GALIEN MAN INVADES DEN TO KILL BEAR

George Paul and Party Kill Four Black Bears with No Help from Betsy. HUNTING PARTIES BACK Mt. Tabor Party Win Deer Hunting Honors with 100 Per Cent Success.

The daring of the pioneers who braved the perils of wild beasts in the wildernesses is not entirely vanished from the hearts of their descendants, witness the return of a hunting party of Galien and Glendora men with four bear trophies, which they secured by invading the den.

The lucky hunters who are having a bear existence at their homes this week are George Paul, Sam Wollett, Peter Ritchie and W. Boyle, who returned on Thursday from the Upper Peninsula with four fine specimens of black bear, which they shot 45 miles from Escanaba in Marquette county.

The cubs charged on him as he entered the den Paul stated. They weighed about 60 pounds each. The dam weighed 175 pounds before being dressed.

The hunters state that the old bear was rather strong in flavor but that the flesh of the three cubs is tender and delicious.

The party composed of Black Smith, William Fette, William Ednie and Bob Burch of Niles, arrived home from Republic, with two fine six point bucks killed by Ednie and Burch.

Verl Clark stated that he visited Friday before his return at the camp where William Speckin and son, Bert Babcock, Fred White, William Luther, and Ora Kiefer are and was told that at that time they had only two deer.

The party composed of Dick Proseur, Noah Weaver, Ira Swartz and Raymond Linsenmier are not expected back before the end of the month, having left to remain three weeks.

A hunting party composed of Verl Clark, Albert Decker, Pete Blanta, and Robert Blanta arrived home late Saturday night from Witch Lake in the Upper Peninsula with their full quota of four deer.

Delegations to the convention are going to be selected in the true New England tradition through plans of the Massachusetts Farm Bureau Federation, which will be host to the gathering.

George Bird complains that when he leaves tools where he wants them some one carries them off. The cowboys and Indians have almost set that town wild by their yells and shooting. Cody left this morning for Detroit.

Some parents in this place have formed a practice of sending their babies to school when they want to go on a lark or visiting. The consequence is that the school room where the little one is left is a failure for the day. There is great probability that the teachers will receive instructions from the board to send home all such visitors. When your babies are five years old there will be places for them in the first grade. Until that time their place is at home.

Continuous on Sunday and the suggestion is that to avoid the crowds you attend the matinee Wednesday and Thursday John McCormick in "Song o' My Heart" sings his way to you, a more magnificent, beautiful production has never been produced, and to those who like a beautiful voice this picture is the last word for in it he sings as he has never been heard before.

THE NEW CHEVROLET SIX HAS MANY IMPROVEMENTS

The introduction of the new Chevrolet Six marks the most impressive forward step in Chevrolet's twenty-year record of constant progress and improvement.

For this Bigger and Better Six offers new beauty of line and color, new luxury, new completeness and new quality—yet it sells at lower prices!

In every curve and sweep of Chevrolet's modern lines—in every detail of its smart new Fisher bodies, you will see the fine hand of the master designer and the skillful craftsman. And the more closely you inspect it, the more deeply impressed you will be.

The improvements in the new Chevrolet Six begin at the smart new chrome-plated headlamps and extend throughout the entire car. The radiator is deeper and unusually efficient. Due to the increased wheelbase, the lines are longer and lower, giving an air of exceptional fleetness and grace. And the new Fisher bodies combine with this more attractive exterior appearance, a new degree of interior luxury.

The upholstery is of fine quality mohair or broadcloth, carefully tailored and fitted. The number of individual springs in the rear seat cushions has been increased by 25%. The windshield and windows have been redesigned to provide wider vision. And all interior fittings have been made more pleasing to the eye.

The chassis of the new Chevrolet Six has also been refined and advanced in a number of different ways. The frame is heavier, deeper and stronger than before. There is a smoother operating, long lived clutch; a sturdier front axle; an entirely new steering mechanism of the worm and sector type; an easier shifting transmission. In fact, every vital feature of the new car has been made better and more satisfactory to the owner.

Obviously, these many improvements are responsible for a higher standard of quality than before. And they become doubly significant when you consider that they are offered in a car which provides the smooth, quiet, flexible performance of a 50-horsepower, six-cylinder motor—the comfort of four long semi-elliptic springs and four hydraulic shock absorbers—the safety of a gasoline tank at the rear of the car—and an economy of operation not surpassed by any automobile.

» AT NEW LOW PRICES «

Fine as it is, the new Chevrolet Six now sells at lower prices—making the economy and satisfaction of Chevrolet ownership even more outstanding. We urge you to come in and see the Bigger and Better Chevrolet. Its modern design reflects the spirit of the times—and it represents a value which will command the interest of every buyer in the low-price field.

CURTAIN SPENDING TO LOWER TAXES, FARMERS' REMEDY

FARM BUREAU RESOLUTIONS SUGGEST METHODS OF PROCEDURE

Holding that the control of public expenditures is the corner stone of farm tax relief, delegates to the 13th annual convention of the Michigan State Farm Bureau, convened at East Lansing, Nov. 13-14, urged that drastic measures to curb excessive taxation should be made the first order of business in the process of tax reform.

Better assessment laws, a strengthened state tax commission and equalization of local school and highway taxes were rated next in effectiveness by the delegates as measures of farm tax relief. The delegates also reaffirmed their former position favoring the introduction of new taxes, such as tobacco and income taxes and an increased gas tax, but only if they are to be used in equalizing and reducing existing tax levies.

The bureau delegates went on record for a uniform opening of the hunting season on ducks, rabbits, pheasants and squirrels, retention of the Horton Trespass Act, repeal of the Plumbing Code law, abolition of exemptions from taxation and of the Covert Act, as well as the consolidation of local governments in districts where the people desire it.

There is no such word as fate, wrote John on the blackboard. Why don't you correct him, remarked the visitor. His statement is perfectly correct, replied the teacher calmly.

Him: Scientists have discovered that insects talk.
He: Ridiculous.
Him: Fact, a scientist came upon two moths chewing the rag.

South and West Reaping Profits From Nut Harvest

"Soup to nuts" is still an apt phrase to use in describing a well rounded out banquet or holiday feast, according to figures on production of English walnuts and pecans in sections of the United States. Last year California produced English walnuts worth more than $12,000,000, while younger walnut tracts in Oregon grew up enough to permit owners a harvest worth nearly a half million dollars. Pecans lend laurels to other states, according to figures of the United States department of agriculture. Texas leads in supplying pecans, harvesting in 1929 a total of 17,496,000 pounds, Oklahoma 7,880,000 pounds, Georgia 2,869,000 pounds and Mississippi 2,500,000 pounds. Last year it was estimated the crop was worth $5,889,000 to growers.

Some Game
A Londoner came out through the gate after viewing his first baseball game, when he was stopped by a newsboy. The score-board had recorded that both teams had made a run in the first inning and hadn't scored since. "Say, mister, what's the score?" cried the newsy. "Really, I don't know," came the reply, "but it was some place up in the millions when I left."

Michigan Fur Dealers Buy 22,000 Mink

During the 1928-29 fur season, Michigan fur dealers reported buying 22,000 mink pelts from trappers. In addition to the pelts bought by Michigan fur dealers, the trappers sent a considerable amount of furs to out of state buyers, mail order houses, etc., and some are made up into scarfs etc., without passing through the hands of a fur dealer. It is estimated that the take of mink must have been near 30,000 for the year and the 1928-29 mink crop must have brought something like a quarter of a million dollars to the trappers. As roughly indicated by the post office addresses of the trappers, less than two per cent of the mink pelts came from the upper peninsula, about 23 per cent came from the lower peninsula north of Townline 16 and the rest were from the lower peninsula south of the Lake-Osceola-Clare county line. Contrary to what many people have supposed, more mink were taken on the average from southern counties than from counties in the north. In general, the better farming districts with many small ponds, lakes and streams furnished more mink, muskrats, etc., than the less settled districts. According to the figures prepared by the game division of the conservation department, Calhoun county reported the highest take of mink for the year with 1,139 skins. Other counties in which large catches were reported include: Kent, Berrien, Branch, Oakland, Lenawee, Jackson, Shiawassee, Eaton, Livingston, Osceola and Manistee.

"What's the Propolition?"

To best hear this greatest comedy pair of the day—
tune in with a Majestic RADIO

Wednesday night

Amos 'n' Andy in person, brought to radio listeners from coast to coast—and what an audience. Tonight, millions will be waiting for them and tomorrow millions will be talking about the troubles and tribulations of this funniest, black-faced pair that ever amused the American people. Will Rogers, says, "They afford more people, clean, wholesome pleasure each week-day of the year than any other two men alive," and Will is a good judge of humor. If they were playing in your local theater it would probably cost you more than three dollars and a half at the box office for a ticket to hear them once. With a New Majestic Radio in your home you can tune in each evening and keep up with their ludicrous conversation, and in spite of gout or dyspepsia you'll get the biggest laugh you've ever had.

A Majestic Radio not only offers the daily joy of listening to Amos 'n' Andy, but amusement, sport, opera, music, drama, and world news are all presented in the course of the day and night. A Majestic, too, affords the finest reception—bringing out all the sparkling, colorful tones.

Michigan Savings Up $11,000,000

The old fashioned savings account, earning interest at 3 per cent, is staging a comeback in Michigan this year. With the price of nearly everything that money buys down from 15 to 25 per cent from a year ago, cash in the bank is a steadily increasing premium over other forms of investment, and the public, quick to see an advantage, has been storing up a large volume of savings that sooner or later will be converted into purchases. In fact, several million dollars are to be distributed by Michigan banks this month to Christmas savings club members.

A total of $16,810,000 will be distributed by banks during the next two weeks to some 300,000 members of Michigan Christmas clubs, according to a statement issued this week by Christmas Club, a division of the National Bankers' corporation, New York City. Of this amount, approximately $5,500,000 will be distributed to some 113,000 depositors in Detroit.

Figures compiled by Christmas Club indicate, that around $5,400,000 or 38 per cent of the Michigan total will go directly into retail trade to buy Yule gifts and that probably another 30 per cent will be put away in savings accounts or investments. Fixed payments falling due at the end of the year will take part of the total in about the following proportions: Year end commitments, 13 per cent; insurance premiums, 6 per cent; mortgage and mortgage interest, 5 1/2 per cent; taxes, 4 1/2 per cent. It is estimated that around 3 per cent of all Christmas savings go for education, charity or travel.

The national average of Christmas Club savings this year is $54.60 while the same figure stood at $59.50 in 1929. The largest average member accumulation this year was reported by the Fidelity Trust Company, Detroit. This average stands at $106. Among the institutions reporting distribution of $1,000,000 or more are the Detroit banks in the Guardian Detroit Union Group, Inc., and the Commonwealth Commercial State Bank, Detroit.

Throughout the nation more than 8,000 banks will distribute approximately $632,000,000 to about 11,000,000 Christmas Club members. The national club has a larger membership this year but the total of savings is lower due to unemployment and reduced wages.

The increase in Michigan savings, in the face of wholesale unemployment and sharply lower wages, is revealed by the bulletin of the state banking department embracing statements of 572 state and eight industrial banks filed in answer to the quarterly call of Sept. 24. The bulletin shows state banks, with the imposing total of $773,372,000 in savings deposits, an advance of nearly $11,000,000 in nine months. Most of this increase is represented by deposits of Christmas and thrift clubs, which are only slightly lower than a year ago, and will largely be spent over the holidays.

It is true that aggregate savings of the 580 banks reveals a shrinkage of some $53,000,000 since September 1929, but this decline is remarkably small when the great contraction in the volume of competing types of investment such as common stocks and real estate is considered. For instance, the number of shares traded on the Detroit Stock Exchange in 10 months of 1930 was 4,504,000, a decrease of 72.2 per cent from 1929.

An important factor in the recent growth of savings is the increase which has occurred in the value of the dollar. This increase is equivalent to what the owner of a rising stock would call his profit. The profit gained by a depositor with money in a savings account since the beginning of the year is easily tabulated. The table maintained by Standard Statistics, Inc., shows that 90 stocks which a year ago had an average of 168.2 are now down to 126.2. This is a drop of 25 per cent or, in other words, an increase of 25 cents in dollar value. Similarly, the McGill table of all commodity prices shows a drop from an average of $7.5 at the beginning of November. This is a drop of 16 per cent in 10 months, or to put it the other way, an increase of 16 cents in dollar value.

The level of savings in Michigan state banks has undergone an enormous expansion within as short a period as the past eight years and this steady increase was interrupted by the prevailing depression in a relatively mild way. Bulletins of the state banking department reveal a net gain in the savings accounts of all state banks of $234,444,000 since 1922. The level rose from $538,938,000 in September, 1922 to $826,597,000 in September, 1929, the all-time peak.

Then the recession came. Between September, 1929 and January, 1930, savings in state banks fell to $762,405,000. Most of this money probably was withdrawn as a result, either directly or indirectly, of the stock market crash, but, as savings always are at their highest at the end of the third quarter, the recession is partly explained by Christmas buying. Deposits of members of Christmas and thrift clubs in state banks in September, 1929, amounted to $9,806,035.

From the beginning of the year, savings in state banks have been on the rise. In April, the total had gone to $768,277,000. The July statements revealed a very slight falling off, which was followed by a gain of around $5,657,000 in the third quarter. As the business recovery takes definite shape, rate of growth which it has obtained since it is likely that savings will continue the war.

Third quarter bulletins of the state banking department show the increase in savings in state banks as follows: 1922, $538,938,000; 1923, $622,601,000; 1924, $677,673,000; 1925, $697,767,000; 1926, $750,948,000; 1927, $787,270,000; 1928, $817,018,000; 1929, $826,597,000; 1930, $773,372,000.

During this period the number of state banks increased from 566 state and two industrial banks in 1922, to 539 state and five industrial banks in 1927. The total of state banks then dropped off, but the industrial banks multiplied. There were 576 state and 10 industrial banks in 1929, and this number dropped to 572 state banks and eight industrials in 1930.

The average of savings held by 572 state and eight industrial banks in September, 1930, was over $1,333,000.

Declining Birth Rate

Census figures of 40 years ago showed a birth rate for the nation of about 3 per cent. Twenty years ago the rate declined to about 2 per cent. Indications are the recent census will show the nation's birth rate to be about 1 per cent. Students of social conditions expect the rate to be even lower when the next census is taken and predictions have been made that population would be about stationary in this country after 1950.

Report of a declining birth rate always starts a torrent of comment, reflecting various views and pointing to various conclusions. That was the case recently when Health Commissioner Wynne of New York referred to the birth rate in this country as "startling." Some profess to see in the picture the decline and fall, ultimately, of the American nation. The gloomy speakers met by others and with the most cheery statements. Commenting on the discussion the New York Herald-Tribune said: "The old superstition, which grew up in days of almost continual war, that the nation which produced the most children was the strongest and most civilized, has gone the way of other primitive superstitions. The decline in the urban birth rate is not a sign of lowered vitality, but of rising economic standards. It is a symptom of health in the community."

But a continuous decline in the birth rate brings to attention some matters of practical business. If population is not growing, market needs will not be increased, not so many shoes sold, there may be a slackening in the demand for food and the miscellaneous supplies required in the home. These factors can be affected by the creation of a demand for better things of life. It may be possible to buy more generously for each member of the family, and increased buying for that reason will mean increased trade for the business houses of the country. Even at the worst, business houses would find the task easy to make adjustment to the needs of the day. There still will be buyers in the stores and purchasers at the market houses. If population may become practically stationary around 150,000,000 that number would make many and repeated calls on the men of business to supply their needs and provide them with such luxuries as the conditions of purse would permit.

In any study of population increase in the future there must be taken into consideration the fact that birth control never was so vigorously proposed, urged and defended as it is today.

Throughout Michigan we have been hearing a good deal about the efforts of people of good intent to arrange for re-employment or partial employment of the people who are out of work as the result of entire or partial cessation of production in certain lines of industry. As these efforts have been made by many who are not familiar with industry, some of them have been misdirected. As a result the actual good that has been done has been limited largely to getting casual occupation to those who are unemployed, to eke out their resources, and so far as this phase of the work has been successful, it has been a distinct good. But employment is not to be resumed, nor employees put on a good basis by casual conditions of day's work. That is only a palliative. The great relief must come from actual projects and industrial production.

Of the projects those involving public work seem to be the most promising. Governor Green's administration has determined that there is much highway work which can be carried on during the winter. Many of the highway projects are close to the industrial centers, where most men are out of work, and the state administrative board seems to be applying a fair share of its resources to getting these into motion. A good deal of money has been provided by the approval of bond issues at the recent election for the carrying out of public improvements of various characters. For the making of these plans must be made and bids received and contracts let. So that people who expect industrial relief from these sources must be satisfied that much of this work will not be available until the beginning of the year. Even in this class of work there is not a wholesale demand for labor. As President Nagel of the Detroit City Council, showed the other day, there is not room for many men to work on great sewer jobs, and the relief in proportion to the expenditure, is not substantial.

The relief of unemployment must come in its greatest volume from the resumption of manufacturing. People are beginning to buy again and that will induce manufacturing. Meantime we must all live in hope and help out by public, community or private funds, those who are out of work and in distress.

Civil War Echoes Heard in Old Letters of William Parkinson

A forgotten tragedy of the early part of the Civil War is recalled by a series of letters written by Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Parkinson, the parents of George Parkinson, when the former was a soldier in the Union army during the first year of the war.

The letters are in the possession of Mrs. Ethel Parkinson Siraganian. W. T. Parkinson had enlisted during the enthusiasm of the opening of the war, although he possessed a wife and six children. While he was honored for gallantry during the few months that preceded his death, the letters are full of homesickness and longing for a return to his family, who were suffering from want as the conflict dragged on. Efforts were made to secure his release, but before they were successful, he died of tuberculosis during the first winter of the war. His wife died the same winter, leaving the six children orphaned.

Two boys, George and Rob Parkinson, aged 9 and 8, came to Buchanan shortly after the war with a number of orphans who were placed with families here. Rob Parkinson was reared in the French home, while George Parkinson was placed in the family of Hod Strong. Both of the boys will be remembered well by older residents.

The letters contain many fragmentary but vivid pictures of the life on the front. A few selections follow:

Edwards Ferry, Md. I wrote to you on my arrival in camp on the evening of the 24th. We had orders to march and moved on toward Conrad's Ferry, 18 miles. The scene which presented itself to us on our arrival was terrible in the extreme. The dead were lying all about, and others were dying by the hundred. May God grant I shall never see such a sight again. When our forces crossed the river in the morning to bury the dead, they allowed us only six hours. The villains had torn the clothes off the dead soldiers and left the wounded lying in the mud in the rain.

We have had only two hours sleep during the past three days and nothing to eat but hard crackers. If we had arrived at Conrad's Ferry two hours before we would have been in the midst of the battle.

Later: Mouth of the Monocacy River, Maryland. I have just waked from sleep. I was on picket guard last night and did not get off until seven on this morning. Picket guard is different from regular guard. You are sent several miles from the camp to watch the movements of the enemy. I was stationed three miles from the camp on the border of the Potomac River. It was a beautiful moonlight night and the scenery on the noble river was beautiful. None of the enemy attempted to cross the river. I could see the soldiers of the enemy now and then watching ours. They did not attempt to fire on us; they would have paid dearly if they had. The slaves around here are our only friends. They bring us milk each morning, but they know how to charge for it. On my return from guard this morning I came across two chickens that I cooked for my breakfast.

Later: My health is very good, but I am laid up with a sore foot the past three days. It is a swelling which originated from cold and long marches. I expected when I wrote you last that we would not be here more than a day or two, but on account of the retreat of the southern army we were allowed to remain. Everything is very quiet here along the Potomac and I begin to think that the enemy realize that it is no use for them to continue the war. I hope it may be so. (Written Sept. 14, 1861)

Later: I wrote to you on the 18th from Charlestown. At three o'clock Monday afternoon we marched toward this place. The enemy retreated as we advanced. The town is in the possession of our troops and under martial law.

This place is more deserted by the inhabitants than Charlestown. The houses that are not occupied are all ruined. It is sad to look at them. There is an Odd Fellow Hall here that shared the fate of the rest. I cried when I entered its doors and looked on our sacred emblems broken and scattered on the floor. But such is the result of war. Our campground here is Bolivar Heights on the top of a high mountain overlooking the town and the Potomac River. The scenery is beautiful in the extreme. It far exceeds the Hudson River. My bed last night was the hardest I have ever slept on. It was on the brow of the mountain, studded with rock. I only slept a few hours and then my rest was troubled with thoughts. I woke with the earliest birds and my first thought was of home.

I suppose that you have been uneasy about me after hearing of the bloody battle of Manassas Gap. Thank God, our regiment was not engaged in it. It was an awful fight. But it is well that it occurred for that battle sealed the fate of Virginia. Her best policy now would be to lay down her arms. By so doing she would avoid spilling the blood of thousands of her sons.

I think we will not remain here in Maryland. I am under the impression that our next march will be toward Washington, where we will get new muskets and proceed toward Richmond. After I get to Washington you may look for my return sooner than you expected. Oh, how glad I will be to see you again. Shall I let you know when I am coming or shall I endeavor to take you by surprise?

Old Timer's Corner

Some of the things I "remember" about Thanksgiving, in the days when I was a kid, are confusing, now and don't seem to "fit" with the present day affairs.

Long faces on the church goers, seemed to prevail, on this day of thanksgiving. Seems to me that I never saw a smile on the face of any one, except "us kids" and we didn't laugh out loud, for fear of being called on the carpet for it. Slowly walking the usual paths to their usual church and "listen to the usual talk on the usual subject, turning their ways homeward in the usual way, after the service was ended. But when the church service was over, and the "duties" of their belief had been rightly attended to, they regained their smiles and regular attitudes toward things in general. Today, we find every one, nearly, with the modernized way of looking on things and they smile more and I believe, they live more happily, than we used to in the old days. It may be that the modern man and woman is broader, made so by the advances in science and modes of living, and that they don't believe it is essential to dress in "sack cloth and ashes" to denote a right living individual. That has always been my idea of religious rights, myself, and I was very much criticized in my younger days for having that smiling view of things in general. I still see and hear a lot of things that are worth smiling at, as I pass along, but mostly, now, I smile to see the youth of today "putting things over" of an earlier "perfect job" of "date" ourselves by our ancient ideas, they tell me. O very well, I don't pretend to be "chicken" any more, at least not a "springer."

Thanksgiving time, is always a happy time for me, and I hope it is for most people. It is a time to forget the worries and the things that are not as you would like to have them, and to dwell upon the things that you enjoy that are allotted to you and to me, for our good. There are so many things that we can thank some one, Nature, God or whomsoever you conclude is the one that gives or allows you to have these pleasures and blessings.

A good dinner, some friends to talk with and plenty of time for meditation, with a sprinkling of fun and laughter, and you have served the purpose of the day as planned, so far as I can see. Of course it is not possible for us to revert back to the original method of observance as done by our forefathers, for they were under a different time and with different environment. We have them to thank, I believe, for mostly everything that has come to us, since their time.

 Mich. Bldg. Loan
 Dividends in 1930
 to Date $8,300,000

Dividends being paid by building and loan associations of Michigan during the calendar year 1930 will total slightly more than 8,350,000, according to the figures on resources reported to the Michigan Building and Loan League. A large share of this amount will be mailed out to members during December.

Resources of the state's 87 associations are slightly beyond $187,000,000, and dividends are computed from this amount. Associations are paying out the largest amount this year that they have ever reported, the resources being about $7,000,000 in excess of those of a year ago.

Give Mother an Extension Telephone for Christmas

A most welcome, and inexpensive, Christmas gift which Mother surely will appreciate, is one or more conveniently located extension telephones.

In the kitchen, for example, a telephone will enable Mother to place and answer calls without having to leave her work.

A telephone upstairs will save running down to answer calls. Mother will appreciate that convenience. (So will Dad on cold nights!) And, in emergencies, such as fire, sickness or accident, an upstairs telephone is especially useful.

Extension telephones cost only 2 cents a day. To place an order, call or visit the Telephone Business Office.

You Can't Drive a Post With One "Wham"

Colgate and Palmolive are quoted as saying that they spend five cents of their advertising dollar to develop new customers, and ninety-five cents to hold their present customers. Those of you who think of advertising only in terms of new business, should ponder a bit over these figures.

Don't worry if one advertisement fails to fill your store with new customers—it probably has done its work in some other way.

You can't drive a post into the ground with one "wham" and the same is true of your advertising message.

Date Set for Musical Comedy

"A Wild Rose" Ralph Robinson's musical play, will be given on the evening of December 4, it was announced last Monday by Superintendent Stark. The play is given under the supervision of Mr. Robinson and has the support of the music department.

The scene is laid in a garden spot and lacks none of the beauty of a real garden. Those who have leading parts are Charlotte Arnold Carl Linsenmier and Jim Blisenchart. These characters are supported by many singing and dancing choruses.

From the opening of the curtain to the grand finale, it will be one grand panorama of beautiful color. There will be no regular admission charged but a silver collection will be taken.

Five Qualify in Platform Contest The eliminations for the extemporaneous speeches were held on Thursday and Monday nights after school. Out of this list five were chosen to compete in the next eliminations which will not take place until late in December or the first of January.

Those who will be entered then will be: Jane Habicht, Thomas Quirk, Richard Brodrick, Sheldon Ryan and Roger Thompson.

Thrift Club Advises Raise in Banking Per Cent The Thrift Club met in Miss Shrivers' room Thursday night after school. The purpose of the meeting was to try to get the cashiers to raise their class banking per cent.

The school banking has increased about thirty per cent since the Thrift Club was formed a few weeks ago. The club decided to have a large per cent thermometer made. Each teacher of the morning classes will have their name printed on this thermometer and the per cent banked, opposite the name.

Mr. Crawford, superintendent of Niles high school, has said that the printing class would do the printing for this school. The thermometer is to be placed in a prominent place in the hall.

SCHOOL SLANTS

Open school, Tuesday night! What a treat for the teachers! We are all looking forward with eager anticipation to the four days vacation allotted us. Boy, think of being able to stay in bed till you are good and ready to get up! Ah! That's the life.

Miss Roehenbach is back with us again. Rather tottery and quite pale, but nevertheless she's back. Now for the gosh sakes, Miss Roehenbach, stay with us.

We were astounded at the great number of people who attended the Buchanan-St. Joseph game last Saturday at St. Joseph. There were about seventy-five from St. Joseph (band included) while from Buchanan there were at least seven. Of course, this is only an estimated count, but it's about correct—more or less!

English 12 has just finished writing sonnets! Leo Boyce's was voted upon as being the best. Now, Leo!

Ralph Zerbe is Made Assistant in Physics Lab During the past few weeks the physics class under Mr. Moore has gained some very peculiar results. Due to failure to gain correct results, Mr. Moore has named Ralph Zerbe as assistant in physics laboratory.

The eighth grade, also under the instruction of Mr. Moore, is studying astronomy, hoping it may come a handy some night. In the absence of Mrs. Pennell, Mrs. Walton has taken over the duties of Mrs. Walton.

4th Grade Makes Miniature Garden Has anyone been in Miss Olson's room lately? Take a walk in there some time. She has the most complete miniature rock garden you'd ever see.

Fuller's fourth grade made the garden. It is three feet long and 20 inches wide. In the center near the front is a cement bowl. This contains gold fish, sand, several colored shells, snails and moss. Surrounding this is a profusion of rock, real grass, (which includes the growing) toker plants, cat tails, spruce trees, cranberry bushes, and some moss. The things are very cleverly arranged.

Post Graduates Plan Basket Ball Quintet

The post graduates of Buchanan high school are making plans to have a basketball team which will play thru teams of Buchanan and neighboring cities. Games are being scheduled with different teams. Although the players were to consist of members of the present post graduate class, members of different classes that have graduated may participate in the games.

More games are being sought with other teams in the vicinity of Buchanan. Any teams desiring games should call Manager Harold Boyce phone 325.

7th, 8th Grades Stage Furious Spelling Contest Friday's spelling lesson determined the solution of a heated contest between the seventh and the eighth grades. The contest has grades having the same words to spell.

The eighth grade division 1 finished the contest with a score of 93, the seventh grade division 1, with 98 1-3. The eighth grade division 2 claimed a score of 98 1-4 and the seventh grade division 2, of 94 4-5.

Niles Speaker Fails to Arrive at Friday Assembly The talk on electricity and water to be given by Dr. R. M. Rutz of Niles for the Friday morning assembly was somewhat of a flop as far as knowledge of electricity and water was concerned. Probably the biggest reason for this was because the speaker, Dr. R. M. Rutz, did not arrive until the program was about over.

In the absence of Dr. Rutz, the program was substituted by a pep meeting led by cheer leader, Kathleen Fortz. After that Miss Olson led communally singing with Marvin Gress at the piano.

ORIGINAL SONNET BY LEO BOYCE On a Man's Thoughts I remember when I was a boy, of ten, The old front porch with rotten wooden steps, The old stone well with water in its depths, The warbling song of little Jenny.

The chickens clucking in their high wire pen, The piles of 'tatoes and apples which were then kept On the floor of the room next where I slept, Which dad has often called, to us, his den.

But now as I sit back and take a look, It seems to me of all the things I've done, Aid want to take some paper and a quill, And write me out some pages in a book.

That tells of all the hardships, trials and fun Of my young life; to some it may seem trifles, (This was chosen as the best sonnet written in the 12th grade English class.

Banking Per Cent Increased by the New Thrift Club

The banking in the Buchanan schools, while it is not quite prosperous as we would have it, has been steadily increasing. In the grades there is an average of 62 per cent of the pupils banking. In the high school there is an average of 58 per cent at the present time, which is a decided increase over the meager 39 per cent of the beginning of the school year.

Three Rivers Man Okehs Old Timer on Drunken Drivers Some thoughts produced by reading the Old Timer's Corner of November 6th, 1930.

The suggestion for punishment of the drunken drivers sounds very good, but would advise its use also for wife-beaters and many of the other small crimes which have made their appearance in late years, but for that we are called barbarians. The increase of lawlessness is sure alarming and needs much sincere thought to curb it.

But where should the curbing begin? Many condemn our officers for not doing their duty, but I think that the proper place is in the private home. Too many are saying "everybody is doing it" and therefore take license to do it also. To me that is just lacking backbone to stand for what we know is right. If it is a wrong it makes no difference by how many it is committed, but it will never make it right and only the many more will have it to undo somewhere sometime.

As to the 18th amendment, and the so-called mess that it has got us into, as to the bootleggers, nine-tenths of them are people that have been taught from their mother's knee, that for a price they can have any sin or crime forgiven them by a man here and now, and very few of them feel any necessity of becoming a citizen of our country. But, on the other hand, if our so-called good citizen was what he should be and not willing to pay his money and take a big chance on his wares, there would be no bootleggers as they

Parent Love and Science Clash Over Question of Mixed Babies

When hospitals put a "B" tag on a "W" baby—a recently happened in Chicago—thereby mixing the offspring of two families, an audience depended upon to identify accurately which child belongs to whom and thereby securely reestablish the blood integrity of the two families?

And if science does not or cannot—what is the effect of such failure on the future of the children? And of the parents?

George A. Dowsy, famous anthropologist and psychologist, author of "Why We Behave Like Human Beings," presents a striking study of these questions in the November issue of the Cosmopolitan magazine. Parents generally may be expected to protest his conclusions. For parents are moved by heart interest and human interest and considerations of family pride, while Dowsy's analysis is scientifically unfeeling and impersonal.

Do you think your baby is a "different" from other babies? Do you expect its development to be shaped by "inherited qualities"? If you doubt that the child in your home was the child you had in hospital, what difference would it make in your love for it, your care for it or your expectations for its future?

His discussion of these questions is likely to bring a storm of protest and objection swirling about Dowsy's ears. The mix-up of two babies in Chicago affected only two families, but it stirred the hearts of parents in every factory and office executives.

Lightning specialists. As will be noted from the foregoing positions, a wide range of activities is presented. The various positions also indicate the different types of training necessary to fill them. The field is not as limited as in the past; new openings and new outgrowths of the business have broadened the scope of possible employment. A thorough study of the contemplated vocation should be undertaken before commitment to any special line of endeavor is made. Undoubtedly many facts can be ascertained from local authorities and sources regarding various positions. One should look to the working conditions and the possibilities of promotion to higher positions.

Rev. Edgar Schade of the college at Indianapolis, delivered a sermon at Olive Branch chapel last Sunday and was well liked. He will preach again next Sunday. Come and hear him.

AERONAUTICS OFFER GREAT OPPORTUNITY

Different positions in field require different training. The past few years have witnessed a gratifying growth and development in commercial aeronautics, and with it have come opportunities for those persons properly trained and qualified. From a stage of experimentation and uncertainty, flying has emerged as a new and promising industry. The fact that the aircraft industry is in a stage of development makes entrance into this field very attractive.

However, just as in other forms of business and in other vocations and professions, the same degree of care must be exercised in choosing the individual most fitting to the individual inclinations, abilities, and the qualifications. The prospects of advancement and the wage scale involved should be carefully studied before a definite decision is made.

The different positions in the field of aeronautics demand various types of training and experience, and education in certain basic lines will often lead to other higher positions if the individual possesses the qualifications and the training. The desirability of careful and adequate preparation can not be overemphasized.

Some typical important positions in the aeronautical industry are as follows:

- Flying Operations
- Pilot—Schedule mail, passenger and express, aerial taxi service, sightseeing and miscellaneous operations.
- Governmental pilot—Inspector.
- Aircraft salesman—Demonstrator.
- Instructor—Training school.

- Research engineer.
- Airways positions—Mechanics, airways keepers, weather observers, traffic supervisors and radio operators.
- Airport ground man, helper.
- Welder, woodworker, metal smith, etc.
- Instrument repair man.
- Business Phase

Christian Science Churches "Soul and Body" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science churches Sunday, Nov. 23.

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following taken from the Bible: "Therefore we are always confident, knowing that, whilst we are at home in the body, we are absent from the Lord." (II Cor. 5:6).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Become conscious for a single moment that Life and intelligence are purely spiritual, neither in nor of matter, and the body will then utter no complaints. If suffering from a belief in sickness, you will find yourself suddenly well." (p. 14).
