PAJAMA GIRL

Bi Haws

When first I looked on her I said,
"She's nothing but another red hot mamma.
No maiden who has very much refinement would be seen in such pajamas."

She had a strange effect on me; I kneeed to take her cross my knee.

And spank'er;
This was but two short months ago
And now I look at her and know
No rancor.

I think it was that stretch of hide
That she had on display out side Enclosure
That made me want to hunt a board
And spank her on her southernward Exposure.

I have small fancy, I confess For fancies who by their mode of dress

Invite us
To turn around and look again, So bare you can see their appendicitis.

And yet, though once her style I spurned
I must admit at last I've learned To love her.

The reason is, of course, old bean,
The last few weeks I've really seen More of her.

Ghost Writer Touches Up Another Prominent Citizen

The anonymous genius who has set out to show us up as a rhyme spinnig (and incidentally get us beat up on if he keeps his present gait) contributes another thumb nail sketch, in conformance with his custom of touching up one prominent citizen per week.

The Record believes in everybody's chance to express themselves, and accordingly in this case values a standing rule in newspaper offices that all communications be accompanied by the signature of the authors, for the private information of the editor at least.

The product of the ghost writer is amusing and original. He signs himself "S" and incidentally writes some stuff we don't dare print.

This week he contributes a characterization of Bill Baker, to be sung to the tune of "East Side, West Side."

Woe Willie Baker, the chief parexcellence, He'll cook and he'll sing and he'll whistle, and he'll slip in a story or two

About the traveling salesman and the farmer's daughter, Sue, I'd hate to race him drinking beer and have to roll him home

And make him think he was walking rope in some big hippodrome.

And Bill can jerk his sodas as well as flop his steaks, But the guy that hired him soon fired him, he didn't get the breaks.

Oh, yes, about his baseball game, he was a manager for years Until some one stole the catcher's mit and left poor Bill in tears.

But he'll get along all right, cause voters always take care Of guys like Bill and will see that life gives him all his share.

Large Crowds
in Attendance
Band Concerts

Band concerts have definitely returned to the good graces of the public, if they ever lapsed, as the events of the past few weeks have been attended by the largest crowds in years. The country districts and the Gallen section are especially in evidence on the streets. The stores of the city were thronged with shoppers last night and brisk business was in evidence.

FAMED RELIGIOUS LEADERS SPEAK AT WINONA LAKE

Scott McBride, Billy Sunday and Paul Rader to be Among High Lights.

It looks as though Winona's claim to have this year the greatest Bible Conference ever is fully justified by the array of exceptional talent offered.

There are four outstanding days. First: Eighteenth Amendment Day, Saturday, Aug. 15, Clinton N. Howard, known as the little giant, will speak at 9:30 a. m. and at 7:30 p. m. F. Scott McBride, famous as the leader of the Anti-Saloon League forces, will speak at 4 p. m., and the prohibition orator, Charles Jesse, will speak once at 6:30 p. m. Other speakers on the regular Bible Conference program throughout the day.

Second: The First Sunday, Aug. 16. Dr. Toyohiko Kagawa, the famous Japanese evangelist, leader and social worker whose work in carrying out his slogan in Japan, "a million souls for Christ," has caused the whole religious world to stop and take note with profound thanksgiving to God. He speaks at 3 o'clock. Other speakers on the regular Bible Conference program throughout the day.

Third: Home Coming Day, on Thursday, Aug. 20. "Billy" Sunday speaks at 3 o'clock. He will give one of his greatest sermons. Thousands of old Winonians will pour into the conference for this Home Coming Day.

Fourth: The Last Sunday, Aug. 23. Paul Rader, world missionary evangelist, speaks at 2:30 p. m. The huge "Billy" Sunday tabernacle, seating 8,000, is always packed to its capacity when Paul Rader speaks.

Prospects of a good peach crop, both in Michigan and the rest of the peach growing states, lead the department of horticulture at Michigan State college to advise housewives to prepare to add a large supply of this fruit to the family's winter stores.

There seemed to be the market in quantities until late September and it is impossible to tell just when they will be cheapest. The Michigan crop usually starts on the market the middle of August and this state will have three times the number of peaches it had last year.

Locally grown, tree-ripened fruit usually has the best flavor and makes the best canned product. The price of sugar is low this year so housekeepers have an excellent opportunity to preserve a year around supply of peaches.

Varieties recommended for home canning are Rochester, South Haven, Kalamazoo, Engle, J. H. Hale, and Dyer and are the Michigan canners will be surprised to find that several varieties of peaches have better qualities for the pantry shelves than Libertas, but any of the varieties named can be used with the assurance that they will be satisfactory.

Bugs are Not Worried About The Depression

These times are not acclaimed as any paradise for Michigan farmers but this year could qualify as a heavenly period for insects and the latest to join the buzzing choir is the chinch-bug which has been reported to the entomology department of Michigan State College as damaging crops in several southern Michigan counties.

The chinch-bug has been feeding on wheat and is now moving into the corn fields. If it once becomes established in the corn, it can not be eradicated but it can be stopped before it gets into the field, or when it is working only on the rows along the fences.

LOWELL IS ONE HUNDRED YEARS OLD

Will Celebrate Event in a Big Way on August 6th, 7th and 8th.

According to chronology, in the year 1831 a trader penetrated the wilds of the Grand River valley to Flat river near where the two join and established a trading post and bartered with the Indians for furs. Shortly other white settlers were attracted to the post and erected places, very crude, which they called home, located to the spot by the favorable location. Before many years a busy little village appeared and Lowell, Michigan, became a town widely known, not only as a fur trading post, but also for its thrift in other lines of business. The two rivers provided avenues of transportation and water power, but soon two railroads were started and the town at once became a prosperous community with an enviable reputation.

One hundred years have passed and Lowell has long since passed the pioneer stage. It is quite fitting that we should invite all to this, our centennial, to help us make merry on this occasion.

Especially are former residents asked to return to Lowell on spot 6, 7 and 8, renew old acquaintances and form new ones and share the joys of music, song, parades, pageants, games, barbecues, and varied attractions. Come and join us on this occasion.

Tagging Proves That Trout Swim Across Lake Mich.

A swim across Lake Michigan doesn't offer many obstacles to a rainbow trout. In fact, according to the Department of Conservation, such a trip is rather ordinary.

The Institute for Fisheries Research of the Department has reported that a trout tagged by Smith Brothers, commercial fishermen at Port Washington, Wis., July 18, 1930, was recently caught at Junction Dam on the Manistee River. It is also reported that a rainbow trout tagged at Junction Dam was later caught by Richard Lade and son three miles north of Manitowish, Wis.

The chinch-bug does not fly in its travels to new feeding grounds and its march can be stopped by preparing dust barriers, or barriers made by plowing two furrows.

A 10 or 12 inch weighted plank can be drawn back and forth across the line of march of the insects until a smooth path is formed. A series of post holes are dug in the center of this path and a line of tar one inch wide is laid on the side of the path nearest the corn field. The line of tar should touch the edge of each post hole and about two inches of hydrated lime should be placed in the bottoms of the holes, which should have beveled edges. The bugs follow along the line of tar, fall in the holes and are smothered by the lime, which should be renewed occasionally.

The other barrier is made by forming a dust mulch on a strip of ground six or seven feet wide. One furrow is plowed in the center of this strip with the earth thrown toward the insects, and a second is plowed in the same furrow with the earth thrown toward the corn field. A log 12 or 18 in. in diameter is then drawn back and forth thru the furrow until the earth is pulverized. The bugs fall in the furrow and can not get out. The log should be hauled back and forth in the furrow daily to kill the bugs and keep the earth pulverized.

Blame Lazy Beetle For Hopper Plague

The clouds of grasshoppers which ate up the crops of the ancients were supposed to be a signal that the gods were offended, but the swarms which are working their way through Michigan counties this year are known to be due to the laziness of the blister beetles that are supposed to keep the grasshoppers in check, according to the entomology department of Michigan State College.

The larvae of some of the blister beetles feed almost exclusively on the eggs of grasshoppers and as long as there is a plentiful supply of these eggs the larvae grow fat and the beetles increase rapidly in numbers. When they have eaten so many eggs that the grasshopper crop is reduced, the larvae starve, and the beetle population is cut down to a point where it ceases to be a check upon the hoppers.

Right now the hoppers have the upper hand and man must use some poison bait to kill them or suffer the damages they will do to his crops. This bait can be prepared at little cost, especially if a large quantity is mixed for all the farmers of a community, and it effectively stops the grasshoppers.

The bait is no good unless it is properly mixed with the correct ingredients and farmers in the infested areas can be sure that their bait is prepared correctly if they will ask the county agent to give them detailed directions.

Game Department Scaled Down Fines During Depression

Penalties inflicted on conservation law violators reached a new low ebb during June when the Division of Field Administration of the Conservation Department reported an average fine and costs of $12.79. This is the lowest average penalty reported in several years.

For several months the penalties have been growing more lenient. During June, 1930, the average was $19.16.

The Division reported 450 convictions for the month as compared with 425 for the same month in 1930. The total paid in fines and costs was $5,757.35 as compared with $5,444.53 for June 1930.

General economic conditions are credited with the radical drop in the severity of penalties for breaking game and fish laws. During June, 27 cases resulted in suspended sentences, justices preferring to suspend payment of fines rather than impose the alternative of a jail sentence on men with families and unable to pay.

Violators served a total of 877 days in jail, an increase from 305 days reported for the same month a year ago.

Not a single one of the 450 persons convicted in June received the maximum penalty permitted for violation of game and fish laws, a fine of $100 or a jail term of 90 days.

The period covered by the Division's report, including the few weeks just prior to the opening of the general fishing season and the week following the opening, shows a predominance of fishing law violators. Of the 450 cases reported, excluding three juvenile cases, 311 were for violations of the fishing laws, 28 were for violations of various game laws and 11 were for violations of fur laws.

Large Mortality in Fish Reported in Inland Lakes

The lack of water and the low lake levels which occurred at spawning time this year, are the reasons given by the Institute for Fisheries Research of the University of Michigan, for the large numbers of fish deaths reported from many inland lakes.

Examination of specimens of fish sent to the laboratories at Ann Arbor and observations made of various inland lakes have confirmed this opinion, Wendell R. Krull, fish pathologist of the Institute said in a report.

The most noticeable single abnormal condition in the fish has been the increased amount of fungus. "This is in some way associated with the lack of water, but just how is another question," the report said.

Krull believes that spearing through the ice may have some effect on later fungus attacks. "We know from specimens which have been sent to us, that many fish are injured in spearing and fishermen will not take the fish with 'white patches' on them. These are injured fish which have fungused and under cold water conditions will live for a long time, during which the fungus possible disseminates many spores which are capable of germinating very readily when the water is warmer."

The low water levels this year have, in all probability, seriously affected fish life. Since the water level was low at the spawning time of common fish found most abundantly in Michigan lakes, and since they are particularly sensitive to water conditions, their spawning activities, no doubt, were interfered with, even to the extent of making some of the normal spawning beds unavailable for fish. In Lake Mitchell, Westford County, for instance, the black bass did not occupy their spawning beds this spring. Depriving fish of their spawning beds, would, Krull said, increase injuries because of the increased stress among the fish, or at least, decrease the resistance among them as a result of fighting and retention of sex products.

These conditions as well as spawning, temporary starvation, sudden changes in water temperature, sudden changes in oxygen content of the water are factors which influence the susceptibility of fish to disease, particularly to fungus which is the only disease that can be held accountable for the unusual fish epidemics this summer.

Most of the losses reported during or just after the spawning season have been considered normal losses by the Institute.

These losses look very large, especially in lakes which are productive and support many large fish. At other times the losses looked large because the fish which die remain out in the lake until carried in by wave action. Sometimes after there has been no wind for a long time false impressions of the mortality are given because the fish which have died over a period of days wash into shore at one time.

"We suggest that before one says, 'thousands of fish are dying,' that he secure a more definite estimate," the report concludes.

The more body an oil has, the slower the ball drops. Note that used New Iso-Vis (Tube 2) has practically the same body as the fresh oil (Tube 1), while used "x" oil (Tube 3) has thinned out decidedly.

COMFORT

...costs so little

THE COST of ELECTRIC service comfort is so low that no family need "scrimp" on this item in the budget.

You must burn a 50 watt lamp at least two hours to add one cent to your bill while a 25 watt lamp runs four hours for a penny.

An ELECTRIC range does your cooking for one cent a meal per person and produces delicious scientifically cooked food with automatic regularity. In summer you "cook with cold" in your ELECTRIC refrigerator. Even when it runs steadily for one hour while you are freezing a dessert the cost, with a medium size machine, is about one cent. Half an hour with the vacuum cleaner will spruce up the house and you have added but a penny to your bill.

Run your ELECTRIC fan when you are warm. It operates for an hour at a cost of one-half cent. Truly, it takes a lot of comfort to run up an ELECTRIC bill. It is the smallest item on the family budget and costs less today than it did in pre-war days.

Contributes to Corner from Far Los AngelesThe Old Timers Corner has a new and welcome contributor this week in Mrs. R. E. Dempsey, a former resident who has made her home in Los Angeles, Calif., for the past twenty years. She sends an old poem for inclusion in the corner, with this following preface:The following beautiful composition was found on a battlefield near Charleston, S. C., during the Civil War, near the body of a wounded comrade who never lived to get home. It is quite a literary curiosity.
Now the Mercy Seat our souls do gather,
To do our duty to Thee (Our Father),
To whom all praise, all honor should be given, For Thou art the Great God (who art in heaven).
Thou by Thy wisdom rulest the World's whole frame, For ever therefore, (hallowed be Thy name), Let nevermore delay divide us from Thy gracious face but let (Thy kingdom come).
Let Thy commands opposed be by none,But Thy good pleasure and (Thy will be done)
And let promptness to obey be evenThe very same (in earth as it is in heaven.)Then for our souls, Oh Lord, we also pray Thou wouldst be pleased to (give us this day)The food wherewith our very souls are fed, Sufficient raiment and (our daily bread)With every needful thing do Thou relieve us, And of Thy mercy pity (and forgive us)All our misdeeds for Him whom Thou didst please To make an offering for (our trespasses)And forasmuch, Oh Lord, as we believe That Thou wilt pardon us (as we forgive)Let that love teach wherewith Thou dost acquaint us To pardon all (those who trespass against us),And though sometimes Thou findst we have forgot, This love for Thee, yet help (and lead us not)Through soul or body's want to desperation Nor let earth's gain drive us (into temptation),Lest that the soul of any true believer Fall in time of trial (but deliver)Yea, save them from the malice of the devil (us from evil), Thus pray we, Lord, for that of Thee from whomThis may be had, (for Thine is the kingdom), This world is of Thy works, its wondrous storyTo Thee belongs (the power and the glory);
And all Thy wondrous works have ended never,
But will remain forever and (forever).Thus we, poor creatures, would confess again
And thus would say eternally
