Funeral Services This Afternoon for Mrs. Martha Fowler

Funeral services for Mrs. M. W. Fowler, 79, will be held at 2 p. m. today from the home at Third and Cayuga streets, with Rev. W. F. Boettcher in charge, and burial will be made in Oak Ridge cemetery.

Martha Elva, daughter of Jacob and Lucinda Dalrymple, was born in Buchanan, Sept. 9, 1853. On September 11th, 1870, she was united in marriage to John A. Holliday by Rev. Horace Hall, at Niles, Mich. To this union were born three daughters and a son. Her husband, son and one daughter preceded her in death. The task remained for her to carry on through the days of sorrow and sunshine, as all good mothers do.

On August 28, 1895, she was married to Allen J. Helmick. This union was again dissolved by his death in a short span of years. But her mother courage and faith did not fail and she held fast.

On Oct. 29, 1917, she was united in marriage to Maurice W. Fowler. She was united with the Evangelical church by letter Sept. 7, 1924, which she remained faithful to the end. She has suffered more than one can tell for the past six weeks, but now it is over. Her work is finished. She died March 13, 1933 at her home on Cayuga and Third street. She leaves to mourn her husband, Maurice W. Fowler, and the children from her first marriage, Mrs. Minnie Galloway of Three Oaks and Mrs. Myrtle Brown of Oak Park, Ill.; also six grandchildren and many other relatives and friends.

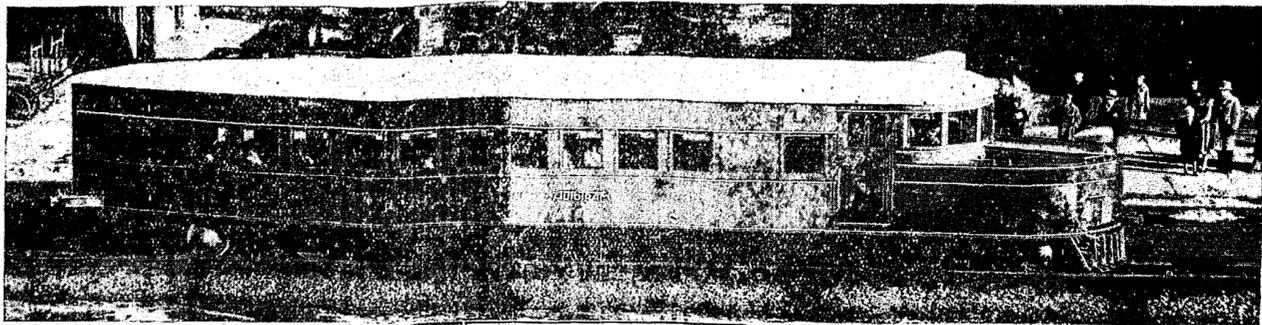

The funeral services were held at her home Thursday at 2 p. m. with Rev. W. F. Boettcher in charge. Burial in Oak Ridge cemetery.

CLARK PRODUCT MAY BRING R. R. OUT OF THE RED

Nationwide Recognition Accorded to Possibilities of Local Product Over Press and Radio.

The enthusiastic greeting accorded by the national press during the past few weeks to the Autotram indicate that the product of the Clark Equipment company might possibly have as much to do with the solution of national rail problems as the financial bolstering of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, by enabling the rail companies to meet and vanquish the highway omnibus in its own field.

The Autotram is designed to furnish a cheaper, faster and more adaptable form of railway passenger transportation than the old style passenger train, with its cumbersome schedule and its heavy overhead of operating which has made it a large factor in the growing railway deficits since the invasion of the automobile in its field.

The Clark product made its first appearance from the Battle Creek plant early in December and since that time the demonstration car has covered over 4,000 miles of rail, and has been inspected with interest by representatives of 13 main trunk railroads. It is an all-aluminum, streamlined automotive car, with a speed which enables it to cover long routes on a 70-mile per hour schedule, including stops.

Built in the shape commonly known as stream-lined in order to reduce atmospheric resistance to a minimum, the Autotram has the general body lines of a golfball, broad but well-rounded front and a tapering rear, and with the stream-line principle applied to every projection, including the headlight.

It is constructed of light aluminum alloys, known as duraluminum, through the use of which the weight has been restricted to 30,000 pounds, when similar steel construction would have weighed not less than 55,000 pounds. This duraluminum is the same material that is used in the construction of airplanes and of Zeppelin frames. The light weight contributes to its speed and keeps the cost down to 12-15 cent for a 42 passenger car, making it possible to operate at fares of 2c per mile or less.

With the aid of rubber mountings for motor, and chassis, the passenger is insulated from the shock and jar consequent to travel at a high rate of speed. The wheels are so constructed that there is rubber between the tires and the hubs, and eventual use of pneumatic tires is considered. A ventilation system changes the air of the interior every three minutes so efficiently that smoking can be permitted.

State Lightens Quarantine for German Measles

The severity of quarantine for German measles may now be relaxed in accordance with new regulations just released by the state department of health, in order to interfere as little as possible with school attendance, according to city physician R. H. Snowden. Hereafter in cases of German measles it will not be necessary to placard the homes. Children who have not previously had it will not be quarantined as in regular measles, where an isolation of two weeks is necessary for children with no previous measles history who have had no previous contact with the disease. Civic Committee Reports Against Berrien Opening

That the proposed opening of Berrien street between Chicago and Rynearson streets as a project for the employment of men receiving aid from the city is not feasible on the score of benefit received in proportion to outlay of expense required was the substance of the report made at the meeting of the Buchanan Civic Association Monday evening by the second committee of that body appointed to examine the matter.

The committee which reported Monday night was composed of M. L. Sands, Harleigh Raymond and Mr. Ailes. The sense of the report was that the actual cash outlay required would approach $750 or more, and that labor costs included in the total outlay might represent from $2,000 to $3,000 for the benefit of a few families.

A previous committee composed of M. P. Snyder, Harleigh Raymond and L. M. Desenberg made a similar report.

Mary Richter Wins Honorable Mention in National Contest

A few weeks ago Miss Chandler told the short hand class about the National Contest, sponsored each year by the Gregg Writers' professional magazine for the students of Gregg Shorthand.

Although entrance in the contest was not required this year because of the small fee entailed, the material was presented to the class for those who wished to take advantage of it. Thirteen members of the group prepared papers. The examining committee awarded a certificate of membership in the Order of Gregg Artists to each pupil submitting a paper. The names of those receiving certificates are as follows: Dorothy Babcock, Wanda Flenar, Margaret Hamilton, Dorothy Holmes, Jesse Leggett, Helen Fletcher, Freddie Peitz, Mary Richter, Agnes Schmidt, Jennie Smith, Dorothy Vincent, Emily Wales and George Zachman.

Mary Richter was awarded a gold pin for exceptional skill exhibited in preparing her material. Last year over 100,000 papers were entered in the contest, representing not only every state in the union, but Japan, Porto Rico, Cuba and the Philippine Islands as well.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

All material for the National Scholastic contest is to be in by Wednesday, March 15. More interest has been shown this year and those talented in these fields have submitted their work more freely. Some material has already been offered by Doris Campbell, Marvin Gross, Alene Riley and Marjory Campbell.

It will be remembered that last year in a weekly number of the magazine, one of Marjory Campbell's poems was given recognition.

The Velmorian Literary Creative Writing Contest, including 7 to 12 grades, closes March 17. The three fields of literature include poetry, essay and short story. Judges for the contest are A. L. Knoblauch, Miss Dorothy Post and Miss Dorothea Charles. The contest was started last year in order to create more interest in literature.

SCHOOL SLANTS

Bob Stevens has been going around mumbling something about getting revenge. Sounds like a good gangster war. He says that someone is musing in on his territory. Speaking about romances— we hear that the senior girls are going ga-ga about some of the underclassmen. Of course we would not mention any names, but she has brown eyes.

Ruth Pierce has returned to school after a hiatus. Bill Strayer had them at the same time. Merely a coincidence! Una Kelley is absent with them now. Wouldn't we like to see her!

The juniors are doing a rushing business. They are selling bracelets to the students and it seems that every boy is buying one for some of the fairer sex, with pretty little sentiments written on them.

By the way, whose foreign looking bracelet is Maurice Aronson wearing? Seems to have caused plenty of comment among the senior boys!

After the storm comes the sun. But some of the students retraced this statement after the report cards were issued. Every one seemed to be carrying a worried look on his face. However, we know that seniors really never worry—they just look like it.

Measles, Measles Everywhere and not a Measly Measle to spare. The attendance is still low in the grades because of the epidemic of German measles. However, some students are now returning because the seven day exclusion required by the state department of health has expired.

For the month of February the average number of children in the nurse's room for dressings, etc., was down to 15 per cent.

On Modern Art

(Mary Louise Beardsley)

At every turn I see something called art.

But can it be? Strange figures stare from walls.

The painting at my right is queer.

It calls.

To mind something from jungles wild, and parts.

It seems to me, from every rule of art.

In this exhibit, almost all things fall.

Into the rank of angles, straight lines. All.

The world, in fact, breathes of this modern art.

But everything must have some recompense.

Simply is beauty. Common things.

Are those which seem to be, in modern sense.

Most beautiful. If anything true rings.

Then that, at least, is good. True beauty lives.

In man, and understanding him is best.

The Post Graduate

(By Wayne Smith)

He greets me daily on the cold street.

His eyes seem watching for an open place.

With open hands and eager face.

Beneath an agile body this steady beat.

Of hopeful heart and willful feet.

Knowing not how to continue the pace.

Of nothing to occupy his time nor mind.

How can this post graduate fill his time?

Admire him, see how he must compete.

With man of experience and worthy ace.

Of any occupation, in the time-worn race.

In which he goes. Help him his courage keep.

As you, tired father, go to your abode.

And, you, lucky man, with the job you hold.

For your heart may next be lonely and cold.

Debating

By Marjorie Weaver

When Edmund Burke was a student at Trinity college, Dublin, in the middle of the 18th century, all games were strictly forbidden. Edmund Burke organized a debating club and many leisure hours were spent in debating questions of interest at that time. Out of that club grew the Trinity college Historical Society which still sponsors many great debates.

As Burke's debating society grew, so has the debating ability of Buchanan high school grown. This year our team was made up of two seniors and a junior. They were in seven debates, including the state elimination. Never before has the debate team of this school gone as far as seven debates.

One of the chief advantages of debating is the realization that there is usually more than one side to every question.

Debating may not be as spectacular as athletics, but it takes as much work and clear thinking. A debater must think quickly and be ready to meet any unusual question that may arise during the course of a debate. He must be ready to take the judge's decision as final just as the athlete does.

Many underclassmen came out for debating this year, and with the one member of this year's debating team returning in the fall, Buchanan is looking forward to a successful year in 1933-34.

Who's Who

"I was born March 14, 1915, at Hartford, Michigan," stated Elaine Hawks, a member of the junior class.

Elaine has medium brown hair which is as curly as a permanent could possibly make it, and she has brown eyes and is about five feet tall.

She likes chicken and biscuits and her favorite colors are red and blue. Elaine's favorite expression is "What would Sarah and the girls say?"

Geneva May Williams is a slender, dark haired, brown-eyed senior girl.

"Jenny" was born at New Carlisle, Ind., on Jan. 25, in the year 1914. She says... a secret how she got her nickname, but to me it seems quite plain.

Geneva has a great liking for nick names or whatever they may be. If you don't believe it, just listen to these combinations! Her favorite foods are chop suey and angel food cake and her favorite subjects are mathematics and history.

"My goodness," shouted George Spatta, last week in Journalism class, "I got the Autogram!"

George had "hist heard" a whistle and had really thought that it was the Autogram coming down the railroad track. To his amazement it was not as he expected, but an old box-car designed as a repair car for the railroad corporation. George had all the rest of the class or the majority of them running to the window to see the modern invention which had proven so successful and he surprised them almost as much as he surprised himself. Poor George did not know what to say.

"Aw nerzt," said George. "I thought that was the Autogram! The whistle sounded just like it!"

George is a junior and he is a nice boy. Of course, he says every body makes mistakes and that is more or less true.

What gets me is how he knows how the whistle sounds when he has never as yet seen the thing. It might have a horn for all we know.

Although St. Patrick's heart was always in Ireland, he was born in Scotland in the year 389. Some persons say he was born in England, but the authorities give his birth place as Bannanator.

The people know him as St. Patrick, but his British name was Suet. The people took the Anglicized form of his Roman name "Patrius" and called him Patrick.

Talk about the exciting times of your childhood. When he was at the age of 16 he was captured by pirates from Ireland and taken to Ireland where he was a slave of an ulster chieftain. For six years he tended the flocks of this chieftain, and when he became tired of doing this and he longed for something different, to do he watched more sheep.

A vision came to Patrick one day and he was told to go on a mission to Ireland, and so in the year 432 he went to Ireland, and worked all the rest of his life trying to make Christians out of the people.

His work was so successful that he has been called "the man who found Ireland all heathen and left it all Christian."

One of the legends that grew up about this well known Saint was the one about his charming all the snakes by his beautiful music and driving them to the seashore where they walked into the water and were drowned. It has been said that no snakes can live in Ireland. If circus people bring snakes into Ireland they die every time.

Just about all that is known about the saint is legendary. There is a lot known about his work, but very little about his real life.

The whole world honors St. Patrick's feast day which comes on March 17.

Science Dept.

The biology department has been classifying plants and animals according to their corresponding characteristics.

Phosphorus, arsenic, phosphorous, arsenic, antimony and bismouth are commonly known as the nitrogen family. Fluorine, chlorine, bromine, and iodine are commonly known as the halogen family. These two families are the main experiments being done in chemistry. The experiments show the characteristics of each one of the elements.

Ohw's law which is used in the study of electricity, has been studied. Primary cells are commonly known as dry cells and secondary cells are known as storage batteries.

Each year some department of our school presents some outstanding event or receives recognition through its various activities. This year such an honor was bestowed upon our English department.

As yet no definite text is on the market for a World Literature course, but Mrs. Dunbar supplies the material through two books, "Anthology of World Poetry" by Mark Van Doren, and "The Story of World Literature" by John Macy. The latter is considered on par with Wells' Outline of History and Durant's Story of Philosophy.

This course is limited to the senior English class. It is worked into through the types of literature. This, however, is the first year for the use of new material in this course.

Homo Economics

To design clothing is something that a good many women know nothing about, but if they get into a course such as the seventh and eighth grade girls are now taking, they will know more about it. The study of the principles of designing clothes. Another thing that they are trying hard to master is the making of plaques.

Freshmen girls are working on the different ways to use ribbon. Last week they accomplished the uses of lace. The projects on shop are doing in working on still in process. These are grouped into projects A, B, and C. The A projects pertain to embroidery samples, B projects are the making of a girl's wardrobe, and the C projects are in regard to a model closet.

Second year high students have also been completing projects and are now beginning a course of color in relation to dress. Along with this color scheme they are learning facts about interior decorating.

Play Final Games Inter-Class Championship

The final games for inter-class championship were played Friday afternoon between the senior first team and the junior first team, sophomore first team and the freshmen first team.

The seniors won over the juniors by a large score to make up for the defeat they took earlier in the season, the score being 22 to 11.

The second game was played by the sophomores and the freshmen. In this game the sophomores trounced the freshmen by a score of 27 to 3.

The third game was played between the seventh grade and the eighth grade and was won by the eighth grade by a score of 20 to 5.

The seniors won first place, the juniors second, the sophomores third, freshman fourth and the junior high fifth.

A Ling of Chatter or Two

By Chester G. Chatterton

ARMY AND NAVY NOTES are quite the thing now. Harleigh Riley and Doris Campbell have launched the new fad. Riley stands on the landing by the senior study hall and drops the notes to Miss Campbell as she stands on the stairs. The notes are very fascinating and is becoming increasingly popular every day.

HERE IS NEWS! The senior class finally voted to wear caps and gowns at the graduation exercises. After a heated class meeting during which the idea was discussed, the motion was "laid on the table" for a week or so in order that it might be discussed further. Last week the dreaded class meeting was held, and as a cloud of gloom and doubt settled down over the discordant group the meeting got under way. Discussion was called for and every one remained silent, seemingly defiant of his opponents. Since the eager students did not wish to discuss the question, the vote was taken. Harleigh Riley and Jo Dunlap were appointed as tellers. The votes were finally counted, every one hushed expectantly, every one held his breath. The result of the vote was finally announced, 47 to 12 in favor of caps and gowns! Everyone took a deep breath, some faces appeared crestfallen, more lighted up. Well, such is life.

ALTHOUGH THIS is not a "Who's Who" column, several persons have been trying to hear more about one of the seniors, so here goes. One of our boys was born within the limits of our hamlet, June 18, 1915, and has lived here all his life. By the way, before I forget, his full name is Wayne Theodore Smith. He likes brown-haired damsels with ocean-blue eyes and he likes to study the Hamilton family—in history! His favorite diversion is dancing (with whom?) and going to the show at Niles with the one and only???? "Tad" is his nickname but the origin of it is unknown. Mr. Smith states that his inspiration is to be a delivery boy. If you have any trouble in finding him when you want him some noon, here's a place he can be seen walking leisurely up Front street with Madeline Hamilton closely followed by Barbara Hamilton and Lowell Batchelor.

BY THE WAY, have you noticed how much work "Batchie" has been doing around the post office of late? Now, there's a hard problem for you to figure out!

EDWARD SPAESE has a decided advantage over his male classmates. Eddie possesses a great knowledge of shorthand and he uses it to the greatest advantage in writing his notes. Here's a question for you: How many new Miss Shirley Rolan could read shorthand? Neither I did, we, but try to find an alternative!

HAVE you noticed Mary Richter's bangs? Jo Dunlap's rosy cheeks? Maury Aronson's brace-let? Joe Dunlap on Chippewa street? Bob Strayer on Chippewa street? Wayne Smith's red neckties? Doris Campbell with Riley? "Skeet" Rolan on Chicago street (near the school)?

and cones have also been studied by the classes.

Vivian Russell received a silver pin for the most artistically arranged and typed paper submitted.

The bookkeeping class is working on H. W. Good Practice, and have been studying the method of opening books at the beginning of business.

Class Activities

Knoblauch's Classes

Do you know how to manage a livestock farm?

If you do not, ask one of the students of animal husbandry. They are completing the unit on managing the livestock farm.

Horticulture students are finding out how different fruits are selected for market. They have covered the exploratory test.

The debate classes are but a memory now since Buchanan lost to Grand Rapids.

Shop

In case you want to seek knowledge on how to build bird houses just drop over to the shop sometime this week and witness the work the seventh grade students in shop are doing in this department.

As for other knowledge, painting for instance, you may also learn something from the eighth grade laborers who are learning something about inside and outside painting methods of application.

Mr. Miller's science class is studying electricity and all members of the class are taking a particular interest in the study of electricity. They are planning on taking a trip to the telephone office this week to gain more knowledge on the subject.

Students of the first year mechanical drawing class are doing some very fine work on drawings of a mechanical piece. Two of the first year mechanical drawing students have completed their year's work and are taking up outside work in drawings.

The second year classes are busy on the drawing of the lathe, and some who have finished this work are making drawings of the crank shaft of an automobile.

Members of the advanced mechanical drawing class are making drawings of engine parts, consisting of cylinders, crankshaft, pistons and connecting rods.

High school shop classes are repairing the school furniture.

English 8 and 9

As it is the duty of the eighth grade English students to devote part of their time each week to writing themes, they have chosen this week as their subject, the inauguration of Franklin Roosevelt.

For their other class work they are continuing the study of the different tenses of verbs for grammar.

The ninth grade English classes are continuing their work in the exercise books. They will be given a mastery test this week over prepositional phrases and the punctuation of direct address. Work has also been done on paragraphing and the current usage of words.

Journalism

Vivian Russell Roy Ruth gave talks before the journalism class Friday on articles written in the New York Times. Vivian Russell talked on "The Power of the Presidency" by Lindsey Rogers. "The Risks Japan has Assumed in Pursuing a Solitary Course," by George A. Sopolisky, was the topic discussed by Roy Russell.

The writing of sports and athletics was the chapter studied in the daily class.

English

The senior class in English is studying the Elegy. The most outstanding example of this type of literature is "Lycidas" by John Milton.

Last week sonnets were written by the class. Some of the best work was contributed by Marvin Gross, Alene Riley, Dee Weaver, and Mary Louise Beardsley.

Junior English classes are continuing the same unit as last week. Some are selecting a study of novels by Scott and Austin, while others have chosen poetry. Under the latter, Burns, Wordsworth, Byron, Shelley, Coleridge, and Keats' work is included.

The sophomores will start a study of poetry and culture in New England. Whitman and Longfellow are the main authors in this study.

Mathematics

The first six weeks tests are over and the persons in the ninth grade algebra classes are working new problems. By the way, they remind us of Roosevelt. He's been busy solving problems too. We wonder if he knows his algebra. But getting back to the freshmen, they are working problems that are solved by fractional equations.

Plane geometry students have been doing problems that are solved by the Pythagorean theorem. Doesn't sound very "plain" to you, does it?

Similar prisms and cylinders are the chief object of students' taking solid geometry. Pyramids and cones have also been studied by the classes.

News Received

Earthquake Sector

Many Buchanan people were waiting anxiously during the past week for confirmation of the safety of relatives and friends residing in the region of California affected by the earthquake.

Among the first to hear were Mr. and Mrs. D. E. The boys who received a wire from their daughter, Mrs. Thelma Childs Peck, stating that her home at Coronado Beach was not in the path of the tremor and not much affected. She had not heard at the time from her husband, Lieut. Edwin Peck, who was stationed on U. S. warship at the time. Since there was no tidal wave, it is not considered likely that shipping was affected.

W. B. Rymearson received a telegram from his brother, M. H. Rymearson, who lives at Long Beach. The wire read: "All well, living in backyard." Their sister, Mrs. J. D. Duman, lives at the same place.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Glover received a wire and later a letter from Miss Wilma Roe, Miss Roe, who was formerly in the real estate business and has apparently imbibed the spirit of a true "native daughter." wrote that the quake resulted in a general shake-up but very little real property damage. She stated that she was sitting in her home listening to the radio, when suddenly the radio stopped, the lights went out and the chandelier swung until it nearly hit the ceiling. The main damage in that vicinity was broken windows.

Frank Tate received a letter yesterday afternoon from his son, Clyde Treat, who lives at Buena Park in the heart of the region of most damage. He wrote that no two-story buildings remained standing in the business section of that town, and that all stores fronts were shaken down. When the quake struck, dishes were shaken from the cupboards, and furniture slid about. He rushed out of the house and saw the automobile dancing around in the garage.

Dear Father and Mother,

I can just imagine you folks worrying and wondering if I am hurt or not, so I must hurry a letter to you.

I was on duty last evening when the first quake struck and was to go off duty in five minutes when things began to happen.

During the past 12 years, 10,000 banks have closed in this United States of America, your country and mine, the greatest and richest nation of the world, and during the same time, in poverty stricken countries all over the world, far less blessed with wealth and resources than us, far more crippled by the war's aftermath than us, the banks have almost universally remained open for business as usual.

A third of the banks of this country have closed. In all the other countries of the world none have closed to speak of. And now, when this banking situation has brought us to the zero hour of our economic history, is a proper time to inquire what we shall do about it.

Recent investigations have revealed shocking mismanagement, often bordering and sometimes apparently crossing the line of malpractice in great financial institutions, managed by officers supposed in more solvent days, to represent the cream of the financial brains of the nation. But so widespread has that condition been that it hardly seems reasonable to saddle the blame of it on the banking fraternity alone.

In other words, it is just another manifestation of that widespread get-rich-quick mania which affected the entire nation from top to bottom, so that the man who was not affected was the rank exception. If we, the voters of this country, had been interested during the past ten years, primarily in ethical business in clean government and as resolutely determined to force those ideas into effect as any body of citizens worthy of the name should have been, the banks would not be where they are now, and you and I not be where we are now.

And since we all, more or less, sinned and fell short of the glory of decent citizenship and clean ethics, our present troubles will not be in any measure abated by spending our time trying to hunt up goats to load the blame on. Rallding over the ashes of a dead past is no reasonable occupation for living men in times like these. Our hope for emergence is to accept our lesson and remember it, to accept our losses and forget them, to determine that as far as proper regulation can prevent a similar situation shall not occur again, and then face the future and go ahead.

Certainly the most futile occupation we can engage in now is to seek revenge for losses. In fact that attitude has nothing in it but harm for ourselves and for the community in general. Undoubtedly the conduct of the Buchanan banks in the past had much in common with general banking practice over the country. But if every business man guilty of loose practices in the dear dead days beyond recall was to be judged for it, how many of us would retain our liberty?

In the meantime we rake over the embers of community dissension; we help to divide a community which more than anything else needs common unity in action and spirit.

What have we to gain if we attain a personal revenge on someone we chose to select as the author of a part of our misfortunes? Will it bring our money back? Will it reopen banks? Will it even prevent similar recurrences in the future?

It will not. If ever these United States goes hogwild again over money to the same extent as the boom days of the twenties, the same miserable fiasco will be enacted over again, unless preventive regulations are so deeply imbedded in the structure of our national law that there is no way to circumvent. That is the remedy and not harriving business men whose crime, at most, is that in times of over-exuberance they were tarred with the same stick as you and I.

But if we persist in our determination to place "on the spot" everyone in anyway responsible for our ill fortune, we burn up time and mental energy needed to redeem the situation; we waste our own money, the depositors' money; we induce county and state's attorneys to waste salaried time, and public expense money, and all to make bad matters worse.

Wife's Death

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Glover received a wire and later a letter from Miss Wilma Roe, Miss Roe, who was formerly in the real estate business and has apparently imbibed the spirit of a true "native daughter." wrote that the quake resulted in a general shake-up but very little real property damage. She stated that she was sitting in her home listening to the radio, when suddenly the radio stopped, the lights went out and the chandelier swung until it nearly hit the ceiling. The main damage in that vicinity was broken windows.

Frank Tate received a letter yesterday afternoon from his son, Clyde Treat, who lives at Buena Park in the heart of the region of most damage. He wrote that no two-story buildings remained standing in the business section of that town, and that all stores fronts were shaken down. When the quake struck, dishes were shaken from the cupboards, and furniture slid about. He rushed out of the house and saw the automobile dancing around in the garage.

Plan Formation of an Organization of Democrat Veterans

Since the last state convention of the Democratic party in Grand Rapids there has been a movement on foot to create a League of Ex-Service men to be known as Ex-Service Democratic League. All ex-service men of any wars who would like to become members might do so by filing notice with the organizers that he is interested in such an organization. The purpose of this league will be to promote the Democratic party and the interest of the ex-service men. It is a hope of the organizers to organize all ex-service men with Democratic tendencies in the Fourth Congressional District and then each county will have its county organization, with its chairman and officers.

In another column there is an ad which calls attention to all men who are interested in becoming members of this organization. I notice Arthur H. Clarke of South Haven, who will, when a sufficient number have signed their interest in this organization, call a meeting in some central location in the district for the forming of the district organization.

Mr. Clarke has always been interested in the welfare of veterans and has been a district commander of the American Legion.

Mary Richter Wins Honorable Mention in National Contest

A few weeks ago Miss Chandler told the short hand class about the National Contest sponsored each year by the Gregg Writer, professional magazine for the students of Gregg Shorthand.

Although entrance in the contest was not required this year because of the small fee entailed, the material was presented to the class for those who wished to take advantage of it. Thirteen members of the group prepared papers. The examining committee awarded a certificate of membership in the Order of Gregg Artists to each pupil submitting a paper. The names of those receiving certificates are as follows: Dorothy Babcock, Wanda Flenar, Margaret Hamilton, Dorothy Holmes, Jesse Leggett, Helen Fletcher, Freddie Portz, Mary Richter, Agnes Schmidt, Jennie Smith, Dorothy Vincent, Emily Wales and George Zachman.

Mary Richter was awarded a gold pin for exceptional skill exhibited in preparing her material. Last year over 100,000 papers were entered in the contest representing not only every state in the union, but Japan, Porto Rico, Cuba and the Philippine Islands as well.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

All material for the National Scholastic contest is to be in by Wednesday, March 15. More interest has been shown this year and these talents in these fields have submitted their work more freely. Some material has already been offered by Doris Campbell, Marvin Gross, Alene Riley and Marjory Campbell.

It will be remembered that last year in a weekly number of the magazine, one of Marjory Campbell's poems was given recognition.

The Veimarian Literary Creative Writing Contest, including 7 to 12 grades, closes March 17. The three fields of literature—story, poetry, and short story—judges for the contest are A. L. Knoblauch, Miss Dorothy Portz and Miss Dorothy Charles. This contest was started last year in order to create more interest in literature.

SCHOOL SLANTS

Bob Stevens has been going around mumbleing something about getting revenge. Sounds like a good gangster war. He says that someone is musclin' in on his territory. Look out, Freddie!

Speaking about romances—we hear that the senior girls are going ga-ga about some of the undecorated. Of course we would not mention any names, but she has brown eyes.

Ruth Pierce has returned to school after a siege of measles. Bill Strayer had them at the same time. Merely a coincidence! Una Kelley is absent with them now. Wouldn't we like to see her!

The juniors are doing a rushing business. They are selling bracelets to the students and it seems that every boy is buying one for some of the fairer sex, with pretty little sentiments written on them. By the way, those foreign looking bracelets is Maurie Aronson wearing? Seems to have caused plenty of comment among the senior boys!

After the storm comes the sun. But some of the students retracted this statement after the report cards were issued. Every one seemed to be carrying a worried look on his face. However, we know that seniors really never worry—they just look like it.

Measles, Measles Everywhere and not a Measly Measle to spare

The attendance is still low in the grades because of the epidemic of German measles. However, some students are now returning because the seven day exclusion required by the state department of health was expired.

For the month of February the average number of children in the nurse's room for dressings, etc., was down to 15 per cent.

On Modern Art

(Mary Louise Beardsley)

At every turn I see something called art.

But can it be? Strange figures stare from walls.

The painting at my right is queer. It calls

To mind something from jungles wild, and parts,

It seems to me, from every rule of art.

In this exhibit, almost all things fall

Into the rank of angles, straight lines. All

The world, in fact, breathes of this modern art.

But everything must have some recompense.

Simplicity is beauty. Common things

Are those which seem to be, in modern sense,

Most beautiful. If anything true rings,

Then that, at least, is good. True beauty lives

In man, and understanding him is best.

The Post Graduate

(By Wayne Smith)

He greets me daily on the cold street

His eyes seem watching for an open place.

With nervous hands and eager

Beneath an agile body this steady

Of hopeful heart and willful feet

Knowing not how to continue this pace,

Of nothing to occupy his time nor mind,

How can this post graduate fill his time?

Admire him, see how he must compete.

With man of experience and worthy ace,

Of any occupation, in the time-worn race,

In which he goes. Help him his courage keep,

As you, tired father, go to your abode,

And, you, lucky man, with the job you hold,

For your heart may next be lonely and cold.

Debating

By Marjory Weaver

When Edmund Burke was a student at Trinity college, Dublin, in the middle of the 18th century, all games were strictly forbidden. Edmund Burke organized a debating club and many leisure hours were spent in debating questions of interest at that time. Out of that club grew the Trinity college Historical Society which still sponsors many great debates.

As Burke's debating society grew, so has the debating ability of Buchanan high school grown. This year our team was made up of two seniors and a junior. They were in seven debates including the state elimination. Never before has the debate team of this school gone as far as seven debates.

One of the chief advantages of debating is the realization that there is usually more than one side to every question.

Debating may not be as spectacular as athletics, but it takes as much work and clear thinking. A debater must think quickly and be ready to meet any unusual question that may arise during the course of a debate. He must be ready to take the judge's decision as final just as the athlete does.

Many underclassmen came out for debating this year, and with the one member of this year's debating team returning in the fall, Buchanan is looking forward to a successful year in 1933-34.

Who's Who

"I was born March 14, 1915, at Hartford, Michigan," stated Elaine Hawks, a member of the Junior class.

Elaine has medium brown hair which is as curly as a permanent could possibly make it, and she has brown eyes and is about five feet tall.

She likes chicken and biscuits and her favorite colors are red and blue. Elaine's favorite expression is "What would Sarah and the girls say?"

Geneva May Williams is a slender girl with dark hair, brown-eyed senior girl.

"Jenny" was born at New Carlisle, Ind., on Jan. 25, in the year 1914. She says—a secret how she got her nickname, but to me it seems quite plain.

Geneva has a great liking for nick nacks or whatever they may be called. If you don't believe it just listen to these combinations! Her favorite foods are chop suey and angel food cake and her favorite subjects are mathematics and history.

"My goodness," shouted George Spatta, last week in journalism class, "There goes the Autotram!"

George had just heard a whistle and had nearly thought that it was the Autotram coming down the railroad track. To his amazement it was not as he expected, but an old box-car designed as a repair car for the railroad corporation. George had all the rest of the class or the majority of them running to the window to see the modern invention which had proven so successful and he surprised them almost as much as he surprised himself. Poor George did not know what to say.

"Aw nertz," said George. "I thought that was the Autotram on account of the whistle sounding just like."

George is a junior and he is a nice boy. Of course, he says every body makes mistakes and that is more or less true.

What gets me is how he knows how the whistle sounds when he has never as yet seen the thing. It might have a horn for all we know.

Although St. Patrick's heart was always in Ireland, he was born in Scotland in the year 389. Some persons say he was born in England, but the authorities give his birth place as Bannauento.

The people know him as St. Patrick, but his British name was Suat. The people took the anglicized form of his Roman name "Patricius" and called him Patrick.

Talk about the exciting times of your childhood. When he was at the age of 16 he was captured by pirates from Ireland and taken to Ireland where he was a slave of an ulster chieftain. For six years he tended the flocks of this chieftain, and when he became tired of doing this and he longed for something different to do he'd watch more sheep.

A vision came. Patrick and a voice told him to go a mission-ary to Ireland, and so in the year 432 he went to Ireland, and worked all the rest of his life trying to make Christians out of the people.

His work was so successful that he has been called "the man who found Ireland all heathen and left it all Christian."

One of the legends that grew up about this well known Saint was the one about his charming all the snakes by his beautiful music and driving them to the seashore where they waltzed into the water and were drowned. It has been said that no snakes can live in Ireland. If circus people bring snakes into Ireland they die every time.

Just about all that is known about the saint is legendary. There is a lot known about his work, but very little about his real life.

The whole world honors St. Patrick's feast day which comes on March 17.

Science Dept.

The biology department has been classifying plants and animals according to their corresponding characteristics.

Phosphorus, arsenic, antimony and bismuth are commonly known as the nitrogen family. Fluorine, chlorine, bromine, and iodine are commonly known as the halogen family. These two families are the main experiments being done in chemistry. The experiments show the characteristics of each one of the elements.

Ohw's law which is used in the study of electricity, has been studied. Primary cells are commonly known as dry cells and secondary cells are known as storage batteries.

Miss Simmons' 8rd Grade Geneva Williams, Nancy Jean Scheetz, George Phisicator, Benny Cowgill, Dick Hess passed the examination for the Silver Star button in Palmer writing.

The following pupils will receive the Gold Star button: Bobby Swain, Nancy Jean Scheetz, Geneva Williams, Gwendolyn Irlie, Philip Sands, Vanessa Paul, Francis Heim, Richard McClure, Richard Troutfetter, Charles Eddy, Robert Six, Doris Rohl, Marion Blake, Melvin Dretzler, Dick Hess, Doris Hollenbach, Melvin Ravish, Betty Metzger, Glenn Shaan, Robert Dodge, Eloise Arthurholtz, Adaline Lakin, Lola Mae Dallenberg, Fred Hagley, Eleanor Ingelright, Clair Welsh, Jean Dalrymple, Martin Walter, Benny Cowgill, Kenneth McGowan, Craig Robinson, Bernice Phisicator, Betty Squiers, Doris Lamb, Bernadine Reamer, Duane Arend, Dick Bromley, Helen Swartz, and Donald Burriss. The final games for inter-class championship was played last Friday between the senior first team and the junior first team, sophomore first team and the freshmen first team and the seventh and eighth grades.

The seniors won over the juniors by a large score to make up for the defeat they took earlier in the season, the score being 22 to 11.

The second game was played by the sophomores and the freshmen. In this game the sophomores trounced the freshmen by a score of 27 to 3.

The third game was played between the seventh grade and the eighth grade by a score of 20 to 3. The seniors won first place, the juniors second, the sophomores third, freshman fourth and the junior high fifth.

Who's Who

A Line of Chatter or Two By Chester G. Chatterton

AIRMAIL NOTES are quite the thing now. Harleigh Riley and Doris Campbell have launched the new fad. Riley stands on the landing by the senior study hall and drops the notes to Miss Campbell as she stands on the steps below. The game is very exciting and his becoming increasingly popular every day.

HBRE IS NEWS! The senior class finally voted to wear caps and gowns at the graduation exercises. After a heated class meeting during which the idea was discussed, the motion was "laid on the table" for a week or so in order that it might be discussed further. Last week the dreaded class meeting was held, and as a cloud of gloom and doubt settled down over the discordant group the meeting got under way. Discussion was called for and every one remained silent, seemingly deaf of his opponents. Since the eager students did not wish to discuss the question, the vote was taken. Harleigh Riley and Jo Dunlap were appointed as tellers. The votes were finally counted, the room hushed expectantly, every one held his breath. The result of the vote was finally announced, 47 to 12 in favor of caps and gowns! Everyone took a deep breath, some faces appeared crest fallen, more lighted up. Well, such is life.

ALTHOUGH THIS is not a "Who's Who" column, several persons have been trying to hear more about one of the seniors, so here goes the Wayne Smith who has been within the limits of our hamlet, June 18, 1915, and has lived here all his life. By the way, before I forget, his full name is Wayne Theodore Smith. He likes brown-haired damsels with ocean-blue eyes and he likes to study the Hamilton family—in history! His favorite diversion is dancing (with whom?) and going to the show at Niles with the one and only????

"Tad" is his nickname but the origin of it is unknown. Mr. Smith states that his inspiration is to be a delivery boy. If you have any trouble in finding him when you want him some noon, here's a tip. He can be seen walking leisurely up Front street with Madeline Hamilton closely followed by Barbara Hamilton and Lowell Batcher.

BY THE WAY, have you noticed how much work "Batchie" has been doing around the post office of late? Now, there's a hard problem for you to figure out!

EDWARD SPASEK has a decided advantage over his male classmates. Eddie possesses a great knowledge of shorthand and he uses it to the greatest advantage in writing his notes. Here's the catch—how many of you knew when you went to school that Eddie's "Batchie" could read shorthand? Neither did we, but try to find an alternative!

HAVE you noticed Mary Richter's bangs? Jo Dunlap's rosy cheeks? Maury Aronson's bracelet? Joe Dunlap on Chippewa street? Vivian Wisler's sleepy look? Bob Strayer on Chippewa street? Doris Campbell with Riley? "Skoot" Rolen on Chicago street (near the school)?

Typing

The following persons received their Order of Artistic Typists certificates during the past week: Dorothy Babcock, Mary Louise Beardsley, Bill Bromley, Freda Disterheft, Josephine Dunlap, Wanda Flenar, Genevieve Glassel, Margaret Hamilton, Bernice Newsome, Lauren Morse, Helen Fletcher, Mary Richter, Vivian Russell, Roy Ruth, Dorothy Vincent, Agnes Schmidt, Jennie Smith, Emily Wales and Ethel Sibley.

Vivian Russell received a silver pin for the most artistically arranged and typed paper submitted.

The bookkeeping class is working on H. W. Good Practice, and have been studying the method of opening books at the beginning of business.

English

Each year some department of our school presents some outstanding event or receives recognition through its various activities. This year such an honor was bestowed upon our English department.

Word was received last week that our high school was one of four in the state of Michigan to offer course in World Literature. Mrs. Dunbar announced. The other three schools include Lansing, Ypsilanti Normal high, and Farmington, a suburb of Detroit.

As yet no definite text is on the market for a World Literature course, but Mrs. Dunbar supplies the material through two books, "Anthology of World Poetry" by Mark Van Doren, and "The Story of World Literature" by John Macy. The latter is considered the par with Wells' Outline of History and Durant's Story of Philosophy.

This course is limited to the senior English class. It is worked into through the types of literature. This, however, is the first year for the use of new material in this course.

Home Economics

To design clothing is something that a good many women know nothing about, but if they get into a course such as the seventh and eighth grade girls are now taking, they will know more about it. They are studying the principles of designing clothes. Another thing that they are trying hard to master is the making of plaques.

Freshmen girls are working on the different ways to use ribbon. Last week they accomplished the uses of lace. The projects on which they have been working are still in process. These are grouped into projects A, B, and C. The A projects pertain to embroidery samples, B projects are the making of a girl's wardrobe, and the C projects are in regard to a model closet.

Second year high students have also been completing projects, and are now beginning a course of color in relation to dress. Along with this color scheme they are learning facts about interior decorating.

Horticulture students are finding out how different fruits are selected by the grower. They have covered the exploratory test.

The debate classes are but a memory now since Buchanan lost to Grand Rapids.

Shop

In case you want to seek knowledge on how to build bird houses just drop over to the shop sometime this week and witness the work the seventh grade students in shop are doing in this.

As for other knowledge, painting for instance, you may also learn something from the eighth grade laborers who are learning something about inside and outside painting methods of application.

Mr. Miller's science class is studying electricity and all members are reported to be taking a particular interest in the study of electricity. They are planning on taking a trip to the telephone office this week to gain more knowledge on the subject.

Students of the first year mechanical drawing class are doing some very fine work on drawings of the machinist vice. Two of the first year mechanical drawing students have completed their outside work and are taking up the second year in drawings.

The second year classes are busy on ice drawing of the lathe, and some who have finished this work are making drawings of the crank shaft of an automobile.

Members of the advanced mechanical drawing class are making drawings of engine parts, consisting of cylinders, crankshaft, pistons and connecting rods.

High school shop classes are repairing the school furniture.

English 8 and 9

As it is the duty of the eighth grade English students to devote part of their time each week to writing themes, they have chosen this week as their subject, the inauguration of Franklin Roosevelt. For their other class work they are continuing the study of the different tenses of verbs for grammar.

The ninth grade English classes are continuing their work in the exercise books. They will be given a mastery test this week over prepositional phrases and the punctuation of direct address. Work has also been done on paragraphing and the current usage of words.

Journalism

Vivian Russell and Roy Ruth gave talks before the journalism class Friday on articles written in the New York Times.

Russell talked on "The Power of the Presidency," by Lindsey Rogers. "The Risks Japan has Assumed in Pursuing a Solitary Course," by George A. Sopolisky, was the topic discussed by Roy Ruth.

The writing of sports and athletics was the chapter studied in the daily class.

English

The senior class in English is studying the Elegy. The most outstanding example of this type of literature is "Lycidas" by John Milton.

Last week sonnets were written by the class. Some of these were contributed by Marvin Gross, Alene Riley, De Weaver, and Mary Louise Beardsley.

Junior English classes are continuing the same unit as last week. Some are selecting a study of novels by Scott and Austin, while others have chosen poetry. Under the latter, Burns, Wordsworth, Byron, Shelley, Coleridge, and Keats' work is included.

The sophomores will start a study of poetry and culture in New England. Whittier and Longfellow are the main authors in this study.

Mathematics

The first six weeks tests are over and the persons in the ninth grade algebra classes are working this week as their subject, the remind us of Roosevelt. He's been solving problems too. We wonder if he knows his algebra. But getting back to the freshmen, they are working problems that are solved by fractional equations.

Plane geometry students have been doing problems that are solved by the Pythagorean theorem. Does't sound very "plain" to us, does it?

Similar prisms and cylinders are the chief object of students taking solid geometry. Pyramids and cones have also been studied by the classes.

Mrs. Walton

7th Grade Social Science

In social science there has been a study of Russia by the seventh grade. There was a spell down contest in which questions were asked, between the boys and the girls. This also was over their study of Russia. The boys won. That proves who has been studying, or were they just lucky?

Physical Education

With the completion of basketball last week, several girls received enough points to become new members of the Girls' Athletic Association. Earthquake Sector

Many Buchanan people were waiting anxiously during the past week for confirmation of the safety of relatives and friends residing in the region of California, affected by the earthquake.

Among the first to hear were Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Childs, who received a wire from their daughter, Mrs. Thelma Childs Peck, stating that her home at Coronado Beach was not in the path of the tremor and not much affected. She had not heard of the time from her husband, Lieut. Edwin Peck, who was stationed on a U. S. warship off San Pedro. Since there was no tidal wave, it is not considered likely that shipping was affected.

W. B. Rynearson received a telegram from his brother, M. H. Rynearson, who lives at Long Beach. The wire read: "All well, living in backyard." Their sister, Mrs. Ida Dudman, lives at the same place.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Glover received a wire and later a letter from Miss Wilma Roe, Miss Roe Peck in the heart of the region of most damage. He wrote that no two-story buildings remained standing in the business section of that town, and that all store fronts were shaken down. When the quake struck, dishes were shaken from the cupboards, and furniture slid about. He rushed out of the house and saw the automobile dancing around in the garage.

Dear Father and Mother,

I can just imagine you folks worrying and wondering if I am hurt or not, so I must hurry a letter to you.

I was on duty last evening when the first quake struck and was to go off duty in five minutes when things began to happen. I do not think a person can describe the sensation or feeling one experiences when you are on the first floor of a 7-story brick building and the walls seem to sway as if trying to meet each other. I expected the roof to drop down anytime for there were cracks an inch wide in the angles and pieces of plaster a foot square dropped down where the cross beams were fastened to the wall. I was in a ward with forty patients flat on

LET'S WIPE THE SLATE

During the past 12 years, 10,000 banks have closed this United States of America, your country and the greatest and richest nation of the world, and during same time, in poverty stricken countries all over the far less blessed with wealth and resources than us, far crippled by the war's aftermath than us, the banks have most universally remained open for business as usual.

A third of the banks of this country have closed. The other countries of the world none have closed to of. And now, when this banking situation has brought to the zero hour of our economic history, is it proper to inquire what we shall do about it.

Recent investigations have revealed shocking mismanagement, often bordering and sometimes apparently of the line of malpractice in great financial institutions, need by officers supposed in more solvent days, to be the cream of the financial brains of the nation. widespread has that condition been that it hardly reasonable to saddle the blame of it on the banking, nity alone.

In other words, it is just another manifestation of widespread get-rich-quick mania which affected the nation from top to bottom, so that the man who was fed, was the rank exception. If we, the voters, country, had been interested during the past ten years in ethical business in clean government and a lutely determined to force those ideas into effect, a body of citizens worthy of the name should have been banks would not be where they are now, and you not be where we are now.

And since we all, more or less, sinned and fell short of decent citizenship and clean ethics, our troubles will not be in any measure abated by spend time trying to hunt up goats to load the blame on, over the ashes of a dead past is no reasonable occupying living men in times like these. Our hope for emancipation to accept our lesson and remember it, to accept our and forget them, to determine that as far as proper lation can prevent a similar situation shall not occur, and then face the future and go ahead.

Certainly the most futile occupation we can engage now is to seek revenge for losses. In fact that attain nothing in it but harm for ourselves and for the country in general. Undoubtedly the conduct of the Buchanan in the past had much in common with general bank failure over the country. But if every business man, of loose practices in the dear dead days beyond recall be juggled for it, how many of us would retain our lil

In the meantime we rake over the embers of our dissension, we help to divide a community which mo anything else needs common unity in action and spirit.

What have we to gain if we attain a personal relief someone we chose to select as the author of a part misfortunes? Will it bring our money back? Will open banks? Will it even prevent similar recurrence future?

It will not. If ever these United States goes hogwild over money to the same extent as the boom days of the twenties, the same miserable fiasco will be enacted again, unless preventive regulations are so deeply in the structure of our national law that there is no circumvent. That is the remedy and not harrying men whose crime, at most, is that in times of over-ance they were tarred with the same stick as you and

But if we persist in our determination to place 'spot' everyone in anyway responsible for our ill fortune, we waste our own money, the depositors' money induce county and state's attorneys to waste salary and public expense money, and all to make bad worse.

WE PREFER TO MAKE OUR OWN MISTAKE

In common with the rest of the Buchanan community the Record is indebted to the hard-working and conscientious people who represent the daily press in Buchanan.

We are glad to scan their daily offerings in the of outside newspapers, and we have no doubt our pleasure shared by many others.

There is one point of more or less common misunderstanding, however, to which we take exception. That is, the belief that it is universal practice among newspaper to "pirate" each others news.

The Record is at times indebted to other papers "leads" on news sources, but such news is used only is checked at the original source. This is the only any and all reputable and responsible newspaper of responsible newspaper permits copying news from sources of a local nature that is not first verified.

That does not necessarily mean a critical attitude of the accuracy of other papers. Nothing of the sort, ly means that if the local paper makes any mistake will be mistakes only of its own making and that if add to them the possibility of mistakes from other

I went to church last evening and just as the preacher was finishing, two big quakes struck. I walked around until about eleven and then went to bed with my clothes on. I was awakened about four times with my bed rocking—everything seemed to be moving a little.

I think a lot of people are thinking about going back east and I do not blame them at all as it is an awful feeling as far as I am concerned.

I felt one as late as this noon, so it may not be all over yet, but I've hope so at least.

Five Churches Sponsor Bible Memory Contest

The old days of memorizing Bible verses are back again in Buchanan for Sunday March 19th at least. On this date there are to be five Medal Contests held, with the Presbyterian, Methodist, Christian, Evangelical and Brethren churches participating. Five contestants from each of the above Sunday Schools choose a selection from a given list and memorize it just as it is in the Bible. During the Sunday School hour on Sunday morning these selections are given. The contest is carried on in the same manner as a Missionary Oratorical contest, except that instead of using Missionary selections, Bible selections are given. "Bible Gems" such as Christ's sermon on the Mount, Paul's defense before Agrippa, The Refuge Psalm, or Christ's comfort message are among those in the list as those worthy of being memorized. Each Sunday school selects three judges who will judge the presentation on the basis of voice articulation, gesture, memory and general effect, and the one with the highest average in these points is presented with a Silver Medal, the cost of which is being met by each of the participating schools. At a later date a Gold Medal Contest will probably be held, using interesting Temperance stories instead of the Bible selections. Those participating in the various Sunday Schools are: Presbyterian, Betty Kneller, Donna Smith, Joyce Kohlman, Phyllis Lamb, Margaret George, Cherry Blossom Heim; Christian, Leland Raul, Ethel Sibley, Mildred Proud, Ruth Beatty; Virginia Lohmough and Beverly Koons; Evangelical, James Evringham, Frances DiGiacomo, Donabelle DeWitt, Viola Boettcher and Margaret DeWitt; Brethren, Richard Dellinger, Edgar Baldwin, Russell Wales, Geneva Williams and Ellen Baldwin. The names of those participating from the Methodist church were not definitely decided upon at the present time. The contests are being sponsored by the W. C. T. U. and is being carried on quite extensively throughout the U. S. as one of the departments of work in which they are engaged.

New Berrien Co. Farm Organization Elects, Plan Meets

At a meeting of Berrien county's new farm organization, held in Benton Harbor, Saturday night officers were elected and plans were laid for meetings to be held in sections of the county where the movement has not yet been explained.

The new farmers' organization which takes as members all persons engaged in agricultural pursuits, has a definite program on several of the problems which are harrasing the farmer. At the previous meetings speakers have discussed question on taxation, moratoriums, farm mortgages, government crop loans, union joint stock land bank, loans, the creation of better local marketing conditions and advertising and publicity for Southwestern Michigan.

A definite step to stop foreclosures on mortgages will be taken, the organization claiming that a moratorium declared until the farmer is selling his produce at a price above the cost of production will be a benefit to both the mortgagor and mortgagee and will give the farmer a fighting chance to hold property which represents years of labor, effort and investment.

The officers elected Saturday were John Godfrey, Benton township, president; C. A. Hartman, Coloma, vice president; Chester Rahling, Millburg, secretary and treasurer; C. C. Leaming, Benton Harbor, executive secretary.

All farmers are urged to attend a meeting to be held at the Fairplain school house, Benton Harbor, Friday night, March 17, at 7:30 o'clock.

Announcement will be made later of a meeting to be held in Buchanan.
