Berrien County Record

SIXTY-FIRST YEAR

BUCHANAN, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY, SEPT. 13, 1928.

NUMBER 36.

Now Here's the Proposition

THE HAPPY REPORTER

Hi Haws

Throughout this vale of wrath and gloom
I wander careless as a bird,
While mad subscribers 'round me fume
For scrambled names and mis-spell word.

For Mrs. M. T. Head is sore
Because I wrote her N. Y. Z.
And P. M. Smith lets out a roar
Because I called him F. O. B.

And someone else would break my bones
And pierce my gizzard through and through,
Because I called him N. G. Jones.
When he is really P. D. Q.

My ears are deaf to praise or blame
I listen to the wind unmoved.
For I have yet to find a name
I could not in some way improve.

When some guy's name escapes
my mind,
I name him over there and then;
And when another chance I find,
I call him something else again.

I never listen to his bark.
For he, by any other name,
As William Shakespeare once remarked,
Would probably smell about the same.

He calls me names that are not nice.
But do not mean a thing to me—
There is a place that grows no ice
Where he can go, R. S. V. P.

Mrs. Black was a native of Bu-

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Stephens of Toledo, O. All three couples

Mr. and Mrs. Black left here about ten years ago. She is survived by her husband, and by the following children: Mrs. Louise

CANNOT MISS BUCHANAN

Act of Legislature Would Be Necessary to Avoid
This Point

Work on the preliminary survey of M-60 route from Galien to Niles, was resumed Monday after a week's interruption by the state highway department crew in charge of Chief of Survey Payne.

The preliminary line has been determined to a point east of Dayton Lake, and will roughly pursue the following route, according to Chief Payne: directly east along the stone road which is a continuation of the recently completed
M-60 construction from Three Oaks to a point south of Galien, until that road turns south, when the route follows the section line until it arrives within 50 feet of the Michigan Central railway, from which point it will parallel that right-of-way as far as is practicable clear to Niles, making a slight deviation at the Dayton Lake crossing. At the point where the preliminary line crosses Dayton Lake, that body is about 300 feet wide and averages between 7 and 8 feet deep with several feet more of mud.

The route will pass through Buchanan on some street which will be determined on after consulting the desires of the town, the only

Steve Prentoski of Bakertown, was

The fastest time ever made by Hollywood was 2:12 1/4, made at Kankakee in 1912 when she was a

Shakes, and Artwood, sorrel gelding from Omar, Ill.

The twelve room farm home of
Ed Brackett, 2 1/2 miles southeast of New Troy was totally destroyed
by fire starting from a mysterious cause about 3 a. m., Monday, September 10, the family having barely time to escape when the flames were discovered.

The occupants were awakened by the cracking of the glass, and found the room full of smoke.
They fled to the north side of the house, where the flames had not yet gained access, and where the telephone was located, calling a number of the neighbors. The fire gained such rapid headway that it was impossible to save anything.

It is surmised that the fire started in the roof, although the family claim that they had had only a small fire in the kitchen stove at supper time the previous evening.

The house was modern in type, containing 12 rooms, and was valued at $7,000. It was partially covered by insurance.

Two Milk Cows and One Horse Are Roasted
in Flames

BOLT IGNITES STRAW

Timbers Were Hewn From Virgin Forest 30
Years Ago

Fire starting from a bolt of lightning destroyed the barn on the Clayton Strauss farm five miles northwest of Buchanan Tuesday morning, together with a horse, two milk cows, 13 head of poultry, and farm machinery, with a total loss approximating $3,200, partially covered by insurance.

The bolt which destroyed the barn was witnessed by neighbors and was said to be of terrific violence, enveloping the structure in a great ball of flame. It struck the west end of the structure, hurled pieces of board and shingles 150 feet away, and immediately setting fire to the tons of straw stored in the mow, which hastened the progress of the flames.

Strauss was employed on the night shift of the foundry at the Clark Equipment Company, plant and did not know of the disaster until he was almost home at 6 a. m.

Mrs. Strauss heard the bolt and, suspecting disaster, she rushed to the barn in her night clothing, hoping to save some of the stock.
She found the building enveloped in flames and was unable to get within 50 feet of it. Bert Mitchell saw the start of the fire and hurried across a quarter of a mile but was unable to do anything. A grain drill belonging to him which was stored in the barn was lost, as was also a new plow and disc which Strauss had just purchased.

Strauss had also stored 2,000 feet of new lumber and 4,000 cedar shingles in the barn, with the intention of repairing "his" house. All this material was lost.

The structure was 30 x 40 feet in dimension, with a stone basement for stock and a large mow above, the posts for the sides of which were 20 feet high. It was built 30 years ago, Frank Conrad of Buchanan cutting the timbers from the virgin forest and hewing out the beech, maple and whiteoak dimension stuff by hand. It was still in perfect condition.

The twelve room farm home of
Ed Brackett, 2 1/2 miles southeast
of New Troy was totally destroyed
by fire starting from a mysterious cause about 3 a. m., Mon-

LAPORTE MAN PLANS TO EXHUME RELICS IN INDIAN GRAVES

Interest in the Indian lore of the Moccasin Hill region north of Buchanan has been stimulated recently by the activities of the Kelsey school, where the pupils are engaging in a contest for the best collection of beads, arrow heads, and other mementoes, for a prize which is being offered by Miss Grace Letcher, the teacher.

A large number of arrowheads, tomahawks, spear heads, and other relics have been found in that vicinity, which was a favorite resort of the Indians and the site of a famous Indian village. An attempt is being made to trace the old Indian trail which led down the creek past the "Paul Wynne home and eastward along the St.
Joe River.

This region was visited recently by J. A. Frances of LaPorte, Ind., who offered to buy choice relics, and who arranged to return later to excavate in several Indian graves known to exist there.

BARODAYOUTH IS KILLED IN AUTO MISHAP

Frank Sedlacek Loses Life
When Motorcycle Is Hit By Truck

LIVES ONLY 45 MINUTES

Frank Sedlacek, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sedlacek of Baroda, died Monday in a Twin City hospital as the result of injuries received when the motorcycle he was riding crashed into a truck driven by Harvey Burandt of Cleveland Avenue, south of St.
Joseph. Burandt had turned to the left to pass another machine.
He and his companion, Andrew Deja, were held in the county jail pending an inquest.

Sedlacek was hurled 25 feet into the air. His body came down on a mail box.

He was rushed to Mercy hospital where an examination by Drs.
A. L. West and J. C. B. revealed a fractured skull, a broken hip, a broken ankle and five fractured ribs. He died 45 minutes after the accident.

SUMMER SEASON
COMES TO CLOSE
AT CLEAR LAKE

C. H. FULLER STARTS CON-STRUCTION OF NEW HOUSE

The 1928 season at the Buchanan Columbian Beach Camping Ground, on the east side of Clear Lake closed last week, after one of the most successful summers ever experienced there, according to C. H. (Pete) Fuller, who celebrated the close of the year's business by wrecking his own cottage, in preparation for beginning the erection of a new bungalow.

The Fuller cottage was the second oldest at the resort, having been built 35 years ago. It will be replaced by a modern six room bungalow, 42 x 26 in dimension.
Bradley Brothers of Buchanan have the contract.

Another transaction of interest was the purchase by James Mc-Donald, Oak Park business man, of the previous to 20 years ago with two lots, from Eiler & Bal-win, holders of the former Colvin estate. Mr. McDonald and his family left for Oak Park Sunday after spending three weeks in the cottage.

A visitor at the resort last week was Mr. Becker of the Becker & Ryan chain stores of South Chicago, who returned for the first time in 20 years. Mr. Becker was a patron of the hotel for several years previous to 20 years ago when he was a young man.

At that time he was accustomed to bringing two small children with him. Last week the same children came with him, now grown and with children of their own. Mr. Becker reported very many changes since his last visit when there were only five cottages.

Only three cottages are now occupied, those of William Anderson, Chicago, varnish manufacturer, James Rubel, in which Fullers are living while their new cottage is being built, and the cottage occupied by Messrs. Goldie
Smith, Phil Kading, Eng Merson and Marshall Dreitzler, who are considering staying there all winter.

Rubel has recently completed several improvements to his cottage, including a glassed in porch and fire place.

After the completion of his cottage, Fuller will leave for his winter home in Florida.

Mitchell Works
Fast; Now Its Up
To Business Men

We'll have to hand it to Chief Mitchell for being a fast worker.
At 7 a. m. Friday morning he had a man at work gathering up the broken glass and nails in the city parking ground, and at noon reported at the Record office that we might announce to the business men that one more alibi had been disposed of.

He stated further that in case any of the business men owning adjoining premises wished to clean up the tin cans, the town would take no steps to interfere.

The Old Timers' Corner

The Old Timer Takes a Sentimental Stroll Under the Front Street Maples

A letter received today from "ye editor" of the Buchanan Record, encouraged us to go on, and talk some more about old times in old Buchanan. He tells me that he overheard a couple of my old friends talking over "Old Timers' Corner," on the street, and that one avowed that "Old Timer" usually hit the nail on the head, all right. The other said, "yes, but sometimes he don't quite hit the mark," and then the argument was "on." That is as it should be for we were not born with universal brains, and cannot hope to please every one. That's why one may usually pick but one wife, with whom to live and quarrel and be happy.

It reminds us of an old story of a rather ignorant Irishman who was in court as a witness in a neighborhood squabble of some sort, and he was asked by the attorney what he could say, as a neighbor, as to the "veracity" of the party being tried. Now Pat being a good neighbor and not wanting to make any mistakes, and at the same time not knowing exactly what it was that they wanted to know, thought he would play safe, and so he answered, "Well, now, your honor, as to telling some say she do and some say she don't."

So it is with Old Timers' Corner, some will put the O. K. on it and say it is a pleasant stroll thru the old times, with its little lights and shades, and some will find flaws in it, and I presume there will be plenty of them; at that. No matter, don't take it seriously, for this is not being written as part of American history to be put into use in the schools or anything like that. It is just a little pleasure, sent by one old timer with many others of his kind, and we have grown to an age when we KNOW that it doesn't pay to worry about things at all. Let them come and let them go. We cannot change things by kicking.

Did you notice how fresh and green the trees and lawns, etc., looked this morning? The last rains have washed all the dust off and they are beautiful. There is not a poem in existence that compares with the poetry and the beauty that is wrapped up in one of these wonderful old maples that shade Front Street. After you have been away for a long time and have worn your feet sore on cobble stones and pavements and feasted (?) your eyes on the brick and stone walls of the city, then you come back home and look at one of God's trees (as they grow in Buchanan) and you begin to think that you missed a lot by being gone so long. See how tall and strong they look and how generous they are with their shade. It's like walking thru a forest of big trees and things and you feel so small and so thankful that you are even allowed to be there and to feel their presence. They are company for us at all times. They seem to say that all is well and we are safe when we are near them.

There is a big Elm Tree in the lawn of Charles F. Pears, on Front street that is said to be the largest specimen of its particular kind in the world. Did you know that? No? I didn't either until I was told by one "Tree Doctor." It seems that some "Tree Doctor" was sent there to get pictures and measurements, etc., of it and he claimed that it was the largest one in the world. So that's something, all right. But as I remember the good old trees that used to be everywhere around Buchanan, I feel sad to know that they all or nearly all, have been cut away and that blank sunshine fills the spaces that used to be shady nooks and no more place for romancing, as in the times of yore.

Those big trees along our streets are still with us and every year they come out fresh and green and seem to know that we like them for they smile in the sun and in the storm and protect us from heat and bad weather. Then with the season, they turn from green to gold and then brown and sear and their millions of leaves fall and we know that another season is passing and that the energy is stored up in the roots of that tree for another season's life. Just like our own existence, only we take a life time to go thru the routine. We turn with age, but our work has been done, perhaps well, perhaps not so good, but DONE, and we will pass on. Trees are God's own way of expressing nature and ourselves to us. Sometimes I think that God IS nature, and nature is GOD. But that does not change the eternal fitness of things as far as we are concerned and we can live and love nature whether we call it nature or God.

Buchanan is blessed with an abundance of trees and that is what makes the traveling public, as they speed thru our town, remember that they have passed thru a beautiful little city. Our pavements are like those of many another town; our homes, while they are fine, are no better as a rule than those of other cities. But when they see that row of trees on Front street, even the "back-seat drivers" sit up and take notice of them and remark that it is so shady and restful there, and some of them will want to come again to enjoy them.

Do you suppose that the water from McCoy's Creek, which, of course, waters them as it does all of us in Buchanan, may have some effect on our maples and oaks and elms, etc., and make them broadcast the impression that all is well in Buchanan and that the strangers that pass are asked to come again? I wouldn't wonder if it did. Of course we know that to drink of Buchanan's water is an assurance that they will come again, and why not also stretch our imaginations and feel that our trees invite people thru the influence of their life giving water supply, also?

Speaking of trees, some of the little trees that I helped to set out in the door yard of my old home, are now great big spreading trees, and you would not imagine that in the life time of one human, they could go so far. Setting trees is like setting thoughts going. If you tell people what you think, and you think straight, you will set some one else who reads your thought, thinking straight, and that thought will grow and make others think straight. It may grow and become a greater thought like a greater tree, but nature will supply food and water to the good tree and the good deed or thought.

It is just a line of thinking that comes to me today, as an after-math of our Labor Day holiday. Next week we will perhaps not be in so serious a frame of mind. But today, we are thinking of the happiness that is ours to be able to live and love and be loved and to see these wonders of foliage along our streets, to know that they are wonders and to enjoy them as we should. Be with us next week and we will take a walk along McCoy Creek and other old places we knew so well.

Famous English Woman Wanted to Give Portage Prairie to Indians

From 1834 to 1836 Harriett Martineau, noted English essayist and novelist, traveled through the United States noting her impressions of this then rude and unsettled country, and lecturing in the cause of abolition. During that time she ventured into what was then the far west, traveling over the old Detroit-Chicago stage road and passing over Portage Prairie a few miles south of Buchanan, when that country was reserved to the Pottawatomie Indians.

After her return to England she published her impressions of America from which the following description of Niles and Portage Prairie are taken. It is interesting to note that had Miss Martineau's notions been followed, Portage Prairie would still be an Indian Reservation.

June 18, 1836: Our drive of 12 miles to White Pigeon Prairie for breakfast was very refreshing. The roads were the best we have traveled since we left New York state. We passed through a wilderness of flowers: trailing roses, enormous white convolvulus, scarlet lilies, and ground ivy, with many others. Milton must have traveled in Michigan before he wrote the garden parts of Paradise Lost.

Sturgis and White Pigeon Prairie are highly cultivated, and look just like any other rich and perfectly level land. We breakfasted at White Pigeon Prairie, and saw the rising ground where the Indian Chiefes buried, whose name was given to the place.

The charms of the settlement were, to us, a kind landlady, an admirable breakfast at which eggs abounded, and a blooming garden. Thirty-seven miles further brought us to Niles, where we arrived by five in the afternoon. The roads were so much improved that we did not have to walk at all; which was well, as there was much pelted rain during the day.

Niles is a thriving town on the river St. Joseph, on the borders of Pottawatomie territory. Three years ago it consisted of three houses. We could not learn the present number of inhabitants, probably because the number is never the same two days together.

A Pottawatomie village stands within a mile and we saw two Pottawatomie Indians on horseback fording the river very majestically and ascending the wooded hills on the other side. Many Indian women were about on the streets, one with a nose ring; some with plates of silver on the bosom and other barbaric ornaments.

Such a tremendous storm of thunder and lightning came on, with a deluge of rain, that we were prevented from seeing any of the place, except from out the windows. I had sent my boots to a cobbler over the way. He had to put on Indian rubbers which reached above the knee to bring his work home, the street was so flooded.

The prairie strawberries at breakfast this morning were so large, sweet and ripe that we were inclined for more in the course of the day. Many children of the settlers were dispersed near the road side with their baskets gathering strawberries; they would not sell any; they did not know what mother would say if they went home without any berries for father. But they could get enough for father yet, they were told, if they would sell us what they had already gathered. No, they did not want to sell. Our driver observed that money "was no object to them." I began to think that at last we had got to the end of the world; or rather, to the beginning of a newer and better.

(The distance traveled by the party in this day was 12 miles before breakfast to White Pigeon and then 37 miles to Niles).

June 19: No plan could be more cleverly and confidently laid out than ours was for this day's journey. We were to travel through the lands of the Pottawatomies and reach the shores of Lake Michigan at Michigan City in time for an early supper. We were to proceed on the morrow round the southern extremity of the lake, to reach Chicago, if possible, in one day. The plan was so far followed that we actually did leave Niles some time before six in the morning. Within three minutes it began to rain and continued, with but few short intervals all day.

We crossed the St. Joseph by a rope ferry, the ingenious management of which, when stage coaches had to be carried over, was a perpetual study to me. The effect of crossing a rapid river in a dark night by torchlight by a rope ferry is very striking; and not the less so for one's becoming familiarized with it, as the traveler does in the United States.

As we drove up the steep bank we found ourselves to be in the Indian territory. All was very wild, and the more so for the rain. There were many lodges in the glades with the red light of fires hanging around them. The few log huts looked drenched; the tree stems black in the wet; and the very wild flowers were dripping. The soil was sandy, so that the ugliest feature of a rainy day, the mud and puddles, were obviated.

The sand sucked up the rain so that we jumped from the carriage as often as a wild flower tempted us. The bride white convolvulus, nearly as large as my head, grew in trails all over the ground.

The poor helpless squalid Pottawatomies are sadly troubled by squatters. It seems hard enough that they should be restricted within narrow territory, so surrounded by whites that the game is sure to disappear and leave them stripped of their only resource. It is too hard that they should be encroached on by men who sit down without leave or title on lands that were not intended for sale.

I enjoyed hearing an occasional alarm among the settlers caused by some stirring among the Indians. I should like to see every squatter frightened away from Indian lands, however advantageous their squatting may be on lands which are unclaimed or whose owners can defend their own property. I was glad to hear today that a deputation of Pottawatomies had been sent to visit a distant warlike tribe in consequence of the importunities of squatters who wanted to buy the lands they had been living upon. The deputation returned painted and with other hostile signals and declared that the Pottawatomies did not intend to part with their lands.

We stopped for some milk this morning at the "location" of a squatter whose wife was milking as we passed. The gigantic personage, her husband, told us how anxious he was to pay for the land which repaid his tillage so well; but that his Indian neighbors would not sell. I hope by this time that he has had to remove and leave them the benefits of his house and fences. Such an establishment in the wild woods is the destruction of game, and of those who live upon it.

At breakfast we saw a fine specimen of a settler's family. We had observed the prosperity and cheerfulness of the settlers all along the way, but this family exceeded the rest. I never saw such an affectionate set of people. They like many of the others, were from one of the southern states; and I was not surprised to find all settlers from North and South Carolina well satisfied with the change they had made. The old lady seemed to enjoy her pipe, and there was much merriment going on between the beautiful daughter and all the other men and maidens. They gave us an excellent breakfast in one of the two lower rooms; the table being placed across the foot of the two beds. No pains were spared by them to save us from the wet of the stage, but the rain was too pelted and penetrating for any defense to prevail long. It streamed in at all corners and we gave the matter up for the day.

We were now entering Indiana and one of our intentions had been to see the celebrated Door Prairie, so called from exquisite views to it being opened through intervals in the growth of wood with which it is belted. I did obtain something like an idea of it through the pelted rain, and though it was the first prairie I had seen that answered my idea of one. But I dare say we formed no conception of what it must be in sunshine with the shadows of clouds which adorn a prairie as they do still water.

requirement being that the highway must be south of the railway. According to the act under which the road is being constructed and maintained, the route must touch Buchanan at some point, according to a statement issued last week by the state highway department itself.
As the act stands at present, an amendment by the state legislature would be necessary to leave Buchanan on one side, according to highway officials.
The crew is planting grade stakes at intervals of 100 feet or less where there are precipitate grade variations. Great precision is required by the highway department who permit of .02 of a foot or about an eighth of an inch error per 1,000 feet. Altitudes relative to the point of beginning at Gallen are established every 100 feet and are determined 50 feet on each side of those points.

The profile maps will be constructed in the office of the department at Lansing from the note book data which is submitted by the engineers.

Earned His Nickname
The Bobbin Boy was a nickname given to Nathaniel Prentiss Banks of Massachusetts, at one time its governor and for many years a member of congress. He was speaker of the house of representatives for a session, being chosen on the one hundred thirty-third ballot. In his youth he learned the trade of a machinist and worked in a factory; hence the nickname.

Berrien County

Road Commission

Plans 1929 Work

The Berrien county road commission and its advisory board of county supervisors will start next week on their annual survey of roads proposed for improvement in 1929.

Several trips will be made in various parts of the county before the board draws up recommendations for the 1929 program.

It was indicated today that next year's building schedule will be light.

The entire five mill tax to be levied will be used in retiring bonds which come due next spring instead of refunding the bonds. Nearly half a million dollars of bonds will be paid off.

Each year's building program is gauged so that every year the amount of bonds which come due will not exceed the five mill tax limit available for road taxes.

The county's share of the gas tax money is used for maintenance.

Next November there comes due $36,000 worth of bonds. The board has the money on hand to pay these.

The 1929 building program will be made up just prior to the October session of the board of county supervisors who pass upon the recommendations of the road board.

Civic Crown High Honor

A civic crown was merely a wreath of oak leaves with pendant acorns, and was one of the most highly valued honors a Roman could attain. It was given for saving the life of a citizen in battle, at the same time killing the opponent and maintaining the ground upon which the fight took place. One to whom it was given had a right to wear it always.

New Officers of Troop 41 Named At Monday Meet

Twenty-five Boy Scouts and officers of Troop 41 held their weekly meeting at the Methodist Church Tuesday evening, all being present except three of the Scouts. To open the new season of scouting, the meeting was opened with the introduction of "a new spirit of scouting," which was followed by a lively game of "Three Deep."

Scoutmaster Kenneth Blake named the new officers. Ernest Bendic was made leader of the Flying Eagle patrol, Oscar Virgil was raised to the leadership of the Fox patrol; the Hawk Patrol retains Ward Mitchell as leader and the Beavers keep John Strayer. Each leader will appoint his own assistant, and each patrol is to be filled to the maximum number of eight.

Lytle Mitchell is to be advanced from Senior patrol leader to Junior assistant Scoutmaster. Robert Denney, former Flying Eagle patrol leader, is made Senior Patrol leader. Donald Wood, scribe, will be moved up to an assistant Scoutmastership at the next court of honor, September 24, and will continue to do the work of the scribe until another is found.

The Scouts indulged in three kinds of wrestling after the naming of officers, Indian, hand and leg wrestling testing their quickness of eye and hand and foot, with other games.

After the ice cream and cake were eaten, a relay was run off and the losers washed the dishes, while the winners played, after

Merely Imaginary "Port"

Meredith Nicholson, the author, says that he coined the title "The Port of Missing Men" for his book published in 1927. Some time later a real estate promoter in Connecticut started a tea house in the tract he was dividing into parcels to sell and called the place, the Port of Missing Men. This place has nothing to do with the location of the story, in which the imaginary port was in the Virginia hills.

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Man walks in the direction towards which he looks, and toward his treasure is, there will his heart be also. If our hopes and affections are spiritual, they come from above, not from beneath, and they bear as of old the fruits of the Spirit" (p. 451).

SOME HORSE RACE!

New York, Sept. 13.—Vincent Scanni, 18, and Peter Cangena, 19, decided suddenly to celebrate with an old-fashioned horse race.

The lads rented horses from a livery stable and soon the residents of a staid Brooklyn street were astonished to see two horses galloping at full tilt, "jockeying" riding them. Never had such a thing been seen before on a crowded city street.

The boys were fined $5 each, on the strength of an old ordinance forbidding horse racing on city streets. They were caught by a policeman who dashed after the horses and men in a modern taxicab.

DOCTORS TRAIN FOR COOKING DEGREE

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 13.—Dr. George A. Harrop, Jr., has introduced a cooking course in the medical college of Johns Hopkins University.

A good doctor should be a good cook, is the belief of Dr. Harrop. He believes medical students should know how food should be prepared to make it digestible, how it increases or diminishes in quantity while being cooked, and what combinations of dishes should be served for a meal.

Worst Time for Storms

More storms occur at 5 p. m. than at any other hour of the day. Statistics gathered by the weather bureau at Kansas City during the period of 1906 to 1925 inclusive show that in that time 91 storms occurred at 5 p. m., says Nation's business. This was more than at any other time. The hours next in number were: 3 a. m., 84; 7 p. m., 83; 9 p. m., 78; 4 a. m., 76; and 10 p. m., 69. At noon, 29 storms occurred; at 8 a. m., 31, and at 9 a. m., 24.

FARM CLINIC WILL BE HELD WED. AT H. S.

Lyman Peck, Noted Chicago Veterinarian, To Be
Chief Speaker

HELD SECOND YEAR

Farmers of this section, and all who are interested in farm problems, are invited to attend a free Farm Clinic to be held in the demonstration room at the high school building, Wednesday evening, Sept. 19, under the auspices of the Kennedy Poultry Feed Store.

The clinic is held for the purpose of stimulating interest in the breeding, feeding, and care of live stock, with reference to poultry. It will be in charge of Dr. Lyman Peck of Chicago, one of the best known veterinarians of the middle west and a speaker with considerable entertaining powers.

Negotiations are now under way to engage a corps of assistants to aid Dr. Peck in the demonstrations. The program will include the dissection of diseased poultry with a view to diagnosis, and instructions on the treatment of the ailments. Talks will also be made on the care of dairy cows.

The meeting will open at 7:30 p. m., with Supt. Stark and instructor Muir of the high school faculty assisting. This will be the second time that the clinic has been held here. Last year the meeting was attended by about 75 farmers.

York Leaves For Threshing Run in North Dakota

Oliver York, farmer and threshing machine operator, living south of Buchanan left last week for Watford City, N. D., to operate his large threshing machine in the wheat belt of that state. York has a section of land there planted to grain. He writes that the wheat yield is good there this year, save for streaks that were hailed out. There was no hail on his farm. He plans to be gone about a month.

Co. Agent Says Plant Wheat On September 22

Plowing for fall wheat is a main activity on the farms of the Buchanan district this week, farmers rushing operations with teams and tractors in an effort to get the ground in readiness by September 20, which is the date indicated by County Agent Lurkins as the earliest that wheat may be sown with assurance of safety from the Hessian fly.

The date favored by the county agent's office is September 22. Present indications are that the plantings in this district will be fully up to the average.

They are wearing rubber bathing suits at Deauville now. Probably a concession to the rubber-necks.

High Grain Yields Are Reported By Michigan Growers

Many Michigan Growers Produce
Excellent Crops of Small Grains

Old time tales of grain yields in Michigan do not sound so imposing when the list of winners in the production classes at the Michigan State Fair is examined.

Warner E. Ramsey, who placed first in the wheat production class, harvested 52.4 bushels of Berkeley Rock wheat to the acre, and his crop was computed to be worth $79.90 per acre. The late Ira H. Butterfield, long time friend of Michigan agriculture, sponsored the production classes at the State Fair.

Another high yield of wheat was 45.2 bushels of American Banner per acre, grown by J. H. Forrell, Charlotte, and other winners in the class were: John English, Breckenridge; Fritz Mantey, Fairgrove; M. E. Parmalee, Hilliards; Koscoe Peterson, Eaton Rapids; R. V. Beardslee, Owosso; and R. V. Tanner, Jackson.

A yield of 92 bushels of oats to the acre won first place in the oat class for Charles Heckroth, Caseville. Prizes in this class were also won by Alfred Grueber, Frankemuth; Ralph Collins, Mt. Pleasant; Verness Wheaton, Charlotte; Roy Wright, Butternut; Joseph Oocobock, Montague; E. N. Kurtz, Grand Blanc; W. R. Kirk and Sons, Fairgrove; Fritz Mantey, Fairgrove; and G. F. Phillips, Bellevue.

The high yield of barley, 62.5 bushels per acre, was grown from pedigreed Spartan seed by F. A. Lundy, Coleman. Second place in this class went to W. R. Kirk, Fairgrove, with a yield of 61.2 bushels. The other ribbon winners were: J. A. Thurman, Mt. Clemens; Ralph Collins, Mt. Pleasant; John English, Breckenridge; C. E. Shafley, St. Johns; Elmer Stockley, St. Johns; Fritz Mantey, Fairgrove; and J. H. Forrell, Charlotte.

Tall Corn Grows Taller; Breaks Its Own Record

Tall corn growers keep on tapping, tapping, tapping at our door. With the sky the limit, tall cornstalks keep on growing. Correspondents and farmers keep the wires moaning with their reports of the tallest corn in different corn belt districts. They are coming in so fast that a new record is likely to be reported before this piece can be printed.

Following are the tall cornstalk records to date:

J. C. Bridgeford, Millersburg, Ill., heads the list with a stalk of corn that measures 17 feet 6 1/2 inches.

Harvey J. Sconce, Sidell, Ill., has stalks 17 feet from the ground to the tassel.

Cecil Stonebreaker, Kokomo, Ind., found a stalk in his field that measures 16 feet, 6 inches.

Mrs. Warren Matson, Granville, Ill., holds the record in her community with a stalk that measures 15 feet 10 inches.

William Goodman, Bondville, Ill., has a stalk that measured 14 feet 1 inch on August 10, a month ago.

And Iowa has not been heard from yet. Illinois and Indiana's corn stalks are growing taller each day.

RAINS HOLD UP ROAD BUILDING NEAR GLENDORA

COMPLETION OF MILE WILL PROVIDE FINE HIGHWAY
TO TWIN CITIES

Construction work by contract or Taylor of La Porte on the mile of stone road construction immediately north of the Wolverine Gardens on the Cleveland Avenue road from St. Joseph to New Carlisle is being held up this week on account of rain, with prospects of completion within three weeks any time the weather will permit of resumption.

The construction of this mile will afford the Buchanan district its best highway to the Twin Cities, as the road will be complete from the Glendora Road to St. Joseph, a distance of 16 miles in a straight north and south line. Adding the distance of 10 miles from Buchanan to the Wolverine Gardens, the aggregate distance to St. Joseph will be 26 miles. The uncompleted link between Glendora and Galien will probably be built next year.

William C. Durant offers $25,000 "for the best and most practical plan to make the eighteenth amendment effective." The best way would be to jail all the bootleggers and their customers, and then put all those who are left within one of the smaller states where they can be closely watched.

Naval Aviator Comes to Visit Mother at Glendora

Smith arrived here Saturday by automobile in company with his wife and baby for a visit at the home of his mother, Mrs. Norah Butler of Glendora. Smith enlisted first for a period of four years, and later for an additional two years. He is now on a 30 day leave, with a travelling allowance of five days.

Rev. H. Barnett Gets M. A.; Will Leave Glendora

Hubert Barnett, who has been serving for the past year as student pastor of the Hills Corners church, received his Master of Arts degree from the University of Chicago August 31, and will be transferred soon to Peoria, Ill.

Rev. Barnett has preached each Sunday at Hills Corners while attending the university through the week, but has managed to establish himself as a community leader during the period of his pastorate. He left Tuesday in company with his mother for a motor trip to Cincinnati, Ohio, and will not preach at Hills Corners Sunday. He will deliver his last sermon there September 22.

As to the talking movies, the companies that are advertising their first "sound" pictures may be making an idle boast!

GLENDORA MINT GROWERS HOLD 3 YEARS OIL

REFUSED $9.00 FOR 1926
CROP; NOW OFFERED
$3 PER POUND

Glendora mint growers are playing the watchful waiting game against a $3 market, with stores of oil from the harvests of 1926-1927, and 1928 in their warehouses part of which was held when $9 per pound was offered.

Growers who are in a financial position to hold their oil now state that $5 per pound is a minimum which can be considered a paying price. Buyers representing Todd of Dowagiac have bought most of the oil which has been released this year, at prices ranging from $2.75 to $3.00.

The Glendora mint fields yielded better than the portion of the district further south, about 50 per cent of a normal crop being reported, with yields running from 15 to 20 pounds per acre, as compared with from 20 to 40 pounds a year ago.

Meanwhile the growers are laying no plans for new acreage next year, and are making plans in which other crops will replace the mint as fast as it passes the production period.

Farm relief is still the most frequent subject of political discussion. It seems as if the nation's leaders are afraid to do anything about it, for fear the solution of the problem will leave them with nothing to talk about.

Fifty-two Gridiron Candidates

Respond to Bradfield's Call

The first call for football men was sent out Tuesday morning, September 4, and fifty-two boys reported at one o'clock Tuesday afternoon for the first practice of the 1928 season.

In the group that reported Tuesday were eleven letter men and around twenty second string men. Fred Marrs, veteran guard, is the only letter man who didn't return to school this fall. It seemed at first that Marrs' absence in the line would leave a weak spot, but the showing made by other candidates in the past few days shows that Marrs' place can be well filled. The line has lost another experienced man, John Irvin, who was unable to come out this year because of a job that he has in a local pharmacy.

Walter Pfingst, star quarterback two years ago, has returned to school and has been given complete charge of the second-string men. Coach Bradfield will handle the first team squad and will leave the new men in Pfingst's care.

The squad is improving daily and a number of freshmen are showing some real ability. All of the new men are staying out and are working as hard as the veterans. There has been only one injury so far, Don Wood, veteran tackle, having had the misfortune to break his collar bone.

Every one of the fifty boys out is fully equipped with a suit and Buchanan will have as well an equipped team this year as any team in this section.

The first game of the season is September 26 at Decatur. The following Saturday Otsego plays here and Galien and the Buchanan seconds play a preliminary.

Mrs. Pennell Entertains Faculty At Wayside Thurs.

With the advent of a new school year comes the initial faculty meeting, at which time, former members renew acquaintances and new teachers are introduced to the somewhat bewildering duties involved in the position of the erstwhile pedagogue.

The first week of school, particularly to the new instructor, in his attempt to plan lessons, conduct classes, and remember faces, seems most intricate; yet, new teachers found that the first week was full of pleasant surprises. One of these was the delightful invitation extended by Mrs. Pennell to her guests at a faculty party at "The Wayside" on Thursday evening.

Needless to say, we were most prompt with our acceptances, knowing the reputation for hospitality of our gracious hostess; and upon our arrival, learned that the aforesaid reputation was not without foundation. The sight of the blazing campfire, in readiness for a "weiner roast", and the table laden with all sorts of tempting dishes, would make the most ardent reducer abandon all thoughts of counting calories.

It was not long before the appetizing contents of the table had disappeared, completely; and we spent the rest of the evening, sitting around the fire, in a pleasantly informal manner, just getting acquainted. Upon leaving, we felt most grateful to Mrs. Pennell for the lovely evening, and due to her thoughtfulness in extending the invitation, we, who had arrived as strangers, went home, old friends.

BLUES WIN REVENGE IN SUNDAY GAME

Locals Bunch Hits and Plough Minot All Stars Under

TO PLAY THIRD GAME

With the encouragement of a better attendance to spur them on, the Blues walked through the defenses of the Minot All Stars Sunday afternoon for a total of eight runs to three for the visitors, thus securing a sweet revenge for previous drubbings at the hands of the Benton Harbor team.

Both Belt and Schmeigle allowed 11 hits each and struck out six men each, but the Blue moundsman was the more effective in the pinches, scattering the bingles secured by the opposition so that they were not converted into runs.

The game was featured by stellar fielding, a high point being the double play by Buysee and Bailey when the Blue center fielder caught a long drive by Dudas and shot it back to the short stop in time to catch Vance off the bag. This nipped an attempted rally by the All Stars in the ninth inning.

The All Stars won the first game on July 29 by a three to two score. A third and deciding game will be played here in a few weeks.

BOWLING TO OPEN HERE SATURDAY

Beginning at noon Saturday, the floor over the Record Printing office will again reverberate with the thunder of the balls and the crash of pins, signifying the resumption of the noble sport of pin bowling, in the Buchanan Bowling Club alleys, after an intermission of four months during the out-of-door recreation season.

Bowling got off to a fine start here last year, and it is expected that the sport will be even more popular this winter. Last winter the alleys had approximately 200 steady patrons, many of whom were just learning the game, and who will wish to benefit by their acquired prowess another season.

Gallen bowlers report that they will be back again in increased numbers. Special arrangements will be made for courtesies to ladies, to attract more of them to the alleys.

The alleys have been leveled and resurfaced during the summer to meet the requirements of the American Bowling Congress, which assures that records made here may be recognized by that official organization, if properly witnessed.

PRINCESS THEATRE

Three notable authors will have their outstanding writings produced during the next week at the Princess theatre. Helen Hunt Jackson's most famous love story, "Ramona," will be offered by Manager Homer P. Morley today and tomorrow; Zane Grey, who knows his West as no other writer, and is probably more widely read than any other writer of today, will be represented by his famous frontier and Indian story, "Drums of the Desert," on Saturday; and E. Phillips Oppenheim, master of mystery stories, will be represented Monday by "The Golden Web," a story of New York city.

Dolores Del Rio is the sweetheart of "Ramona." Her feminine lure exactly interprets the Spanish beauty of the golden days of early California. Lovers of literature will find the play more than usually satisfactory as an interpretation of a great piece of writing.

Warner Baxter proves surprisingly adequate as a factor in the Zane Grey story of the wrongs and fierce conflicts of the Indians with the early settlers, soldiers and "bad men," on Saturday. Lilian Rich is the heroine of Oppenheim's play of modern New York on Monday, in which men become entangled in the "Golden Web" of business.

Two other artistic successes come to the Princess within the week. The first is the Sunday matinee and evening offering of "Modern Mothers," with Douglas Fairbanks, jr. and Helene Chadwick as co-stars in a story of the stage involving young Doug, an aspiring playwright, who is dazzled by a famous actress and her unidentified daughter.

The other success is "Telling the World," a newspaper story, with the inimitable William Haines as the hero, who rescues his sweetheart, a stage beauty impersonated by Anita Page, from a Chinese overlord in the heart of the Orient, and incidentally scoops the world in a murder story and a war.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Newman of New York have named their new twin boys Alfred and Herbert. Evidently taking no chances on this election.

News Around New Troy

Ben Martendale has been nursing a sore hand all the week, that he hurt while working on the new school building.

The new residence which has been recently built for Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Berry is being finished this week by receiving several coats of paint.

Excavation has been started for the basement of the residence to be built for Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Englist on their new addition to New Troy.

The indifference manifested by the voters of Precinct No. 1 of Vicesaw township in regard to voting at the primaries was appalling, only 57 out of about 300 casting a vote.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Goodalline attended the funeral services of a brother of the former in Miles Thursday, at the St. Johns Evangelical church. The pastor of the church officiated.

Hugh Keen, professor of mathematics of a college in Nashville, Tenn., attended services at the M. E. church here Sunday. He was a dinner guest at the Ed. Barnhart home and also made calls on the Daniels family. Several years ago his parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Keen resided here and Hugh was a member of the church and Sunday school.

The service held here Sunday during the absence of the pastor was fine. A special instrumental selection was given by Ervin Pierson at the piano and Marion Conant with the clarinet, also a duet by Tom Soversky and son, Ralph, accompanied by the daughter, Miss Edna Stowe on the piano. These specialties were as ever, very much enjoyed.

Mrs. Alice Rood and daughter Helen are spending the week in Chicago. Miss Helen is enjoying a vacation from her work in the Marx-Marc factory.

The Glendora board of education at a meeting last evening decided because of the overcrowded condition of their school to send their 7th and 8th grades to New Troy. They will use their own buses for transportation for the grades. The high school students will ride on the New Troy bus which will run as usual.

Ben Martendale moved his household goods up north to Lake George, Clar. county, Saturday to his farm. He will store them there and return and work at Harbest during the fall weather or as long as work lasts there, boarding with his sister. He expects to spend the winter in his northern home hunting. His mother, Mrs. Amy Martendale, whom he has taken care of a number of years, was married to Norman Mane of Bridgman Thursday by Rev. H. O. Walton. They will reside in Bridgman where Mr. Mane has his home.

George Daniels was elected at the primaries as delegate to the republican county convention to be held in Buchanan October 12.

Ed. Goodalline has met with a loss the past few weeks. His dog, which was bitten by a dog supposed to be mad had to be killed. Before he was taken care of he bit one of his cows and in a week's time the cow became so wild it was placed in a box stall and it was said to have every appearance of having rabies. It became so violent it was killed the next day. His other cow began to show the same symptoms. The head of the first cow was sent to Ann Arbor and the veterinary received word back it was not the rabies but brain fever. The second cow was alive yet Sept. 9th, and a calf was showing the same symptoms. If the cow lived through the night they intended to kill it the next day. Mr. Goodalline bought the farm 3 miles southeast of New Troy about two years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Brodbeck and Mr. and Mrs. Alma Rokley spent the day Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wooley at their home in Coloma.

The Morley brothers are erecting a large warehouse near the grist mill in which to store their mill products which will be very convenient for them.

Quite a large number of our citizens attended the fair held at Three Oaks last week.

Charles Tindal and several friends from Tiffin, Ohio, were guests Tuesday of Mr. and Mrs. Will Tindal. Charlie is a cousin of Will. The party was on their way home from northern Michigan where they had been on a fishing trip. They were also callers at the Caroline Tindal home.

Mrs. C. A. Miller spent Friday in South Haven on business. Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Bauer and family spent Tuesday in the twin cities.

Jacob Johns, 54 years old, a very prominent resident of Baroda, died at his home at 4:30 p. m. Thursday after a two weeks illness.

Funeral services were held Sunday at the home with Rev. Fr. Joseph Lahey of St. Joseph Catholic church, officiating. Burial was in the Ruggles cemetery. Mr. Johns was born Feb. 27, 1874. He leaves his wife and one daughter, Mrs. Jacob Russell of St. Joseph, one brother, William, of Baroda, and three grandchildren.

The Baroda school has been redecorated and the grounds put in first class condition. In the interior of the building the wood work has been varnished, floors oiled and each room decorated in shades of cream and tan, carrying out a very pretty effect. The school board invites all parents of school children and other members of the community to inspect the improvements.

Henry Wright spent Saturday in the twin cities.

Mr. and Mrs. August Trapp have returned from Oklahoma where Mr. Trapp has been employed the past year in the oil region. He has returned to Michigan in very poor health. During his absence his farm two miles west of Baroda has been managed by Mr. Clarence Kollery who has resided there with his family and is still working the farm.

Stamina and speed proved by 30,000 MILES in 26,326 MINUTES

You can experience the thrill of driving a car identical with those which won this amazing victory over time and distance. For The President Eight roadsters and sedans which made the greatest record in the history of transportation were chosen at random from the Studebaker assembly line by A. A. A. officials.

At Atlantic City Speedway these four shining new President Eights, their motors sealed by the A. A. A., swung wide open into an ordeal such as no cars ever faced before. For 19 days and 18 nights the two roadsters averaged better than 68 miles per hour, the sedans 64.15 and 63.99 miles per hour! Any one of these four Studebaker Presidents might just as easily have been your new car. But for pure chance they would have been sent to some Studebaker dealer!

There's a new Studebaker President Eight sedan at (think of it!) $1685, waiting for you to command its power. SIXTH INSTALLMENT

WHAT HAPPENED BEFORE

Simon Judd, amateur detective, and William Dart, an undertaker, are visiting John Drane, eccentric man of wealth, at the Drane place. Suddenly the household is shocked to find that John Drane has been murdered. The dead man is first seen by Josie, the maid, then by Amy Drane and Simon Judd. The latter faints. Police officers call and investigations begin. Dr. Blessington is called, and after seeing the murdered John Drane, makes the astounding revelation to Amy Drane that her "uncle" is not a man but a woman.

Dr. Blessington discounts the theory of suicide, saying that Drane was definitely murdered. Dr. Blessington comments on the fact that all the servants in the household of Drane are sick, and that Drane has never discharged a servant for ill health. Dick Brennan, the detective, arrives to investigate the case.

Brennan questions the persons in the house, asking Amy if anyone had any reason to kill her "uncle."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"No; not a reason; not the slightest reason," Amy declared with absolute positiveness. "I can't even imagine why anyone should want to kill my uncle." "And as far as you know, there was no one in the house last night but your uncle, Mr. Judd here, Mr. Dart, and the servants," Brennan asked. "I know," he added, "that you can't say whether others may not have come in unknown to you."

Amy's eyes turned to Bob Carter.

"Yes, I was in the house last night," Carter said.

"About when, Carter?" Brennan asked.

"Late," Carter said. "After eleven and before twelve. Mr. Drane said he wanted to see me; he sent Norbert to tell me so yesterday afternoon—just before we went for the drive, you remember, Amy?" There was no hurry, Norbert said; either last night or today would do. I rather knew what he had on his mind. I had asked him if I could marry Amy, and he had put off answering me. So last night I happened to pass here and I saw lights in the library and I came in."

"Ring or knock or anything?"

"I went to the library door at that side of the house and knocked on the door, and Mr. Drane let me in," Bob said. "Mr. Dart was with him; no one else. I said good evening to Mr. Dart and Mr. Drane said we could go across the hall to the dining room for a few minutes, and we did. There's one thing I ought to tell you, I guess; just as we were going out Mr. Dart said, 'Now, remember what I told you, John; I don't approve.' It was something like that; he may have said 'I'm against it' or 'I won't have it.' I was rather excited, you see; what Mr. Drane was going to say meant such a lot to me."

"Naturally," agreed Brennan.

"Well?"

"That's about all," Carter said. "We went into the dining room and Mr. Drane talked to me awhile. It was mostly about my prospects and what I was planning to do with my life and whether I would be willing to come to this house to live after we were married—Amy and I. He said we had best travel for a year, or stay elsewhere a year. After that he wanted us here. I told him that was what Amy wanted—it was the only reason she hesitated about marrying; she did not want to leave him. So he said it would be all right."

"I'm so glad, Bob!" Amy cried. "I'm so glad to think he was willing."

"And then what?" Brennan asked, seeing that Carter was hesitating.

"Well, it was rather queer," Carter said, blushing. "I thought it was rather queer then, but it doesn't seem so queer now—not in that. I didn't see that it had anything to do with my loving Amy. Amy knows it's not anybody's money I care for. So then we shook hands and I came away."

"Through the library again?" Brennan asked.

"No. Mr. Drane let me out by this door."

"So you didn't see Mr. Dart again?"

"No. I went down the driveway there and walked home."

"You haven't any idea what it was Mr. Dart wanted Mr. Drane not to do?"

"Not really," Carter said. "It may be they had been talking over Amy and me and Mr. Dart didn't care for me enough to have me marry Amy. Mr. Drane and Dart were old friends—what they call 'cronies' almost. Or it may have been giving Amy so much money in a lump that Dart objected to. I don't know."

"But your impression was that Mr. Dart referred to the talk you were about to have with Mr. Drane?" Brennan asked.

"That's what I thought," Carter admitted. "I hadn't any doubt of it. I thought to myself 'What business is it of his, anyway? I don't like him much, somehow.'"

"And now, Miss Drane," Brennan asked without a pause, "have you ever seen anything that made you think, even in the slightest degree, that your uncle was a woman?"

"No," Amy said without hesitation, and immediately changed her answer to yes! "Never while he was alive," she said. "It never entered my head, not in the very slightest. But now I can see things. He was so kind to me."

"Might not an uncle be kind?" Brennan asked.

"Yes, but not in that way. Affectionate is what I should say, probably. I didn't know, you see—I didn't think—how a man would be, but I can see now, Mr. Brennan, that he was more like—more like a mother in the way he—in the way he kissed me and smoothed my hair. More like a woman, more like a mother."

"Have you any reason for thinking he was your mother?" Brennan asked and Amy stared at him with wide eyes.

"Uncle John my mother?" she gasped and put her fingers to her lips as if in fear. "Oh, he couldn't be my mother—he—"

"You knew your mother?" Brennan asked. "You see, Miss Drane, I don't know any of the facts; I have to ask for them. Did you know your mother?"

Bob Carter frowned with annoyance that Amy should be annoyed. He looked at her and turned to Brennan.

"I can answer that," he said. "Amy told me all that."

"Let her tell me," said Brennan, but his tone was kindly.

"I never knew my mother," Amy said.

Brennan leaned forward in his chair.

"I'm not digging into this from curiosity," he said. "I have plenty to do without wasting time that way; my job is to find who murdered this woman who posed as John Drane. There may never have been a John Drane—"

"You bet your boots there was!" declared Simon Judd. "John Drane and me was chums, I tell you, when we was boys back there in Riverbank. Regular boys and no mistake, and don't you forget it, mister! You can prove that by me any time you want to."

"There was a John Drane then," said Brennan. "You knew him."

"And I knew him a blame long time, black my cats," Simon Judd exclaimed. "Why look here—John Drane was born along about when I was, along towards 1853, and we chummed together, thick as thieves for a long time. Yes, until '83—that was when he went out west. He was thirty then. All that time we hung together, me and John. Thirty years—we was born together as you might say. Sure there was a John Drane!" "I was going to ask you a few questions later," Brennan suggested.

"Excuse me for buttin' in!" Simon Judd said with hearty good nature. "Go right ahead and I'll shut up till you want me."

"I was saying, Miss Drane," Brennan said, "that I am only trying to gather some details of the life of John Drane as he was known here, and matters that might have some bearing on this murder. I know nothing, you understand, and I have to ask questions. You say you did not know your mother—that means she died while you were too young to know her?"

"Yes," Amy said. "You're about how old?" "I'm seventeen."

"Do you know when your uncle—to call him that—came to West-cote?"

"Yes, I remember hearing that. It was in 1892. He bought this house then. He said not long ago he had owned it thirty-two years."

"And you were not born here?" "Oh, no!" said Amy. "I was born in California. You see, I'm uncle John's brother's son's child."

"What did you say?" asked Brennan, turning to Simon Judd. "I'm not saying a word," Judd said. "Excuse me! I forgot myself." "But you said something," Brennan insisted. "What did you say?"

"All I said," Simon Judd said, "was which brother?"

"Well, which brother was it?" Brennan asked Amy, showing the first impatience he had shown.

"It was Daniel!" Amy said. "Daniel went to California and married Mary O'Ryan there, and they had one son—Thoman Drane who was my father. He married Mary Gartner, but just after I was born they were drowned in a flood. Some river overflowed and they were drowned. Grandfather was dead then, too, and grandmother had died before that. So I was put in an orphanage and that was where uncle John found me."

"He went to California? When was that?"

"I wasn't a year old," Amy said. "It must have been in 1908. Uncle John said he had always corresponded with father and when the letters stopped he was worried. He wasn't well that year and he thought California might do him good—it was in the winter—and he went West for the two reasons. He wanted the warmth, and he wanted to find father if he was alive. He found only me."

"And he brought you East?" (Continued next week)
