STUDY UNEQUAL SCHOOL COSTS OF MICHIGAN

An intensive study of unequal educational costs in Michigan is being completed by the joint legislative Educational Survey Commission appointed by the last legislature. At a meeting August 22, the Commission engaged the services of Dr. Paul Mort, director of the School of Education, Columbia University, N. Y. Representative Charles H. Reed, chairman of the Commission, announced that the Commission was enabled to retain the services of Dr. Mort thru the co-operation of the State Administrative Board.

At this meeting the Commission reviewed preliminary results of a two-year study made under direction of Dr. F. N. Thrun of the economic department of Michigan State College. Dr. Mort will supervise the study already made by the Commission and by Michigan State College, and will assist the Commission in formulating a program looking toward the improvement of the present system of financing public education in Michigan.

Dr. Mort is a former resident of Elsie, Mich., having attended public school there. He has made similar investigations for legislative commissions in a number of states. He is the author of the system of financing public education now in use in New York state.

The state superintendent of public instruction, Webster H. Pearce, and the executive secretary of the Michigan Education Association, E. T. Cameron, have been invited by the Commission to appoint an advisory committee of educators, representing the University, colleges, and public schools in Michigan, to work with the Commission.

"The problem which the Commission is attacking," said Dr. Mort, "is a problem of fundamental reorganization of the machinery of school support. This is a problem which every state, either is now facing or has faced squarely in the last decade. It may be stated as the problem of adjusting the burden between localities and the state so that all communities can meet reasonable standards of education without exorbitant taxation."

"School finance is tied in with the whole tax system. Equalization of school taxes therefore will go a long way toward removing the critical condition of the tax situation in Michigan. School finance is fundamental to the carrying out of the important function of education. Therefore, the welfare of the individual boys and girls of today, the citizens of tomorrow, can be safeguarded only through a system of financing education that is in accord with the complex demand of our present day social order."

"The attacks that already have been made on this problem in other states follow along the line of principles which the state of Michigan was among the first to put into practice. Michigan early recognized the fact that education is a responsibility of the state. It has taken important steps to carry out the financial implications of this principle. The task that lies ahead is therefore a simpler one for Michigan than for most of its sister states."

Britain is to have a library of historical naval photographs.

CONSTITUTION AND EXTREME NERVOUSNESS BANISHED BY POWER OF NEW MEDICINE.

MRS. MARGARET HAYNES "Konjola saved my life for I was a nervous wreck," said Mrs. Margaret Haynes, 2724 Fourth Street, Detroit. "I could not bear to talk to people and often at night, I let the table rather than hear people talking. I did not sleep well and lost weight rapidly. No medicine I tried appeared to help me until I began taking Konjola. "This great medicine helped me from the beginning. My nerves became calmer and my appetite good. Constipation which had bothered me so long, is now a thing of the past. It required but four bottles to bring about this amazing change in my health. I cannot say enough in praise of it and I have all my friends taking it." Konjola is a compound of 32 ingredients, 22 of which are the juices of roots and herbs of known medicinal value. It attacks the source of ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. Konjola is sold in Buchanan, Michigan, at W. N. The trial of Maurice Hurvich and Claude Nicely of South Bend, president and vice president of the St. Joseph Paper Board & Box company, charged with arson in connection with the destruction of that property by fire, will be heard at this session. The September calendar includes 32 criminal cases, 50 civil suits and 72 chancery cases. Eight liquor cases will be tried, seven burglary cases, and one drunken driver.

One-Room Schools Are Disappearing Through Mergers

The one-room school house is passing, and at a fairly rapid rate. At the close of the 1928 school year there were 153,306, a drop of $225 over the 1925-1926 school year. Consolidation of schools is the reason, for there are now in the neighborhood of 20,000 educational institutions. Education and roads, the two prime requisites of a progressive community, go hand in hand. Until the coming of the motor transportation era consolidated schools were practically unknown. But today with some hundred thousand miles of hard surfaced pavements in service, small communities in great numbers are grouping their school activities and installing service for carrying children much longer distances than father trudged over not so long ago. These 20,000 consolidated schools employ some 45,000 buses to carry one and a quarter million country children to school. In 1928 no less than 5,691 horse drawn vehicles were carrying children to school. These horse drawn vehicles for the most part are in Connecticut, Indiana, Maine, Minnesota, New Hampshire, Tennessee and Wisconsin. But Dobbin is also passing out of the picture. But pavements are stimulating education in another way aside from their influence in consolidating schools. Motorists see much of the open country and this constant shifting about has given the city and the country of the country and the country of the city. If there is one significant thread running thru history it is that no country has prospered mentally, socially or commercially without roads. This is one fact that should help communities decide their road problems. Education authorities of France are considering the suggestion of a prominent doctor that school children be compelled to learn to write with both hands.

Relief from Curse of Constipation

A Battle Creek physician says: "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause." But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lax, dry, evanescent bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit, or ever increasing the dose. Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderly at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25¢ today at the nearest Rexall Drug Store. Wm. N. Brodrick. 16132

Fast Cubs Nose Out Win When Catcher Fails to Hold Montague Offerings.

The Berrien Springs Cubs defeated the Elkhart All-Stars, an impromptu organization formed and headed by Richard Montague, Buchanan, in a ten inning game on Sunday by a score of 11-0. Montague, a late recruit to the Chicago National League team, pitched several innings holding the Cubs to four hits. He then retired the Berrien Springs lads broke thru the delivery of his successor for six runs in one inning. Montague then returned to the mound. A peak of the game was the fact that four runs were scored by the Cubs off Montague of which three were due to the fact that the catcher was unable to hold to his fast balls after he had fanned the batters. Observers stated that Montague's ball was faster than that of Pat Malone. During his term in the box he struck out 13, walked two and allowed three hits. The game was halted twice by rain and later by an argument as to whether eight or nine innings had been played, the score keeper having disappeared. Sexton played a good game for the Cubs, striking out eight, walking three, and allowing 11 hits. Buchanan's all star talent was represented on each team. Costs Game Law Violators 7c Per Mile to Run Away

For every mile that a conservation officer must travel in taking a violator to court, the victim is assessed seven cents in the court costs. For every mile the violator travels in running away he is adding seven cents to his bill to state. At least that is the way the officers in the northwest section of the lower peninsula look at it. Officer Ray Walters of Manistee apprehended William Davidson and John Trapp with a mess of undersized fish at a place known as Leomis Landing on the Manistee River. The men were camped with

Rats Cost Millions Annually

You can rid your premises of this costly pest without danger to poultry or domestic animals by using Maro, a Red Squill preparation. Red Squill is recommended by the U. S. Department of Agriculture in farm bulletin No. 1583, as being taken readily by rats and relatively harmless to human beings and domestic animals. Not a Poison.

Rats cost the American people $200,000,000 annually. They distribute the virus of plague of hydrophobia, of trichinosis, of equine influenza. When you can be rid of these pests by using Maro at a cost of 50 cents, can you afford to have them? Maro carries a positive guarantee. If used according to directions, your money will be refunded if Maro does not kill rats and mice. The Corner Drug Store.

GAME COMMISSION PLANS BIG FISH REARING PONDS

What will eventually become among the largest bass and bluegill rearing ponds in Michigan were accepted by the Conservation Commission at its August meeting when it voted to accept a deed to 84 acres of land near the city of Hillsdale. The Hillsdale county chapter of the Izaak Walton League has raised $4,900 for the purchase of the land and will turn the property over to the department of conservation which will develop and operate the ponds. About 60 of the 84 acres are suitable for ponds. The property is but a mile and a half from the city on what is known as the Emery Mills Creek Site. In 1928 T. H. Langlois, of the fish division, directed attention toward the site and it was later inspected by F. A. Westerman, head of the fish division. The site was declared ideal for bass and bluegill propagation. At low water the ponds will have available about 400 gallons of water per minute, making extensive development possible. The conservation commission at this month's meeting also approved of the expenditure of $2,500 for the purchase of property on which the Adrian chapter of the Izaak Walton League is now operating bass and bluegill rearing ponds. The ponds have been in operation for three years.

Building and Loan Associations Are Balance Wheel

The building and loan associations, operating like the better in poker who never ventures beyond a fistful of aces, came to the rescue last fall "when many of us were walking around in barrels," A. P. Johnson, Grand Rapids publisher, told delegates to the convention of the United States Building and Loan League. Mr. Johnson asserted that the associations and the insurance companies, following conservative policies, were the stabilizing influence in the crisis. "There are two kinds of players in poker," Mr. Johnson said, "and if there is anything that bears closer resemblance to poker than the investment business, I have failed to find it—the kind that last October got a trimming because they bet on every little busted flush that came into their hands, and the other player, the boy who never ventures beyond a fistful of

4 Get 60 Days For Failing to Put Out Campfire

Four men are serving jail sentences of 60 days each in Newaygo county for leaving their campfire unextinguished. The unattended campfire went out of bounds and spread into a forest fire that took 15 men half a day to put under control. The four men, Martin Barr, Martin Bolokac, John Wargack and Mike Fotona, were arrested by W. C. Kidder, district conservation officer and Charles Whitman, local conservation officer, and were tried in Justice W. B. Reed's court. They could not pay fines assessed at $50 each. Several arrests have been made so far this season, of persons failing to put out their camp fires. However, the penalties inflicted on the four men in Newaygo county are the most severe reported this year.

QUEER PEOPLE MADE, NOT BORN SAYS U. M. PROF.

Queer people are usually made and not born, and queerness is a quality not so much of intellect as of temperament, resulting from wrong conditioning or emotional learning which takes place from influences that play upon the child from birth, stated Professor Leslie Ray Marston of the Michigan Education Conference. The speaker pointed out that the shifting emphasis from intellectual to emotional factors as fundamental determiners of conduct, exalts the home as a formative influence upon the growing personality of the child. If an unchanging, hereditarily pre-determined degree of intelligence is alone relied upon to explain behaviour, then the only hope of change or improvement in conduct must come through the imparting knowledge, which is essentially the work of the school. This idea of character development stresses the school as the important element in education and leaves the home relatively in the background. Only in recent years have we realized, however, that the child's education begins on the emotional side long before he can profit by instruction of the intellect, Prof. Marston said. The emotional aspects of a personality are the variables of mental development, the most modifiable and plastic, and are conditioned for better or for worse by the earliest experiences of the infant. If early home surroundings and care are not well and properly ordered a warped temperament which will carry its influence throughout life may develop. Thus when emotions are understood as early and significant determiners of conduct, the home at once becomes the most important agency in the formation of character. The extroverted child is one in whom emotionally aroused energy finds ready and direct discharge into the outside world, perhaps as lively movement or play. The introverted child finds the easy discharge of energy inhibited or blocked and the energy is either dissipated within the child's organism or finds sudden, explosive outlet. Characteristics of the extroverted child include social boldness, exaggerated activity, impulsiveness, talkativeness, aggressive self-reliance, and keen interest in the environment. The introvert tends to the contrary traits of social timidity, depressed activity, caution, secretiveness, self-depreciation and detachment from environment. Extreme differences in such personality traits which may be noticeable as early as three years, according to Dr. Marston, urge the understanding and right treatment of these differences if later emotional and social life is to be directed properly. A new king of sport, "King Football" was crowned at the Buchanan Athletic Park by General Bradfield and his warriors last Tuesday, the monarch to reign until November 22.

At the date of coronation, forty-seven members of Bradfield's army answered roll call, including Captain "Spot Dempsey; eight "second lootes", letter men from last season; sixteen sergeants, former reserves; and twenty-two privates, no experience at all. New recruits have raised the grand total over the fifty mark.

Although the prospects are nothing to write home to mother about, there are a few faint beams of sunshine at the local camp, the principal one being that six line men are returning with their last year's letters. Captain Dempsey is back at the center position for his fourth year and should keep the center of the line quite solid. "Rod" Thompson and Dale Hamilton are the two regular guards who are returning to mow down the opposing backfields. Paul Letcher and Jim Postlewaite are the veteran tackles who are back again, but Postlewaite may be shifted to fullback due to the scarcity of backfield stars. Joseph "Oosie" Letcher is the only regular and returning, but this will complete the left side of the line.

The backfield, however, is another fable. Chubb, Eisenhart and Imhoff are lettermen who are back, but Chubb is the only one who played regularly last season. General Bradfield's biggest problem is to find someone to fill place of Harold Pierce, Buchanan's four sport star, who was the shining light at fullback last year, and, so far, the shifting of Postlewaite is the only solution that has appeared. The absence of Co-Captain Knight will also be felt on the line, nevertheless, the line prospects are somewhat brighter than they were last year.

Several other aspirants have shown much promise, including Bob Ellis, Louis and Lauren Morse, backfield men from last year's reserves, and Marion Dreitzler, Lee Donley and Robert Montgomery, formerly reserve linemen. A large group of exceptionally promising freshmen and sophomores are out this year, assuring local fans of some real teams for the next few years.

Editorial

The Microphone

With this issue, the Microphone begins its fourth year as the Buchanan high school paper. News of the school has been collected by the members of the staff, and has appeared weekly in the Berrien County Record. This seems to be the most satisfactory kind of paper to be issued by a school the size of Buchanan's as it reaches more people than if it were published by the school.

In previous years, the articles in the Microphone have been written by students who have had no training whatsoever in the art of news writing. This year, however, journalism is being taught in high school and after a few months we hope to have some first-class experienced reporters. So, taking everything into consideration, the Microphone staff hopes to present a bigger and better school paper.

Grade News

We wish to thank the pupils and parents who so willingly and immediately responded to the call for books for the grade pupils. The day after the call was published in Record a number of books were donated. Books are still being brought in for this purpose.

The complete enrollment will not be published for some time as pupils are being received each day in the different rooms.

Last Friday morning Mrs. C. D. Arnold, president of our P. T. A., and Mrs. E. C. Mogford, chairman of the grade programs for the year, met with Mrs. Reba Lamb to complete the year's program. Mrs. Lamb was chairman last year and much good came of those meetings. From time to time notices of these meetings will be published and also invitations will be taken home by the children of the various rooms in which these meetings are to be held. A splendid attendance was enjoyed last year and more are expected this year.

Each teacher is enjoying her room to the utmost. Everything therein is spick and span and some furniture has been added in some cases. Many thanks to the administration.

Kindergarten, Miss Ebbert
We have fifty-two kindergarten boys and girls now. Everyone is having a fine time playing with our books, tools, dolls, books, crayons and paper.

Next week we are going to bring crickets, grasshoppers and caterpillars to school. We want to hear the crickets chirp, and watch the grasshoppers jump, and perhaps, we may be able to see a caterpillar spin its cocoon.

First Grade, Miss Myers
We have thirty-three boys and girls enrolled in our first grade this year. We are having a good time getting acquainted with each other and learning how first graders should act.

We are reading in the Beacon Reading chart. We have all read the first two charts.

First Grade, Miss Vandenberg
We have thirty-three children enrolled in our grade. We were all eager to have school begin and we are happy to be back. Our first reading work began with the new Beacon Reading chart. We hope to cover this soon so that we may begin our primer work.

Third Grade, Miss Simmons
School has opened in our room with an initial enrollment of forty-one.

Catherine Wynn brought some snails to school and the children were interested in watching them. The pupils are learning a poem for Language.

We are organized and doing fine for the first week of school.

First Grade, Miss Carnagan
We have an enrollment of thirty-four. Eighteen boys and sixteen girls.

Our first week was spent in getting acquainted and learning safety rules.

Mrs. Wilcox has an enrollment of 9. The boys and girls are enjoying their new books and getting acquainted with their new classmates.

Fourth Grade, Mrs. French
Work has begun in earnest after our vacation. For language we wrote stories about our vacation. Evelyn Smith and Kenneth Philsator wrote especially good ones. We also learned a September poem.

In a short review in multiplication Joseph Rosetto and Mildred Ferris got 100.

Our new histories are a source of much interest. One reading class is also reading history stories. We are very glad history has been added to our list of studies.

One class in reading dramatized the story of Brother Fox's Tar Baby. Lawrence Dellinger was Brother Fox, Audrey Ruth made a very good Brother Rabbit, while Marjorie Wheat acted the part of the Tar Baby.

We are very pleased with our new seats. They are adjustable so that each one has a seat that just fits him. They add much to the appearance of our nice clean room. They are equipped with ink wells so that much of our written work will be done in ink. We will start work right away on our Palmer drills.

4th Grade, Miss Clayton
The first week went smoothly of our time having about the trips some of the children had during the summer. This has been most interesting and educational.

Our room has only thirty-one this year. We have nineteen boys and twelve girls.

4th grade, Mrs. Fuller
The boys and girls in Mrs. Fuller's room are making some September posters showing two little girls taking leaves.

They are also very much interested in the history of writing and are making some picture writing of their own.

5th Grade—Ekstrom
All desks were filled on enrollment day.

Several girls have brought some beautiful flowers to brighten up our room.

The books on the reading table are popular with the boys and girls. Some people read between bells and when lessons are finished.

We are drilling on multiplication tables.

LIN ARE HEADS.

The Girls' Glee Club is "going strong" this year under the capable leadership of Miss Olson. Of the fifty-five members, it was found that the juniors are still keeping up the record they started as freshmen, by having the largest number of girls from that class in the club. The seniors have eight members, the juniors nineteen, the sophomores, twelve and the freshmen, fourteen members.

New members are appearing rapidly, and this year's enrollment is expected to exceed that of previous years.

Election of officers was held and Jane Habicht was elected president, Pauline VanEvery, treasurer, and Florence Franklin, secretary.

Plans for the year were discussed and much enthusiasm was displayed.

Rev. Rice Speaks
At First General
Student Assembly

Rev. Rice, pastor of the Methodist church, spoke at the first General Assembly meeting of the year Friday morning.

"Watch out for the curves and crossings," said Rev. Rice, "for if you stick to the straight path, you will come upon little danger. When Rev. Rice was in New York this summer he went to see the statue of liberty. There was such a mist about it, however, that it could not be seen. "The same things happen in our own lives," Rev. Rice stated, "and it seems that many things cloud the mission of our best liberties."

To keep on the right path and keep your mind on what you are doing, were some of the things Rev. Rice advised, and keep off the curves and each one will have a reward.

Sophomores Salve
Wounded Feelings
of Hazed Yearlings

The sophomores held a class meeting this week and it was decided that after the initiation given the "freshies" Monday night, a party might smooth things over and promote friendly feelings once more.

Eddie Rolan, class president, made the committee appointments. Josephine Dunlap was named as chairman of the decoration committee; Freddie Portz, chairman of the refreshment committee, and Doris Campbell, chairman of the entertainment. Ralph Robinson's Ramblers will contribute the music.

This party will be held in the gym Friday night, September 12, at eight o'clock. Every freshman and sophomore is urged to be present in order to make this party a big success.

Freshmen Mobbed
By Sophomores

Warily they marched down a small trail. Their eyes shifted from side to side. Suddenly a large tomato sailed from one side and caught one of the leaders full force. Then a yelling mob, poured from ambush, each one grabbing one of the marchers and pushing him towards the murky waters of a small stream which ran parallel with the trail. At this time the fighting and wrestling began in earnest.

No, this is not a war, just the annual "Freshman Mobbing" attempted by the sophomores at Buchanan high school. The marchers were none other than the Buchanan Frosh and the ambushers, the sophs. When every freshman had been thoroughly soured, they were lined up and marched (also padded) to town where the fun finally ended with the ripping of all shirts handy.

The formal initiation, football rush, tug of war, etc., will be held Wednesday after school and a party Friday evening will finish the introduction of the 1930 freshmen.

Girls soccer practices have started. Monday night was the first practice for the freshman and the sophomores. The following nights, practices will be held for the juniors and seniors, alternating with the freshmen and sophomores. All girls will be required to be out for two-thirds of the practice in order to be eligible for a team.

Girls interested in athletics met Monday night in the auditorium for the purpose of increasing the interest in athletics and the Girls' Athletic association. Helen Schmalzried, president of the G. A. Currency Rule

According to Gresham's law, when two kinds of currency are in circulation the inferior or more depreciated one tends to drive the other out of circulation, owing to the hoarding and exportation of the latter. In other words, "bad money drives good money out of circulation." The law was first clearly stated by Sir Thomas Gresham, an English diplomat and merchant, who died in 1579.

When the Furnace Coil Beats
Its Devil's Tattoo

Wham!

The furnace coil is at it again. All that racket is a sign that the furnace coil is being overworked, and that it's all limed up.

You know how it goes; spring, fall, summer, late evening, early morning—little or no fire—even less hot water. Then middle of the day roaring fire—serenade in the pipes.

There's just one way to stop it for good.

Pull out the old coil and install a new special gas water heater that brings you constant hot water at minimum cost. It can use only a small amount of gas and being built like a thermos bottle, it can't leak heat. It does away with the inefficient, noisy furnace coil forever.

GREAT MUSICAL EXPERIMENT HELD IN N. MICHIGAN

NAT. HIGH SCHOOL MUSIC-
IANS TERMINATE 3D
SUMMER CAMP.

The National High School Orchestra Association closed its fifth annual summer camp in the wood of Northern Michigan last week, the young musicians scattering to their home schools in all parts of the United States to pass on the inspiration gathered there.

The camp is located near Interlochen, 14 miles southwest of Traverse City. It is situated on a tract of 350 acres of beautiful woodland between Lake Wah-be-na-ness (Water Lingers) and Lake Wah-be-kenetta (Water Lingers Again) and adjoining Interlochen state park, a forest of virgin pines. Nature has left nothing undone to provide a perfect setting for the unique musical experiment there being worked out.

The camp this year included 286 musical students drawn from 45 states, from Canada, Alaska, Hawaii and the Canal Zone. One hundred and seventeen students were girls, 169 boys. Some came at their own expense, others were sent by parents. Many were sent by their schools or local organizations; some came on scholarships awarded by musical foundations. All were actuated by the same desire, yearning for musicianship of an order that has won the accolade of musical authorities throughout the land.

The National High School Orchestra and Band camp—to give the annual summer gatherings its full title—is an outgrowth of a temporary organization assembled in Detroit April 1926, to play for the music supervisors' national conference. This group, numbering 230 players, chosen from high school orchestras in 30 states, gathered there for four days of intensive training in preparation for a concert conducted by Ossip Gabrilowitch, conductor of the Detroit Symphony orchestra, and Dr. Joseph E. Maddy, professor of public school music at the University of Michigan.

The music supervisors were incredulous. Assembling such a large group of young musicians from all parts of the country and welding them into an organization of competent players clinched forever the place of music as a fundamental subject in the public schools. The national high school orchestra came over the horizon as the most promising movement yet undertaken for the musical education of young America.

The second assemblage of the orchestra was for the convention of the department of superintendence, National Education association, at Dallas, Tex., in March, 1927. This group, numbering 283 players from 39 states, gave 11 concerts during the convention. New inspiration and new prestige was the result.

The growing orchestra came together for the third time in April, 1928, for the music supervisors' national conference being held in Chicago. The group now numbered 311 players, representing 35 states. They rehearsed for a week, then gave a thrilling concert under the direction of Frederick Stock, conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra; Howard Hanson, director of the Eastman School of Music, and Dr. Maddy. By this time the full possibilities of such an amazing triumph of youth had become evident. Meeting a few days a year, the orchestra had achieved prodigiously. But such a short time was entirely inadequate if the full possibilities of the movement were to be realized. Establishment of the National High School Orchestra and Band camp accordingly followed in the summer of 1928.

The idea of a summer camp where students could work and play together for many weeks, first was broached at the Dallas meeting. The plans were hailed with enthusiasm on every side. Many weary months of planning were necessary before the camp became a reality. Only the dogged perseverance coupled with the musical genius of Dr. Maddy made the camp a reality. Dr. Maddy planned first to establish the camp in the Maine woods. To Willis Pennington, owner of a large tract of pines adjoining the state forest, goes credit for keeping the camp in Michigan. Pennington donated land to the orchestra, gave an option on the rest of the tract, and arranged to feed the students from his hotel.

The first summer session there were 115 students from 25 states. All were picked for the musical ability, many being sent by clubs and schools. Some came on scholarships. Musically, the first session was a great success. Financially, well, that was a different story.

Dr. Maddy had borrowed $10,000 to start the school, and spent $25,000 on buildings alone. He had expected 300 students, paying $300 each for the eight week's term. He borrowed another $5,000 and finished up the first summer $10,000 in the red.

Traverse City, fearful of losing what promised to become one of the greatest educational undertakings in Michigan, came to the assistance of the beleaguered camp the following year with an issue of debenture bonds designed to lift the debt from Maddy's shoulders. Obedient to the amount of $25,000 were sold and another $20,000 spent on equipment. Despite the donation of $100,000 in cash, the equipment, the camp closed last year about $70,000 in debt.

The personnel had grown to 232 students, however, which was what mattered most to those dreaming of a national musical renaissance for the youth of this country. There were 11 extension course students and 70 instructors. Questions of financial support to the contrary, the national high school orchestra had evolved from the experimental stage into a vital force in the musical development of the nation. After the second season of operation, more debentures were sold. The camp also was put under a board of financial control, consisting of Howard Musselman, vice president of the First National as chairman; A. J. Haviland, vice president of the Traverse City State bank; Gordon Pharo, of Detroit and Traverse City; C. M. Tremaine, director of the national bureau for the advancement of music and Dr. Maddy, Thaddeus P. Giddings and Mr. Pennington, president, vice-president and secretary-treasurer, respectively, of the nonprofit Michigan corporation organized to operate the camp.

The camp has been a spectacular success this year, not only as to musical progress, but as to finances as well. A total of $20,000 is being paid on the indebtedness of the camp, $22,000 of which has been donated by the Carnegie foundation, and by Samuel Insull, Floyd Clinch and Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, all of Chicago. The future of the camp, free from financial worries, now is assured.

The camp is divided into two sections. The girls' camp is located on Lake Wah-be-na-ness, while the boys' division is on the shore of Lake Wah-be-kenetta, about a half mile distant.

Niles Instructor In Music Overcome By Fumes of Gas

The bodies of Gustavus Schenck, 59, Niles music teacher, was found in the basement of his summer home on North Fifth Street Saturday by Roy Bachman, who found his body in the basement of his home, with the unconscious form of his daughter lying across him. The daughter was taken to the Pawling hospital, where she was resuscitated. She and her father had returned to Niles from Chicago to shut up the home for the winter. Schenck had gone down to the basement to tap a gas pipe. The gas had been shut off and the meter removed and he was apparently trying to tap the feed line. He had with him a wrench and two towels, one of which he had tied over his face. He was apparently overcome and called for help. He was found by Roy Bachman, who rushed to the basement and was overcome in an attempt to extricate her father.

Berrien Couple Head Nat. Mail Carriers' Assoc.

A number of local rural mail carriers attended the banquet given Saturday night in the St. Joseph Y. M. C. A. in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Wynn G. Armstrong, presidents of the National Rural Mail Carriers' Association and Auxiliary. Mr. Armstrong was elected president of mail carriers at the national convention held recently in Detroit and Mrs. Armstrong was at the same time elected for a second term as president of the auxiliary. One hundred and fifty mail carriers of the county attended the banquet, at which Hon. John C. Kitchum was the speaker. The guests of honor were presented beautiful flowers. Those from Buchanan attending were Wilson Hamilton, Clarence Jones, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Schwartz.

Chicago Pastor Freed From Charge Reckless Driving

Rev. J. J. Steffins, pastor of the St. Matthews church at Evanston, Ill., was absolved of charges of reckless driving in a hearing held before Justice John Kobe of Baroda last week, in which his responsibility for the injury of Mrs. Anna Book, 73, of Bridgman, was in question.

Two Fishermen Nabbed For Fishing On One License

A boat, two men, two fish poles, a pair of oars and a license "button." That is what Conservation Officer Rex Joslin of Benzie county saw far out on Crystal lake thru a pair of field glasses.

Joslin was interested in the license button. One would pin the button to his shirt and fish while the other rested or rowed the boat. Then, tiring, the button would be exchanged while the other rowed. The men were Clifford Flora and Richard Beadleston of Chicago. Their neglect to get two licenses, cost them $18.50 each and their joint "button" was confiscated.

Swimming Hole Listed as Cause of Forest Fires

Even the "old swimming hole" has come in for mention among the causes of forest fires this summer. In reporting a fire in Iron county, William Pigstad, assistant district officer, cited the cause as having been from a fire started by boys at a swimming hole along a creek in Crystal Falls township. Five men fought the flames for hours before the fire was extinguished.

Pioneer Railway Engineer is Dead In Benton Harbor

Gideon W. Hayden, 84, the railway engineer who piloted the first Big Four train into Benton Harbor, died Saturday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Clarence T. Warner of that city, with his wife at his side at the end. He was born in Devonshire, Eng., in 1846, and was married to Emma Clark, Sept. 12, 1869 in All Souls church, London, coming to America soon afterward.

North Berrien is Terrorized By Gun Bandits

Three more hold-ups were added to north-county bandit operations in the past week, the home of Frank Santrucek having been entered near Stevensville and the family robbed at the gun point, a clothing store entered and looted in the downtown section of Benton Harbor and a farmer (identity not announced) robbed of $200.

Two youths with faces covered by handkerchiefs with holes cut for their eyes entered the Santrucek home while Mr. Santrucek and his wife were sitting at the dining room table. Mrs. Santrucek believed that neighbors were playing a practical joke and attempted to snatch the handkerchief from the eyes of one of the boys, when he leaped back and whipped out a revolver, shouting, "Put up your hands, this is a hold-up."

Santrucek ran out the back door and was pursued by the bandits who fired after him. Mrs. Santrucek in the meantime had bolted the door. The bandits returned in a few minutes and broke in a front window, while Mrs. Santrucek and her son fled by the back door. The bandits rifled the house without finding anything of value.

Muskrat Tribes Hunt Apartments For Winter Season

Movements of muskrats and other animals that spend much of their time in the water, now being reported to the Department of Conservation are not caused entirely by because their swamp and creek homes are drying up, according to the game division.

According to reports muskrats are being seen in considerable numbers, especially in the southern third of the state, moving from one place to another and on the high ways. The assumption is that they are leaving their swamp and creek homes because the drouth has taken away the water.

While the drouth may have caused many of these animals to migrate, the game division says, there is normally a considerable movement of muskrats about this time of the year. Many of this year's young have grown up so that the total number of muskrats is greater than at other seasons of the year. The young which are out shifting for themselves are inexperienced and more often crushed by cars at night than older "rats." Both young and old are now beginning to build quarters for the winter.

Many Motorists Co-operate in the Reporting of Fires

Thirty motorists reported one small forest fire to the district fire headquarters.

A small fire broke out in Marquette county. The assistant district warden, located at the headquarters, received reports on the fire from five fire towers. A crew was immediately rushed to the scene. Then came telephone calls from motorists. He received at least 30 calls concerning the particular fire, the officer said, commenting on the changed attitude of the public toward forest fires.

A few years ago few would have paid any attention to the smoke other than to remark "another forest fire." Today many motorists, on seeing smoke in the woods, rush to the nearest telephone and report the location to a telephone operator. She calls the fire headquarters.

Corner Drug Store Repells Invasion of Chain in Michigan

The corner drug store occupies a singular place in the system of retail distribution. While representing, perhaps, the greatest development of modern sales ideas, the drug store remains the one important stronghold left to the independent merchant despite the fact that in every leading retail line the chain store has been the principal factor in hastening the introduction of improved methods and better salesmanship.

There are in Michigan approximately 2,850 drug stores and of this number not more than 150 are owned by the chains, a ratio of independent ownership unequalled in any other outstanding branch of retail business.

Chain drug stores in Michigan are practically confined to the larger cities and at least one out of every three are in the Detroit area. The estimated income of Michigan drug stores is between $40,000,000 and $50,000,000 a year.

In Michigan, as throughout the nation, the drug store is the apex of a transition which has reorganized distribution on state-wide basis for the grocer to sell only food, an automobile dealer automobiles, or a tobacconist cigars and cigarettes. The grocer sells cigars, toilet goods, magazines and books. The automobile dealer sells radios. The grocer even sells the cream of milk, but rarely even a machine. And the drug store sells all these articles and 10,000 others. The stock of a drug store contains an estimated variety of from 8,000 to 15,000 items.

Although the drug field has offered steady resistance to the chains, it is probably true that the chains contributed largely to the rapid transformation of drug stores. Cutrate policies and aggressive sales methods of the chains were, however, readily met by equal energy on the part of the independent owners. Nevertheless, chain stores, particularly in the larger cities, account for a huge share of drug store business.

One of the largest drug stores in the chain drug stores of Michigan, the largest of these is headed by Louis K. Liggett, of Detroit, chairman of the board of Drug Incorporated. The second largest chain drug store concern is the Walgreen Drug Company, headed by C. R. Walgreen of Chicago.

If motorists would compare the cost of various units on his car today with those of 10 or 15 years ago, he would be amazed. The instruments on the instrument board alone would today make a most interesting comparison. The total saving to car owners over a period of a few years that engineering science has made possible through development of these instruments, would be staggering.

There is no wonder that the value of the automobile dollar today is about twice the value of the cost of living dollar in terms of 1914 purchasing power.

Pipe Kentucky Gas to Detroit by 200 Mile Line
Construction of a 200-mile pipe line at an estimated cost of $30,000,000 to supply Detroit, Toledo, and industrial communities of the southeastern part of Michigan with natural gas from immense shale deposits of eastern Kentucky is proposed by a combination of utility interests headed by Moody, Seagraves, Morgan, the American Utilities and General Corporation and the Hope Engineering company. The project, work on which is expected to get under way before the end of 1930, is the first of a series of pipe line projects which contemplate the transmission of natural gas from the Kentucky fields to Chicago, Philadelphia, Baltimore and other centers within a radius of approximately 500 miles of the Kentucky deposits.

Interests sponsoring the project have completed the leasing of a right of way from Ashland, Ky., to Detroit and the promoters are negotiating with Detroit manufacturing concerns for the sale of the fuel preliminary to commencing legal proceedings to obtain a franchise and necessary permits from the Detroit city council and municipalities of the Detroit area for bringing the pipe line into southeastern Michigan.

The Hope Engineering Company, New York City and Mt. Vernon, O., and an associated concern, the Northern Industrial Gas Company, is now completing surveys and preparing specifications for a 20-inch main to supply the huge Detroit market which consumed upwards of 7,300,000 cubic feet of artificial gas in industrial and commercial heating last year. Lateral lines from the main trunk line will be built along the way to supply factories in smaller communities and it is understood a branch line is to be run from Toledo to furnish cheap fuel to factories there.

Cost of the natural gas delivered to the consumer in the Detroit area would be, it is estimated, around $1 per 1,000 cubic feet, roughly equivalent to the cost of artificial gas for industrial use. The heat value of natural gas is, however, almost double that of the artificial product. Natural gas is mined around 1,200 B. T. U. per cubic foot, while artificial gas averages 532 B. T. U. Utilities are now able to supply natural gas to Kentucky plants at 25 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, but the heavy investment in

Delivery of gas over the Ashland-Detroit line, provided there is no delay in the execution of the project, is expected to start early in 1931.

Snakes, Turtles Make Great Hit at Univ. of Michigan
Pursuit of the complexities of higher education does not dim the common human curiosity about the lives of the furry wild things of the wood and the lowly crawling things of swamp and stream, judging from the attendance at the tiny University of Michigan Museum Zoo on Washtenaw Avenue in Ann Arbor.

Early in the spring of 1930 the museum completed a small circular animal house and a reptile pond to accommodate living specimens. The buildings were the gift of an anonymous donor.

As soon as the weather permitted placing the animals outside they began to attract attention in an unexpected way and by June had over one hundred visitors every day. By July it was found necessary to employ a custodian to guard the place, his chief duties being to prevent children from six to sixty from petting the turtles and basing loudly to camouflage them from their usual state of unbalanced somnolence. In a week in July there was an afternoon and evening of 1938 people, Sunday being the most popular with 602, the average for other days being 183, according to Philip Sankier, custodian.

From the beginning the familiar fascination for reptiles made the snake and turtle pond the most popular department. Almost any time finds a ring of observers of all ages contemplating the smooth undulations of the blue racer or the stodgy crawl of the hog-nosed snake which also entertains when angry by puffing his stout body into a ball.

Although the animal house contains two black bears, several raccoons, red fox, coyote, two opossums and several specimens of Mephitis or common skunk, safely deodorized.

West Michigan Enjoys Banner Tourist Season
Reports of the volume of summer business being done by banks and merchants of West Michigan are coming in daily to the offices of the Michigan Tourist and Resort association at Grand Rapids. West Michigan is enjoying the largest tourist patronage in its history this year, all reports indicate. Automobiles from every state in the Union have been checked on various highways. All good hotels, resorts and boarding houses were filled to overflowing by Aug. 15.

While expenditures per capita are less this year than last, the gross volume of business done more than makes up the difference, merchants report. Deliveries of vacationists into West Michigan by steamship lines from Chicago and Milwaukee are in excess over last year. The Chicago office of the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association which has been established at 161 North Michigan avenue, Chicago, in the heart of the downtown district, will finish the season with several thousand inquiries in excess of 1929. This office interior constitutes a typical West Michigan bit of scenery and a very large Neon sign across the entire front of the building carrying the words, "Michigan, the Playground of the Nation."

In addition to Chicago advertising, has resulted in a growth in general public interest over 1929. Bank clearings are larger than a year ago. There have been a number of purchases of property throughout West Michigan for vacation purposes and tourist and resort business in that section stands alone in its record for having outstripped 1929 volume. Plans are now being made to endeavor to carry the summer volume over into fall by means of "Autumn Color Tours."

Game Department Issues 425,000 License Badges
A light green "button" bearing the picture of a pheasant will be the badge of the small game hunter this year.

The department of conservation is now sending out 425,000 of its "buttons" and licenses to all of its license agents.

The non-resident small game license "buttons" this year are salmon colored.

Scotch Mints
The after dinner speaker had talked for fifteen minutes. "After partaking of such an excellent meal," he continued, "I feel that if I had eaten any more I would be unable to talk."

From the far end of the table came an order to a waiter "Bring him a sandwich."

Satan and Black Cats
According to an old legend, Satan's favorite form of disguise was a black cat and this probably gave rise to the superstition that a black cat brought bad luck.

Holmes Tells of Old Swimming Hole, First Lesson in Aquatics

Editor Record,
Bert Christensen swam ten times across Clear Lake. He learned that he can lie down in the water and rest as easily as in a feather bed, but the swimming in Clear Lake is very easy. The water is very liquid and heavy, weighing a thousand ounces to the cubic foot, so there is not the least trouble in floating in it.

My "old swimming hole" was there when on the farm one and a half miles south of the lake and the regular Sunday morning exercise in the warm season was to walk out to the lake and take a swim and the usual turn was out to a point not far from the middle of the lake and there play around until time for going home.

Then there was no road leading to the lake on the east side, only a foot path along the edge of the marsh from the highway along the "lake" Long place. There were no buildings at the lake, just thick underbrush, and a rail pen for giving the neighborhood sheep their annual bath, a pen large enough to hold about 200 sheep. It was built in a circle with the two ends of the fence sticking into the water and a "slip-gap" at the back end of the lot. (Perhaps Old Timer can tell us how to make a "slip-gap.")

A swim from the Fuller resort to the farm buildings, the old David Weaver home, is a full half mile, not a hard swim if not undertaken in too short a time. The buildings on the Weaver place were erected by Mr. Weaver, the lumber being sawed out at his steam mill on the banks of the lake a short distance south from the buildings. After he had done all of the sawing that he thought profitable, the mill was allowed to run down and the family moved to Dayton, where one of the sons, Aaron, operated a general store. My recollection is the youngest son, Crestus Weaver, died in Buchanan about a year ago. His wife was Marie, daughter of Dr. Phillips of Dayton.

In my operations in Clear Lake I had just one lesson in swimming. After I had been paddling about in the shallow water a few seasons, I got into a boat with Allen Rouse and was taken out to the southwest from the boat landing, about ten rods, just beyond the lily pads where the water was about ten feet deep, when he placed both feet on one gunwale of the boat, and hands on the other, gave a quick backward lurch and the boat flipped upside down and John went into the water, where there was nothing he could reasonably do but swim. The process was of short duration but effective. There was never any trouble about being able to swim after that.
