APPLE GROWERS TO SPEND MILLIONS

REALIZE IMPORTANCE OF MAKING APPLE AS POPULAR AS CITRUS CROP; BIG CAMPAIGN PLANNED

The completion of the nationwide approval of the leading apple sections for the four-year $4,000,000 National Apple Advertising Campaign has just been announced by the national association, Apples for Health, Inc., with headquarters at Chicago. The Northwest apple states of Washington, Oregon and Idaho which represent 50 per cent of the national apple crop, recently held a series of meetings in the leading apple growing centers where the national apple advertising plans were explained by Paul Stark, President of Apples for Health Inc. The unanimous endorsement of all these meetings attended by leading growers, shippers and railroad representatives was followed by an All-Northwest Conference at Spokane to which each important section of the Northwest sent representative growers and shippers.

and will undoubtedly, through increased consumption, bring apple back to its former height of popularity thus assuring for the growers, a fair, annual return for their efforts and investment.

The apple interests throughout the country now realize that they must join forces to put the apple on a permanently prosperous basis by national advertising and merchandising in the same way that the other leading fruit and food interests have done. A nationally known advertising company which is responsible for the successful "Say it With Flowers" campaign that doubled the florists' business in five years, has lined up this splendid national advertising campaign for the apple industry. In addition to directing the advertising campaign of various national associations this company has also handled, at their own expense, the fund raising of these numerous national association campaigns and have raised from two to four million dollars each. What they have so successfully done for these other national industries they can also do for the apple industry.

PLOWING CONTEST OPEN TO FARMERS

BERRIEN COUNTY MEN ARE ELIGIBLE FOR RACE ON AUGUST 4 AT M. S. C.

Farmers of Berrien county will have an opportunity to compete in a plowing contest on "Farmer's Day" at Michigan State College to be held in Lansing on August 4. A championship team of pure bred horses by the college will be driven by the contestants.

The contest will be divided into three classes: two horse walking plow, four horse gang plow, and tractor gang plow. The contest will be judged on knowledge and skill in making preliminary adjustments of plows, and on the quality of plowing.

The international grand champion Percheron mare, Maple Grove Lella, and the reserve champion Percheron mare, Dunham's Marie will make up the team that is probably best known to these who have knowledge of the prize winning horses owned at East Lansing.

All Michigan farmers will be eligible to compete in the contest. Entries may be made by applying to George Getman, of the M. S. C. agricultural engineering department. Applications will be received until 9:30 of the morning of the contest.

Entries are also coming in for the town and country church choir singing contest, and competition is expected to be keen in this event. The Grange baseball tournament finals, to be played off during the day, are included in the entertainment program.

The afternoon open air meeting will draw a brilliant speaking program this year, the fact that Farmers Day comes during the big Country Life Week at the college making international men available.

Two new stunts to be added to the Farmers Day entertainment program this year will be a horse shoe pitching contest and a milk can throwing contests. Coach Ralph Young, Athletic Director, will be in charge of these two contests.

The afternoon open air meeting will draw a brilliant speaking program this year, the fact that Farmers Day comes during the big Country Life Week at the college making international men available.

Watermelon Rind Preserves

They're as delicious as they're thrifty, these old-fashioned preserves made from the rinds of watermelons. It's so easy to put up a few jars whenever you have the rinds on hand and they're the most inexpensive of preserves because you buy nothing extra but the sugar and spice. With a good gas range the work is easy and quick.

Watermelon Rind Preserves

3 1/2 pounds watermelon rinds | 1 1/2 pounds brown sugar
1 1/2 cups vinegar | 1/2 ounce cinnamon
1/2 ounce whole cloves

Pare off the green skin and the pink meat, leaving just the white rind; cut in two-inch lengths. Set over night in salt water, using two tablespoons of salt to each quart of water. Rinse, put in a kettle, cover with boiling water, cook till soft. Drain and then weigh the three and a half pounds of rind and cook with vinegar, sugar, cinnamon and cloves. Bring slowly to a boiling point and let simmer for two hours and a half. Pack in sterilized jars, add syrup till it runs over the top and seal at once.

For variation, add blanched almonds to make a delicious conserve. Or use little red cinnamon candies to give a clear watermelon-pink coloring.

COOPERATION

It is not new roads, or bigger buildings, or more residents that Buchanan needs, but greater cooperation between the buying public and the merchants of the town, says Al Charles, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

After all doesn't the lack of cooperation come from thoughtlessness more than from any other one thing? We jump in our cars for a ride here, there and everywhere and on our way everywhere we see "great bargains for today only." We buy often without knowing why. We come home tired from the long ride and waiting on hot pavements. We are like the two characters in Materlinck's great allegory who found the very thing they had been searching for at es and going through great hardships, their very door after traveling long distance.

There are probably many citizens who have never even been inside of the home town stores; and many who have only done so when they have to. Go once in the spirit of fair-mindedness and actually compare what town men have on their counters with value you have seen elsewhere. Look over your home town stores and then go elsewhere if you must. Cooperate. Better building and more residents and all the other improvements will follow.

FLOOD RELIEF URGENT

How the Government's resources and what power should be having assistance in view of the future. What assurance has any one responsible for protection of citizens, that there will be no flood next spring—even more destructive than that which has just passed?

If we wait for flood relief in the regular session of Congress which does not convene until December—when will actual effective work begin—and can it be completed in time to assure absolute protection?

Politics or what not—we think a serious mistake has been made in not calling Congress into immediate session—with flood relief the lone job on the calendar.

This very week Congress should be hearing Mississippi valley interests, engineers, farmers, bankers and experts of all kind—devising legislation for immediate relief. Had such action been taken—there would have now been available large funds to reconstruct buildings, roads and schools; funds to replace lost animals and farm equipment—and to plant short crops yet this year.

Even yet—if politics can be forgotten for a few moments—the government can find no work so important—or to which it is more obligated—than getting busy on Mississippi relief.

If an invading army devastated 600,000 American homes—and might return again next spring—do you think the people will let the government sleep? That's what the Mississippi flood water was doing less than a month ago.

FORESIGHT AND HIGHWAYS

Our highway problem of today is not so much one of mileage as of width. There are good sectional, intersectional and trans-continental roads, but those roads are not wide enough for the rapidly multiplying traffic. We have been building hard surface roads for decades, but now that we have them they are found to be inadequate for present-day traffic. The result is that we still have a national highway problem hardly less serious than when we were a country of dirt roads.

We can be charged with lack of foresight but even now, when the need of wider highways is recognized, we continue to build new roads of obsolete widths. Where the facts are known there can be no foresight lacking.

The real reason we have not built and are not building wider thoroughfares is that appropriations for the purpose have been limited and we have sought mileage rather than the fulfillment of future needs. It is natural for each generation to take care of itself before it thinks of the next generation. Our need was for hard surface roads regardless of width. It is now one for wider roads.

A precedent is found in the former conflict between temporary improved highways and permanent surfaces. More miles of the temporary surfaces than of the permanent roads could be constructed for the same money, but after a year or two the temporary road had to be rebuilt in its "faster" improved mileage. The latter is stipulated its common wealth in the destruction of the temporary highways until it learned, at great expense, that the permanent road was the cheapest in the end.

The public may eventually learn that it would be better to build a few miles of broad highway than many miles of narrow road which must be widened later at greater expense.

DEAD ISSUES

All churches are sustaining losses in members, says H. K. Carroll, church statistician recently. He says denominations are discovering but are not yet fully awake to the appalling extent to which their losses are tending. Collections have also diminished, he says. He lays the blame for the most part on the absence of the old time revival.

At the same time another minister in the Methodist church says, "It looks as if we might fling our differences away and move like a mighty army."

Nobody knows or cares much about the subjects which separated the Methodist from the Presbyterian, or which otherwise were the original issues which denominations were founded. The fences which divide religious people are almost all made of dead timber.

If anyone were to go into a Presbyterian, a Methodist, or a Congregational church at present he could not tell in what conventicle he was worshipping. Almost all preachers emphasize the same doctrines and stress the same morals. There is no considerable difference in the actual gospel preached in one denomination from that preached in another.

Denominations continue largely for other reasons than doctrinal. It is mostly a matter of machinery.

It is much easier to start a sect than it is to stop it.

Our only hope is that as time goes on sectarianism will pass and there will be brought about some kind of workable unity among all the denominations, for they are all striving for the same goal in very much the same way.

All the denominations amount to anyhow is that a man who joins one is in Section B, Pigeonhole A, or Regiment Five and Company Three.

Just why one should be in one company rather than another it is pretty difficult for the average modern man to say.

The old-time revival and denomination-ism are both dead issues.

BE CIVILIZED

Are you civilized? Be careful now before answering, because there is a gauge by which you can judge yourself—and you may be surprised at the findings. Answer accurately—"How tolerant are you?"—and you will know to what degree you are civilized.

It has been aptly put by one writer that: "The measure of your tolerance is your distance from the jungle." Schooling and manners have nothing whatsoever to do with tolerance. These are only veneer. Many people never develop a sufficient degree of tolerance to qualify as civilized people. It is these who cause most of the trouble in the world. They crucify, they whip at the stake, they raid, they burn, they do not reason. Hate and brutality are their answers to logic.

"How may I know whether I am tolerant or not?" you may ask. Here are a few characteristics:

When a man says he will not argue, he usually means he will not listen. He has opinions and he delights to make them vocal. But when he has told his side of the story, nothing remains to be said. He construes the "argue." He begins with the assumption that any opinion that fails to agree with his is silly.

The world is full of such people. Good listeners are rare. People who will listen to the other side are rarer still. As a fact, too many of us are more or less ignorant, narrow-minded and intolerant. Young people, especially those with good minds, are intolerant of their opinions. Old people who have good minds usually have been mellowed and made tolerant with the passing years.

Be a good listener. Cultivate the open mind. Be civilized.

Times haven't changed so much—or rather human nature is the same. Fifty years ago this month a citizen was paying court costs of $2,000 to settle up a water bill of $7.50. This week, in order to prove the right to an $8-brooder, a woman has expended over $200 in court fees.

Someone has said that the Sunday school picnic is a thing of the past along with horses and buggies and hoop skirts. If only this fellow could see Kathryn park nowadays.

Wonder what became of the old-fashioned tintype wagon of our boyhood days? Did you see the velocipedes the kids are strutting on Front street now?

Golf, tournaments, picnics and motoring parties formed the principle means of amusements for society this week in the village. The greens at Orchard Hills have especially been drawing the women with the crest of their high tide coming on Tuesday perhaps with the Ladies Invitational Tournament. Fine weather and perfect greens have made this week ideal for the Orchard Hills clubwomen.

Many Sunday school picnics and other groups are selecting this week for the annual events. In addition to the Evangelical and Methodist groups of Sunday school scholars, the Odd Fellows of Berrien county have selected Sunday for their association picnic day. They will meet at Indian Fields Park at Berrien Springs. The usual round of games and picnic supper will be indulged in by all three groups.

Two years ago he suffered a stroke and has been practically helpless ever since.

MAX SPRAGUE
Max Eugene Sprague was born at Dowagiac July 30th, 1907, and departed this life at Galien, Mich., July 12th, 1927, aged nineteen years eleven months and twelve days. In his early years Max was not a strong and robust child and was therefore the recipient of many aches and pains which must have developed in him great sympathy for the sick, because this virtue was graciously manifested in him after he had outgrown his infirmities and it became one of the noble principles of his character.

Max began his public education at the Franklin school, Berrien township and it was continued in the public schools of Galien township the last two and a half years of which were spent in the Galien High School.

Then for a few years he turned from school work to life school but his thirst for knowledge and ability soon drew him back to the halls of learning and this the last year of his life was spent in the South Bend Business College.

Max was a student possessed of rare ability, which was not recognized by many of his instructors. But those teachers who discovered his abilities and good qualities and did much to associate them with his thoughts and activities where those who took a special interest in him.

To class-mates and associates he fulfilled to the letter the Scriptural truth, "Ye that have friends must be friendly."

He leaves his father and mother, two sisters, three aunts, five uncles, and more than a score of cousins and many class-mates and a large circle of friends to mourn their loss.

The funeral services were held at the Olive Branch church conducted by Rev. E. P. Brant. The interment was made at the Galien cemetery.
