Lost 20 Lbs. of Fat In Just 4 Weeks

Mrs. Mae West of St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I was only 28 years old and weighed 170 lbs. until taking one box of your Kruschen Salts just 4 weeks ago. I now weigh 150 lbs. I also have more energy and furthermore I've never had a hungry moment."

Fat folks should take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—it's the SAFEST, harmless way to reduce as tens of thousands of men and women know. For your health's sake ask for and get Kruschen at any drug store—the cost for a bottle that lasts 4 weeks is but a trifle and it affords the first bottle you are not joyfully satisfied with results—money back.

WHAT KEEPS HAPPY THAT WAY

Now is the time when lilies bloom, pond lilies at least, and if you want to see some beauties, slow down to something like thirty or forty miles an hour at least as you turn the corner on West Terre Coupe opposite the home of Maynard (Happy) Martin, and take a look at the two pools which he built this summer.

Happy's pools are material evidence of the quick returns you can get in beauty from a little investment in energy in the soil. Provided, of course, that you have a little know-how. He built the two pools in June as a part of the rock garden which he contemplates for the hillside east of his home. The upper pool is a clever reproduction of the scenic features of Bear Cave, with a grotto made of tufa rock and a miniature water-fall spouting from its shadows. In this pool he has an assortment of hardy lilies, and in the pool below some handsome tropical pond lilies. Last Sunday in the neighborhood of thirty blooms were out in the two pools. In less than two months the tropical lilies have grown leaves with stems eight feet long and blades nearly a foot in breadth.

IF IT WORKS, SAVE US A DRINK

The ancient Egyptians, according to historical tradition, used to make a wine of the flowers of the lotus, the consumption of which induced a dreamy forgetfulness of all trouble and care.

But however that may be and not questioning his ulterior motives, Arlin Clark has a beautiful Egyptian lotus just going out of bloom in the pool in his garden at 113 Roe street. Clark set out his lotus last year and it has bloomed twice this year. It is believed to be the only flower of the species blooming in Buchanan. The large rose-pink corolla enclosing the yellow box-like calyx, makes a striking show.

RECOVERING FROM FEAR

The following interpretation of the recent advance in stock quotations is taken from the editorial page of a recent issue of the New York Times:

The market will often rise in such a period, not necessarily in expectation of an immediate trade revival, but because of belief that prices had fallen below intrinsic values; more frequently because some action of a reassuring character had been taken at Washington or elsewhere, or because specific expectations, on which a previous decline had been based, were not fulfilled. Not many weeks ago the almost unprecedentedly rapid outflow of gold had created great popular uneasiness. The nature of these gold shipments was misunderstood; the fact that the Federal Reserve was merely returning to European central banks in the form of gold, their "reserve deposited abroad," and that the Federal banks were in a position to send it all back without impairing their own position, was not realized. In the prevalent tension of financial markets, wholly unwarranted talk began about the United States being "forced off the gold standard."

All this was reflected on the Stock Exchange, where prices declined with great violence during the gold-shipment period. But the actual facts were presently made clear. In June the gold export ceased, chiefly because the American credits of the foreign central banks had virtually been exhausted. A movement of foreign exchange in favor of the New York market followed; during the next half dozen weeks gold holdings of the Federal Reserve increased $59,947,000 and Europe has begun to talk of a "return gold movement." Financial apprehension regarding the gold position disappeared; the stock market's recovery was a response to its disappearance.

This does not necessarily indicate hope of immediate revival from industrial depression, except, and the exception is important, in so far as the business depression may itself be partly a consequence of financial fears. Recovery in business, when it comes, will be the result of many different causes; perhaps of returning stability in prices, perhaps of discovery that consumption had been reduced beyond absolutely necessary requirements. But reviving financial confidence, according to all experience on such occasions, will play an essential part.

The truth is, that the entire American community, consumers of goods as well as investors in securities, have for a year or more, been taking counsel wholly of their fears. Rarely have they been favored with random talk of so disquieting a character, ranging from prediction of world-wide breakdown of the gold standard to warnings of universal bankruptcy and (whatever that may mean) collapse of the capitalistic system. It is impossible to be sure how far the spread of such ideas has had a hand even in the reaching of so abnormally low a level in buying of goods or building of houses or indulgence in ordinary luxuries. It is in this direction that the shattering of predictions of disaster regarding the American gold supply is of primary importance.

There have been other indications than the stock market's recovery, pointing to the probability that the extravagant apprehensions of a few months ago are disappearing. In many respects the prolonged and continuous recovery in prices for investment bonds has reflected a change of underlying sentiment. The fall in prices on that market to an all but fantastic level had reflected the bewilderment of the day. The upward movement which has now been in progress during the past two months has raised the so-called "bond averages" more than 10 points in that period of time, or nearly 20 per cent.

HOW MUCH DOES THAT LABEL INTEREST YOU?

This paper has no bone to pick with union labor in general and is ready to admit that the unions, at worst, have been rather necessary evils, whose benefits have outweighed their harm, in a long range view of their history.

But we know, and so does everyone else that ever came in contact with them, that the labor unions are made up of human beings and that their particular function is to claim a lot and get what they can, on the theory that the opposition is probably doing the same. And consequently they not infrequently cover an undue amount of territory in their claims.

Take the unions of Berrien county. We will venture to say that the total membership in labor unions in Berrien county is much less than one per cent of the population.

And we will again venture to say that the people in Berrien county who are not crazy about labor unions comprise considerably more than one per cent.

Yet the union print shops of Berrien county, confined to the two enterprising municipalities that watch each other over the mouth of the St. Joe river, have actually persuaded the candidates out for office, that the absence of the union label on their printing would spell nothing less than overwhelming defeat at the polls.

And as a result of their success in convincing them, they have been able to levy tribute on them in the form of printing prices sometimes almost a hundred per cent greater than those of open shops.

The theory is that the one per cent minority will notice the presence or absence of the union label and vote accordingly, while the great mass of voters will pay no attention one way or the other. Consequently, the candidate must pay this tribute in printing prices to placate the one per cent. However, if three rival candidates each have the label on their printing, the voter will be unable to decide on that basis.

And if the great body of farmers, who are known to be luke-warm if not positively hostile to union labor should take it in their head to take notice of the label and let it affect their votes, its presence might well be more embarrassing than its absence.

MICHIGAN WOMEN OLD-FASHIONED

If smoking cigarets by women in public may be taken as an index of the "up-to-dateness" of a community, then this section is lagging considerably behind the effete east, according to Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Bemis, Lorrain, O., who were visiting at the home of the former's aunt, Miss Eva Chamberlain, recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Bemis state that in the course of an auto trip through Michigan to Duck Lake, near Albion and thence to Buchanan on their return they saw only one woman resorting to the care-allaying weed in public. This is in marked contrast to social customs in their own section, where smoking in public by women has become nearly universal. At a farewell breakfast given for the teachers last spring in the city of Lorrain, only two of the twenty women teachers passed up the cigarets.

GEORGE WELSH CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNORSHIP

Maintenance of Orderly Government Major Problem, Says Grand Rapids City Manager.

The Constitution of the State of Michigan provides that every two years the voters of the state shall by their votes designate to whom they shall entrust the management of our state affairs. Occasionally the selection of officials for high administrative positions has been based on considerations other than experience, ability or fitness for public service. In normal times, with no extraordinary demands upon any particular office it is sometimes possible to honor worthy citizens with the badge of high office without serious detriment to the public interest.

But these are by no means normal times. The economic crisis through which this country is now passing furnishes the severest test of our citizenship and the ability of our public servants effectively to use the great agency of government for the alleviation of our political and economic ills that has occurred since the birth of the republic.

That in a large degree the present difficulty can be laid at the door of inefficient, inexperienced and unwise public administration is apparent to anyone familiar with the proper functions of government.

We live under a representative republic; whatever else may be said of it, we are forced to admit that it does truly represent and reflect the public will. In the final analysis the people must assume the responsibility for the selection of those who eventually shape, guide and direct the public affairs. An intelligent use of the ballot is the first step toward an intelligent administration of governmental affairs.

In addition to the great natural resources and the diversity of our agricultural pursuits, Michigan is one of the leading industrial states of the nation. The economic depression that has spread its pall over the land has left its mark heavily upon our state. Individual descriptions of property returned to the Auditor General's office for tax delinquency now numbering around one million pieces, tell all graphically the financial havoc that is being wrought among our people.

With the farm owner, home owner and business man taxed to the utmost to bring their individual business costs down to a point somewhere in keeping with rapidly diminishing incomes, they are faced with the specter of a rising tax load.

With an alarmingly large percentage of our citizens unable to earn for themselves and their dependents the bare necessities of life and forced to seek public or private charity; with the funds of private charitable agencies exhausted; with the treasuries of our municipalities and their financial structures cracking; we cannot longer tolerate the indifferent attitude assumed by our present state government. We cannot substitute rhetoric for relief. We cannot accept the timid trimmings of governmental waste and expense for the drastic reduction and elimination that our plight requires. We cannot consider the personal political fortunes of individuals at the expense of the public good.

In the present crisis the state administration apparently does not sense the seriousness of the situation. There has been a callous disregard of the condition into which the townships, counties, villages and cities have been plunged. If these local units of government are to be permitted to fall under the crushing load now imposed upon them, what then becomes of the state? And if the individual citizen now struggling to keep his financial footing can expect no relief from the burden of taxes, what then becomes of these local units of government that he in turn supports?

Out of this welter of confusion regarding governmental affairs, one fact emerges crystal clear—the thing most needed in public life in our state is an effective administration. Courageous attack on the problems that bear down with such crushing force upon every citizen and every taxpayer; leadership that will not only cut to the root every source of expense and eliminate every non-essential state service but direction that knows and can point the way to a solution of the financial problems and the tax burdens of the local governmental units, be they townships, counties, or cities.

That the above statements are a reflection of what is in the minds of many of our citizens has been strongly emphasized to me by the response that has been received to the suggestion that I permit my name to be placed on the ballot at the September primaries for the office of governor.

At this time, when there are those enjoying the blessings of this great land who are attempting to undermine the confidence of the people in our free institutions of government, it should not be amiss to remind our citizens that I am a fair example of the great opportunities that are open to all who are so fortunate as to live under our flag. Beginning with only the same opportunities before me that beckon the humblest or poorest in our land, opportunities that cannot be matched under any other than the American form of government, I now find myself with nearly 20 years of training and experience in the field of municipal and state public service furnished me through the suffrage of my fellow citizens in Grand Rapids and later by the voters of Michigan. It was through a feeling of gratitude for those opportunities that I offered my services to my fellow citizens of Grand Rapids in 1929, when our city was in difficulties. It is with this same sense of obligation during this crisis in the state's af-airs that I offer to the people of Michigan an opportunity to realize on the investment that has been made in my training and experience.

As a member of a Common Council, Legislator, Speaker of the House, Lieutenant Governor, and City Manager, I am now prepared through experience, and such ability as I may possess, to return to the people of Michigan some portion of the obligation I acknowledge.

My record in public office is readily obtainable. My attitude on public questions in the past is a matter of public record. My stand on present problems will be clearly defined.

While the question of Prohibition has received a preferred position in the public mind it is by no means the sole problem, or even the most important problem at present confronting us. My own attitude on this question has been a matter of common knowledge for years and has frequently been publicly stated. I repeat that in my opinion Prohibition is both governmental and an economic blunder that must be corrected by repeal at the earliest possible moment. Regulation of personal habits is a proper function for the home, the church and the school; it is not a proper function of government.

The major problem today, in my opinion, is the problem of maintaining and continuing the institution of orderly government. The power to tax is the power to destroy. The bankruptcy of the taxpayer means the inevitable bankruptcy of the commonwealth. If Michigan is to avert a total collapse of its public financial structure in state, county, township, city and village; if the keystone of the arch—the taxpayer—is to be saved from loss of home or farm, there must be ruthless reduction in the tax load. Every non-essential service in every branch of government must be abolished; not merely curtailed or politicized. Expediency has no place in this economic war. Government must follow the same course that the private citizen and private business has been forced to follow—the course of liquidation. There can be no healthy start toward normalcy until this has been done.

No individual should place his personal or political ambitions above the common good at a time such as this. The honor of holding high public office is one to which any citizen may justly aspire, but the honor of performing a needed public service in times of stress is an infinitely greater honor. It is to the latter opportunity that I aspire.

I seek only to be of service to the people of Michigan. If the voters by their ballots of November 7th next shall designate me to manage our state affairs I shall start to work on November 8th, and for each day of the term my time, my energy and such ability and courage as I may possess will be devoted singly to the interests of the citizens of our great commonwealth. The tax load on the citizens of Michigan must be and can be reduced at least one-half. I am confident I can do this. GEORGE W. WELSH.

Telephone Users May Now Call Egyptian Friends

Telephone service to Egypt was made available to Michigan people and other telephone users of the country Monday, August 8th, through an arrangement by H. C. Shannon, manager in this area for the Michigan Bell Telephone Co.

The service embraces Cairo and Alexandria and is available to all Bell and Bell-connecting telephone lines in North America. A 3-minute conversation between any Michigan point and either of the Egyptian cities costs $89 and $13 for each additional minute.

Egypt is reached over the regular trans-Atlantic radio telephone channels operated by the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. and the British post office, and a radio circuit between London and Cairo. The direct distance from Detroit to Cairo is about 7,000 miles. Cairo, with the population of 1,100,000, has some 17,500 telephones and Alexandria, with 600,000 people, has about 11,601.

Sink Looms as a Strong Factor in State Race

Following the withdrawal of Theodore A. Thompson, Williamsport publisher, in favor of Charles A. Sink, Mr. Sink now looms as a leading contender for the office of Lieutenant Governor of Michigan. Since the assurance of new support from Thompson's many friends the Sink campaign has been growing in rapid proportions. State campaign headquarters, located in Ann Arbor, have been enlarged and are operating under the direction of the campaign manager, Martin J. Mol, from Grand Rapids, who has been "stumping" the state for Mr. Sink during the past month.

Mr. Sink recently opened his speaking tour of the state with a large meeting at Charlotte where 5,000 citizens of Eaton county turned out to hear him. He is actively engaged in an extensive campaign that will carry him to every county in the state. Having served for ten years in the Michigan legislature as both representative and senator, Mr. Sink is well acquainted with the routine of legislative procedure and to his legislative career he has been active in civic affairs in his home town of Ann Arbor. He received the "King Albert" medal in recognition of services in behalf of the starving Belgian children during the war. Recently he was cited for meritorious peacetime service by the Erwin Frieskrone Post of the American Legion.

Mr. Sink is a life-long republican, having been active at state and national conventions of his party. At present he is a member of the state central committee of the republican party.

Volunteers America Asking Contributions Fruit and Vegetables

"We want your excess fruit and vegetables for canning so that we may distribute them to poor families next winter," the Volunteers of America are announcing to all gardeners, farmers and orchard owners. This well-known relief organization, with headquarters at 2841 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, has equipped itself with canning facilities and is now ready to take care of all sorts of fresh garden and orchard produce.

Trucks will be sent by the organization to pick up donations of this sort, if they are in bushel quantities. Col. H. Smith, local commander, states in their announcement. Manufacturers of glass and tin cans and dealers are asked also to contribute toward the project, for it is expected that hundreds of cans will be needed weekly.

"Every effort must be made to save this valuable garden and orchard produce for the feeding of poor families, next winter," Col. Smith said. "Our welfare department anticipates greater need than we have had among these families for the past two years, and everyone knows that that has been. With co-operation from the producer of these fresh vegetables and fruit, I feel sure that we, as canners and distributors, can do much to prevent the widespread waste of these products that annually occurs."

Phone calls to Nevada 1012, or cards mailed to the Volunteers of America, 2841 W. Washington Blvd., giving clearly the address of contributor, will bring trucks, for produce in bushel quantities or more. Donations left at the door of the headquarters building will also be much appreciated.

Eclipse Sun
Aug. 31, to be Near Total Here
be shown on a map of the New England States by taking half the distance between North Conway and Fryeburg as one point and Cape Porpoise on the Maine coast as another point and connecting them with a line. By paralleling this with lines on either side spaced fifty miles apart the 100-mile path of totality can be determined. The percentage of eclipse for various points in the United States is about as follows:
New York City, 95 per cent; San Francisco, 16 per cent; Boston, 99 per cent; Chicago, 79 per cent; Los Angeles, 15 per cent; New Orleans, 59 per cent; Philadelphia, 92 per cent and Washington 89 per cent.
Captain Julius Hellweg, superintendent of the U. S. Naval Observatory, said in describing the eclipse:
"Those who will have the opportunity of witnessing the eclipse within the path of totality will witness a phenomenon which they will never forget. The frightful speed with which the shadow bears down on you is very impressive and awe-inspiring, and as the shadow of the moon gradually blots out the sun, and just before the eclipse is total, the sun light shining thru the valleys of the moon will be broken up into a series of spots of light. These are known as Bailey's beads because they appear like a string of beads. At the time you see the Bailey's beads, if you look to the northwest you will see the shadow sweeping across the land at lightning speed. Immediately following this and after the sun is completely blotted out, the beautiful corona will be visible. Those who have seen the corona go into ecstasies over its appearance. Its peculiar high effect, and end their enthusiastic description through lack of words properly to describe it.
"At the same time that you are witnessing the beauty of the corona, you will be able to see the stars shining brilliantly close to the sun. In this eclipse Jupiter, Spica, Denebola, Regulus, Castor and Pollux will be easily distinguished.
"Shortly after this Bailey's beads will reappear as the shadow of the moon draws away from the face of the sun. Finally, Bailey's beads disappear and in its place you see a narrow crescent of sunlight, which gradually increases until shadow again is visible, ending the eclipse of 1932."
