

COUNTY ROAD CHIEFS AND R.R. ENGINEERS TO CONFER WITH COUNCIL ON PORTAGE RAIL DISPUTE MONDAY EVE

Now Here's the Proposition

"Advice to Chicagoans"

By Hays

Read at Chicago-Buchanan Society Picnic:

Hello folks, you're looking splendid; you sure bear your age well, though it seems like it was only just last year...

Just lay your State street manners by and smile yourself a smile, you needn't be so hard-boiled and so grave;

You are back among your neighbors, be your own sweet selves awhile, and you won't get shot as long as you behave.

We fear that we were hasty when we ran you up the track and quit you five miles out and going strong.

But this evening just to show you we're glad that you are back you can eat the fattest calf you brought along.

We promise not to jerk you up for every little thing, and we've asked the cop to be a little slack.

We hope the streets are wide enough to let you have your filing for we ain't got time to move the houses back.

For we're awful glad to see you but don't get it in your head you can tell us anything that will be new;

Though we're looking interested, we've heard everything you've said when we listened in last night on P. D. Q.

But go spring your nifty smart cracks and we'll do our best to laugh, notwithstanding that we heard them long ago.

Go ahead and tell your tall ones and we'll cut 'em right in half and then make believe we think the half is so.

We will try not to remind you of your sanitary muss for we want to do our best to treat you right.

And we hope you'll be as thoughtful in your talk concerning us; just say "sewer" if you want to start a fight.

We'll forget the five we tent you or we'll take it as a joke, and we don't intend to speak about the ten.

That we had to raise and send you broke you wrote that you were broke but we'd rather that you wouldn't ask again.

We know you run Chicago from stock yards to the park and everything is done as you directed.

And seeing how you run it we would faint rise to remark that you've turned out just as we expected.

You are fresh from breezy Broadway and we know we ought to stare but you'll please excuse us if we only smile.

Don't you ever hear from Paris, can it be you're not aware that the duds you wear are way behind the style?

Now we put on just as little and we wear 'em just as high and we bob it just as short as you do there.

Just gaze around about you if you want to rest your eyes; you can see as much right here as anywhere.

We have seen your husky buildings and your towers and minarets and perhaps you think you have us on the run.

Well, you sure have got some big ones but you ain't seen nothing yet and you won't till Mickey Murphy's block is done.

We are doubtless short of some things that you get when you're at home, we're a little short on pineapples and beer.

And we haven't got the squawkins and the blatant movie tone, but we hardly think we'll miss 'em while you're here.

You've been out among the traffic and you doubtless know the game, but look out you don't get pinched for driving slow;

The green lights mean to beat it and red lights mean the same and the stop upon the stop signs means to go.

There's a new sheriff in the county since the time you had to fade, so there is no use to jump and look around.

And the judge has stole the bounty and the warrant is mislaid that we had the day we run you out of town.

But you'd best be sort of lawful—it's all right to have your fun, but you cannot pull the stuff you did of yore.

For the vote last fall was awful, it was Hoover five to one, now I do not have to tell you any more.

CAR STRIKES END OF TRUCK TWO INJURED

George Simons is Thrown Under Truck, Narrow Escape.

HIT FROM BEHIND South Bend Man is Hurt; Auto is Badly Wrecked.

George Simons, Jr., 216 East Dewey Avenue, is recovering at his home from painful injuries received when the truck he was driving for Sam Rachowski was run into while he was returning early Saturday morning from a trip to Battle Creek for the Clark Equipment Company.

Simons was driving slowly on the right side of the road, when a Maxwell Sedan driven at a rapid rate of speed by two South Bend men came up from behind, the driver apparently not seeing the truck in time and failing to clear it.

Simons stated that he had no memory of what took place immediately following the crash, until he regained consciousness a little later and found himself lying in the road, the double wheels on the rear running gears against his body.

The right side of the car struck the projecting frame on the rear of the truck, the entire left side of the top being sheared off and deposited on top of the truck.

The companion of the driver seated on the left was caught by the top as it was jerked back, the windshield striking him under the jaw and hauling him into the back seat of the car.

As the car passed the truck the right wheels ran over Simons' right leg, wrenching the ankle joint and badly crushing the calf. He also incurred a severe cut over the left mastoid, and the upper part of his left ear was nearly severed from his head.

VETERAN MISSING FROM CLARK BAND RANKS THIS YEAR

JOHN HESS SUCCEEDS A. RAMPT AS FEATURE CORNETIST.

John Hess, who has inherited the distinction of being cornet soloist for the Clark band by the resignation of Arthur Rampt, will play "Twilight Dreams" by Clarke as the first solo feature of this summer's series of Wednesday evening concerts.

The new roster of the band shows more changes than have occurred in the organization in any one year within the history of the present generation.

The clarinet section is especially strong. Inasmuch as the band does more overtures than straight brass band blowing, Manager Harry Berry has fostered this section consistently, and the following seven musicians are on the regular staff: Garnet Jones, Roger Hopkins, Donald Bradley, Jack Berry, Rex Smith, Fred Mead and Roger Thompson.

Chas. Knott and Frank Mann are experienced altoes and Lute Rampt, brother of Arthur, and Albert Brown are equally efficient baritone players.

The percussions are skillfully manipulated by Roy Pierce, snare drum, and Chas. Simpson, bass drum and cymbals, both life-time band men.

In announcing the new members this year, Director Arley L. Meeker said: "The new members playing this year are Fred Smith, coming who was formerly with the Round Oak band at Dowagiac, Roger Hopkins, former solo clarinetist with the University of Illinois concert band, Lute Rampt, baritone, who for many years was with the big circuses, Rex Smith, who has just completed a dental course, is returning to the band this season."

The program for the concert on Wednesday evening, July 3, March "The Stars and Stripes Forever" Overture, "Light Cavalry" Clarke, "Twilight Dreams" John Hess.

Selection from the musical comedy "The Firefly" Friml, A. Dainty Novelleto Bendix, Selection Sweet Jasmine, Selection of Patriotic Airs "America" Theo Moses March "Lincoln Centennial" Sanford.

BLUES JOIN FORCES WITH S. BEND NINE

Teams are to be Merged in Strong Team Next Week.

WILL PLAY HERE Present Organization Plays Two Games This Week.

The Buchanan Blues are to be strengthened after next Sunday by merging with the Dodge Company team of South Bend, according to Manager William Baker, who reports that the strongest players of the two organizations will be retained to form a greatly improved line-up.

The resulting team will play all its games here under the name of the Buchanan Blues, bookings to be made by the manager of the present Dodge Co. team. Last Sunday five of the Blues played with the Dodge Company team, Bob Morris pitching, Bud Froud playing first base, Chain, second, Pingst, shortstop; Brown, third, Morris was conceded the edge in the pitching duel, striking out 9 men and allowing 12 hits, as compared with 5 strike-outs and 12 hits allowed by his opponent, Raybor of Elkhart.

At South Bend July 4th The Blues have two games scheduled before the reorganization takes place, playing the M. R. Falcon team at South Bend Sunday 4, and the K. O. Circles of South Bend here next Sunday. The line-up for both days will be as follows: Pitcher, Morris; catcher, McIntire; first, Froud; second, Peck; short, Pingst; third, Gary; left field, Chain; center field, Conrad; right field, Chain.

The law not only forbids the sale of fireworks but makes their possession by individuals punishable by a fine of $100 and imprisonment for 100 days, or both, at the discretion of the court.

LEE AND ROY MEAD VISIT CALIFORNIA

On the day preceding the Chicago-Buchanan society picnic here, a telegram was received by Miss Mary Reynolds, president of the society from Mr. and Mrs. Lee Mead at Atascadero, Calif., stating that they were just ready to leave for Seattle for a visit with relatives, and that three weeks previously they had been at a picnic attended by about 60 Buchananites at Long Beach. Dr. and Mrs. Roy Mead left Three Oaks Sunday to meet the Lee Meads at Seattle, and to visit several weeks in California. Both families will then return, Lee Mead resuming residence in Chicago, from which place he left last February.

He had made a long preparation for his profession and was apparently at the beginning of a brilliant career when an untimely fate cut him down. He was buried at Shelby, his home town.

Inscription Found On Turtle Recalls A Former Citizen

A discovery that contained much interest from the standpoint of local as well as natural history was made last week at the Boy Scouts camp on Bachelor's Island, when H. C. Knotts of Berrien Springs found a large 7-inch land turtle with the inscription, "Clinton Montague, 1895" on the under side of the shell.

Clinton Montague is well known to Buchanan people as a former resident of this locality who is now located at St. Louis where he is engaged as a salesman for the Clark Equipment Company. As a boy he lived on the farm at the crest of Moccasin Bluff now owned by E. W. Clark and occupied by Ed. Sult.

It would appear from the inscription that Montague found the turtle 34 years ago, when the reptile must have been fully matured.

TO ATTEMPT SOLUTION IN OPEN MEETING

Meeting Called at 7:30 p. m. at the Council Room.

ATTY. S. WHITE SPEAKS Says Conference May Be The Means of Avoiding Litigation.

Possibilities of the settlement of the dispute over the location of the Michigan Central switch track on South Portage street on a basis of mutual agreement became more rosy last night. The council gave assent to a proposition submitted by Atty. Sturtz White, counsel for the protesting west side residents, for a conference at which all parties to the controversy would be present to discuss the issues at stake across the table.

According to the terms of the resolution passed by the trustees an open meeting will be held at the council chambers, opening at 7:30 p. m., Monday, Atty. White taking the responsibility of arranging the attendance of the county highway commission, the representatives of the civil engineering office of the Niles district of the Michigan Central and the heads of the Long Construction company. All residents along the section of South Portage affected by the controversy are urged to be present.

This measure was decided on as the most promising means of reaching a mutually agreeable and practicable settlement of a dispute which has so far been marked by considerable acrimony and fruitless "buck-passing", and has threatened to assume the proportions of a court fight.

The position was taken by Atty. White in the meeting last night that the Michigan Central has nothing more than "permissive" rights that have no legal standing in maintaining their track and that the engineering department is not disposed to contest any reasonable arrangement for placing the tracks where the interests of the residents along the street will be better suited.

The financial report of the district will also be read and the regular appropriations will be made.

The school meeting has formerly been held on the second Monday in June, but the date was set for a month later in order that it might come after the end of the fiscal year, June 30, and after the school year had terminated.

Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Simmons escaped severe injury by a narrow margin Thursday evening, when a large tree crushed in the roof of their cottage at the Crystal Springs camp ground, only the fact that the tree was partially held up when the branches rested on the Knight-Smith cottage saving them. Particularly are the equestrian acts varied and enjoyable this season. In one act fifteen horses do all sorts of difficult maneuvers and steps guided by as many pretty and dainty equestriennes.

Stiffer Regulation For Air Pilots Who Carry Passengers

New and more stringent regulations governing the licensing of air transport pilots, which are to become effective Sept. 1, have been announced by Edward F. Hinson, chief of the air regulations division of the Commerce Department.

The stiffening of the requirements for transport pilots, the only pilots that are licensed to fly passenger-carrying airplanes, is another step in the department's campaign to increase the safety of commercial aeronautics, and a direct result of the intensive study made during the last year of the causes of airplane mishaps.

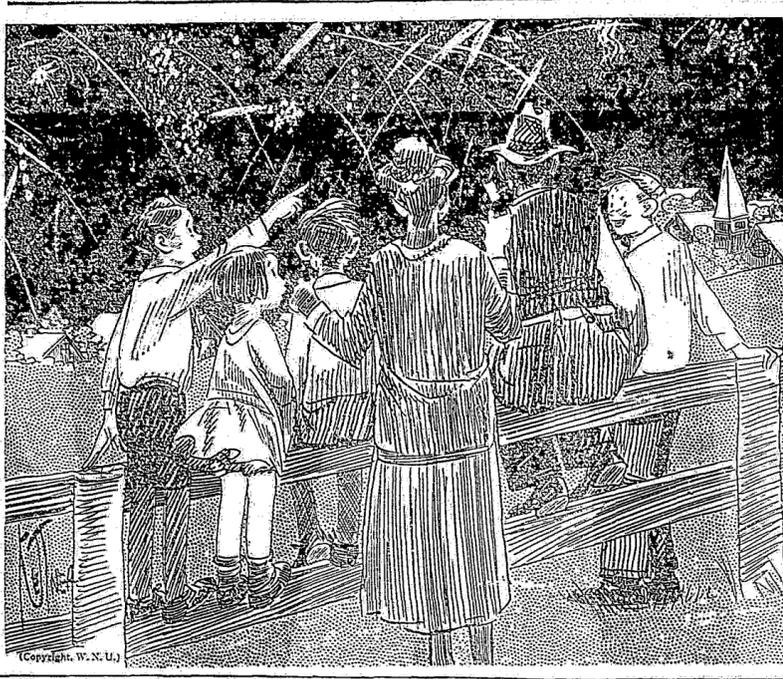

When the new regulations become effective, transport pilots will be permitted to fly only the class of planes for which they are licensed. In other words, pilots who have demonstrated to department examiners their ability to fly only the light class of open cockpit planes will not be permitted to pilot heavier cabin planes or the big trimotored transports until they have passed examinations demonstrating their ability to pilot this type of craft.

The revised pilot's license regulations now being prepared for distribution will set up three general classes of airplanes for which transport pilots will be licensed, those weighing up to 3500 pounds, those weighing between 3500 and 7000 pounds and those whose weight exceeds 7000 pounds. In general, the first class includes light sport and open cockpit planes, the second heavy open cockpit and cabin planes and the third, the large multi-motored air transports. In each class, provision is to be made for licensing transport pilots for flying both single and multi-engine open cockpit planes and single and multi-engine cabin planes.

AN OLD TIMER'S TALES FROM AVAX BACK

The graphic description and historic lore of "Old Timer" with the items of opinion and memory of John G. Holmes, as told in the many numbers of the Buchanan Record, carried me back through miles of space and years of time to Moccasin Bluff, my own home.

Through rain, sleet, slush and snow along Moccasin avenue, then a path through the woods, past the grave yard, the only cemetery in Buchanan, I went to school. In the middle fifties a two-room brick building was built that housed the schools of Mrs. Bates and Third street and Miss Ingersoll on River street, taking the second place in Buchanan's public school buildings.

The little brown school house on the lot about 309 Main (as now numbered) also gave place to the "fine" new school house.

Mr. Devey, Mr. Wells, Mr. Buck, progressive and kind, Mr. Alward and Mr. Barrett, excellent teachers, succeeded each other as principals of that school.

People and prosperity came to Buchanan. Oak street and Days avenue were cut through the Andrew Day farm to the depot.

Houses and churches were built, mills, factories and new business came to stay.

Fruit, maple sugar and wood were abundant. Cows, hens and gardens were a part of Buchanan's thrift. Boys and girls came to Buchanan to go to school.

Some of them worked for their board. Social lines were quite equal.

I don't want to intrude on the Record or encroach on Old Timer's space so good bye, if any remember Esther Montague, who in 1868 married Rollin Winch, at the old home on Moccasin Bluff.

What Difference Between a Watt And a Kilocycle

This is a primer lesson in radio, but it answers several questions put by no less a personage than a Congressman on the committee at Washington that has to deal with radio.

The most direct answer from the viewpoint of the radio listener, said he, "is probably to tell him that the kilocycles are what determine the position of a broadcasting station on the receiver dial, and the watts are what determine the loudness of what is received."

The 90 frequencies upon which the broadcasting stations operate can be thought of as very similar to the keys of a piano. Each key corresponds to a separate frequency and similarly each broadcasting station operates on some particular frequency and this frequency is expressed in a certain number of kilocycles.

The loudness of the signal audible from a broadcasting station has nothing to do with kilocycles, but is determined by an entirely different matter, viz, the watts. A subject is simply a unit used to express electric power.

Since broadcasting power is carried on by electrical means, we express the power involved by watts. The greater the number of watts the stronger the signal which reaches the receiving set.

Now to be more specific and to give an exact statement of what kilocycles really are and their relation to the electric unit, the meter, I would quote from a page in my Radio Handbook:

"Frequency and wave length. Frequency is the number of cycles per second, or the number of to-and-fro alternations of the electric pressure as the wave travels out through space. Wave length is the distance from the crest of a wave to the crest of the next adjacent wave.

Since all electric waves travel at the same velocity (186,000 miles per second, or 300,000,000 meters per second), the shorter the length of the waves the larger the number of them which will pass by a given point during a second.

The length of the waves is numerically equal to their velocity divided by their frequency (number of cycles per second). That is, Wave length in meters 300,000,000 frequency 299,820 Or, more exactly frequency in kilocycles

"For example, a radio wave 600 meters long is caused by a current in a transmitting antenna having a frequency of 500,000 cycles per second, or 500 kilocycles per second, the term 'kilocycle' designating 1000 cycles.

All of these waves travel at the same speed. These electric waves are of an entirely different nature from sound waves. Sound waves are not at all electrical; they consist of actual to-and-fro motions of the air particles and travel with a speed of about 1000 feet per second.

The speed at which electric waves travel is much greater than this; it is so great that the passage of any kind of electric wave is practically instantaneous.

The various kinds of electric waves shown in the table are much alike in many ways, but they have some characteristic differences. Thus, radio waves are different from light waves in that they go through ordinary walls of buildings and other obstacles which are opaque to light.

The waves are radiated and spread out more effectively the higher the frequency. The ordinary low frequencies used in the alternating currents which light our houses alternate very slowly. Such waves travel readily along wires. In order to get a wave which will travel effectively thru space, higher frequencies must be used; that is why the waves used in radio communication make a larger number of vibrations per second.

Safe and Sane

Along wires. Radio waves are intermediate in character between the two, and can travel along conducting wires.

The fact that radio waves, which are able to travel out into space without conducting wires, of high frequency, is one of the important characteristics of radio communication.

The Evolution of the Cucumber.

The evolution of the cucumber is really a remarkable thing. Within the time to which our memory goes back the cucumber of commerce was a short, chunky affair, swelling to considerable proportions at the waistline, notably warty and altogether of a rather ungraceful and unattractive appearance. It was grown exclusively in the open air in those benighted days, was not staked up and always had one yellow side, where it had lain on the ground among the beetles. But science came along, saw the possibilities in the cucumber and began to develop them in that patient, painstaking way science has. The best cucumbers are now grown in green houses under the watchful care of expert gardeners, with what results we see in the magnificent product now on the local market. The modern cucumber of good family would not know its own ancestors and, if it did, would not speak to them.

And in all this process of perfecting the outward appearance of the race of cucumbers the spiritual, or eating, quality has not been neglected. That, too, has been brought to perfection. The scientist quoted the other day said that the cucumber is a food that promotes mental vigor and endows the consumer with staying powers and the will to dare and do. He might also have said, with equal truth, that, while taking the first step toward these high ends, it produces great delight. It is noble in aim and kindly in method, crisp and cool as a November twilight and refreshing as the break of a June shower.

Bishop Cannon's Stock Dealings.

The failure of a brokerage firm in New York, conducting an alleged bucket shop, recently revealed the fact that Bishop Cannon of the Methodist Episcopal Church South was its biggest customer. Apparently his actual investment of cash was $2500, which he has now lost, but in a period of eight months in 1927 and 1928, the firm's books show, he was carrying stocks valued at $47,000. The bishop appears to have gone in for the quick turn, as the professional stock gamblers say, often buying in the morning and selling out in the afternoon. He might have converted his considerable profits into cash if the concern with which he dealt had not got into trouble with public authorities and collapsed when it did.

Bishop Cannon is a leader in a church which frowns severely on the vice of gambling. Until recently, at least, it forbade its members to play cards even "for fun." The bishop's explanations since the exposure of his speculations are no more edifying than his speculations themselves. At first he said in his innocent way that he had supposed he was merely buying investment stocks on the installment plan. When more details came out, he declared that the publicity given his private affairs was due to the determination of his wet enemies to weaken his campaign for prohibition enforcement and against "Raskobism." Apparently he is able to convince himself that he has done nothing unethical or out of harmony with his high calling—but we imagine his influence as a moral and political leader has received a rather severe setback. The glass house argument can be used against him very effectively.

Saving the Forest Trees.

To save the groves of beautiful forest trees provided by Nature is the policy of public officials in Iron County, Michigan. That county has acquired a strip of land more than seven miles in length, alongside one of the scenic highways in the state. The great trees, developed to magnificence thru the years, are to be spared, left as Nature distributed them, a royal forest that man could not duplicate. More than that, the county has decided to acquire strips of land 200 feet in depth along all the state and county highways and save the trees. The land will be purchased, the ax of the woodman will not invade the groves, the trees will be spared and the natural beauty of the roadside forests will be preserved for future generations.

Saving the growing forests is far better than reforestation after the giants in the woods have been slaughtered. Reforestation is the apology of man for greedy blunders made in the past. Saving the forests is proof of the wisdom of man and shows his appreciation of the heritage given him by Nature. In Iron County the forestry and highway departments are working in harmony in the establishment of parks in places where tree growth and scenic beauty make them outstanding and beautiful. In other places where trees were not distributed by Nature they are planting Jack, Norway and Scotch pine trees, thousands of them, to grow into beauty and adorn the highways and surrounding country. The county already has planted more than a quarter of a million such trees. It is good to read of one county where men and women are awake to the beauty of forest trees and determined to save them.

The Perfect Pie.

The cherry pie is famed in song and story. Many noble encomiums have been heaped upon it, for men of light and learning and poetic nature turn to true virtue to celebrate it, as unerringly as the magnetic needle turns to the pole. Perhaps the finest tribute ever paid the cherry pie was paid in these columns by dear old Col. Wilson, who knew a good thing when he saw and tasted it. Col. Wilson, after referring in his feeling way to the crimson dawn, the happy birds and the mellow breezes, all of which delightful things and many more he truthfully said enter into the composition of the cherry pie, declared in his peroration that cherry pie suggests there is a better world than this.

We have had cherry pie with its juicy effulgences bubbling up between the cross-bars of the top crust. It was the perfect pie, perfect in form and substance, and when you are blessed with a perfect cherry pie you have found the ne plus ultra, le dernier cri in the whole world of pies. No other pie can rival it. The purists say that the adjective perfect has no comparative or superlative degree, perfection being perfection. But in the case of cherry pie we challenge the purists. There may be a perfect apple pie or a perfect pumpkin pie, even a perfect lemon pie, but the cherry pie stands forth, head and shoulders above them all, the perfectest pie. We must have had a perfect cherry pie than the one of which Col. Wilson wrote so beautifully. Ours did not suggest to us a better world. It convinced us, while it lasted, that this is the best possible of all worlds, the perfectest in fact.

The function of the bridegroom's parents both before and after the wedding is merely to be ornamental, says the heart and home editor in her comforting way, but we can't think of any more difficult function for some of 'em, most of 'em in fact.

The best dressed girl in this neighborhood bought three jars of Sun Tan Creme, guaranteed to give face, neck, back, arms and legs just the right shade, and went up to her room to go in for the healthful outdoor life.

We understand that the new $10,000 bill, with Salmon P. Chase's portrait on it, will not be put into general circulation until the middle of July but we're used to waiting.

It is said on good scientific authority that 55 species of insects are enemies of the boll weevil but they seem to take it out mostly in talking behind his back.

We often get up in the morning feeling like a red pepper and go to bed at night feeling like a boiled beet.

Another disappointment to the thoughtful middle aged man is the way he looks in a cap.

Everything goes by comparison in this old vale of tears and laughter and we hardly think man ever would have got his reputation for reasoning power if woman hadn't been around also.

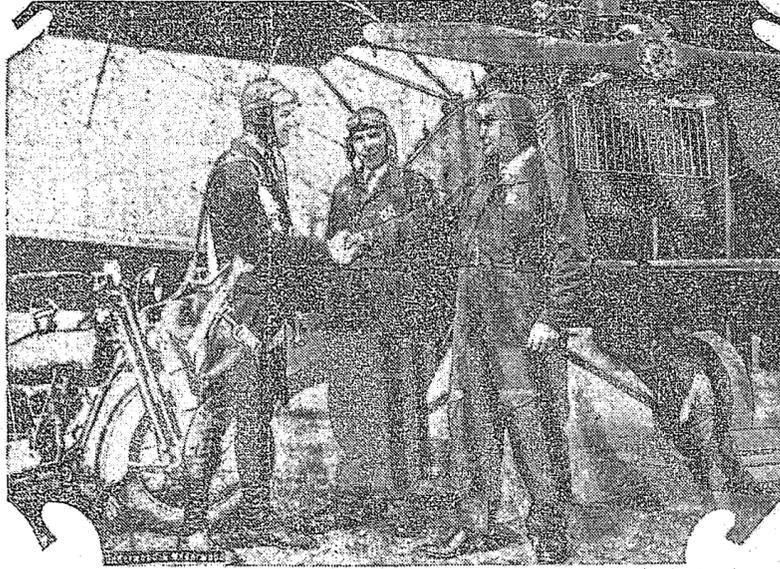

The most intelligent farmer of our acquaintance says there's no use in being dependent over the outlook and the only sensible thing to do is face relief like a man.

Middle age is that period in life when you wonder which of your joints will seem to require a little Sloan's Liniment or something of that nature tomorrow.

So many things have developed lately to tease the hardened old professional reformers with that we're getting behind in that essential branch of our work.

Perhaps the most astounding thing to a man whose memory goes back as far as ours does is how far up a girl will now pull her stockings in public.

Making Life Hard for Bandits in Oregon

Univ. of Oregon Establishes 4 Year Course in Aviation

Aviation is making great strides on the Pacific coast, and is progressing so rapidly that officials of the University of Oregon consider it not only worthy of academic attention, but believe that there is an attractive field for men definitely trained in both university and flying school. Convicted of this, President Arnold Bennett Hall has sanctioned a complete curriculum designed especially for the young man who wishes to follow some branch of aeronautics as his life work.

In co-operation with Hobi Airways Flying School, located in Eugene, three distinct types of training are now available for the prospective worker in this field. The first consists principally of the regular flying course given at the air school, plus evening courses in academic subjects at the university. This is designed principally for the man of limited capital, who must work all or part time to support himself. The second consists of a two-year course in the university plus the regular flying course, at the end of which the student may obtain a certificate from the university, and the regular four-year university course, plus actual flying instruction in the last year, for which the student receives a bachelor's degree.

A special committee appointed by the university president spent several months in study on the new curriculum before submitting their findings to the faculty for approval. It was found that practically all the courses needed by students in this field were already given in the university, and these were combined into units and placed as a division of the school of business administration.

The years of study for the second and third groups as mentioned above will be approximately as follows:

First Year—Constructive accounting, three terms; geography, three terms; unified mathematics, three terms; Spanish or other language, three terms; physical education, three terms; and military science, three terms.

Second Year—Elements of business administration, three terms; general physics, three terms; principles of economics, three terms; commercial aviation, lecture course, one term; practical astronomy, one term; meteorology, one term; physical education, three terms; military science, three terms. If student elects to take two-year course, he will be granted certificate of graduation from lower division of university. Practical flying at local flying school will be taken during last year.

Third Year—Production management, one term; manufacturing, two terms; personnel management, one term; traffic management, one term; advanced general physics, three terms; electrical measurements, three terms; photography, one term; thermodynamics, three terms; strength of materials, two terms; analytical mechanics, three terms; hydraulics, one term; hydrodynamics, two terms.

Fourth Year—Advanced analytical mechanics, three terms; differential and integral calculus, three terms; higher algebra, one term; differential equations, two terms; advanced calculus, one term; applied mathematics, one term; differential equations of mathematical physics, three terms and international law, one term.

The courses described above are designed not only to fit students to become aviators, but to train them for responsible positions with manufacturers, as traffic managers, and as research workers. Those who wish to go into the pure aeronautical research field may continue with work after graduation.

The first students under this new plan will be enrolled next fall, and already considerable interest is being shown in the project. Aviation leaders on the coast have offered to co-operate in every way, and while changes may be made in the curriculum from time to time as conditions warrant, it is believed that the university has a firm basis for continued work in this direction.

The Hobi Airways flying school is regarded as one of the best on the Pacific coast. It is located at the municipal flying field and is acknowledged one of the best to be found in the West. Co-operating with the university and the Hobi school is a committee composed of leaders in aviation and others interested in this field.

Establishment of the courses was made possible largely through the encouragement given by President Hall, who not only believes firmly that the field of aviation is just opening up, but is an enthusiast over flying as well. He has made frequent flights, and recently went aloft with Major Dickerson of the Hobi Airways School for the express purpose of making a survey of the university campus from the air. All are convinced that aviation is now well out of the experimental stage and is safe and practical.

"I took just three bottles of Konjola and then a change came over me that I shall never forget. ing a new world record for a trotter of his age on a two-lap course. The pedigree sharps could not see him, for his blood lines are not considered to be in the fashion. However, years ago a writer on turf topics coined the expression, Fashion follows speed, and Doane in his grand circuit campaign last season did a lot to land his name in "Who's Who" of the equine world.

The Transylvania Stake at Lexington generally is recognized as the outstanding classic of the year for all-age trotters and Doane was the 1928 winner of the event. Old-timers agreed that the battle between Carolina gelding, Dewey McKinney 2:02 1/2, leading stake winner of the season, and Trumpet 2:03 1/2, was one of the greatest ever staged in the forty years that the Transylvania has been a feature of the "Trots" in the Blue Grass. Doane won the third and fourth heats in thrilling nose finishes with Dewey McKinney after Trumpet had won the first round.

Doane secured the world record for four-year-old trotting geldings when he won a second heat at Toledo from the great Hazelton in 2:02 1/2. He has been driven in all of his races by Cy Becker, a reinsman, who heretofore had confined his operations mainly to the half-mile tracks but who showed himself capable of taking care of himself on the major circuit. Doane is set for another big ring campaign and again is a candidate for the Transylvania; should he win he will be the first to repeat in the Kentucky classic.

Will Give Warning For Cherry Sprays

Spray warnings for the control of the cherry fruit fly which were given June 21 to the cherry growers in southwestern Michigan mark the beginning of this year's campaign to protect this crop by means of a service in which the State Department of Agriculture and the entomologists of Michigan State College Co-operate.

In the fruit belt of Michigan, differences in weather conditions make it necessary to maintain observation stations throughout the area to ascertain exactly when sprays should be applied to control the cherry fruit fly. Warnings to be given to the growers damaged fruit in each section when to apply the spray.

The poison recommended for the fruit fly by the college entomologist is two or two and one-half pounds of dry, powdered arsenate of lead in 100 gallons of water or of dilute lime-sulphur. Two and one-half gallons of lime-sulphur in 100 gallons of water is the dilution recommended.

This spray is advised for use on sour canning cherries which are to be scrubbed.

County agricultural agents, the newspapers and the radio will all work together to advise growers in each section when to spray their cherries. This service was so successful last year that not a single can of Michigan cherries failed to pass rigid inspection for fruit fly.

Dangerous Anesthetic

The quantity of chloroform required to anesthetize varies with the individual. Great care has to be exercised in administering chloroform and it must be done by a competent physician, as poisoning sometimes results when too much is given.

Uses for Sawdust

The sawdust of mahogany and rosewood is used in dressing furs, and that of some woods, such as the pencil cedar, yield perfumes.

As to Water Rights
There are all sorts of legal questions involved in the matter of the control of water. All navigable waterways belong to the public. The federal government has jurisdiction over lakes and rivers as regards their navigation; while the states have the jurisdiction in other matters. Ponds and brooks belong to individuals, subject to state regulations.

Drains Enrich the Soil
The vast sandy plain on which Berrien is situated provides a soil adapted to the working of the famous Berlin drainage system, established in 1876. Pumps send sewage from the city by radiating mains to surrounding farms, 48,000 acres of which are under municipal control. All are under sanitary supervision.

Ancient Inscription
The famous Bohistun rock in Persia, on which is carved the triumphs of Darius the Great, is 900 feet above the highway. Sir Henry Rawlinson, an Englishman, discovered these inscriptions in 1835; 23 centuries after they had been carved there.

Young Tyrants
There seem to be as many spoiled children as ever. It is remarkable how parents will permit their children to manage them to the detriment of all concerned.—Woman's Home Companion.

Womanly Wife
"A neighbor of ours," writes a correspondent to Farm and Fireside, had such a costly set of furniture covers made that she is now having a second set made to protect the best ones.

Note—If this acknowledgment is taken outside of the state, the certificate of the Court that the person taking the acknowledgment is a notary must be attached.

Registration of Absentee by Oath

Princess Theatre
A mere glance at the program for the month of July reveals a careful arrangement and study of pictures on the part of the local manager, Mr. Morley. There is not a week that does not present at least two outstanding hits.
July 4th and 5th presents one of the most talked about subjects in the country today, "Companionate Marriage." The story was written by Judge Ben E. Lindsey, the famous Denver juvenile court judge, who invented this new marriage theory. Is this new theory a solution to the divorce problem? Is companionate marriage the road to new found happiness? Millions are asking themselves the questions. Here is a startling drama that shows how the new scheme works by a man who has given it intelligent study.
The Saturday crowd always enjoys a western and the first Saturdays are marked by the appearance of Jack Holt in a Zans Grey story, "Sunset Pass"; Fred Thomson in his last local appearance as Kit Carson and a Hoot Gibson western, "Burning the Wind."
Other pictures of particular note include Clara Bow in "The Wild Party," coming next Tuesday and Wednesday; "Manhattan Cocktail," "Two Weeks Off," "The Flying Fleet," a great aviation picture comparing equal, if not better than "Wings" or "Lilac Time"; "Two Lovers"; "The Duke Steps Out"; "The Wolf of Wall Street" and a dozen more.
We would suggest that you take particular note of the Princess advertisements during the month as there will be a great number of pictures you will not want to miss.

Early Written Works
Illuminated manuscripts are those whose texts are brightened and heightened by vignettes and otherwise decorated in colors or in gold and silver. Fifteen centuries before Christ the papyrus rolls of the Book of the Dead were illuminated with brilliantly colored scenes. Later, as writing became alphabetic, the important letters were illuminated.

Humanity Set Apart
Every now and again I meet up with a "lonely" man or woman, who is such because through some idiosyncrasy of creation, he or she is different from the common run of us. It is rather sad, because there appears to be no help for it. Such folks are like moths confined in a chest of cotton garments.—Portland Oregonian.

Perfect Female Figure
One compilation of measurements for the perfect female figure is as follows: Neck, 12 1/2 inches; bust, 35 inches; waist, 26 inches; hip, 34 inches; thigh, 20 inches; knee, 14 inches; calf, 13 1/2 inches; ankle, 8 inches; upper arm, 10 1/2 inches; forearm, 9 inches; wrist, 6 inches; height, 5 feet 6 inches; weight, 133 pounds.

One Sort of Fellow
He is the sort of fellow, we said in our bitterly intolerant way, who would spend ten minutes backing into a parking space and preventing the access of the car behind, rather than drive up to a comfortable space, get in there in ten seconds, and spend two minutes walking back.—Fort Wayne News-Sentinel.

London Gets Photoradiogram From San Francisco

The transmission of the first commercial photoradiogram from San Francisco to London, utilizing the new transcontinental radio circuit which Allyn Walker of New York opened, was announced by R. C. A. Communications, Inc. The picture, shown and developed in the Hollywood studios of Radio Pictures, the motion picture producing organization of R-C-A, was first transmitted to London, via New York. This feat marked the first time that a photograph has traversed a distance of approximately 6,000 miles to its destination, in commercial radio transmission. The photograph shows Henry Dider, French consul at Los Angeles, and Henry Bancroft-Livingston, English vice consul of the same city, with Debe Daniels and Betty Compson grouped around a representation of the northern hemisphere topped by a radio tower.

CHICAGO-CALIF.
21 HR. AIR ROUTE OPENS IN AUGUST
FLEET OF 18-PASSENGER TRI-MOTORED PLANES TO BE STARTED.
For the first time in the history of the world, a tri-motored transport plane carried mail and passengers on a regularly scheduled night flight over mountains on May 1. This plane, which was flown by Ray Little, veteran air mail pilot was a 12-passenger air liner of the Boeing Air Transport fleet, and carried several passengers on its historic trip.
Just nine years ago, Mr. Little piloted the first consignment of air mail from the Pacific coast over the same route. At that time the ship he flew was an old war surplus DeHaviland, with a 400 horsepower Liberty motor. It carried but 400 pounds of mail in an open cockpit. The big Boeing transport contrasted sharply with the old DeHaviland. Its three Hornet motors develop 1275 horsepower. In its mail compartment was space for 1300 pounds of mail and express. A comfortable cabin with accommodations for 12 people was provided for the passengers. It included heating facilities, buffet service and practically all the comforts of an observation car.
Perhaps the most interesting feature of the Boeing transport was a radiophone set, developed only after more than a year's intensive research by Boeing engineers, which enabled the pilots to talk from an altitude of 12,000 feet to the Oakland ground transmitting and receiving station, more than 200 miles distant.
Pilot Little, with Ted Borgard as relief pilot, sat under his controls for a brief hour and 45 minutes, manipulating controls, regulating the engine speed and communicating with the ground radiophone stations. In the cabin the passengers watched the black outline of the Sierras swing by, conscious that they were participating in an epoch-making flight. After 10 years of struggle the transcontinental airway brought the eastern and western seaboard to within one business day of each other.
A few minutes before 8 o'clock, time for the departure of the first eastbound night transcontinental plane, Little left a banquet hall at the airport, where he was guest of honor. His manner was that of a professional man going about his business. The entire flight was characterized by a "matter of fact" atmosphere, to which several things contributed.
In the first place, the pilots were handed a complete report on the weather conditions, not only from the Oakland-Reno route, but also on the entire region adjacent to the air line. The report was compiled by various United States weather bureaus along the route and was transmitted by Department of Commerce radio stations. Thus, at the time of the take-off, the pilots were fully informed as to the weather conditions.
Too, the pilots had full confidence in the ship. It was a product of the greatest air laboratory in the world—the 2000-mile transcontinental air mail route—a laboratory on which the Boeing system has experimented to the extent of more than 5,000,000 miles of actual flying. Intense heat over the deserts, subzero cold over the mountains, stubborn headwinds, snow, rain, sleet and fog—all these conditions have been successfully met. Speed must be made and schedules maintained. Such is the laboratory experience on which the Boeing ship was designed and built.
There was no doubt about the facilities for getting away. A 30,000,000-candlepower B. B. T. light flooded the broad expanse of the airport, lighting it like day. White border lights, red obstruction lights, green approach lights, the Pacific coast to Chicago—aboard the plane, without the troublesome changes from train to plane.

Edith May Hall
Married June 28th
To Jack Henslee

In one of the prettiest local June weddings of this year, Miss Edith May Hall was married at 9 a. m. last Friday to Jack B. Henslee of Detroit, the ceremony being performed at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Hall, a mile and a half south of Buchanan.
The marriage ritual was read by Rev. William Maylan Jones, former Buchanan minister and now pastor of the Mt. Hope Methodist church of Lansing. The wedding took place in the room where the bride was born, which was beautifully decorated with bridesmaid daisies and ferns. The bride couple were supported by the sister of the bride and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Elbers of L'Anse, Upper Peninsula, Mich. The double ring ceremony was used, the ringbearer being little three-year old Arthur Elbers, a nephew of the bride.
The room was occupied for 24 years by the mother of Mrs. A. R. Hall, Mrs. Edith Hinman, who died March 18 of the present year. The ceremony was very quiet on account of the recent death.
The bride was graduated in 1920 from the Buchanan high school, attended normal school one year at Kalamazoo, and the following year received her teaching certificate from the normal at Ypsilanti. Since then she has taught school for two years at Plymouth, Mich., where she met her future husband, Mr. Henslee, the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Henslee of Griffin, Ga. He was in the aviation service of the United States for six years during and after the World War, and is now an engineer in the experimental department of the Packard Motor Company at Detroit.
They have furnished a home in the upper story of a beautiful bungalow in a new residence section of Detroit, where they will live today. In another month they will go on a wedding tour, when Mr. Henslee is given his annual vacation.

As for motor trouble, in the case of a tri-motored plane, the failure of one engine, or even two, does not mean a forced landing. The Boeing tri-motor will take off a full load and climb with but two engines working; and it will stretch a glide indefinitely with only one motor working. The chances of more than one of three motors failing at once is very small indeed.
This historic flight over the mountains at Reno is in no way a struggle against odds, with the element of uncertainty to make it interesting. The story is that its success was a foregone conclusion—the culmination of years of effort, and yet the beginning of a new era in aviation. The double schedule is under way. There is no commotion about it. The tri-motors go over the Lump every night—and on to Salt Lake City.
In August or September a fleet of 18-passenger, tri-motored, 1575-horsepower Boeing planes will be ready for the San Francisco-Oakland-Chicago run. Passenger service will be handled entirely in these planes. Air travelers will ride, in 21 hours, more than half of which will be at night, from the entire situation. An indicator registered the wind direction.

Once aloft, the pilot followed a chain of revolving beacon lights which were 25 miles apart, but visible for more than 100 miles on a clear night. Blinker lights were set at distances three miles apart. There were intermediate landing fields at intervals of 25 miles in case of trouble of any kind.
After taking off, the pilots continually received the newest information on the weather conditions, for as soon as the fresh reports came into the Reno and Oakland transmitting stations, they were communicated directly to the pilots by means of the radiophone.

Don't Let Your Community Make the Same Mistake!
"Within recent years many communities have made the mistake of paving their roads and streets at what they considered a "bargain price." The taxpayers thought they would save thousands of dollars. In many instances the maintenance has not only wiped out the hoped for saving, but has exceeded original cost. And in many cases also it has been necessary to build entirely new pavements—of permanent construction.
There are communities, however, which know the cheapest is not always the best. Many of these also built roads and streets several years ago. And they built for permanence with concrete.
These concrete pavements, built in accordance with approved standards of construction, are in as good condition today as when they were built.
Which of these communities will yours be?

The Old Timer's Corner

Old Timer Tells How he Acquired His Early Musical Education

I have been thinking this morning about a very unique old place down just a little way north of town, and the grand old people that lived there. I refer to Jim Case and his wife, Myra. Mrs. Case was a sister to Mrs. Ed. Abel. They were not at all alike, but they were very fond of each other and were of the "old school" style of women. Mrs. Case was small and of a nervous temperament, always up and doing and keeping things ready. She wasn't at all well, and finally died with lung trouble, I believe. She always had a "hacking" cough, and when any of us kids had a cough, they would tell us about it and say we had a "Myra cough." There were several children, and I think some of them were by another (first) wife of Jim's. They were, "Hype" Case, Jennie, Almond and there may have been more, but that is all I knew, and then Wallace Case, or "Wallie" as we knew him, was the son of Myra. They ran a green house, and it was a sort of home made affair, but they knew how to raise plants and flowers and had the green house right at the very door of their home, so they didn't have to go far in cold weather to attend to the fires, etc. Just stoves, down there, with some heating pipes that ran through the length of the low glass covered "green house," but they managed to keep it warm, as toat down there, even when the weather was bitter cold.

They had a small place, I imagine there were perhaps four or five acres in the whole place and the house sat up on the top of the hill and the rest of the little place ran down hill to the north and there they used to raise vegetables etc.

One of the most interesting features on the place was the old black mare that they drove around for all manner of work. Her name was "Molly," a small black mare with a small white spot on her face and one white foot. I remember her as well as if I had seen her only yesterday. They had a sort of "spring wagon," that had an extra seat, but mostly they loaded every one into the front seat, and they were always on hand at church, and very active in Sunday School work and such things. Jim was superintendent of the Sunday school for a long time. Devout Christians and always acted accordingly. Not the kind that were good in church and then do as they pleased other days of the week. Many times I rode home behind old "Molly." In later years she grew lame, and they never drove her faster than a walk, but they were not able to buy a new horse, so Molly was still in service, the last I ever knew of her.

Their home was a little old-fashioned house with one story, but it was comfortable. I used to go there a lot as Wallie and I were somewhat of chums. He used to come past the house for me and stop on his way to school.

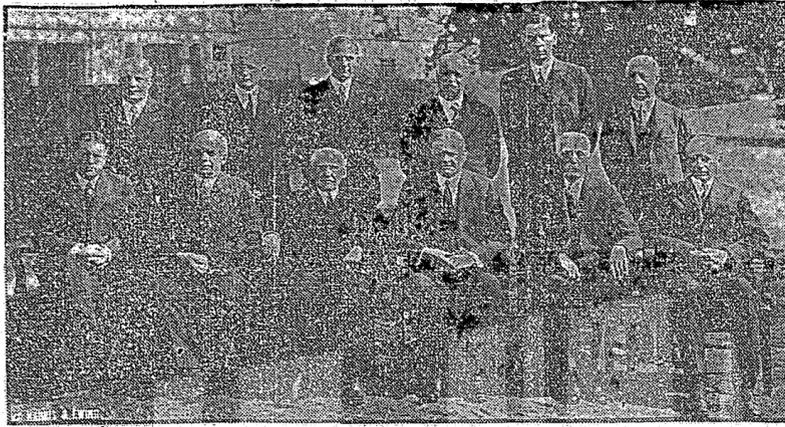

tendent of schools then and nothing was said to me at school about it either. I thought I was getting out of it mighty easily, but the first day that Wallie came back to school, Aleshire took us down in the "dining hall" and there he proceeded to give us what was coming to us. I insisted then (and I still contend) that he was all wrong for we were not "skipping school" but we thought, at least, that we were "running away from home." Well, anyway, we lived through it, but I have always had it "in" for Aleshire, and some time I am going to tell him to his face what I think of him. I presume he is getting "pretty well along in years by this time, but I still think he has something coming to him. So that's that.

I learned a great deal of what little I know about the piano, while going to see Wallie Case, for they had an old Estey organ, with one of the "bellows" busted, but if you worked fast enough with one foot, it played, and I picked out tunes with one finger, and found out that it was possible to play a lot of things I knew how to sing. At my own home Lura was taking music lessons and we had a piano, but they were late for Sunday school and but one day while they were all gone to church, I found out that the sewing machine key would unlock the piano. So I got in a lot of "practice" on the pieces that I heard Lura playing during the week. One morning, I became so engrossed in it that I overlooked the time and was still hard at it, when the door opened and the folks all came in from church. I was late for Sunday school and had to be punished for that. But they decided that I should take some lessons also. I went to Lura for my lessons and she asked me if I knew the notes, and I figured that if I did, I wouldn't have to learn them so I said yes. That was fine, she thought, and began giving me some little pieces to play, but I was foxy and asked her to play them over for me first, which she did, and then I would go home and play them "by ear" and that went on for a little while until she began giving me things that I couldn't handle and then I "fessed up" and told her the truth, so she "fired me" and that was the end of my musical education, as far as that was concerned. I didn't stop playing, however, and later on I made good use of it, professionally, and have enjoyed what little I acquired, very much.

It may be that I would have played the piano, etc., anyway, but I "give credit where credit is due" and so I have Mrs. Case to thank for letting me fool around that old organ of theirs, and believe that that was my start toward what later on developed into a real talent. I think that parents should try and study their children's inclinations and help them insofar as it is possible rather than looking up the piano, for instance. But that is all ancient history now, and so we forget it. We all make mistakes, and as I have stated before, that is the reason why they put rubber erasers on lead pencils.

Buchanan Pupil of 60's Wonders if any Schoolmates now Live here

Editor Record,

Your Records of recent date have come to me through kindness of a subscriber and I was disappointed in not finding a writing from some one of the old scholars of Buchanan school of 1860 to 1870. Have they all gone? It would please me to know that there was even one there who remembers the old school room and would write a word. I notice "Old Timer" has turned his thoughts to poetry and if the quotations he sent in are his favorites I cannot help but have pity for him and would advise him to stick to writing on subjects "historical" or "our place" near the old Cooper shop. The attractions were certainly strong for many of the Buchananites. Of course there was a Mrs. Moon but she departed to a more congenial clime. I imagine "Old Timer" will give us a write-up about the Collins family or J. D. Miller family. He did not mention the spring at the foot of Moccasin hill when owned by the Montagues. I recall the device they used in bringing the spring water up hill to the house. John Montague, Orrin Montague

School nurse says all girls should know this

Talking to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping." Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless, and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

and Esther all lived there and the mother in the 60's, all happy and contented as I remember them. But time has brought about many changes at Moccasin hill, I expect. Thirty years ago this month, I left dear old Michigan and came to New Mexico which is very different in every way. We are a mile higher than Chicago, I think. The air is usually cool and very invigorating and many come to New Mexico for that reason and are benefitted. Thirty years have brought many people from the eastern states, who stay, live longer by doing so. It is not agriculture, sheep and cattle principally, I wish I could give you a picture of our beautiful mountains and valleys. It would knock "Old Timer" cold with admiration. He would forget there was ever a "Moon" set, or a "Moon" shine or an old "Moon." There is not just one place that calls us, but many, all equally lovely. We might lack the rail fence that the Moon homestead had but we have in place of it to beautify the dells and streams, rocks. I am certain if some of the city people and town folks could once get out of the sweltering heat and come to the western country, they could enjoy life better and live longer.

Respectfully,
Mrs. Nancy Bliss Studebaker,
