The state is furnishing the serum free and the doctors have also volunteered their services. However, since the toxin must be administered in three successive doses at intervals of a week, the organization wishes to pay them in part at least for the extensive amount of time involved.

Grudge Biggest Overhead, Asserts Lunch Club Talker

"The heaviest load you carry through life is a grudge," said Rev. Thomas Rice of the local Methodist church in an interesting and vital talk on "Life Investments" before the Tuesday noon meeting of the Luncheon club.

"If you have a competitor whom you consider unfair, or a business rival whom you consider guilty of unethical practice, it will not pay you to engender an attitude of bitterness," stated Rev. Rice. For the best investment that you can make in life is in an attitude of tolerance, and of forgiveness toward others. He who takes on a load of bitterness toward others, even though he believes it to be justified, has assumed a heavy handicap.

Attitudes of tolerance and charity toward others and the development of ideals of service and helpfulness constitute the best paying investments, the speaker stated. He illustrated his talk by instances from the lives of Eastman, Kreug-er, Sousa, and Brand, the first two of whom were immensely wealthy and the latter two comparatively poor in material goods, but increasingly rich in the world's esteem.

BALLAD FOR BARGAIN DAYS

Arise, my love, put on your shoes. Your bonnet and perhaps your collar—

No more—we have no time to lose Till we go forth and spend our dollar.

For bargains all are on display And Record ads are full of promise And we must do our bit this day, I feel that Herbert's counting on us.

While times are on the mend again And prosperous days lurk around the corner Should you and I be slackers then The late depression's only mourners?

So let us dig our dollar up Today we have our greatest chance And you can buy a silken gown And I will buy a pair of pants. Too long that dollar has been stowed

Beneath the vine behind our hovel So let us go and dig it up— My dear, where did you put that shovell!

Unsung and Unballyhoed And now that the election is over let us all stand up and remove our hats and pay a silent tribute of veneration for those unselfish and unsung heroes who offer themselves up annually on the altar of their party, without hope and without reward—the Republicans who fill out the ticket in Bertrand township.

No Fight, No Fun "Commission governments are bunk," Said Bucalyptus Gwinn, "For in the polls you cannot find Some one to vote again."

IN MEMORY OF
GRACE GRAFFORD
The beginning of steadfast friendship was marked by Grace's smiles. Friendship expanded and developed into love by all who knew her. No masterful artist could be more worthy than her affectionate regard for her friends. The ever restful sense of home Her shouts ring in the hall Her happy ways The smiles she gave And her shadows on the wall.

There were days of sorrow and shadow But after the showers, the sun would shine. But her face was forever smiling In that dear niece of mine. It is her face in vision That would vanish into air If I dared to touch the silence With the whisper of a prayer. Then with memories intermingling Of the real or the dream As the mill above the river Or the mist above the stream. This is a life of ceaseless labor Yours, with song and cheery call, In the twilight shades of evening Cast your smiles around us all. By her aunt, Mrs. Charles Dodge.

A Movie Treat for the whole family and you know it's worth the price...

When you take the family to the movies—you know, and they know—that three hours of feature entertainment is well worth the price. . . . but where do you get more for your money than in buying Electric Service?

But consider what values you and the family get when you buy electric service. To run a washing machine or a vacuum cleaner for three hours costs less than three cents—and substitutes leisure for drudgery.

THE GREAT ATLANTIC & PACIFIC CO.

94 Were Convicted For Breaking Game Laws in February

A total of 94 men were convicted during February of violating conservation laws in Michigan.

In issuing its report today, the division of field administration of the department of conservation showed only $1,041.65 paid in fines and costs against the number of persons taking alternate jail sentences exceeding the number who paid fines. Thirty three men paid a total of $587 in fines of an average of $17.78. Their court costs totalled $454.65.

Thirty-nine of the 96 convicted chose jail sentences ranging from 10 to 90 days in length. The total number of days included in sentences during the month reached 832.

Twenty-four of those convicted were placed on probation, received suspended sentences or were released on payment of court costs.

A system of "apprehension reports," in use by the division of field administration for several months, was one of the principal reasons for the small number of reported convictions. Under the apprehension report system, persons caught violating conservation laws of an unimportant nature sign statements admitting violation. If at some future time they are again apprehended, the reports are taken into court and the original apprehension report is used against them. Persons signing apprehension reports are warned that if they again break a game law they will be taken into court for the first violation.

This apprehension report system was inaugurated by the department in an attempt to enforce conservation laws and at the same time prevent clogging the jails with petty offenders. A majority of conservation law violators have always been men with little or no funds and because of the present economic conditions, they are forced to take alternative jail sentences.

The report of convictions for the month of February shows that of the 96 convictions, 12 were for possessing or using spears on trout streams, and eight were for the illegal possession of rainbow trout. The spring spearing law which permits spears on non-trout streams and the winter spearing law which permits spears on inland lakes during January and February offers a temptation to many to take game fish. Officers have also had difficulty in protecting game fish, the division claims, because spears may now be legally possessed.

Fifteen were convicted in February of hunting in game areas without gun permits.

Among other conservation laws violated and in which convictions were obtained were:

Killing deer and illegal possession of venison, 6; trapping beaver out of season and illegal possession of beaver, 4; illegal possession of pheasants, 6; trapping muskrats out of season and illegal possession of muskrat pelts, 6; possession of game fish out of season, 4; illegal possession of partridge, 2; using nets in inland waters, 3; illegal possession of ferret, 2; possession of more than limit of perch, 3; having ice lines unattended for more than one hour, 2; taking fox squirrel out of season, 2; using traps not properly tagged, 2; taking rabbits out of season, 6; having prairie chickens out of season, 1.

Three affidavits signed by hunters that they had been forced to pay $2.00 for small game licenses resulted in the arrest and conviction of Charles F. Sundstrom, Michigan, license agent. Sundstrom paid a fine of $1 and court costs of $7.75 when he pleaded guilty before Justice William St. John at Michigan.

One other $1 fine resulted from the conviction of Chas. Herrick, Oakland county, convicted of illegal possession of black bass. Herrick also paid court costs of $7.

The heaviest sentence among February convictions was meted out to John Rinta, Berrien, convicted of illegal possession of beaver. Rinta paid $107.75 in a fine and costs.

Floyd Barber, Greenville, convicted of having ice lines not attended within an hour was sentenced to 30 days in jail.

Essentials of Daily Diet For a Child

The essentials of the daily diet for a child have been summarized by Mrs. Amy Newberg of the nutrition staff as follows: "milk, quart or at least a pint; vegetables, two servings, one raw or quickly cooked; fruit; one serving of cooked or raw tomatoes, orange, grapefruit, or other raw fruit and one serving of cooked dried or fresh fruit; whole grain cereal or potato, at each meal; eggs, meat, fish, or cheese, one serving; sweets in small amounts after meal; butter, two or three times a day; codliver oil, 1 teaspoon of one tablespoon for the child up to 3 years of age, especially in winter months.

Some slight variations will have to be made for the different ages, but the basic requirements will remain the same throughout childhood. The child of 1-2 years will need the foods listed, with the exception of meat, fish, cheese, and sweets, but will be served to him in a very simple way. At the end of the first year the fruits and vegetables may be given as pulp, gradually introducing the whole, unstrained forms.

For the boy or girl of the teen age, the amount will have to be increased materially because of the added demands for growth and activity. The boy of 14-18 will require more food than will the adult. These requirements may be met by using liberal amounts of grain products and some additional sugar and fat to supplement the suggested list.

Students Present Homebrewed Plays at H. S. Assembly

Two plays written by seniors provided entertainment at the assembly program before spring vacation. They were "Rendezvous" by Teresa White, and "The Way In" by Mabel Meyers. These plays had been written in the Senior English class.

The first one, "Rendezvous," showed two thieves in a luxurious penthouse in New York. They were outwitted by the clever actress who lived in the apartment. The part of the actress was played by Teresa White and the two thieves by Robert Montgomery and Vincent DeNardo.

Stars in "The Way In" were Pauline Vandevy and Philip Hanlin. They were supported by Mabel Meyers and John Strayer and showed one way not to get in by not using the key.

General Science Class Undertakes Difficult Projects

Little has been said in the columns of the Microphone about one of the most interesting departments of the Buchanan high school, the science department.

The general science class holds the center of the stage at present, or this class is the most active and interesting division of the department.

A single glance at the list of projects on the bulletin board in Mr. Moore's lecture room will impress one with the truth of the above statement.

Music Dept. Will Stage Minstrels at H. S. Tonight

Thursday, April 7, brings us one of the long looked forward to events, Miss Crawford's minstrel show. This will be given in the high school auditorium at 1:15 p. m.

You, the readers, were once invited to "come and hear the amateur natives of darkest Africa," and now those same natives are tame enough to be let out of their cages. Maybe Caroline Bloodgood tamed Amos Bloodgood, Charles Blake, by the way, enough so that he'll be content with telling jokes and making wisecracks.

"If the public gets as big a kick out of this show as we do, it ought to be a roaring success, for all we do in practices is laugh, stated Miss Crawford, who is directing the amateur natives.

So we're again asking you not to forget the amateur natives of darkest Africa tonight.

Briar Opossum Raids No More

"He surely is a furious animal, isn't he?" asked one student.

"Yes, he shows his teeth and growls, but he won't bite," said Mr. Jewell.

But, however, when poked with a stick he always takes a goodly sized splinter out of the end of it.

"What's his name?" asked another pupil.

"Oh, I guess we will call him Briar Opossum," said Mr. Jewell.

So, Briar it was and now Briar Opossum sits comfortably in the flower box and catches up on his sleep.

This opossum was caught by Claud Denno while it was trying to raid the Denno's chicken coop, last week.

PROGRESS OF CLASS ROOMS DURING WEEK

Seniors Stage Dramas by the Messrs. Hanlin and Shakespear; Something Brewing in Laboratory.

Journalism

An exceptional feature story will be required for a term paper in journalism this semester. From now on the simple news story will be stressed daily and the length will be strictly limited because this type of story will be of most use to reporters. Humorous spot news stories have been written by class members.

Home Ec Projects

Since the cafeteria work has been completed, the tenth grade will spend the rest of this semester with interior and exterior decoration.

The main project of the ninth grade sewing class, which is the small child's dress and suit, has been completed, with very good results. The principal of designing the dress will be taken up before the next project, which will be the cotton dress.

Lingerie projects have been completed by the eighth grade students and now they will take up the care of repair of the wardrobe.

Seventh grade girls are learning about cotton and its growth.

English

Thursday, March 24, at 3:30, the seniors staged two plays before the faculty club in the auditorium. They were the "Ghost" scene from Hamlet and "Maphis-topheles Plays Pinochle," by Phil Hanlin.

During general assembly a week ago Friday, the seniors presented two other one-act plays written by Mabel Meyers and Theresa White.

Book reports were due from the sophomores and juniors. The sophomores have been studying figures of speech.

Student Reveals Inside Knowledge of Married Life

Married life took on an interesting aspect recently when a student unwittingly let his private opinions slip out.

One morning last week, the senior English class was practicing a play in the auditorium for general assembly. John Strayer, who played the part of a married man and who bore a look of distress on his face, came straggling onto the stage, with his wife about three feet behind. Mrs. Dunbar who was directing the play, informed John that he should come in with his wife, sort of wait for her. At this John looked up and frowned.

He replied, "Yes, but we're supposed to be married and..."

John blushed and joined his wife.

Students Show Burst of Speed on Home Stretch

In the high school not long ago, the clock on the wall in the chemistry class indicated that it was nine minutes after eight, one minute before school takes up. As the class glanced around the room they noticed that some of the students were not present. Presently footsteps were heard, coming up the hall. It sounded like thunder. Oh! Oh! No! It couldn't be that! Then suddenly came a string of half exhausted boys and girls, anxious to squeeze into the doorway in time before the bell sounded. They were to be all worn out, the poor things! In they scampered one by one, just as the tardy bell sounded. Then Mr. Moore closed the door and remarked:

"It takes a good runner to speed up the last moment."

Reporting Inquirer

From answers received we imagine that our school paper is quite well liked by the students. The answers turned in are below.

I like the school paper because it lets the parents know what we are doing in school. It also gives them an idea just where their children stand. It furnishes information to those who are absent, and is very interesting to read. I like it because of its splendid arrangement.

Dorothy Anderson.

I think we are well informed by our school paper concerning what is going on in other classes that we probably otherwise would know nothing about.

Marjorie Lamb.

The part I like is the report on the home rooms. It lets a person know what is going on in somebody else's home room. The rules of etiquette, also, are quite enlightening. School slants are interesting when they have such interesting personages as Capt. John Strayer and dear ol' Eddie Rolan.

Vincent DeNardo.

"I like the school paper because it is interesting to read. It gives you an idea of what the different class rooms are doing; also it lets you know if some student or students have done good work that is unknown by most students."

Martha Speckine.

Cancel Licenses of Six Michigan Fur Bootleggers

Cancellation of the 1932 licenses of seven Michigan fur buyers was announced today by the Department of Conservation.

The licenses were cancelled by Director George R. Hogarth on recommendation of the Division of Field Administration after the seven license holders had been convicted of violating the state's fur dealing regulations.

The six dealers who will not be permitted to operate in this state during the rest of this year are: Charles Isaacson, Manistique; Steve Braude, Sault Ste. Marie; E. C. Underwood, Newberry; Fred Spencer, St. Charles; Dan Headley, Plainwell; and Will Sidell and son, Fowlerville. Three of the men, Isaacson, Braude and Underwood were involved in the recent beaver bootlegging expose in the Upper Peninsula.

The Lansing office is making careful check of all reports made by fur buyers and discrepancies will result in cancellation of the license, it was said.

Fur buyer's licenses are issued for the calendar year. During 1931, 605 such licenses were issued by the Department of Conservation. So far this year more than 400 licenses have been sold.

Buzzard's Limitations

With its remarkable eyesight, power of flight and size there probably is only one reason why the vulture or buzzard is not one of the most active pursuers of living prey instead of feeding upon dead or helpless prey—the absence of talons with which to seize and hold living prey.—Copper's Farmer.

Editorial

With unemployment one of the paramount questions of the day, we should ask ourselves if this country will have to resort to communistic activities to cope with our problems? Surely we who are reputed to have the best economic system in the world do not wish to employ a system like a dole or any of the proposed unemployment insurance plans to cope with our unemployment plans.

Our present economic system is one of the best that the world has produced, and it is changing daily to meet the problems that face it. The present system is fast adapting itself to the surrounding conditions, and such a radical step as state supervised unemployment insurance or a policy similar to the dole would only destroy its balance and cause general confusion.

Steps such as these can be used as a last resort, but first let us see if our present system is meeting the test.

Industry is coming to recognize its responsibilities toward labor and many companies have taken steps to aid their employees in their time of need. Loans have been made on future wages, arrangements have been made with local merchants to grant credit to those in need, and a distribution of work, so that more men are employed, are a few of the moves that have been made by some companies.

Our present system has successfully met all problems until this one and it is now meeting the present one. Whether or not it will successfully meet this problem depends on the attitude of the general worker. Those men who designed this system of ours deserve a chance to try to meet the present problem.

Has Ed Mitchell Heard About This?

Had any government officials been lurking around the chemistry lab during the last week, they would have become quite excited and no doubt would have phoned into the state that they'd unearthed something sure!

But imagine their dismay when they found out that those misleading fumes were from the distillation of alcohol and in such small quantities, too!

The school smelled like a brewery for about three days afterward but no drastic effects from the fumes were noticed. Even Mr. Moore seemed to stand up under the strain!

Competent Typist Pins are Awarded

Competent Typists pins were awarded today to Pauline Van-Every for 69 words per minute with three errors and Minnie Reese with a perfect paper of 65 words per minute. These results were made on a ten minute test.

A senior O. A. T. Certificate was awarded to Marjorie Neiswender for neatness, accuracy and correctness of arrangement of a two page article.

Speech Class Has Something to Say; No Place to Say It

Have you seen a group of intelligent looking students wandering about the halls the last few days, not knowing where to go? That's the speech class. Or have you seen Mr. Knoblauch being followed by about fourteen members of the student body, about five minutes after the bell has rung? That's the speech class, too. It begins to look as if they'll have to follow the orchestra to the boiler room for one day they meet in the sewing room, another in the auditorium, and the next in the junior high study hall. But it came to the worst last Wednesday when they didn't have any place to go. Mr. Knoblauch talked several dollars worth to some of the faculty while the class made themselves comfortable on the stairs watching Phil Hanlin drink a full quota of 22 swallows of water.

Miss Hanlin is Hostess to the Librarians

The school librarians were entertained at tea by Miss Hanlin, head librarian, at her home on Clark street, at the hour of four last Thursday afternoon.

It seems that this was the first time that the librarians had ever been introduced into the mysteries of afternoon tea. The girls, used to juggling library books and turning double rolls in gym class, were soon to realize the delicate situation of balancing a tea cup on one's knee; simultaneously, to talk serenely, while their eyes invariably roved in the direction of a huge tray of open sandwiches.

After shakily and safely depositing their plates in the experienced hands of their hostess, they enjoyed a delightful conversation concerning everything from sororities to carache drops. The guests adjourned when the radio played "Home Sweet Home." They all traveled home feeling equal to any occasion, and their date books are open any afternoon from four to six.

However, he and Mr. Stark must be good friends because he had a good nap.

Can Few Do Better Than Many?

That was the thought that must have come to the heads of two persons, Miss Crawford and Mr. Robinson. With both entire fire clubs not much was done, so each teacher divided his respective glee club, and one half is practicing for the minstrel show and the other half now meets with Mr. Robinson in the junior assembly.

Everyone seems happy in his own division, so things should move quite rapidly from now on.

Third Grade, Miss Simmons

We are sorry to lose Norma Adams, who moves to Benton Harbor and Reynolds Price, who moves to Lyndick, Ind.

In art we have been doing paper cutting. We have made a landscape of cut paper.

The children still hold a record for clean teeth.

We are multiplying by eight and reviewing subtraction in the arithmetic class.

We have finished another page for our health booklet which emphasizes a cooked cereal and fruit for breakfast.

Stray Dog is Enrolled at H. S.

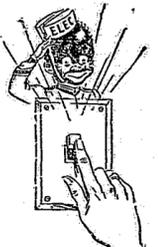

Whose dog is this? Owner please claim. If you don't we'll give him a bath.

'Tis reported that a large black specimen of canine life has pushed himself into almost every kind of society in Buchanan, making the high school his headquarters. He has even gone religious, visiting the Evangelical church. In fact, he went right up onto the platform to the preacher.

The other day he showed his absolute disrespect for Mr. Stark by going to sleep in his office.

Tells How to Grow The Family Food

Persons Owning Small Plots Given Information on Cutting Costs of Living

The production of the families supply of food which has become a subject of acute interest to many Michigan people has been made the subject of a bulletin printed by Michigan State College.

Directions for growing vegetables, beans, potatoes, fruit, and for the production of pork, poultry, milk, and butter are all included in the one bulletin; and the material is prepared to apply especially on each of the 57 small areas of ground available for the production of these foods.

Another section of the bulletin tells the amount of the various foods which an average sized family will need during the year, so plans can be made to utilize to the best advantage any area of soil which the family may own or rent.

While this bulletin was written especially for people who own small plots of ground, studies made by the farm management department at Michigan State College show that farmers in this state could produce a great deal more of the food which their families need each year. The study showed that the only food produced on each of the 57 farms which reported was potatoes. No other one food was grown on every one of these 57 farms.

Anyone who wants the bulletin on home production of the family's food supply will receive it free by requesting Circular Bulletin No. 140 from the director of the experiment station at East Lansing.

Game Department Would Save Walking For Trout Fishers

"If all the energy spent in the long trek between pools could be devoted toward improvement of the water that is skipped, trout fishing would bear less resemblance to golf," in the opinion of Dr. Carl L. Hubbs, director of the Institute for Fisheries Research, and now engaged in experiments in rehabilitating Michigan's trout streams.

Trout fishermen are familiar with sections of streams that are not worth fishing because there are no good pools in which trout can live. Dr. Hubbs said by "environmental control" these spots can be made productive of good trout fishing, a phase of work that is now occupying those interested in maintaining Michigan's game fish supply.

The Michigan Department of Conservation has been experimenting with methods of trout stream improvement for several years. The late Dr. Jan Metzelaar began studies of the re-snagging of streams and many of the log shelters he built have created good trout pools and have remained solid in place.

More recently with the organization of the Institute for Fisheries Research, Clarence M. Tarzwell, holding a fellowship under the Institute, devoted two seasons' work to the experimental improvement of pool-producing devices and shelters.

In 1929 by means of an appropriation for an improvement project on the Little Manistee River, the Department of Conservation made possible the first really large scale work that has been undertaken in the waters of the state; probably the first in any of the public waters of the country, according to Dr. Hubbs. Last year similar work was done in the Pigeon River project in the northern tip of the southern peninsula.

In all, Dr. Hubbs' report shows, 375 numbered improvement devices are under observation, distributed in the following streams: Little Manistee River in Lake county, Pigeon River in Oscego and Cheboygan counties, the East Branch of the Black River in Montmorency county, Gamble Creek in Ogemaw county, Huron River in Washtenaw county and the River Rouge in Wayne county. All of these streams are trout waters with the exception of the Huron River.

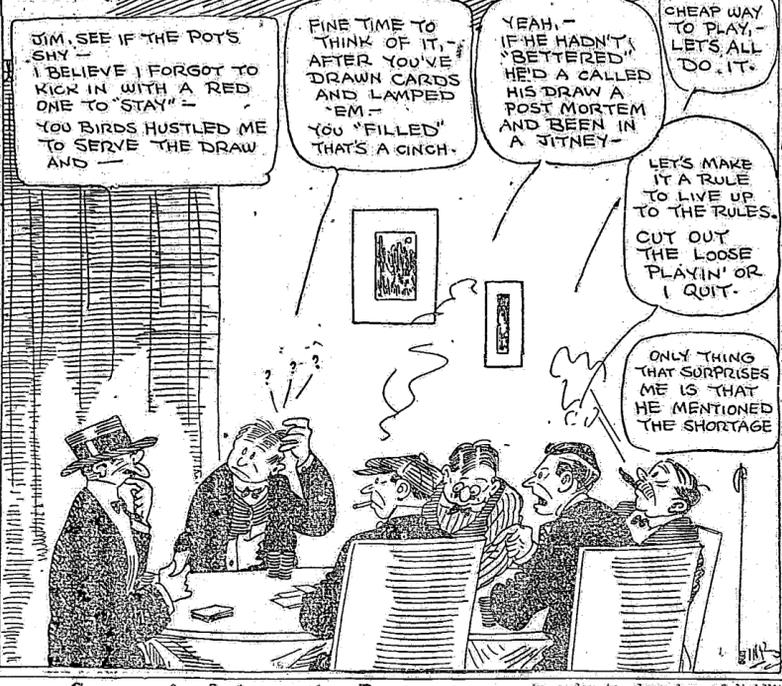

Through these experiments it has been proved that it is possible to increase the supply of trout by improving the spawning facilities, the shelter and the food for the trout. The experiments have shown that some of the most simple and inexpensive operations have been the most successful.

Many of Michigan's trout streams have long sections devoid of natural spawning grounds, and stock must be supplemented by artificial propagation and planting. It has proved possible to produce gravel conditions fit for spawning both by hauling gravel into a feeder stream and by obstructing stream passage with logs that will speed up the current, wash away sand and leave exposed the original spawning beds.

Lack of cover and shade are not conducive to trout habitation, Dr. Hubbs explained. Trout must have a place to hide and to call their home.

"We have taken such stretches, provided shelter therein and have proved that trout have taken quickly and readily to the homes provided for them," Dr. Hubbs cited an example on the Little

The fixed charges include taxes, interest on investment, depreciation on buildings and equipment, and the labor contributed by the owner and members of his family. These expenses occur regardless of the amount of crops and livestock produced, and a certain volume of sales is necessary to meet these costs.

The farmer's profit can be secured only after the fixed charges are paid, unless the volume of business more than pays this overhead, there will be no profit. Ways to increase business volume are adding units of livestock or increasing the production of those owned, increasing the acreage of cash crops or securing greater production per acre, acquiring additional good land through purchase or rental, and using special markets which will pay better prices, or working for others when the labor can be spared from the farm.

The prospects for all lines of crops and livestock produced in Michigan are outlined in the agricultural outlook which will be sent to anyone who requests Extension Bulletin No. 122 from the bulletin clerk at East Lansing.

State Designates Temporary Refuges For Fish Spawning

In preparation for the opening of the fishing season May 1, conservation officers are now observing spawning areas in the various lakes. Such areas on which fish have not completed spawning or guarding at the time the lakes are open to fishing, will be designated as temporary refuges and fishing will be forbidden.

Proper signs have been furnished all officers by the Conservation Department. These signs will be posted around the temporary refuges, at the shore and docks and at nearby boat liversies. The signs will be removed and the areas declared open to fishing as soon as the fish have completed their spawning.

Such temporary refuge areas were authorized by the State legislature in 1929. The law has proved effective in protecting fish, especially in lakes designated as "Lake Law" and in which fishing begins May 1. In many instances fish are still spawning in these lakes when the season opens. This is true especially in colder lakes where spawning is normally retarded. In only a few instances have the temporary refuges been necessary in lakes that are not opened to fishing until June 25.

Cooperation of sportsmen's clubs and interested individuals is being asked by the Department in locating spawning areas that might be closed during the opening days of the season. The local conservation officer should be notified. Proper protection of such areas is believed highly beneficial in fostering natural production.

Fitting Farm Receipts To Exceed Charges

Taxes and Other Costs Must Be Paid Whether Business Is Large or Small

An attempt to make the amount of farm products which are sold each year fit the size of the fixed expenses of the farm is recommended in an agricultural outlook published at Michigan State College.

The discovery of a secret "studio" in the basement of the Central building opposite the St. Joseph city hall afforded additional information as to the ramifications of the Benton Harbor "love mart," which provided girls in their teens as companions for middle-aged men. The "studio" was uncovered through information of one of the girls victimized by the ring, who showed the police a secret door cleverly designed as a wall panel in the basement of the building leading to the studio. There a number of obscene pictures were found and photographic equipment valued at several hundred dollars. The studio was the property of Louis Stocker, 44, 712-Market St., St. Joseph.

The funeral was held Sunday, Mar. 27, from the home with Rev. H. H. Staver in charge, and interment was made in Oak Ridge cemetery. Fall bearers were his former associates in the foundry, Jack Walsh, Herman Hess, Joe Hickey, John Koons, Joe Manning and Sanford Denno.

His wife, the former Claire Moore, to whom he was married in Grand Rapids in 1884, died in October, 1931. The only surviving near relatives are his son, Geo. T. Deming and his daughter, Mrs. Lloyd Sands.

Remember Him?
Nothing takes the place of the accomplished lecturer of a past era, who could make an audience listen, laugh, applaud, and even cry all in an hour and a half.—Exchange.

Builders' Great Feat
To get girders to the roofs to build the tower that supports the Lindbergh beacon on the Palmolive building in Chicago, a small derrick was knocked down and taken up in an elevator. It was put together and used to haul up parts of a larger derrick which in turn raised a third.

Corporations' Limit
The saying, "Corporations have no souls" is attributed to Richard Coke, famous British lawyer. "They (corporations) cannot commit treason nor be outlawed, nor be excommunicated, for they have no souls." Hence the phrase "Corporations have no souls to save and no bodies to kick."

First National Journal
Our first national newspaper was the National Intelligencer, established in Washington October 31, 1800. It was founded by Samuel Harrison Smith, who went to Washington from Philadelphia for this purpose at the suggestion of Thomas Jefferson.

Fight Against New Truck Tax To Be Pushed

The protest of Berrien county fruit growers against the new Michigan truck regulations will be carried direct to Lansing at an early date, probably during the extra session of the legislature which opened Tuesday.

The decision was reached at last Saturday afternoon's meeting of the Berrien County Horticulture society at the Y. M. C. A. in Benton Harbor.

More than 200 fruit growers were in attendance. Indignation over the new regulations was freely and forcibly expressed. Verbal hot shots were levelled at J. E. Warner, representing the motor transport division of the Michigan Public Utilities commission.
