IT'S OFF AGIN ON AGIN FOR REV. LIDDICOAT

METHODIST PASTOR IS RE-APPOINTED TO THE LOCAL CHURCH

Well, Rev. Liddicoat is back again on the job in the Buchanan Methodist church, and all he has to say about it is that he hopes everybody meant all the nice things they said at the farewell reception Friday evening, and were not merely being nice to him because he was leaving.

As a result of an upset in the conference plans Rev. Liddicoat, fairly at himself, coming back from the "other side" of his household goods packed Monday morning, he received a wire telling him that the wife of the minister whom he was to replace at Ely had had a severe mental breakdown and would not be able to leave that place for weeks.

The program given at the reception was as follows: Introductory—Mrs. W. F. Runner, chairman.

Invocation—Rev. Camfield of the Evangelical church.

Singing of Doxology. Piano selections—Marvin Gross. Address—Dr. Walker.

Address—Rev. Staver of the Presbyterian church. Readings—Charlotte Arnold. Vocal Solo—A. B. McClure.

Address—H. C. Stark, superintendent of schools. Piano Duet—Mrs. Jennings and Mrs. Ormiston.

Address—D. L. Boardman. Address—E. H. Ormiston. Address—Rev. Camfield. Address—Mrs. Fennell.

An original poem, written by Mrs. W. F. Runner and read by Mrs. Weaver, a tribute to the Liddicoats.

Singing of the poem to the tune of Michigan, My Michigan, by members of the church choir. Response by Rev. and Mrs. Liddicoat.

AUTO WRECKS CLAIM FRESH TOLL

Time Limit on Portage and 3d Contract Ends Saturday.

RESIDENTS GO BATHLESS

Water and Gas Cut Off For Ten Days on Portage Street.

An extension of 60 days to the time limit set for the completion of Third and Portage Street sewer construction which will expire Saturday, was requested by Contractor Frank Reed at the council meeting held Tuesday evening.

The letter requesting an extension was forwarded by the council to the bonding company which underwrote the construction. Together with a protest to the size of the force employed by Reed and the slow progress made to date. During the 88 days since the work started, Reed has completed about one-third of the installation.

Complaint was made that Reed had excavated more than 200 feet in advance of the installation, in violation of the terms of his contract. Due to failure to follow closely behind the machine with the installation, residents on So. Portage between Front and Central Court have been without water for all purposes since Wednesday of last week.

The gas mains are on the west side of the excavation and connections have been severed with houses on the east side of Portage street between Front and Central Court.

Reed stated that progress in the installation at this point had been delayed by a heavy flow of spring water which rose to a level of several feet above the bottom of the trench, the difficulties of pumping preventing him from opening any great length of trench at one time. He stated that as soon as he reached the hill on Portage he would be out of the spring water and could make rapid progress.

Plans are Now Under Way For Establishment of New Community Hospital Here

BUCH. W. C. T. U. IS COMMENDED ON MEMBERSHIP WORK

LOCAL DRY ORGANIZATION DOUBLES MEMBERSHIP IN PAST YEAR

The 54th annual convention of the W. C. T. U. was held in the Central M. E. church at Lansing during September 18th to 21st inclusive, and was attended by the president of the local W. C. T. U., Miss Mae Mills and by the president, Mrs. W. F. Runner. They report it to be one of the largest and best that have been held in recent years with an attendance of approximately 500 delegates, with an average attendance of more than 1000 in the evening session. Governor Green brought greetings at the Tuesday afternoon meeting, as did Lt. Governor Luren D. Dickenson. Great interest was manifested in the address Wednesday evening by Rev. Frank Kingdon, who spoke to a crowded house on "Why we need to be pronounced in our views." He said in part: "There is a great change in sentiment on prohibition. We are enthusiastically interested in it at the present time. It is now a case of oil or alcohol and we prefer the oil as the alcohol is not even needed as a medicine now. The physicians make no complaint because there is none in the Cook County hospital, nor has there been for years and statistics show they have the best record along this line of any hospital in the state." He further stated that "We must keep prohibition not only for our own sakes but for the good of the 48 nations that are looking to us to make good. Many of them are trying to get prohibition too. Neither do we want our government controlled by liquor less liquor control as is the case in Canada."

"We should put the best men in office if for no other reason than the example we set to our youth," was the advice given by the Superintendent of the Lansing schools. Many other notable speakers were on the program and gave their hearers earnest and helpful encouragement. The vocational school band, consisting of 25 or 30 pieces provided music. The film, "Delivered," based on Prof. Irving Fisher's book "Prohibition at its Worst," was shown. Recognition for new members drive in the membership drive conducted last spring when the Buchanan union added 24 members, was given Mae Mills and Mrs. L. M. Otwell with about 80 others. Appropriate badges were presented. The Buchanan union now has 44 members.

Community Is Now Without Facilities Even For An Emergency
With the closing of the Clark Hospital on Oct. 1, on account of financial difficulties, plans have been set on foot for some means of replacement in order that the community may not be faced with a total lack of hospital facilities, even for emergency purposes. Although the large hospitals at Niles and South Bend in a measure serve the needs of Buchanan, it is generally agreed that the village should at least possess emergency facilities. The Clark Hospital has repeatedly been resorted to in cases of extremity during the past summer, where speedy service is a matter of life or death. When medical services are a matter of minutes, a few miles counts much. Accidents, operative cases in an acute crisis, confinement cases, and other emergencies may be multiplied without number where a hospital in a community the size of Buchanan is a fundamental necessity.

Members of the township board have expressed themselves as being in favor of continuing the public support which was extended to the Clark Hospital in the past, in case a new institution can be organized that is suited to the general needs of the community. It is felt that whatever arrangement is made to fill the breach should be a genuine community affair, to which all donors should have access freely. It should be a community affair, known as the Buchanan hospital.

Steps have already been taken by parties interested in the continuance of hospital facilities. While bids have been asked in order to ascertain the costs, the move is as yet only in the formative stage, and any ideas which anyone may have will be gladly taken into consideration. It has been suggested that a meeting be called under the direction of the township board to consider ways and means. It has also been suggested that the pages of the Record be thrown open for any contribution which any interested party may desire to make on the subject. If such contributions are forthcoming, they will be printed gladly.

LAUNDRY CO. WOULD ERECT 3 BUILDINGS

Asks For Location In Village Parking Space

RENT BROWN BUILDING

Buy Equipment of Three Oaks Laundry To Move Here

Possibilities of adding a large laundry plant serving a radius of 16 miles about Buchanan and adding assets approximating $50,000 to the town now hinge on the action taken by the village council at a special meeting next Friday night.

George McGaghie, representing laundry and dry cleaning interests with plants now operating on a large scale in Chicago and Miami, Fla., appeared before the council at the regular meeting Tuesday evening, stating that he had already made arrangements with H. B. Brown for the quarters formerly occupied by the Ward Mailbox Company, and would establish a laundry and dry cleaning plant there if he could secure from the city enough of the ground now known as the village parking space to erect three buildings to be used as heating plant, dry cleaning plant and garage.

McGaghie stated that he would install equipment to the value of $20,000 and would construct brick fireproof buildings to the value of $30,000, if he could secure the desired concessions. He stated that his company had already bought a laundry at Three Oaks, and planned to move the equipment of that plant here. Attractive offers have been made by three Oaks, he stated, including the erection of a building. His company prefer to locate here, he said, because this village centers a large territory including several small towns within a 16 mile radius which do not possess modern laundry plants. In case the plant is located here, offices will be opened in Three Oaks and St. Joseph.

His associates in the business here would be his brother, James McGaghie, and Raymond McGuire. The property here would consist of two separate plants known as "The Up-To-Date Laundry," and "The Up-To-Date Cleaning Plant." The company now operates "The Midway Linen Supply and Laundry" of Chicago, and "The Little Rivers Laundry" of Miami.

Councilmen Wynn, Pierce and Boyce were appointed members of a committee to inquire into the feasibility of transferring city land to McGaghie for building purposes and report their findings to the council Friday evening.

Pioneer Recalls October Snowfall

The great snow of October 10, 1906, when limbs of the sandle trees hung to the ground on Front street and apple froze solid on the trees, was recalled by Eli Helmick, pioneer of the Buchanan section, in speaking of earlier days with a representative of the Record Wednesday.

Mr. Helmick has photographs of the record snow fall of that time, showing the limbs of trees drooping to the ground on Front street, a view of Oak street and of the pumping station.

On the evening of the 10th of October a twelve inch snow fall descended upon this section, followed by a thawing spell in the morning of the eleventh, which gradually changed to extremely cold weather in the afternoon, freezing apples on the tree. The next day apple growers shook the apples into the snow and when they melted kept fairly satisfactorily for a number of weeks.

Republican Rally Slated At Sawyer For Tuesday, Oct. 9

What is described in the advance information as "an old fashioned republican rally" will be held in the Chamber of Commerce building at Sawyer, Tuesday evening, Oct. 9, with Mrs. Elizabeth Perkins, noted New York City speaker, as the feature speaker.

IT SEEMS THAT THE FUGUES WASTED FROM CANADIAN SHORE OVER POWER IN G

Buchanan went unrepresented at the republican state convention, according to information which has just leaked through here, due to the fact that the two delegates, Al Charles and Wilson Letzer, together with a large number of other delegates, became entangled in the maze of the down-town streets and failed to find the rallying place of the dry cause at the Cass Technical high school building. Accordingly they remained down town and spent the time most pleasantly whooping up the cause of an unamended 18th amendment.

LEGION GATHERS CLOTHING FOR FLOOD RELIEF

ALL CASH TO BE PAID TO CHAS. PEARS OR 1ST NATL BANK

The local American Legion is collecting clean bedding and clothing for men, women, and children for the relief of the Florida flood sufferers, to be shipped from Buchanan the first of the week under the rate-free arrangement offered by express companies to the Red Cross. The Legion hall is being left open and donations are to be left on a table in the hall and the Auxiliary ladies will take care of them.

Charles Pears is in charge of collection of funds under the Red Cross here, and all donations should be paid at the First National bank. Less than half of the quota assigned to Buchanan by the county Red Cross organization has been raised and it is urgent that possible contributors act at once.

RELIGIOUS SCHOOL HELD YESTERDAY AT EVAN. CHURCH

A Religious Education Institute was conducted yesterday afternoon and evening at the Evangelical church by three visiting pastors, comprising Rev. D. C. Ostroth of Lansing, Rev. H. Stresman of Jackson, and Rev. J. Schurman of Niles, the three being the eight teams which are conducting 28 similar institutes with uniform programs over the entire state Oct. 2-5.

The program here was for the benefit of the church leaders of Buchanan, Niles, and Portage Prairie, who were present to the number of 30 in the afternoon and 60 in the evening.

The program of the institute was as follows: 2:00 p. m.—Devotional. 2:30—Address, "Ideals and Principles of Religious Education." 3:15—"Michigan Conference Objectives." 4:00—Open conference (Ask Questions—Present Your Problems).

6:30—Luncheon (Together if possible. Potluck, basket picnic or furnished meal. Short "After-Dinner" program may be arranged). 7:30—Song Service. 8:00—Prayer meeting. Fifteen minute talks. "Preparing Leaders for Christian Service." "Promoting Interest in Missions."

"Evangelism Through the Sunday School and League." Rev. Camfield presided over the sessions. A special musical program was provided for the evening, consisting of selections by the Buchanan Evangelical quartet, a duet by Rev. and Mrs. Sanders of Portage Prairie, and a saxophone solo by Sheldon Ryan, accompanied by Marian VanEvery. The meetings proved highly inspirational.

A similar institute was conducted yesterday at St. Joseph for the churches of St. Joseph, Benton Harbor, Arden, Scottsdale and Bainbridge.

BARODA MAY TAKE VOTE ON WATER BONDS

Special Meeting Held Tonight to Consider Bond Election $14,000 IS REQUIRED

A special council meeting is to be held at Baroda tonight to reconsider action taken by the council Monday night relative to a call for a special bond election October 22 to determine whether or not the village shall construct a water system.

At the Monday meeting the council, comprising president August Schultz, and trustees Max Ludwig, Charles Friebe, R. S. Swope, Forrest Brown and Henry Nold voted unanimously to submit to the voters a proposition to sell $14,000 bonds to finance the installation of mains. The village drilled a well last spring which assures an abundant supply of water, should the mains be installed. The water has been analyzed and approved as pure by the state health department.

Owing to opposition which has since developed, a second meeting was called for tonight to consider protests.

Mrs. Sue Thomas Recovering In Iowa Hospital

Word was received yesterday afternoon from Milton Fuller stating that Mrs. Sue Thomas was much improved from the injuries received in an auto accident Tuesday of last week, and would soon be able to return here.

Mrs. Thomas sustained a fractured left wrist, right collar bone, and three broken ribs, and is now in St. Anthony's hospital, Carroll, Ia. The injuries were received when the car in which Mr. and Mrs. Milton Fuller, Mrs. Irene Jones, and Mrs. Sue Thomas were driving to Denver, Colo., skidded in loose gravel and turned over, pinning the entire party under death. The others received slight injuries, Mr. Fuller incurring a sprained shoulder and facial cuts requiring several stitches.

Mr. Fuller and his daughter, Mrs. Jones, plan to remain with Mrs. Thomas until she is able to return.

County Nears End Of Finish Coat Range Line Road

Installation of the top layer of asphalt chip on the Walton road was completed last week, and the county truck has completed nearly half of the 7 1-3 miles of the Range Line road today, making nearly a mile a day when materials are available. Five carloads of rock chips were delivered on the River street siding Saturday for installation on the road. Travel is allowed on both roads.

Bowlers to Meet Again Fri. Night For Organization

Arrangements for a second meeting to organize a bowling league were made at the meeting held Tuesday evening, not all the teams having been represented there. Harry Graham, Bud Proust and Frank Merson were appointed as a committee to canvass the bowlers of last year. It is undecided whether the bowlers desire both scratch and handicap leagues but that matter will be decided Friday. Fred Schwartz came from Goshen to assist in the organization. They were married in 1925.

What Happened Before
Simon Judd, amateur detective, and William Darr, an undertaker, visit John Drane, an eccentric man of wealth, at the Drane place. Suddenly John Drane is murdered, and Dr. Blessington, after examining the body, makes the astounding revelation to Amy Drane that her "uncle" is a woman and not a man.

All the servants in the household are sickly, and it is revealed that John Drane never discharged a servant for ill health. Dick Brennan, a detective, arrives at the house and makes a thorough investigation. Simon Judd, the amateur detective, the actual John Drane with whom he (Judd) was acquainted in Riverbank, Judd proposes to Brennan that he "go partner" with Brennan in the solution of the crime. Brennan accepts, then Judd declares that Amy is not John Drane's niece or any relative of Drane. Mrs. Vincent, housekeeper, tells Brennan that Drane picked his servants from the chronic patients at the hospital. Dr. Blessington is asked if he had ever noticed any special change in Drane.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Change?" the doctor queried. "As far as I know, I noticed the real John Drane and from then on was this woman playing she was him," explained Simon Judd.

"Why, since it is brought to my attention with this mystery in mind?" Dr. Blessington said, "there was a time when I noticed a change in John Drane, a shocking change as I thought it. The thing is pretty well fixed in my mind, top. As a matter of fact there have been two very distinct changes in this John Drane. One was when he returned from California; I hardly knew him. The other—the most shocking one—was some five months later. As a physician, coming to the house frequently, I noticed it particularly. Just before he went to California this John Drane—man or woman—was decidedly run down in health; in fact, I thought, although I was not asked to advise him. Then he went to California and when he returned he was like, as we say, another man. He was brisker, more cheerful, and he had put on quite a little flesh for such a thin man. He walked better and stood better. At that time his hair was dark, but he probably used a dye. The man who went to California may not have been the woman who returned. On the other hand, the change may have been wrought by rest and the warm climate.

"And the other time, five months later?" said Brennan.

"A more striking change," the physician said. "From the time Drane returned from California looking so well, he began to run down again. I did make so bold as to speak to him about it and he said he knew he must do something. He said he thought he would go South, to Hot Springs, and take a long rest. A week later he went and was gone three months. He came back with his hair absolutely gray, as it is now, his face emaciated, his body nothing but bones. It was a shocking change. Except for one thing I might be willing to swear that, in my opinion, the person who came back from Hot Springs was not the man who went there. That thing is a scar on this woman's abdomen—the scar of an appendicitis operation. My opinion is that she probably went there for the operation—if that was indeed where she went—in order that her sex might not be discovered by any one who knew her."

"That's a possibility," Brennan admitted.

"She could have changed into women's clothes at some stop-over en route," the doctor said, "changing back into male garments on her return. If that is the answer she must have had a bad time of the operation to wear down so tremendously. But it is possible that the man who left here that time was not the woman-man who returned here a little later."

Brennan said nothing for a full minute.

"I'm afraid I don't see much in that idea, doctor," he said finally. "There's too much of the impossible in it. The person who returned from Hot Springs—if that was where the person went—was certainly very much like the person who left here as John Drane, is it not so? Enough so that you were not particularly suspicious? Then how could a substitution have been made? Who was this woman who was so much like John Drane that she could come back here and take his place in the house and at his office and in Wall Street, going on with his speculations without creating comment? The thing is rather absurd. Such a woman must have planned taking John Drane's place for years; she must have learned all about his business to the minutest details, and all about his home affairs here. She must have planned to murder him or make way with him somehow. It is too improbable, doctor."

"You asked me you know," said Dr. Blessington, "a little offended."

"And your answer is perfectly good," said Brennan. "Now let me ask you another—did you ever notice anything to make you think this woman was insane?"

the victim of a mania? What do you think of her idea of having sick servants and no others? What about her friendship with this undertaker?"

Dr. Blessington turned these questions in his mind before he answered.

"You understand that I am not an alienist," he said then, choosing his words with some care. "I am only what is called a general practitioner. As one of the hospital staff I have sometimes recommended to Drane, at his request, chronic patients still able to do easy work, and it never occurred to me that there was insanity in his desire to aid the unfortunates. To tell you the truth, Brennan, I thought it was fine of him to give these people jobs in his house. Even when they fell ill he saw that they had the best of attention, medical and otherwise. When they died—"

"A good many did die, did they?" asked Brennan, and Dr. Blessington colored.

"You will remember that they were mostly people doomed to die," he said stiffly. "They had, many of them—most of them—incurable diseases."

"But they did die," Brennan insisted. "What I mean is this, doctor: this woman known as John Drane had great wealth, if she wanted to help these incurables she could have sent them to sanitariums and she would never have missed the money. She seems to have liked to have the sickly, the dying, and the undertaker clustered about her. I'd call that morbid, wouldn't you?"

"Yes, I might call it morbid," Dr. Blessington admitted. "I wouldn't say it meant that she was crazy."

"Well, I don't know that it makes such a difference whether she was crazy or not; she has been murdered just the same, sane or insane," Brennan said. "I'm just trying to get a clear picture of her in my mind. That's all now, doctor; I can get in touch with you if anything else turns up."

The doctor opened the door leading into the hall, but Simon Judd held him with a question.

"Say, doc," he said, "how long have you known this John Drane, anyway?"

Dr. Blessington pulled at his chin, trying to fix an exact date.

"He came here, I believe in 1898," he said. "It may have been '92 or '94; I met him first that same year when I called on him for a gift to our hospital. I know that I hoped he might make use of my services if he needed a physician, but I was not called in until two years later—say in 1895. I've been the family physician since then."

"And along back there in '93 and '95 he was just about the same feller he looks as he lies up there on the bed?" Simon Judd asked.

"Yes," said the doctor slowly.

"Yes, increasing age and illness taken into consideration?"

"You don't mean to say?" Simon Judd explained. "Wall, black my cats! And I dare say it was along about when he called you in that he began to gather these sickly hired help around him, huh?"

"Yes, I think that is so," Dr. Blessington said. "That is so."

"And when, doc?" Simon Judd asked cheerfully, "was the time he murdered the first of these sickly hired hands of his?"

We Pay Too High a Price

We often pay too high a price
For what men call success!
For pomp or fame, we offer twice
Its worth in happiness.
Too many of us have not learned
What things in life are best;
Intent on trifles, we have turned
From gladness, peace and rest.

We fail to see that love means more
Than prominence or wealth.
Too often we put pride before
The golden gift of health.
We sacrifice to gods of greed
The confidence of friends;
And in our mad pursuit of speed
Our comfort often ends.

Will Rogers Says

You can't hardly get a man to do anything for you these days in politics without offering him a Cabinet position. I been giving a mighty lot of thought to my Cabinet and I find that every rich man now pictures himself as another Mellon. The rich man used to think that he would be slumming if he mixed himself up with any of those Pumpkin Seed jobs, like a Cabinet officer, but Mellon stepped out and got so much publicity that all the rest began to think, "How long has this been going on?"

I have made a lot of promises, but they were only political promises, and I have no idea of keeping any of them. I can promise the best Cabinet of any of them, Henry Ford would be my Secretary of the Treasury, he would make us forget that illumnum pays as well as shines, and as for General Motors and Raskob and that gang, we would cut our profit to $300.00 a car and put them right out of business. Say Ford could take our little dab of money, that our Treasury has, and let him handle it a little while and he would have us out of the Red by Xmas. And as for my Secretary of State, what's the matter with using Coolidge? He knows everything that a Secretary of State does and I believe if a man could get him he'd be worth the money.

So with Calvin and Henry in there I got the nucleus of a pretty snorty cabinet. You see I am in a position to get the best talent available. I have no campaign manager to take care of. And there are no "president makers" in our Anti-Bunk party that has to be rewarded. I'm self-made.

There is some fellow named "Vox Populi" or something like that, I don't know who he is, but I want him for Post Master General; he writes more letters than anybody.

Good picture-framing is a new art which has much to do with the increased popular appreciation of pictures, and the fact that pictures seem to have a new beauty in our eyes.

It has been discovered that the best way to bring out all that is lovely in a picture is to have it properly framed. One that seems dull may only need the right frame to bring it back to favor—perhaps a lighter, more colorful frame, toned to its colors, instead of the old, dull, heavy frame. Before discarding a picture that seems to have no charm, "try on" a more becoming frame, and see what a difference there will be.

NEW FALL COATS

Fall weather is probably the most uncertain of the year. The day may start out with warm sunshine and in an hour or two change to that bone-chilling, rainy or sleety variety. So for comfort, as well as appearance, have a coat ready.

About Your Health

Things You Should Know

by John Joseph Gaines, M.D.

"VAGRANT PAINS"

Most every active human being is subject, at one time or another, to fleeting, shifting twinges, varying from slight discomfort, to severe, pronounced pain. Such may not be accompanied by any inflammatory signs—heat, redness, or swelling. Just transitory pain, often called erroneously, "muscular rheumatism."

Such annoyances almost invariably come from disturbed nerves. Organs adjacent to the locality complained of, should be studied. Constipation—an impacted bowel—may cause anything from head neuralgia to sciatic irritation, even pains in ankles or heels. Unload the bowel, and relief comes. All pains in nerves should be investigated as to local injury. Grandma lifted a heavy rocker yesterday; today she has a sharp pain in the wrist. You "turned" your ankle last night on an uneven sidewalk.

Little disturbances due to injuries may be treated by hot fomentations, rest, and medicaments rubbed on; good liniments are very useful, if persisted in. It is possible that no cause for a localized pain can be found. In such case, the physician is a timely resort. If the pain does not disappear after rest and heat. I do not agree that heavy massage does any good to pains that are not understood—and it may do harm. A lazy liver may produce pain at point of shoulder-blade and elsewhere—to disappear of itself apparently, after eating plenty of fruit. Most of the fleeting pains in the lower extremities are caused by trouble in the organs within the body above—unless local injury happened. "Diffuse Neuritis" is a warning that demands the physician.

Functions of the Liver

The following list represents the more important jobs performed by this busy organ:

- Secretion of the bile (gall) including the bile salts, bile acids, cholesterol, and water.
- Formation of urea from the proteins.
- Maintenance of the normal level of the blood sugar by acting as a storehouse of glycogen.
- Storage of fats and assisting in their use by the organism.
- Destruction of uric acid as such.
- Filtering bacteria and other foreign bodies from the blood stream.
- Rending certain poisonous matters harmless.
- Assisting in the production of immunity.

Importance of the Liver

While nearly everybody knows that the liver secretes the bile, many consider that its only function. This is actually less important than its task of taking from the blood and storing away for future use certain substances and injecting into the blood stream other substances. The liver cells are highly specialized chemical structures in close relation to the blood, suspended in a supporting meshwork of fibrous tissues. The organ as a whole is larger and weighs more than any other in the body.

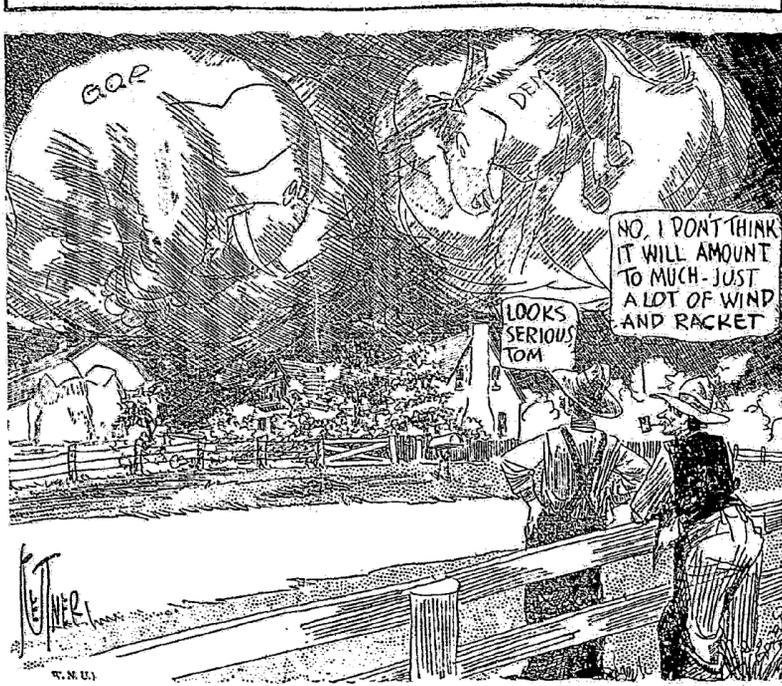

The Stagnant Liver Idea

Much has been written, pro and con, regarding the influence of the liver on the balance of the organism when it is not functioning properly. The poor old liver is blamed for everything from constipation to the "blues." No matter what people may be complaining of some persons will say, "It's your liver. Take a good dose of something to stir up your liver and you'll be all right." How far this is true I am not prepared to say. Men who have spent a lifetime studying nothing but the liver disagree on some points regarding its functions.

One man says that, with the exception of foods, gastric juice and the bile there are at present no known liver stimulants. Other clinicians contend that oleic acid, Epsom salts, egg yolk, and cream all promote a free flow of bile. The truth of the latter contention certainly can be demonstrated. How Jaundice is Produced. When for any reason bile is retained by the liver it passes into the blood and tinges the skin and mucous membranes a yellowish hue. This is first noticed on the whites of the eyes. The most common cause of retention of the bile is a partial closure of the ducts as a result of an inflammation that extends into these ducts from the small intestine. Less often the blocking to the outflow of bile is produced by a gallstone that has become lodged in the duct. Many a case of supposed gallstones is sent to the operating table, when the patient has nothing but an inflammation of the ducts.

The X-ray is now of considerable assistance in diagnosing liver and gall bladder conditions. The patient is given some capsules containing a specific dye. As the capsule dissolves in the intestine the dye enters the ducts and gall bladder and often coats the stones that are there in a way that makes them visible on the X-ray film. If no dye enters the gall bladder it may be assumed that the duct is obstructed. Sometimes it is; sometimes it is not.

The Road To Better Health

REMEMBER:

Disease germs have three avenues of entrance into the human system. They may be inhaled, swallowed, or may get in through scratched or incised wounds of the skin.

In warm weather, when most of our houses are wide open, the danger of inhaled germs is practically nil. Pure air is a wonderful disinfectant, capable, except against the tubercular germ, which should be guarded against at all seasons.

Most acquired infections in summer are of the digestive tract; the bacteria are swallowed with food or water. We should, therefore, be discriminating at this season. Edibles taken raw, must be scrupulously clean, and thoroughly masticated. Fruits should be ripe, fresh, and free from punctures by twigs, or specks of decay. Don't give the child a banana that is green, or part-ripened, or punctured through the skin. Potato salad that is carried over from meal to meal—better throw it away, or do without the mixture entirely.

See that all cooked food is thoroughly done, especially meats. It is not good policy to eat the boiled ham that you had left over from the picnic, especially if it is in the basket on the ground for a few hours. The same is true of cake, wrapped in newspaper and kept in the same basket. Flies haunt out-door picnics. They love to crawl over deviled eggs, potato salads and the like. It is not very pleasant to think of what they may shake off from their filthy feet and bodies.

It goes without saying that all drinking water these days should be attested in purity, by a capable rather than a political official. A sitch in time saves more than nine. Put nothing of doubtful purity into your stomach, and be careful not to overload.

Hints for the Home

by Nancy Hart

Have you an interesting picture in the kitchen—hung where it catches the eye many times during the day?

In this sensible age, you know, no one denies the appropriateness—if not the psychological necessity—of a glimpse of sunny, winding road over country hills when one is confined at kitchen tasks. Or perhaps the picture might be of some fragrant, old-fashioned garden, or of a child at play.

Cheerful scenes in the kitchen are often invaluable, both for decorative purposes and as a counter-irritant.

- Vegetarian Menu
- Cream of Carrot soup
- Lima bean loaf with tomato sauce
- Creamed cabbage
- Buttered beets
- Apple and Celery salad
- Steamed pudding

Cookies for the School Lunch

Heat 1/2 cup of molasses to boiling point, add 1/2 cup butter, then slowly add 1 cup prepared cake flour, 2-3 cup sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt and 1 teaspoon ginger sifted together. Drop half-teaspoons of batter three inches apart on an inverted pan. Bake in a slow oven until medium brown.

Asparagus and Egg Salad

A nice way to combine canned white asparagus and hard-boiled eggs in salad is to mould them in alternate layers in legon gelatin.

"To Set" Colors
A teaspoon of Epsom salts added to a bucketful of water will set colors most effectively. Soak the fabric in the solution, then wash in the usual way.

Decaffeinated Coffee at Its Best
Although decaffeinated coffee may be made as you would natural coffee—either boiled, percolated or by the drip method—it is best when brewed in a drip pot. Heat fresh water to boiling, pour over ground coffee one cup for every tablespoon of coffee and one for pot. Place pot over low flame to keep it hot, but do not boil.

A Refrigeration Hint
When the ice melts, the refrigerator is cooled; so do not cover the ice with paper, if you want the best results.

Possibilities

Every human soul has possibilities of greatness. There is a certain creative force in every man and woman. It comes from the great source of power by which the universe and all the universes were created. The tragedy is the neglect of the cultivation of these seeds of greatness.—Grove Patterson, in the Mobile Register.

The detailed compilation showing that New York state has well over half of the power of the first zone; in the second zone, Pennsylvania has more than half of the total power; in the fourth zone, Illinois has nearly half of the total and in the fifth zone California has approximately two-thirds of the total power. Thus, four states have together just about 50 per cent of the total broadcasting power of the country.

This data shows equal distribution to be something quite different from the present arrangement. It will be interesting to see how much effect the slash in stations that took place last month will have on the inequality of distribution.

France to Imitate U. S. Farm Programs

The broadcasting of weather reports and market and crop news is being planned in a new series to be introduced by the French government for the benefit of that country's farmers. This is according to Prof. Bernard Trouvelot of the French National School of Horticulture, who has recently made a visit to the United States.

Prof. Trouvelot was particularly impressed with radio America by the great number of farmers having sets and getting regular information and instruction for their problems over the air. He also noted that one American radio manufacturer has produced 50 per cent more receivers than all the radios owned in France. The American farmers, he said, have produced the example which the French will follow and the programs of the United States Department of Agriculture have inspired similar activities to aid agriculture abroad.

Newest in Radio Stunts
Radio broadcasters are becoming so proficient in their art that they are making their stations perform weird stunts similar to the way the movie people construct seemingly impossible scenes with their films.

Station WNAC has succeeded in broadcasting organ duets by two musicians playing on organs located two miles apart. Each organist was equipped with headphones so that he could hear the other player, thus enabling each to synchronize his playing with the music pickup by the microphone stationed at the other organ.

Extends U. S. Germany Phone Radio telephone communication between the United States and Canada and Berlin has been extended to include the whole of Germany.

Broadcasting of Convention Expensive According to figures made public by M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Co., the broadcasting of the proceedings of the Republican national convention in Kansas City was done at an expense amounting to $1.07 per second.

The radio bill for the convention was $77,000 and the actual proceedings lasted twenty hours or 72,000 seconds. The entire expense Aylesworth said is being borne by his company and the forty-two associated stations.

Approximately the same expense was incurred in the broadcasting of the Democratic convention at Houston.

Found Pleasure Only in Business Triumph

The American business man, taking his vacation abroad, is one of the most depressing sights of the Riviera, according to Lloyd Morris, writing in Harper's.

"I recall an American whom I met on the terrace of a restaurant at the Hotel de Ville," he says. "His wife had inveigled him into taking a winter holiday; it was so much more smart, she said, than a summer vacation. They had come to the Riviera for the winter. I inquired whether he was enjoying it. 'Enjoying it? H—! no!' He spat expressively. 'But I'll tell you,' his eyes lighting up, 'back home my factory has just sold a thousand beds. New hotel, beds, hand. Had a wire today. He stared off into the distance. He didn't see the vineyards in the valley below, or the blue Mediterranean, framed by hills. And when he added wistfully, 'I wish I was there now,' I knew what he saw—a thousand beds, in crates stamped with his name, on the slipping platform of his busy factory."

Microscopic Writing
Ages ago in the ancient world the hand of Homer was said to have been written by a hermit in such tiny letters that the complete work could be preserved in a walnut shell.

This story was doubted for many years until a learned Frenchman proved that by writing with a fine quill pen on a piece of vellum eight inches by ten, he could write thirty verses in each line and could get 250 lines on each side of the sheet. Thus the vellum would hold 7,500 verses on each side, making the total of the 15,000 verses of the Iliad.

Book Preservation
The bureau of standards says that in large libraries, for preservation purposes, it is customary to paste a very thin silk fabric over the pages, using good mullage as the adhesive. The fabric is not known as "book paper" but is called "book cloth." It is a translucent, light green, and is made of many fine fibers, and is supposed to be caused by the evolution and spontaneous combustion of an "inflammable gas."

Will-o'-the-Wisp
"Ignis fatuus," is simply a Latin name for what we commonly call "will-o'-the-wisp," "jack-o'-lantern," and means "deceptive fire." It is a phosphorescent light seen in and about marshy places, and supposedly caused by the evolution and spontaneous combustion of an "inflammable gas."

BIG MEN FROM SMALL TOWNS

Walter P. Chrysler

Walter P. Chrysler is the head of one of the largest automobile companies in the world. Thirty-five years ago he was an oil wiper, making five cents an hour.

Chrysler was born fifty-three years ago in a little Kansas hamlet called Wamego. His grandfather had driven a covered wagon across the plains, and his father was an engineer on the Union Pacific railroad. He went to school until he was 17. During summer vacations he worked at the grocery store, but it was at 17 that he really went to work—and he has been working ever since.

For four years he worked in the Union Pacific shops. Then he attracted attention to himself by doing a particularly difficult repair job. This led to his becoming foreman of the Colorado and Southern shops at Trinidad. Chrysler made good, and in nine years had become superintendent of motive power of the Chicago and Great Western system.

Then he was 33, and realizing that he could not advance much further where he was employed, he quit to become works manager of the American Locomotive Company—at a salary of about half of what he had been getting. In two years he was general manager.

He gave up a $12,000 job to take one at $6,000 with General Motors. He became vice president there, and then left. After the war he began reorganizing other automobile companies. In 1924 his dream came true—he was making his own car! Now his company has made new auto history in its fusion with the Dodge concern.

Chrysler is adventurous. He never hesitated to change jobs. He saw that his future was in the automobile business, and so sacrificed other lucrative work in order to get into it.

Chrysler is industrious. Despite his great success, he still punches a time card and works harder than any of his employees.

"The man who makes good," he said to S. J. Woolf in a recent interview, "does a little more than is expected of him. Give the boss a little more than he expects and he will see that you are rewarded. And if he doesn't—find another boss."

Chrysler believes the poor boy has a better chance in life than the rich boy. The poor boy, he says, can only get pleasure out of constructive things, while the rich boy gets pleasure out of spending money—most of the time in a destructive fashion.

Walter P. Chrysler stands out as one of the great American business men born in a small town, whose life should be an inspiration and guide to all boys. He has been able, by dint of genius and determination, to get up at the top in the great automotive industry. His success is only another example of the great rewards that accrue to honest industry and painstaking effort.

OWEN D. YOUNG
An international figure is Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of the General Electric Company; a lawyer of great fame and a strong influence in the affairs of the nation. He has served his country in many important ways and is truly one of the outstanding Americans. He has been decorated and honored by the Japanese, Belgian, French and German governments—he belongs to the Order of the Rising Sun, the Order of Leopold of Belgium, the First Order of the German Red Cross, and he is a Commander of the French Legion of Honor.

This man who has been so honored and esteemed was born in Van Hornesville, N. Y., on October 27, 1874. He had the advantage of a splendid education, attending St. Lawrence University, New York, where he has the degree of Bachelor of Arts. He has also degrees from Boston University, Union College, Tufts, Harvard, Dartmouth, Johns Hopkins, Colgate, Columbia and Yale. He married Josephine Sheldon Edmonds, of Southbridge, Mass., in 1895 and has five children.

He began the practice of law in 1896 in Boston. He was a member of Tyler and Young until 1913. The rest of his subsequent activities have so long and varied that it seems remarkable for one man to have done all that he has done.

His importance in the electrical, power and light industries of America is tremendous. He is also a banker. He is a member of the board of directors of the International Chamber of Commerce, also of the Merchants' Association of New York.

He headed both of President Wilson's big industrial conferences; he was a member of President Harding's Conference on Unemployment; a member of the National Distribution Conference; the chairman of the Committee on Unemployment and Business Cycles; the chairman of the American division of the Geneva Federation.

It is hard to keep on listing these facts; there are too many. Suffice it to say that he has offered his rare ability wherever his help has been needed in all worthy causes for the betterment of the conditions of life and for the strengthening of international friendship. A grand figure of a man, always ready to put his shoulder to the wheel and push progress forward. One whose efforts are making the world a better place to live in.

Still gives his address at Van Hornesville, N. Y., an American small town. He is Friday evening, Sept. 28th, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McCormick of 319 Arctic street, entertained in honor of the forty-sixth wedding anniversary of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Burnham, of Chicago, Ill. A very pleasant time was had by the fifteen guests present, the time being occupied with visiting, contests and music. Out-of-town guests other than Mr. and Mrs. Burnham were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McFaul of Los Angeles, Cal. During the forty-six years of their married life Mr. and Mrs. Burnham have enjoyed their anniversary day together every year but one, that year Mrs. Burnham being here in Buchanan caring for her daughter, who was ill at the time, and business preventing Mr. Burnham from coming here.

This Week

By Arthur Brisbane
The king of Spain has talked for moving pictures, his voice recorded by the Fox movietone.
Missions will be interested in a real king, who casually says: "I am very glad to say Christopher Columbus was aided in coming to this country by my ancestors."
He is a practical King, his Alfonso, with his mind on his subjects' welfare. He urges American tourists to come to Spain, telling them they will find good roads, and "You may drive as fast as you like. I, myself, have driven too fast for twenty-four years."

Most important is the fact that talking pictures will enable everybody to see, study and know the important people on earth.
That really is progress.

The electron, mysterious, theoretical, "smallest division of matter" is no imaginary "dot in space." It possesses definite size, revolving inside the atom as our earth revolves within the solar system.

We go around our sun once in three hundred and sixty-five days. The electron goes around ITS sun the nucleus at the center of the atom, billions of times every second.

You cannot imagine that, or believe it, and you need not, but science proves it to be a fact.
Recent important discoveries are due to an Englishman, Professor Thomson, and an American, Dr. Davison, of Columbia University, and the big telephone company laboratories.

The electron may not interest moderns, but it interests science and will interest future ages more than this Presidential election will, a good deal more.

A man looking through the news is like a small boy in a menagerie. So much to see you have to run from cage to cage, from the laughing hyena to the snorting hippopotamus, and from the bar-shaking orang outang to the placid elephant.

Politics may be called the laughing hyena of the human menagerie and the crime wave is the orang outang.

In his first address as president of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, Sir William Bragg insists that man has a soul. That is like saying there is steam in an engine when it moves, physical life in a man running and talking.

Science cannot PROVE the existence of a soul, but proof isn't necessary.

No man can prove he isn't dreaming as he talks to you, and many a man dreaming has been certain he was awake.

Three things in the universe, matter, force, spirit. Matter and force may be one. At least they take different forms. Force cannot act without matter. And only spirit CONSCIOUSNESS can supply force to matter and make things better.

The earth was a wilderness, until human beings, each with his spark of Consciousness, came to change it.

No "fortuitous concourse of atoms" could produce the left hind leg of a field mouse, much less the brain of an Aristotle.
It is man's work that counts not his ashes.

Production of Hens Depends On Quality of Feed

Quality feed means more than a commercial feed. There are dozens of brands of feeds sold commercially yet many should not be considered at quality feed. A poultry mash may contain the necessary ingredients in proper proportion and analysis and still be such a poor egg producer that its use is a dead loss. An egg mash may contain meat scrap in a plentiful amount, but the value of different grades of meat scrap varies so greatly that unless the buyer has a thorough knowledge of the product this variation is beyond his imagination. This certain fact about quality must not be overlooked. A lack of quality does nothing more nor less than result in continual low profit.

Besides a continual year round low profit it means low vitality in the poultry or livestock. Poor health in a flock of laying hens is about the most disgusting problem most poultry keepers have to deal with. And still it is the most common. Perfect health is the main attribute to high egg production. One impossible thing is to get lasting high production from an unhealthy flock of hens or herd of dairy cows.

During this time of the year the question is asked many times, "What can I do to get my flock into better health? Any expert that answers this question always takes it upon himself to advise prevention. Treating a flock of layers takes time, holds the production stage back, and costs money. Of course there are natural sources of ailments that must be expected and measures taken for their control. The one ever present ailment in poultry is worms. It is a very unusual occurrence to find a flock free from worms. Worms sap vitality. Worms destroy health. Worms must be eradicated twice a year in order to hold the flock in normal condition. Worming a flock has become an easy, simple matter. In the past years it was necessary to feed the worm killer in the poultry feed over a period of five to ten days. The better the killing effect of the worm killer, the more strength it had and the more objectionable to the poultry.

The bad part of this kind of wormer is that the hen low in vitality, usually through the cause of worms, will not hold the preparation. This result in the hens requiring the wormer most to be left out, sometimes entirely. Recently worm capsules have been put on the market that are very successful. Each bird receives the exact dosage needed and every bird is sure to have its dose. The egg production is not hindered where the capsule is used, while the ordinary method always stops production.

But getting back to the relation of health to the quality ration. As has been said, high production and good health go hand in hand. A mash feed or dairy ration made with an eye on results is always tested for purity, wholesome qualities and analytical contents. Imagine the value of such a ration in the digestive tract of the laying hen and the dairy cow. Such a ration of genuine purity against one that the animal has difficulty in digesting is within even the most inexperienced feeder's conception. Any commercial feed manufacturer knows and will tell you the percentage of digestibility in any of his mixed feeds. He is required to advertise this percentage accurately. This percentage holds the tell tale value of the ration.

Ordinarily the most efficient manner in which to choose the brand of feed you are going to use is to first find out the reputation of the manufacturer. If they are old in the business, if they use you to keep records of profits; if they guarantee you satisfactory results, then it is only to your advantage to try them out. You should follow manufacturers' feeding instructions as closely as possible and attempt to get the result they claim for their product. A good reliable feed manufacturer usually knows just as much about what results his product will produce. If he is honest you will know about what to expect as soon as you begin using his scientific rations.

Galien Victim Niles

Wreck Buried Here

PARENTS OF VIOLET JAY LIVED HERE BEFORE BIRTH OF GIRL.

The body of Miss Violet Jay, 19 year old Niles waitress who was killed in an auto accident on the Niles-South Bend road, was buried yesterday afternoon in the family lot at Galien.

Miss Jay was never a resident of Galien, but her parents lived here before her birth, and lost two small children, who are buried in the Galien cemetery. They were remembered as Mr. and Mrs. William Jay. After leaving Galien they moved to South Bend, where the girl was born. When she was two years old the family moved to Montana. About four years ago they moved back to Michigan, settling in Niles.

Varying stories are told of the girl's death. The other occupants of the car were Lester J. File, a Buchanan taxi driver, Miss Hedwig Schmidt and Garel Ferham of Niles, the latter being the owner of the car. They testified that the car in which they were returning home from South Bend was side swiped by another car, the impact hurling Miss Jay into the plate glass window of the car, the broken glass severing the temple arteries in each side of her head and severing the upper part of one ear.

Perham, the owner and driver of the car, said that he saw the other car coming and swerved from the pavement to the shoulder of the road, but not far enough to escape a side blow, which crushed the front fender and the side windows. He stated that the other car did not even slacken speed.

Doubt was thrown on this explanation Monday when Mickie Barrett, of Mishawaka, and Henry Toellenberger of South Bend, appeared at Niles police headquarters and made a sworn statement that they were homeward bound from Niles Sunday evening and had stopped at the edge of the pavement when Toellenberger's car ran out of gas. While they were stopped a car came up from the rear. They stated that they saw a third car approaching, which swung from the right of the pavement across to their side, striking the side of Toellenberger's car and catching one wheel on Barrett's car. They stated that they considered pursuing the third car, but were prevented by the fact that Barrett had a deflated tire as the result of the collision and Toellenberger's car was out of commission from lack of gas.

As their damages were slight they decided to let it pass, until they read an account of the girl's death, and were convinced that the accident was the same as the one in which they were involved.

The authorities of Berrien county, Mich., and St. Joseph county, Ind., are planning a joint probe.

Galien School Notes

The Senior Class of Galien High School is preparing for the play "Poor Father" which is to be given Nov. 22-23.

The Galien football players finished two snappy games this year. One at Watervliet with a score of 6-6 and another one with Niles with a score of 14-25 in Niles' favor.

The High School students have divided into two groups, representing two colors, red and green, and have started a campaign against each other. The reason for the division is to find which side has the best salesmanship for taking subscriptions for any of the following: Saturday Evening Post, Country Gentleman, Ladies' Home Journal.

Galien was presented with a new American Flag from the Michigan Agriculture College.

Many small souvenirs were presented to the school students.

Peppermint oil is still selling in the Glendora district at $8 per pound this week, although advices from buyers are that a slump may be expected, in order to shut off sales until some of the surplus which has now filled all tanks to capacity can be worked off. Although they have had only one year's experience they are going strong. The Buchanan game should be just a good practice game for Galien.

Buchanan High Swamps Decatur 30-0

Locals Show Good Early Season Form

Buchanan Swamps Decatur 31-0 Coach "Curly" Bradford's 1928 edition of the Buchanan "Fightin' Outfit" opened the season by trouncing Decatur's little team 31-0 on Decatur's field.

The only mishap was the fracture of high guard Claude DeWitt's right collar bone. This loss is likely to cause some trouble, but as we know Coach Bradford's ability and resourcefulness, we shall expect to see the hole plugged efficiently. Postlewaite, a sturdy lineman but inexperienced, took DeWitt's place and successfully held his ground; however, next Saturday we will need a seasoned man against Otsego.

Decatur started the fracas by kicking off; Buchanan received on her eighteen yard line. On the first down the ball was fumbled and Decatur recovered. After trying Buchanan's left tackle once, Decatur punted to Buchanan's ten yard line. Captain Klein Savoldi caught the flying pigskin and made a fine field run for thirty-five yards to his forty-five line. Phay Wilcox, left halfback, gained eleven yards, putting the ball on Decatur's forty-four yard line. Then Harold Pierce capped the gleeful gallop off with a pretty forty-four yard run for the first touchdown. The kick going wild, the score for the first three minutes of the play was 6-0 in Buchanan's favor.

Decatur receiving on her thirty-nine yard line, punted back to Buchanan's forty-six yard line. The ball then saw-sawed till the end of the second quarter, when Decatur had it. Decatur started the second quarter with a punt which Wilcox ran back to their eleven yard line. Wilcox then plunged across for the second touchdown on the first try. The kick was again wild, leaving the score 2-0. Decatur received on her twenty-seven yard line. In the first down DeWitt was hurt and Postlewaite put in. Decatur then punted to their forty-nine yard line. The ground was quickly covered by Cooper, Pierce and Wilcox, who went over the goal, making the score 15-0. Pierce made a good goal kick, raising the score one.

The kick was again wild. The second half started with Buchanan's entire second team in. The second team repeatedly backed Decatur toward her goal in the third quarter, but was unsuccessful in scoring. In the fourth, however, they got their pace, and getting within a striking distance, sent Richard Chubb across, making the score 31-0 in Buchanan's favor. The kick went wild.

Buchanan kicked off and followed down closely, and Decatur pulled a neat trick, probably saving another touchdown by punting over Buchanan to her twenty-five yard line. The entire first team was put in and the game soon ended.

Buchanan made 22 first downs to Decatur's 0.

The line-up:

Table with 2 columns: Buchanan and Decatur. Names include Smith, Knight, DeWitt, Dempsey, Dunbar, Fette, Jrostol, Savoldi, Cooper, Wilcox, Jurgensen.

Substitutions - Buchanan: Vincent for Smith, Easton for Knight, Postlewaite for DeWitt, Squiers for Dempsey, Deeds for Dunbar, Letcher for Fette, Boyce for Bristol, Morse for Savoldi, Chubb for Cooper, Aronson for Wilcox, and Shreve for Pierce. Decatur: Feenstra for Clark, G. Hafner for Goens, Ceenstra for Neidlinger, R. Hafner for Feenstra, and Graham for R. Hafner. Jackson, W. S. T. C., referee; Johnson, W. S. T. C., umpire; Kinler, Buchanan, Head linesman.

Seniors Fix Date For Class Play; Start on Annual

The Seniors have held two meetings recently, one Sept. 27 and the other Oct. 1st, to decide about two of the most important issues of the Senior year - namely, the Senior Class Play and the Annual. By popular vote it was decided that the Senior Play would be given during Commencement time instead of this semester. The Annual, the school year book edited by the Seniors, is to be started immediately. The staff members are to be nominated by a special committee and voted upon by the class in the very near future.

FORMER COACH GIVES TALK ON SPORTSMANSHIP

Says Worst Lapses in Decency Are Made by the Spectators.

The principal speaker Friday morning was "Doc" Miller, former coach and present manual training teacher of the high school. He spoke on "Lack of Sportsmanship." A new song was introduced by Miss Gieson and three yell leaders were tried out, as a finish to the program.

In his talk Mr. Miller spoke of the lack of sportsmanship in the school room, the blame given to teachers for low grades being one of the most prominent. Then a few examples of poor sportsmanship were given, showing how a neighboring town once showed their appreciation for being conquered by Buchanan some years ago in foot ball and basket ball.

"The spectators, more often than the players, show poor sportsmanship," declared Mr. Miller. "There are four rules which every spectator should follow. Always remember that the name of the school counts more than the score; always show enthusiasm; accept the decision without questioning, for the referee is nearer and sees more than you do; recognize all good plays of either side."

Following this talk the double male quartet sang a new song entitled "Go you Buchanan," after which the entire group stood up and, through the efforts of the music instructor, Miss Olsen, learned the song. In conclusion, Miss Virginia Snowden, president of the Student Council, introduced Kathryn Port, Phil Hanlin and Maynard Fort, who were tried out as yell leaders. Other candidates will try out in coming Assembly programs and a vote will be taken.

JUNIORS MAKE BOOSTER DAY PLANS; ARRANGE YEARLY CLASS PARTY

Class President Harold Pierce opened the meeting with discussion on how the Juniors would participate in the Booster Day Parade. A committee consisting of Kathryn Reed, chairman, Elizabeth Montgomery, Mary Frlich, Walter Smith and John Zachman, was appointed to determine and arrange the float or banner to represent the class.

The question of a class party was brought up and discussed, and several committees for entertainment and refreshments were appointed.

Another problem of importance brought up was a means of raising money. A financing committee was appointed to discover and recommend ways and means of doing this, with Arthur Anderson, Dorothea Easley, Claude DeWitt and Ray Barbour.

The meeting adjourned with everyone looking forward to Booster Day and the Class Party.

Velmarian Club Picks Heads For New School Year

At 8:15 Friday morning, the dignified seniors of the English twelve class assembled in their classroom and organized, with due deliberation, the literary chief of the year. The following order of business took place. Election of officers, with Kenneth Dunbar as president, the able assistant of Robert Morse as vice president, the clerical values of Emma Bohl qualifying her for the position as secretary, and Robert Roe's ability used effectively as Literary Critic.

Staff Microphone Re-organized to Conform to Rules

Due to the fact that the Seniors are very busy, a readjustment has been necessary and has been made in the Microphone staff. The change was also made in view of the fact that participation in several major activities such as Debating, Annual Staff, Athletics, or Student Council puts too much responsibility and work on the shoulders of a few.

In order to eliminate this unbalanced state of affairs, the ruling has been made that a student cannot participate in several major activities at once. This automatically eliminated part of the staff elected at the beginning of the year.

A position on the staff heretofore has been elective, but considering the fact that reporters and editors are never elected, but appointed, it was thought appropriate to follow suit.

Literary Club Discusses Plans For Coming Year

On Thursday, September 27, Phi Kappa, the only high school honorary society, met to discuss the plans for the coming year. Due to vacancies, two new officers were elected, Don Wood as literary critic, taking the place of Homer Shoop, and Mr. Hubbard, who is to act as treasurer.

In language, this grade is studying the poem "How the Leaves Come Down."

In a written review of last week's spelling words, Ruth Wales and Ralph Bromley stood 100.

In anticipation of receiving their report cards and growth record, the boys and girls in Mrs. French's room have made envelopes. No more soiled report cards!

The boys and girls in Mrs. French's room have been much interested in learning about the proper kinds of food. In art, they have drawn fruits and vegetables. Besides learning about proper food habits, they are also learning other good health habits.

Billy Dan Carlisle was transferred to Mrs. Fisher's room on account of his doing good work. Diligence is the mother of good luck, Billy!

joined the boys and girls of Mrs. Fuller's room and they bid him welcome.

Fresh-Sophs to Stage the Annual Frolic On Oct. 18

Just to show that there are no hard feelings after the clash of the two classes at the Athletic field, the Sophomores will entertain the Freshmen on October 13.

At Sophomore Class meeting Monday Mary Jane Harkrider was appointed chairman of a committee which with the aid of Mr. Kaler, the class adviser, are to arrange in detail for the party.

This entertainment will introduce Freshmen to the social activities of the school and its success is important.

Student Council Plans 3d School Hallow'en Party

Plans are being made for the third annual high school party to be sponsored by the Student Council. In the council's last meeting the basic plans were made and several committees appointed.

The party will be held, unless further changes are made, on October 27th, in the high school gymnasium.

Parties given by the council the preceding three years were great successes, and the high school student body looks forward with pleasant anticipations to that time.

"Fightin' Outfit" for Otsego. We sincerely hope to beat Otsego, if for no other reason than the 6-0 defeat they handed us last year. The team may have looked fine against Decatur, but "Curly" has no end of work in preparing for Saturday.

All Class Meets To Be Held On Regular Detas

The practice of allowing class meetings to be called by the various presidents in order that problems concerning their classes may be solved has been abolished and every class is required to hold a meeting each month. The meetings will not be held after school, but during school hours. All meetings will be held at the same time.

H. S. Girls Make No-Hitch Hike To Niles Thurs.

With much ado seventeen hilarious girls started on the five mile hike to Niles, and arrived an hour and a half later with out a more serious accident than several blistered heels, irritated corns, and tired tongues from exercising woman's heritage so strongly.

After a debate held on the corner of Main street it was decided that the crowd should divide in order to secure quick service to satisfy the ravenous appetites developed in the fresh air.

When this very important function had been duly attended to, the groups repaired to the Reading Room where they enjoyed to the utmost the motion picture "Excess Baggage." At the close of this perfect evening they swarmed readily into waiting cars and were safely distributed back in Buchanan, ready to tell their exploits to their less fortunate classmates on the morrow.

Activities For Student Limited By H. S. Principal

A new ruling put into effect this year is going to cause the entire school to run on a different plane. Mr. Ormiston announces that no person will be allowed to participate in more than one major activity at a time. Due to this fact scheduled for some time in the Senior Play, which is usually first semester, is to be given during the last semester.

The Senior Class have recommended to the faculty that their annual Play be substituted for the traditional Class Night. This was thought advisable since almost every Senior is interested in athletics and so of course could not perform in a play during either the foot ball or basket ball season.

Miss Olson's Music Department plan to give their annual Operetta in December, while the Junior play will come the last week before spring vacation.

COUNTING OUR BLESSINGS

In the last six months we have traveled more than ten thousand miles in eastern and western states trying to buy a newspaper in a community where business conditions are normal. Whenever we went we met the opinion that business was a little better in the community we were visiting than it was in neighboring communities but that it was not what it should be.

Buchanan is the only locality we have visited where business is reported to have been very good during the past six months. As a result of our travels and observations we have come to the conclusion that Michigan is at present one of the most prosperous states and that Buchanan enjoys its full proportion of this prosperity. Every citizen with the interests of Buchanan at heart asks himself the question, "What of the future of Buchanan? What does it hold for me?" Too frequently in asking and answering that question we are influenced by passing conditions. It may be that shops are operating at reduced schedule at the time, or personal problems influence our answer. In other words, the close-up view hinders, rather than aids us in obtaining the proper standpoint on developments and what the future holds.

Buchanan has been relatively lightly hit by fluctuations in industrial activity and in the value of farm production. Buchanan is particularly fortunate in its location in one of the richest agricultural counties in the country, where diversification of production is widely practiced, and where the nearness to large markets affords a high price for farm products. The diversification of its basic industry and the resourcefulness of this industry's management has meant a steadily increased output and an enlargement of manufacturing facilities beyond the present housing capacity of the city.

The housing problem has been a hard nut to crack but the annual building operations, while not moving so rapidly as many of us would like to see, have made possible a healthy increase in population each year. It is not difficult to realize that Buchanan is on the way to a solution of one of its greatest problems. Today it appears that Buchanan is on the threshold of greater things.

A 70-INCH AUTOMOBILE
The interesting information is forthcoming that the Indian Motorcycle Company is experimenting at its plant in Springfield, Mass., with a type of automobile entirely new to this country at least.

The new car, which has advanced far enough for road tests, has a wheelbase of only 70 inches. It is a yard or so shorter than the Ford and the Chevrolet. The advantage in parking is obvious. Also its height is only about two-thirds that of the standard American automobile and still it is said to have comfortable riding qualities and power enough to climb any ordinary hill on high. The two-passenger model completed has a four cylinder motor with very small pistons and its mileage per gallon of gasoline must be phenomenal.

If one is disposed to think that the ultimate in automobile designing has been approached one should look at the pictures of the fine cars of 20 years ago. It is a world of change and progress does not stop all of a sudden. It may be that the next 20 years will witness as great changes as the last 20. It is conceivable, with the distressingly congested traffic conditions and the high cost of motoring, that the automobile of the future will look like a toy as compared with this year's models and still give the best of service. It may be that the Indian Motorcycle Company is on the right track in conducting these experiments.

MICHIGAN, A SUMMER RESORT

Governor Green says the greatest business opportunity offered the people of Michigan is to develop the summer resort possibilities. He would make the state the playground and vacation center for a score of nearby states. Michigan already has an excellent start in this direction and has the natural advantages for a great increase in tourist and resort business—an abundance of small lakes and rivers, good fishing, the right climate, cool nights, freedom from hay fever and other summer troubles, all within easy reach of millions of people eager to find comforts and conveniences for their summer vacations. Governor Green has no patience with the people who love to talk of the good old days and business in Michigan when the lumber trade was at its peak. He says the resort possibilities of the state can be further developed with little cost and, if visitors are treated with due consideration, they will bring more money to the state each summer than the lumber trade ever brought when it was at its best. He points out that a resort business, once established and wisely administered, will be of permanent advantage, yielding a large revenue each season and providing a market for the products of the state at home.

He has spoken at some length on this subject at a number of places, has asked the business men and promoters of the state to turn to the resort possibilities and develop them, but has wanted them in each talk to establish courtesy and fair dealing and maintain it. They want the best results. Anyone who has been over Michigan knows the governor has the right idea and has pointed out a solid line waiting further development. Each summer more people establish the vacation habit, it will grow with the years, summer vacations in Michigan can be made to equal the best in the country. The governor is wise in pointing out and emphasizing the opportunity. He is right in insisting on good treatment of visitors.

FARM LAND COMING BACK
Farm land is now selling below its intrinsic value. An old law of physics is that action is equal to reaction. The same rule generally applies to values. After an inflation there is always a depression before stability is reached. Land can now be purchased below its productive value. This condition cannot continue.

Foreclosures have been reduced. Most of the distressed land has come into the possession of those who held the mortgages or those impaired in earning capacity until the owner holds an increased equity. The Federal Land Bank in Wichita is selling farms. Until July 31 of this year 4.32 per cent of total loans were foreclosed during 11 years of business. On that date the investment in lands acquired through foreclosure was .86 per cent.

During the last month the Federal Land Bank in St. Louis has had 300 inquiries about Missouri farms. A year ago during the same period there were less than 30 inquiries. Similar conditions confront other agencies which have loaned money on lands and gained title to them. The tremendous crops of both wheat and corn supplemented by sales of all classes of live stock at higher prices than ever prevailed in time of peace will result in surplus funds for investment.

Land values are usually established by local purchasers. A deficiency in income has prevented many farmers from purchasing adjoining areas in recent years, although they thoroughly appreciated that values were too low. Many who have been worried by debts which have been liquidated are now potential purchasers.

With a continual increase in population, the development of farm machinery which makes it possible to operate larger farms, and the interest that all citizens are taking in the solution of farm problems there is reason to expect an improvement in land values in the near future.

The time appears to be almost at hand when a well dressed girl won't mind if some adoring member of the family gets out a photograph of her when she was a baby, with nothing on and sitting in a wash bowl or something, and shows it around to the guests of the evening, and that's another day we hadn't expected to live to see until just lately.

In our day there was supposed to be safety in numbers. The year yesterday we drove for quite a while behind a roadster in which a girl was sitting between two young men and hugging them alternately, if not synchronously.

There's a girl in our neighborhood who looks so different without her cosmetics that that there's hardly more than a family resemblance.

When the political orator intends to do a particularly good job of dodging he says: Now let us face the facts.

We do not dispute the fact, of which the Bible itself assures us, that the sins of the fathers are visited upon the children, but we often wonder why, this being so, one or two sets of children we know aren't worse than they are, even.

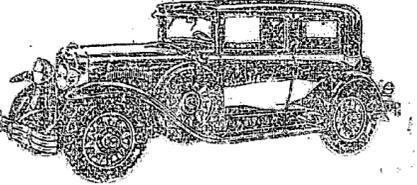

Probably as good a time as any to decide not to get rich quick, after all, is when the New York dealer in puts and calls, whatever they are, writes in his urgent way: Wire immediately so as not to lose your market.

Elder Will Hays says he's too busy to take part in the campaign, and by a curious coincidence, that is what we always say when asked if we're going somewhere and we aren't.

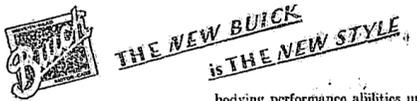

The girl with the prettiest feet in America, Miss Betty Starbuck by name, has had her picture taken with her feet showing to a point nine inches above her knees.

Nothing is responsible for more false hopes than one good cantaloupe.

Middle age is that period of life when you cease of getting ahead in staying even.

The Old Timers' Corner

Old Timer Writes of Social Customs Prevailing in Earlier Years

I have been reading Jane Wagner's letters regarding her experiences as "Schoolma'am" when Buchanan was YOUNG. All that was before my time, but I have heard the same stories from my elders, and know that Jane was one of the first ones in that line in our section of the State and am very glad to read her letters and hope to see more of them.

A few days ago I saw some pictures of myself and some friends in a snap shot that was taken ten years ago. The thing that impressed me was that my hair at that time must have been black, whereas now it is decidedly white. I do not think we realize the change that takes place as we go along through life. My face does not seem to have many, if any, wrinkles, except where I have laughed, all my life, but the hair is no longer black. I think it sort of mellowed us to have the tone of gray in the hair. I think that I am better looking since my hair is white. Ha, Ha. I mean that, for, before I had a sort of hard and businesslike look about the eyes, etc., and now it seems to have mellowed, and softened. I guess that change takes place, also, as we take on the softer hues of older age. I am not yet a "doddering old man," but I am not a "spring chicken" either. I look back and see the things I used to enjoy doing, with a smile, now, for they no longer attract me at all. I like to see and know what the younger ones are doing (and I see them doing the self-same things that we used to do, ourselves, a few short years ago) but for me to mix in that sort of thing is out of the question now.

I like to read more than I used to and I enjoy subjects and kinds of reading that I used to "poo-poo" when I was twenty years younger. We are just a part of Nature and are governed by Nature's laws. We can't be "colts" all our lives, so we might just as well make the best of it and enjoy it the best we can. There is always something good to find lying around loose, and why worry about the other things. Live to make something a little easier for the younger ones, and help make their lives complete than perhaps your own has been. Not advice, for they will not have any of that, you may be sure, but just do things that will help them, without their knowledge. That in my mind is the best way of giving or doing things, any way. It is the pleasure of giving, not the act of doing it that gives me pleasure.

Now when it comes to a matter of the ladies (God bless them) cutting off their hair and making themselves more comfortable, I think that is a step in the right direction. But I wish they would wear more clothes, especially around the legs, but I think they are right in making for more comfort in having short hair. I don't see any particular beauty in having a lot of long hair to keep fussing with, and half of them don't know how to fix it so it looks right well, so why not cut it off and be comfortable? I have seen so many and such a variety of legs in the past few years that they really are not a novelty at all, but I feel sorry for the poor things, for I know they must be cold and uncomfortable. In that way I guess I am old fashioned. I don't think it is essential to have the dresses sweeping the ground as they had them some years ago, but there should be a "medium" that would make for easy walking, etc., and at the same time give an air of modesty and decency. Some of the poor things have such homely looking legs, too. They are knock-kneed and bow legged and all sort of knobs and things on them, and we "mere men" would miss all that un-holy information if they would cover them up a wee bit, and let us wonder what sort of legs they really did have. It is like many other things. I used to entertain people in the art (?) of singing, and I found that it was always best to leave an audience wanting more, rather than to give them too much. So it seems to me. Men are by nature gallant and deferential to the other sex, and in my time, have seen many a man give his seat to a lady on the street car, etc. But we have seen too much. There isn't anything to guess about any more, and the ladies as so "manish" that they lost that charm and influence that they at one time held over men. I spoke in this wise to a lady that I know, a short time ago, and she informed me that she, for one, did not dress that way to attract or repel the masculine sex; but dressed as "fashion" said she should. Well, now, maybe she is right, but that attitude is now, with this generation, I think, for girls are girls, and they always will be, and they are mere animals, like the men, and if they are human, they are bound to be influenced by the desire to look well in the sight of the men. I know for a fact that men do the same thing in the opposite direction. Many a time I have put on my best shirt and tie, etc., to look as well as possible, when going out with some lady that I thought well of. I didn't expect her to think that I was the best looking thing in the whole world, either, but I didn't want her to be ashamed to go out with me, and for the reason that I considered her better than myself, or else I wouldn't have been so particular. How do you feel about that? Isn't that the typical feeling that a regular he-man has for the other sex? I have so many times heard the expression, "Oh, all men are alike." Maybe so. I know that they are all alike in that they like women, and I guess they are not far away from the standard in being that way. Likewise I believe that all women are alike, in that they really want to attract a man and get a meal ticket for life, and some of the real-er ones will help and do all within their power to help the mere-man, but more of them are apt to want all they can get and yell for more. That is where I am "old fashioned" again, they tell me. O very well, I acknowledge it, but I contend that we are here to help one another, no matter whether we are married to some one or not. The good that we can do, without making any fuss about it, is what counts for the making of a helpful life well done. Once I had a teacher, in school, and she wrote in my "autograph album" the following legend and it has often occurred to me and helped me a lot. It was this: "Do all the good you can and don't make any fuss about it." Pretty good stuff, I say, and whether the dear ladies wear any clothes at all or not, or whether they bob their hair or wear it long, seems to me, we are best off to let them rave and love them just the same.

OLD TIMER.

The following poem written by Ernest B. Cole, tells us what we old timers think of the Flag and Politics in general:

There's no land like my land,
Beneath the shining sun;
No other flag like my fair flag,
In all the world—not one.
One land, one tongue, one people,
To one flag, loyal, true—
No RED shall wave o'er my land
Without the white and blue.

There's grandeur in my land's mountains,
Contentment in her vales;
There's wealth in her broad prairies,
There's freedom in her dales;
In my land, all men are equal,
Her flag proclaims it, too—
No RED shall wave o'er my land
Without the white and blue.

There's majesty in Old Glory,
Hope in each stripe and star;
It heralds freedom, liberty,
To nations near and far.
Unsuited and triumphant,
Glorified, she floats anew—
No RED shall wave o'er my land
Without the white and blue.

News from New Troy

Robert Elder went to Hartford to attend the Fair Thursday. A large amount of work was accomplished at the M. E. Aid Society Wednesday which met at the Piper home. Six comforters were finished of the number to be made for J. D. Rood toward the furnishing of the new home he has recently bought.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Sowersby have been taking a vacation of two weeks, visiting with three of his sisters living in Fenville, Allegheny and Athens.

J. D. Dillfield had charge of the prayer meeting at the M. E. Church Wednesday evening. Special singing was a duet by Mrs. Arthur Pierson and brother, Ralph Sowersby, accompanied by a sister, Miss Edna Stowe on the piano. The interest in the services is increasing.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Morley are driving a new Whippet Coupe, purchased of A. Ritchie. Now that the equinoctial period is about over, we are looking for and expecting fair weather. The vineyards are ready to pick and success in harvesting the grapes depend upon the weather.

The Robert Liskey family have moved from the S. E. Platcher residence to the one formerly owned by Dr. D. W. Corey.

Miss Louisa Addison, daughter of Roy Addison, of Wisconsin, spent Saturday night and Sunday with her grandmother, Mrs. Flora Addison. Miss Louisa is taking a commercial course at one of Chicago's high schools.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Peterson of Oak Park, Ill., spent the week end at the S. M. Keen home.

Miss Rebecca Barnhart, assistant in the department of educational research in the Battle Creek schools, spent the week end at her home here.

Mrs. Mary Coop and sister, Mrs. R. B. McKen, spent several days in Chicago last week.

Mrs. Robert Elder has gone to Shelby to visit a niece, Mrs. Genevieve Espey, for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. James Roberts and children, of Chicago, spent the week end with relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Barnhart have received a letter from Cadet P. A. Fiver, a nephew of the latter, who is in training in the United States Army Air Corps in March field, Riverside, California. The letter is very interesting, describing his course of study and training. He entered with 125 others July 1st, but not all are there at the present time, as the instructors, thinking the student is not making satisfactory progress, will send him up with the check pilot and he either changes pilots or sends him home, and many of the original number have been sent. Not all sent are incapable of flying, but may make good commercial flyers; they are just not good enough for army pilots. Paul writes his first feeling when he went up alone was one of exultation that he had at last made the grade. As no rain falls there from May until October they had no experience with clouds but some clouds appeared one day and Paul was scheduled to go. He writes that his instructor took him above the clouds for a little ride and it was very beautiful with the clouds forming a snow white sea as far as the eye could reach. Here and there a mountain peak struck its head through the clouds level for all the world like an island. It was a great experience. I hated to go down. Paul also speaks about our new school house. He said "I suppose the kids are starting in the new school building. It is a great thing for them, also for New Troy." He was a graduate from the old building in 1925, also from Michigan State College in 1928.

Mrs. Ada Boyce, of Buchanan visited with her sister, Mrs. S. E. Fletcher, and family Sunday.

A large number of patrons of the school turned out to greet the teachers, old and new, at the first meeting of the P. T. A. Thursday evening. The time was pleasantly spent in greetings, sociability and viewing the new building, of which the public is justly proud. It is fire-proof and modern in every respect, contains 12 rooms, a complete kitchen, auditorium, gymnastium, and is well ventilated and lighted. Ice cream and cake were served as refreshments. Rally Day exercises were held in the M. E. church Sunday. Although the speaker did not appear as was expected, the program of music was fine. The church was decorated with beautiful flowers. Several strangers were present, also many from out of town. The new minister, Rev. Conklin, sent to us from Conference last week, did not arrive, but sent word he would be with us Sunday, October 7th. Everybody invited to come and hear him.

Indigestion Immediate Relief!
What most people call indigestion is usually excess acid in the stomach. The food has soured. The stomach remedy is an alkali which neutralizes acids. But don't use crude helps. Use what your doctor would advise. The best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 50 years since its invention it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in its effect, so harmless, so efficient. One tasteless spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in acid. The results are immediate, with no bad after-effects. Once you learn this fact, you will never deal with excess acid in the crude ways. Go learn—now—why this method is supreme. Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles E. Phillips since 1875.

Concrete floors will reduce our costly fire bill
Popular sentiment has demanded that our modern hotels, apartment houses, schools, theatres and office buildings be fire safe throughout. To be thoroughly fire safe a building should have concrete floors beneath the hard wood, linoleum, carpeting or other surfacing. If we demand fire safe construction in larger buildings we should also demand it in our homes:
A large proportion of residence fires start in the basement. Concrete first floors will prevent them from spreading to the upper rooms. In addition, concrete floors prevent structural sagging and plaster cracking.

This year Buchanan is to have three yell leaders, one whose way will be paid to all games, and the others will have the home games.

Son: "Not on your life, old thing. Let the blighters scramble for me."
