Fishing for All

Golf has been "brought home to men's hearts and bosoms," as Lord Bacon would say, and now the same thing is being done for fishing. The latest innovation, a trout pool in which anyone may fish at so much per fish, has been opened in Los Angeles—and by a curious coincidence, on the spot where the miniature golf craze is said to have started.

It works very simply. Fishing is made easy. You pay for the use of equipment, rod, line and bait, or bring your own. You pay for the fish as you catch them, at a moderate rate. And you can cook them yourself right on the spot. The company starting this sport says it has unlimited trout to stock these pools, ranging from half a pound to a pound and a half.

So everybody, having become a golfer, may become a fisherman just as easily, if this idea spreads. It should be popular, for what sport is more primitive and general than fishing? The only question is, will the fish hold out? It may become necessary to train them especially for such use, lest they bite too easily.

Einstein's Opportunity

Some of the things the New York interviewers said of the great Albert Einstein awaken considerable sympathy in the hearts of many individuals who never hope to understand any of his mathematical theories. The man has humor. He has kind eyes. He is a little shy and is obviously abashed at the first being made over him by Americans. It is all quite honest. The man's human and likable. Perhaps one of these days he'll dust off some good fairy tales that we can all understand and enjoy. The author of "Alice in Wonderland" was a mathematician, not of the Einstein type by any means, yet a mathematician just the same.

Round and Round

It is said that woman's work is never done. She cooks, washes dishes and sweeps and the next day she sweeps, washes dishes and cooks. And so it goes, day after day, year after year, time without end. It becomes mighty irksome to travel round and round for an entire lifetime, and get nowhere.

It seems that there ought to be a break somewhere in the rim of circle that hedges us in—that there ought to be a resting place where tired brains and weary muscles might find a soothing respite from the constant grind. It seems that there ought to be stations now and then where one might stop and refresh the soul and body, and gather fresh life and new ambition. But there are no such places.

The journey of life stops only when the end is reached. It is only when the stream runs dry that the mill ceases to turn. We are climbing the treadmill whether we would or not, and we turn it over and over again until our life lasts is done.

Man's work is just as irksome as is that of woman. He also goes round and round and gets nowhere. Man does the same thing over and over, just as the dog, from the day of creation, has turned round and round before lying down. And man has always traveled thus in circles, whether in the things that bring health and happiness, or in the things that bring misery and death.

Cain killed his brother Abel, and from the day of that first human tragedy, men have been killing each other without cause or provocation. Men have been getting drunk ever since wine was first trodden from the grape, and by so doing have entailed immeasurable misery upon the human race.

History's first picture of man shows him to be a criminal, and all the way from that misty morn until the present noonday of the race, men have been slashing at each other's throats. The circle has been growing larger, but men have been going round and round and have been doing over and over the things that have cursed the world. We track men all through history by their bloody footprints, and by the war and waste that strew the way.

No matter how tired we get, we cannot stop. Reason cannot explain why the world is so full of crime and misery and wretchedness. It does not seem fair to Providence to say that this condition is in accordance with the laws of nature and cannot be changed. And yet it has not been changed.

Adam is said to have made the first crooked path as he turned away from Eden's gates, and man has ever followed after. It has been their choice, however, and not their destiny. While men may be destined to travel round and round, yet they may choose the circle in which they shall travel. Every man chooses his own circle, and he may make this circle as broad and as bright as he chooses.

Every man may make his circle a belt of sunshine and every round he may make a journey of joy and happiness.

Dickens's wonderful series of fictions, including of course, the short stories, is populated by nearly two thousand imaginary personages.

To stimulate aviation in China, it is reported, the government will admit all imported airplane parts and accessories free of duty for the next five years.

What About Real Estate?

There is much discussion as to the future of stocks. There is less talk about the future of real estate, but more people are interested in it. Here are some conclusions arrived at by realty experts from all over the country, at a recent conference.

There is going to be a tremendous amount of home building throughout America in the next few years.

This building will be the last word in modernity, going far beyond the fine modern homes built in the last few years.

The older homes will be largely modernized in equipment and appearance, and so hold their own with the new construction.

Bidders will trade-mark their work, putting their names on fine homes as artists do on pictures.

Residence neighborhoods will be better safeguarded than ever before by long-term restrictions and zoning systems.

Homes will be sold "on the benefits and satisfactions of home ownership, not with the idea of profit." That is to say, buying homes will be far less speculative than it has been.

All this is good news. It means good business and good citizenship, family stability and contentment.

Better Movies

The movie industry reports that 1930 has been a good year so far as technical progress is concerned. At first the novelty of the sound picture was enough to carry it. When the novelty wore off, producers got busy improving the pictures in various ways, placing less emphasis on dialogue and more on action, retaining the best new features of the talkie and restoring some of the best features of the old silent pictures.

When talkies came in, the outdoor picture seemed barred because of the imperfections of sound recording apparatus and the necessity for doing the work in a sound-proof studio. But that equipment now has the mobility of the camera. More and more pictures are being made outdoors with consequent enlargement of scene.

Reproduction of the human voice is improving steadily. More pictures are to be made especially for children. There are other progressive plans.

All this is fine. The movie fills an important place in the field of public entertainment not only in the large cities but in remote sections where productions from the legitimate stage cannot go. It is an art in itself worthy of further artistic development.

National Boasting

We wish Mussolini hadn't made that recent speech in which he blamed Italy's financial ills on the 1929 market crash in the United States. We agree with him that the conditions in one country influence conditions in other countries, that depression is pretty much world-wide and recovery dependent on world-wide conditions. It is the rhetorical tone of his address that troubles us. "For us poor provincials of old Europe," he said, "the explosion was a great surprise. We remained shaken and confounded like the world at announcement of the death of Napoleon. We had been given to understand that the United States was a country of prosperity, indefinite and absolute—without eclipse, without decadence; all were rich.

"Everybody knows by memory the things which are now commonplace—there was an automobile for every eight inhabitants, a radio for every four, a telephone for every three."

He might have made that enumeration longer. We, too, almost know it from memory—how many washing machines, how many schools, and so on. It has made many of us a little nervous and embarrassed to hear statesmen, tourists, 100-per-centers and others, recite the list for our own and Europe's edification. The line between listing our assets and boasting of them has not been too clear. Mussolini's recital makes it sound more boastful than polite. Modesty is becoming to a nation as to an individual.

Dividing Up Jobs

The most notable innovation of this dull business period has been the division of industrial jobs, by the staggering process, to pass around employment and keep as many workers as possible on the pay roll. In former depression spells there have been systematic money contributions, but not systematic contributions of jobs. The tendency has always been for the fellow who had a job to hang onto it.

Sometimes this staggering arrangement has been adopted at the suggestion of employers. But often it has been the volunteer procedure of the employees themselves. And whatever its origin, the employees have agreed to it.

A conspicuous case of such job-sharing is the railroad brotherhoods. They are not so hard hit now as the workers in some other industries, but bigger cars and trains, more powerful locomotives and diminished traffic have made larger numbers of them superfluous. They are standing together as "brotherhoods" should, sharing alike pay and deprivation.

This gain in human kindness and fellowship is something that will not be lost when times turn better again. Our industrialism is losing its harshness. Employers and employees alike are not mere machines or mere raw material fed into machines. Men are still men, and machines are not their masters but their servants.

The Columbia river region may have been the most thickly settled Indian center in this country in early times.

The Opera of Malta, Malta, which was built in 1731, and has remained unchanged since that time, is to become a talkie theatre.

The Old Timer's Corner

PLACE CHICAGO-BUCHANAN MEET IS ANNOUNCED

GUESTS FROM THIS CITY ARE ASKED TO SEND RESERVATIONS TO CLAUDE ROE

The Chicago Buchanan Society will hold its 26th annual dinner at the Woman's University Club, 135 N. Wabash Avenue, 17th floor on the evening of Friday, Feb. 6th at 6:30 p. m. Every one is invited. Come over and meet your old friends. We will all be glad to see you.

You will note that we call this a "dinner" as being different from a "banquet." Banquets cost more and are too formal. This is a dinner and costs only $1.00 per plate, and you get plenty to eat and do not have to dress up for it either. We had our meeting at this place last year, and I can vouch for the quality of the food and it is sort of home-like, and you sort of feel that you belong as soon as you get there.

Get up a party of your friends and drive over to New Canaan, or Mt. S. in City and come into town on the electric. It takes less time and the service is good. We meet early and you can leave your car whenever you want to, but you will want to stay as long as the rest of them do. I am sure. Drop a "me to" "Old Timer" and tell us how many in your party so we will have plenty of fried chickens for all. We must have all orders in not later than Feb. 3rd (which by the way is the next day after "wood chuck day." Address your letter to Dr. Claude B. Roe, Secy., 1522 Summerdale Ave., Chicago, Ill., and don't try to "put on the dog" for we are just plain old-fashioned friends from home and you will have a good time. Come on and meet and eat.

Yours truly

OLD TIMER.

P. S. By the way, I am told that all the eggs used by this particular club where we are holding this meeting are from Harry Brown's Poultry Farm in Buchanan. That helps some.

Last week when I write to the corner I told you all about the dinner we are having here on Feb. 6, but I didn't know where it was to be held. Now I know and here is the time, the place and all: It is the 26th annual dinner of the Chicago-Buchanan Society, and is to be held at 6:30 p. m., Friday, Feb. 6, 1931, at 135 N. Wabash Ave., on the 17th floor in the Woman's University Club. Mrs. Raymond, our president, belongs to this club, and we are fortunate in being able to utilize their facilities for this affair. It is a regular place and home like with plenty of room and the men can smoke (and the ladies too, if they are so inclined), but you don't have to dress up for it. Just "be yourself" and come along. There will be no long-winded speakers and only a little music. The real thing we want for us to visit with our friends, and eat a good chicken dinner. It costs only $1.00 "per each" and you get all you want to eat, too. I hope that a lot of the old friends who read "the corner" will come over. If you don't remember where I told you to send your reservations to, in last week's "corner" I will tell it again. Send them to Dr. C. B. Roe, Secy., 1522 Summerdale Ave., Chicago, and get them in by Feb. 3, so we can plan on "how many" to feed. Now that's enough for that. And I hope you come.

I was glad to see Mrs. Winch "bursting" into print again this last week. More power to you, Mrs. W. and I don't see why you can't write a longer letter to us now, and then. We are also pleased to see John Holmes putting in his story and then, and no one reads his stuff with more interest than myself. I am sure. Come again and often.

OLD TIMER

John Holmes Tells Tales on Ettie Montague

Editor Record. I am glad to see once more the name of our friend Esther Winch in the "Corner." I do not recollect ever having had the pleasure of directly meeting Esther, but in the winter of 1863-4 I attended school in fractional district No. 20, Buchanan and Bertrand, and had for a teacher, Jonathan W. Fancher, and he always had a lot to tell of the antics of "Ettie" Montague and they were plenty. With his idea that her birthday will be the eighty-eighth, and a report all the way from Texas of her sickness, the outlook did not appear to be enticing.

Ettie Montague played in the crowd that included Dick, Fred and Florence, Dr. Mont, John, Sarah, Clara and Nancy Mansfield, Carr, Norris, Frank and Ella Merrill, Frank, Groden, Scott, Whitman, Nile and Tompkins, Ashley, Carl Hise and Byrnes, Tamerson, Glover, Merrill, Harvey, Roe, Mary Day, Hattie Baker, Howard, Hulda and Nancy Smith and a sister who married Zeke Borden, Thomas and Rebecca Fulton and sister, Mrs. Cox, Albert and Alice Weaver, Alma Collins and others.

In her last "Corner," she tells of the opening seventy-one years ago, but that hardly reaches back to the time when the climax of Buchanan was loading a ton and half of two tons of active humanity onto a bobbed at the top of Niles' hills opposite the Capt. William Peirrott home and zipping down thru Front Street and half way up Front street hill, nearly to the Dr. Harrison home, then from the top of Front street hill reverse the trip. J. G. HOLMES.

BUCHANAN 10 YEARS AGO From Record of Jan. 25, 1920 G. S. Easton, Editor

Henry Boyce has just received another carload of Buicks. Harold Jenks has recently purchased the Dick property on Days Avenue, and will move there in the near future.

While on his way down town Tuesday night, W. L. Willard slipped and fell, spraining the ligaments in one of his ankles.

Mrs. H. R. Adams entertained a company of ladies at bridge yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Jane Dickinson returned to her work yesterday after a week's absence on account of sickness.

The January meeting of the Bethany class will be held in the basement of the church this evening.

The Royal Neighbors will install their new officers at their regular meeting Friday night. A special committee has been appointed to look after the entertainment end of it and all members are expected to be present.

Ira Snyder of Lee, Mont., who has been visiting his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Hathaway, for several weeks, left Monday on a business trip to Texas.

M. L. Jenks left Monday afternoon on his second trip to Chicago to look up a car of excess for the Clark Company. Mr. Jenks declares it is his intention to ride the car home this time, to make sure he will not loose track of it.

Lester Rynearson went to Chicago yesterday to remain indefinitely.

Richard Fears and George Adams spent Sunday in South Bend. Mrs. Jack Bishop left Monday for Gulfport, Miss., for a several weeks visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Lyons and Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Carroll attended a play at the Oliver Saturday night.

Clark Players have scheduled their next play for the last three nights in January, 1920. The cast of characters includes members of the company with a few new additions. The play chosen for presentation, "Officer 666," is said to be a melo-dramatic farce with some unusual features.

Plans are now completed for the proposed local expansions of the quill shops, the axle shops and the Tractor and shop of the Clark Equipment Company. Plans have also been made for an enlargement of the foundry and wheel shops and new machinery has been ordered for the drill department. The Clark officers lay stress on the fact that the extent of this local expansion rests almost wholly with local people. It is a question of houses. Up to this time Buchanan has not kept pace with the Clark growth. There are not enough houses to take care of their employees. The company is now bringing in a daily average of 150 men from adjacent towns. These men want to live here. We have no houses for them. It's up to us to get busy and build houses.

Dr. Bailey and W. N. Brodick enjoyed a game of "sleigh upset" on Monday evening. Mr. Brodick had accepted a lift from his home down town in Dr. Bailey's sleigh. The horse was a two-horse one, and just at Bishop's corner the tongue broke and came down. The horses took fright and started to run. At the Presbyterian church they crashed into a tree, threw both men from the sleigh, broke it and then ran on to Dr. Bailey's

News of Buchanan Schools

News of Student Life Gathered and Written by Upper Classmen of Buchanan High School

SHOULD WATCH REPORT CARDS SAY TEACHERS

BUCHANAN HAS AVERAGE NUMBER FAILING PUPILS

MATHEMATICS HAS LARGEST NUMBER FATALITIES; LANGUAGES 2ND.

Parents! Will you please request your children to bring their report cards home if the children are in the upper six grades? Report cards were given out Monday, Jan. 19, to all pupils in the upper six grades. These report cards are issued monthly that parents and pupils may know what progress is being made.

Failures in studies, present the most difficult problems to teachers in the high school. A failure costs money to the taxpayer. The per capita tax cost is about $120, and when a student fails a proportionate part of the total sum might be considered as a loss.

B. H. Vanderbilt of the state department has made a recent investigation of failures in 113 different schools. The report shows that failures rank from 0-23 per cent in foreign language, 0-23 per cent in English, 0-20 per cent in history, 5-26.5 per cent in mathematics.

In comparing our own failures with those of other schools it is discovered that we are not of the lowest nor of the highest, but in a middle position with the number of failures. The following figures show just how Buchanan ranks in several of the departments according to failures:

Table with 2 columns: Subject and Percentage. Rows include Foreign language (6.3 pct), English (4.2 pct), Mathematics (10.2 pct), History (7 pct), Science (8.4 pct), Vocational studies (5.6 pct).

For last semester of last year, the total failures in our high school ranked 8.1 per cent of all subjects taken.

Pupils that have failed for the first semester but have a possibility of making it up in the second semester are permitted to finish the course. On the other hand, if the pupil shows no desire to make it up or the foundation work is not good enough to go ahead, the subject is dropped and the pupil takes only two or three subjects. In some cases substitutes are made hoping to aid the pupil in making the grade.

Parents should be alarmed when their children are failing. It may mean that they will not be permitted to graduate from high school in the regular four years.

If your children are failing, get in touch with the teachers. You will find courtesy, predominate, and you will be told what can be done to aid your children.

SCHOOL AUTHORITIES. INQUIRING REPORTER. Were you satisfied with the examination questions? Yes, I was satisfied with the examination questions. They were easy enough if you had studied them, only in history so many ancient names were hard to remember.

Helen Fletcher. I was partly satisfied. For instance chemistry and advanced algebra were fairly easy, but English was hard. Some day when I study, it will be different, but now it's not.

Vincent DeNardo. That is a rather difficult question. I was satisfied with the questions when they happened to be what I had reviewed. Most generally I never review the right thing, but this semester I reviewed everything and was satisfied for once.

Clarice Banks. Surely I was satisfied with the questions but the next thing is—were the teachers satisfied with the answers? Oh yes, there was one set of questions with which I was not satisfied. In fact, I was very much disappointed because Mr. Moore didn't ask for the Solway process. And plenty of other students were disappointed too after all the effort it took to learn it.

Bucks Show Class in Three Oaks Win

THREE OAKS HOLDS NILES 20 TO 18 ON FOLLOWING NIGHT

BUCHANAN SECONDS WIN SIXTH STRAIGHT VICTORY OF SEASON.

Coach Harold "Curly" Bradfield's Buchanan basketball team chalked up their second straight victory Friday night by handing the Three Oaks five a 15 to 6 trimming in the Oaker's gym, noted for its low ceilings and close walls. The Bucks outclassed their opponents, holding them to two field goals, both scored in the last three minutes of play; meanwhile, they were building up a fair lead, hampered somewhat by the ceiling and the tilted baskets.

Buchanan played a smart brand of basketball. They used a delayed offense with a fast break against the Acorns' zone defense and the clinched down with a close man to man defense that had them sewed up tighter than a Scotchman's purse. Lauren Morse and William "Ike" Schultz did most of the scoring, getting 7 and 6 points, respectively. Jackie Schneider, the heart and soul of the Three Oaks team, received credit for the only goals scored during the game, two long shots at the end of the game for 4 points.

Lauren Morse opened the game with two southpaw shots. Wasso and Klute both scored once from the foul line and Jesse contributed one point on Lake's personal. Louie Morse dropped the first of the two free throws awarded him on Schneider's personal and when he missed the second shot, "Ike" Schultz batted it in.

There was no more scoring until the third quarter. Then Lauren sank another shot from the corner of his left hand and Ike Schultz scored once from the foul line and Schultz made his third fielder of the game before Schneider sank his two long shots.

Buchanan's 15 to 6 victory on Friday night looked good when Three Oaks went to Niles on Saturday evening and, after leading 10 to 3 at halftime, finally dropped a 20 to 18 decision to the proteges of Davidson. In Berrien county a victory on the Three Oaks floor always means a tough game.

The Buchanan reserves accounted for their sixth straight win and made the evening 100 per cent for Buchanan by walloping the Three Oaks reserves 27 to 11. Dumbolton with 10 points and "Skeet" Rolan with 5, were the shining lights for the victors.

Summary table with columns: Player, Points, Rebounds, Assists, Steals, Blocks, Fouls, Total. Rows include Buchanan (15) and Three Oaks (8).

Score by quarters: Buchanan 8 0 4 3-15, Three Oaks 2 0 0 4-6. Referee, Naney, South Bend.

BAND PRESENTS FIRST CONCERT OF THE SEASON

HIGH SCHOOL ORGANIZATION ENTERTAINS WITH HOUR OF EXCELLENT MUSIC.

Buchanan high school's first concert of the current season, given last Sunday afternoon, was attended by a small but appreciative audience. This was the first of a series of concerts to be given during the winter. While this concert was given entirely by the band, the next one to be presented on Feb. 5, will be by the orchestra.

The concert consisted of seven numbers and lasted for an hour. The music was far superior to any that has been given on Buchanan concert stages for many seasons. The program for last Sunday was as follows:

- March: Freedom of the Seas
Overture: Master Bill
Trumpet solo: Phillip Hanlin
Waltz: Zada
Selection: Prince Charming
Grand Fantasia on American Airs

H. S. Orchestra To Give Concert Sunday, Feb. 6

The second one of a series of concerts given by the Buchanan music department will be given Sunday, February 8, at 2:30 p. m. in the auditorium. The high school symphony orchestra will present the numbers to be used at the orchestral concert at St. Joseph, on Feb. 12.

An announcement of the program will appear in a later issue of this paper.

The program will last one hour.

PROGRESS IN CLASS ROOMS DURING WEEK

EC. 9 TAKES UP CLOTHING; COMMERCIAL DEPT. TAKES UP STUDY OF LAW.

Commercial Course Changes. The coming semester will mark a change in the commercial arithmetic course. This class will be dropped and commercial law will take its place for the remainder of the school year. This arrangement gives the student a knowledge of two much needed studies during one school term.

Midget Band Plays. The kindergarten band played for the Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church at the home of Mrs. Ed Stults on Tuesday afternoon.

Seventh Grade Splashes. A few of the seventh grade girls went on a splash party at the natatorium Friday under the supervision of Miss Theo Olson. The girls were: Vivian Mogford, Barbara Hamilton, Elaine Donley, Una Kelly and Eleanor Miller.

Study Snowbound. The eighth grade, under the supervision of Mrs. Zerbe are studying "Snowbound." Many good posters have been handed in.

The seventh grade, under the supervision of Mrs. Zerbe, are studying "The Tempest" by Shakespeare.

Ec. Dept. Studies Clothes. The Home Economics class have changed from the study of foods to clothing. This change began with the new semester.

The advanced Home Economics classes are ready to begin the decoration of their miniature model house. Groups of two and three will study each room and its furnishings.

The cafeteria girls are serving about fifty every noon. One of last week's menus consisted of salmon loaf, cheese potatoes, baked apples, cocoa and milk.

All parents of children having trouble with school courses will receive notices of standings and work being done by pupils. The notices will be received this week.

Health Talks Scheduled for Friday Assembly

On Friday of this week a health talk will be given by Dr. C. A. Mitchell of Benton Harbor. This is the third of a series of five such lectures. Dr. Mitchell's lecture concerns broken bones, and is expected to be very interesting and educational. The other health lectures were by Dr. Robert Henderson of Niles and Dr. R. J. Brown of Benton Harbor. Any of the townspeople interested in hearing the talk to be given this Friday are very cordially invited to attend.

SCHOOL SLANTS Among the things we envy: Alan Stevenson's taste in picking neckties.

Lyle-Bachman's marcelle. Richard Brodrick looking for a non-fiction book in library. "Miss Hamlin, have you got 'The Soul of an Immigrant'?"

Miss Rothenbach went home over the week end. Miss Olson took some Junior High girls to the natatorium and show at South Bend. Work on the miniature bungalow, private property of home economics department, has begun in earnest now.

Grade News

Kindergarten News. We have finished making a Good Health ship. On it we have illustrated the eight rules of health. After inspection, morning and afternoon, those who have followed these rules may have a ride on our ship.

We are learning to read the placards that we have around our room. We're enjoying learning new poems. Our new ones for this week are: "Come with Me," said the little red hen and "Tuck Took."

We are going to make pictures of what is good for us to eat for breakfast. Through the courtesy of the Cream of Wheat Company, each child has been given a sample package of Cream of Wheat. We are trying to earn a picture by having hot breakfasts every morning.

Those who keep their hands clean and also their fingernails may have their name put on the board. Many of us can print our own names on the board.

1st Grade, Miss Myers

The following first graders have their names on the "Good Citizenship Honor Roll" for this week: Elmer Hemphill, Shirley Mae Roberts, Betty Jane Roussele, Charles Eddy, Lynea Ingierlight, Delores Baker and Maxine Matthews. We hope to be able to add more names to this list next week.

Elwood Brown, Charles Eddy, Norman Ferris, Betty Hemphill, Tommy Huff, Lynea Ingierlight, Russell Leazar, Bernice Phisicator, Buddy Matthews, Shirley Mae Roberts, Betty J. Roussele, Ruth Toll, Robert Vanderslice, Maxine Matthews and Bonnie J. Matthews received 100 in spelling this week.

1st Grade, Miss Vandenberg

Since the vacation season two extra subjects have been added to our program. These are number work and spelling. These are number work and spelling. These are number work and spelling.

For our number work this week we have been learning the combinations, adding one. In spelling we have kept a black board chart that tells us "Where We Are in Spelling." This chart has four sections, Despair Alley, Fair Avenue, Good Street and Easy Street. The pupil's name is placed on the street where he is in spelling. We are glad to state that this week we have had just two pupils living in Despair Alley.

1st Grade, Miss Carnagan

Several people are absent this week with colds. Our project of the Eskimos is almost finished. Donis Lamb and Robert Six brought several pictures of Eskimos.

Monday we drew gold fish in Art class. We colored them like the ones in the aquarium.

2nd Grade, Mrs. Wilcox

Bonnie June Chain is ill with whooping cough. Dorothy Sherwood has the mumps. Edward Kimbrell is on the sick list. Mrs. George Fairman visited school Friday. Suzanne McKinnon has been absent on account of illness. Clara Stewart is on the sick list.

3rd Grade, Miss Simmons

The following pupils were 100 per cent in spelling examination: Virginia Arnold, Lorna Antstis, Carl Backus, Johanna Burk, Richard Dilley, Muriel Dillavou, Lester Hanover, Dorothy Irvin, James King, Margaret Miller, Frederick Manning, Doris Patterson, Arthur Rohl, Gertrude Reamer, Donna Smith, Catherine Wynn, Donald Longworth and George Lakin.

Sixteen were 100 per cent in Arithmetic examination while a number of others were very good. We are now on the second half of the year and it will mean extra effort for those who are behind.

4th Grade, Mrs. French. Andrew Ruth, Katherine Mosier and Mildred Ferris were on the honor roll in spelling last week. The sand table committee for our Eskimo project were Violet Weaver, Mildred Ferris, Maxine Hartsell, Kenneth Phisicator, Carlton Pletcher, Lee Marks, Audrey Ruth and Wanda Green.

For Art we drew Eskimos with chalk and charcoal and made posters of an Eskimo with his dog team. Ruby May read some interesting things about the Eskimo and made a report on what she read.

Violet Weaver made a large poster of Eskimo life which we placed back of our sand table. We observed Thrift week by learning a thrift play and reading about Benjamin Franklin. Bill Borders reported on a story he had read about Franklin.

Last week Lawrence Dellinger had four 100's in Arithmetic. This week we are starting long division.

6th Grade, Miss Reams

We now have 32 names on our Dental Honor Roll. Rose Zachman, Ellen Newsom and Imogene English have received 100 in Spelling for the first semester of the school year.

BASKETBALL BIOGRAPHIES

August 7, 1913, was a memorable date for a family named Dempsey, residing in Dowagiac, Mich. On that date the eighth addition to their family circle arrived and was duly christened Robert Oral Dempsey.

For six years young Robert grew in the environs of this small city and finally was brought to a rising city named Buchanan, when he was a few months under seven years of age. Robert and his two older brothers soon made friends in this new home and by the time he had entered high school, Robert was one of the most popular boys in his class.

Upon entering high school, Robert immediately began dominating his class affairs. After having the nickname of "Spot" tacked onto him because his brother was covered with freckles, Spot became a regular fellow and engaged in all the pranks and tricks of a high school underclassman. As he had grown to be somewhere around six feet in height and was filling out rapidly, Spot reported for football.

Being a man of good foresight, Coach Bradford sent Spot into action at center where he won his letter each year that he was in high school. He has also put in two seasons previous to this present one on the basketball team. He is a member of the high school orchestra, band, and glee club, showing his interest along the musical lines. He is also a member of Phi Kappa and ranks high in his class scholastically. His puns and humorous manners have made him one of the most popular boys in the high school.

He is very fond of hunting, bass horns, home-baked beans, camping and motorcycles, but has an extreme dislike for onions, manual labor, affectionate women and dressing in good clothes.

Banks Turning to Tear Gas for Holdup Protection

In the war against crime, science has furnished a new weapon—tear gas. During the past five years 80 banking rooms in Michigan, including 50 in the Detroit area, have been fortified by tear gas equipment, and in that time not one of these banks has reported a robbery. Tear gas guns and grenades now protect industrial pay rolls, stores and hotels.

This equipment is used by the Michigan Department of Public Safety and the Detroit, Grand Rapids and Flint police departments. Altogether, it is estimated that Michigan investment in this equipment approaches $200,000.

In combatting lawlessness, tear gas has a double advantage. It effectively prevents the use of firearms and it is entirely harmless. For these reasons it is the ideal weapon against daylight bank robbery and is so recognized by insurance companies. The National Surety Company, New York City, a few weeks ago ordered a 25 per cent reduction in insurance rates for banks where tear gas is used for protection. The reduction came at a time when the company was suffering greater bank robbery losses than ever before, and was made in the hope of promoting wider use of tear gas equipment.

The action of tear gas is instantaneous. It is hard for a person unfamiliar with it to believe that the gas takes effect before a gun can be fired, but this has been proved time and again both in actual holdups and in experiments like a radio tube. In a bank the gas cartridges are located in specially designed openings at the base of the cornice of the counters. An independent wiring system connects the cartridges with a storage battery. At strategic points, as behind each teller's cage, foot trails to release the gas are located. The gas nozzles appear as ornaments in the counters, but they are so built as to cover every square foot of the room. In a bank any employee anywhere in the working quarters can discharge the gas.

When released the gas attacks the tender membrane of the eye, producing intense irritation and causing copious tears. With the first whiff of the gas, the victim's one impulse is to escape and as long as the gas is active he is helpless. In an enclosed area, such as a banking room, the effect lasts half an hour or longer. In spite of the intense irritation caused by the gas, physicians say it is entirely harmless.

The largest manufacturers of tear gas and equipment are the Federal Laboratories, Inc., Pittsburgh. This concern designs layouts for business installations and in addition makes guns, bombs and grenades. Michigan distribution is handled by the Gas Protective Company.

Young Wife, Afraid to Eat, Lives on Soup. "Afraid of stomach gas, I lived on soup for five months. Then I tried Adierika and now I eat most anything without any gas." Mrs. A. Connor.

Adierika relieves stomach gas in TEN minutes! Acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel, removing old, poisonous waste you never knew was there. Don't fool with medicine which cleans only PART of the bowels, but let Adierika give the stomach and bowels a REAL cleaning and get rid of all gas. W. N. Brodrick, druggist.

You Can't Drive a Post With One "Wham". Colgate and Palmolive are quoted as saying that they spend five cents of their advertising dollar to develop new customers, and ninety-five cents to hold their present customers. Those of you who think of advertising only in terms of new business, should ponder a bit over these figures. Don't worry if one advertisement fails to fill your store with new customers—it probably has done its work in some other way. You can't drive a post into the ground with one "wham" and the same is true of your advertising message.

Practical Soil Testing Developed at University

Ann Arbor—Securing dependable knowledge of the nature and reliability of the soil in which his structure rests has been a problem to the builder since the ancients began to erect massive structures of stone. Rule of thumb methods prevailed even after much more adequate knowledge had been obtained in modern times.

and educational activities of all types and grades to build up an intelligent interest in living.

Much of the education takes the form of paper construction, basketry, weaving and manual training which shows the use of materials as well as construction of things. The interest which the children develop is seen by the fact that many carry on after going home under directions from the hospital staff.

Austin R. Maujer, complainant, vs. Thomas E. Bourke, defendant. Suit pending before Stuart B. White, one of the Circuit Court Commissioners in and for Berrien County, Michigan, at Niles, Michigan, in said County of Berrien on the 16th day of January A. D. 1931.

Austin R. Maujer, plaintiff herein, having filed his suit against Thomas E. Bourke, defendant herein, to recover possession of the following described property, situated in the Township of Buchanan, county of Berrien, and State of Michigan, to-wit:

Lot eight (8), in the subdivision known as Indian Springs Park, Berrien County, Michigan, according to the plat of said subdivision. Said property having a frontage of 282 1/2 feet on Lake Chapin and an approximate depth of 1339 feet, containing approximately six acres, said being in Buchanan Township.

Whereas it appears from an affidavit now on file in this court that Thomas E. Bourke, said defendant, is not a resident of the State of Michigan, but resides outside thereof, and is a resident of the State of Illinois. Therefore, IT IS ORDERED that said defendant Thomas E. Bourke shall cause his appearance to be entered in this cause on or before February 14, A. D. 1931, at nine o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at my office in the City National Bank and Trust Company Building, in the City of Niles, Michigan, at which time and place said cause will be brought on for a hearing.

STRAY DOGS RUIN MICHIGAN FLOCKS

REPORT COUNTY OFFICIALS SHOW $200,725 PAID OWNERS FOR LOSSES.

Outlaw dogs which have acquired a taste for mutton cost Michigan farmers a huge sum of money in 1930 as is shown by the $200,725 which was paid was indemnities but which did not repay the owners for animals which were injured and for which no settlement was made.

Some Michigan counties had to dip deeply into the general fund to pay losses when the sum collected as dog taxes proved to be much too small to pay for all the damage suffered by the flocks of sheep in the county. The figures on losses were secured by members of the animal husbandry department at Michigan State College in a search for reasons why the sheep industry is unpopular in some sections.

The Michigan dog law is quoted nationally as a model for other states to follow but this law is less valuable when it is not rigidly enforced. The board of supervisors in one Michigan county authorized the sheriff to deputize men for the sole purpose of reducing the losses of sheep in the county. Seventeen stray dogs were shot and the loss dropped from $3,020 in 1928 to $258.50 in 1929.

Some owners of sheep in certain counties formed committees which took over the work of eradicating outlaw dogs. This means appears to be effective but is not as satisfactory as to have the work done by officials who are charged with the enforcement of the laws.

Michigan Hunters Spend $12,000,000

Michigan's 400,000 small game and deer hunters spend about twelve million dollars while in the field during the hunting season. They have approximately ten million dollars invested in guns and other more or less durable hunting equipment. This equipment has an annual depreciation value of about one million dollars and interest charge of a half million if it is considered as invested capital. An additional five million dollars is spent each year for sundries, if the computation of the Department of Conservation is accurate.

Included in the twelve millions spent while in the field is a gasoline bill of $800,000, one hundred thousand of which is gas tax paid into state and county highway funds. Michigan's army of hunters also pays the state a total of $600,000 in license fees. The ratio of license fees to the other costs of hunting is one dollar to $18.50.

The license fees paid the state become a part of the Game Protection fund which is administered by the Conservation Department for the protection and propagation of game.

Color Important in Valentine Menu

Valentine's Day is one of the best loved of all holidays—as indeed it should be, being dedicated to the little winged god, himself. The hostess delights in it since it gives so much opportunity for self-expression in table decoration and in the choice of the menu.

Happy indeed the housewife who is the proud possessor of a set of the lovely red glassware which is so much in vogue right now. Nothing could be more beautiful for the Valentine luncheon table. A bowl of red roses in a red crystal bowl, flanked by candlesticks of the same will make the table a thing of beauty and a joy for guests and hostess.

Inez S. Wilson, home economist, suggests that a lamb chop platter will be the most effective as the center of the luncheon menu. Have the chops boned and the tail of the chop wrapped round and fastened with a fat wooden stick. Atop chop, which are boneless chops cut from the boned shoulder may be used. Broil the chops as usual.

In the meantime fry slices of pineapple which are to be placed one under each chop. Also fry large mushroom caps, one to be placed on each chop. Place the chops in the center of a large platter and around the edge place cranberry salad moulded in heart-shaped molds.

This is the way the cranberry salad is made: 1/2 cups raw cranberries, 1/2 orange, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup hot water, 1 package lemon jello. Put uncooked cranberries and orange rind and all through the food chopper. Add the sugar and let stand one hour. Then add the jello, dissolved in hot water. Pour into heart shaped molds and chill.

Ice cream in appropriate molds and little frosted cakes with coffee will complete a delightful luncheon in honor of the patron saint of lovers.

A Few Facts on the Use of Lard

As a shortening agent lard stands at the top of the list of fats. Because lard contains relatively small amounts of the hard constituents of fats, it has a moderately low melting point and so is easily handled in the preparation of doughs. This is one of the reasons why many housewives prefer it to the harder fats for shortening purposes, especially in cold weather.

Another and perhaps a still better reason than ease in handling is the fact that lard gives the tenderest and flakiest of all pie crusts. And what home-maker is not interested in turning out a tender, flaky piece of pastry?

Lard has a mild flavor which is always an asset in a shortening. It may be used satisfactorily in cake making, especially in spice cake. When lard is substituted for butter, the amount of fat called for the recipe should be decreased one-eighth; the liquid should be increased slightly and the cake batter should be well beaten.

At present price levels, lard is by far the most economical shortening agent on the market.

Farm Folks Meet to Study Latest Practices

East Lansing—Advance enrollments in the eight short courses in agriculture and home economics which open at Michigan State college this month, indicate that the much advertised depression has not affected the desire of Michigan people to acquire the latest information about their business.

The largest group of students, 63, are enrolled in the two-year, sixteen weeks course in agriculture. This course permits farmers who are unable to leave their farms during the busy season a chance to study the latest research and extension practices and to determine if any of the new methods have a practical application on their home farms. Visits made this year by the director of short courses at the college to the farms of former short course students proved that these men transform knowledge into farm profits even in bad years.

Most of the courses are of eight weeks duration and the instruction is confined to one subject such as dairy production, dairy manufacturing, poultry, or agricultural engineering. Most of the students who sign for these courses have been confronted with definite problems in their business and take this opportunity to find methods of meeting them.

The home economics subjects are the latest to be taught in the short courses and are becoming popular with Michigan women. Only one student from outside the state has made advance enrollment in any of the courses out of a total of 135 now registered.

PLATTS VISITS CHINESE WAR LORD'S HOME

WRITES INTERESTING DESCRIPTION OF CONDITIONS MODERN KOREA.

On July 9th at 6:30 a. m. we reached Moji, ten miles from Shimoda and on the opposite side of the channel, which at one point is very narrow with an extremely swift current due to the ebb and flow of the tides. A small launch carried us over to the steamer, a Japanese National Railway passenger boat, the finest on which we traveled any time during our trip.

The passage of the Straits of Tsushima, which for general disposition can be compared with the English Channel, proved to be quite smooth. As we passed the Tsushima Islands we realized we were passing over the grave yard of Russia's navy. The story of what led to the Russo-Japanese naval battle at this place is very interesting.

It was not known whether the Russian fleet would enter the Sea of Japan by these straits or go to the east of the main island, the empire and enter by the northern passage. Admiral Togo had been ordered, therefore, to divide his fleet and cover both approaches. He knew, however, that with the fleet divided he had but little hope of a victory. He chose, therefore, to disobey orders and hid his fleet among the Tsushima Islands. History proved the results. It is claimed that his scouts, which were native fishing craft, were all equipped with wireless sets, the first time in history that this had ever been used in warfare. It is also stated that the Admiral had issued orders to all members of his family, that should his judgment prove wrong regarding the probable route of the Russians, every one of them was to commit hari kari.

We reached Fusan, Chosen, at 6 p. m. and after wandering about in this, our first continental Asiatic city for a short time we boarded our sleepers for Keijo (ancient Seoul) the capital of Chosen (Korea) where we arrived at 8 a. m. July 10. The country through which we passed during daylight was similar to that of a foot hill area, no very high hills, the some were rather rough. Hillsides and valleys were under close and careful cultivation. The houses were straw thatched mud huts. The work of the Japanese government in reforesting of the hills was everywhere evident. The time was when this whole country was covered by natural forests but due to the need for fuel and the wasteful methods of the people for many long years before the coming of the Japanese scarcely a bush was left growing anywhere in the country. Even now the reforested sections have to be guarded to prevent the people from taking the young growth for fuel. At Keijo we were met by Mr. Newa, the Secretary of the Japanese Y. M. C. A., who acted through the day as one of our guides and at 5 p. m. gave us a reception at the Chosen hotel under the auspices of the International (Japanese and Korean) Y. M. C. A. Personally we failed to see any of the latter present. Mr. Newa proved himself in every way a gentleman but he was absolutely non-committal on matters concerning the relations of the two countries.

The day was passed in sight seeing and shopping. Korean chests and articles of brass seemed to be the main articles of interest in the latter. The old walls of the city have been torn down and the materials used in the construction of new buildings. The ancient gate of which are pretty well overgrown with weeds and alfalfa. In another part of the city there are quite interesting botanical and zoological gardens which once belonged to the Korean royal family. They are now cared for by the government and are for the pleasure of the people. We found two particularly interesting items. The first, several hippopotami which have become so thoroughly acclimated that they breed; the second, a very fine example of an ancient water clock, all parts of which were made of cast bronze, covered with intricate oriental designs. These pieces of apparatus are supposed to have been invented by the Chinese and are among the earliest mechanical devices for determining the time of day or night regardless of the sun. The principle of action is based on uniform flow of water.

About the only place we saw native Koreans was on the streets and in their little shops or stores. The Japanese appear to hold all the offices and other positions of importance. The white, stiff-starched costumes of the men, their strange ideas of millinery, the "Jiggy" men (porters), the bullocks used as pack animals, the odd form of the native shoes, a native "drug store" stocked with collections of old bones, skins and teeth of various kinds of animals; these are the kinds of impressions made upon us by the native Koreans.

Some members of our party made contacts with natives, missionaries and others from whom they learned something of the Korean viewpoint, relative to the Japanese. In substance it seemed to be summed up thus "better a poor government if it is your own than a good one if it is forced upon you." Japan has changed her policy in dealing with these people and seems to be making some progress toward gaining their support. Personally, we felt from what we saw that it was a God send for the Japanese to take these ignorant, superstitious, poverty-stricken people in hand and give them a chance to come to themselves. Forgive me, had we chance to see and hear more our opinion would be very different. It is true that many things done to these defenseless people by the Japanese when the war-clique had control were as inexcusable as the German acts in France. These things are now in the past, Japan seemingly having seen her error in following in the tracks of Kaiser Bill.

Again at 8 p. m. we were on our sleepers bound north for Mukden, 482 miles distant where we arrived at 2 p. m., July 11th. It was here that Chang Tsoo Liang (the Manchurian war lord) was bombed while on board his private train last March. Those who follow Chinese doings will recall that he had only a few days before evacuated Peking, being chased out by Chang Kai Chek and the victorious Southern Chinese Army. Who or what was the cause of the outrage no one appears to know. The Chinese blame the Japanese for it and the Japanese say the fighting Chinese war lords are at the bottom of it.

We were met at the station by a representative of Chang Hsu Liang, a son of Chang Tsoo Liang and the latter's military successor, with autos to convey our whole party. We were taken immediately to the yamen or private residence of the late war lord. The ride from the station in the new part of the city, to the general's home in the old Chinese city was our first real experience in China and proved to be a dusty one. The way Japanese and Chinese chauffeurs can get through narrow streets crowded with people on foot, rickshaws, two wheeled carts, wheelbarrows, street cars, burro trains, bullocks, bicycles and autor and that with a fair degree of speed without injuring anyone or wrecking property is a marvel. Occasionally we discovered a traffic regulation, for example, we passed all machines on the left, kept to the left side of the streets and in general seemed to do just the wrong thing.

After being whisked over dusty streets (dirt roads) full of chuk holes, down long lanes between close crowding mud walls, around an old city gate, the gateway was too low to let camels through and therefore too low to let autos pass, and down what we felt sure was a back alley, we passed through a gate guarded by soldiers and found our autos stopping in a mass of humanity in front of some sort of a building from which there arose a high wooden tower, which had the appearance of having but recently been put up. Our party alighted and as we looked about and saw Chinese soldiers on all sides and heard tom toms beating, the writer began to wonder whether we were guests or prisoners. A big Chinaman at the right of the entrance to the building struck three or four blows on the head of an immense drum. This was answered by a like number of beats from somewhere within the building and word was passed that this was the signal for our company to enter two by two. A few steps brought us to a gorgeously decorated shrine loaded down with food offerings. The wooden tower was directly over this altar (if it might be so called) and was apparently simply the upper part of it. At each side, on banked rows of seats, sat dozens of men, each beating a small drum and chanting some sort of a ritual. We were informed that this was the official mourning ceremony for Chang Tsoo Liang and that it required six months to complete it, after which the burial ceremony would take place.

As we came to the shrine we bowed in honor of the dead, then passed around to the left and beyond it and were conducted into an audience room where jasmine tea of the most exquisite flavor was served. While here a brother of Chang Hsu Liang, dressed in the ancient Chinese mourning garb of white, came in, preceded by a coolie carrying a cushion. They came to the center of the room, the cushion was placed on the floor and the brother knelt thereon and bowed to us three times with his head to the floor to show his appreciation for the respect we had shown the dead in bowing at the entrance. The entire party bowed in acknowledgement.

We were now conducted to another large room where the young general, dressed in military style, met us and of course the inevitable cakes and tea came next. On noticing the number of women in our group he sent for his "wife." According to the custom of the country she was quite likely one of several wives. Mrs. Chang proved to be a very interesting young Chinese woman of the average height of our American women. She was dressed in American style and spoke English quite well.

After the rather starchy formalities of this reception the general accorded us a rare privilege. We were asked to visit the gardens of his father's harem. The house in which we understood the old general had lived and that in which the harem was housed were large two-story stone structures of the European or American architecture. Separating the gardens which surrounded the two houses was a stone fence but not such as is often seen in America. If we were not mistaken this fence was made of the form of a miniature range. The gate way was a pass not through but over the range. In the harem garden were many huge uras or bowls made of earthenware standing about four feet high and perhaps five feet in diameter. These contained gold fish of all kinds and varieties for the amusement of the ladies. There were many women about also many children and one very nice looking youngster of about three was pointed out to us as the old general's youngest son.

The young general now invited us to partake of an informal banquet apologizing for its poor quality and limited menu and explaining that under the circumstances custom and popular sentiment would not permit him to entertain us with a formal dinner. The tables were set in an open court which was covered by canvas but not tightly enough to keep quantities of flies from swarming over the food. Of course there were no knives or forks only chop sticks. The amount and variety of food brought on was criminal when we stopped to think that there were people all about who probably never had and never would have enough to eat at one time to feel satisfied. The quality was splendid. Some one in our party kept count and reported that there were 38 varieties of food served us. As the dinner progressed, the coolies brought us bowls (hot or cold as desired) to wipe the sweat from our faces and hands for it was a very warm day. Wine was served in variety to those who desired it. There were no dinner plates such as we have. What took their places were little silver trays about 4 1/2 or 5 inches in diameter. We soon learned that no one served, the coolies placed the food on the table and every one helped himself when ever he wished. You simply took your chop sticks and little trap, reached over to the particular dish desired and took what you wished, this was next held up near the mouth and the parts of food conveyed by the chop sticks to the mouth, if a piece of food was too large for a bite, the teeth served as a knife. By the time after our week in Japan, chop sticks were beginning to seem quite natural—to some.
