received from Ambassador Leishman.

Washington, Aug. 9.—At the instance of American friends of the missionaries in Persia, and particularly of the teachers of the American school for girls at Urumiah, the State department has requested Ambassador Leishman at Constantinople to make inquiry as to their safety. Thursday a cablegram was received from the ambassador stating that he had been assured by the sublime porte that all possible measures would be taken to safeguard American interests in the territory in dispute between Turkey and Persia, and orders to that effect had been telegraphed to the Turkish military commanders.

Mr. Leishman thought it unlikely that Urumiah would be invaded by the Turks, for the reason that it is outside of the disputed zone, and the Turks have been given strict orders to confine themselves to their own side of the line and keep out of Persia. He also reports the presence of marauding bands of Kurds, and that revolutionary parties with arms are adding to the disturbed conditions. The Persian government has very little control of the situation and seems unable to preserve order. There appears to be no danger of Turkish attacks on Americans.

It's always the under dog that yells for fair play.

Berrien Needs Better Roads

"I drove from Hartford to Kalamazoo the other day," declared George Burkhard, of the firm of Burkhard Bros., St. Joseph, "and in the entire distance there was no stretch of road as bad as our Lake Shore drive from the end of the macadam to Stevensville. Berrien county should do more to get good roads."

The observation of Mr. Burkhard is made every day by many people acquainted with road conditions in other counties. The Lake Shore drive out of St. Joseph, as far as the macadam is one of the best roads in the state. Travel over the road, especially by automobiles is heavy, and business men are anxious that steps be taken at once to complete the improvement of the road to Stevensville.

If efforts can be concentrated toward improving the roads leading to Buchanan the local merchants would find their trade greatly increased. Farmers would come to town often to hear band concerts, trade with local retailers and make frequent trips where they now are unwilling to bother over rough, muddy and narrow roads.

A GOOD TIME FOR ALL.

Hargreaves' Railroad Shows

The great Hargreaves' Railroad Shows, a prominent feature of which is one of the finest and most remarkable menageries ever put under canvas will give afternoon and evening performances in Benton Harbor Thursday, Aug. 15.

What those who have charge of wild animals in captivity, and especially trainers, dread most among the large carnivora, is that in explicable change of temperament on the part of the animals known in the parlance of the menagerie as "going bad," says Frank C. Bostock, one of the world's greatest animal trainers, in his invaluable book, "The Training of Wild Animals."

Continuing, Mr. Bostock writes, "Lions are likely to go bad about the tenth year of life; tigers, two or three years earlier. The male tiger is the dread of the profession when he reaches this condition, because he is more likely to go into a frenzy without warning and, once once gone bad, nothing will satisfy him but murder. He will leap for any man within reach, and when once his teeth are on a bone, nothing but fire will make him relinquish it and not always that."

"This 'going bad' may come in the nature of a sudden attack, or it may develop slowly and be counteracted if taken in time. An old trainer can usually detect the symptoms of this curious ailment. It seems to be in the nature of a disease, and other animals recognize it and shun the affected one. When its progress is apparent the danger is not great; all that is required then is level head, and the wisdom to refrain from further interference with the animal.

A good trainer never dreams of interfering with animals in this condition. If attacked, his one aim is to defend himself until he has a chance to escape from the cage and to separate the animal from his fellows as soon as possible. Sometimes this bad temper will last but a short time, and again it will become a permanent condition of the animal. In that case he is sent to the lonely cage to spend the rest of his life in comparative obscurity, disturbed merely by the passing crowd and his daily meal."

EDITORIAL

Let the Good Work Continue.

We are confident that our readers will appreciate the good work made by our councilmen during the brief period of their administration. They are practical men with practical ideas—not theories. They are close to the people and are striving to fulfill the pledge made to the voters last Spring to the effect that they would conduct their work on strictly business principles.

The record which they made at last Monday's council meeting is the first step towards placing the municipal affairs on an economical basis. The village fathers have more important work ahead of them which will be carefully weighed and analyzed before being executed.

Here follows the record: We have been using ten car loads of coal a year which cost $160 each (or $1600 for the entire output) to operate the pumping station. At Monday night's meeting it was decided to purchase an electrical pump and two motors, which when installed will cost about $1500. The cost of running the regular motor for pumping will be $25 per horse power per year, or $250 will be the annual cost of power; the other motor, larger in size, will be used for extra pressure in case of fire, but will entail no additional cost for power.

Before the end of the first two years we will actually pay for the plant and for the next eight years we should save the difference between $1600 for coal and $250 for electrical power, or $10,800 in the next eight years following the installation of the plant. This is the first noticeable saving that can be traced directly to the recent Chapin settlement.

The voters' confidence in the business men's council has not been abused. Let the good work go on. The Record will always keep the public informed of other splendid acts by the council from time to time.

Evils of Substitution

The question of substitution is one that worries a great many manufacturers of advertised articles. Frequently a manufacturer who has a particularly good product secures a novel name for it and thoroughly covers the country with newspaper announcements that the article is on sale at local dealers, but very often the dealer, even though he has this article on his shelves, may prefer to sell something else, recommending it as "just as good," because it pays him better. In this way he profits by the demand for the advertised article which the advertising manufacturer has bought and paid for. When a substitute is purchased the customer usually receives an inferior article which may not give satisfaction and thereby damages the valuable goods by the injurious character of this substitute.

A recent example of the evils of substitution is related by the manager of a product which is advertised to produce certain most desirable results. In some cases substitutes have been sold on the strength of this advertisement

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought

ing and not only damaged the sale of the advertised article but spoiled objects to which applied. It is always safe to insist on getting what you ask for. A manufacturer who has the faith to advertise his article can usually be depended upon to give exactly what he promises in his newspaper announcements. If he does not do so the person discovering the fraud owes it to the public to at once notify any newspaper containing the the advertising to inform the paper of the fraud.

Who Helps Good Roads?

How much do the mail order houses contribute toward the maintaining of good roads? Give the local merchant a liberal patronage for what he does for the town.

Because this or that policy, distasteful to them, is pursued, some people are ready to allow their faith to lay and speak out in fear that the village is going backward.

Losing faith themselves, the people sometimes lead themselves to believe that everybody loses faith with them.

A multitude of interests, and not one, combine to make a city grow.

CELERY CROP IS LARGE

The first crop of celery, which has just been harvested, is the largest ever produced in the history of Kalamazoo. Over forty express cars filled with celery have been shipped from Kalamazoo during the past two weeks. The crop, while late, has been far in excess of what was at first believed it would be. The acreage this year has also increased.

Next week the second crop comes on, and from present indications it will be much larger than the first. Only a little difficulty was experienced with seeders. The early summer cold weather caused some of the celery to run into seed stalks and as a result much of it was thrown away. There will be no trouble of this kind with the second yield. Growers are expecting to break all records this year. But notwithstanding the tremendous crop the demand can not be filled and commission house orders are being turned down constantly.

Tax Notice

I will be at Lee Bros. bank to receive taxes which must be paid on or before Sept. 15.

The Limit of Life.

The most eminent medical scientists are unanimous in the conclusion that the generally accepted limitation of human life is many years below the attainment possible with the advanced knowledge of which the race is now possessed. The critical, that determines its duration, seems to be between 50 and 60; the proper care of the body during this decade cannot be too strongly urged; carelessness then being fatal to longevity. Deafness Cannot be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining condition of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

difference in Nestorius. His dusky little face was shining with a sudden, weakening perspiration, his limbs lay lifelessly, with a lack of their usual comfortable looking grace.

"Go!" she said quickly. "Fetch Miss Gordon!"

Jocelyn came, and Maurice and Guy Oscar, for they had been together in the dining room when Joseph delivered Marie's message.

Nestorius was wide awake now. When he saw Oscar his small face suddenly expanded into a brilliant grin. "Bad case!" he said.

It was rather startling, until Marie spoke.

"He thinks you are Mr. Meredith," she said. "Mr. Meredith taught him to say 'bad case.'"

Nestorius looked from one to the other with gravely speculative eyes, which presently closed.

"He is dying—yes!" said the mother, looking at Jocelyn.

Oscar knew more of this matter than any of them. He went forward and leaned over the table. Marie removed a piece of salted bacon that was lying on the table near to the pillow.

With the unconsciousness of long habit she swept some crumbs away with her apron. Oscar was trying to find the pulse in the tiny wrist, but there was not much to find.

"I am afraid he is very ill," he said.

At this moment the kettle boiled over and Marie had to turn away to attend to her duties.

When she came back Oscar was looking, not at Nestorius, but at her.

"We spent four days at Msala," he said in a tone that meant that he had more to tell her.

"Yes?"

"The place is in ruins, as you know."

She nodded with a peculiar little twist of the lips as if he were hurting her.

"And I am afraid I have some bad news for you. Victor Durnovo, your master—"

"Yes. Tell quickly!"

"He is dead. We buried him at Msala. He died in my arms."

At this moment Joseph gave a little gasp and turned away to the window.

Where he stood with his broad back toward them. Maurice Gordon, as white as death, was leaning against the table. He quite forgot himself.

His lips were apart, his jaw had dropped. He was hanging breathlessly on Guy Oscar's next word.

"He died of the sleeping sickness," said Oscar. "We had come down to Msala before him—Joseph and I. I broke up the partnership, and we left him in possession of the simiacine plateau. But his men turned against him. For some reason his authority over them failed. He was obliged to make a dash for Msala, and he reached it, but the sickness was upon him."

Maurice Gordon drew a sharp sigh of relief which was almost a sob. Marie was standing with her two hands on the pillow where Nestorius lay. Her deep eyes were fixed on the Englishman's sunburnt, strongly gentle face.

"Did he send a message for me? Yes?" she said softly.

"No," answered Oscar. "He—there was no time."

Joseph at the window had turned half round.

"He was my husband," said Marie in her clear, deep tones, "the father of this little one which you call Nestorius."

Oscar bowed his head without surprise. Jocelyn was standing still as a statue, with her hand on the dying infant's cheek. No one dared to look at her.

"It is all right," said Marie bluntly. "We were married at Sierra Leone by the English chaplain. My father, who is dead, kept a hotel at Sierra Leone, and he knew the ways of the half castes. He said that the Protestant church at Sierra Leone was good enough for him, and we were married there. And then Victor brought me away from my people to this place and to Msala. Then he got tired of me; he cared no more. He said I was ugly."

She pronounced it "ogly," and seemed to think that the story finished there. At all events, she added nothing to it. But Joseph thought fit to contribute a post scriptum.

"You'd better tell 'em, mistress," he said, "that he tried to starve yer and then kids; that he wanted to leave yer at Msala to be massacred by the tribes, only Mr. Oscar sent yer down 'ere. You'd better tell 'em that."

"No," she replied, with a faint smile. "No, because he was my husband."

Guy Oscar was looking very hard at Joseph, and, catching his eye, made a little gesture commanding silence. He did not want him to say too much.

Joseph turned away again to the window and stood thus apart till the end.

"I have no doubt," said Oscar to Marie, "that he would have sent some message to you had he been able, but he was very ill—he was dying—when he reached Msala. It was wonderful that he got there at all. We did what we could for him, but it was hopeless."

The Capture of David O. Dodd

The following may interest the veterans who participated in the Civil War.

In a recent issue of The National Tribune, Oscar W. Carlson, of Milwaukee, Wis., asked for information concerning the capture of David O. Dodd, who was hung at Little Rock during the winter of 1864, as a spy.

As I remember, Dodd was a clerk for the sutler of the 48th Ill., and used his position to get data regarding the location of the various batteries, cavalry and infantry there at Little Rock. Having collected this information he obtained a pass to go outside our lines, and on the road to Benton he met a squad of cavalry coming in. One of them looked at Dodd rather hard and he changed color. After the squad passed Dodd this man went to the officer in command and told him that Dodd was not straight, giving his reasons for his doubts. The officer was sufficiently impressed by this to turn the squad around for the purpose of overtaking Dodd, and when they came up with him found the tell-tale plans and plats in his shoes. Dodd was taken to Little Rock, court-martialed, found guilty as a spy, and sentenced to be hung. I well remember the efforts of the rebel authorities to save the young man, who was connected with some of the best families of Arkansas and Texas. Their efforts proved unavailing, however, and Dodd was hung on the large vacant lot in front of St. John's College. The scaffold was a temporary affair, and Dodd was brave to a fault, riding up to the scaffold seated on his coffin. When the drop came, the rope was a little too long, the unfortunate man's toes touching the ground, and the sergeant in charge was forced to climb on the scaffold and, winding the rope around his arm, raised the dying man from the ground. The scene is perfectly clear to me today, as I was seated on my horse not more than 50 feet away directly in front of the scaffold. I was sincerely sorry for the young man, and no doubt was not alone in that feeling, as Dodd was a handsome young fellow and went to his death so bravely. But he deliberately exposed himself to the chances of the dangerous vocation of a spy to serve what he thought his country's good, and the stern rules of war took a life that should have served a better cause.—Henry Emerich, Co. A, 13th Ill. Cav., Galesburg, Ill.

Aged Woman Has a Very Rough Experience on a Visit to Port Huron.

WIVES WHO DO SOME KICKING

Seem to Have Good Cause for it, Too.—Much Excitement Wasted.—Items.

Port Huron, Mich., Aug. 6.—A woman of about 60 years, giving her name as Mrs. Elmira Warner and her address as 404 Sixth street, Detroit, was found lying unconscious in a gully here. Starting to walk from St. Clair to a friend's house in the city, Mrs. Warner stumbled over the high embankment at the Rapid railway bridge at Bunce creek and rolled into the deep and brushy gully, which is half filled with water. The woman lay in the brush heap during the night and was unconscious from injuries and exposure when found in the morning. She has a broken collar bone and is thought to be injured internally.

Her Bathing Suit a Dream.

Port Huron, Mich., Aug. 6.—Angry, it is alleged, because their husbands preferred teaching the waitresses at the hotel to swim to bathing with them, a number of women guests at a resort on Huron lake have lodged a complaint with the manager, asking that the girls be kept from the lake. "I have a bathing suit which is a dream," said one irate guest to the helpless manager. "And yet my husband and every other woman's husband about this resort seems to prefer the company of your waitresses when they come down to swim. You must make them stop or we shall leave your hotel for one where they are more considerate."

Enough to Go Round, Perhaps.

Port Huron, Mich., Aug. 6.—There are something like 600 other heirs to the New York estate in which Hiram Stoutenburgh, of this city, hopes to share. The property lies at the corner of Broadway and Pine street, and is worth millions. Stoutenburgh says the property descended to him and relatives through Dutch ancestors and is preparing to take his claims into the courts.

Says He Will Not First.

Port Huron, Mich., Aug. 6.—James A. Cox is under arrest for contempt of court and must remain in jail until he pays to his wife, who recently secured a divorce from him, $79.50 in alimony. "I'll rot here before I will pay her that alimony."

MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING

Intense Excitement Caused by a Dog Running Away with an Anatomical Specimen.

Dowagiac, Mich., Aug. 6.—A dog was discovered in the principal residence district of the town carrying a human leg in his jaws. People gathered about and the police were telephoned for. To whom did the foot belong? Had there been a murder committed? Reports spread rapidly and soon the story was that the rest of the body was beneath a barn. The excitement was intense. Just then a boy neighbor of Dr. Rix ventured the information that the foot was a specimen and belonged to the doctor.

The people began to breathe again. Some who were so sure that a foul odor came from beneath the barn began to question their olfactory organs. And the doctor was hunted up and an explanation obtained. Thirty-five or forty years ago the doctor prepared this specimen with arsenic and so filled the muscles that they were as hard as the bone itself. Several days ago he was cleaning out a shed and ran across this specimen. Unthinkingly he set it out upon a box with the above result.
