Smedley had set the brakes and gone to the door of the Hagley home to make a settlement for some milk tickets. During the transaction he saw that the brakes were not holding the car and that it had started down hill. He made a run and jumped on the running board. The machine was then careening so wildly that he was afraid to get entirely inside, and he attempted to stop it from the running board. He had slowed it down somewhat, when it went over the embankment throwing him off, and ended up against a tree, which prevented it from crashing into the Wilson Hamilton residence. When it struck the tree, it overturned. The car was only slightly damaged and only bottles of milk were lost.

Holmes Recalls

Memory of New Troy Election

The "Pieces" mentioned by "Old Timey" about "Makin' an editor outen o' him" is "The Editor's Guests," one of "Farm Ballads" by Will Carlton and opens with: "The editor sat in his sanctum, his countenance furrowed with care. His mind at the bottom of business, his feet at the top of a chair."

Farm Ballads were published by Harper Brothers in 1873. There were also "Farm Festivals," "Farm Legend" and "City Ballads" by the same author. By what I know about "Old Timey" there is not any set of books that he would rather have in his library, and read than these. My copies cost $2 each on January 12, 1882. In them are found such gems as "Ectasy and I are Out," "Over the Hills to the Poor House," "The School Master's Guests," and others of same character.

Baintons Arrive Friday From Fla. Winter Residence

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bainton and William Bainton arrived back Thursday, from Sebring, Fla., where they had spent several months very pleasantly, enjoying the balmy climate of that section and reading of the perils and hardships of the winter up north in the daily papers. Daily temperatures averaged from 60 to 70 degrees above, according to William Bainton, and the season was unusually pleasant, even for a Florida winter. Sebring is located in the center of the state, at some distance from the bootleg belt around Miami and Tampa, and is settled by an orderly class of middle westerners who are more interested in climate than in illegal drinks. They made the return trip in six days with some difficulty on account of floods in the border states.

Old Time Writing Implement Owned By Local Sisters

A relic of the days when the goose quill served the purpose now taken by the fountain pen may be seen at the home of Mrs. Ida Emerson, Alice Tourje, and Miss Helen Weaver, in the form of that permanent accessory of 100 years ago, the sand blotter. The blotter is in the form of a round wooden box, shaped much like an hour glass with perforations in one end. The box was filled with fine sand, and when the goosequill had done its worst, the writer would shake sand over the writing to absorb the excess ink. The sand absorbed the ink and was then dusted back into the blotter again. The relic belonged to the father of the three sisters.

Weaver, who would be 125 years of age if he were living. It is believed that the blotter is in the neighborhood of 100 years old.

Lord Burgh, who is 6 feet 5 inches tall, recently opened a women's hat shop in London.

Diamonds and Tragedy

Nearly all of the famous diamonds of history have a record of violence and sudden death behind them. No other precious stone has been the subject of so much contending romance and tragedy and crime. The tales of the most famous gems of India go back a thousand years or more, and the myths and legends concerning them are replete with treachery and murder.

Buchanan Farmer Expresses Orange Crop From Florida

Oranges were sold direct from grower to consumer on the South Bend market during the past year by Glen Vite of Portage, Prairie, through a rather unique marketing situation arising from the fact that J. A. Vite & Sons were unable to market their oranges on their small tract at Orlando, Fla., and expressed them here to be sold. Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Vite, Sr., and Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Vite spent the winter on their Orlando tract, from which place they arrived home at Buchanan last Friday. They had a good crop on their small Florida tract, but due to overproduction, the price to the Florida grower dropped as low as one cent per dozen. The Vites met the situation by expressing them to South Bend at a cost of $2.80 per box, where they were retailed at a good price by Glen Vite, who has a stall on the city market. Since the market rules are that the farmer must grow everything he sells, Vite was questioned, but was able to qualify as an orange grower.

News from around Galien

'29 CONTRACT SUGAR BEETS LIFTS PRICE

Galien Farmers Are Offered Minimum $7.50 Per Ton.

BEST SINCE WAR Free Seed; Sliding Scale Are Added Inducement.

Fair prospects for the coming year in the Galien and Glendora sections were boosted several points by the announcement by Warren Hagley, field representative of the Holland-St. Louis Sugar Company, of a new beet contract containing the best terms offered local beet growers since the World war.

The terms of the contract are, in brief:

1. A price of $7.50 per ton.
2. Free seed, representing the saving of a charge of about $2.25 per acre, which the grower has carried in the past.
3. An opportunity to realize more per ton, in accordance with a sliding scale based on gross tonnage delivered to the factories and on the average net market price of sugar in New York during the months of October, November and December, 1929, and of January, 1930.

This gross tonnage basis is as follows:

If the growers shall deliver 68,000 tons or less at the Decatur factory, they shall receive $7.50, or 44 per cent. of the value of the sugar content of an average ton, provided that it exceeds the minimum guarantee. If the growers deliver more than 68,000 tons their percentage shall be increased at the rate of one-tenth of one per cent. for every 400 pounds over that figure delivered at the factory.

On the basis of the sliding scale outlined above, if the sugar company should receive 80,000 tons of beets at the Decatur plant, averaging 260 pounds of sugar per ton, and if the average market price of sugar should be $3.00 per hundred, the value of the content in a ton would be $20.80 and the grower would get 46 per cent. of that or $9.57.

Definite prospects of a raise in the tariff on raw sugar at the April session form the basis of the increased price, according to Field Superintendent Warren Hagley who received contracts last week and is now signing up acreage in the Galien and Glendora districts. An intensive drive for contracts is being made by all the field men, as the greater acreage secured the better the chance of the grower to realize more on the tonnage clause of the contract. This tonnage clause was included in an attempt on the part of the Holland-St. Louis Sugar Co. to secure enough beets for an 80-day run at their plant at Decatur, Mich.

Conditions have so far been favorable for beet production, according to Mr. Hagley, the effect of deep frost penetration being to break up the lower subsoils and liberate the elements for plant food much the same as deep plowing. The frost penetrated to a greater depth in this section than for many years, and the soil is now in a condition unusually favorable for spring crops.

The best crop of Galien and Glendora was a partial failure last year, due to the unusually heavy rains, and a following hot spell which cooked the tops of the plants about August 1, just when root growth was about to set in.

Galien Dairymen Sweep Boards in Milk Tests Again

For the sixth time during the testing year Doan Straub of Galien carried away the high herd honors in the South Berrien Dairy Herd Improvement Association. His ten purebred and grade Holsteins averaged 1553 pounds of milk containing 57.1 pounds butterfat for the month of February. His herd not only led the association but three of his cows captured individual first honors. Countess, a two-year old pure-bred Holstein, produced 62.3 pounds fat; Dapple, a four-year old grade Holstein, produced 77.1 pounds fat and Yiggle, a purebred Holstein in the mature class, made a record of 78.6 pounds fat in the 28-day period.

Earl Roundy, also a Holstein breeder in Galien, took second high honors with ten cows averaging 41.5 pounds fat. Mr. Roundy also led in the three-year class with his cow, Daisy, who made 60.4 pounds fat.

Other leaders with creditable high production included George Olmstead's eight purebred and grade Holsteins averaging 37.2 pounds fat. Sunshine, one of his cows, was second high in the two year class with a production of 48.3 pounds fat.

John W. Clark's twelve grade Holsteins averaged 36.2 pounds fat and Fred W. Knott's fourteen purebred Guernseys averaged 34.0 pounds fat during the month.

play with the intriguing title, "How to Handle Women." Both women and men smile at the title, the former Mona Lisa like, the latter a little sadly.

The younger set will be represented by Marian Nixon and George Lewis Sunday in "Jazz Mad," a story of flaming youth. Manager Morley has some particularly seductive music to accompany this love story.

Ren Bell, the new Western star, appears for the second time at the Princess the 18th in "Cowboy Kid," a typical western with a devil-may-care broncho buster and candle snuffer in the saddle.

One of the most lurid pictures ever shown on the legitimate stage and on the screen is "The Dove," with which David Belasco diverted Broadway many a long month. Norma Talmadge is in the title part at the Princess Tuesday and Wednesday, March 19-20. The Spanish caballeros are shown in their wildest and most daring moods in the South Sea picture of love and hate.

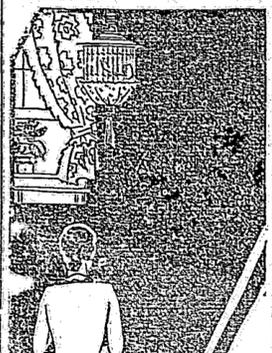

Thursday and Friday "Ransom" will be shown with Lois Wilson and Edmund Burns. This is a Chinese mystery plot.

World's Largest Gas Tank Serves Aviators

The world's largest gas tank (pictured above)—built at a cost of nearly $2,000,000 and located on the south side of Chicago—is now also serving as a guide to aviators headed for the Windy City's Municipal Airport. The tank itself, with a capacity of 20,000,000 cubic feet of gas, rises to a height of 416 feet and is surmounted by a 92-foot beacon light tower. The top of the tank bears the legend "Chicago Municipal Airport, 2 miles," and has an arrow pointing the direction. It is flood-lighted at night.

Memories Aroused by Partial Destruction Old School House

The partial destruction of the old school building housing the manual training department of the Buchanan high school recently served to stir the memories of many local people who were attending them, either as pupils or teachers.

While no authoritative records were produced, the general agreement is that the construction of the building was begun in 1870, and it was occupied in 1871. Some, however, inclined to the belief that it was begun a year later.

It originally contained three stories, one of which was contained in the mansard roof. Its location and style of architecture is credited to L. P. Alexander, then a prominent Buchanan citizen with an eye to the future real estate developments of the town. The site selected was well outside the settled part of the village, but Alexander insisted that it be placed on the hill where it could be plainly seen by the passengers of the passing trains on the Michigan Central.

Alexander also insisted that the building be of a commanding height, so that there would be no danger of its being overlooked. Because of this later feature, local school heads were often rallied on account of this later feature, visiting high school inspectors dubbing it "old Fort Sumpter."

It was a gala day in Buchanan when the new school went into use. Headed by the Buchanan band, the pupils marched in parade from the old school structure, now the Dewey Avenue school, to the high school. The "professor" in charge of the Buchanan schools at that time was a Mr. Laird, a tall dark man, somewhat resembling Abraham Lincoln in face and figure, and with a dour, stern aspect that belied a very gentle humorous character. He was universally loved by the pupils, especially by the smaller children, who raced to meet him every morning as he walked to the school. He had a habit, according to those who remembered him, of stretching out both hands with all the fingers spread out, and a youngster would fasten to each finger and accompany him in triumph to the school. With him in charge of the upper classes was Miss Emma Nash, the "Preceptress" as the women of the grades were called.

Miss Nash married Solomon Estes while she was in Buchanan, and they lived in the house on the corner of Main and Third street now owned by Wilson McLeod.

Mrs. Ida Weaver Tourje, who now lives at 301 North Oak, was teaching in a rural school near Buchanan at the time, and shortly after the school went into use she was given a position teaching an intermediate class, representing what would be approximately the seventh grade in the present grading system. She had a room in the third story in the mansard room which was often so cold in the winter that she was obliged to dismiss her classes.

NILES MEET RANKS BEST IN MICHIGAN

Championship in Bag When Three Oaks Bites Dust. REST ARE EASY Loom as Strong Contenders in Kazoo Meet.

Having disposed of Three Oaks on Thursday night, Buchanan proceeded to poll off the weaker teams from Watervliet, on Friday, 32 to 17, and Berrien Springs on Saturday, 37 to 19, winning the district championship for Class C teams. For three quarters the peppy Watervliet midget team made it warm for the Bucks, even out-scoring them in the third frame 4 to 3, but the home boys woke up in the fourth session to sink 'em for 15 points, to make it decisive. The Springs game was salted away in the first half, Buchanan scoring enough to win without the 17 points garnered in the last half.

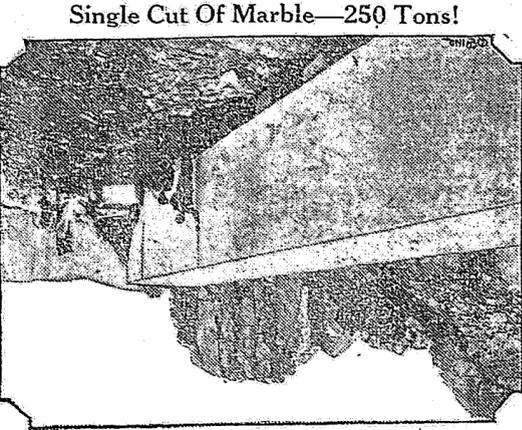

Buchanan and Berrien Springs from Class C, Niles and St. Joseph from Class A, and Bridgman and Stevensville from Class D, will enter the Regional championship tournament beginning this afternoon at Kalamazoo on the floors of the Western State Teachers College.

The scores for the entire District tournament are: Buchanan 22, Three Oaks 14, Buchanan 32, Watervliet 17, Buchanan 37, Berrien Springs 19, Bridgman 21, New Troy 12, Bridgman 25, St. Johns 15, Stevensville 23, Galien 16, Stevensville 33, Eau Claire 11, Berrien Springs 31, Coloma 15, St. Joseph 15, Niles 13.

In the deafening thunder of the cheering throng at Niles last Thursday night, Buchanan high school's basketball tossers clinched the district championship in Class C by defeating Three Oaks 22 to 14. The score was tied at the half, 8 to 8, but the Fightin' bunch was feeling out the opposition and opened up at once in the third quarter, which ended 14 to 9.

Coach Harold Bradford started Knight at standing guard, substituting Fette to start the second half. Both boys proved to be practically impervious to Stange and Heckathorne, the two scoring aces of the Veneclausen coached quintet before the first quarter closed.

Table with columns: Team, B, F, P, T. Rows include Buchanan (22), Savoldi (15), Pfingst (17), Pierce (3), Morse (2), Knight (0), Squires (0), Fette (1), 3 Oaks (14), Stange (1), Long (0), Heckathorne (2), Mays (0), Wasso (1).

Single Cut Of Marble—250 Tons! Pictured above is the largest single piece of marble ever cut in the famous Carrara quarries in Italy. Workmen labored five years to slice it from the mountain side and, in this finished state, it weighed 250 tons. The case in which it was shipped to sea alone weighed 50 tons. It will eventually stand in Rome as a monument to Mussolini.

Table with columns: Team, R, F, P, T. Rows include Schneider (0), Ritzler (0), Buchanan (6), Three Oaks (4).

Several years ago various citizens of Buchanan complained because of the great cost of the athletic program. When the high school was being built there was a dispute over the size of the gymnasium. Many wanted to build it smaller than it is at the present time.

At the present time a great amount of money is spent on athletics. The high admission, which the Cassopolis gentleman complained of, is necessary to keep up the expenses of our athletic program.

The Little Radio Station.

Men and women in this country listened recently to a symphony orchestra playing in London the radio carrying the music to this nation. It was the first time a program of that kind had been sent across the Atlantic Ocean to us. It was a novel experiment and made plain some of the radio possibilities that continue to astonish the public. The program was carried from London over a telephone wire then picked up and sent out by a small station and on a short wave. The venture was entirely successful. It came over the ocean, was picked up traveled miles over a telephone wire to a station and then was distributed widely over the United States.

Naturally the public has turned to the large station, with its abundant power and long wave length and has considered size as essential to wide distribution. There have been repeated instances where a small station, with power that seemed puny and a short wave, has been able to get its program to points far beyond its estimated boundaries. Scientists and the public alike stand in amazement at the results shown by the little station and the short wave distribution. It is one more of the wonders the radio has brought to us. No one knows the whole story of the radio and the world may expect other wonderful experiments and astonishing results as scientists continue their tests and experiments.

In St. Clairsville Ohio, a young man, an amateur station of little power talks almost nightly with the Byrd forces far away in the Antarctic ice fields. His little home-made station reaches them perfectly when larger stations fail in the attempt. What a wonderful thing the radio is at its present stage of development! How little we know of its possibilities! What may we not do when science delves more deeply and learns more so that it may harness and use the currents that girdle the globe?

Personality in Industry.

Some historic and popular names have disappeared from the field of American industry during recent years. Mergers have been completed, a number of industries taken over, their names dropped and a new corporate name chosen. This country is in the midst of the modern development of big business. Market demands have multiplied, industry must organize in a larger way to meet the demand. The merger movement is the method chosen.

The modern merger is impersonal, while the early day American industry was entirely personal. The merger is too vast to reflect a personality. Industries in former days developed the personality as one valued possession. The manufacturer was proud of his product, placed his name in his company and on the packages that contained his goods. It was a fine old custom. We had the Brown hat because the Brown family owned the factory, the Smith shoes for the same reason the maker's name was on the product from hundreds of factories. The maker boosted the quality of the name and insisted the goods must have the same fine quality. It was an attractive idea, it gave a personal touch to lines of business.

The family names are disappearing as the mergers are completed, a change that is inevitable but brings pain to many. Trade names are given hats, shoes, clothing, hardware, farm implements and most everything else. The touch of personality is being slowly but quite certainly removed. In a recent announcement the public was told of a merger that was to succeed the Oliver Chilled Plow Company of South Bend and the Nichols & Shepard Company that builds threshing machines. The Oliver Chilled Plow Company was formed in 1855, has made millions of plows, sold them all over the country, the name being as popular as the plow. Nichols & Shepard have been making and selling threshing machines since 1848. They prospered because they deserved popular favor, supplied a real machine and dealt fairly with the public.

From the Allegheny Mountains to the Pacific Coast both names have been known through all the years of agricultural development. Two generations of farmers have been developed since these farm implements were put in service. Here are popular names that are pretty certain to disappear when the merger is completed. The plows may be quite as good, the big threshing machines quite as popular, but the personal touch will not be there. The man and his name give way to the merger, mass production and scientific distribution. It is one of the changes in the order of the modern day now in full flower.

Drunken Drivers.

Many states and cities have laws and ordinances that provide severe penalties for drunken drivers of automobiles. Many arrests are made on that charge in cities, there are occasional indictments under the state laws, but only at long intervals does the public hear of a drunken driver's being given the heavy penalties of the law. Between arrest and trial there are many side roads into which it appears to be possible to turn the case. Frequently the charge is reduced in severity, there are instances when a trivial fine is imposed, probably paid in some cases, and the drunken driver scores another triumph over the law. That course has been followed in many places despite the alarming increase in traffic accidents in which drunkenness is a contributing factor and the known fact that the drunken driver is the greatest hazard in the highways. Obviously so long as it is possible to slip through the net of the law there is lacking the fear of the sentence in promotion of care and caution.

Indiana sends some of her drunken offenders to the state penal farm, where they are given eight weeks of labor on the farm six days each week while detained there. Recently one who had been twice convicted of driving when drunk was sent to the farm and immediately appealed to the governor for release on parole. In disposing of the application, Governor Leslie used these words:

This department is not inclined to look with favor upon leniency to be shown to men guilty of this offense. We regard a man who has sufficient intelligence to know right from wrong and has no more respect for the rights of other people than to operate an automobile while under the influence of liquor as equally as dangerous as a crazy man with a machine gun. We are not inclined to extend leniency in such cases.

Chief Justice May Retire.

This country would lose a valuable and popular public servant if Chief Justice Taft of the supreme court of the United States decides to retire. Recent news stories from Washington made the announcement that he had under consideration plans for leaving the bench the coming year and going on the retired list, recent changes in the retirement law making that action possible.

Since he went on the beach in 1921 the chief justice has grown constantly in public favor. The nation admires his courage, his understanding and interpretation of the laws, his leadership and his fine sense of justice in directing the work of the highest court in the land. He helped simplify the procedure of the court, has helped eliminate oldtime customs no longer required and has been the leader in the fight to keep the court close up with its work, eliminating long delays that are certain when the docket is crowded.

He has become the national leader of the movement for more speed in hearing and determining questions taken to the court for decision. He wants the law's delay to be disposed of permanently insists new laws are not required but new customs that can be established by the courts will do much to insure a speedy decision and avoid the injustice of delay. It would be unfortunate for the country if the leader of that movement should retire from the active forces before the work has been carried to completion.

Mr. Taft has been in public life in many different positions for a long time of years. He has reached an age when men must give thought to freedom from hard work and dispose of heavy responsibilities. He has been a great public servant in his present position and, if he decides to retire the most cordial good wishes of the nation would follow him as he seeks days of ease and freedom from toil.

A Tariff on Goldfish.

A man in Indiana, E. C. Shireman by name, urges Congress to lay a tariff duty of 33 per cent on imported goldfish. Mr. Shireman raises goldfish himself, 100 per cent. American goldfish supplies half the American market and sees his $500,000 annual business threatened to some extent by pauper Japanese goldfish which sell in this country 60 per cent. below the price of the genuine American article. Mr. Shireman feels that the infant goldfish industry should be protected.

Well, why not? Nobody wears goldfish and we suppose that no one but the cat ever eats them. Goldfish are not a necessity of life. Tens of thousands of American goldfish consumers, if we may call them that, would have to pay more for their goldfish if the proposed tariff is imposed but Mr. Shireman would continue to do a business of $500,000 a year or better. It is the principle on which the tariff system is based—to coddle the few producers at the expense of the many consumers. And it is a principle that can be applied to goldfish with very little actual hardship to anybody.

When the leading individualist of this neighborhood saw an article in the paper the other day that said prohibition cannot survive in a free country he said in his gloomy way: But what's that to us?

It is often said that the star college athletes don't amount to so terribly much in after life but we don't seem to hear such an awful lot about the former Rhodes scholars either.

There is a nice girl in this neighborhood who prides herself on never saying worse than damn and hell and that's another day we never expected to live to see but did.

We hate to see people disappointed and what we hope is that Mr. Hoover doesn't expect to have any fun in the ensuing four years.

Another anomaly is the way a man begrudges every cent of his income tax and wishes to thunder he had to pay a bigger one.

We're getting used to having the girls ask us if their stockings are on straight but we don't want them to go any farther.

A Bank for Brokers.

No Arsenic, Please, F. R. Usury Unnecessary Invest Do Not Gamble.

In response to warnings from the Federal Reserve, banks withdrew on Friday, $25,000,000 of call loans. The idea was "to discourage speculation." That speculation keeps big banks and their gigantic profits alive, but that is another story.

When loans were called, the rate moved from 6 to 9 per cent. Banks calling loans sacrificed 6 per cent on $25,000,000 and made an additional 3 per cent on about four billions.

Even a child on the farm could understand that systematic usury must be harmful. Even as base a thing as a speculator, buying American securities, should not be robbed systematically.

It is probable that investigation of the Federal Reserve Banks, and its accidental or intentional promotion of bank profits, through usury, will follow the latest Federal Reserve action, responsible for a loss widely scattered, of three or more billions in a few hours.

Why do not Stock Exchange men protect themselves and their customers from financial tyranny. They could establish a great bank, especially for their own purposes. Compelling brokers to make call loans at that bank, on conservative margins of security, at a fair interest rate, and dividing profits among stock exchange members, they might do something that the Federal Reserve evidently cannot do.

Controlling a monopoly of call loans, they could sell $1,000,000-2,000 worth of stock in an hour.

If a father to cure his children of overeating, put arsenic in their food, you would say, "Something wrong with that father."

If a father to cure his children of overeating, put arsenic in their food, you would say, "Something wrong with that father."

When a paternal Federal Reserve Board, mistaking itself for the national government, to cure what it considers over-speculation, ruins thousands of investors by forcing usurious interest rates, you say, "Something wrong with that Federal Reserve Board."

The board is unnecessarily evicted about four or five billion dollars of brokers' loans.

Learned financiers should realize that there is money in this country outside of banks' control.

Mr. Ecker, vice-president of the Metropolitan Life company, has shown that the income of American wage earners is sixty billions of dollars a year. And they spend fifteen billions less than they earn.

Those fifteen billions are three times the total of brokers' loans. A nation that has every year fifteen billions of spending money might borrow a third of its excess annual wealth for investment, or even for speculation, without making criminal usury necessary.

Wall Street, went to work last week, convinced that the world had not quiet come to an end, and even a benevolent regulating Federal Reserve might be endured.

Some for whom this is the beginning of the Spring lamb season, the unhappy wiped-out minority that tried the "raw town, go broke" experience, will know better next time. Others will know better later.

Invest within your means, in America, and you get rich. Gamble here or anywhere, and gambling gets you.

Lady De Barthe died recently at Monte Carlo, in her seventy-seventh year. As Mrs. Langtry, the Jersey Lily, she was known where ever English is spoken. Her reputation was due largely to her marvelous complexion, pink and white natural colors. Such complexions have gone out. Even little girls are daubed and plastered.

Up above, the Jersey Lily has doubtless renewed acquaintance with Albert Edward, who admired her when he was Prince Edward, who admired her when he was Prince of Wales. Will he look natural fitting about with white wings and a hair? Probably not. And how painful it must be for a sovereign or a famous beauty to be like everybody else. Perhaps ranking below Moody and Sankey.

ASK HIGHER TARIFF FOR FARM PRODUCTS

An adequate tariff for the protection of the agricultural products of Michigan and the other States was asked by several speakers at the Farmers Week program at Michigan State College.

A resolution passed by the 200 sugar beet growers in session at the College asked for a tariff of $3.50 a hundred pounds on sugar imported from Cuba.

The 500 delegates to the annual farm bureau meeting unanimously passed a resolution calling for adequate tariff protection against all foreign agricultural products which directly compete with American production. Sugar beets were specifically mentioned in this resolution as one crop which does not receive enough protection.

Dr. John L. Coulter, president of North Dakota Agricultural College, said, "If tariff rates were adjusted to encourage the production of these imported articles at home insofar as these articles can be produced economically and so far as the United States is adapted to the production of these items, it would require the use of nearly 20 million acres of land which are now used to produce our surplus crops or which are now idle."

G. F. Roxburgh, Reed City, master of the State Grange, advocated an increase in tariff rates on agricultural products as a means of solving the present farm problems.

The Old Timers' Corner

Another Neighborhood.

In the winter time, the wind and snow went sweeping and howling around the old Mill that stood on Portage Street, right about where Second street (now Dewey Avenue) met it for then it didn't go across Portage, it ended right there at the Mill. Kingery's Mill, it was called, at the time I came on the scene. It was built, as were all the old buildings of that time, with heavy solid timbers, and no storm could howl and blow strong enough to make the old building even groan. It was run by water power, and the race that supplied it, came off the main stream of McCoy's Creek right in back of Slater's place, on Front street. I think that at some former time there may have been another mill of some sort about where this race "took off" to the north from the main stream, for I remember seeing old scrap iron and some parts of foundations, etc., that looked to me as though there had been some building in that place once upon a time. Perhaps some Old-timer may know about that, if so, would be glad to have them write to the Record and tell us about it.

Kingery's Mill had the old-fashioned stones, two of them, flat and round that were driven by water power and the grain was ground between them. The level to turn the water on and off was on the main floor, and one time Abe Kingery was at the lever and his father, think it was, down stairs fixing something that had gone wrong, and suddenly the machinery stopped, and the power was "on" and then Abe heard from down stairs, "Shut her down, Abe, I'm caught in the cogs." So with his old-fashioned outfit, he did a very good custom business, grinding corn and wheat and buckwheat, and what ever the farmers had for them to grind. We used to take our buckwheat there, always, and it "makes my mouth water" to think of the cold mornings when those buckwheat cakes came on the table light and nice and just brown enough to be good and along with some fried ham or sausage, and some good "home grown" maple syrup. O Doy! "Them were the happy days, down on the farm."

Joe Burch had a blacksmith's shop just south of the old Kingery Mill and it also fronted Portage Street at the edge of the creek. There was a bridge across the creek, there, of course, and one time I was waiting for some shoes to be put on the horses and a "run-away" horse came down around the corner from Front street and turned north and was going so fast that it couldn't make the turn and on this bridge it lost its footing and fell with its feet out over the edge of the bridge, and the railing along the side held it from going on over into the creek. It couldn't get its feet under it, to get up, etc., so there it lay, and several men and boys, among them myself got some ropes, and pulled the poor thing back onto the bridge, and untangled it from the broken harness, etc., and quieted the animal. The funny part of this is that a year or so later my father bought that same horse. It was only a colt at the time it got stuck on the bridge and belonged to some people over in the "bend of the river" district. The horse became one of the finest driving horses in the country and while we had to watch her pretty closely, she became very dependable and was my favorite horse for driving out with the girls, etc.

Well, going back to the neighborhood again, we find that Burgess Miles had another blacksmith shop right in back of Slater's place, on the bank of the Creek. Burgess was a good natured devil and was decidedly English. He was one Englishman that enjoyed a joke, and was always kidding me when I was a lad. Joe Burch, in the other shop, was very fond of fine horses and raised several very fine "Morgans".

Remember the old livery stable that faced Front street just west of McCoy's Creek? Was run by Newt Bachelor. There was a platform out over the creek on the side next to the barn where they washed the buggies, etc. The barn "boss" was "Curley". I don't know and never did know his real name but that is what every one called him. "Curley" knew every one's preference as to what kind of horse they wanted to drive, etc., and was always on the job to see that you were well taken care of.

There was another old land mark down at the corner of Portage and Front street, a staunch old house that came right up flush with the side walk at that corner, and a colored man, named Harris, lived there, in my time. Think he was a barber or something. Had a very good looking colored daughter named Ida. She was very bright in school and well liked by every one, as were all her folks. As I remember, the colored people in Buchanan were mostly all of the better class of people and were not considered "trash" as they are in many places. They worked and lived among themselves and were respected as any one else.

Knowing, as we do, the many mills that were operated by the generous power of the old McCoy's Creek, I wonder if the old song, "Down by the Old Mill Stream" wasn't written with McCoy's Creek in mind. I might well have been, all right.

Holmes Locates Source of Old Timer Citation

Among the "Old Time" Recollections of Berrien County was a peculiar election that occurred in New Troy, "Way back when" Pitt Pierce and son, Arnold, were running the store in that city, known afterward as "The center of the World." At the time there were nominations made for one justice of the peace, full term, and one for vacancy account of one having moved out of the state. Voting went on for the first half of the day, and Arnold Pierce and one of his neighbors got to canvassing the situation when it occurred to them there was another vacancy, because one of the justices elected the year before had never qualified. These two had not voted so they said nothing and each voted for Arnold and he was elected and served three years, doing the bulk of the justice business, and was then re-elected in the usual way, for one or more terms. This was in the early eighties.

State Paves Way For Licenses Chiropractors

Lansing, Feb. 21.—An eight-year feud between the medical and chiropractic professions today is ended following a settlement in the legislature Thursday of differences revolving about the so-called "basic science law."

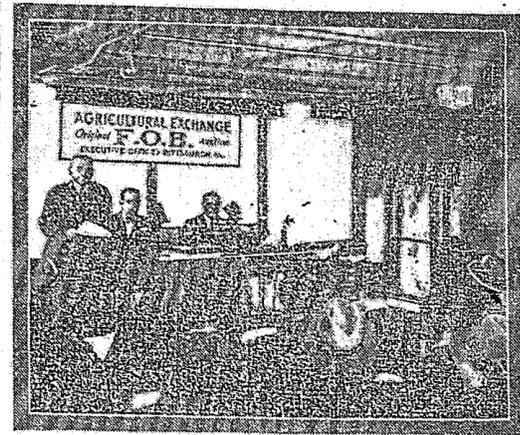

With each side granting concessions, the chiropractors accepted the "basic science" requirements of the medicals and the latter agreed to exempt present practitioners from the medic qualification. Chiropractors would be placed on the same "basic science" level as the medicals, according to amendments attached to the house bill. The compromise further set requirements of high school and college certificates—the latter to show successful completion of 60 hours credit—for the chiropractors. Proficiency in anatomy, physiology and other scientific studies would be required of the applicant before the chiropractic board of examiners.

Included among the amendments to the chiropractic bill is a concession from the medicals, is a clause permitting chiropractors who have practiced three years in Michigan a continuation without taking the "basic science" examination. They would take the special chiropractor's examination upon the discretion of the board. If a practitioner for six months in the state, they would be excluded from the "basic science examination but not the chiropractic inquiry."

Fruit and Produce Auctioned Over Long Distance Circuits

Novel Exchange of Advantage to Both Buyers and Producers

By means of Bell Systems' transcontinental telegraph circuits, California fruit and produce growers are ridding themselves of the disadvantages resulting from their distance from middle western and eastern markets. The organization supplying this service, beneficial both to farmers and wholesale houses, is the Agricultural Exchange of Pittsburgh, which in a few years has developed a countrywide auction of produce during the busy season, the bidders for which are located in the chief markets of the nation.

The Exchange's branch office in San Francisco each day collects detailed information concerning cars of produce being shipped east and at night distributes this catalogue over the wire to other branches in eleven cities between Minneapolis and Boston. The next morning these offices notify prospective local customers as to the nature of the shipment and the date of its departure from California. At 3 o'clock that afternoon, Eastern Standard time, the buyers meet in the Exchange's offices in the different cities, and at this time, while the produce is still en route eastward, the goods are auctioned.

"Line 1" is announced from Pittsburgh, and the buyers, who possess mimeographed sheets giving descriptions of "Line 1," make their bids. "Thirty-two," says a buyer in Chicago, and "Chicago thirty-two" is promptly relayed to the assembled jobbers by the operators in the other sales offices. A Boston house offers thirty-five dollars and this bid is similarly announced. The car is finally sold to a Cleveland jobber for forty-one dollars.

Since the cars are sold f. o. b. shipping point, and since the California producer is in immediate touch with current prices, the advantages of this system are obvious. A 5,400 mile circuit thus affords quick sale and provides the fruit grower in California with a market comprising eleven of the largest eastern cities.

Do You Want to Save For Home? Spend By Budget

In saving for a home and in deciding what amount he can afford to pay monthly for that home, a man obviously must arrange a budget, then keep within that budget. He should make the budget with the aid of his wife, so that every item of expense in the household may be included.

Hundreds and thousands of budgets are suggested by magazines, banks, loaning companies and other firms dealing in finance. Each has its own form, provides a certain set of figures which is used as an illustration, then tells the man to go ahead.

To the factory man, in fact to every man whose vocation or trade does not deal with figures, such a blank form looks formidable. He fears that it might be beyond his understanding. In short, he lacks confidence in it and would much rather work out his own scheme. His own scheme would probably be the simplest, and for his case the most effective and the most workable.

He should, in working out his own budget, rule a piece of paper into squares and place the dates of his future pay days across the top of each column of squares. Below each date should be placed the amount of pay expected.

HEAVY SNOWFALL IN JANUARY COST MICHIGAN OVER $50,000

Lansing—Snow removal following the abnormally heavy snow in Northern Michigan last week cost the state of Michigan in excess of $50,000. A. L. Burridge, district highway engineer reports. Snow removal in the northern half of the Lower Peninsula cost $25,000, Burridge said. He characterized the storm as the worst in 20 years and estimated the cost to the state for maintenance was 50 per cent greater than during normal winter weather.

Maintenance cost between $20 and $30 a mile after the storm was reported. More than 80 inches of snow fell on some trunklines. Removal was hampered by the abnormal weight of the snow, Burridge said. At Elmira, coldest spot in the district, snow weighed 20 to 30 pounds a cubic foot. Normal snow weighs eight pounds a cubic foot. Highway department maintenance machinery was almost useless after the storm, Burridge said. Five-ton trucks were unable to plow through the drifts without the aid of heavy tractors. Although all roads are now open, highway men are still working to cut down the embankments along trunklines.

Snow removal throughout last winter cost the state $554,770.70. That was nearly double the previous record, but despite that fact it may be even greater this year, highway officials fear.
