WORK ON NEW HOSPITAL TO BEGIN MONDAY

Dr. Wallace to Build a 5 Room Addition to Residence.

Equipment To Be Modern WILL BE AVAILABLE TO PATIENTS OF ANY PHYSICIAN

Construction work on an addition of five rooms to the residence of Dr. Paul E. Wallace at 112 West Front Street, to serve as a community hospital, will be started Monday and pushed to completion as rapidly as men and materials can be gotten together.

This addition will be furnished as three private hospital rooms and two wards. Dr. Wallace states that all facilities will be open to the use of any physician in town on the same basis as he will use himself. It will be especially fitted for use in surgical, obstetrical and emergency cases of kinds that require immediate attention.

The construction of this new hospital was decided on after attempts to continue the former hospital on some readjusted basis had failed, and after other plans to construct a new and separate institution had not borne fruit.

While it is to be built in connection with a private residence, Dr. Wallace has stated that he desires that it should serve the interests of the entire public, regardless of their choice of a physician.

On that grounds, friends of the doctor who believe in the necessity of some sort of hospital here are interested in securing the public support that was accorded to the other hospital just closed.

The history of hospitals in Buchanan and in neighboring cities is ample demonstration that they cannot be entirely self-supporting unless they charge fees which are beyond the reach of the average patient.

Dr. Wallace states that he is adding about $2,000 in room and equipment over and above his present facilities, which he is financing himself.

Former Buchanan Teacher is Asst. Supt. in Chicago

The following clipping taken from a Chicago newspaper and relating the promotion of B. F. Buck to the position of assistant superintendent of Chicago schools will interest many Buchanan people who will remember when Buck started his career as an instructor in the Buchanan schools under the superintendency of Ayleshire, during the years 1886-7.

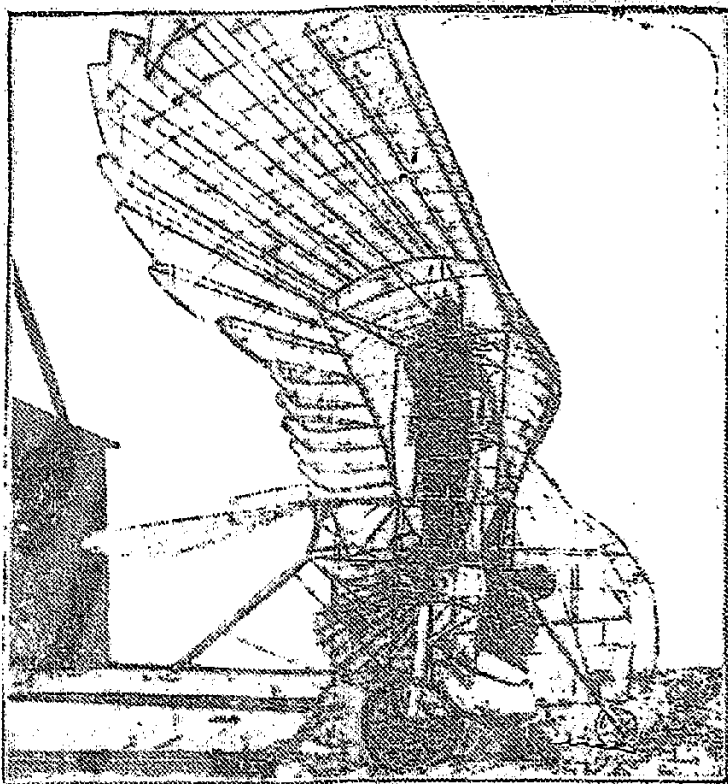

His career since that time is related in the following: Benjamin F. Buck, for many years principal of the Nicholas Senn High School, who recently was appointed assistant superintendent of schools, will be honored by the Senn faculty at a dinner tonight at the Edgewater Beach Hotel. More than 100 present and former Senn teachers are expected to be present.

Mr. Buck has been connected with the Chicago school system for more than thirty years. He was principal of the Austin High School for six years, leaving there in 1900 to take charge of Lake View. When Senn High School was built he was selected as its first principal and has served in that position continuously until this fall. Then he was appointed assistant superintendent.

The new assistant superintendent was educated at Michigan State Normal college and at the University of Michigan, where he graduated in the class of 1893. His home is at 844 Greenwood avenue, Glencoe.

The Thirty Club held its first meeting of the club year Monday at the home of Mrs. Fred Howe. The subject for roll call "An art memory of my vacation" brought forth many interesting descriptions of beauty spots in different parts of the United States. After a short business meeting Mrs. Chas. Boyle, the retiring president, presented the new president, Mrs. A. B. Smith, who responded with a short greeting. Mrs. George Jennings gave a sketch of "Madam Butterfly" and its author, Puccini, and followed her paper with a Victrola selection from this opera. Refreshments and a social hour followed the meeting.

William A. Comstock, Democratic choice for the governorship of Michigan, will speak on the issues of the campaign in Buchanan at 10 a. m. Wednesday morning, October 17, while enroute on a tour through Berrien county.

Comstock will arrive Tuesday evening at Niles, making an address there. At 10 a. m. he will arrive here and speak at a place to be designated later. From Buchanan he will go to Galien, where he will make another short stop.

Goat Victim of Whispering Campaign, Says Owner of Lone Goat Ranch

The goat is an animal which has been the victim of a whispering campaign, which has sadly misrepresented the noble nature of that animal, according to Mrs. C. A. Bennett, of the Lone Elm Goat Farm located just north of Buchanan on the Berrien Springs Road.

The public has acquired most of its ideas about goats from those close and accurate students of natural life, the artists of the comic strips. According to these naturalists, the goat is an omnivorous animal with a penchant for breakfasting on clothesline contents with discarded automobile fender for dessert, and an inclination to make sudden attacks in the rear.

All these representations are not only untrue, according to Mrs. Bennett, but quite the contrary of the truth. The goat is very dainty in its appetite, much more than cows, and will not even eat hay once it has dropped to the floor of the barn. So affectionate are they that the ewes are prone to turn and lick your face while you are milking them, and the young weathers follow you around like affectionate puppies.

The raising and milking of goats is a business with Mr. and Mrs. Bennett, who now have a herd of 18, of which they milk from four to five constantly. The milk is bought mainly by families which have

ILLINOIS MEN ENROUTE TO BUCHANAN COME TO GRIEF IN DITCH NORTH GALIEN

SHUCKS, YOU AIN'T HEARD NOTHIN' YET

It is alleged that a news article published in last week's issue of the Record has had the effect of disrupting two families and at least temporarily estranging two couples.

Much as we regret such incidents, in the interest of the larger good of Buchanan we feel that it is necessary that we go on with our campaign for uplift regardless of the result to the individual. As an indication of the conditions that prevail here we relate the following.

About a month ago three exponents of the kind of feminine loveliness that they buy by the can and swab on with a piece of shingle blew into Buchanan, posing as normal school students selling subscriptions to magazines in order to earn fee scholarships.

Briefly, their method was like this: Walking up to a candidate who looked like a fairly easy mark, the lady would an arm through his and leaned trustfully up against him, her eyes gazing sweetly up into his at a distance of from 14 to 15 inches, and her breath playing softly about his Adam's apple.

While she feebly clasped one of his hands and patted it gently, she let loose on him a fine something like this: "Mister, don't you wanna vote for me? I got to get 300 votes to get a free scholarship in the Polylog Normal school. Every subscription to the Horse shoes Gazette gives me one vote. Only one dollar. No? Well, fifty cents? Will you give me a quarter, then? Aw, come on, Mister. Just twenty-five cents. What's twenty-five cents, anyway?"

And so on, the lady coddling closer as the argument grew warmer and ever and anon, stretching up on tip toes and pressing the end of the prospect's nose with a playful finger.

As a result of this sort of sales campaign, 37 Buchanan men signed on the dotted line, of whom 30 were married, from which you may draw your own conclusion. The pleasant man in town had a scholarship candidate hanging on either arm, striding them along, for three quarters of an hour without coming through for a cent's worth.

The Record is in possession of all the names.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hamilton attended a two day educational "school" held by the Globe Casket Manufacturing Co. at Lansing Wednesday and Thursday of last week. The meeting was closed by a banquet.

Mrs. Nort Woods of 301 Michigan street, left Friday for Chicago and Blue Island, Ill., where she will make an indefinite visit with her sisters.

young babies, or by invalids who find goat's milk more digestible than cow's milk. The globules of butter are one fifth as large in a goat's milk as in cow's milk, which renders it easier of assimilation. There is a good demand for the milk at 25 cents per quart.

During July, August and September Bennitt sold 209 quarts of milk, their sales during the summer increasing as follows: April 22 quarts, May 30 quarts, June 44 quarts, July 36 quarts, August 76 1/2 quarts, Sept., 97.5 quarts.

School Officials Plan County Music League at County Meeting

Plans for a Berrien County interscholastic music association were set in motion yesterday afternoon at the meeting of the school superintendents of the county held at Galien.

A committee with Harold Stark of Buchanan as chairman was appointed to meet in Buchanan within the next two weeks to draw up definite plans and regulations for the conduct of the association and to fix on dates for a county meet to be held late in the year, along lines similar to the district and state meets. Contests will include group and individual singing, orchestras, bands and other features.

The meeting was held at the home of Bert Babcock of Galien, with Supt. C. F. Dorr in charge. School officials present were E. P. Clark of St. Joseph, E. M. Berry of New Troy, E. G. Taft of Eau Claire, F. W. Crawford of Niles, E. L. Stewart of Berrien Springs, R. R. Sheller of Watervliet, M. H. Shearer of Stevensville, Theo. V. Eddy of Three Oaks, Harold Stark of Buchanan, Close of Coloma, Reed of Bridgman, and Dorr of Galien. Dovaigiac is included in the Berrien County association, on account of its proximity to Berrien county schools, although it is in Cass county. Superintendent Reed of Bridgman was elected president.

The meeting was followed by a banquet at the Slocum hotel south of Galien, with Supt. Dorr as host. Several Galien high school girls served the banquet, which was immensely enjoyed by the guests. The next meeting of the association will be held at Coloma with Supt. Close of that place in charge.

New rules of the organization have changed the election time from December to October. At this meeting plans will be made for sending pajamas to the Veterans' Hospital at Battle Creek. Clothing and clean bedding which has been assembled by the Auxiliary for shipment to Florida for the relief of the victims of the Florida disaster, will be sorted and packed for shipment.

GUILTY MAN ESCAPES

Celebration of Wedding Anniversary Interrupted By Accident

The fifth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Norris Bachman of Galien came near turning out tragically Sunday evening, when the former was forced to swerve so sharply to avoid collision with a drunken driver on US-31 between South Bend and Niles that his car overturned twice, throwing Mrs. Bachman through the top, serious injuries resulting.

Mr. and Mrs. Bachman were returning from the late show at So. Bend, in company with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Nogle, also of Galien. At 11:45 p. m., about a mile and a half south of the state line, a car approaching rapidly from the opposite direction swerved directly in front of them to enter a driveway on the west side of the road. The car suddenly loomed directly in the path of Bachman about ten feet ahead, and he swerved his car so sharply as he could to the left to avoid a collision, at the same time jamming on his brakes, so hard that his machine lost its equilibrium and hurtled two complete revolutions down the center of the concrete pavement.

When the car came to a stop it was on its side, and Mrs. Bachman had been thrown partially through the top and was suspended in it.

The others found themselves uninjured save for bruises and slight cuts. Mrs. Bachman was in a more serious condition and was taken by a passing motorist to the Epworth hospital at South Bend, where it was found that one of her kidneys had been torn loose from the spine. After a couple of days developments her condition was pronounced not serious.

The car was damaged considerably, the left fenders and running board being mashed, every glass shattered save the windshield, and the left rear wheel sprung.

Immediately after the accident, Mr. Bachman ran into the driveway where he had seen the car disappear but all that he could learn was that the driver of the car had apparently been drunk, and that he had immediately dimmed his lights and turned and driven out again, according to the statement of the residents.

An effort is being made to learn his identity. Norris Bachman is employed in Floyd Lintner's Garage at Galien as a salesman. Since his mother, Mrs. Calvin Bachman, left for California, he and his wife had been making their home with Mr. Calvin Bachman in the Bend of the River, district. They had planned a further celebration of their fifth wedding anniversary by inviting some friends for a social gathering at their home on the following evening.

A. G. Hunter Is Surprised Tues. On 86th Birthday

Tuesday, October 2nd, was a happy day for A. G. Hunter, who was pleasantly surprised with gifts and a shower of birthday cards from friends and members of his Sunday school class. Not many are privileged to live to see the 86th birthday anniversary, but such is the case with Mr. Hunter who was born a few miles north of Buchanan and has spent his entire life in this vicinity. He never ceases to marvel at the improved roads and mode of travel as compared with 70 and 80 years ago when roads were new and rough and ox and horse teams were the chief dependents for travel, hauling and farming. He is especially appreciative of all these improvements since he has been able to watch the steady progress through the long years of development. His farm, located about 5 1/2 miles north of Buchanan, has been the family home for nearly 50 years and has for some years been under the management of his son, Fred and wife. The homestead is especially dear to him as he is familiar with every tree and shrub, and every foot of the soil. Even in his advanced years he finds much comfort and joy in doing his bit in gathering fruit and helping in other ways. For a number of years he has been spending the winter months at the home of his daughter, Mrs. C. C. Runner, where also, during the summer months he spends the week-ends. He is a regular attendant at church and Sunday school and prizes these privileges as important events in his daily life, even as in the many long years past the church has been a large factor in his life.

New Pollywog School Building Is Dedicated Last Wednesday Evening

Modern Standard School Erected on Ashes of Old Building.

Five miles southwest of Buchanan in the wildest and most beautiful part of the rough, wooded "backwoods" that separate Postage Prairie from Torre Coupe Prairie, there was dedicated on Wednesday night of last week the new Pollywog school, the third building to bear that name in the past three quarters of a century.

On the records of Berrien county there is no Pollywog school. Several years ago a county superintendent objected to the title, suggesting that "that was no fit name for a school."

Accordingly she changed its name on the records to "Oak Forest" school and (thus it is officially known) the Pollywog school it will remain in the memories and affections of the hundreds of people scattered in all parts who first learned their ABCs and the Rule of Three within its walls.

The new building is one of the best rural schools in the county, built according to plans drawn by the experts of the state department of education and approved by them after construction as exemplified in every way. It has windows on one side, an approved heating plant, desks according to specifications.

The fact that the building is located in a spot so remote and wild has aroused some curiosity. It was so located, however, in order to center the distance between each side of the district. Several Union movements have been started to move the school houses from the woods to the north or south, but each time it was given up, due to the fact that such transfer would leave some family too remote.

It is doubtless a fact, however, that the beautiful location is one of the factors that have so endeared the school to its former pupils. It is likely that the Pollywog school is the only one in Berrien county which has such a large organized alumni association, which holds a reunion annually.

TEN PIN CLUB IS ORGANIZED FOR 27 WEEKS

HANDICAP LEAGUE MAY BE FORMED LATER IN YEAR

B. PROUD IS HEAD

A Buchanan Bowling League was organized and a meeting held Friday evening at the alleys, ten teams being organized, of which five are new combinations of bowling talent and five are consolidations of the most dependable players of last year's teams.

Bud Proud was elected to head the city organization this year with Harry Crabtree as secretary and Frank Marson as treasurer. A schedule of five games per week which began last Monday night and will last until April, when it will conclude in a tournament. Each team will contribute 75 cents toward a prize fund which will aggregate in excess of $200 by the end of the tournament. It is likely that a handicap league will be formed later of less experienced players.

Proud Does Self Proud B Highest Pin Busting Mark

Friday night was a proud night for Bud Proud.

That was the night when Bud Proud did himself proud by nipping in the end the budding aspirations of the other would-be champs of the Buchanan Bowling Club.

Proud started by shooting a fast roll from the corner right into the 3-G combination for a strike. "Fine, but he can't do it again," observed the hopeful rivals. But he did it again for eight times straight, finally snapping for a spare in the ninth frame. Again in the tenth the best he could do was a spare, which allowed him an extra chance. This time he came through for another strike with a score of 289, the best ever made in the Buchanan bowling alley. The former high mark was set by Fenrod, who is now in California.

Hints For the Home

by Nancy Hart

Easy Ice-Box Meals. If the ice-box meal is well planned and balanced, almost any family will welcome it once or twice a week and 'tis a splendid change for the cook. One good menu is:

iced cream of beet soup, stuffed pork tenderloin (sliced cold), potato chips, salad of mixed cooked vegetables, molded in lemon-flavored gelatin, grape ice-box pudding, iced drink.

Freshen Withered Apples. Wash and clean withered apples and place in a stone crock filled with salt brine one handful of salt to every three gallons of water. Change water every six hours until apples appear fresh.

Keep Old Potatoes White. To prevent old potatoes from turning dark when cooked, add a teaspoon of vinegar to the water when it starts to boil. This will keep potatoes white and leaves no taste of vinegar afterward.

Salt Kills Plant Pests. If you will work a little salt around the inside of flower pots, baskets or boxes, it will kill any bugs that may be at the roots, and also act as a fertilizer.

MAKES DRAPERIES HANG STRAIGHT. Sew taped weights across the bottom of draperies on the inside of hem and they will always hang trim and straight.

With the return to indoor life in fall comes the desire to add something new to home-furnishings. And in choosing them it is as well to remember that individual pieces are always in better taste than "sets" of furniture—whether for the living room, dining room or bed room.

In some of the most charming interiors we find no attempt is made to "match" things. There is merely a fine sense of harmony between the pieces which, while they differ from each in details of design and color, are in sufficient sympathy to make them live together happily.

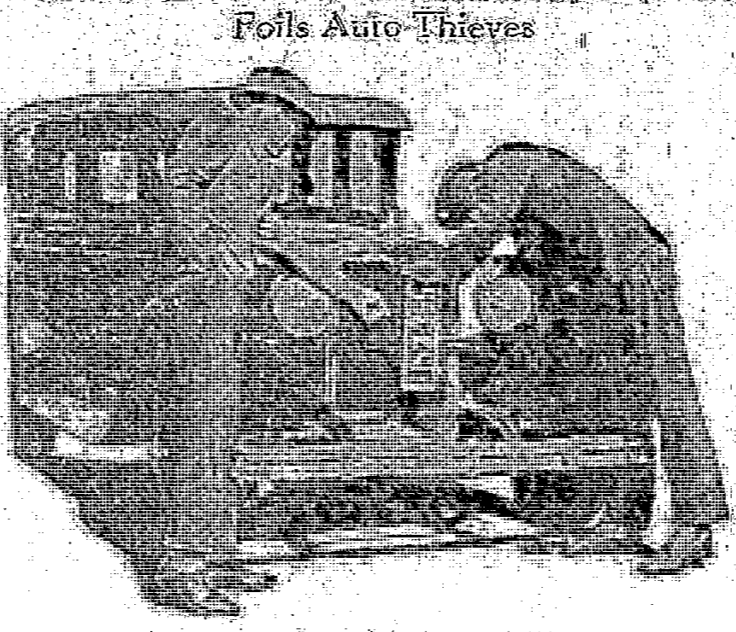

These are the rooms that remain interesting year after year because they never bore us with too much sameness.

About Your Health

Things You Should Know

By John Joseph Gaines, M.D.

"WITHOUT SURGERY"

The slogan of the medical charlatan. Knowing the universal dread of operations (and who does not?), the quack advertises himself "relieved without surgery," greets the eye from almost every advertising column. Victims are warned of the dreadful scars left by surgeons; of the fearful hemorrhages induced by the cruel knife! All this, so that he may produce fibrous lumps with his "mild serums" without surgery. I suppose our versatile miracle-worker would refuse rational treatment, and let a large abscess poison a patient to death, unless kindly nature burst the thing and brought relief and freedom from danger. Un-like infections, "serums" that remain for years, and are far more of a menace than the "scars" that no capable surgeon leaves.

The actual fact is, no real piles tumor is ever properly gotten rid of without a minor operation. Suppose the "pile" in a venous case; painful in the extreme, acute, throbbing; who would be so silly as to fool with such a thing with "serum injections," when a small incision will turn the clot out at once, relieve the pain immediately, and cure the trouble? Most piles are varicose in character, and fibrous tissue forms, making the thing permanent, unless removed completely. I have known patients in suffer along a month or two at a time, merely dabbling with a condition that could have been done away with in twenty minutes of skillful surgery.

All of which means that the quack is the costliest investment a sick man can make, paying invariably money in advance. Getting what?

Time to Whisper

When Donald went to church for the first time his mother took care to impress it upon his childish mind that he must whisper. About midway of the services and in a very solemn past master Donald audibly inquired in an undertone: "Mother, is it time to whisper now?"

Waste in Cattle Raising

Raising animals for food is enormously wasteful, a Danish expert insists. One beef ox will eat in three years, he says, grain and other useful food that would suffice six men. Yet the carcass of the slaughtered ox will keep one man alive only 100 days, indicating that cattle raising wastes vegetable food sufficient for 20 men to produce animal food enough for only one.

Music Study Universal

Winter College of Music in London reports that the teaching of music has spread to every civilized corner of the world. The authorities of the school are particularly pleased with the progress made by former cannibal tribes in the South Sea Islands, whose talents have been successfully diverted from gastric engagements to the composing and playing of music.

Postal Zones

According to United States postal regulations, the country is divided into units of areas half of a degree square, which unit of area forms a separate center for eight encircling zones with radii of from 50 to 1,800 miles for the first seven zones, the eighth zone covering the territory beyond the 1,800-mile limit. Parcel post rates are regulated in accordance with these zones.

Canyon Cut by River

It is believed that the Colorado river cut the canyon through which it runs. A vast plain was traversed by the river. Territorial forces began to raise the plain. As fast as the plain rose the water cut a bed, so that now it is a mile from the top of the gorge, at about the same level that it has been through geological ages.

Bar Bell Exercises

Bar bells are still used in gymnasiums for body development. Among the noted bar bell users was Hecuba Sall, who did the same bend correctly seven times with a bar bell of 440 pounds across his shoulders. This was done at Yale university. H. P. Hansen of Copenhagen did the same exercise 65 times with 277 pounds.

Cathedral and Church

Cathedral designates a church which has a bishop's chair or is the headquarters of the see of a bishop. In other words, the cathedral is the mother church of a diocese.

Beasts of Burden in War

About 40,000 camels were used in the Palestine campaign of the World War and the Italians used about 100,000 donkeys in their campaign.

This Week

ERIC, THE ROBOT BE POLITE TO QUAFI A HUMAN TIME CLOCK NITROGEN REPLACING GOLD
An exhibition in London introduces "Eric, the Robot," a man-shaped wooden and metallic machine that rises to its feet, stretches out an arm to command silence and makes a speech.

The shiny, metallic man-machine its startling yellow eyes lighted by electricity, frightens spectators.

Some workers will dread the possibilities of competition by machine men. But there is no danger. Modern clothes making machinery was first used England built forts to protect the machinery from enraged workers, convinced that it would starve them.

Those machines employed more men than ever at better wages.

Every efficient new machine increases prosperity, especially that of workers; by increasing man value. With an ox team a man was worth $1 a day. With a locomotive he is worth $10.

Mr. Quafi, French Arab who best all runners of the world in the Olympic marathon, is here.

Nature, producing him, seems to have had a greyhound in mind. His legs are almost as thin as a greyhound's and, quite tall he weighs only 124 pounds.

The Spirit Of Hallowe'en!

All the mystery of Hallowe'en—the dark of night, the moon, the grotesque pumpkin and, of course, the beautiful girl in the person of Miss Aubrey Ferris—are here. To be sure, the witch and broom are missing, but why a witch when beauty will serve?

Quafi is a citizen of the French Republic, and although many sporting Americans that see him run will not know it, his ancestors of ancient Arabia are ancestors to whom our civilization and its science owe a great deal.

Those old Arabs were learned in science, mathematics, and many lines when our ancestors in England were hiding in swamps and our ancestors in Ireland were running over hills and bogs not much gressed, their great king putting aside his cloak of raw hide in the presence of a French visitor, revealing a king with nothing on him.

Many words that we use every day, sofa, alcohol, many terms in chemistry come from the Arabic.

Raymond S. Flint, of Chicago, is called the human time clock. He remembers where he was, what happened every hour, every minute of the last ten years. In four months of this year, for instance, he spent 965 hours in sleep.

of life. Every square mile of air above the earth's surface carries twenty million tons of nitrogen, enough to last the world twelve years. Any way of getting that nitrogen out of the air cheaply would be marvelously important, to farmers, especially.

Judge Jarecki, of Chicago, says that city will enlist 10,000 men to guard the polls in November. He doesn't want any more "pineapple" politics. "Pineapple," you know, is Chicago's playful euphemism for an explosive bomb.

If pineapples only were used in the Chicago campaign, it wouldn't be so bad. But automatics, machine guns and brass knuckles added to the "pineapples" makes one way of the voter hard, unless he votes with the gang.

BUCHANAN GRID WARRIORS WALK ON OTSEGO 24-0 VISITORS SCORE ONCE AGAINST RESERVES IN LAST PERIOD

Buchanan defeated Otsego 24-0 in Saturday of the home field, swinging the 6-0 defeat Otsego slipped over on their last year. The "Rightin' Outfit" had the ball in hostile territory most of the first quarter, but was unsuccessful in its attempt at making goals.

However, by the second quarter they had felt out their opposition and formed some ideas. Starting on Otsego's 37 yard line Cooper knocked off twelve yards around left end. Wilcox took the pigskin around the same end for twenty-two yards more, putting the ball on Otsego's three yard line. Otsego tried to hold and almost did. For three made only one yard the first try; the second shot the ball was fumbled but recovered, and Pierce again plunged and made the first touchdown. The kick was wild, leaving the score 6-0.

Otsego received and the ball changed hands twice again before the "Outfit" scented the goal again. Wilcox covered eight yards from his own thirty-nine yard line. Captain Savoldi followed up with twenty-four yards more around left end, and putting the ball on Otsego's 29 yard line where they took time out. Time in again. Cooper gained five yards, Wilcox eleven. Pierce eight, and Savoldi five more for the second touchdown. The score remained 12-0, the pass going wild. The half was soon called.

Otsego received the ball starting the second half. After a couple of exchanges the "Rightin' Outfit" received the ball on Otsego's thirty-five yard line. Savoldi made five, Wilcox two, Clem one, and Pierce eight, for first down. Pierce then made a pretty run, slipping through the opposition for twenty-one yards and the third touchdown. The score was 18-0, the kick going wild. The third quarter ended as Roe received a punt from Otsego on his forty-five yard line. The fourth quarter, Cooper, Pierce and Wilcox carried the ball to the twelve yard line from which Clem gained four, and Cooper went around left end for the fourth and last touchdown for Buchanan. The goal falling, the score stood 24-0. Otsego received the ball, made one down, and then Adams punted to Buchanan's one foot line. Buchanan took time out, coming back and punting to their ten yard line. Curtis of Otsego tried once in vain, but in the next down a penalty for some technical error was called on Buchanan, putting the ball on their one yard line. Walters then made a successful plunge for Otsego's lone touchdown. Adams' kick went wild, leaving the score 24-6 in Buchanan's favor.

- The lineup was: Buchanan: Smith, Knight, Bristol, Dempsey, Dunbar, Roe, Savoldi (C), Cooper, Wilcox, Pierce. Otsego: Adams, Fisher, Newton, Montague, Venema, Gilmore, Newton, Walters, LaDuke (C), Thorp, Hoke.

- Buchanian: 12 6 6-24 Otsego: 0 0 0 6-6

Buchanan made 288 yards to their opponent's 59. She also made eleven first downs to Otsego's three. Buchanan attempted six passes, one good for seventeen yards; Otsego tried ten, two being good for eleven yards. The substitutes were: Buchanan, Easton for Knight, who received a badly twisted knee, but it is hoped he will be able to play next Saturday against Dowagiac; Morse for Cooper, Fingst for Wilcox, Squiers for Dempsey, Letcher for Fette, Vincent for Roe; Otsego: Richardson for Hoke, Bancroft for Adams, Adams for Hoke, Hoke for Walters.

ROB ROY

How much President Coolidge thought of Roy Roy, his pet white collie, was emphasized in the circumstances surrounding the dog's death. Upon discovering that the dog's illness was out of the ordinary, the president had the animal removed to Walter Reed Hospital, with its extensive facilities. When the dog died, the President plainly showed his sorrow.

Rob Roy had been the President's companion for five years. A native of Wisconsin, his name was Oshkosh when he was given to the President. Mrs. Coolidge named him. The President early showed his preference for Rob Roy, although the White House grounds with pets of every description, some of them temporary and some of them permanent acquisitions. Rob Roy invariably went on trips with the Coolidges, he frequented the executive offices, the President never walked in the White House grounds without him. It is even said that the dog was permitted in the White House dining room at times.

In the years he has been in office President Coolidge has had many acquaintances, but almost no intimates. His liking for Rob Roy he once explained by saying that the dog never lied to him, had never broken a confidence and never had a favor to ask. Few White House callers could command as clean a bill of health. It was perhaps typical of the friendship between the two that the President the dog was "Robert". Dogs have thus played a major role in both the Harding and Coolidge administrations. It was "Fido" since immortalized in bronze, who was the favorite of the Hardings. What other animal friend of man, except the horse, could so easily adapt himself to man's estate, whether it be the White House or a humble cottage?

THE POOR BOY'S CHANCES

Even Mr. Hoover sometimes makes American statements that are hardly justified by the facts. In the generally admirable paragraph quoted by the Red Cross magazine and suppressed by the New York school authorities, he said, while laudably expressing his gratitude to the opportunities of this country: "In no other land could a boy from a country village without inheritance or useful friends look forward with unbounded hope."

Wait, the chance for an ambitious and able American boy are, of course, better than for boys of the same calibre in other countries. Great Britain, however, has seen Lloyd George, a poor Welsh boy, educated through the strenuous sacrifices of a blacksmith uncle, rise without inheritance or influential friends to be successively chancellor of the exchequer and member or general manager of the British empire. It has seen the Scottish stable boy, Ramsay MacDonald, advanced to the same eminence. France has witnessed Railway Association, and that includes all large systems, will refuse to use wooden cars in interstate shipments after Jan. 1, 1931. That action has been under consideration for years. Decision has been reached, and it spells the doom of the wooden car. Railways may use their wooden equipment in shipments in a single state, but that of course cannot be followed long. Very few wooden cars have been built in recent years, most cars of that construction are old cars, as they are retired from service they will be replaced with steel cars.

While the Interstate Commerce Commission had a part in pushing the steel passenger coaches into use on the railways, the railways have voluntarily gone over to the steel freight car. With longer freight trains and higher speed, the wooden cars became a menace. They will not stand the strain of modern operation and their breakdowns have caused many disastrous wrecks. The steel freight cars became an economic necessity if modern methods in transportation were to be continued.

Builders of steel freight cars will be feeling heavy business as the steel passenger coaches are changed. More than 400,000 new steel cars will be needed to replace the wooden cars and bring equipment up to a point that meets present day needs. It will be an important bit of business for the time when a girl might have the finest looking legs in the world and still win a beauty contest.

Nothing can be longer than a half hour speech, even if the time limit is enforced.

Another reason why we don't care especially about going down in history is that the historian would get it wrong anyway.

Eternal vigilance is the price of not being bumped into.

A Rich Man's Darling or a Poor Man's Slave?

FOR a girl reared in her father's saloon, Anna's exquisite beauty seemed incredible. Yet how she loathed her surroundings! If someone would only make her way and give her a chance for real happiness.

When wealthy Carl Morton, struck by her beauty, offered to "adopt" her—give her a lovely home, beautiful clothes—everything—it seemed her dreams had come true. But when Anna realized that she was simply being "bought," she flamed with revolt. Since

Frank was poor, but loved her—wanted to marry her. But at thought of the future, Anna's heart quailed. Life with Frank meant honorable marriage—but it also meant more poverty, hardship and struggle. Could she do it? Where honest love and her own honor worth the sacrifice? Carl Morton, who offered her every luxury, would still welcome her. Would it not after all be better to be a rich man's darling than a poor man's slave? Don't miss the rest of this profoundly moving story. ## Old Timer Tells of Fishing Along Old St. Joe River

What do you say, we go fishing, today?

All right, and we get out the poles, and troll lines and all the gear that go with it, hitch up "Old Fan" and "Jule" to the spring wagon, and we are off.

Now it didn't much matter where we went, for we knew the best places to find what we were after. The lakes were full of the "finned" family, and it all depended upon yourself how you came out. We went to Weaver Lake or Clear Lake or any of the other lakes and hired a boat, and the fun was on. Fish are like human beings, they bite at things that LOOK all right and in that way they are CAUGHT. They are hungry at certain times, and you have to live on the farms or in small towns to understand that and many other little things. After a hard rain, when so much food for fish has been washed into the lakes, they are not so keen to hunt for food, but when the sun is shining and they are hungry, we would foot them and haul them out and take home enough for an entire neighborhood. I often think of the times we had in a flat bottomed boat ("scow", it was called) put a "hook light" (or in other words, a gasoline torch) in the front end of the boat, to light the bottom of the river, and then two or three husky young farmer lads, standing and peering over the edge of the boat, could plainly see the sandy clean bottom of the river and see the big lazy fish thereon. Zing! The spear flies and the fish is snared and brought into the boat. Now, to say that we speared a "boat load" of fish sounds like a "fish story" but it was literally true. You say that depends on the size of the boat? Yes, that's true, too. But this was no small boat at that. I have a decided recollection of one of those spearing trips down the river, for it was then that I learned to swim. I was only a kid at the time and my job was to sit in the back of the boat and keep the boat straight and in the direction they wanted, using a paddle and also a pole, and at all times be careful not to make too much disturbance as to disturb the unsuspecting fish. Well, any way, one of my brothers who was spearing, said to me: "Say, kid, can you swim?" I said I had never tried, but thought I could, all right. He said "All right, let's see you TRY." And he gave me a shove and over into the river I went. And I swam, too. It was a case of swim or drown, I guess. When I came back to the boat, he said that was pretty good for a start, and showed me in again. So in that way, I sure remember the spearing trips down the old St. Joe.

In these later days when I go home and ask about the "fishing" they still tell me it is "good." I sometimes take a fishing trip home and sometimes up in northern Wisconsin, and when we have a "lean catch" we ask the natives there abouts, what has become of the good fishing that they talk so much about and they invariably say "Well, I don't know how that is. Last week they were biting fine." It just seems that we always strike a time when they were "good" "LAST WEEK" but nothing doing THIS WEEK, and so I come to the conclusion that they are "spoofing" me and let it go at that. I guess the fact is that the fish have been played for "suckers" too often and they are getting wised up to the fact, like we mortals. Either that or else they are slower in reproducing their kind, same as we humans of a later day.

Our families instead of seven and eight or more, now average one or less. Maybe the fish are not so slow as we think, and teach their young to look out for the "angler's bait", so they are wise and grow to a good old age and laugh to themselves at us "poor fish" that think we are wise.

Did you ever use the "set lines" in St. Joe river? Of course, what a foolish question. Well, it was the dream of my life to get some really big fish on my lines, and once I did. No, it wasn't a shark, but it was a Sturgeon. I didn't land him of course, he just made off with the line and all when I got him headed too close to shore, but I SAW him and he was a pip-in, all right. We used to get them on our spearing expeditions, now and then, and used to use the "rubber ball" from their heads, for playing the good old National game of base ball. The meat from the Sturgeon is very good and the news went all over the neighborhood that there was one on hand and they would come around and get a "sample" to see if it was as good as they had caught, etc.

Good pickerel and bass and lake suckers were the main catch in those days, and we sure had plenty of them. Personally I don't like to eat them, much, but I sure like the sport of catching them. Maybe that is all wrong, but it is a fact, just the same.

Don't forget the fishing we did when we were too young to go out with the "men folks." Down "Mo-Coy's creek," and especially down back of the old Black home; down near the mouth of the creek, where it joins the St. Joe river. We caught some "finnows" that were really good; size with a little hook and worms, and a pole, cut from the bushes along the creek. Also, we used to scoop them out of the water with a small net and keep them for "bait" for the men when they went fishing. We used to have a few on hand all the time in the "horse tank" in the barn yard. (We used to cool off the water melons in the horse tank, too. Remember how good and cold they would get and how sweet they were? That's because they were picked when they were RIPPED and not picked green for shipment.) That old horse tank was good for many things. I have even taken a bath in it. Haven't you?

When one tells stories about fish and fishing he usually remembers with too strong a memory and the story is somewhat exaggerated. Reminds me of a preacher's story of the preacher that was prone to exaggeration. He had a friend sitting in the pulpit with him and he told him to pull his coat tail if he began to exaggerate too much. So he was telling about his father's farm and the big barn that was on the farm. He was waxing warm on the subject and his friend heard him say "Why, my friends, my father had a barn on his farm that was nine thousand feet long—" and just then his friend pulled violently on his coat tail, and he continued—"and three feet wide." So it is with some of our fish stories. But we had good times getting them whether they weighed a half pound or five pounds or a ton. It was a great sport and always will be, as long as men are men and fish are fish. Some men can sit all day long in a broiling sun, in a boat, all alone with their pipes and their thoughts and be happy, just thinking they are going to get a bite, even if they never get a nibble. I can't and only enjoy fishing when the fish are hungry and when there is something doing now and then. "Casting" is a real art. Give me a good outfit and good place to use it and some one along with me that can keep from talking too much, plenty of good cigars, and SAY, what more does a man want?

Just Thinkin', and restin', with folded hands.
The soft moonlight, with breezes fanned lightly his cheeks so tanned. His bushy hair is 'tousled, loose, above his brow.

And he's Just Thinkin', where and how
It all came to pass. Some years ago
(This man was BOY, all boy, you know.
He'd planned a life of work and strife. Alas!
Just Thinkin', now it seemed to have long since past.
Life seems changed when TIME turns on the glow
Of full maturity and manhood; extremes all go
Their way and we are left with sweet soft thoughts to brood—
Just Thinkin' with all our hopes alas, how crude.
We climbed on board the train, at "Station Twenty-one"
Our journey up life's railway, begun.
With twist and curve, the scenery changed,
Just Thinkin' how the thing was all arranged.
By something higher and bigger, far, than we could dream—
We stood the test and made the best of what it seemed
At that sweet time within us lay,
But oh how flat it seems today.
Just Thinkin' how oft we detour

ed on the way.
Doing all we met and called our "FRIEND"
There were some who lingered to the end.
And THEY are best of his possessions, here,
Just Thinkin' of faces gone, that once were dear.
There was Jack and Bill and Tom and Harry,
Lick and Amos, Rubie and Larry—
Dim faces pass thru Memory's Hall,
Just Thinkin', God bless them, one and all.
And in his dream, they seem to meet—
They talk and laugh and smile, indeed 'tis sweet,
There is youth and love in face and tone—
Just Thinkin' of those "wonder-tunes" a-gone.

Farmers Can Get Books for Winter Reading at Lansing

East Lansing, Oct. 11.—In making plans for passing the long evenings of the winter season, farmers and their families should not neglect the opportunity of obtaining reading matter offered for loan by the Michigan State College library.

The material offered to the farmer and his family contains discussions on both agricultural and home economics subjects. This material is set apart in the so-called package loan library and may be obtained on request.

A list of subjects will be sent to any one interested who will request the list from the Reference Librarian, M. S. C., East Lansing. Patrons will be asked to pay only the mailing cost, and any of the subject matter can be held for four weeks. The offer is limited to residents of Michigan.

Local leaders of home economics extension groups will find much material serviceable in their work, it is said. Farmers' clubs and other rural organizations will find it valuable for use in studies of rural problems. The material is in pamphlet form and the mailing costs will be small.

A survey conducted by the United States Department of Agriculture shows that rural people are not behind the city dwellers in the amount of reading done, but that farmers do most of their reading during the winter.

The MAYTAG Roller Water Remover

A New and Better Way of Wringing

PASSING a clothes-pin between the rolls of the Maytag Roller Water Remover, shows how the large, soft, upper roll hugs the lumps, folds and seams in the clothes, reaches down into the low spots, leaving no wet places to retard drying on the line. Buttons, snaps or ornaments go through safely. A soft top roll, working against a hard bottom roll, creates more effective wringing action than two soft rolls or two hard rolls.

The Roller Water Remover, exclusively owned and controlled by The Maytag Company, has many other features of convenience which make it handy. The safety-feed makes it easy to start the clothes through the rolls. The tension automatically adjusts itself to a thin handkerchief or a bulky blanket. The drain plate automatically reverses itself, and pressure on the safety release makes it possible to separate the rolls, instantly.

WHAT HAPPENED BEFORE

Simon Judd, amateur detective, and William Dart, an undertaker, visit John Drane, an eccentric man of wealth, at the Drane place. Suddenly John Drane is murdered, and Dr. Blessington, after examining the body, makes the astounding revelation to Amy Drane that her "uncle" is a woman and not a man.

All the servants in the household are sick, it is noted, and it is found that Drane never discharged a servant for ill health. Dick Brennan, detective, arrives at the house and makes thorough investigations. Simon Judd tells him the story of the actual John Drane, with whom he (Judd) was acquainted in Riverbank. Judd proposes to Brennan that he "go partners" with Brennan in the solution of the crime. Brennan accepts, then Judd declares that Amy is not John Drane's niece, or any relation to Drane. Mrs. Vincent, the housekeeper, tells Brennan that Drane picked his servants from among the chronic patients at the hospital. Dr. Blessington is asked if he had ever noticed any special change in Drane.

Dr. Blessington has but little information to give. The talk veers to Drane's employment of chronic invalids, and suddenly Judd astonishes the doctor by asking when "Drane murdered the first of those hired hands of his."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

That Dr. Blessington was utterly amazed and genuinely shocked at Luis' brazen question discharged at him by Simon Judd is putting it mildly. He glared at the fat Iowan and when he tried to speak he could only splutter. Brennan himself looked at Simon Judd with smiling curiosity, but as Judd's possible thought suggested itself to him he straightened with a perceptible jerk.

"Murdered!" spluttered the doctor. "I take exception to that word, sir! I—I demand that you explain."

"Well, black my cats!" Simon Judd said good naturedly. "You don't have to go flin' off the handle at me, doc. I ain't said you murdered anybody. It just sort of struck me that maybe this doctor lady had been doin' some. I don't know but what—if I was a female person trying to let on to be a male man, and if I had all-fired big reasons for keepin' it dark—I would sort of like to get rid of any nosy hired help that got a notion I wasn't what I let on to be. Seems reasonable to me, some ways. I ain't sayin' you had anything to do with it, doc. Don't think you had, myself. You ain't that sort."

"Why—why?" Dr. Blessington stammered, still too angry to have control of himself.

"Never mind, Blessington," Brennan said soothingly. "Our friend here is a new hand at this business. He only thought he had found something interesting. Do not let it worry you. Stop as you go out, if you want to talk it over; it's probably important."

But when the doctor had entered the house Brennan did not act as if he thought the suggestion was unimportant.

"Have you seen anything to make you think there has been murder of that sort done?" he asked Judd, but the Iowan was unable to say that he had.

"Now, don't you go to payin' too much attention to what I say from time to time, Dick," he said. "I'm gabby, I am. Always was an old fool when it come to shootin' off my mouth; potter hits me in the head and I blab out like a kicked billy goat. Wouldn't surprise me a mite if I was all wrong about these sick and halt hired hands bein' murdered; prob'ly just one of my fool notions. Doc wouldn't go and bury nobody withtin' findin' out what they died of."

"He certainly would not if he suspected anything," Brennan said. "But if he had no reason to suspect? If he saw in a death only the operation of the disease he had been treating? There may be a lot on this idea of yours."

"Pshaw, no!" Simon Judd said with exaggerated carelessness. "Just the fool talk of a fat old feller that don't know nothin' much. You better forget it, Brennan. Go on and ask some more of the help about things."

"I never forget anything, Judd," Brennan said, but he did continue as his next step, the questioning of the servants. "The local reporters had by this time had word of the murder and began to arrive, and Brennan referred the first to Dr. Blessington, and the officers upstairs, and told Norbert to send any other to Dr. Blessington. To have privacy for further questionings he went to the library and had the servants sent to him there."

From the servants, however, he was able to draw anything new. With Simon Judd's murder suggestion in mind he dug a little more into that phase of the life in the Drane home. Norbert said that he had succeeded a houseman who had died, and the cook, Maggie, Money admitted that she had come while her predecessor still lay dead upstairs, but she insisted she had known the former cook and that she had always been sickly and weakly. The others had followed servants who had gone to other positions as their health improved, or had been sent to sanitariums by John Drane when they became too ill to work.

To get Maggie to say this intelligibly was not easy for she had been drinking and as Brennan's questioning proceeded she was alternately angry—shouting her answers at the top of her voice—and timidly fearful, her huge body shaken by rather ridiculous sobs. She became so hysterical finally that Brennan told her he would not bother her more than for it was plain she was an apoplectic and he was afraid she might break a blood vessel if she carried on any worse. But she would not go.

All Brennan had managed to get from her were assertions that John Drane, "poor woman that she was," had been a "heavenly angel, God rest him," and that a poor woman had a right to a "swallow" of drink when her heart was broke and that she could tear the hair from the heads of "them that come sneakin' an' snoopin', tryin' to blacken folk's car-ack-ters."

"All right then, Maggie," Brennan told the excited cook, "we won't sneak and snoop any more. You go back to the kitchen and take it easy, and don't let it worry you. And just send the chauffeur in, will you?"

The cook flared up again. "I'll not have him bulldozed by the likes of you," she shouted. "All shame to you, stirrin' up strife in th' house. Go on about your business and leave us be, why don't you?"

"Now, be easy," Brennan urged good naturedly. "I'm Irish myself, and you don't want to get me angry, you know. It'd be a terrible row. You just tell George I want to see him here, that's all. The cook went out mumbling and growling, but George did not come, and Brennan had to send Norbert for him."

"What got into that stout lady cook, do you think?" Simon Judd asked while they waited for the chauffeur. "Some of the worst sort of whiskey now being bootlegged," Brennan said, smiling. "I imagine John Drane kept the lady pretty severely off the stuff, and she's having her first real happy time for many a month."

"Black my cats!" Simon Judd exclaimed. "It beats my time how they got hold of the stuff, with prohibition and all."

"They get it," Brennan said drily, but Norbert's return cut short further explanation. He said George the chauffeur was sorry, but he had gone to bed and didn't think he could bear to get up.

"He says, Mister Brennan, how the growth in his stomach got mighty bad all-of-a-sudden-like while back and he ain't able to stand it. Yes sir. He says how the pain is mighty terrific. He ain't hardly able to stand it, he says. So he took some of the medicine what he's got and went to bed. Yes, sir."

"Well, what's the rest of it?" Brennan asked. "I can see that's not all; you've got something else on your mind."

"I was only thinkin', Mist. Brennan," Norbert said "that if he got a pain or ain't got a pain, it ain't goin' to be much use troublin' George right now. No sir. Seems like he been indulgin' in alcohol-liquor to a very considerable extent."

"Drunk, is he?" "He certainly has been indulgin' in," Norbert said seriously. "I ain't seen a man what has indulged more completely for quite some time. No sir."

"We'll put George off for the present then," Brennan said. "Are there any servants I have not seen?"

"No, sir," Norbert assured him. "We you has seen is all."

"This George," Brennan asked, "what do you know about him, Norbert?"

"The negro told what he knew. Like the others, George—who had the old name of Firmadick—had been in John Drane's service some little time. He had been an orderly in the hospital before coming to Drane and had had an operation for a growth in the stomach, but the operation had not been entirely successful—the growth had returned. Dr. Blessington said, Norbert told Brennan, that the growth was a serious matter and would kill Firmadick some day if Lere was not another operation, but the chauffeur was set against another.

The chauffeur, Norbert said, was supposed by the servants in the house, to be engaged to marry Maggie, but no one believed the marriage would ever occur, because they did not believe George would live to be married. He was 'oo ill when his bad spells came upon him. Norbert said he supposed George got his liquor from some bootlegger; the servants knew George usually had whiskey in his room but the chauffeur seldom drank it—only when the pain was bad. Probably, Norbert said, Maggie had got the whiskey from George, but she should not drink. Dr. Blessington said she had a mighty high blood pressure and whiskey was dangerous for her. He had scared her for good, Norbert said—when she had a sort of stroke. The doctor told her she was pretty sure to drop dead if she took too much whiskey.

When Norbert was gone Brennan lighted a cigarette.

"It's a queer bunch altogether, Judd," he said, "but you'd be amazed how many queer bunches there are in this world if you mixed around as I do. I see them at their worst, usually, when they are keyed up by some catastrophe and their eccentricities stick out strong. I think my next job is to talk to this man Dart, our undertaker friend. He may not yield much, but we'll get another angle on John Drane. I have a notion Dart must have known John Drane was a woman."

"Pshaw, now," Simon Judd exclaimed, chuckling. "You don't mean it, do you, Dick? Why, the old rascal! A hairy old boy like him, seven! years old if he's a day, hanging around this old lady like he was tryin' to be her rhus-band!"

Brennan snapped his fingers. "There's an idea!" he said. "There's a lead worth followin'! If this man Dart discovered that Drane was a woman he might very well try to blackmail her in to marrying him. John Drane was a very rich person, Judd. We may have the reason for the murder here—Dart trying to force Drane to marry him to avert exposure."

"Nope!" said Simon Judd. "Nothin' like that, Richard."

"But why not, I'd like to know?" Brennan demanded, rather amused at the fat man's decided tone.

"Why, black my cats, Dick?" said Simon Judd. "He couldn't want to marry her when he was married to her already, could he?"

"How do you make that out?" Brennan wanted to know.

Simon Judd chuckled his heavy-chuckle again. "I just sort of suspicion it, Richard," he said. "Seems so to me as you may say. A feller don't always have to have reasons does he?"

"In my profession he does," said Brennan coldly.

"Well, then," said Simon Judd, "how about him comin' to play cards and stayin' over night quite frequent, Richard. If I was tryin' to figure this out I'd sort of say 'John Drane' was a woman and she didn't want it known. If she didn't want it known she wouldn't be havin' a feller stay over night, saich, especial if he didn't need to see in as the feller lived right here in town. And if she did let a feller stay over night I'd sort of show she was married. If he was tryin' to blackmail her into marryin' him, she wouldn't want him around, would she?"

"You may be right," said Brennan thoughtfully. "And does your mind tell how long they had been married?"

"Oh pshaw, now Richard," Simon Judd laughed. "You don't want I should have a head on me that could tell you the day and date, do you?"

But Brennan was rubbing his chin, considering this new idea. He did not tell Simon Judd what he was thinking, but it was that if John Drane was really William Dart's wife the last will and testament made by John Drane might be of great importance in solving the mystery, such as it was, of the murder. If John Drane made a will leaving everything to Amy, as Amy said Drane had told her he would, William Dart would have been foolish indeed to kill Drane, but if the will left a large sum to Dart and Dart feared the making of a new will this might be a reason for the murder of Drane by Dart. Coupled with the flight of the undertaker from the house on the night of the murder, this might all mean something.

"You're wrong, Richard," Simon Judd said, interrupting the detective's thoughts.

"You're thinkin' maybe this undertaker feller murdered John Drane, sa-called."

"How do you know what I was thinking?"

CROSS-FLOW RADIATOR

The cross-flow radiators in the cooling systems of the Pontiac Six and the Oakland All-American Six reduce to a minimum the evaporation of water and alcohol. An automatic thermostat prevents water circulation until the engine reaches correct operating temperature. As a consequence the engine warms up quickly and less choking is needed, reducing dilution of crankcase oil. Because of the protection the cross-flow radiator provides against losses of water and alcohol, the Pontiac Six and the All-American Six require less attention in winter than other cars. Also, through their thermostatic control, they reveal far better performance than other cars in their fields when the temperature is low. The cross-flow radiator is available only on the Pontiac Six and the All-American Six. Come in and see it. From the servants, however, he was able to draw anything new. With Simon Judd's murder suggestion in mind he dug a little more into that phase of the life in the Drane home. Norbert said that he had succeeded a houseman who had died, and the cook, Maggie, Money admitted that she had come while her predecessor still lay dead upstairs, but she insisted she had known the former cook
