

MISS BUCHANAN FETE QUEEN

Now Here's the Proposition

April Showers
By Haws

April, in a fit of weather, weeps for days and days together. When she weeps, there is a reason. When the maidens weep, you bet, what they cry for they will get.

Maiden's tears are never fruitless. Nor is a girl's weeping bootless. Every drop that patters down means a flower in April's gown. Not a drop shall fall to earth but shall give some beauty birth. Every drop that falls upon it means a life for her bonnet.

Till at last she shall be seen in a gown of dazzling green. And the apple blossoms tremble. On her swell new spring ensemble. All to make a fool of some man. Now ain't that just like a woman!

TO ESTABLISH MEMORIAL TO BENJ. EGGERT

May 5 Set as Last Date for the Collection of Contributions.

WAS BUCHANAN SUPT. Will Arrange Permanent Honor to Educational Leader.

A movement has been instituted among the teachers of Berrien County for the establishment of a suitable memorial to the late F. Eggert, one-time superintendent of Buchanan schools and an outstanding figure in the history of education in this county through his constructive work during his long period of service as school commissioner.

The committee in charge has requested that any pupils desiring to contribute hand their money to their individual teacher not later than Wednesday of next week and the teacher will in turn hand all contributions to Superintendent E. C. Stark.

The following statement has been prepared by the committee in charge of the memorial:

Dear Teachers of the Schools of Berrien County—

A year ago we lost one of the greatest educational leaders Berrien County has ever known. Mr. Eggert's personality, influence, and encouragement still is greatly felt as we have endeavored to carry on the work he loved so well, and gave his life for.

It is only fitting that we, as co-workers, acknowledge the great work Mr. Eggert did, and each school, through the children and teachers, subscribe a fitting memorial to be placed in the office of the County School Commissioner.

We, as the committee assigned in charge of this work, suggest that each teacher arrange a program in commemoration of Mr. Eggert's life, and teachers and children contribute whatever they can. Their mail this by check or money order to Max Petzke, treasurer of the committee, Fair Plain School, Benton Harbor, not later than May 5.

When the money is collected and the memorial voted upon and chosen, we expect to have the dedication exercises and the placing of the memorial.

Announcements of this program will be published.

Victor Sheline, chairman; Max Petzke, treasurer; H. C. Stark, E. L. Watkins, Earl Berry.

TEST WELL ON FRANZ FARM DOWN DEPTH 1050 FEET

Drilling operations on the Berrien County Petroleum syndicate well seven miles northwest of Niles, have reached a depth of 1,050 feet, according to Fred Franz, former sheriff and county supervisor, who was a visitor in the Record office Tuesday, with no oil so far but promising indications. The syndicate is composed of a number of St. Joseph and Benton Harbor men who have leased several thousand acres in Berrien and Cass counties, for the purpose of exploring for the "Niles anticline" which is said by the state department of geology to exist in that vicinity. The well was begun last fall, but operations were stopped by a large boulder which made it necessary to pull the pipe and drill a new hole. Much trouble has been experienced from water and quicksand. The syndicate has a standard rig in operation capable of drilling to a depth of from 2,000 to 3,000 feet. ## C. EISENHART WINNER OVER 29 BEAUTIES

Is Unanimous Selection of Judges Battle Creek Second.

SECOND LOCAL WINNER

Miss Gladys Dempsey Was Named Queen in 1926.

Cecilia Eisenhart, native daughter of Buchanan, entrant from this city in the annual contest for the honor of being Queen of the Blossom Festival, was returned winner in the final judging held at the Liberty theatre in Benton Harbor Thursday evening, being the second Buchanan girl out of a total of four entries to eclipse all competition.

Miss Eisenhart was pronounced foremost in the elements which go to make a regal appearance in the unanimous opinion of all three of the judges, of whom two came from Chicago and one from Detroit. The method of selection was entirely impartial and rendered absurd all charges that the selection would be "fixed" or influenced in any way by considerations of advantage to the city management. Each girl was known to the judges only by the number appended to each as she appeared on the stage. Until the conclusion of the contest, none of the judges knew the identity of the others or where they were seated. A messenger was furnished to each judge and at the conclusion of each parade across the stage each judge was entitled to send the number of one girl to be eliminated to the stage manager.

Miss Eisenhart was a prize favorite from the beginning and when the last competitor, Miss Battle Creek, had been eliminated and the local girl designated as queen of the flower fete, the audience rendered a thunderous approval.

It was later announced that Miss Eisenhart had received the unanimous vote of the three judges over the runner-up, Miss Lois McKelvey of Battle Creek.

As a result of the triumph of Miss Eisenhart, there was no local entrant in the contest. Responsibility for the drive was taken by Postmaster G. H. Batchelor, who drew up the petition for funds, which were circulated among the business men by R. E. Schwartz and George Foreman and among the Clark Equipment Company officials and superintendents by Arthur Johnston. A total of $300 was raised, placed in a local bank, and a certified check for the amount was taken to Benton Harbor by a committee and presented to Miss Eisenhart.

Receives Many Offers

The local girl who has brought national recognition to her home city wears her honors modestly, although she has been showered with attentions and offers of various natures, including two opportunities to appear in movie plays. Miss Eisenhart states that she has no intention of attempts to capitalize on her celebrity by "cash-in" the movies, but plans on entering the University of Michigan next fall to qualify herself as an instructor in physical education, using any income from her present good fortune to finance her way through school.

It has been suggested that any who were not given an opportunity to contribute to the fund gathered last week may still give any offering they may wish to make to George Foreman, R. E. Schwartz or Arthur Johnston and the money will be given to Miss Eisenhart.

In competition with her wife, Gella Luker, St. Joseph; Maxine Sealey, Benton Harbor; Coloma; Libbie Strej; Nina Ritter, Watervliet; Leonora Marble, Niles; Bernadine Brown, Berrien Springs; Betty Hucko, Stevensville; Rose Flora, Baroda; Ruth Myer, Bridgman; Anna Miller, Three Oaks; Margaret Martin, Hartford; Mildred Uffler-Allegan; Velma Lasson, Dowagiac; Rachel Cook, Three Rivers; Ruth Jones, Kalamazoo; Lois McKelvey, Battle Creek; Janet Gay/Jackson; Claudine Colard, Lansing; Juliet Klein, Flint; Mary Jacobs; Sagnaw; Kathryn Mason, Pontiac; Caroline Garnett; Owosso; Duellie Kerr, Grand Rapids; Verda Allen, Grand Haven; Rose Prideman, South Haven; Jeanette Barrington, Eddington; Ethel Myer, Sawyer and Gertrude Schright, Traverse City.

Dr. Wallace Scores Successes With His Doberman Pinschers

Dr. Paul Wallace, local breeder of Doberman Pinschers, scored two triumphs with his dogs last week, when he entered Gurta Von Osterburg in the Berrien County dog show, taking a first place and reserve championship, and selling Bozo Von Rosenhof, an 11-month old pup to Dr. E. A. Canam of Mishawaka for $300. Bozo is the grandson of Benno Von Rosenhof, the only Pinscher ever to win sweepstakes for both Germany and Belgium in successive seasons. Dr. Wallace's dog was an unusually handsome and well developed specimen of the breed.

The Doberman Pinschers are used as police dogs in the American army and are rated as the most intelligent breed used for that purpose.

Michigan Expects Record Influx of Guests This Year

Michigan, with its fresh water seas, sand dunes, resorts and its countless beauty spots, this year will be host to more motoring pilgrims than ever before.

It is estimated by the Republic Automobile Insurance Company that upwards of 1,000,000 out of state motoring vacationists, riding in approximately 300,000 automobiles, will roll into and through the Wolverine State during the coming spring and summer touring season.

This vast army of gasoline nomads is expected to expend with state merchants and resorts approximately $7,500,000. These estimates, representing an increase of about ten per cent over the touring volume and expenditures of last year, are based on detailed data gathered by the Republic Automobile Insurance company during the winter from Michigan hotels, tourist camps, gasoline filling stations, garages, resorts, and other places of summer diversion, and on a careful analysis of the 1929 touring outlook.

That motordom's big parade down the open road in Michigan this year will be the largest ever now appears certain, the Republic points out.

It is estimated that more than 60,000,000 Americans this year will invest in fresh air and scenery—the greatest touring volume ever.

State College Tears Mask From Claims of Proso

The values of Proso, which has recently been exploited as a wonderful new grain and feed crop, have been greatly overestimated, according to statements by members of the farm crops department at Michigan State college.

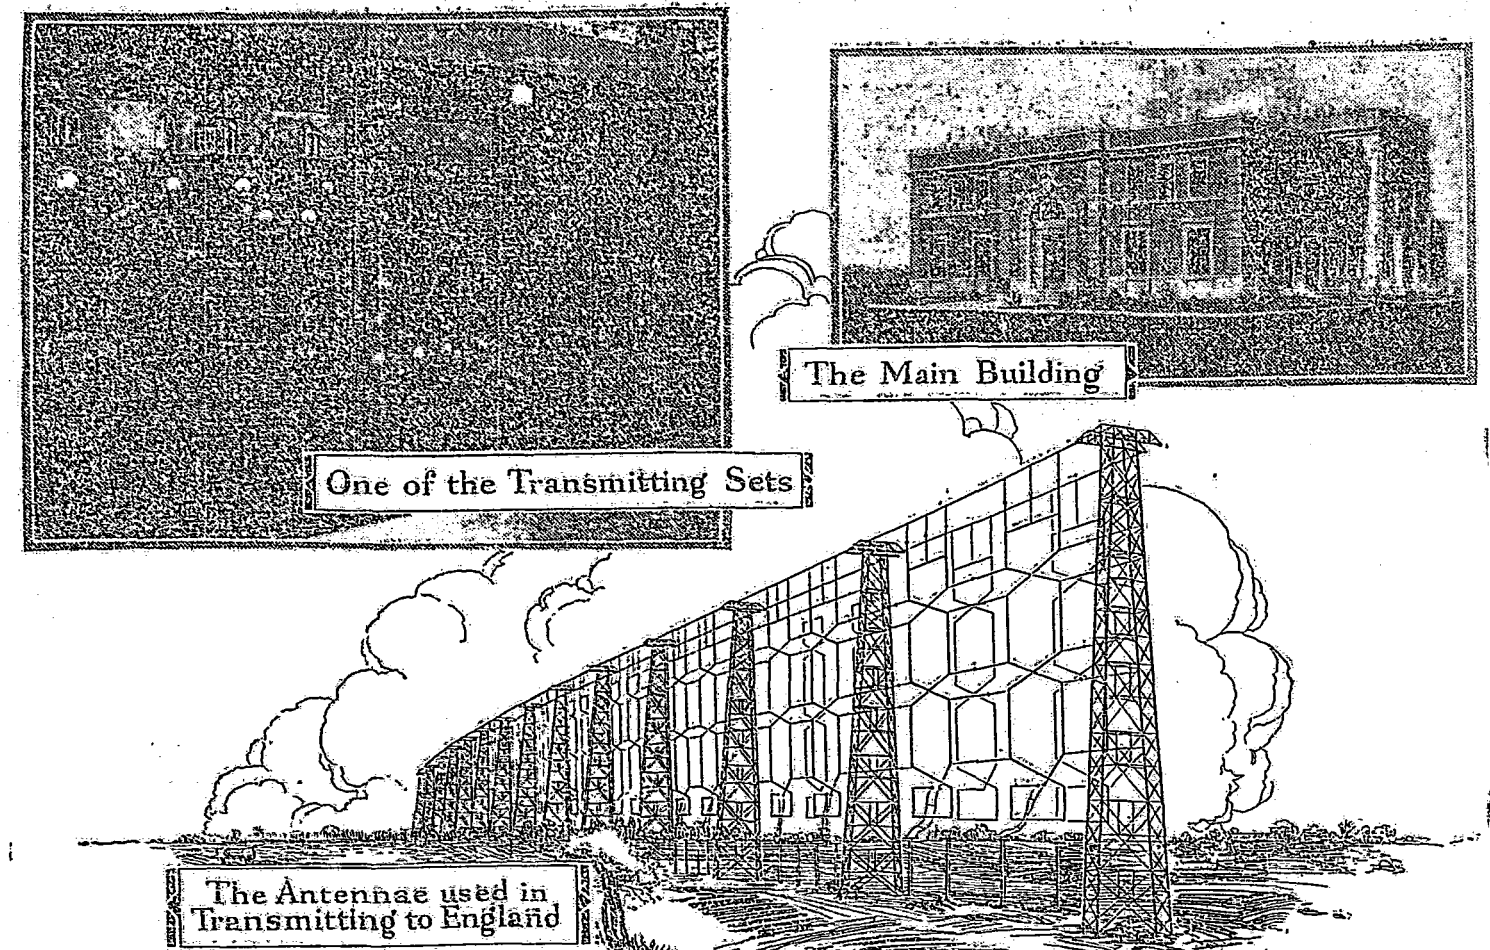

A great deal of the present interest in Proso will disappear when farmers realize that it is only hog-millet or broomcorn millet masquerading under a new name.

Farmers Bulletin number 1162 published by the United States Department of Agriculture states that both Hungarian and German millet are superior as crops to the millet now advertised as Proso. The normal feed crops, such as oats and barley, yield more pounds of feed per acre than Proso.

The value of Proso as a poultry feed is less than the ordinary grains used for such purposes, members of the poultry department at the college state. They also say that Proso is less palatable than the usual grains used in poultry rations.

Advertisements which claim that Proso will yield 10 to 20 bushels of grain on tenth-acre plots should be checked against the statement of the college crops men who say that under exceptionally favorable conditions, Proso has yielded as high as 60 to 70 bushels per acre. The normal yield, as estimated by the college specialists, is 10 to 30 bushels.

New Short Wave Radio - Telephone Center Gives More Service With Europe and South America

By J. O. FERRINE

IF Lindbergh, on a recent flight from Washington, had looked down when about half way between Philadelphia and New York, he would have seen a group of twenty-six steel towers arranged in the form of a giant letter L. These towers were not built in the form of a letter L to honor "Lindy" nor to stand for the name of the town, Lawrenceville, where they are located. They support the antennae for the short wave overseas radio telephone transmitters of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

For Overseas Service

The first of three new short wave channels to Europe opened for service on June 1 with the transmission of a call from Cleveland, O., to London. To provide for future growth, the other two circuits to Europe and also one circuit to Argentina are now in process of construction and will be put in service within a year.

The reason for the L is that Argentina and England happen to be so located that lines connecting each of them with Lawrenceville nearly form a right angle. This fact and the highly directive or so-called "beam" quality of short wave antennae which necessitates that they be erected broadside to the direction the waves are to travel, account for the particular shape.

Nineteen towers, each 180 feet high, supporting wires for the three short wave systems of three antennae each for transmission to Europe, form the long side of the L, and seven towers for the antennae comprising one short wave system for transmission to South America form its short side. The total length of the two sides is over a mile.

To interconnect existing wire line systems in countries separated by wide stretches of sea, radio telephone now plays an important role in world communication. The first commercial overseas telephone service was that established between North America and Great Britain in January, 1927. The service grew so rapidly that the one circuit originally put in operation was supplemented by a second circuit in the summer of 1928. Overseas telephony has already assumed an important place in the business and social life of both hemispheres, as indicated by the fact that in the past year the number of calls has increased more than 300 per cent. Including the circuit just placed in operation, one long wave and two short wave circuits are daily rendering service.

Twelve Antennae, Twenty-six Towers

Lawrenceville, a short distance south of Princeton, was selected as the site for these four radio telephone transmitters after extensive investigation by engineers of the telephone company. The equipment and antennae being installed there have been specially designed for use at this station and embody results of years of experiment in radio telephony.

The antennae for the three short wave systems to Europe are in a direct line and are supported by 19 steel towers. This series of 19 towers stands in a line as nearly exactly at right angles to the direction of London, England, as civil engineers with surveying instruments could establish. The wires forming each of the three antennae are not strung on top of the towers, however, but, like a coarse-meshed screen or curtain, hang in a vertical plane between the towers, the lower edge of the screen or curtain coming within several feet of the ground. The series of 7 towers for South America stand in a line exactly at right angles to the direction to Argentina. The 26 towers, with the several curtains of wires, comprising 12 different antennae, hanging between, present an imposing sight.

Antennae Specially Designed for Directive Effect

The design of the antennae is calculated to give a marked directional effect to the outgoing signals. Due to the arrangement and interconnection of the wires in the form of a coarse-meshed screen or curtain, whose dimensions bear a definite relation to the wave length of impulses sent out, the signals are strongest in a direction at right angles to the plane of the curtain.

If the antenna consisted of a single curtain, strong signals would also be sent out in the opposite direction from England. To divert these to useful purposes a "reflector" curtain similar in design to the "exciter" or transmitting curtain, is hung at a certain definite interval behind it. This reflector curtain of wires in no way electrically connected to the front curtain, plays the interesting and startling role of a reflector the energy reaching it from the exciter curtain being reflected in the direction of England, and thus the signals already moving that way are reinforced. The reflector curtain reminds one of a mirror behind a light.

Method of Operation

Each transmitter can operate on three wave lengths, approximately 16, 23 and 33 meters. The three wave lengths are desirable in order to give the best efficiency of transmission, since, curiously enough, one wave length seems to work better at certain times of day than other wave lengths. Of course, since there are four transmitters operating in the neighborhood of 16 meters, arrangements must be made to have them accurately adjusted. For example, the first to 15.5 meters, the second to 15.8 meters, the third to 16.1 meters and the fourth to 16.4 meters. This separation, apparently small, is in the region of the short waves, entirely satisfactory for simultaneous operation. Single arrangements are used for the 23 meter and 33 meter waves.

The receiving antennae for signals from England forming the east-to-west link of the two short wave channels now in operation are located at Netcong, N. J., forty miles north of Lawrenceville. The receiving antennae for the two additional channels to England and the one channel to South America are being constructed also at Netcong.

Connecting the Radio Systems to Wire Lines

The link between the radio transmitter at Lawrenceville and the vast wire network of the Bell System is through New York, all transatlantic traffic being routed through the long distance operating office in that city. To establish this connection, a branch cable will be installed from the transmitting station to the main New York-Philadelphia cable route. An open wire line, establishing direct connection to New York, will also be available to the station from the north, to provide an alternate routing.

By the transatlantic channels, 85 per cent of the world's telephones, 33,700,000 in number, are capable of interconnection. With the completion of the South American channel, the percentage will, of course, be larger. This is real progress in the extent and facility of communication.

large of damage, not to mention the costs of fighting the fires." Over a five year period the fires caused by railroads have averaged 16 per cent. This percentage has been decreasing since 1926 due to increasingly good co-operation between the railroads and the Department, and to the use of safety devices on the locomotives. Brush burning caused 15 per cent of all forest fires since 1925. This percentage has been practically stationary for each year.

In 1925 neglected camp fires caused 16 per cent of the fires. The next year it dropped to four per cent and has held around that percentage since that time. The average for the five year period was eight per cent.

Incendiary fires made up six per cent of the total fires during the past five years; miscellaneous causes, five per cent; unknown causes 25 per cent, and lightning, one per cent.

Lightning fires are the only ones that are not preventable, according to Sayre. Considering this fact, 99 per cent of all forest fires might be prevented.

Mich. Court Rules On Liability For Guest Passengers

If, while driving your automobile, you suddenly lapse into unconsciousness, and, as a result, cause an accident, you are not liable under the law for damage done or injuries inflicted to your guest passenger.

The Michigan Supreme Court has just handed down a decision to this effect.

Let James F. Land, Jr., Chief Counsel for the Republic Automobile Insurance Company, explain the details.

"While driving a car in which her mother was an occupant, Mrs. Alice J. Cook of Grand Rapids, suddenly lost consciousness," Land began.

"The result was a collision with a pole in which the mother was hurt. The mother brought suit and obtained a judgment in the trial court."

"In the State Supreme Court, however," Land continued, "the verdict was reversed without new trial, the court holding that no negligence on the part of the driver had been shown."

"The sole proximate cause of the accident," said the supreme court, "was the mother's loss of consciousness, or, losing consciousness, which is not actionable negligence."

Land said that this is the first time a Michigan Court of review has been called upon to pass on the liability of an unconscious automobile driver.

Game Department Looks into Reported Deer Starvation

Anxious to get at the root of the annual complaints received from the vicinity of Alpena concerning deer dying of starvation, the Game Division of the Department of Conservation has sent V. H. Cahalane to investigate. For some time Mr. Cahalane has been specializing in deer troubles.

Nearly every spring for several years the Department has received reports from the Turtle Lake District that the deer are in bad condition, and has been urged to provide artificial feed. Anticipating more questions of this sort, early in February four conservation officers investigated the deer situation in the swamps north of Turtle Lake and reported that there was no cause for alarm over the Turtle Lake deer this winter.

Now statements have been quoted in a local newspaper that within a distance of one and a quarter miles six carcasses of deer were lying along the road that farmers have found carcasses of young deer in the woods, starvation being the cause of death, and that the deer were all young ones and they give as the cause of death the inability of the smaller deer to reach the brush and boughs that supply succulences.

The Game Division will attempt to determine just how many dead deer can be found and what they died from.

Mr. Cahalane will see for himself the condition of the yarding areas where the deer are reported to be in difficulties, and will make a special effort to pick up all the dead deer he can and give them detailed post mortem examinations. He will examine the carcasses on the ground or will ship them to the University of Michigan laboratories for further or more detailed work, as may seem best.

In letters sent to a score of persons living in the Alpena district, the Game Division has asked that anyone knowing of or finding a dead deer in the woods should bring it out to some farm or town where it can be put in a shed or otherwise be protected and kept frozen or should deliver it to Wardens C. E. Eagle of Hillman, L. G. Hake of Spratt, or E. J. Napper at Alpena.

"If it is thought that a number of dead deer can be found in certain areas we shall appreciate it if interested sportsmen will organize a hunt and send in parties to locate and bring out the carcasses," the letter continues.

"Every deer brought in should have attached to it a tag telling in detail by whom it was found, when and where it was found, in what sort of cover (cedar swamp, hardwood side-hill, etc.) and anything else which may bear on the cause of a death."

"If a considerable number of carcasses are assembled, so as to demonstrate that these stories of many dead deer are based on sober fact, we shall make every effort to find out in detail the causes of death, and to take measures to reduce such troubles in the future; but if very few carcasses are located and delivered, or if the examinations indicate that the causes of death are various and unpreventable, such as old wounds, parasites, pneumonia and the like, we shall hope that these early spring stories about lots of dead deer, and deer starving, will stop."

Careless Smoker Greatest Cause of Forest Fires

The smoker is the greatest destroyer of forests in Michigan today and for five years the damage has been steadily increasing, according to the Forest Fire Division of the Department of Conservation, which has recently compiled a report showing causes of fires since 1925.

Smokers have caused over 20 per cent of all forest fires since 1925, the report shows, and the percentage for individual years has been steadily increasing.

In 1925 smokers caused but five per cent of the fires. The next year the percentage had risen to 11. In 1927 it had almost doubled, reaching 20 per cent. In 1928 smokers caused 38 per cent of the

China's Famine Toll One of World's Greatest Human Sacrifices

A Family Typical of China's Millions of Famine Sufferers

STAGGERING and terrible is the death toll that starvation and disease are taking in North Central China, according to the testimony of eye-witnesses who have recently returned to Shanghai and Peking from the famine zones. Six million persons have perished of hunger since 1925 and four million others are close to death, according to G. F. Andrews of the China Inland Mission, whose graphic account of conditions in Shensi and Kansu provinces has been forwarded to the Secretary of State, Washington.

D. C. and to David A. Brown and Dr. S. P. H. Gadsden, chairman of the China Famine Relief U. S. A., whose headquarters are at 205 E. 42nd street, New York City, where desperate children who roam the streets of the famine zones are being fed and where the bodies of the dead are being buried.

Whole villages are depopulated of all except a few starving, desperate children who roam the streets of the famine zones. The observers found the roads lined with bodies of refugees from the famine areas who had fallen by the wayside. Whole villages of hundreds of bodies in single large pits has become necessary.

China Famine Relief U. S. A. cables money weekly to the National Christian Council at Shanghai, where an all American Advisory Committee makes allotment of funds received, selecting local agents and groups to whom food can be given without loss. In two years of famine work there have been no failures by bandits or military forces. A full measure of cooperation has been given by the civil and military.

Continual drought and crop failures have been chiefly responsible for the prolonged famine which began in 1925 and which in five provinces has increased in severity.

POSTUM COMPANY BECOMES IMMENSE PROVISION TRUST

GENERAL FOODS CORPORATION HAS 400,000 STORE OUTLETS

Intensive development and expansion during 1930 of the properties acquired by it in 1929 is expected to be the major program of the General Foods Corporation, of Battle Creek, during the current year. This will probably result in a substantially better profit margin on sales this year. Acquisition of new properties is invariably an expensive undertaking, so that a slow-up along this line will enable the company to concentrate more on consolidation of its present position.

Last year General Foods absorbed the Certo Corporation, acquired a controlling interest in Frosted Foods Company, Inc., purchased the North Atlantic Oyster Farms, Inc., and purchased the Diamond Crystal Salt Company of St. Clair, Mich. The nucleus of the General Foods Corporation was the company founded in 1895 at Battle Creek, by Charles W. Post.

He was the originator of Postum Cereal, and later added Grape Nuts, Post Toasties, Instant Postum and Post's Bran flakes. In 1922 his company was reorganized as Postum Cereal Company, Inc., in 1927 the name was changed to Postum Co., Inc., and in 1929 was again changed to General Foods Corporation.

From 1925 to 1929, the original company acquired the Vell-O Company, the companies making Swans Down Cake Flour and Minute Tapioca, Baker's Coconut, Baker's Chocolate and Cocoa, Hellmann's Mayonnaise, Log Cabin syrup, Maxwell House Coffee, LaFrance Laundry Products and Calumet Baking Powder. Products of the parent company reach the consumer through 400,000 retail grocers.

Fig iron, now rated at 11-12, has had that maintained by the House, and cut down to 75 by the Senate. Michigan producers of pig iron have had to meet the competition of East Indian iron, not largely imported, at the present rate.

Softwood logs, now free, have been advanced by the Senate to $1.50 per thousand feet, board measure. Michigan is still a considerable producer of softwood and much Michigan capital is invested therein in other states.

Cuban sugar, largest competitor of our native cane and beet sugar production, now paying 1.76 cents per pound, has been advanced by the House to 24 cents and set back by the Senate to 2 cents.

Dairy products in which Michigan is interested, have had their duties increased, from 5 cents per live subsists on roots and day and where there are trees they have been stripped bare by emaciated fingers. In Kansu, Mr. Andrews learned, cannibalism has become so common that it is no longer noticed.

A press dispatch of recent date says that in the central Shensi district by the time of the wheat harvest there will be only 3,000,000 inhabitants of the 6,000,000 when the famine began. The agony of the past winter can never be described, the dispatch reports. In the small Wuking district alone there have been 600,000 deaths from starvation and cold.

Whole villages are depopulated of all except a few starving, desperate children who roam the streets of the famine zones. The observers found the roads lined with bodies of refugees from the famine areas who had fallen by the wayside. Whole villages of hundreds of bodies in single large pits has become necessary.

China Famine Relief U. S. A. cables money weekly to the National Christian Council at Shanghai, where an all American Advisory Committee makes allotment of funds received, selecting local agents and groups to whom food can be given without loss. In two years of famine work there have been no failures by bandits or military forces. A full measure of cooperation has been given by the civil and military.

ILL 20 YEARS; THEN KONJOLA BROUGHT HEALTH

ALMOST HELPLESS WITH RHEUMATISM, NEW DIFFERENT MEDICINE SOLVES PROBLEM

MRS. ALMA VALLEAU

"Konjola is the medicine that brought relief to me after I had suffered for twenty years with rheumatism," said Mrs. Alma Valleau, 19262 Gainsborough road, Rosedale Park, Detroit. "For three years I was almost helpless, and my limbs, feet and ankles were so badly swollen that it was almost impossible for me to move about. I had no appetite; I was badly run down and I was just about a nervous wreck."

"I had despaired that there was a medicine to help me, but there was—Konjola. I had taken only four bottles of this medicine when I found myself feeling like a different woman. The swelling in my limbs had gone down, my appetite improved, and I felt better in every way. I certainly can and do recommend this wonderful medicine."

Konjola, the new and different medicine, is of 32 ingredients, 22 of them are the juices of roots and herbs. Even one bottle may give remarkable results, but a treatment of from six to eight bottles is recommended.

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Faith, if it be mere belief, is as a pendulum swinging between nothing and something, having no fixity. Faith, advanced to spiritual understanding, is the evidence gained from Spirit, which rebukes sin of every kind and establishes the claims of God." (p. 23.)

"A MAN YOU KNOW"
In the April 11th issue of the Notre Dame scholastic, appears under the heading "A Man You Know" this statement: "Wherever we find true personality we find its keynote, a rare sense of humor. Piercing the clouds of human care and solicitude it serves to direct our attention from ever present worries to the traditional silver lining. Only a minority possess it in its entirety and among these we feel justly proud to number the Rev. Sidney A. Reamers, M. A., Ph. D."

Father Reamers who has been acting pastor of St. Anthony's church for the past seven months has, in addition to delivering his splendid Sunday morning sermons, appeared several times in Buchanan, before very appreciative audiences, and has gained for himself a great many friends and admirers. For no one ever hears Father Reamers speak before an audience without realizing that he is a man of real culture—a culture gained by his years of hard work both in the University and in the school of experience.

Father Reamers received his early education in the London county schools. After his graduation from high school, he crossed the channel to enter the University of Louvain near Brussels, where for six years he had the opportunity to study at first hand, the old languages of Europe in addition to his other college work.

From Louvain he turned toward Germany with its more modern institutions of learning where he pursued his studies in languages and philosophy at the Lyceum in Luxembourg. He was there only a few months when the beginning of the world war forced him to leave the country. With his fluent knowledge of French, German and Italian, he went to Paris to enter hospital work and act as an interpreter.

Two years later he was called to London to take a teaching position in Cusacks college, London, and a few months later decided to sail for Canada to teach in McGill University in Montreal. While there the urge to enter the priesthood came, so he entered St. Mary's Seminary in Baltimore, an institution affiliated with Johns Hopkins University and there received his B. A. and M. A. degrees.

In the past eight years he has taught and supervised in various schools and among the subjects taught are: logic, psychology, sociology, ethics, history of philosophy, French and many others and he has translated a dozen or more French and Latin works into the English.

Father Reamers confesses that he has had two hobbies while in Notre Dame, playing tennis in the summer and a faithful attendance at fall football practice and that Charles Dickens has always been his favorite author.

Father Reamer is a very talented musician and has been organist in several large churches.

Editorial

Since 1923, every graduating class of Buchanan high school has issued an edition of "The Pines." This means a lot of work on the part of the prominent members of every senior class. They labor hard and long to make their annual better than all the previous ones.

It is costing this year's class about six hundred dollars to put out the annual. Since "The Pines" costs only $1.50, the seniors have to obtain a great amount of this money from other sources such as basketball games and plays. Labor, expense and time spent on a year book are too much as compared to the result. There is no doubt but that the annuals issued by this school are good ones, but because of the enormous cost, the work involved and the comparatively small enrollment in the school, they ought to be discontinued in oncoming years. Some cheaper substitute, such as a special senior paper, might be advisable.

"Crowds"

(Editor's note. The following familiar essay was written by Kathryn Reed.)

When asked why I did not like a crowd I replied: "They remind me of a mirror in my mother's house—it is in the kitchen; it is in a brown frame; it is cheap and reminds me of a puddle of water. Because it has rivulets across it and seems like a puddle of ripples with no object just wavering one way and then another. Like a secret, always rippling differently; covering something; like a crowd whose true feeling is covered, and where emotion rules—a crowd wavers, is restless, is a sea, is a stormy night—then a puddle, if not by eye, then by the thoughts that pass through the minds of all those eddying drops."

The Niles High School track team, state champions in class "B" last year, barely nosed out Coach Harold Bradfield's Buchanan in a thin race in the opening meet of the season, 59 to 54.

The meet was very even, each team taking six first places and tying for another. The score was close all along and when the final event was to be run, the relay, the score stood even at 54 all.

Niles stepped out and won the relay, thereby winning the meet. Some very creditable marks were turned in, considering the earliness of the season. Aronson's time of 10.6 for the hundred was the best one turned in for the dashes but his time of 29.2 for the low hurdles and Finley's mark of 11 feet are also deserving of mention, the latter a new field record.

Aronson, although handicapped by an injured heel, garnered 11 points for first honors, closely followed by Pierce with 9. Finley led the Niles vault with eight points.

Sixty B. H. S. Girls
Will Participate in
S. B. Field Day

Friday afternoon, representatives from Kalamazoo college were at the high school. Mr. Dunbar, professor of the history department of the college, gave an interesting talk on what a college may do for a person. Some of the interesting things he said about the Kalamazoo Colleges were that it is a thoroughly accredited school, it has small college ideas, enrollment is limited to around 400, it has a $850,000 library, good dormitories and other new buildings in the making. "Do not limit your life to a two story start," said Mr. Dunbar. "Be sure to lay good foundations."

A one-act play, "References Required," was presented by three of the college girls, Florence Montgomery, Charlotte Bacon, Helen Fenner.

Edward "Snodgrass" Russey, also from the college, played several numbers on the piano, "Les Sylphides" by Chaminade and the "Song of the Bayon" by Bloom. He played also a medley of popular pieces which was greatly enjoyed.

An invitation has been received by Miss Rothenbach from Senior Central High School of South Bend to attend a "Play Day" held on some Saturday in May. About fifty high schools in and around South Bend have been invited. From Buchanan about sixty girls plan to participate.

"Play Days" are becoming popular because they are not competitive but are a means of stimulating friendships among girls of other schools.

The events, which are "low organized" games have not yet been announced. Usually, however, the events are relays, track, baseball, swimming, archery contests, etc. Also a luncheon is to be furnished to the participating students.

GIRLS PHYS. ED.
PRESENTS DANCE
STUNT PROGRAMASSEMBLY PROGRAM TO BE

Tumbling and clogging were the features of the assembly program Friday morning of which Miss Rothenbach was in charge. It covered the three main points which make an assembly program good. It was interesting, different and clever.

The first part of the program was tumbling in which Dorothea Rothfuchs, Enid Reams, Clarisse Banke, Rosemary Thompson, Jean Russell, Jane Briney, Anne Schindler, Dorothy Anderson, Ethel Sibbey, Peggy Merrifield, Theresa White, Freda Neff and Marie Ellis took part. The forward roll, stomach balance, head stand, cart wheel, backward flips backward fish walkover and pyramids were stunts the girls did.

"Dixie," the first clog, was given by Helen Kean and Pauline VanEvery who, dressed as little girls carrying suckers, did their clog to the tunes of "Dixie," "My Old Kentucky Home" and "Listen to the Mocking Bird." The next one, "Liza Jane" was given by Marie Post and Marjorie Shreve. Their dance and dress were typical of negro girls. Rosemary Thompson and Marie Ellis gave a boxing clog and Rosemary Thompson, "Reuben Taps." Other clogs were: "Railroad Shuffle" by Dorothea Rothfuchs, Clarisse Bahke and Marie Ellis; "On Deck" by Helen Kean and Pauline VanEvery; "The Dutch Waltz Clog" by Jane Briney and Jean Russell; "Jack Frost" by Alene Riley and Vivian Whisler. Jean Russell also gave a toe dance.

The program was greatly enjoyed and will be given again Monday evening, April 28, at the P. T. A. meeting.

SCHOOL NEWS

Habit is a cable; we weave a thread of it every day and at last we cannot break it. Horace Mann.

Miss Arnold, county school nurse, called at our school Wednesday to confer with Mrs. Lamb concerning the betterment of school conditions.

A mental clinic was held in St. Joseph's Thursday. Children from several of the towns of the county were given free examinations.

The county contest in spelling, reading and letter writing is taking place this week Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Miss Ella Champion, grade supervisor of Niles is chairman of this movement. Our school band, under the direction of Ralph Robinson, has enjoyed their out of doors practices during the last week.

Miss Theo Olson, our music supervisor is working overtime on the grade cantata which takes place next week. Don't miss this annual treat.

The regular annual School Masters' Club of Michigan met in Ann Arbor yesterday today and will meet again tomorrow.

The Kindergarten band, supervised by Miss Olson, appeared on the program of the W. C. T. U. at the home of Mrs. Boone last Tuesday.

The program scheduled for the mothers of the sixth graders May 1, has been postponed, due to the cantata coming on that date. Miss Lamb will announce later the time for this enjoyable event. This is the last program of this kind in the grades and any mother, although not represented in the 6th grade, wishing to attend, is welcome.

Most of the grade teachers have completed their fourth project worked out by the pupils. The projects are to be on exhibit later in May.

The story and booklet work fostered by the W. C. T. U. and being done by the fourth, fifth and sixth grades, is nearly completed. The three best samples from each room go to the local committee supervised by Miss Mae Mills.

At the last meeting of the Superintendents of the county, the motion was adopted that there would be no change in text books thru-out the county due to the expense it would cause all concerned. The two books under consideration were the geography and civics.

Mrs. Clarence Arnold, president of the local P. T. A. called at the superintendent's office last Tuesday. Plans for the work of that organization for the coming year were being discussed.

Thou shalt not kill one breath of stirring endeavor in the heart of a little child.

Miss Alice Rothenbach and Miss Theo Olson spent the week end in Chicago, guests of their parents. They returned Sunday evening.

Miss Mabel Neffenger spent the week end in Kalamazoo, visiting friends and Miss Ruth Shriver visited her parents in Hudson last Sunday.

Changing a Dead Man's Will.

A large number of young men of special merit from all states in the Union, chosen competitively from among the many applicants in their respective states, within the last quarter of a century have received training at the University of Oxford under the terms of the will of the great British empire builder, Cecil Rhodes. It was his purpose to create in the United States through friendly contacts a wider understanding of British institutions and the British people. By specifying that from each state should come a succession of students to enjoy continuously the two scholarships allotted to that state his purpose was, of course, to distribute equally through all sections of Britons and their ways as might be acquired through attendance at Oxford.

Strangely enough, certain American educators who have a part in the work of administering the scholarships have brought about a radical change in the system of making awards. Having persuaded the British trustees of the fund that American opinion is dissatisfied with the system established under the explicit directions of the will, they induced the management to substitute, by special act of Parliament, a system of district awards. Under it the 48 states of the Union are divided into eight districts of six states each. Every year four scholarships are to be awarded in each district, 12 candidates for those scholarships, two chosen competitively from each of the six states, are to compete for them. Thus, as readily will be seen, the states with large populations stand better chance than do the smaller states to obtain the scholarships.

The method constitutes a complete perversion of the purpose of Cecil Rhodes. Doubtless the change was made with the view of raising the average level of scholarship among the American students. But that same purpose might be served without injustice by establishing a general levy of excellence and accepting no student who falls below it.

Big Hailstones.

Without wishing to start a controversy, we wish to make the simple statement that we have never seen a hailstone as big as a hen's egg. Not that there aren't such mammoth hailstones, but we just never saw any. Our statement is occasioned merely by the state of the weather at this writing, it apparently being the season in the great outdoors for hailstorms and, of course, reports of large hailstones will be frequent from now until the last of April. We venture the suggestion that the size of these hailstones to fall will vary with the capacity for observation of the individual who sees them. We have no grudge against large hailstones, but we really never expect to see any larger than a marble, surely never as large as a hen's egg.

Straw Vote.

Straw votes may settle no questions before the public but they provide an opportunity for men and women who want to express their wishes to be recorded, and, when handled with care, afford an interesting picture of public opinion. The straw ballots taken during presidential campaigns in the past by the Literary Digest were roundly denounced while the voting was under way, but they gave the best forecast of the results that was supplied and they did indicate the results with astonishing correctness.

The Digest has put another straw ballot referendum under way, this time on the widely discussed wet and dry question. The ballot gives the individual a choice of votes; for prohibition, for repeal and for amendment to include light wine and beer. Obviously the result of the ballot will not change conditions, but it will serve a useful purpose in giving expression to the wishes in the hearts of the voters. Not all voters will take part but, if the vote is large, it will be the best cross-section of individual thought that has been shown since the wet and dry controversy became active.

It will be interesting to note the number of votes for a continuation of the law as it is, those who favor a complete repeal, and the number favoring the wine and beer amendment. There will be the largest vote for the latter change if current talk has been well founded and people vote as they have been talking. The lively debates that have been under way on the wet and dry question at Washington should serve to quicken public interest, and help increase the vote largely.

There is no doubt of the honesty of the ballot as it will be taken by the Literary Digest. It could have no purpose in trying to make it show a certain result, the largest advantage for the Digest is the news value and the public attention that will be drawn to the energetic publication. The straw ballot will not dispose of the wet and dry question, but it will supply some interesting figures for the public as the weekly reports are made public.

Nebraska Politics.

Nebraska will witness, this year, a special effort on the part of Republicans to prevent George W. Norris from winning another election as senator. The task will be far from easy, as during the 28 years he has been in congressional and senatorial campaigns he has built up a powerful organization. Republicans will not forgive the fight he made against President Hoover in the last presidential campaign, particularly because he was posing as a Republican while making the fight. Six years ago he was opposed, the two candidates in the field polling a combined vote greater than that given Norris.

So far as regular party politics is concerned Norris has been an independent trouble maker through all his years. While he has been classed as a Republican, and as such was made chairman of the powerful judiciary committee in the Senate, he never has been a faithful party man. He has been a leader of his own thought, refusing leadership of others, making his own decisions and fighting his own battles. He is able and his honesty never has been questioned.

It is not certain what position the Democrats of his state will occupy with reference to his campaign. Chairman Shouse of the Democratic national committee says Norris is a great aid to that party, useful in the Senate, and he is anxious to see him win his next election. It remains to be seen just how that will go with the party members. The opinion seems to be that if Republican opposition prevents Norris securing that party nomination he will come into the race as an independent, and in that event, he might be a strong candidate. There seems to be something in the atmosphere of that state that causes political independents to win a large following.

Creel Wants Third Party.

There are bitter criticisms of the Democratic party as it is constituted today in the story from the pen of George Creel in the current issue of World's Work, in which he seeks to point out the need for a new political party in the life of the nation. Mr. Creel was chief of the publicity bureau under President Wilson during the world war, and remains today an ardent supporter of the principles President Wilson advocated.

Obviously there are weak links in any chain a writer forges in trying to turn public thought to the formation of a new party, but there are some points in the Creel story that are historically true. To his mind the glory of the Democratic party lies in the fact that it was, in its brightest days, an opposition party, a place where new ideas were welcomed, considered and adopted in many instances. With pride he points out the additions to national history that have been made by the new thoughts brought out and tried. The next greatest glory of Democracy, as he sees it, is the wholesome check its opposition provided to those in official place.

Studying the three campaigns in which Democratic candidates have been overwhelmed Mr. Creel raises the question as to whether it might properly be cast aside and left to die. Failure to measure up to the heights as a strong opposition party has been the cause for these failures, he insists. With emphasis he points out the need for a new party as he sees it, and he is cheerful in studying that question, despite the disasters that have overwhelmed previous third party ventures. History seems to prove that a brilliant advocate of a great thought is required, if a new party is formed with any hope of permanency. Without the man and the idea failure cannot be delayed long.

The motto of the prohibition enforcement department, so far as the Atlantic coast line is concerned, seems to be "In Guard We Trust."

Well, after three years of watchful waiting they've finally given King Ben Purnell up for dead, something a great many have suspected ever since he died.

So many persons commit suicide by jumping from New York hotel windows that we'd think the management would have to adopt the pay-as-you-enter plan.

The fact that a bee sat upon a woman's hand and affectionately stung her was accepted as another sign of spring, but personally we'd rather be left to guess when spring had arrived than to be notified that way, and anyhow if one swallow doesn't make a summer, one bee sting may not make a spring.

The little dog barking at a train has its counterpart in the man who tries to obstruct an important civic improvement.

Work of Early Farmers Recognized

Styles in ships have changed greatly since the first commercial fertilizer was brought to this country. Above—Modern liner of the type that carries 1,000,000 tons of nitrate of soda annually to the United States from Chile. Right—Freighter in service in 1830. Inset—Herbert C. Brewer, director of the Chilean Nitrate of Soda Educational Bureau.

THE older generation among Southern farmers deserves credit for laying the foundations of the modern soil-improvement programs which have proved so successful in raising the yields and profits on our farms.

This is shown by the experience of Southern farmers, now past middle age, who have volunteered information about the earliest users of nitrate of soda in their states. Some of these planters have been using fertilizers continually for quarter of a century, and one farmer in South Carolina reports that he first used nitrate of soda back in 1875.

As part of the 100th anniversary of the use of nitrate of soda in this country, recognition in the form of a distinctive award is to be conferred upon the farmer in each state who has used this fertilizer for the longest period of time. This award is being given by the Chilean Nitrate of Soda Educational Bureau.

Letters from farmers are reaching the office of the Educational Bureau daily and the awards will be made this fall.

"Four generations of Southern farmers have used commercial fertilizers during the past 100 years," says Herbert C. Brewer, director of the Chilean Nitrate of Soda Educational Bureau, "but efficient soil-building practices were not understood generally until the last quarter century. It remained for our educational agencies, such as the extension services of the state agricultural colleges, to popularize the practices which could be depended upon to assure the most economic production. At present, thousands of farmers are doing daily what only a few of the most enterprising did a half century ago."

Sheepmen Enter Spring Lambs in Production Race

The chance to show their ability as flockmasters has appealed to 136 Michigan sheepmen who have entered the Wolverine lamb production contest, in which the winner will be determined by the average weight of the lambs produced during a certain period of time.

Enrollments in the contest will be accepted by the animal husbandry department of Michigan State College or by county agricultural agents until May 31. Entrants in the contest must have flocks of 20 or more ewes.

Breeders from 42 counties have already entered the contest. The size of their flocks range from 20 to 280 ewes. The breeds represented are Shropshire, Oxford, Hampshire, Delaine, Rambouillet, Lincoln, Black Top Delaine, Cheviot, Dorset and Karakul.

No special methods of handling the contest flocks are required except that the necessary practices for producing first quality market lambs must be employed. Docking is one of these requirements.

In addition to Michigan State College, the Michigan Farmer, the Michigan Purebred Sheep Breeders Association, and several Detroit livestock commission firms are promoting the contest, which is intended to improve the quality of lambs marketed by Michigan owners.

Paris sets the styles in women's dress for the world. London is the arbiter in matters of dress for men. But, New York and Chicago, Boston and San Francisco and hundreds of smaller cities and towns throughout the United States may know what are the latest styles even before they are shown in Paris.

A seeming paradox, but true. Merchants maintain representatives in Paris, London, Vienna and other European style centers who cable the latest news of the modes, and ship samples long before they are sold abroad. In America, the news is translated into advertisements and printed by local newspapers throughout the United States. And so, American women are able to dress in the latest styles in dress more accurately than the women of any other country on the face of the globe.

Advertising keeps you abreast of the times in other ways. It tells you of the newest and best in every line of merchandise. It keeps you posted on what other people are doing and wearing and using. Read the advertisements. They are truthful and helpful. You can depend on their accuracy, for the reputations of the merchants sponsoring them guarantee their integrity.

Did you ever try Dr. Miles' Nervine? Just two teaspoonfuls in a half glass of water will quiet your over-taxed nerves, and bring you a feeling of calm and peace.

The Old Timer's Corner

How Old is "Old?" When you ask someone, anyone, how old must a person be to be "old," their answer will all depend upon their own age, or course. If the person you ask is twenty years old, he or she, will say that a person is "old" at forty. If they are ten years old, then they will say one is "old" at thirty. It seems that it usually runs about twenty years older than their own ages. I am at loss to know, for sure, when or at what age a person is "old." Seems to me that the old rule of "three score years and ten" is a pretty good rule, and still I have seen men and women at that age that were far from being "old" and I have likewise seen them at much younger ages that had all the attributes of old age. It's not a pretty subject to contemplate at any rate. It is a sort of sobering thought, at best. We know that we have to come to that time sooner or later and we hope that we will not be a burden to any one else, as our faculties become less acute and our powers of progress become dulled with age and wrinkles, but sooner or later we all have to "face the music" and make the best we can of it.

There is always a spark of hope and trust in ourselves, that makes us feel that we, personally, are just the same as we used to be. We know that we don't care for many of the things that we used to enjoy, and we are apt to want to rest a lot and take things more slowly, but that seems not a sign of age, but of better judgment, to us, personally. We have a lot of things to think over, and we found our opinions and our judgments accordingly. We may not have a line to follow when we are young and full of pep, and we have followed it more or less to the goal we set for ourselves but as we approach the time when people begin to concede that we are "old" we find that we never have entirely satisfied ourselves or reached the goal completely. Funny that we never are entirely satisfied with what we have done, what we have accomplished. Well, I guess there isn't much help for it, it is a matter that is set by old Dame Nature, and we wear out mentally and physically, as the years creep past us. We are like all the rest of Nature's peoples and things. We just simply can't go on forever. Legs get tired, backs will ache, eyes will grow sleepy and it does not worry us so much if the day passes and we have not done all we have planned to do. That is the way with age.

I look myself over, and sort of take an inventory of what is the matter with myself. I am getting to where I like to sit and chat with older people, or with younger people for that matter, and while the youngsters have their ideas, some of which are first rate and O. K. they have the idea that they are sort of sorry for we older ones, for they think we have never even thought of the things they think of and have never done the things they are doing. I often sit and listen to them and say nothing, but I do a "heap of thinkin'." We have all passed right along that self same road and thought the same way and done the same things and thought we were breaking a brand new trail, doing things that our elders never thought of doing. We were badly mistaken, and so are the youngsters of today. It's the same old road, the same old things are being done over again, and the glory of youth is the same today as it was a hundred years ago. Of course the youth of today has many improvements over what we had to do with, when we were kids like them, but, when you come to figure the thing out, they themselves are not accountable for those improvements. The older ones that pressed on and up before they were born are the ones that made all these improvements possible for them to enjoy. But they do not think of it that way at all. They take things "granted" and look upon us as some one that does not understand how things are now-a-days.

As we have passed along this same old road, we have seen the phone, the lights, the air planes, the radio start from nothing and become a part of our every day life. Not forgetting the development of the auto. All of the labor saving devices that are common to housewives in this present age, mostly all, have come to them during the life time of most of us "old timers." When we call the youngsters of the plain old fashioned days of our youth, they look at us in wonder and think that it is our fault that we had to put up with the homely old things of our day. Not so. We used the things that were known then for comfort and convenience, but it was up to the rising generation to make the things possible that are now enjoyed as every day household essentials. I don't think that we were any the worse for the plain old fashioned things we had, and to tell the truth, they were in advance of the things our fathers and mothers had when they were kids. So each generation benefits by the things that are left to them to enjoy by those whom the youngsters deem as old fashioned and slow.

So, we as "old timers" can sit by and watch the parade pass along in the same way it passed for those that were old when we were young. It is an endless cycle, we come and "do our stuff" and pass on and those "in" the kids now will pass on also. They will look with humor on the ideas that their followers deem as "new" when they are "old."

Record Reprints Letter Written By Founder 1st Nat.

The Record has the privilege this week of copying itself, after an interval of 59 years, through the courtesy of Mrs. Nella Slater, who handed in the clipping reproduced below.

The letter thus set forth was written by Frank Ross, Jr., the junior member of the firm of A. F. Ross & Son, founders of the First National Bank of Buchanan, and resident for many years in the house on Front Street now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sanders. The clipping was made by Mel Sampson and was found at his home in Courtland, N. Y., by his niece, Mrs. Joseph Knight, who forwarded it to Mrs. Slater.

Letter from Scotland
By permission, we are enabled to lay before our readers the following letter from A. F. Ross, of the firm of Ross & Son, to his father in this place. It will be read with interest by "Frank's" numerous friends:

The Queen's Hotel, Glasgow, July 15th, 1871.
Dear Father—I arrived in this city, last evening, at 10 o'clock, and since I last wrote you, (I have from Killarney) I have had a very pleasant time indeed. Have visited all the points of interest in Ireland, such as old castles, Giants Causeway, Dublin, Belfast etc., and am very glad to leave Ireland behind, as we have not seen a day without rain while in the country.

I find all the available land to be in a high state of cultivation, and the roads, by far, superior to our own. The people, as a class, are jolly, good natured and witty. We all think we are leaving the pleasantest part of our journey behind, and I am sure the conclusion we arrive at in America, as regards poor, down-trodden Ireland, is all bosh.

Belfast is one of the finest cities we visited, and is great for its manufacturers of linen, etc. The streets are wide and clean and kept in splendid condition. The buildings throughout the country are not as fine as at home, but of a more substantial construction—all built of stone and the ornamented part quite heavy. All the cities are of this description, except Belfast, which is a city of brick; one brick is about equal to two or ours and the joints between are twice as large.

The Bank of Ireland at Dublin is the largest building of the kind I have ever seen. It is in the old Parliamentary Hall, and the room where the "old boys" held the meetings yet remains as when hundreds of years ago—same furniture, tables etc. There is a guide furnished you who points to all the objects of interest, and, on leaving, you pay him a sixpence.

The Botanic and Royal Zoological Gardens, at Dublin, are very grand, perhaps, now, the finest in the world, since the ones at Paris have been destroyed. There are plants, woods, animals etc., from every part of the world, all of which live, with the exception of toads and snakes; they will not.

On leaving, Belfast, last evening, we took a steamer across St. George's Channel, to a point where the river Clyde commences, and from there hereby rail, over, perhaps, one of the most expensive railways in the world. It is either through long, dark tunnels of a mile or so in length, or else over the top of towns and cities on iron bridges, but they landed us safely in Scotland at the rate of 50 miles an hour. The track is of endless steel rail and of course, very firm, being on rock or iron. With the window to our coach closed, you hear no noise, not even the whistle. One is obliged to look after trunks etc., all the time, as the railroad is not responsible if they are lost. There are no busses which run from the hotels and most of these are run by ladies, and in fact, the servants, waiters, etc. are girls, and men are of but little use only as porters.

This morning, after breakfast we took carriages and visited the parks, Cathedral and the immense ship building, the largest in Scotland. Here is where most of the ocean steamers are built. All the parks have statues of Queens, Princes, Sir Walter Scott and other notables of ancient and modern times, and pronounced by everybody as being very fine, as indeed they are. We are seeing the city at a great disadvantage, on account of its being a holiday now for ten days. All the manufactories and places of business will be closed the entire time. But one thing we notice here the same as in Ireland, and that is, almost every other building has a sign over the door of Wines, Spirits, etc. The better class of people are out of town to some of the many watering places and the streets and parks are thronged with the working people and the greater portion of them, pretty full of Scotch whisky. It is their "4th of July" now and they are allowed to do about as they please.

We shall leave here in the morning for Edinburgh and from there to a few small places and then for London. Should you write me, direct to Grand Hotel, Paris, as we shall be there in three or four weeks.

I am feeling first-rate, never better. Eat four or five times a day and take lots of exercise on foot and walker's line. My love to all.

Your affectionate son,
Frank.

Mrs. Esther Winch Answers Query on Old Chandler Mill

Editor of the Record:

In reply to Mr. Holmes' question concerning the date of the Chandler saw mill, when able to write, I am glad to tell all I can of the old dates and times. Through the early 1850's every summer day I passed the Chandler log yard on the west side of the river opposite the mill and dam. Logs were cut from woods on that side of the river and towed across to the mill. It was fun to run on the logs on our way to the log school house on the Sherwood corner. The years ran on, so did the mill. Later I remember the Winch coming to our house and bargaining to buy trees from mother on the west side of Moccasin bluff, then woods. He was for several years a partner in the saw mill. I knew the Chandler children through many years, but do not recall the old mill or the dam after the Civil war began.

Motor Transport Entering Field of Big Business

At the beginning of 1928 the route mileage of common carrier motor coach operations was about four times the mileage of electric railway track, or three-quarters of the track mileage of the steam railroads. At the end of 1928 common-carrier motor coach route-mileage was more than seven times the mileage of electric railway track, or more than one and one-quarter times the track mileage of the steam carriers.

From 1925 to 1929 the mileage of surfaced highways in the United States increased from 470,067 to 615,000. Present construction programs promise an even more rapid increase in the near future, and every mile of improved highway is a potential motor coach and motor truck route.

In the four years preceding 1928 the number of motor coaches operated in the United States increased from 53,000 to 86,000.

Motor coach operation is fast becoming a part of big business. At the beginning of 1929, 322 steam and electric railroads were operating 11,318 motor coaches and 45 companies operated 22,655 per cent of all the common-carrier motor coaches of the United States.

The popover has just popped over
... EAT IT NOW

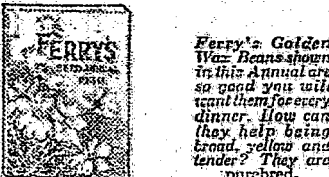

THE TIME to eat a popover is when it has just popped over. When it has reached its climax, and is puffed and crisp. Listen to it crackle when you break it apart for butter.

And the time to eat vegetables is when they've just been picked. They will never be so fresh again. The peas will never be so firm, knuckled tight in their pods . . . nor the corn so glistening and sweet under its silk. Shell the peas, husk the corn, hustle them into the pot. Have all your vegetables at their climax moment—with a garden of your own.

Ferry's purebred Seeds are eager to burst into growing; and are fresh at the "store around the corner." They are purebred—all their name says they are. Their parent-plants and grandparents before them produced vegetables and flowers that approached perfection. What their parents were, these seeds will become. Use Ferry's Seed Annual to help you in selecting; and to know of mulch paper, and new ways to cook vegetables. For the Annual, write to D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Michigan.

Electrical Control To Be Installed On Pere Marquette

"Centralized control," by which all switches will be electrically operated from a central point, is to be installed this summer on the Pere Marquette between New Buffalo and Riverside at a cost of $1,000,000, according to an official announcement from railway headquarters last week. The point of control will be established in New Buffalo, where an electric switchboard is to be installed. The switchboard is to be equipped with a plan of the track on which lights travel up and down, showing the position of every train. Another part of the plan is the installation of switches one and a half miles long at intervals of a mile. Each end of these switches is to be connected with the main line. By this arrangement a freight train may be automatically thrown on a siding to permit a freight to go by uninterrupted, neither train being forced to wait. The same method provides for one train passing the other when both are going in the same direction.

It is further planned to install 300 pound rails in place of the present 90 pound rails to permit of heavier traffic, and to cut down the steep grade through the sand hills at the St. Joseph waterworks. Preliminary surveys are already complete and the work is to be begun at once and finished in the early part of the summer, at an estimated cost of $1,000,000.

Weko Beach Owner Plans Breakwater To Save Property

A breakwater of solid oak, 150 feet long and five feet above the water level is to be erected at Weko Beach this year by Henry Weber, owner of the community playground there to protect his $20,000 investment. Weber erected a concrete building and installed playground apparatus there two years ago, the lake water edge being 250 feet away at that time. In the intervening time the water has advanced to a distance of twenty feet from the building and threatened the place with destruction during the March storm.

CAREFUL DIET REQUIRED BY GROWING CHICK

VALUE MATURE BIRDS DEPENDS ON CARE FIRST FEW WEEKS

Although the baby chick is equipped by nature to go through the first 72 hours of its life without feeding, the value of mature birds is often determined by the kind and amounts of feed which they receive from the third day until their growth is completed, according to the poultry department at Michigan State College.

A dry mash made up of 60 pounds of yellow corn meal, 20 pounds of yellow corn meal, 20 pounds of yellow middlings, 10 pounds of dried milk, 5 pounds of meat scraps, 4 pounds of bone meal and 1 pound of salt is recommended for use until the chicks are four weeks old.

Plenty of feeding space should be provided so the birds will have a chance to eat, and the dishes on which the mash is placed should be kept clean. After the first few days, the mash can be fed in deep pans to which the chicks have access at all times.

The use of cod liver oil as 2 to 4 per cent of the ration aids early chicks or those receiving little sunlight. Green feed should be supplied to chicks which are not running on range.

Scotch grain consisting of equal parts of cracked corn and whole wheat should be fed after the chicks are six to eight weeks old. A mash which can be fed until the birds are ready to go in the laying house is made up of 60 pounds of corn meal, 40 pounds of bran, 40 pounds of ground oats, 30 pounds of middlings, 10 pounds of meat scraps, 5 pounds of ground limestone, 5 pounds of bone meal and 4 pounds of charcoal.

CROPS RETURN DIVIDENDS ON FERTILIZER COST

MONEY SPENT ON PLANT FOOD RETURNED WITH PROFIT.

Although a recent survey shows that for every dollar's worth of fertilizer used on corn the farmers of the United States get a return of $2.35, only 24 per cent of Michigan corn growers use fertilizer in producing a crop of corn, according to statements of the soils department at Michigan State College.

Fertilizer applications for corn may be made with either a corn planter or a grain drill. If the planter is used, 150 to 175 pounds per acre of fertilizer should be used. Applications of approximately 250 pounds per acre should be made with the grain drill.

The drill should be set quite deeply and all the hoes should be permitted to run. This is important, especially on heavy soils where phosphate fertilizers will work down into the soil if they are placed on the surface.

The analyses to use for corn vary with the type of soil and the care it has had in previous years. For light soils in poor condition use 4-16-4; on light soils in fair condition use 2-16-2 or 2-12-6; and on good light soils use 2-16-2.

The heavier soils do not require fertilizers as high in nitrogen and potash. The analyses recommended for these soils are: poor heavy soil, 2-16-2; fair heavy soil, 2-16-2 or 0-20-0; and good heavy soil, 0-20-0.

"LESS CARBON DEPOSIT" a common enough claim...now supported by real evidence

NOTICE the comparison between the amount of carbon formed by three premium-priced motor oils and New Iso-Vis on the right:

In the high compression motor, this difference in carbon is particularly important. It not only means a difference in repair bills, but a noticeable difference in the way your car performs.

In addition, tests show this new oil resists dilution and will not thin out in the crankcase. Its "body" is as heavy the day you drain it off as the day you put it in. This means greater protection for your motor every mile you drive.

New Iso-Vis also has what engineers call a "wider viscosity range". It stands up under intense heat yet gives quick and effective lubrication at low temperatures.

You can get New Iso-Vis from any Standard Oil dealer or service station.

PROOF that New Iso-Vis will not thin out in your crankcase can be seen at any Standard Oil service station. Ask to see this interesting Ball and Bottle Test.
