TO FRANKLIN DELANO

Hi Haws

Whate'er our parties be We're for you, Franklin D. You suit us to a T Yet, anyway, Boys with the bigtime mon-- You got 'em on the run, Land sakes, ain't we got fun! Hail, happy days!

Jack up the busted banks, Fill up the brewery tanks-- Fill my another thanks! Boy! watch it fizz!

Whether you're smart or not, Whether your bills are hot, One thing you've got a lot, Nerve's what it is!

I'll compromise on a Used Car and a First Installment on a Senorita.

Gosh, we can't make up our minds how to spend our money! Take cars for instance, there's that new Lunolot sport cabriolet, I can't get it off my mind. What a buy at the price! And homes-- never a better chance in the world for a fellow to get a home, why they're offering new bungalows in two car neighborhoods at prices that are just a shame to take advantage of. And then there's travel, I get an itching of the feet every time I pick up a magazine that carries steamship ads, round trips to Bermuda, bar on board in full swing after you cross the twelve-mile limit, off to the sunny Southland, twanging guitars and langorous senoritas! But money goes just so far even at these prices and if you buy one thing you can't buy another.

What money, did you say? Well, the money I'm going to get when I fall down on one of these tilted sidewalks in the business district and break my leg and collect a sizeable chunk off the city!

"THE MIKADO" DELIGHTS TWO AUDIENCES HERE

Will be Presented Tonight at St. Joseph for Benefit of Boy Scouts There.

The premiere performance of "The Mikado" by the Clark Players was presented Thursday evening at the high school auditorium in the presence of a large audience. Much was more than delighted by the vocal quality of the singing, the sparkling performance of the actors and the brilliance of the staging, lighting and costuming.

The performance of the ever-popular Gilbert and Sullivan light opera was directed by R. R. Robinson of the high school music department, and the production was splendidly supported by a 20 piece orchestra composed of players selected from the high school orchestra musicians and by several adult musicians of the city. Mrs. Harry Geiss, former pianist at the Blackstone theatre of South Bend was at the piano.

The lead roll of Yum Yum was most admirably acted by Mrs. H. B. Thompson, whose vocal and dramatic ability was fully equal to the exacting requirements of her role.

The role of Nanki-Pooch was taken by Milo Pomeroy, vocal instructor at the Niles high school, whose beautiful tenor proved a real addition to the cast.

Mrs. E. C. Pascoe carried the comedy role of Katisha most capably. Mrs. A. L. Knoblauch and Miss Edith Eddy carried solo parts very capably as Pitti-Sing and Peep-Bo, the sisters of Yum Yum.

A. B. Muir carried the title role of the Mikado of Japan with adequate stage presence and dramatic talent. Burton Mills wrangled his part as Pish Tush with satisfaction, while M. L. Hanlin and A. S. Webb in the lead comedy parts of Pooch-Bah, Lord High Everything Else and Ko-Ko, the Lord high executioner, maintained their high reputations as stellar fun-makers and also in their singing parts demonstrated how much vocal talent may blush unseen in a wheel and axle factory.

The second performance which had been set for the following evening, was postponed until Tuesday night on account of the illness of Mrs. E. C. Pascoe.

Net proceeds of the two performances went to the relief fund of the Buchanan Parent-Teacher Association.

The cast will present the operaette tonight at St. Joseph for the benefit of the Boy Scouts of that city.

Forbidden Insurance Policy Loans During Emergency

All life insurance companies in the state of New York have been forbidden to declare dividends to stockholders or policy holders during the present emergency, under an order issued by George S. VanSchaick. The suspension does not affect dividend previously declared. Many of the dividends for the current year were declared in December. The order affects Metropolitan Life, New York Life, Equitable Life, Guaranty Life and Guardian Life. A similar order was issued by the state insurance commission of Illinois.

The lower house of the Illinois legislature passed the 3 per cent sales tax bill Wednesday by a vote of 103 to 4, the senate having previously passed it. It is estimated that the measure will produce $50,000,000 in revenues, designed to meet the relief situation of the state. Of this sum, Cook county will get $30,000,000, which, it is estimated, will take care of the relief situation for 1933.

Nelly and Vincent Riggio, vice presidents, whose salaries last year were $50,000 each, received additional compensation of $401,700. Hill declared that the additional compensation policies have been the "foundation of the company's success."

MC KENZIE CO. OF DEARBORN IS LOW BIDDER

West Michigan Construction Company of South Haven is Low on US-31 Contract.

The low bid of $20,041.82 for the construction of M-174, the official title of the spur from Buchanan to M-60 was submitted by the McKenzie Construction Company of Dearborn, Mich., at the official letting at the office of State Highway Division Engineer W. J. Kingscott, 309 McNair building, Kalamazoo, yesterday.

While the bid was not officially accepted, it is expected that announcement to that effect will be made during the next two weeks.

The plans for construction provide for a 20-foot concrete pavement, 1.086 miles long. The right of way of the highway will be widened, necessitating the removal of a number of trees on the Chamberlain property. The highway spur will angle across through the eastern shoulder of the Chamberlain hills opposite the F. W. Howe residence, eliminating the corner opposite the Emma S. Knight home, and will cross or touch the lots owned by Ed Toll, Ava Schram, Jack Knight and May Lister. The brick house owned by May Lister must be moved or demolished to make way for the pavement, which intersects Portage street at an angle at the point where Hobart street enters.

A low bid of $84,737.94 for the construction of the 5.6 miles of pavement on US-31 between Walton Road and the River Road intersection was submitted by the West Michigan Construction Co., of South Haven.

Engineer Kingscott stated that two detours would be arranged during the construction on US-31. One would be by way of the Walton Road and the St. Joseph River road. Another will be the Waterbury road straight north from Niles to connect with a gravel road running west into US-31 south of Berrien Springs.

The pavement of US-31 from the Walton Road into Niles has been delayed until a more satisfactory entrance into Niles can be worked out, eliminating the interurban crossing at River Bluff and several blind corners between the River Road and Niles Front street.

SHERIFF CHARLES MILLER SUMMONED TO DEFEND HIS TITLE TO HOLD HIS OFFICE BEFORE MICH. SUPREME COURT

Contests Alleged Irregularities in Benton and Oronoko Townships.

Sheriff Charles L. Miller was served Friday with a summons to appear in the Michigan Supreme Court on or before April 4 to prove his title to the office of sheriff of Berrien county.

The move to oust the sheriff was initiated by the filings of quo warranto proceedings by Atty. Gen. Patrick O'Brien, through Bryan Geller, assistant attorney general. Charges of fraud and other irregularities were outlined in the bill of particulars filed in state supreme court by Atty. T. N. Robinson, a legal associate of County Attorney Harvey Holbrook. The following charges were made, centering about the conduct of the election in Benton Harbor and Oronoko township:

1. Fraud and irregularities on the part of the election officials and voters.
2. Registering and voting 350 illegal voters.
3. For voting voters not registered and not given the oath as required by law.

4. Illegal appointment of an unofficial person, Lester Sunday, as election inspector to hand out ballots.

and more sand, spring fed lakes in the public parks, fish and fruit to feed a nation, "Furnished Rooms," "Furnished Apartments," "Cottage for Rent," and "For Sale" signs in profusion, friendly faces, flowers everywhere, and a mountain 300 feet high.

Courtesy of the business people, renters living on alleys who lived on Society Row back home, 1000 bathes on the beach and one in the water, speech with no southern drawl, three guests to one permanent resident, guests largely retired farmers and business people from Middle and Eastern states, great grandmothers playing shuffleboard, romance revived by 80-year-old couples on green benches, the winter of life in the summer of Florida, the band concerts every afternoon in the parks, the public forum which acts as a safety valve to keep local orators from exploding, negroes hunting champions in the woods lots 80-year-old chemical blondes, roaring silence of the checker club, the captain of a deep sea fishing boat with a voice like a cracked alto horn, gossip of the green benches as incessant as the tick of a clock, ancient mariners as active as grasshoppers, old matrons with young husbands as misnamed as two left shoes, the "Kids" and the "Cubs" baseball teams who play every Saturday morning, ages 76 to 101 years.

Living expenses from nothing a year to $50 a day, negroes who beg for charity but will not cultivate a garden, whites who handle rather than pick the oysters that grow in profusion and on which the Seminoles subsisted for centuries, the retired telegraph operator, who supports a family and runs a car on a pension of $10 a week, guava jelly, papayas, toast and coffee for breakfast, the tame parrot who crawls in the dining room window and says "Is breakfast ready?"—milk, 13c a quart, and ice cream at 25c per quart, renters who store their winter's fuel in a bushel basket, wood bought by the "strand" but no body knows how much a "strand" is.

The glory of the sunshine and the morning mists that hang over the bay, Northern April, November and July weather all in one day, sunrise from a fishing boat on the Gulf of Mexico, watching the sunsets at Pass a Grille, the darkness that creeps over the landscape like a grandmother covering her favorite child, some days overcoats at 9 a. m. and bathing suits at 10 a. m., property owners in ice cream pants and red tenters in overcoats, just enough cool weather to make one appreciate the sunshine.

Fifty-one flying pelicans in single file skimming the water of Boca Siega Bay and crossing the half-ball of the rising sun, catching stone crabs, watching the futile efforts of a pelican to swallow a balloon fish, schools of horse shoe crabs in the shoals, swimming out for sponges, smell of sponges on the sponge boats, the laughter of a baby when a block of gulls ate bread from her hand, pelicans that know the difference between a manufactured bait minnow and a real one, pelicans that were here before St. Petersburg was born, so old their heads are as black as the inside of a coal mine, pelicans that dive into bay like a shooting star, a white crane in a marsh as still as a frozen marble tombstone, Scotch collie dogs without tails, amateur fishermen opening oyster shells with a hammer, shells of a thousand varieties, hunting star fish at John's Pass, shells with sharp points like thistles, trying to evict hermit crab, the phosphorescent glow of the eyes of the shrimp, the pilgrimage to hunt for sea shells after a storm, a swan as white as a ghost in the morning mists, the tame cheetah (leopard) on the U. S. Destroyer Hunt at the pier, the monsters of the alligator farm, the alligator that was towed behind an automobile, which broke the rear wheel of the car with a swish of his tail, gopher turtles crossing the road, mocking birds singing at midnight, and barefoot children.

127 species of palms, shores without rushes or reeds, live oaks hung with Spanish moss like the whiskers of a prophet, grape fruit by the carload, retail one cent each, the beauty of the forests of long leaf pine, the lacy leaves of the Australian pine, cocoa nuts by the boatload, poinsettias as plentiful as pigweed, leagues of orange groves, the amusement of the natives when they hear a Northerner speak of orange orchards, instead of groves, orange trees with both flowers and fruit like Christmas trees hung with toy moons, who can forget the perfume of the highways lined with orange blossoms? A drink of the juice of the Calamondin orange, flowering hedges of Turk's Cap, the vivid coloring of the Flame vine, the coarse beauty of the banana flower, flowering oleanders as high as a house, flower gardens filled with singing birds.

Ojibway Indians Still

Stage "Hiawatha" Story
Canada has its own Oberammergau. For many years the Ojibway Indians of the Garden River preserve, alongside the city of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., have been presenting a stereoscopic stage version of Longfellow's poem, "Hiawatha," in their own language. The first performance was put on at the Canadian Soo in honor of a visit from Longfellow's daughter. The poem is a glorification of the Soo area and Lake Superior. The River Kwai and the St. Mary's on which the Soo is built and the rapids mentioned in the poem are the Soo rapids. The city's old Indian name, Awitawing, appears in the poem. It was the Ojibways who inspired the poem and it is their legends and stories which are told in it.

The Soo Indians presented the play in several American cities years ago, and once they appeared in London, England. Every character in the piece is taken by an Ojibway, and the whole play is given in the Indian language. The action of the play is explained to the audience through a loud speaker.

U. S. Ambassador Starts Rome Antinoise Drive

Rome—John Work Garrett of Baltimore, American ambassador to Italy, has devised his own formula for combating the sleep-wrecking noises of Rome.

The ambassador, like all arriving Americans, found his sleep disturbed by the roaring of motors and continual horn-toting of taxicabs. His own car, of American make, had a silent motor and an effective but pleasant-sounding horn.

Garrett, realizing the value of starting at the problem at the fountain head, instructed his chauffeur to quietly demonstrate to Italian chauffeurs how a horn can be tooted without waking up the dead, and the advantages of a silent motor. The ambassador has great hopes for his little scheme.

Correlative passages read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker

Eddy, include the following (p. 207): "The spiritual reality is the scientific fact in all things. The spiritual fact, repeated in the action of man and the whole universe, is harmonious and is the ideal of Truth. There are 26,000,000 reasons for Prohibition. Your automobile is one.

"The Forgotten Man" of the Saloon Days
By Dr. P. P. Claxton

Former U. S. Commissioner of Education in a democratic line, representing all government, legislative, executive, and judicial, depends on public opinion and popular sentiment. All forward progress depends on accurate information, sound understanding, and right mental attitudes.

Education is the final solution of all problems. There is no other democratic way. Representatives of the people in legislative halls and administrative offices finally do the will of the people, if the people have a will intelligently made, firmly held, and effectively expressed.

To keep the saloon out and prohibition in we need first of all to get to all the people, or as nearly as possible, accurate information. The saloon owns its influence, physical, economic, moral, civic and political.

The memories of people are short. Most of us seem to have forgotten conditions before the days of prohibition. We have forgotten how the streets of cities and the country highways were not safe for women on Saturday afternoons.

We have forgotten the drunken men malingering in and out saloon doors and down the streets, running their horses on the sidewalks or by the roadside. We have forgotten the public gatherings, including political meetings, election days, picnics and dances, and the frequent outbreaks of church services by drunken men.

We have forgotten the long lists of drunks in police and magistrate's courts on Monday morning and other days. We have forgotten the drunken men on trains and at railway stations and their nauseating vomiting. We have forgotten inebriate public bawlers where prominent men were left under the table or hauled home.

We have forgotten the bar room near to legislative halls and the very elegant one at the door of the House of Representatives in the Capitol at Washington. We have forgotten the quite common approach of salesmen to their customers by setting up the drunks. We have forgotten the drunken men in the lobbies of hotels. We have forgotten the large number of young men in all ranks of society, and especially in the higher ranks who became drunk on sots and went to the dogs.

Older people forget. Younger people cannot remember conditions and things that happened before they were born.

We have forgotten the domination of the saloon in local and to a large extent in city and state politics. We have forgotten how the saloons constantly evaded and defeated all laws made for their control. We have forgotten the large number of bootleggers and illicit distilleries, little if at all less common before prohibition than they are now.

If more men and women drink than formerly, they do it where they cannot be seen.

Men and women need definite and accurate information about the economic effects of the saloon, always tending toward shiftlessness, waste, and poverty.

Before and After
In 1918-19, before prohibition, when Pennsylvania had a car for every inhabitant, records show that an average of 1. lives were lost by automobile accidents, for every ten thousand cars registered.

New York lost more, 30, while dry Maine lost less than 1. Since prohibition, though cars crowd the highways, even "wet" Pennsylvania's rate came down in 1928-31 to 12.5 per ten thousand cars, and Maine's was 6.

These changes are not due to better cars, for New Brunswick, across the border from Maine, under provincial prohibition, 1921-26, averaged 8.2, while since then, under government control, fatal accidents have doubled, to a rate of 16 per ten thousand cars. Recent statistics show the rate of automobile deaths in Great Britain to be one for less than every four hundred cars, more than 25 for each ten thousand cars registered. Shall the United States give beer to the motorist?

Protests Tyranny
of Red Regime

The following letter was sent to a Swedish religious publication in the United States and was relayed to the Record by Martin Pearson. Translated from the Swedish by Mrs. Walter C. Hawes.

Since I, the writer, am of the opinion that the people of other countries do not know what is actually going on in Russia, I feel impelled to write of conditions as I know them.

For some time the Russian press has been stirred up over the publication in the press of other countries of descriptions of forced labor here. The Soviet press is not willing that the truth should be known in that matter. In fact, all labor is forced in Russia. The communist must work day and night. He has not the time to spare to make even the simplest provision in his home—that is, if he is permitted to have a home. His vegetable garden is full of weeds. No fertilizer is applied because of lack of time. The housewives have hardly time to wash and mend their clothes. The older Russians say that life under the Czars was not nearly so oppressive as in the Soviet regime.

We feel that we are slaves. We have acquired a red nobility and a caste of slaves. The whole country is sighing and groaning under the dominion of Bolshevism. Not only is the Communist forced laborer, but every laborer in Russia must sign a contract to work a number of years.

There is another form of tyranny in Russia that forces great numbers into virtual slavery. This is the grain requirements of the Soviet government. This enforced tribute of grain has brought misery to thousands of peasants. Those who are unable to deliver their allotment of grain are taken into court and are sentenced to from three to five years at hard labor. The same happens to those who are unable to pay the levies of money. Their properties are confiscated and they are sentenced to years of hard labor, while their families are doomed to want and misery.

Everything is taxed here. The farmer is required to pay to the government tribute in grain, cattle—often more than he is able to deliver, money. Fishermen must deliver a certain amount of fish. Fruit farmers, fruit, the number of chickens. If they do not deliver the required amounts, they are thrown in jail.

The prisons are always overflowing in Russia—in fact they are inadequate and better buildings must be pressed into service. Often the judges come to the village to hold court and pronounce sentence. Especially do they hear down on the kulaks, the farmers, who in years past have saved considerable money. If the head of a family has been stamped a kulak by the poor and pauper committee, his fate is sealed. Punishment varies. One kulak may be sent to Siberia together with family; another may be plundered of all his goods and banished. In his absence, his family may receive such heavy additional burdens that he is forced to take his family and flee from the home land. In this way many thousands have been reduced to want and misery, wandering about the country homeless and helpless.

People have been driven from their homes in the middle of the bitter cold winter and exposed to the horror of their letters, smuggled from the shores of the White Sea or even of the Arctic Sea. In Siberia is enough to raise the hair in horror. They live in the most miserable barracks, starving and freezing, yet forced to hard labor. One writes that they are on the verge of insanity, another that they are nearly devoured by vermin, another that they have lost all faith in God. Conditions among those who are not enfranchised are very bad. They have no right to membership in any organization collective or co-operative. Consequently they have no right to bread cards, and can buy little or nothing in government stores. They may get work but are paid in money and not in products. Since any commerce in food is forbidden, it is possible to obtain bread only at the highest prices and through smuggling. The grain supply of the country is exhausted; the price of flour is unreasonable, so that many are now starving in Russia.

As I am writing, a story is being told of several men who went to a village near here in an attempt to buy bread. They found a place where they were able to buy some small grain, but, careful though they were, they were caught by the police, their grain was confiscated, the money taken from the buyers, the seller was imprisoned, his property taken, and he may now anticipate many years of hard labor and perhaps exile.

More than that, licentiousness, and child murder are rampant. In a word—ruin.

If we desire to leave this oppressed land that is not possible for passes are not issued to other countries. Some fly and are fortunate enough to escape; others are caught and cruelly punished. The people are gagged, they can no longer make themselves heard. They have been cruelly betrayed. They are universally opposed to this regime, even to the army, of which 80 per cent is composed of farm youth.

Especially does this regime rage against religion. In many places the people are forced to work on Sundays and holidays. They attempt to hinder church services by announcing communist meetings for the same hours. If the people remain away from the communist meetings, the church leaders are punished. Leaders of the churches are so burdened with taxes that they finally default and are punished as tax dodgers.

and counter-revolutionists. None of them may vote. Their fate is exile or hard forced labor. That is why churches and houses of worship are eventually closed. Everything is subjected to this tyrannical regime. It is this regime that the Bolsheviks wish to prevail over the whole world. If the teacher suits his instructions to the teachings of Lenin he is promoted. Those who hold different opinions may not express them either in word or writing. There is but one press in the country, the Red Press. No religious books may be printed in the country and none may be imported. Even the classics are forbidden.

From the above each reader must draw the conclusion that Bolshevism is a great menace to mankind—as great a danger as Mohammedanism was to Christendom. We hear talk sometimes of the "yellow peril" but the red peril is greater.

The Russian of today is a different man from the Russian of ten years ago. The Russian is tired of the Bolshevik experiment, he has no desire to go with it. A Carl Martell is needed. But where is he?

For your lives' sake, for the sake of your children, join forces with all the peoples of the earth against the common enemy that is even now striving to bring ruin upon you. He who does not believe that conditions are as I have described, let him come and verify them for himself. We cannot come to you. The newspapers interested in this matter are requested to print this letter.

Talks to L. D. S. on Technocracy And Brotherhood Man.

Friday night at the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints Apostle D. T. Williams discussed with an interested audience the subject, "Technocracy and the Brotherhood of Man."

Among other things the speaker set out the fact that it was the opinion of the Technocrats that if all the machinery now engaged in the channels of production and all the machinery now invented and which could readily be put into the producing of good were to be dedicated to human service there would be no need for the people of the United States to work more than four hours a day on a four day week. It was agreed by Mr. Williams that this might be an exaggeration not fully justified by the facts. Nevertheless, he commented on the possible lesson to be gained from the suggestion saying that "our civilization must adjust itself to the machine, age and the possibilities the age lays at our door."

There is a challenge thundering at our gates this very hour."

he asserted, "What is to be our answer? Twenty-five million unemployed, scattered throughout the nations of the world, are not forever going to stand aside in the lines of starvation and view with complacency the bins of plenty while their children cry for bread. We will either have to more justly distribute the goods produced by the machine or face in the end the bruised hoards of revolution."

How can this serious situation be met? The speaker pointed out that we will have two avenues open both of which will have to be used. First we will have to set our system of production to the task of creating luxury machinery as opposed to creating labor-saving machinery. In other words, more such inventions as the radio, electric lights, etc which supply work as opposed to labor-saving machinery which throw men out of work must be developed to absorb the surplus man power thrust upon the labor market of the world. Secondly, when this fails to take up the arrested energy the only avenue left is to cut down the hours of labor as the machine drives men from their jobs. These conditions are rapidly driving us toward the establishment of the Brotherhood of Man in which there will go to every man according to his needs and be expected from every man according to his ability. Technocracy may be pointing the way to the Brotherhood of Man in their doctrine of equality, and in this connection he points to a revelation coming through the prophet of his church which says: "If ye are not equal in material things you cannot be equal in spiritual things."

Straws in the Wind

Smith college for women at Northampton, Mass., will open two new dormitories next fall for students co-operating to reduce the price of board and room. The girls will do light housework an hour a day and will pay $400 for board and room instead of $500, as this year.

Volume of commercial air transportation in the United States increased 31 per cent in the two years ending Dec. 31, 1932.

At 2 p. m. each Monday afternoon 5,000 violin students in thirteen states and several Canadian provinces played their instruments under the direction of a University of Michigan teacher leading over the radio. The leader is Dr. Joseph E. Maddy, director of the public music division of the university. The music books are distributed free by the university. Of the 5,000, about 2,500 play alone, while the others play in groups of from seven to 150 pupils. As Dr. Maddy directs over the radio he is looking through a glass partition at a group of beginners who are following his aerial instructions, playing with their backs turned toward him. He notes the errors in posture or playing by a majority of this group and cautions his aerial audience against those errors. It is anticipated that the department will have 20,000 students by next year. The instructions are given over station WJR, Detroit. Each week Dr. Maddy's hour is taken up in part by a solo by one of the students of the aerial course, who come to Detroit for that purpose.
