

SPRING ELECTION MARCH 2 AND APRIL 5

South Bend P.-T.A. To Give Benefit Operetta Here Friday Feb. 27

HELD TO FILL CITY, COUNTY, STATE OFFICES

CAUCUSES ARE HELD COMING WEEK TO PICK DELEGATES FOR CONVENTIONS.

With the primary for the selection of candidates for county school commissioner to be held March 2, and a balloting for the final election for that post and for city and state offices on April 6, public interest is taking on a political complexion as the month of February nears its end.

In the immediate foreground is the selection on March 2 of two candidates who will run off the finals for the school commissioner's race. The race for county head is being fought on individual and sectional considerations rather than on a partisan basis, due to the fact that all four of the candidates in the field are Republicans. Nevertheless the two receiving the highest vote will remain in the final race.

Caucuses are now slated to select delegates to the county convention at Three Oaks on Feb. 27, where in turn delegates will be selected to the state convention held later for the purpose of selecting candidates for state offices to be filled on April 6.

Buchanan will hold its spring election on April 6, at which time the offices of William Fette and Harry Boyce, supervisors, and of M. J. Keeling and F. C. Hathaway, commissioners, expire.

HE WAS SOBER FOR A FACT BUT COULDN'T WALK

THE CRACK, SO THEY GAVE HIM TEN DAYS IN THE COUNTY JAIL.

It may be that Calvin Smith was able to walk straight and the crack merely crooked, but anyway his performance was insufficient to convince Deputy Sheriff Clarence Dunbar of his sobriety, as his ensuing testimony before Hizzoner, A. W. Charles was insufficient to convince that even-handed dispenser of justice.

As a result Calvin is doing a ten day stretch in the Berrien County jail, all expenses of board and lodging and expense to and from the county seat cared for.

It seems that Mister Smith admitted he had a drink but was inclined to evade an admission that he was drunk. In this he reckoned without the Michigan statute which holds a man "under the influence of liquor" after the first drink.

Dunbar was called by a local merchant, who complained that the inebriated near his stove. On being ordered by the sheriff, he was aroused to walk a crack on the floor, and in view of the poor performance he was taken to the court of Justice Charles.

"Were you drunk?" queried the court, getting personal right off the reel. "Well, suh, Ah'm a man that wan's to do everythin' jes right an' Ah cant say I was zackly drunk, but you see it wuz this way."

"Ah wuz comin' down to the store to pay a bill of 23 cents, suh, an'."

"Were you drunk or not?" demanded the court again.

"Well, Ah wouldn't say I was drunk, but Ah won't deny I did have one leetle drink," admitted Mr. Smith.

"Ten days" said the court and that is the way the matter now stands.

CAST OF 55 WILL STAGE COMIC OPERA

PRODUCTION HAS BEEN GIVEN AT NILES AND SOUTH BEND RECENTLY.

The Muesel School Parent-Teacher Association of South Bend will present an operetta, "The Return of Miss Carruthers" in the local high school auditorium here on the evening of Friday, Feb. 27, beginning at 8 p. m.

The story of the operetta is as follows:

Miss Thyra Caruthers has been left a large estate by her father, in whose will she has been requested to continue the support of one of his philanthropies, an Art Club, in West 61st Street, New York, where talented young women could secure board and room at small cost while carrying on their studies in the various arts.

Miss Caruthers, at the death of her father, has gone to Europe to travel. On her return she determines to find out for herself just how her money is being used by Mrs. Jones, the matron of the Art Club, and to satisfy herself as to the characters of the girls who are receiving the benefits of her philanthropy. She gains entrance to the Art Club by posing as a maid, whereupon she learns that Mrs. Jones has been using money that should have gone to the support of the place to purchase clothing for her niece, Desdemona; also that Desdemona is planning to elope with a Mr. Jerry Smith, pretending to be a millionaire. Miss Caruthers learns that he is an impostor who wishes to marry Desdemona because he thinks she is an heiress. She further learns that the girls are hard working, ambitious girls. She frustrates Desdemona's plan to elope and saves her from a compromising situation in which she seems guilty of stealing her aunt's money. Later Thyra reveals her true identity, forgives Mrs. Jones' indiscretion, and secures the lady's promise to give Desdemona another chance. She commends the girls for their loyalty to each other, and promises to help each one of them to realize her ambition.

Smith-Hughes MEN MEET HERE TUESDAY

Smith-Hughes instructors of Berrien County met Tuesday evening with Arthur Knoblauch, local agriculture teacher, for the purpose of outlining a course in horticulture for the county. Those present were L. R. Stanley of Benton Harbor, Dick Weiner of Berrien Springs, Earl Berry of New Troy, Harry Veneklasen of Three Oaks, H. C. Stark and E. H. Ormiston.

Net Profit H.S. Agricultural Dept. Reduced by Slump in Farm Prices

One of the provisions of the Smith-Hughes Law is that each vocational agricultural student shall have at least six months of supervised farm practice. In Michigan this minimum requirement of the law has not proven satisfactory. If vocational education in agriculture is to function effectively, the student should be prepared to make his living in the vocation for which he has been trained. When graduated from the vocational agricultural course of the high school, he should be an expert in the typical farm enterprises in which he will be engaged as a farmer. He should know the jobs connected with the enterprise and be skilled in the practices necessary to the success of the enterprise. The knowledge and skill necessary for successful dairy farming, for example, cannot be acquired in six months of supervised practice. Six years is not too long a time in which to train a boy in the dairy enterprise.

The projects of the students of the department are:

LOST AND FOUND

BI HAYS

If you've lost anything that you kinder Would like to get back under fence Our sheet is the best little finder And we charge you just 25 cents.

If you've lost anything, why just say it. And we'll locate it, little or large; It's twenty-five cents if you pay it And thirty-five cents if you charge

A dame we'll call Mrs. O'Grady— Though that really isn't her name, Wanted some girl to care for her baby So we went out and found her the same.

Charley Landis had lost him his flea-coop So he called Number Nine right away And asked—would we help him to recoup? So we found him his little dog Tray.

Then a girl here in town we'll call Sadie Had lost her a big bunch of keys; She got down on her eyes and she begged us To find it, with tears in her knees.

So we sat down and bawled awhile with her— A bucket of tears more or less— Then we put us some ads in the paper And run the sheet off of the press. And we soon had the keys back for Sadie—

Sweet Sadie with hair all a-curl— Got the dog back for Mrs. O'Grady And found Charley Landis his girl.

So, if something you've lost, why we wish you Would ring up and give us a call And we'll print you an ad in next issue That will find you a girl, fleas and all.

BET HE NEVER PINCHED IT

Last Thursday as Police Chief Ed Mitchell was getting ready to embark in his high powered squad car which you can occasionally see changing down as you pass by the State Bank, he saw a 1931 live wasp perched on it, admiring its reflection. Longer Open Season on Rabbits Advised to Aid Unemployed

An extended open rabbit season as a means of helping the unemployed to provide food and temporary employment of the $10 fee for a commercial fishing license were sought of the Conservation Commission at its January meeting. Because of the fact that it cannot legally lengthen the open season on protected animals and because the provisions of the commercial fishing license law are contained in legislative statute, the Commission was unable to comply with the requests. A continued open rabbit season, it was claimed, would enable many unemployed men to provide a little more food for their families. The unemployment situation would be somewhat relieved were men able to catch fish on a small scale, and sell their catch on the market. Under the law this can be done only after a commercial fishing license costing $10 has been secured from the state.

"Soul" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches on Sunday, Feb. 15.

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following taken from the Bible: "My soul waiteth for the Lord more than they that watch for the morning; I say, more than they that watch for the morning." (Ps. 130:6)

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Because Soul is immortal, it does not exist in mortality. Soul must be incorporeal to be Spirit, for Spirit is not finite. Only by losing the false sense of Soul can we gain the eternal unfolding of Life as immortality brought to light." (p. 385).

Game Department
Will Establish Refuges for Fish

"Fish Refuges" will again be established this year by the Department of Conservation in inland waters which fish are spawning. Provision of the 1926 legislation made possible the posting of inland waters against fishing when it was considered likely that fishing would disturb the normal spawning process of the fish.

"The idea was enthusiastically received and apparently was well observed on the lakes that were posted," according to the Fish Division.

Posting is not deemed necessary in normal times in lakes where the fishing season does not open until June 25. However, it is frequently necessary on pike lakes where the season opens May 1.

Individuals, clubs and others interested in any water should carefully observe conditions in each lake, locating spawning areas and general conditions, the fish division advises. If it is indicated that spawning or guarding will extend beyond the period when the lake will be open to fishing, the local conservation officer should be notified. He will supply the official posters and will supervise their posting.

After the posters have been placed conditions should be watched closely and the area should not be reopened to fishing until spawning or guarding is finished.

Most of the posting is required in the colder lakes where spawning is naturally retarded. Spawning is usually completed in the shallow lakes and those fed by surface drainage when the season opens.

DEAN COX POINTS RESPONSIBILITIES OF RURAL GROUPS.

Organized groups of Michigan farmers are responsible for adding millions of dollars to the annual farm income of the state, according to J. F. Cox, dean of agriculture at Michigan State College, who says that the presence of such organizations will be one of the major factors in assisting agriculture to a better economic condition in the future.

Dean Cox pointed to the various crops and livestock associations as examples of organizations which have been successful in bringing about the adoption of better methods of production, and he cited the Grange, the Farm Bureau and the Farmers Clubs as agencies which have aided in improving economic and social conditions.

The need for organized effort during the present difficult period was emphasized by Dean Cox. The local organizations now have the benefits of a national policy for the betterment of farm conditions under the direction of the Federal Farm Board, the Dean said.

Dean Cox said that livestock organization members now can finance their feeding operations if they are affiliated with the Livestock Exchange, and the Federal Farm Board has given financial assistance to fruit, potato, and grain organizations in Michigan.

Too Many Criminal Laws.

Blaming the existence of more than 2,000,000 statutes for most of the crimes committed, Dr. Amos Squires, former chief physician of Sing Sing prison, makes a plea that the country stop "the wholesale manufacture" of laws, most of which, he says, provide loopholes for criminals to escape punishment. He declares that the United States already overburdened with a multitude of useless laws that hamper the enforcing machinery, is now busy enacting additional statutes at the rate of 100,000 a year.

The present total of American statutes exceeds the combined laws of five large European nations. Only ten per cent of those who commit crimes are punished, but despite the small fraction of criminals punished, there are today 15,000 men and women in prison and 200,000 more in reformatories.

A conservative estimate of the cost of crime to the nation places the figure at between eight and ten billion dollars. Dr. Squires believes that if we had less laws the result would be a decreased burden on our courts and fewer opportunities for keen lawyers to pick flaws in the statutes. And courts nowadays are strongly inclined to split legal hairs and draw finely spun distinctions, too often in favor of one charged with crime. This is all well enough, but justice should not be sacrificed in order to follow precedents or adopt rulings that are not as fair to the state as to the accused. If such were possible, criminal laws should be so written that they would be capable of only a single interpretation. This, however, can't be done.

Invisible Monopolies.

Once upon a time—has everybody forgotten the excitement? Has it become only a legend?—there was a great fuss made in this country about "combinations in restraint of trade." Public opinion rose high and a law was passed.

Those monopolies, however, were big and did business openly.

Today the country is vermin ridden with combinations in restraint of trade which sneak about the dark alleys and restrain trade not with open competition but with threats and Chicago pineapples.

If a builder employs a contractor not approved by the racketeers, his building is bombed or burned. In the borough of the Bronx, the extra levies, burnings and bombings amount to $35,000,000 a year. In Detroit, a plumbing racket adds about $400 to the cost of a dwelling.

These figures and columns more like them are given by the conservative Ladies Home Journal in an article on what it calls "The Invisible Government."

We wonder why costs of so many things remain high in spite of every reasonable indication that they should be lower. We know there is vast wealth, in the country and we wonder where the money goes. There is one answer. It goes into the pockets of these vermin preying on the lives of decent citizens.

We don't have to stand this. Why do we?

Interested in Russia.

The proprietor of a small book store, a man who reads and thinks about books in addition to selling them, says he has observed in his own customers a growing interest in Russia. More people are buying books about Russia, and having read one book on the subject they come back for another.

"It is a very interesting tendency," he says. "People are more open-minded, tolerant and friendly than they were a year ago. Perhaps our business depression has done it. Perhaps it is curiosity. Perhaps it is tardy recognition to the fact that Russia is really doing something, good or bad."

Then, too, he adds, intelligent people know that what goes on in another country influences their own country. Even the Russians, trying their unique experiment, have been influenced by the capitalism they would despise.

It is a reassuring tendency. There is more than enough trembling at the thought of communism and more than enough red-baiting. Intelligent study of what Russians are doing and seek to do is needed to balance unintelligent fear and denunciation.

Zoological Golf.

A new golf hazard has been discovered. The game has invaded Africa, with ensuing complications. A Brooklyn school teacher who, on a recent tour, was playing on a course in Uganda, had reached the sixth hole when her drive woke up a sleeping hippopotamus, and he chased her right to the club house.

Here's a grand idea for American golf clubs, seeking novel attractions. Turn a zoo loose on the course. Baby golf courses might use porcupines, groundhogs and bear cubs to add zest to the game, with maybe a small alligator in a pool for the water hazard.

Chess champions, according to Capablanca, are always those who begin the game young. There are bound to be good openings for a bright young man.

Wouldn't you think party machinery would be tighter, instead of looser, with all those bolts and nuts?

What Are You Worth?

What would you be worth if you should lose all your worldly possessions?

What of value have you in the way of character, of conscience, of brain, of soul that enemies could not rob you of, nor misfortune take away from you?

Not so long ago a man of wealth met with unexpected business reverses and financial loss. One bright morning he awoke to find himself without a shilling that he could call his own. The accumulated savings of a lifetime had disappeared overnight. The sun came up in the morning shining as brightly as it had ever shone, but to the unfortunate man the heavens looked gloomy and uninviting.

His one thought and his sole ambition in life had been to acquire riches and pile up wealth. To a large extent his ambition had been abundantly gratified. From time to time he had torn down his barns and built greater, like the rich man in the parable.

His sorrow and disappointment was keener than one can imagine, but the thing that stung him the deepest was the fancied disgrace that would follow the loss of his fortune.

Eventually the fact came home to him that he had accumulated only such assets as financial misfortune might rob him of. When he lost his property he had lost all that might commend him to the world. He had never given thought for a moment to the questionable methods that he had often employed in acquiring wealth. He had never lost a wink of sleep over the hardships he had inflicted upon others. The grinding of the poor had never grated upon his ears, and the deceptions and fraud he had practiced and the hard bargains he had driven were forgotten as soon as over.

The blood and tears that stained much of his money detracted nothing from its value, but the loss of it he deemed a disgrace that he could never overcome. When he lost his wealth he lost all that he had.

A man is mighty poor who possesses nothing but money.

Wild Duck Travelers.

A type of hunting that ought to be exciting is that of the biological survey as it traces the migrations of birds and studies the distances they travel. Imagine, for example, getting hold of a wild duck on the island of Trinidad off the northern coast of South America and finding that it had previously been banded in the Province of Ontario. Where hasn't such a bird been! How wise to have escaped its enemies throughout its travels!

Redhead and pintail ducks banded on the Bear river marshes at Great Salt Lake, Utah have been recovered in 14 states and Mexico. Black ducks and teal banded in southern Ontario have been recovered in 29 states and three Canadian provinces. Ducks of several other species, banded in Cheyenne bottoms in Kansas, have been found in 19 states, four Canadian provinces, Alaska and Mexico.

A wild duck's interesting travels end when it is shot. The sport of such hunting is soon over. The biological survey has a hunt that may go on in all seasons with perfect safety to the hunted and great satisfaction to the hunters.

French Loan for Germany

Germany is undergoing economic distress worse than ours. Negotiations are under way between Berlin and Paris for a big business loan from France. The latter country is comparatively prosperous. Her financial situation is very good. She has the largest gold balance in Europe. So she is able to help Germany if she chooses, and may do so.

It will be a friendly service. At the same time it will be a business arrangement. France doesn't expect to give Germany that money for nothing. She will expect repayment of the principal in full, with a fair rate of interest.

After the bargain is made, perhaps the French people will have less to say in criticism of a certain other nation which lent France a lot of money in her time of need, and then was such a Shylock as to ask her to pay back about half of what she owed.

More for Creditors.

Creditors in bankruptcies last year got back more on each dollar of their claims than during the previous year, according to findings of the National Association of Credit Men. Individual creditors made this gain, although the total loss through increased numbers of bankruptcies was greater.

Reductions in court costs, attorneys' fees and other expenses of administration are given as the reason for individual creditors' good luck. These economies left proportionately more money to be distributed among creditors.

Expenses of administration of receiverships and bankruptcies should be carefully watched and regulated. Carelessness and indifference to the creditors' claims breed wastefulness and extravagance. It is good news to everybody concerned if, on the whole, these evils have been checked somewhat.

Ma says her pantry inventory is now adequately reduced, and she isn't over-extended in household equipment, yet somehow her financial structure doesn't seem so sound as it might be.

All this drouth trouble reminds us that something will have to be done about the weather. It's as bad as our industrial system.

It might work better if the president and the senate could take turns being boss, like the ancient Roman consuls.

The Old Timer's Corner

Elegy Written by Old Timer in an Automobile Junkyard

While driving out through the country, near here, not long ago, I passed a "junk pile" of old worn out automobiles, where you can go and buy old parts of all kinds of machines ever made, I guess. And it sort of made me feel sad to see them, all piled up there, every which way, and I thought that things haven't changed much, after all. I am glad that it is machines that are junked, now more than old horses, as it used to be, and the very ones that used to abuse the horses are the ones that abuse the automobiles now. I can remember of certain people that used to drive horses that ought to have been harnessed and worked, themselves and driven as they drove the poor horses that they had. I always had a great respect and affection for all horses. They are fundamentally the friend of mankind, and want to do and try to do all they can for man, but when some one would take the "lines" that had no sympathy for them and jerked them and kicked them and beat them, well, I couldn't do anything about it then, for I was only a kid, but the horses that I used knew what the English language meant, and I talked to them as I would to a person and they seem to know and understand, and we got along fine together. You would now and then find a horse that had "bad blood" in him and was ugly, but I always felt that it wasn't his fault. He had been made that way when he was very young, and it is very easy to spoil a colt when they are just learning. Same as people. If a youngster is forced into work that is too hard and too far from home for him when he is very young, he gets hardened and toughened to it, and will "make a man" at the job, but it will ruin him for everything else that he might have been if allowed to take it easy and find his own occupation for life. And so it seems to me, it is, with the poor old "junk pile" that I saw the other day. They are like old worn out people now and then, there is a little something among them that can be used for a while in the mad race of living, etc., but in the main, they just lie there and rust and go to pieces. But I am having to see the day when even machines will be driven by people that have a heart, and won't kill the very life of a machine just to show that they have control of it. An honestly built automobile, is almost human. You get used to it and know all its little "tricks" and how best to manage it and try not to force it beyond its capacity for smooth running operation, and you will get real service. My car is now nearly four years old and I feel that I know it and what it can and will do, and it goes plenty fast enough for me, and there is not a thing wrong with it yet. Just take good care of it at all times and treat it like I would like to be treated myself. I often see people riding on the "bride paths" in our parks and watch them handle their horses. Some know their stuff, but mostly they don't. They worry the very life out of the poor animals, and don't get the full measure of pleasure that riding is supposed to give them. But, we can't make people to suit ourselves, now can we? So, we will have to put up with things as they are and until the time comes when all people to drive a horse or drive a car or pilot an aeroplane, must have certain qualifications, and pass certain tests, and mainly it would seem to me that they ought to have "horse sense" themselves.

OLD TIMER.

MILTON PLATTS CONCLUDES TALE ORIENT TRIP

REALIZES BOYHOOD DREAM OF JOURNEY TO LAND OF SETTING SUN.

While a party of five or six of our people were on their way to the railroad station enroute back to Shanghai the only untoward accident of the entire trip occurred. The closed auto in which they riding stopped to let Mr. Close post a telegram. A procession of native people were passing and one of our boys got out to take a picture. At sight of the camera the people became excited and made a rush for the lad who climbed back into the car somewhat faster than he got out. This did not stop the mob which made short work of the windows of the sedan car. Just then Mr. Close returned and speaking to the people in their own tongue soon quieted them. No one was hurt except slightly from flying glass. When we reached Japan about a week later we found that this incident had been magnified by some Japanese yellow sheet newspaper to the point where six of our number had been killed and several injured.

At 2:30 p. m. on the 14th our ship headed down the Whang Poo and we felt that we were on our way HOME. The passage to Kobe, Japan, a distance of 900 miles across the Yellow Sea was lived up to bit on the second night by a hard wind which we were told was the tail end of a typhoon carrying on a performance about 200 miles to the south and east. Temperature readings for both air and water were found to be 80 degrees Fahrenheit. The temperature of the water gradually lessened as we neared the Japan coast but the warmth of the air remained the same. In Shanghai we had anticipated extreme heat but were happily disappointed as the weather bureau readings gave a range of from 78 to 86 daily. Fresno people would think this cool and it was but the humidity reached 99 nearly every day and as a consequence a person perspired heavily whether they exercised or not.

We reached the Straits of Shimonoseki between the islands of Hantsu and Kuisiu in the afternoon of a perfect day. The scenery as we passed thru the Straits was beautiful in the extreme but, as usual, "No picture taking is allowed here." Again we sailed through the Inland Sea but this time not along its shores and therefore saw little of their fascinating beauty. At night a dull red glow to the south on the Island of Kuisiu was pointed out as due to one of Japan's 53 maybe it was 57) varieties of volcanoes.

We disembarked at Koke Aug. 17. Perhaps it should be explained that those of the party disembarked who had money enough to do so or who had friends in position to make the necessary loans. Those who failed to qualify of either count remained on the boat and enjoyed (?) Japanese cooking for another week until the boat picked us up at Yokohama.

The city of Kobe is built on a rather narrow bench along the shore with quite high mountains crowding up close to its back door. There is an inclined cable road, electrically operated, which carries passengers up to within perhaps a thousand feet from the top of the range. We ascended this and the view from the top is a grand one of city and sea.

The Japanese are great lovers of nature and it was simply impossible to go anywhere without finding scores of quiet, sober, earnest looking people, old and young, enjoying all that nature and the clever skill of man combined has given them in these tight little islands. There were two points of interest which we hoped to visit but due to the weather conditions both had to be given up and we, with a good many others, left in disgust. One and the main point of interest was Japan's "toughest volcano" only eleven miles distant. It had been grumbling and growling for some time and we learned on our return to Tokyo, that the government guards would allow no one to go near the crater. The other place of some minor interest was a government leper colony only a short distance from the summer resort town. Karuzawa means "beautiful valley" but to all of us at the hotel it was "Samuizawa" as one of the Japanese gentlemen put it. This means cold valley.

Back in Tokyo we found we had one more day on our hands before embarking for America. This we decided to use in sight seeing about Yokohama and in paying our respects to one of the oldest American medical missionaries in Japan, Dr. W. S. Worden, honored alike by both foreigners and natives. It proved to be a long quest for tho we had the address it meant but little. Japanese number their houses in districts not along streets. It would be if applied to Fresno, thus "1257 State College" meaning 1257 in that part of our city called the State College District which might be all that area between McKinley Ave. and the Santa Fe tracks. As we passed through the city we had the opportunity to see manifestations of the terrible earthquake of 1923. The most spectacular of these was part of what had been a large brewery. It was a reinforced concrete building four or five stories in height and perhaps twenty-five to thirty feet square. The walls were almost intact but were tilted over at an angle of 50 to 60 degrees and held in that position by a great fragment of the original building against which it rests and the fact that the foundations had evidently settled so that the lower end was held firmly in the ground.

We finally found Dr. Worden in his home several miles down the shore of Tokyo Bay. The doctor's house is located on a hill (Yama) above the spot where Commodore Perry landed in 1852 when he opened relations between the United States and Japan. There is a story that the Samuri sent a delegation of eight warriors to meet Perry, each of whom had sworn to kill him. They dug a cave in the hill and hid their arms till such a time as they could be used. That time never came for Perry refused to meet them. On the side of the hill just back of the doctor's house and above the spot where Perry landed is a pit which undoubtedly is the one where the arms were concealed.

On August 23, the Arizona Maru cast off her moorings at the Yokohama dock, slowly swung out into the Bay among dozens of other craft of many different nations, and with many "banzis" and "good byes" we saw our friends who had decided to remain a while longer, slowly dim into the horizon.

The summer was over and gone, boyhood dreams had at last been realized, experiences that nothing but the loss of memory could efface had been ours, our world had, in a few short weeks, been lived and as it had been lived had been by remaining at home. We had seen two peoples of the Orient in their native element and we had discovered that they were not different in their experiences, aspirations and hopes than we; that they were facing the same problems as we have or are and that they were solving them in much the same ways. In short, the inscription over the entrance to China's new capital building in Nanking tells the whole story:

"Between the Four Seas All Are Brothers."

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

"Some one of our family always is away"

Said Mrs. Adams to her caller.

"But we manage to keep in close touch by using the telephone. Mr. Adams calls home several times whenever he is away on a business trip. George and Alice both call home weekly from college. And I telephone Mother quite frequently.... we enjoy our telephone visits so much."

Daily, more and more people are discovering how easy it is to keep in touch with friends and relatives by telephone; how pleasant "telephone visits" are and how little they actually cost.

For instance, consider the following representative rates for three-minute, Day Station-to-Station Long Distance calls:

|-------------------------------|--------------|
| Detroit to Grand Rapids       | ..... $ .95 |
| Menominee to Sault Ste. Marie | ..... 1.10   |
| Lansing to Petoskey           | ..... 1.15   |
| Saginaw to Benton Harbor      | ..... 1.00   |

"The country bank is an institution very much needed and most needed when it doesn't exist. The deserving local merchant, farmer, laborer and home builder need a bank as badly as does the corporation that issues stocks and bonds for investment consumption."

1423 Miles of Fire Lines in Michigan Forests

Through Michigan's 12 state forests are 16 foot fire lines, which if placed along a straight line would extend half way across the United States, figures issued by the Forestry Division of the Conservation Department show.

At the beginning of this year 1,423 miles of fire lines had been built through the state forests, 247 miles having been added within the past two years.

So effective have these lines been in protecting the valuable timber growths under state supervision and administration, that last year, one of the most hazardous fires in more than a decade, less than four tenths of one per cent of the area under protection was burned over. The monetary damage was insignificant. The largest loss of the year was 190 acres of recently planted forest and it was of incendiary origin.

Fire lines have always been constructed in the forests to the greatest extent permitted by available funds.

All of the miles of lines built are of a standard design, consisting of brushed out width of 16 feet, grubbed for 14 feet and plowed for a width of ten to eleven feet.

Although the actual construction of fire lines is expensive, the maintenance costs are comparatively low—running only about three or four dollars per mile per year. Maintenance of fire lines includes keeping the openings clean of brush, grass and other inflammable material.

Michigan farmers who showed the way during 1930 in the production of corn, beans and sugar beets were announced Farmers Week as winners of the production contests conducted for those crops during the past year under the supervision of members of the farm crops department at Michigan.

Twenty men were named as banner beet growers. To acquire the title the men have to produce an excellent crop by methods which will leave them a profit. The men and their counties are Semon Boltenbacher, Isabella; E. G. Hoffert, Gratiot; A. T. Conroy, Genesee; Galyord Merriman, Seneca; Earl T. Bayes, Isabella; C. B. Shampie, Hillsdale; T. A. Thurman, Macomb; Emil Van Gothen, Eaton; Frank Throop, Isabella; V. W. Morrish, Genesee; Vern Cronk, Eaton; H. H. Stems and son, Monroe; Ben Keimrath, Gladwin; Glenn Phelps, Allegan; A. W. Schuster, Eaton; J. E. Bradley, Tuscola; Paul Dalke, Bay; Bert Galick, Gratiot; and O. W. Wegner, Lenawee.

Four men from each of the three regional divisions of Michigan were awarded honors in corn growing. George Rae, Bay City, led the other contestants by obtaining a yield of 86 bushels of shelled corn per acre. Walter L. Foster of Sanilac won a fifty dollar cup as the champion bean grower.

Michigan Farmers Make Good Records in Production Races

While the educational value of a trip through a fish hatchery is recognized to be high, many people, for some unaccountable reason, have felt hesitant in visiting them, according to Fred W. Westerman, head of the Fish Division of the Department of Conservation.

Fish hatcheries are public institutions, "manufacturing" plants, the products of which are distributed for the benefit of everyone. As such they should be objects of public interest and the fish division wishes to encourage visitors to the stations.

While every year hundreds are shown through the hatcheries, fishery ponds and feeding stations, the hatcheries could be made objects of practical lessons in conservation for school children.

"We want to encourage visits of school classes," Mr. Westerman said. "With the children seeing for themselves practical fish culture and learning what is being done to protect lakes and streams with hatcheries, they will have a better appreciation of conservation that should go far in assuring enthusiastic conservationists during the next twenty or thirty years."

All of the hatchery overseers have been engaged in fish culture for years. They are fully competent to properly guide the visitors through the institutions and are always glad to do so.

In all of the hatcheries can be seen the eggs as they are hatched into baby "fry." Then these little fish are advanced by proper care and feeding to the larger or "fingerling" stage. In the feeding ponds are countless thousands of those fingerlings waiting to be planted in the wild waters of the state. Practically every hatchery has ponds that contain a variety of almost every species found in Michigan. These ponds are always objects of considerable interest.

2460 Licenses Issued Last Year to Clam Fishers

The Department of Conservation issued 2,460 clam licenses during the year 1930, an increase of 30 per cent over the previous year.

A report issued today by the department shows that 2,454 resident and six non-resident clam licenses were sold during the year, and that practically all of them were issued in the southwestern part of the state. The total clam license sales in Michigan during the year 1929 was 1,793.

According to license sales, as reported by agents, the Grand River system through Ionia and Kent counties is the most popular clamming site in the state. Agents issued 1,046 licenses in these two counties alone. Four hundred and twenty licenses were issued in St. Joseph county. Other counties in which clamming licenses were purchased were: Allegan, Berrien, Mecosta, Montcalm, Newaygo and Osceola.

SAYS HUMAN BODY NEEDS ATTENTION

PHYSICIAN URGES HOME MAKERS TO PREVENT DISEASE.

The most valuable machine, the one needing the best care and the greatest attention of the year haulings, is the human body, was the message given to the audience of home makers during Farmers Week by Dr. Bertha VanHooosen, who is a practicing surgeon in Chicago.

Dr. VanHooosen said that the chief ideal of a doctor should not be to cure but to prevent disease and thus avoid the great economic loss and the anxiety which accompanies any illness.

One of the preventive measures recommended by the Chicago physician was the arrangement of a diet which would insure that the body receives some of each of the essential vitamins each day.

A breakfast menu mentioned by Dr. VanHooosen contained a fruit, bean and egg.

She also advised the audience to drink plenty of water.

Game Department Takes 500 Guns From Violators

More than 500 guns were confiscated from conservation law violators during the year 1930.

According to the law enforcement division of the Conservation Department, 228 rifles and 353 shotguns were taken because they were being user in violation of conservation laws. All of these guns are sold at public sale at the Department's Lansing office.

During the year the department confiscated 887 traps, 813 muskrat pelts and 10,442 pounds of fish in addition to other pelts, several automobiles, motor and row boats and implements and materials used in violation of conservation laws.

The division reported 4,260 convictions for violations of conservation laws for the year, 2,130 of which were fish law cases, 1,506 game law cases, and 624 other cases and 45 miscellaneous conservation law cases. Violators paid $59,400 in fines, $39,041 in court costs and served an aggregate of 9,360 days in jail.

A high light of the convention program was the annual banquet held on Thursday evening, Jan. 29, when four hundred gathered for this function, with the state legislators and state officials attending as guests of the Press Association.

Gov. Wilbur M. Brucker, former governor Fred W. Green, Lieutenant Governor Dickinson, Fred Ming, speaker of the house; President Robert Shaw of M. S. C., and A. Van Koevering, president of the M. P. A., appeared on the banquet program, along with Dean G. J. Laing of Chicago University.

BASKETBALL BIOGRAPHIES

Louie and Lauren Morse, the second pair of twins on the Buchanan basketball team, were born Feb. 10, 1914, in Wabash, Ind.

Besides Louie and Lauren there is a brother, Robert, who played two years on the B. H. S. basketball team, captaining it in his senior year, and a sister, Mildred, also somewhat of an athlete.

Upon graduating from the junior high, they reported for high school athletics. Last year, their freshman year, they reported for football and were assigned to the reserve squad at first for seasoning.

Lauren, the left-handed twin likes parties, apple-wood cake, and blond women! However, he is not so keen for theme composition or symphony orchestras.

The students are to be relieved of their daily duties once more, Friday, Feb. 20. School will close for the day as teachers journey to Niles for Teachers' Institute.
