BALLADE OF LOST LOVE
BI HAYS
To be sung with a semi-musical accompaniment by the (Maynard) Post Toasties orchestra.

And comb'd my face and feet. That night they had the nicest fire On Alexander Street.

ought we never would arrive. It seemed to take all day. For old Walt Thanning had to drive His hose cart in my way.

The show was on like a house afire. The people all were there. I parked my bug in front of a plug For Tenny didn't care.

But Mister Mitchell came around And tried to stick his nose in. He said, "You'll have to move that car."

I said, "I'll stay right where I am. The very simple fact is You can take and move your darned old plug For I guess I paid my taxes."

I said, "Your nerve is sure sublime In asking me such things, which'll Be quite enough from you this time— Good evening, Mister Mitchell."

The people got around so thick The firemen couldn't turn. So they just sat down upon the grass And let the darned thing burn.

The family all were stuck upstairs. So they climbed out on the shed. And jumped right out into the air And lit in a feather bed.

Inside we heard the bedbugs pop Like corn in a popper tin; You should have heard the people yell

When the whole blame roof fell in. My girl, she got mad and went home For, what do you suppose? When Mathis yelled, "The shack's burned down, So roll up all the hose,"

She said, "The firemen in this town Are sure no gentlemen, And just for that I'll never go To a darned old fire again."

They Get Their Bouquets in the Garbage Cans. Well, there may be a town just across the Indiana line that claims a larger population but Buchanan held the record for speedy street clearances in the big snow storm last week. Over all the towns in this part of the country, according to travelers passing through. Another bouquet for the street department.

League of Notions Announcement. The Buchanan Swedish Society celebrated St. Patrick's Day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Neils Anderson Tuesday evening, a considerable number from the Ould Sod being present. An "a devil of a time" was had by all present.

JUST AN OLD-FASHIONED GIRL. We ran across an old-fashioned lady in Buchanan this week, who when we asked her whether or not she would oblige the paper with an announcement replied: "I'll have to ask my husband."

Timber is the word. What with three building contractors and an ex-umberman in the city election race, there should be plenty of political timber in sight.

AGED DAYTON MAN IS LOST ENTIRE NIGHT

Julius Reinke, 83, incurs a Leg Fracture and Severe Exposure.

Julius Reinke, 83, aged resident of Dayton, is a patient in the Pawaing Hospital at Niles as the result of severe injuries and exposure incurred when he lost his way last night while attempting to return to his own home from that of his son, Dixie Reinke.

Mr. Reinke had gone to spend the evening with his son and had left about 9 p. m. for his own home. As near as can be ascertained, Mr. Reinke Sr., walked the ten rods or less to his own driveway, but instead of turning in there, he turned in the opposite direction, and after wandering some time, he came out on the Michigan Central right of way and followed it to Bekertown. He left the railway there and came to the home of Ernest Price about 1 a. m. Price told him to go to the home of Ralph Seabast, a short distance away, telling him that Seabast would take him home.

The old man met with mishap en route and never reached the Seabast house. Instead Mr. Seabast came out about 5:30 a. m. and found Reinke sitting on the ground with his back against the wall of the hog house, almost unconscious from cold and exposure, and with his right leg fractured above the knee, his left wrist sprained and his face severely cut. He was just able to make a sound but could not give an intelligible explanation of his plight. Seabast took him immediately to the Pawaing hospital. It is presumed that he tried to climb one of the fences around the barnyard and fell, crawling the remainder of the distance to the hog house. He had evidently fallen several times and his clothing was wet. It was feared for some time that the exposure would result in pneumonia, but he is now reported to be in a satisfactory condition.

Mad Dog Kills Number Stock at S. Carpenter Farm

Depredations by a mad dog are believed to have been responsible for the loss of three sheep and a heifer at the Sanford Carpenter farm recently, a Watervliet veterinarian having been called to treat the heifer and stated that she was evidently affected with that disease. The Carpenter sheep were attacked by a dog which cornered them in the corral several weeks ago. Carpenter shot and killed the dog, but three sheep died from the effects of the attack. This week the heifer suddenly became ill, was unable to get up and bawled wildly and continuously. The veterinarian stated that stock bitten by a mad dog might not develop the disease for several months.

GALIEN NEWS

GALIEN SENDS RELIEF TRUCK TO ARKANSAS

John Welsh and Guy Hinman Drivers; Will Accompany Three Oaks Truck.

Galien, with all its generosity toward the less fortunate, came to the front when the call came for food to be sent to the southland, where a lack of rain prevented their usual crop of cotton and vegetables, and thereby caused a starving condition of its people.

John Welsh offered the use of his time and truck to take a truck load along with the big truck load from Three Oaks and our sister city offered to give any needed assistance in getting our donations to its destination. Nearly everyone in the township responded very freely and generously to the call, and can feel that they not only have done their duty to their fellowmen, but have exemplified the spirit of love and loyalty for in sincerity there is no safe basis for any other loyalty. Mr. Hesse is the driver of the Three Oaks truck and Guy Hinman will accompany Mr. Welsh. Babcocks gave the use of their store truck for helping to collect the food stuffs and their store as a central place for receiving the various articles. The goods that went from Galien were as follows, about 2500 lbs:

Potatoes, 22 bushels; turnips, 4 bushels; corn, 4 bushels; 37 packages, 22 lbs; clothing, 22 packages; canned milk, 1 case; flour, 1200 lbs; corn meal, 200 lbs; beans, over 400 lbs; sugar, 50 lbs.

World Famous COMMANDER with free wheeling

EVEN without Free Wheeling, Studebaker's world famous Commander Eight would still be the biggest value for the money in America.

The Commander is a car of generous wheelbase—124 inches—a comfort further enhanced by Studebaker's famous ball bearing spring suspension.

The Commander engine develops 101 certified horsepower—the greatest power per cubic inch, with two exceptions, to be found in any American motor car. The two exceptions are the engines of cars costing, roughly, $1000 and $3000 more than The Commander!

Commander performance and comfort thus form an ideal natural background for the joy, the economy and the safety of Free Wheeling.

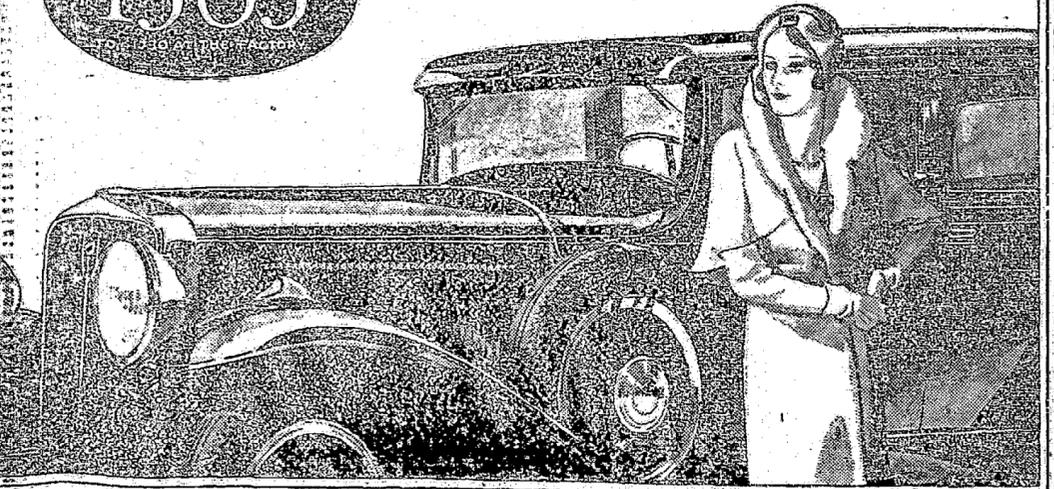

Free Wheeling with positive gear control, as introduced by Studebaker and adopted, unchanged, by Pierce-Arrow and Lincoln, gives you silent gear shifting at all speeds—freedom from clutch-pushing—12 to 20 per cent proved gasoline and oil saving—incomparably restful, zestful motoring—and the added safety attested by public traffic officials from coast to coast.

One drive will convince you there is no value comparable to this seasoned Eight by Studebaker, Pioneer and Pacemaker. May we place a Commander Eight at your disposal?

The Commander Eight Four-door Sedan is $1585 at the factory. Other Commander Eight models range in price from $1385 to $1730 at the factory. Bumpers and spare tires extra.

Here is America's utmost Eight value

Politics and Education

The governor of Mississippi seems to have gotten his state into trouble by his education activities. According to the Little Rock Democrat, he pursued a remarkable policy of hiring and firing educators.

He is said to have given one college presidency to a public utilities press agent, another to a young man who only received his college degree last year, and a third to a real estate salesman who had no college degree at all. He fired the dean and entire faculty of the law school and gave the deanship to a politician. He made his son-in-law, a dentist, a professor of materia medica in the medical college.

As a result, the Democrat observes: "Four colleges have been blacklisted by the American Association of University Professors. The American Chemical Society has advised its members against accepting employment in the Mississippi facilities. The American Association of Universities has dropped the University of Mississippi from its membership. So has the American Society of Civil Engineers in the cases of the universities of engineering units. The Agricultural and Mechanical College likewise is affected. Federal aid funds have been denied the state's agricultural college. The Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools of the southern states has suspended Mississippi's college."

Showers again what unfortunate results come from mixing politics with education.

Culture Wins

It is an age that demands practical results of everything. Education and religion must get us somewhere or we'll have none of them. At least that is the way we talk. In practice, it is different.

A college for grown-ups opened its doors a few years ago to help people interested in applied education. Cultural courses were not stressed. Men and women wanting to get ahead in their jobs were expected to take practical courses.

In the few years of the institution's existence it has acquired an enrollment of 7,000 students. To the astonishment of many observers, cultural courses have proved most popular. Bookkeepers are glad to learn the latest things about accountancy, but they are more enthusiastic about literature and drama and history and philosophy and a lot of other things which seemingly have little relation to their bread and butter. So the technical courses are studied on the side while the cultural courses have become the chief business of the college.

This shows fundamental good sense on the part of the men and women who are supplementing the scanty education of their youth with extra study now. Cultural subjects, well taught, are practical. They widen the outlook, bring breadth of understanding, develop a background for more intelligent thinking. They are both nourishment and recreation for the mind.

The Malt Tax

The last legislature passed a malt tax which was expected to and did produce at the rate of two millions a year. By some misconstruction of its terms the method of levying the tax was made such that the tax was declared unconstitutional. Probably its proceeds will have to be refunded. Wherefore, it is proposed to repeal the tax and end the chapter.

No matter what the subterfuges as to its uses, there is no doubt that the malt syrup produced and sold in Michigan does not all enter into the making of bread and cookies. It is the basis of home brewing operations for the production of beer, a form of entertainment that is either not flatly forbidden by the Volstead act, as interpreted, or is carried on in spite of such prohibition. In that sense it is one of the luxuries or frivolities of life, which have always been looked upon as minor subjects of taxation. Therefore the tax, as a state revenue, applicable either to the purpose of the general fund of the state or as a particular appropriation purpose, should not be allowed to go by the board.

Speaker King, of the House of representatives, has vigorously declared that the tax should be re-enacted with its unconstitutional features ironed out. He is eternally right.

Aerial Commuting

The other day Capt. Frank Hawks, "speed monarch of the air," flew from Fort Worth, Texas, to New York city to fill a lecture engagement. The next day he flew back to Fort Worth to resume his benevolent barnstorming tour of the southwest with Will Rogers in behalf of drought relief.

It was a 1,400-mile trip each way. The flyer reached New York in eight hours and 30 minutes with three stops along the way for refueling.

That casual little jaunt back to New York just to keep an engagement was spectacular. One of these days such flights will be commonplace. How simple it will be then to commute from pleasant residential communities to offices in distant cities. Going from one coast to the other for week ends will be amazingly easy and inexpensive. Short vacations will no longer limit travel-weary souls to nearby scenes. It's a great prospect.

Cal's Verities

What we need, says Cal Coolidge, is education and religion. To quote him accurately: "What a self-respecting people really need is not a system of old-age pensions but a population made sufficiently skilled by education and sufficiently self-controlled and well disposed by the help of religion so that old age pensions would be a superfluity."

True enough. And how are we going to get that population into that frame of mind? They have to get themselves there. And they have to move from within, as Cal adds, or no real reform will be accomplished.

Day by day Cal writes his little piece. He says that two and two are four and that skill is better than brainless drudgery and that enough is better than vacuity. One day he went so far as to say that religion may do for a people what paternalism will not.

Some days his readers laugh at him and some days they smile with him. But always they nod their heads and say, "Yes, that's so, all right." He doesn't say anything very new or startling. But why, on second thought, should he? There are plenty of columnists to mistake a superficial froth for a new thing under the sun.

The eternal verities have to be restated once in a while. It might not even be a bad idea to consider religion as a moving force. It would at least be a rest from the maze of present economic theory.

Struggles and Spinach

There seems to be too much spinach in the child world nowadays. A distressed mother writes to her magazine that her two-year-old baby simply will not eat spinach and carrots, and what shall she do? Apparently the mother could not believe that a child could live without spinach. The answer is that it is quite possible to do more harm to a child with a daily struggle than good with daily spinach. Wise Angelo Patri is moved to protest against feeding children the same thing every day.

There must be thousands of young mothers who think is some spinach is good, more must be better. But any doctor will tell her life doesn't work that way.

Let 'em have spinach today and carrots tomorrow and beats the day after that, and then green beans—what, canned? Why not?—and then cauliflower, and then sweet potato, and then cream of celery soup, and then a vegetable soup with funny little noodles like letters or shells or something interesting. By that time spinach will taste good again. If it's made into a little nest with tiny carrot or beet eggs in it, and a dab of mild French dressing, made with lemon juice, once in a while that's not so bad, either.

Spinach is good, and so are carrots. They need, however, to be seasoned with sense. Hercules probably got along without either.

Modernizing the Battleship

One can hardly find a reason for quarrelling with the senate for voting money to modernize three old battleships which navy experts had pronounced out of date. Opponents of the measure asserted that all battleships are obsolete anyway, and declared that this nation is under no necessity of keeping its battle fleet up to the level of Britain's, but the senate voted the modernization funds in spite of these protests.

The London naval treaty would seem to have set a good gauge for the American fleet. If we are to maintain a naval establishment at all, we might as well maintain a good one, and as long as the heads of our navy believe that the battleship still has value, we might as well keep our battleships up to date. The general question of naval armament reduction does not seem to enter into this particular situation at all.

Seven Unsolved Murders

The Manchester Guardian, British newspaper, is alarmed because "in seven capital crimes in the past year the murderer remains undetected." That's for the whole country, not for Manchester or London alone. It reveals the great difference between the crime situation in England and in America. Many of our large cities have worse records, year after year, without considering the situation unusual or particularly alarming.

What is the difference in public viewpoint? What is the difference in procedure toward the apprehension and punishment of criminals? The subject needs more study than it has had, by thoughtful private citizens quite as much as by public officials.

The war industries board in Washington is discussing ways and means of conducting the next war. If the United States navy is neglected the next war will be a walk-away for the enemy.

Congress is reported to be studying a way to make paper money last longer. It's a funny thing, but most of us have been working on the same problem for some time now.

White ants are driven from houses in India, where they cause much damage, to woodwork and rugs, by hunting out and destroying the queen ants of each colony.

The Old Timer's Corner

Old Timer Can Superintend Lot Farm Work From Dental Chair

"Well, this is a good time to be doing 'odd jobs' around the farm. Remember that part for the mover that was worn pretty badly and we thought we would get a new part for it before having time come again? Well, or a part for the binder, perhaps or some other implement. It's a bunch of things to get that one up a little than to buy a new one, when so little income is in sight.

Then I think the harness will have to be oiled and cleaned up and see that all the horse collars are in good shape, fix up that double-tree that we broke last fall, pulling out the old apple stump and man what we are going to do for seed potatoes and corn, etc.

That three-year-old colt ought to be put into the harness a little early, too, and driven around a while so he will get toughened up for the spring work. Old Pan is getting pretty old and her feet are getting very good, you know, and this young fellow will have to fill in and help her out. Well, he ought to be a big husky fellow and ought to help his mother, that much.

I was down in the wood shed and it looks pretty dirty, so I think we will take a hair day off and get in there and clean up the other side of the place and get all that dry wood over by the door and haul in a load or two of that green stuff that we cut up in the woods this winter. A few good green chunks will help hold the fire, and by this Spring or Summer it will be good, and dry in there.

The potatoes are getting so full of sprouts, that it makes them soggy. Better clean them up and your mother will be glad not to have to fool with the sprouts all the time, too.

The fence is down on the north side of the chicken yard, it will take a new post and a couple of 2x4s to brace it up and I think the wife is all right if you straighten it out a little. That last heavy snow we had sort of wrecked things in places. I noticed that there is a big branch of that old pine tree down in the yard, that's broken and we will have to get a ladder and get up in there and saw it off. It won't be long now before we will be busy in the fields and we won't have time for these little 'odd jobs'.

Did you, 'all the wind mill, the other day when I spoke of it to you? All right, so that's O.K. and we will have to get at hauling the manure pretty soon. Want to get some out on that west twenty before the ground gets soft. We will use the stone boat for that. Better get at it tomorrow and all of us will pitch in and it won't take long.

It seems there is plenty to do this time of the year, in fact if you are wise, you will always find something to do, and then when the busy summer work comes on, anything you read to use and no delays are required.

Heyde Loses High Score Mark to Stevens of the Clark Office.

Leaders in the title race in the City Bowling League slipped several notches in last week's play, the Three Oaks five losing three in a row to the Clark Office and the Beck's Tire five, runners-up, donated three to the Dixie Oil quintet.

Another feature of the play was the exchange of relative positions between Heyde of the First National five and Stevens of the Clark Office as high average scorers. Heyde had led with 182, Stevens trailing him with 181. Last week they traded scores, Stevens rising to 182 and Heyde dropping

U. of M. Tests

Effects of Sound in a Noisy Room

Ann Arbor.—Radio microphones and an echoing room give more accurate results in testing the loudness of sounds than does a room heavily padded in an attempt to smother all but the original source of sound, University of Michigan physicists working under the direction of Prof. F. A. Firestone have proved.

The University of Michigan sound room is located three stories underground beneath the East Physics building. Standing on its own foundation and with an air space at the sides and top, the room is in fact an independent small building buried within a larger one, and unaffected in any appreciable degree by sound vibrations from outside sources.

Within, the chamber is finished with hard plaster walls, and being a cube in shape, free from any projections, it encourages rather than prevents echoes and reverberations of any sound within it. To add to the apparent confusion of echoes there is suspended from the ceiling a two-bladed fan of large area which revolves slowly and continually breaks up the reverberating sound waves from the walls into smaller and mixed echoes.

Attached to each blade of this fan is a microphone which twists through the room picking up the sound at different points and conveying it outside to a series of amplifying tubes, meters and a device for tuning in whatever pitches of the total sound are desired. The method of sound testing allows accurate determination of the whole amount of sound and its superior for purposes of sound intensity measurement to methods carried out in a padded room, since the walls of the latter at best never absorb even half the sound waves and allow a certain amount of reflected sounds to interfere with the direct sound from the source. In the Michigan room, however, the word can be heard for fifteen seconds, and is reflected back and forth for a distance of three miles, the apparent jumble of sound can be accurately ordered and measured by the radio devices.

Should Test Herds Even in Bad Times

The dairyman who permits his membership in the herd improvement association to lapse in the belief that his pocketbook will be benefited by the elimination of this expense is apt to forget that the feed eaten by one poor cow or the sale of a good cow whose worth is not known from testing records will cost the owner much more than the expense for testing, according to members of the dairy department at Michigan State College.

This tendency to false economy is shown by the decrease in the number of herd associations in Michigan which dropped from 90 one year ago to 88 at the present time. Dairy husbandry men point out that test records are more important in times of small profit than when there is a wider margin between feed costs and production receipts.

Production records furnish the least expensive exact means of determining the amount of milk or butterfat produced by a cow, and a record of the amount of feed eaten by the cow furnishes the rest of the data needed to show how much profit the cow makes for her owner or the amount of money lost.

The herd improvement associations are co-operative organizations in which each member pays an amount proportionate to the number of cows in his herd. The tester's wages are practically the only expense and these are divided among the twenty-five members of the association.
