

WARD MAIL-BOX COMPANY WILL ENTER LARGE-SCALE FIELD IN MANUFACTURE OF DOOR BELLS AFTER FIRST OF YEAR

Dayton I. O. O. F. Plans Great Labor Day Picnic and Celebration

CONTRACT FOR 600,000 PER YEAR OUTPUT

On Mass Production Schedule Early in the Year of 1930. TO EMPLOY 35 TO 40 Daily Schedule Output to Stabilize Employment.

Buchanan will be furnishing door bells for the United States and any other part of the world that has coors to put a bell on within a year, according to authoritative advice from the James H. Ward Mailbox Company, to the effect that that concern has just signed a contract for the manufacture of 600,000 door bells and buzzers a year for a sales company specializing in apartment house accessories.

Orders have already been let to machine shops for the construction of the special machinery which will be required to put out the new product. The new installations will include a battery of six punch presses, special coil winding machinery designed by Ward, special built assembly equipment and numerous new dies. It will require three or four months to complete and install the necessary equipment, according to Ward, but it is anticipated that the shop will be equipped for mass production soon after the first of the year. The plant will then go on a daily schedule of 2,000 door bells daily, to meet the annual schedule of 600,000.

The added output will require the employment of an increased number of workers up to an anticipated total of about 35 or 40. The present mail box manufacturing will be continued, but schedules of output will be changed and the factory will be rearranged to permit of the added equipment. It is expected that the added work will tax the capacity of the new factory building which Ward moved into last spring. The contract was made with the same company that Ward has been producing apartment house accessories for, for the past two years. This company has a nation-wide market both for new installations and for replacements.

13,000 CARS ON U. S. 12 ONE DAY

SIX SECONDS BETWEEN CARS OVER A 24 HOUR PERIOD.

It was six seconds between cars over a 24 hour period at the junction of M-60 and U. S. 12 at New Buffalo on Sunday, August 11, according to a count made under the direction of C. S. Rohl, state superintendent of maintenance for the state in Berrien county, or 13,000 for the 24 hour period, if you prefer to figure it out for yourself.

The figures for traffic over this road, reported to be one of the most heavily travelled in the world, became more staggering when it is remembered that this is for an entire 24 hour period, and that consequently the frequency of motors must have been much larger during the daylight and early evening hours. The next highest count was taken south of New Buffalo on U. S. 12, about a half mile from the Indiana line, where 12,700 autos were recorded.

South of Niles on U. S. 31 at Station 5, the count was 10,500, and at the west village limits of Coloma, the combined total on U. S. 12 and 31 was 10,500. North of Niles on U. S. 31, 6,200 autos were checked on the new U. S. 12 highway.

At U. S. 31 and the Derby-Stevensville road, the count was 4,300. M-60 between Buchanan and Niles was a route taken by 3,000 cars. Out of 3,200 automobiles on M-60 south of the village limits of Buchanan, 2,500 vehicles passed over the main arterial highway and 700 on the county road.

R. ROBINSON NAMED BAND INSTRUCTOR

To Conduct Grade and High School Classes in Mornings.

ENTRANCE EXAMS Holland Man Teaches Mathematics and Boys' Glee Club.

Arrangements were completed Monday between R. R. Robinson and the Buchanan school board, represented by Supt. Stark, for the former to take charge of the high school band and orchestra, with a regular position on the faculty and regular hours of class work each morning.

Mr. Robinson proved his qualifications last year, when he donated four months of his time to directing a band composed of junior high school and grade pupils. At that time he was not connected with the schools, and was obliged to drill his pupils outside of school hours. He nevertheless aroused much interest and made considerable progress. This year he will have nearly all of his former pupils back as a nucleus and a first class organization is in prospect.

Now that his courses will receive credit and be conducted in school hours, it is expected that many more will enroll. The students will probably be divided into elementary and advanced organizations. Grade pupils will be drilled from 8:15 to 9:00 a. m., before the beginning of their regular class work.

Joseph Hyink, of Holland, Mich., has been appointed instructor in mathematics and director of the boys' glee club.

Kindergarten Limited Due to the fact that a greatly increased kindergarten enrollment is expected, only those who will be allowed to enter who will be at least four and a half years by Nov. 15, and no pupils will be admitted at the midway. Supt. Stark is anxious that all pupils in this department be registered next Tuesday morning. That department will open at 9 a. m. at the Dewey Avenue building on that day. In addition to the kindergarten the Dewey Avenue school will contain one first grade, two second grades and one third grade section.

A number of changes are planned in the organization of the junior high school curriculum, according to Supt. Stark, to permit of more supervised study and to cut down on the amount of required home work. To this end several classes are to be combined and other adjustments made.

Henry Adams and Family Motor in Rocky Mountains

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Adams and daughter, Miss Louise, arrived home Saturday from a month's motor trip, in the course of which they visited relatives at Milwaukee, Neb., Cedar Rapids and McCook, Neb. At the latter point they were joined by a party of twelve relatives and friends and drove to Colorado, where they toured a number of scenic points. They visited Colorado Springs, including Manitou Canyon, the Garden of the Gods, and Helen Hunt Falls. They drove through the famed Boulder and Big Thompson canyons in the northern part of the state and entered beautiful Estes Park, where they saw Long's Peak, 14,320 feet in height, and enjoyed a snowball fight in August. They returned Saturday with an addition of 8,500 miles on the speedometer and only three blowouts on route. "You might describe Senator Borah in action, but not the Rockies," said one of the party.

FIELD SHOOTING INTRODUCED AT LOCAL GUN CLUB

I. DALRYMPLE LEADS IN THE NEW FORM OF TRAP SPORT.

The customary order of the day at the Buchanan Gun Club trap was altered Sunday by the introduction of "field shooting". This is a form of trap shooting, according to Manager Lloyd Sands, which approximates as nearly as possible the actual conditions in sport affield. The contestants line up with their guns to shoot in turn as each bird is released. The attendant at the traps alters the speed at which the birds are released and the angle at which they appear so that no shooter knows when or in what direction his bird will take the air. I. Dalrymple led the field of ten contestants in this form of marksmanship with a score of 20-18 out of a possible 25. Other scores were: M. Bauman 16-16, J. Bauman 7-17, Burrus 12, Delibac 14-14, E. Sands 15, S. Hanover 10-16, R. Hanover 15, Hunter 16, L. Sands 9.

In regular trap shooting William Fette led with 20-21-22 out of a possible 25. Other scores were: Hunter 20-20, I. Dalrymple 19-22, Burrus 17-15, E. Sands 11-18, Hanover 15, Delibac 14, H. Ferris 9, L. Sands 9, C. Ferris 0. Scores in the doubles were: Delibac 11, I. Dalrymple 10.

Hampton Home is Damaged By Fire

There was quite an excitement at Beaver Dam when Sam Hampton's dwelling house was found to be on fire last Sunday about noon. Mrs. Hampton smelled smoke and upon investigating found the roof of their home ablaze. Neighbors soon filled the yard and about half of Gallen came and brought the fire engine. The blaze was soon put out then. Quite a lot of stuff was carried out of the house and it was feared that the new home which is being built would go, but was saved.

GRAF ZEPPELIN FROM BUCHANAN SEEN PLAINLY

SHARES IN GLIMPSE OF BIG BLIMP.

The advantages of living in Buchanan, in or immediately adjacent to the center of the world, was vividly illustrated by the fact that several hundred residents of this city were among the relatively few of the earth's inhabitants who were favored with a glimpse of the Graf Zeppelin on its epochal flight around the world. The great ship passed over Baroda and Berrien Springs between 6:30 and 7 p. m., fast time, and was plainly visible from Buchanan and Gallen, while residents at Glendora and in the Bend of the River could plainly see the gondola. Among those who called at the Record office that evening were Mrs. Lee Alis, who saw it from her home in Bertrand township and Ed. Howell, who saw it leave Lake Michigan about Bridgman and sail toward Berrien Springs.

A number saw it from the Chamberlain Hills, south of Buchanan, and from roofs of buildings here. Several hundred drove south into Indiana, misled by advance radio reports to the effect that the Zeppelin would circle the southern end of Lake Michigan and pass over South Bend enroute to Cleveland. When it was reported visible to the northwest, the roads leading north into Michigan were transformed into roaring speedways.

Former Buchanan Boy is Official in Canadian Company

W. D. Bremer left Friday for Calgary, Can., to visit his son, O. F. Bremer, who is a cattle salesman for the Alberta Co-operative Live Stock Producers' Limited, with headquarters in that city.

O. F. Bremer went to Canada 26 years ago, and for a time was a rancher on the Red Deer River in Alberta. He writes that his section of Canada is seriously affected by drought this year and that the wheat crop will be correspondingly short, with prospects of high prices later. Calgary has a promising oil field, he writes, which affords some relief from the drought.

FIRE DEMON LEVELS BARN AT BEST FARM

Spontaneous Combustion is Credited as the Cause.

The long list of barn fires which has visited the Buchanan district during the latter part of the summer received an addition Saturday when the large structure on the E. L. Best farm, two miles west of town, was totally destroyed by flames believed to have started from spontaneous combustion.

The fire was first discovered about 5 p. m. by Frank Rose, who lives on the farm to the south. Seeing the smoke pouring from the building, Rose ran to the Best house and gave the warning to the Albert Hime family, who live in part of the residence and who were eating an early supper preparatory to going to town. They rushed to the barn but it was already too late to get anything out.

Best had left the farm about two hours before, going into Buchanan. He had gone into the barn just before leaving and it is not known that anyone had been in the building afterward. It contained about nine tons of new hay and some fresh straw which had been poured on top at threshing time. A horse also perished in the fire. Two wagons and other farm equipment were burned. The loss was covered by insurance.

LANG BEGINS PORTAGE ST. PAVING AGAIN

Renews the Work Delayed Over a Year by Sewer Troubles.

INSTALLING CURB Sewer Cleaned This Week Preliminary to Test.

South Portage paving operations which have been delayed for over a year by the sewer difficulties on that thoroughfare, were begun Monday in anticipation of the acceptance of the sewer at the end of the test now being conducted.

Contractor Lang of Chicago stated that they would grade the street at least and install concrete curbing where their contract called for it, and then be ready to install the paving when the sewer is finally approved. While it is anticipated that the Portage Street sewer will be accepted in its present form, the final stamp of approval is not to be given until the test now in progress is completed, about the end of the present week. Sewer cleaning machinery was brought from South Bend the first of the week and work started in cleaning the sand which had clogged the lines. Operations were begun at the Central Court man hole and proceeded northward at the rate of a block at a time.

City engineer J. B. Toyne stated that he expects the sewer to be satisfactory in its present form, in spite of the fact that some leakage is still evident. About 2,000 gallons daily are needed to flush the sewer he said, and if this did not enter as leakage it would be necessary for the city to hook it to the water system and supply that amount.

HELLO SHE SAID AND THE HORSES HAD HER NUMBER

SHE KNEW HER MUSH BUT NOT THE KIND GROWING ON BUSHES.

She was a sweet young thing from old St. Looney, just out on the farm for the first time, you know, down at Uncle A. L. Stodder's farm at Gallen, and she wanted to know all about it. Down in St. Looney she is Miss Audrey Nunally, chief operator at the Telephone exchange, and you may tell her world she has all their numbers.

Down at Uncle Stodder's she was a little off her beat but she wanted to learn, "So this is a farm," she purred, when she alighted, "And where's the horses, and may I see them?" "Sure, they're out in the stable but speak to them when you go in the door, and they won't kick," was the reply.

So she went right to the horse garage and stood in the door, and summoning the voice with the smile that had melted the hearts of innumerable grouchy telephone patrons, she said "Hello," and of course no horse with any heart in him could kick after that.

And then they give her a little basket and she went out to gather the eggs—in the manger and up in the haymow, and out in the straw pile. And then she took them to the house, 25 in all, 16 brown ones and 11 white that were hard and white and glisteny, which she thought might be Plymouth Rock eggs, only Uncle Stodder said they were nest eggs and took them back.

So that was that, and they all sat down to the supper table— one of those bountiful tables, "everything raised right on the farm" "Fine," she cooed, "and do you really raise your own mush too?" "Sure," said Uncle Stodder, "right out here on our own mush bushes."

And so Audrey waded into the mush until she was just about blubbered.

Glenn S. Easton has sold his home on Chicago street to H. E. Thompson, who will take possession soon.

Now Here's the Proposition

The Darned Old Blimp Bi Havs

"Hugo's coming with his airship" went the word from mouth to mouth. And there was a roar of motors from the gas carts headed south. There was Mister Harley Riley, there was Mister Herbert Roe, there was also Matt J. Kelling and a hundred more or so who hustled off to South Bend and there parked to get a glimpse of Mr. Hugo Eckener and his Great Big Blimp.

They sat there in the airport and they waited patiently; they scanned the far horizon till their eyes could hardly see; there was Marley, Matt and Hamilton and Mister Herbert Roe. Who slowly wended homeward with their souls convulsed with woe; for seven hours they'd sat there and waited like a simps, just to get a peek at Hugo and his Darned Old Blimp.

There is sorrow in the city zow; when someone mentions "graf", there's a pained air of sudden silence and perhaps a hollow laugh. For Hugo saw Baroda, and he thought it was South Bend; so they sat and kept on sitting till the dark and bitter end; then they softly recommended to the devil and his imps, A certain Hugo Eckener and his Darned Old Blimp.

Percentage of Yellows is Small, Kinney Reports

Glenn Kinney, state peach inspector for Buchanan township, reports that the disease common to known "yellows" has not gained much foothold in this district, the infestation not having affected over 20 per cent or 30 per cent of the total number of trees. The "yellows" is a bacterial disease which causes the fruit to ripen at about two-thirds of the normally mature size and about two weeks in advance of the normal time. The fruit on trees affected by the disease is very red under the skin and the flesh is full of red specks. As the disease develops, heavy bunches of foliage, known as "willow-twig" growths, spring out of the trunk near the crotch, and eventually the leaves turn yellow and the tree dies. There is no remedy for the disease other than to uproot the tree and burn it, thus preventing the spread of the disease.

Misses Gale Pears and Mary Karling are to arrive home today from an air plane flight from Niles to Cleveland and return in company with Albert Dudeck, pilot at the Kysor aviation school at the Niles air port. They made the flight from Niles to Cleveland Tuesday to attend the air races, meeting Mr. and Mrs. Richard Pears there.

News From Galien and Vicinity

MINT INDUSTRY IS NO MINT NOW, GROWERS REPORT

PRACTICALLY EXTINCT IN GALIEN, THREE OAKS AND GLENDORA DISTRICTS.

The mint industry is not a mint as an industry any more—in fact it is little more than a fragrant memory in the Galien, Three Oaks and Glendora districts these days. Yields are estimated at from one quarter to one half of normal on greatly reduced acreages. The Roy Payne still was closed today after a short season run, as compared with a usual season run of 30 days. Payne stated that his total distilling this year was less than one third of normal.

William Watson, post master and formerly leading mint grower in the Three Oaks district, states that the industry is practically extinct there, due to very adverse crop conditions in the past year. Old fields were badly damaged by the glacial ice sheet which covered them during the winter, and the new plantings were an entire failure, due to cold wet weather in the spring. Watson states that only two stills operated in the Three Oaks section, one for three and the other for four days.

The largest acreage reported is that of Adam Posick of Glendora, who harvested 50 acres of old planting this year, securing about 700 pounds as compared with 1900 two years ago. Beebe Brothers who have a large farm at Baroda, have gone out of the mint business entirely.

The price is slightly better than last year, buyers from Kalamazoo offering $3.25 per pound the first of the week. Prices last year ranged from $2.50 to $3.00 per pound.

U. S. Experts Would Wreck Winter Homes of Black Stem Rust

While Michigan is advertising its advantages as a locality for summer homes, the United States Department of Agriculture is paying two crews of men to destroy the winter homes of the black stem rust of grain in this State, according to the statement of Walter Reddy, East Lansing, state supervisor of barberry eradication.

Black stem rust is one of several plant diseases which damage cultivated crops during the growing season and then pass the winter living on some wild plant. The common barberry is the winter host for stem rust, and the destruction of barberry greatly lessens the damage caused by rust.

The crews which are destroying barberry bushes in Michigan are now working in Antrim county. They have found thousands of barberry plants in outcrop areas where dense cover makes the detection of the bushes very difficult. The working crews carry saws and place several pounds around each bush. As the saw goes into solution and soaks into the soil, the barberry is killed and no sprouts come up from the roots. Digging out the bushes is difficult and often results in several sprouts growing from roots which were removed from the soil.

Black stem rust affects all the small grains and will also live on many varieties of wild grass. In favorable weather the rust spreads rapidly, and causes thousands of dollars of damage to grain crops.

THE PASSING OF THE GRAF

By Frederick Howe

No one in Buchanan, Michigan's newest city, could have had a better view of the coming of the Graf than those that joined me on the west point of the Chamberlain Hills. About a half hour before sighting the Graf I stood alone on the hills. In a very few minutes I was joined by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Toll and children and Mr. and Mrs. Ava Schram. Mr. Toll and wife were the first to observe a difference in the horizon in the northwest and shortly it was located by all present as the passing of the Graf. As near as one could judge it was leaving the shores of Lake Michigan about over Briggman. It held its course due east and must have passed nearly over Berrien Springs. After it was fully in view I made a rapid trip down the woods to my home shouting "She is coming, she is coming. Look to the north." On our lookout just back of my home, I found my wife and daughter, Jennie, together with Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Treat and son, Jack. It was sighted at once by all of the party and was last seen in the horizon in the vicinity of Dowagiac. My observation of the Graf lasted for about 30 minutes and those of my home party had more than 20 minutes of splendid view of what looked like a great huge fish floating along to the east. At our look out we could get a wonderful view of the Graf with our field glasses and could see the planes accompanying the Graf with our naked eyes. My great wonder is why so few people of Buchanan did not avail themselves of this great event by not coming to the most sightly spot in all of Berrien county, the Chamberlain Hills. As I stood for nearly one-half hour alone on the point of the hills I had ample time to get a panorama view of more than a half circle of this beautiful country, the west, north and east, which is well worth anyone's time to make the climb any afternoon. Why go chasing about for a view that could not have been excelled anywhere. You might know Buchanan has all the good things. Come to it.

MICHIGAN 4TH IN NUMBER FISHING, HUNTING LICENSES

$62,808 HUNTING PERMITS ISSUED TO CITIZENS OF THIS STATE.

Michigan ranked among the four leading states of the country in funds received from the sale of hunting and fishing licenses during 1927-28, according to information furnished by the U. S. department of agriculture.

New York had the largest number of resident hunters and fishermen, but Michigan was close in the running with 362,808 hunting licenses.

In the list of 48 states and Alaska, Michigan occupied seventh place for the number of non-resident or alien hunters, but some of the states which apparently have an edge on this, issued combined hunting and fishing licenses.

Alaska, famed for its big game hunting, requires no license for resident hunters, but 228 non-residents contributed $15,870 making an average of over $70 each.

While Michigan, New York and Pennsylvania are leading the race for the premier hunting and fishing state, and Michigan is behind these two, it is pointed out that the concentration of population is markedly higher in the eastern region.

Michigan outranks by a safe margin the seven states of Idaho, Maine, Montana, Nevada, North Dakota, Oregon and Tennessee combined for the number of hunting and fishing licenses sold during the years of 1927-8.

GOAT CULTURE IS SUGGESTED FOR MICHIGAN

MOHAIR IS NEEDED FOR UPHOLSTERY OF CAR BODIES.

A recent suggestion has been made regarding the occupancy of waste lands of Michigan, by which is meant lands presently uncultivated, to the purpose that a lot of these lands be given over to the grazing of goats, chiefly for the returns to come from their hair product.

As to the feasibility of raising goats in Michigan there have been studies made in the past which have led to favorable conclusions.

U. S. Air Mail Poundage Shows 3-Fold Increase

Planes in the air mail service in the first six months this year carried 3,119,361 pounds as against 1,052,975 pounds flown during the same period in 1928.

More than 700,000 pounds were flown in July of this year against 210,957 pounds carried in the same month last year, a gain of 350 per cent.

ways permitting planes to fly over the majority of routes, between sundown and sunrise; the increased use of aerial service for social correspondence; the adoption by the operators of faster planes with greater carrying capacity, and the opening of the new "night trans-continental" service giving thirty-two hour mail delivery between the coasts.

"More mail is being flown in the United States than in all Europe combined," the Association says. "This world leadership has been brought about jointly by the post office department in encouraging the use of the air mail service, and the Department of Commerce which has steadily increased the length of airways equipped with emergency landing fields, beacons, obstacle lights and other aids to safety."

THIS BUSINESS MUST RUN ON A RETAIL BASIS

Telephone Service Cannot Be Handled on Wholesale Production Plan

A recent issue of Telephony calls attention to the fact that while the electric industry does a wholesale business with the public, the telephone industry necessarily carries on a retail business, terminating this fundamental difference between the two industries. In the case of the electric industry, electric current is generated and distributed on a wholesale basis. The current flow, it might be said, is manufactured wholesale and delivered to the users in bulk. Each user takes as much as he needs without interfering with other users. In the telephone business, however, there is no such thing as wholesale production and distribution of service, for the telephone company does a retail business with its subscribers. Each call is an exclusive service, demanding the exclusive use of a circuit and of the time of the operators. In the case of the lighting company, facilities are provided by the company to reach the user, but in the case of the telephone company, facilities must also be provided to reach any other user. Also in the case of the lighting company, numerous users can be served simultaneously, without interference, but in the case of the telephone company such users must be served individually, and exclusively.

Thus the lighting company provides a service which flows from the company to the user, but the telephone company furnishes a service which flows, says Telephony, through the whole field of communication, the company acts as an intermediary for telephone messages cannot be transmitted in the bulk benefit of many. Accordingly, no matter how large a telephone company becomes, or how extensive its equipment, its service must always be on a retail basis—an individual service.

Can it be that
He is Referring To Herbert Roe?

Editor Record:
Herb Rowe, one of Buchanan's leading citizens, caused a printer's error in Ohio to turn, with pleasure the other day when he stepped into his print shop and said "hello, Charlie." Herb, with Mrs. Rowe and one of the boys, had been visiting in Columbus and were enroute to Bryan, Ohio, and remembering that a former editor of the Buchanan Record resided in St. Marys they drove many miles out of their way to spend a few minutes with us. While the visit was short nothing has happened since we left Buchanan that did us more good, and the only reason we have is that Herb couldn't stay long enough for us to recognize him from the surprise. During our two years' residence in Buchanan we formed many friendships which we prize very highly, and we are always glad of the opportunity of meeting any of our friends and former fellow-townpeople. The prosperity of Buchanan, now a city, is due to the persistent efforts of her leading citizens, and Herb Rowe occupies a prominent place in the ranks of Buchanan's faithful boosters and respected citizens. Come again, Herb, and if any of your other fellows happen down in "God's country" you will always find Hunter's doors wide open.

Troop 41 Scheduled For Overnight Hike
To Grand Mere Lake

Troop 41 held a story fest on the Chamberlain hills last Tuesday evening. Ghost, bandit and adventure tales held the interest of the group gathered about the glowing embers of the camp fire. One of the boys told of a ghost which dragged a chain, it turned out to be a racoon which had got away with the chain of a trap, still caught in its hind leg. Another was the shadows of a group of trees which looked like a team of horses. One tale told of the attempted revenge of a crazed Mexican which was prevented by the hero hanging on a pair of boots that were too large for him so he could get away and save the day.

Scoutmaster Leo Slate announced that the over night hike to Grand Mere Lake, near Bridgman, would start Saturday at 2 p. m. instead of Friday evening as before planned. The camp will likely last till early Monday morning when the boys will come home. The boys are warned to take plenty of blankets as the night will be rather cool. The campers will use the troops new pup tents for shelter. Each boy or pair of boys as they desire will take their own food. As only three camp fires will be allowed, the boys will be forced to use some system. The sand dunes are expected to afford quite a good play ground for games and scouting activities. The fellows will be working rather strenuously on tests as a Court of Honor is coming the second week in September.

The meeting closed with the Scout benediction and all wandered back down Oak street home with hopes and aspirations of a good camp ahead to top things off before school starts.

A Year on a Meat Diet.

For years we have been taught that it takes a rugged constitution to stand much meat. If we begin to get puny and need to diet the physician is apt to say, "Cut out the meat and live on vegetables." But now comes some upsetting experiments tending to show that perhaps the medical profession has gone to an extreme in its distrust of meat.

Several years ago Vilhjalmur Stefansson returned from a stay of seven years in the Arctic regions where he had lived on a meat diet and had prospered. He called attention to the fact that his Eskimo acquaintances had lived on a similar diet for generations with no bad effects. Last year some inquiring New York medical men asked him to repeat his Arctic experience for a year in the temperate zone. Another man who had lived three years on a meat diet in the Arctic, Andersen, agreed to go through the experiment at the same time.

A report of the year's observations in a recent issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association shows that both men thrived. Stefansson's blood pressure remained constant; Andersen's fell from 140 to 120. Each lost a little weight, but neither showed any falling off of physical or mental vigor. Andersen thought he endured last summer's heat unusually well, and observed that his hair stopped falling out shortly after the meat diet began. There was no variation from normal in pulse, temperature and sleep. Stefansson tried living exclusively on lean meat, but within a few days began to suffer rather severe digestive disturbances. He added fat to his diet and the disturbance ceased.

The experiments do not suggest that people ought to live exclusively on meat. But it might be inferred that perhaps we do not know as much as we had supposed we did about foods and their effects on the human body.

Free Transportation.

After a thorough investigation, the Interstate Commerce Commission has ordered the railroads to cease their practice of transporting free each other's private cars. Not only did the commission hold this practice unlawful, but found that it led to abuses and what is probably most important, that it was unfair to and discriminated against the traveling public. Hereafter, if the commission's order is carried out, a railroad transporting the private car of another will charge it for such service just as it would for any other.

In a general way, there are said to be three classes of private railroad cars. There are nearly a thousand in the United States owned by the railroads and operated for the use of their officers, including directors. There are said to be more than 100 others owned by private individuals. The Pullman Company also has a number of such cars for hire to private individuals at given rates. It is with abuses growing out of the maintenance and operation of the first class that the commission has taken action.

It found, for example, that private cars from dinky railroads a score of miles in length were being hauled about the country free by the large carriers as a transportation courtesy. It discovered that lines running to popular resorts, in particular, were being imposed upon in this respect. The Atlantic Coast Line, touching Florida points, for one, transported the private cars of other railroads some 450,000 miles over its lines while its own were being hauled less than 100,000 miles. It was shown, too, that not only railroad officials but their families, their friends and even their servants were being taken on these free rides. What probably began as a friendly custom thus comes to an end because it was abused.

Keep Red Paint off the Barn.

Red is not the best color for the big barn on the farm, according to experts in the department of agriculture at Washington. They object to it emphatically if the house is painted white. They want a general color scheme for each farm, all buildings to be painted in harmony, so the picture adds to the attractiveness of the farm. With different colors used there is a lack of harmony. Early day barns were painted red because the railroads used it on box cars. It was a paint that would wear well and did not have to be renewed each year, and some thought it made the barn appear larger.

Some newer farms show no red on the barns or other buildings. Many prefer white, although it must be renewed frequently if one seeks the full measure of distinction it provides. Any farm where the buildings are painted white has a distinguished appearance that should rouse pride in the heart of the owner. The department experts suggest frequent paintings, urge the value of the best paint, tell of the protection it affords and submit the beauty to be developed if the color scheme is good. It is aimed to smash that old favorite, the red barn. Many old favorites have been smashed. The loss of another will not be serious.

Law to Enforce Law.

Because he is alleged to have failed to report a still, a federal warrant has been issued for the arrest of a Maryland deputy sheriff under a half-forgotten federal statute. Federal authorities are said to be considering its use as a means of compelling enforcement of the prohibition laws, particularly in communities where local sentiment is indifferent or hostile. The Maryland situation is regarded as a test case.

Investigating an explosion in which two men were killed and a third was hurt, the deputy is said to have reported the accident as due to a sawmill boiler. Federal prohibition officers, who made their own inquiry, held that the sawmill in reality was a still. The warrant was issued under a law of more than 20 years ago which makes it a penitentiary offense to fail to report knowledge of the commission of a felony. Under the recent Jones law most violations of the prohibition laws are classified as felonies. Thus, persons with information about bootleggers or the operation of stills and who fail to report such knowledge to federal officers, would be liable to fines and penitentiary sentences.

It is a well known fact that the enforcement of prohibition varies in different parts of the country. The same condition doubtless is true of other laws. Gov. Ritchie of Maryland is reported to be aroused over the seeming disposition of federal authorities to assume the right to issue orders to state officers, apparently regarding it as an invasion of states' rights.

Quite aside from the fact that prohibition and, possibly, states' rights are involved, it is fundamentally a confession of weakness when one law had to be invoked as a threat to enforce another. This is particularly true when old laws, rarely ever used or even forgotten, are resurrected for the purpose. Respect for the law is as prime a necessity for its enforcement as for its observance.

Family Gatherings.

There is something of the old Celtic clan left. Many people still hold closely and intensively to the older devotions of kinship, a kinship recognized and acknowledged in its remotest degree. So, in a way, we remain Campbells or Murtaghs, or Camerons, or O'Neils, or what have you.

In America, at this season of the year particularly, kinfolk gather in multitudinous reunion, after the fashion of our elder Scottish, Irish, English and Teutonic forbears—of the old time—after the fashion of the splendid pioneers who laid the foundations of American greatness.

We go out and picnic, we fraternize and renew associations, revitalize memories, wondering, perhaps, how so many people could spring from one stem. We enjoy it. These occasions make us to remember that we are human, and that our particular family is the best that was ever created, which is the truth, though naturally and properly this is to be disputed by the sons and daughters of every other self-respecting family.

Most of us love to go back to the scenes of our children. Perhaps most of us would like to try life all over again; certainly that part of life which held the hum of the bee, the cry of the bird, the babble of the brook, the flash of wild bird wings, the clangor of the school bell calling to towheads and black and brown heads, and demure feminine heads of any halloed expression.

The best of life for some of us lies in the long ago, though we have no right to deprive the present or the fragments of the future that may be ours, of the best that in us lies, so long as we may evade the touch of Thanatos.

And we like to get back to that past betimes, as nearly as may be. We want again to drink of the red wine of youth. We, perhaps, have drunk, all too deeply, of the waters of Marah. So we find solace at the shrines of our birthplace; find a renewed, cadenced joy in the lilt and swing of youth's murmurous and melodic memories.

They are great things, these family gatherings. They help to make the nation strong. They cement the traditions of the home, its virtues and helpful impulses, its moral and patriotic ideals.

The level of the Great Lakes is so much higher this year than it ever has been within the memory of the oldest inhabitant that the water is causing serious damage at many places along the shores and we may have to change our tactics slightly and blame Chicago for not stealing enough.

Our crowd has reached an age where, nearly every time we gather together, fewer tonsils than formerly gather round the festal board and every now and then another gall bladder is missing.

A girl in this neighborhood who sat on some poison ivy or something at a recent picnic has come out unequivocally against the modern foundation garment.

We hear very little complaint in these changed times about the height of the kitchen sink but considerable about the position of the brake and clutch pedals.

Life is full of tragedy and a girl in this neighborhood who started out to get a good coat of sun tan is now inquiring for a more effective freckle bleach than lemon juice.

We admit we're old-fashioned but our personal taste in hip lines runs to the kind that doesn't look as if it were stuck on, like wall paper.

We regard Senator Borah as a great man but we are glad he doesn't work for us.

IMPROVED PLANT SPEEDS UP LONG LINES SERVICE

Better Equipment Has Increased Efficiency of Telephone Toll Service

Better equipment, from the telephone instrument itself to the toll lines that carry the message overland, has had a material effect in speeding up long distance service. The degree of efficiency attained in the maintenance of station equipment in general is indicated by the fact that on an average a Bell System subscriber's line develops trouble only once in eighteen months.

This dependability of service has been extended to toll and long distance service by the rapid expansion of the long distance telephone cable system in the past five years. Today there are more than six million miles of toll and long distance wire in cable, more than the total amount of wire in use for out of town service in 1925. Cables are practically proof against damage from storms such as would interrupt service on aerial wire routes and in addition afford a high quality of transmission. Each cable contains as many circuits as can be carried on several fully occupied aerial wire lines, and this compactness, in addition to the freedom from storm damage, makes the use of cables advantageous in the more densely populated sections of the country.

Among other improvements in the equipment may be mentioned the more extensive use of vacuum tube repeaters at present compared with five years ago. The function of repeaters is to strengthen the weakening voice currents as they pass over long distances of telephone wire. Without repeaters conversation over very long distances would be impossible.

Means of obtaining additional telephone circuits from existing plant have been developed through the use of carrier current systems. By employing these modern aids to electrical communication a single pair of wires may be made to transmit simultaneously several telephone conversations and furnish telegraph circuits for half a dozen or more telegraph messages and telephone typewriter channels.

Nine State Parks Have Group Camps For Young People

In the last two years the state of Michigan has contributed notably to the summer camp movement in the United States, a form of recreation in which America leads the world. The lodge cabins erected in forested areas of the state parks by the park division of the conservative department for boys and girls vacationing outdoors are proving popular, said P. J. Hoffmaster, superintendent of parks, at a conference on the usage of wilderness park areas by escorted groups of young people.

Since 1927 when the group camp idea in state parks was started by the conservation department, its popularity has increased so rapidly that in many cases campers must now make reservations in advance. While the demand is heaviest during the summer months, a large number of youthful sportsmen are attracted by the possibility of winter sports, Hoffmaster declared, and consequently the lodges are frequently occupied during week-ends and holidays throughout the cold season.

The group camp buildings now in operation at nine of the state parks are large enough to accommodate two groups of fifty persons each. Stoves, cooking utensils, drinking water, and sanitary conveniences are provided, also cleared places for tents for those who prefer canvas shelter. Camp regulations state among other things that group camp buildings are for the use of children between the ages of eight and eighteen years with an adult accompanying each group of fifteen or less. The length of stay in one camp is limited to two weeks, although on special permit this time may be extended. The following state parks are now equipped with group buildings: Bay City, Cedar Hills, Dodge Brothers Nos. 9 and 10, Interloch-

Passenger Boats of Great Lakes Carry 20,000,000

Nearly 20,000,000 passengers were carried by the ferries, day excursion steamers and liners sailing the Great Lakes from June 1927 to June 1928, according to A. A. Schantz, president of the Detroit & Cleveland Navigation Company.

"The latest report of the United States Steamboat Inspection Service shows that a total of 19,998,249 passengers were carried from the ports on the Great Lakes, Detroit leading with 17,738,378; then Port Huron, 875,164; Chicago, 505,414; Marquette, 440,689; Grand Haven, 333,972; Milwaukee, 102,912 and Duluth, 96,720.

In Detroit the ferry companies carry about 1,000,000 passengers per month.

The figures given only include steams that are required by law to report the number of passengers carried.

SOUTH BERRIEN TESTER REPORTS IMPROVEMENTS

JOE FARREN'S HERD HIGH PRODUCERS IN MONTH BY TESTS.

Gerritt Koster, tester for the South Berrien Dairy Herd Improvement association, reports that Henry Nemitz has recently built a fully equipped, twenty-cow capacity, dairy barn and that Dean Straub has purchased a new purebred Holstein bull of very good breeding.

In the small herd the six grade Guernseys belonging to Arthur Young took first place with an average of 365 lbs of milk and 37.8 lbs of fat. Four purebred Guernseys owned by Douglas Dean made the second place in this class with an average of 688 lbs of milk and 33.9 lbs of fat.

Joe Farren's mixed herd of twelve cows took first place in the medium size herd with an average production of 1082 lbs of milk and 43 lbs of fat. The second place in this class went to the mixed herd of ten cows owned by Henry Nemitz. These cows averaged 974 lbs of milk and 40.5 lbs of fat.

In the large herd class the twenty-two cows on the Pardee estate made an average of 990 lbs of milk and 36.2 lbs of fat.

The three highest individuals in the different classes are as follows:

Two year class, purebred Guernsey owned by Chas. Clark, 939 lbs milk, 61 lbs fat; grade Holstein owned by Pardee Estate, 811 lbs milk, 45.9 lbs fat; purebred Guernsey owned by Warren Toney, 924 lbs milk, 42.5 lbs fat.

Three year class, grade Guernsey owned by Chas. Clark, 1138 lbs milk, 62.6 lbs fat; purebred Holstein owned by Pardee Estate, 1352 lbs milk, 58.1 lbs fat; grade Holstein owned by Pardee Estate, 1378 lbs milk, 55.5 lbs fat.

Four year class, grade Guernsey owned by Joe Farren, 1312 lbs of milk, 56.4 lbs fat; grade Guernsey owned by Frank Reum, 1092 lbs milk, 55.6 lbs fat; grade Guernsey owned by Frank Reum, 1274 lbs milk, 53.5 lbs fat.

Five year class, purebred Guernsey owned by Henry Nemitz, 1358 lbs milk, 67.9 lbs fat; grade Holstein owned by Ralph Sebasty, 1696 lbs milk, 64.5 lbs fat; grade Holstein owned by Henry Nemitz 1333 lbs milk, 58.7 lbs fat.

POISON IS RARE IN CANNED GOODS

DANGER IS OVER ADVERTISED AS SHOWN BY FEW CASES REPORTED.

The widely heralded organism which causes botulism poisoning is much more rare in canned fruits and vegetables than the publicity given such cases of poisoning would indicate, according to nutrition specialists at Michigan State College.

From 1900 to 1923, only 101 cases of this poisoning have been reported in the United States so the danger from this poison is one of the least of the hazards of present day life. If the organism which causes this poison was attained any considerable growth in canned goods, it can be detected by a characteristic odor resembling that of rancid butter.

Another organism which spoils canned goods but does not cause poisoning can usually be controlled by complete sterilization of the can and its contents, complete sealing of the cans and rapid cooling of the cans after their contents have been placed in them.

Com, asparagus, spinach, pumpkin, and sweet potatoes are most liable to be affected by the latter type of organism which causes what is called flat sours. High temperatures do not always destroy the spores of this organism and care should be taken to seal the cans perfectly and to separate the cans so cooling will be as rapid as possible.

Bulged and swollen canned products are usually unfit for food. Cases formed by decomposition of the can's contents cause the distortion.

Holmes Refers to Times Ante Dating Old Timer

This Time He Digs up Three Early Model Threshing Machines and New Years Dance Bill, 1868 Model.

Editor Record,

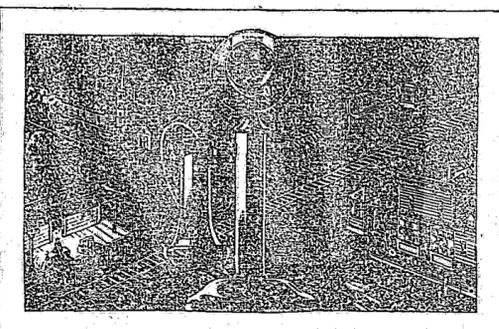

On Monday, August 19, it was my good fortune to enjoy a pleasant two hour visit with a pair of Buchanan "Old Timers" in the persons of Walter Osborn and the partner of his joys and sorrows, who was Miss Belle Carlisle, sister of Ashley Carlisle, whose death was chronicled last January. These people are now living in Stoups City, Ia., but up to and before 1883 were residents of Buchanan. Walter's father used to operate the drug store in the Dutton building, first door west of the hotel, built by George Dutton about 1863 or 4 and afterwards Mr. Osborn was superintendent of the Buchanan Cabinet company, familiarly known as "The Big Shop."

There are a couple of smiles in the story of farming as told by "Old Timer" in the last Record. Farther west, three miles, to be definite, the farmers did not wait until "Dog Days" for breaking up their wheat ground, but did it in June when it was moist and mellow and again after harvest, for planting not earlier than September 15 to avoid the Hessian fly. Our earliest threshing machine that I remember comprised two hickory sticks, five and three feet long, and tied loosely together with a raw hide thong. There were two such machines on my father's farm and were last used for threshing the bean crop. The next threshing machine to appear in that section was the "Troyeller" in which the shelling machinery was driven by hauling the machine about the field and getting the power from the rear wheel. A shock or two of bundles were pitched onto the machine and driven about the field until threshed and the dose repeated. Next came the horse power driven by ten good sturdy horses pulling about a circle.

Here is another "Old Timer:" "New Years ball will be given at Collins & Weavers hall, Buchanan, Thursday evening, Dec. 31, 1868. The company of yourself and lady is respectfully solicited. We promise a good time to all as the best of order will be maintained. Managers, D. Montgomery, Chas. Alkin, Capt. A. C. Bartlett, B. H. Harper, Clarence McCoy, Charles Blake, Buchanan; E. ALFALFA IS AID TO STATE FARM INCOME

EXTRA TONNAGE AND INCREASED WORTH OF HAY SOURCES OF WEALTH.

The increased worth per ton and the additional tonnage per acre of alfalfa as compared with the hay crops which it has replaced in Michigan made this legume worth $10,000,000 more to Michigan growers in 1929 than the same acreage of ordinary forage crops would have been worth, according to a statement by the farm crops department at Michigan State college.

Michigan's alfalfa acreage has increased steadily since 1919, and figures released by the United States Department of Agriculture rank this State tenth in production of this crop. More than half a million acres of alfalfa are now growing in Michigan.

Crop reports, this year, indicate that alfalfa will yield a ton an acre more than other legumes grown in the State. Alfalfa hay has a higher feeding value than June clover or mixed hay.

The use of hardy alfalfa varieties and applications of lime have assisted in placing alfalfa in a permanent position on Michigan's crop list. Ten years ago, seeding alfalfa was a gamble in this State. Much of the seed sown was unadapted and if a stand was secured, many fields failed to survive the first winter.

An increasing proportion of the Michigan alfalfa is cut for seed each year. The seed secured is of fine quality and has found a ready market.

New Troy School Opens Sept. 3rd

The New Troy school will open Tuesday, Sept. 3rd with but two changes in the faculty. The intermediate room, which has been in charge of Miss Borg for the past three years, will be taught by Miss Caroline Kaiser of Three Oaks. The sixth and seventh grade position taught by Mr. Hodges last year, has not been filled at this writing. The remaining members of the faculty are as follows: Mrs. Roy Keefe, primary room; Carl Guettler, 8th grade; Mrs. Earl Berry, Home Economics; Mrs. Paul Brodbeck, History and English; Roy Kiefer, Science and Mathematics; Mrs. Con. Kelley, Music; Earl Berry, Agriculture.

There will be a few changes in the text books for the coming year. In the grades there will be two or three minor changes in order to conform with the county recommendations. In the high school Tanner's Correct English published by Ginn & Co., has been adopted for the ninth grade. West's new edition of World History will very likely be adopted for the eleventh and twelfth grades.

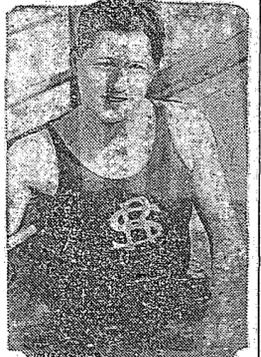

The buses will run again this year and will take about the same routes as they did last year. Pete Ritchie is in charge of both buses.

HIGHWAY OFFICIAL SAYS TRUCKS RUIN MICHIGAN PAVING

ADEQUATE LEGISLATION IS PASSED TO CONTROL NUISANCE.

Hard tires and overloaded trucks and trailers are ruthlessly smashing Michigan's $90,000,000 pavements to pieces. Public sentiment is becoming quite aroused and the press is editorially reflecting this sentiment. The last biennial report of the State Highway Commissioner showed a trunk highway system of 7,643 miles, of which about 2,500 miles is paved. Urgent demands for more pavement are brought to Lansing almost daily. The department gave out the statement that it is three years behind in its constructive program and funds are obligated many months in advance. This year has witnessed the destruction partially, or wholly of many miles of pavement, some of which was built within the last two years. This means that a program of replacement or reconstruction will soon have to be started, which will further slow up progress on paving the unpaved portions of the system.

Ending July 31, 1929, there were 1,333,720 motor vehicles registered in Michigan, of which 188,507 are commercial vehicles. Of these 188,507 commercial vehicles probably not more than 10 per cent are heavy enough to be very destructive to the paved road. This means that approximately 1 per cent of the traffic on the highways is destroying these roads for the other 99 per cent.

Many heads of the larger and responsible trucking concerns are now sharing with other motorists due alarm over the situation. Not so long ago, truck operators and truck and trailer manufacturers were opposing legislation that was proposed to adequately restrict the overloading of trucks. The 1929 legislature was expected to tackle this problem but the only bill introduced died in committee.

No privately owned industry would tolerate such abuse or its perpetration.

If the manager of a railroad permitted 200-ton locomotives to operate on 40-pound rails, he would probably lose his job.

A steam line installed for 100 pounds of pressure would likely blow up if 500 pounds were applied.

When a factory floor is constructed to carry 200 pounds per square foot, it is not loaded to 2,000 pounds in a well-managed institution.

A electric power company would not think of applying 100,000 volts to a line that was insulated to carry 10,000 volts.

It would therefore seem logical to expect that a concrete slab designed to carry a given load would go to pieces if subjected to similar overloading day after day and that is what is happening to our trunk highways.

Observance or complete enforcement of the present load restriction law will not materially arrest this destruction. A new law is needed which will prohibit the use of soft or hard tires and which will further restrict the maximum loads on pneumatic tires. Furthermore, the occasional moving of special permits loads such as steam shovels, etc., should be checked. This class of equipment can be partially dismantled and moved piecemeal to keep within the carrying capacity of the road.

The remedy seems to be in a new and adequate law and the responsibility for its enforcement placed upon the State Highway Commissioner, working perhaps through the state police department. The State Highway Commissioner is entrusted to invest the taxpayer's millions in paved roads and he should accordingly be made responsible for the sane protection of this investment.

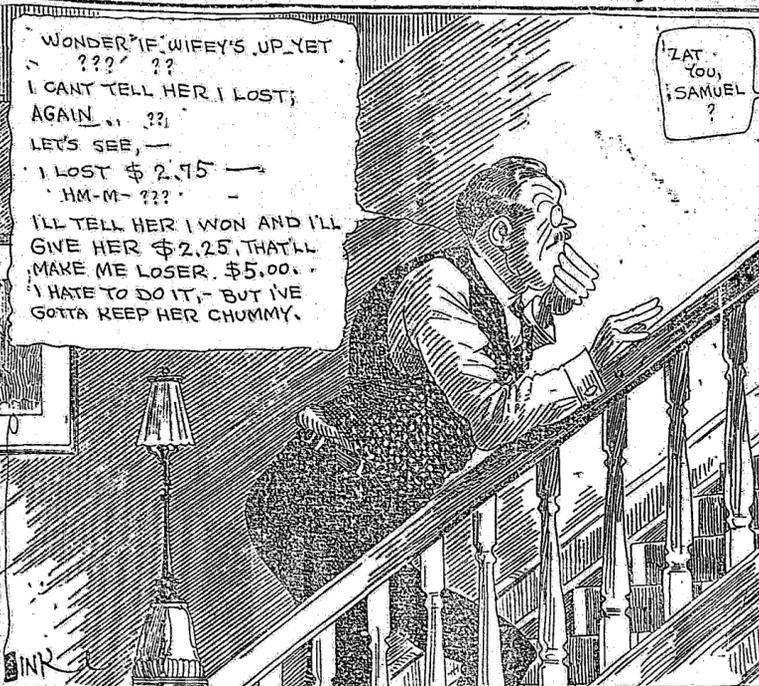

The remedy is not in the building of thicker pavements. The present design of concrete pavements will carry a commercially economical road with no undue damage to the road.

There is a class of truckers that is competing with the railroads on comparatively long hauls. To do this, they must use solid or hard tires on their vehicles since the first cost, upkeep and possible delay is less than with pneumatic equipment. They must overload and operate at top speed and employ as many trailers as permissible under the law. These concerns are usually what are styled contract carriers. They do not come under the jurisdiction of the public utilities commission. They are not materially interested in what damage they do to the roads or what inconvenience they submit other users of the roads to. They are interested in one thing and that is carrying their cargo at a cost that will enable them to make lower rates than the railroads. The railroads have millions invested in right of way, in track and stations and must pay a high tax to the state. The class of trucker sometimes owns his truck and that is about all.

The Old Timer's Corner

Old Timer Recalls Other Days on the St. Joe River

I have been reading in the Record about the "raid" on those Illinoisans on the old Pears farm, and it takes me back in memory to many other things up along that shore line. That farm, when I was a kid was run by the Mitten family. Herb Mitten was about my age and we grew to be pretty good friends. I haven't seen him for many years, but am always glad to hear how well he has done up in Kalamazoo or wherever it is he "hangs his hat." He had a bunch of brothers and I know them all pretty well. One of them lived on Portage street, and always had a smile for you. A dandy family of boys. Right up near there was the camp grounds and I never think of that except I think of dust. I don't think I ever ate so much dirt in my life as when we would drive over to the camp ground of the Evangelical church. Ed. Frye was a classmate of mine in high school and his folks were of that denomination and Ed's father was a minister, so I felt quite at home over there. The meetings were attended by some of my "girl friends" and so I went, too. Ha ha. Funny how attractive a church meeting can be to a young fellow "in his teens." Oh, Boy, the dust that was in the air! Too bad they didn't have concrete roads in those days. I haven't been over that way for a long time. Hope that road is at least oiled by this time. There was quite a little history of the old Pears farm in the paper last week. I can remember just how that old house stood and I was told by my father one time, about the boats stopping there and he also said that it was a place where friendly Indians used to come for a square meal, now and then, when the first owner was there. I wish that some one that knows about it would write a letter for the Record, about "Frontier Days along the Old St. Joe." I think it would be mighty interesting. I suppose I could find some books in the libraries and read up about it myself but that is too "cut and dried" for me. I would much rather have some one that really knew about it, if there are any left, that recall any of it either from first hand observation or from "hearsay." So I am putting out a call for volunteers in this line. Are you ready? Then as I wander in Memory down toward the river bridge I am reminded of the home up on the bank of the river where Andy Carothers lived, of the money he spent in fixing up the land down along the river into a park which was open to the public, with ponds of gold fish and other "planted" species of fish and crocodiles and everything you could think of that would live in fresh river water. There were walks, and scrubs and a boat house where he kept his little motor boat, named from his two daughters, "Nettie June". Nettie married Dr. Martin Steele, I think known to us as "Mart". I never did know what became of June Carothers. They were a mighty nice family, and lived quietly and well, always willing to do anything they had with anyone else.

Now since the dam is built all that little park that was so beautiful is under water. You can still see the old river bed, lined with stumps of big trees that were at the east bank of the river along there.

Speaking of the Carothers family, I am reminded of the little Shetland pony they had also the pony cart. I had a regular horse, man's size, to drive, when I was a kid, but I always wanted to drive that little pony to see how it would seem.

Then just up the road a very short ways from the east end of the river bridge was a log house where Laura Bunker lived, an old Indian squaw. I don't remember much about her but I knew the house and remember when it was occupied by her. We used to tell my sister that she was named after this old lady, and maybe she was for all I know. She was the only person I had ever known at that time by that name.

Remember when they built the new river bridge? The old one was much heavier but it had done service at that. John McFallon was highway commissioner at the time the new bridge was built.

At the west end of the bridge up on the north bank above the road was where George and Clara Richards lived when I remember it best. Kinyon lived there before. There was a "water ram" in a spring down the river a ways that supplied them with water in the house and I remember hearing it "chug-chug-chug" as we passed that way.

Black home. It always looked so clean and cool. Set back from the road with lots of trees and bushes and just back of it ran the good old McCoy's Creek, after it had done its work for many mills and shops up thru town and the vicinity. Right in back of Black's house it ran with open arms to join the old St. Joe. That old river has long made an ideal place for people to live along her shores. It is a wonder to me that Buchanan doesn't grow down that way and utilize the natural grandeur that is afforded to few towns in the world to the extent that we have, down the river, say from the bridge, north. I would like to see that whole stretch occupied by fine big homes, the back yards facing the river with its shades and smiles. It isn't too far from town and the intervening country is level and would make an ideal addition to the town. Plant some good trees down there and put in water and paved streets and get Billy Miller to build some homes and then you will have a chance to grow. There is plenty of room in all directions but I would rather live along the river than any place I can think of in and around Buchanan.

OLD TIMER. Blacksmith's Sons. Long before Longfellow wrote his celebrated poem, village blacksmiths had a high reputation as men of outstanding worth and intellect and moral qualities. The village smithy has given not a few notable sons to the world.
