Would Override Comstock's Veto of 3 Measures

A drive to override gubernatorial vetoes of the small loan bill, the chain store bill, and the bill doing away with private shooting preserves was initiated Saturday by State Representative Harvey Hope Jarvis of Benton Harbor.

The veto of the small loan act was a violation of a solemn pledge made before election, Jarvis stated. Governor Comstock said that the bill reducing the legal rate from 3 1/2 to 1 1/2 would drive the small loan business underground and into the hands of loan sharks who would charge more than the legal rate.

LITTLE TROUBLE WITH SALES TAX, SAY MERCHANTS

The application of the sales tax is proving to be less of a problem locally than was anticipated, according to Buchanan business men who state that they have been able to work out systems which accurately place the tax, with very little objection from the public.

The local merchants have evidenced a genuine desire to impose the tax fairly and have worked out plans by which they have collected the 3 per cent tax on gross sales with variations of only a few cents either way from entire accuracy on a day's business.

After the meeting addressed by Dean Morley at the Civic Association headquarters Monday evening, the Merchants divided into groups according to their various lines of business to work out plans for imposing the tax.

A number of grocers adopted the following tentative plan: Sales $0.1-11 Tax $0.00 $0.12-35 Tax $0.01 $0.36-65 Tax $0.02 $0.70-1.09 Tax $0.03

Confectioners adopted the following scale: Sales $0.1-09 Tax $0.00 $0.10-35 Tax $0.01 $0.36-65 Tax $0.02 $0.70-1.09 Tax $0.03

Restaurants adopted the following scale: Sales $0.1-09 Tax $0.00 $0.10-35 Tax $0.01 $0.36-65 Tax $0.02 $0.70-1.09 Tax $0.03

On lower sales it ranges as follows: Sales $0.1-16 Tax $0.00 $0.17-49 Tax $0.01 $0.50-83 Tax $0.02 $0.84-1.16 Tax $0.03 $1.17-1.49 Tax $0.04

Considerable discussion has been created by the fact that at the present time the filling stations are charging the sales tax on the complete price without separating the 4 1/2 cent state and federal gasoline taxes, thus levying a tax on a tax.

News stands are among the few businesses which are experiencing trouble in the imposition of the tax as the bulk of their sales are three cent newspapers.

Notice to the Motoring Public Instructions were issued to the police by the city commission at its July meeting Monday evening to enforce respect for the blinker signals at the intersections of Front and Oak streets and of Front, Portage and Rynearson, in order to avoid the possibility of wrecks which have been narrowly avoided several times on account of reckless speeding.

LYMAN CAMPBELL FUNERAL RITES HELD SATURDAY

Former Local Manufacturer, Developer of Clear Lake Woods, Buried with Masonic Rites.

The funeral of Lyman Laverne Campbell was held at 2:30 p. m. Saturday from the Starr Funeral Chapel at 851 75th street, Chicago, with a religious service followed by special Masonic rites, and interment was made in the Masonic cemetery at 125th and Halstead streets in that city.

Mr. Campbell died very unexpectedly at his summer home at Clear Lake Woods Wednesday evening. Although he had been feeling somewhat indisposed during the day, it was not known that he was in a serious condition.

He was born at Hastings, Mich., April 11, 1852, the son of Frank and Elsie Brace Campbell. At the age of five years he moved with his parents to Coopersville, and a few years later to Chicago where he secured most of his education.

There he entered the employ of the Grand Trunk railway, rising to the position of chief clerk of the yards. He then left business and entered the employ of the Morris Packing Company as traffic manager.

He left that work to return in 1912 to Chicago, where he engaged in business with his brother, Leon Campbell, in a machine shop and engineering business. In 1917 the brothers came to Buchanan and engaged in manufacturing.

The Buchanan Merchants won a 3-2 victory over the Reylender Dairy nine of Michigan City on the local diamond July 4, the game being pronounced the best of the season here to date.

Topash pitched for the Merchants for the first five innings, gaining a lead over the Michigan City team which Bob Morse held from there on. Both the local boys struck out five, and Lippens who went the whole route on the mound for Michigan City, struck out the same number.

Although no opponent has been definitely engaged, it is expected that a game will be played at the Athletic Park diamond next Sunday afternoon.

Greyhounds Chew Up S. B. Malleable Iron Works Sunday

The Portage Prairie Greyhounds had another game in the bag when their valiant stick men got to P. Cross, pitcher for the South Bend Malleable Iron Works, in the 7th and 8th of their contest at the Letcher diamond Sunday afternoon, gathering enough tallies to put the game on ice.

The Greyhounds have been gathering momentum as the season passes and are expected to be in high when they meet the fast Oriole nine of South Bend in one of the crucial contests of the summer at the Letcher diamond next Sunday afternoon.

County Dads Veto Investment Berrien Money in New Bank

The board of supervisors turned thumbs down as far as county investment in the projected Benton Harbor bank when by a vote of 29 to 5 they rejected a motion to invest $50,000 of the $436,000.00 county funds tied up in the Farmers & Merchants National Bank & Trust Co. in preferred stock in the new institution to further a plan to release a 50 per cent dividend to depositors.

Berrien county was asked to take $50,000 in stock, paying for it out of the 50 per cent dividend which would be paid F. & M. depositors the day the new bank opened. The county would thus receive $163,000 and the stock.

If the organization of the new bank does not materialize, the best the county can hope for is a 25 per cent dividend or $109,000.

Ingham Legislator Looks At Michigan's New Deal

Series of Articles to Show Successes and Failures of the New Administration

Published to Review Accomplishments of Legislature; Will Compare Actual State Costs with Promises Made in Campaign.

Six months of the new deal has passed into history and Michigan citizens in considerable number are making inquiry concerning what has actually been accomplished and what may be expected of the future. It is now about 15 months since this writer began a series of articles which gained rather wide circulation among the taxpayers of Michigan in which an attempt was made to evaluate the state government of that day and to point out to the taxpayers of Michigan where their tax dollars were being spent and for what purpose. Incidentally an attempt was made at that time to discover in behalf of the people, from whom the taxes were being collected, just who was benefitting, whether in fact the tax money was being used for the people of the state or just those whose names appeared on the pay rolls. Some rather disconcerting discoveries were then made.

During recent weeks many appeals have come to this writer asking him to review the session of the legislature just closed and to point out some of the influences which have worked against the adoption of the reforms promised in fact when the campaign was on and again this spring when the people expressed their choice at the polls. Because of this demand and because of the widespread interest of the reading public of Michigan in the truth regarding the affairs of their state government I have decided to submit a second series of articles dealing with current doings at Lansing and in state political circles. In doing so a sincere desire is held that this series, like the foregoing, shall be free from partisan bias and that the truth only shall be related. Again I shall present no opinions other than is necessary, for reader interest. What is written here will be based upon the records open to all at Lansing.

On January 3 when Governor Comstock appeared before the joint convention of the house and senate to deliver his inaugural address, he stressed few points, promising that later as he became more familiar with state problems and better acquainted with his legislature he would further reveal his administration program. He stated it as his judgment that the most important measures for early consideration included direct welfare relief and a provision for public works to give employment to heads of families out of work, old age pensions, state aid for primary schools, primary election reforms, revision of workmen's compensation laws to include occupational diseases, complete revision of the tax system, and he emphasized economy in every branch of state government.

A little less than a month later he transmitted to the house and senate a message in which he endorsed the cancellation of taxes of 1927 and prior years and an extension of time to delinquent taxpayers of 1928 and subsequent years which amounted to a virtual cancellation of delinquent taxes for current support of municipalities and schools as well as a repudiation of the debt represented by the so-called calamity bonds sold by municipalities on security represented by the delinquent tax lists then suggested to be cancelled. The governor further in his message of Feb. 2, again pointed out the necessity of revision of the tax laws.

On March 8, Governor Comstock requested the joint convention of the two branches of the legislature in order that he might again appear in person and deliver a third message. On this occasion he asked that the malt tax law be amended to permit the release of about $250,000 to the counties to be applied against a total debt then amounting to nearly $2,000,000. He again urged the revision of the tax laws and the submission of an amendment to the state constitution to permit a lower than the average rate of taxation for personal property and intangibles and the adoption of a graduated income tax measure. He also at that time urged it as his opinion that a constitutional convention should be called for a complete revision of the state constitution.

In keeping with the foregoing administration program, from time to time numerous bills were introduced and promoted by administration leaders designed to bring about the accomplishment of the reforms sought and advocated.

As far as the records of the house and senate are concerned, the foregoing constitutes the administration program to date.

Frequently congressmen have improved their respective political positions by jockeying the legislature into unfavorable light in the public mind. The public appears to like that sort of thing. Mr. Average Citizen hearkens back to the days of "Teddy" Roosevelt and his "big stick" and cheers lustily whenever the chief executive, by force of strong personality, or by sheer ability, forces his house and senate into a position where the members respond to the crack of the whip.

Students of politics and political maneuvers are a unit on declaring that in every such situation an able governor is required—a governor able to think ahead of the legislators as well as one who has a carefully worked out program of genuine merit.

Never since the days of Governor T. Mason has the administration been confronted with more perplexing problems than those faced by Governor Comstock and the members of the 1933 legislature.

When the legislature convened in January there were many problems to be solved, those problems for the most part falling naturally under four general headings. Indigency and welfare matters growing out of an extended period of unemployment were paramount. Intricately interwoven with these problems were the questions of finance and taxation, including the perplexing matter of tax delinquency and what to do with lands held under tax liens and about to be confiscated for taxes past due and unpaid. Banking and related fiscal problems involving the entire credit structure of the state, governmental and private, constituted the third great field of legislative concern. Support of the public school system of the state following the adoption of the 15-mill tax limitation amendment to the state constitution last November, was the fourth.

Beer, horse and dog racing, the small loan law, garnishment exemptions, clash of interests between the railroads and the highway trucking interests, notary public commission rates and a hundred and one similar measures were incidental to the real problems of 1933 but for some reason successfully held the center of interest throughout. The people are out with a big question mark to learn the reason why the big issues were ignored and flimsy, silly and inconsequential questions held sway.

Every successful legislative session is predicated upon a 5-point suspension to borrow a motor term. Floating power may be all right in some cars but in the legislative chariot there must be a rigidity of purpose and a predetermined and agreed-upon course of procedure.

The five points referred to are:

1. The personnel of the two houses and the executive office itself.
2. Organization, members must be assigned to committees where each can work to best advantage.
3. An efficient technical staff accurately keep the records and the journals so that what is done will stand the test of the courts.
4. Rules of procedure must be carefully followed in order that the mass of legislation may move steadily forward.
5. A carefully worked out program must be agreed to by leaders of both houses in joint conference with the governor.

Did the 1933 legislature meet these requirements? A large majority of the members of both houses were untried and untrained legislators. Many had no proper conception of the problems before them and those who were experienced found themselves of a minority party and at the tail end of committees. Chairmanships of practically every important committee on both sides of the capitol were assigned to novitiates who did their best but whose best was not good enough. The speaker of the house and the president of the senate made up their committees as best they could but that best was little less than drawing names out of a bag.

In marked contrast with the success of President Franklin R. Roosevelt with his congress is seen the failure of Governor Comstock. President Roosevelt had a program which he promoted from the drop of the hat. He gave the congress so much important matter that it had no time to think up deviltry and befog the session with pet measures and political gestures. Comstock never produced a program. The only discipline he maintained over his party members was the threat of loss of patronage for those who kicked over the traces. The inevitable result was a stream jammed with knurlly logs and driftwood while the straight timber was lost in the eddies. When the drive was over there was little worthwhile lumber to be saved. Comstock was a woodsman in his early days but evidently he never learned the first rule of the drive—"keep the stream open" and the logs rolling and there will be no jams at the cross currents.

The senate made the mistake of discharging men and women with years of experience in handling the technical side of their work. Their places were taken by campaign workers who knew little and cared less for the work of the session.

But what of the program? In contrast with the seriousness of the situation, there was none. Such as there was had not been submitted by the governor even to the members of his own party. From the very outset patronage took precedence over the public good. Petty party quarrels marred the discussion of every important measure to the point that even a majority of the democrats of the house are found on the record in the closing hours of the session as forced to vote for a sales tax measure which the governor had previously declared he would veto if passed.

One week of honest effort in laying out a program and in laying it carefully before his leaders would have saved Governor Comstock a great deal of worry and would have assured Michigan of a much better set of enactments. It will be the purpose of the next article to take up the course of Establish Conservation Camps in Michigan. Possible sites for the establishment of 43 Emergency Conservation Work camps in Michigan are now being inspected by ten U. S. army officers working under Col. Wm. K. Moore, U. S. A., in charge of the selection of camp locations.

The 43 camps to be established were recently approved by the Director of Emergency Conservation Work and will be located in areas easily accessible to the work to be done on state forests, game refuges, parks and other projects of the Michigan Department of Conservation.

In selecting exact locations for the various camps, Colonel Moore is giving first consideration to sanitation and water conditions and to recreational advantages. The first of the 43 camps has been established at the National Guard camp site near Grayling. It is officially known as the "Higgins" camp. It is expected that occupation of other camps will occur as rapidly as sites have been approved and workers have been "conditioned" at the army camps.

In the meantime L. R. Schoenmann, in charge of the Conservation Department's activities so far as it is concerned in the camps, is compiling work projects submitted by the various divisions of the department, so that the camp superintendents may put their crews to work as soon as the camps have been established. Although they live on simple fare, the men in the camps of the Lower Peninsula are getting good food, well prepared, and there is no limit to second helpings, according to Prof. P. A. Herbert, dean of forestry at Michigan State College, who recently finished a tour of the government's forest camps in the lower section of the state.

The Dean marvels at the fact that so few of the 800 men have quit their jobs, in view of the fact that most of them are city-bred. Two camps still have their full quota of workers; one camp has lost one man and the other about six. Of these one asked permission to return and some of the others were brought back by parents. The men are not enlisted and are free to leave whenever they wish.

Three army officers are assigned to each camp, with a medical officer for each two camps. The officers have charge of the camp site, the mess, clothing, recreation and medical care of the men. Foresters are in charge of the technical work and, according to Prof. Herbert, they are enthusiastic about the spirit of the men working under their direction.

A majority of the workers have had no forestry experience yet they are already turning out almost as much work as can be accomplished by experienced woodsmen.

Actual tree planting has been going on steadily until now the average rate of planting approaches that of experienced planters.

Sunday Dinner Suggestions

In the days when Marco Polo travelled, trade between East and West was largely for the sake of luxuries and chief of these, were the spices and condiments which acted both as preservatives of food and as disguises to "high" flavor.

Today's simplicity of seasoning is made possible by our understanding of spoilage and how to prevent it by proper refrigeration. This care must be continued in production, shipping, retailing and finally in the home. It is most important that milk, eggs, butter, meats and fish be kept cool and use that should be bought frequently in small quantities.

Midsummer vegetables for salads are plentiful. Be sure to marinate them in a dressing of olive oil, seasonings and lemon juice or vinegar. The small fruits and cantaloupe and watermelon are abundant this week.

Here are some menu's for the week:

- Low Cost Dinner
- Braised Round Steak with potatoes
- Onions and Carrots
- Bread and Butter
- Lime Gelatin with Orange Sections
- Tea or Coffee
- Milk
- Medium Cost Dinner
- Red Bean Soup
- Cold Cuts
- Vegetable Salad
- Sliced Tomatoes
- Bread and Butter
- Floating Island
- Coffee
- Milk
- Very Special Dinner
- Jellie, Bouillon

Try to Count 'Em

The average person has about 120,000 hairs on the head. Blonds, because their hair is of much finer texture, often have as many as 140,000 hairs. Brunettes usually have about 110,000, while the red heads usually produce a crop of only 90,000 hairs.

Each of the more important measures suggested, to trace their course through legislative channels, to point out the interests which caused their defeat where defeat was accomplished, and to set forth as near as may be the present status of each of the several proposals. Later along in the series, current payrolls will be employed to show the extent to which the "new deal" economy has been carried.

Group Connections Now Possible in New Phone System

One of the latest contributions to the swift transaction of business is the "Telephone Conference" plan, whereby a group of men seated at their desks in different cities can confer as intimately, one with another and with the entire group, as if gathered about the same table.

With business again stepping into high gear, H. C. Snannon, manager here for the Michigan Bell Telephone company, announced the telephone conference plan as a new and important tool of industry. Following a definite demand for such a setup, it was developed to aid in the speedier, more efficient and more economical transaction of business, particularly from the executive standpoint.

In the past, he said, if a number of executives, or a sales manager and his branch representatives in different cities wanted to hold a discussion, it was necessary for them to gather in conference at some one point. Hours, and sometimes days of travel, at considerable expense, were required. Most of the group were taken away from their duties for a considerable period—and the time of executives and supervisors is costly.

Now it is possible to hold such conferences by long distance telephone, with each person seated in his own office. Each participant can talk with and listen to any or all of the others. As many as six can take part in a long distance telephone conference. Through the utilization of special switching equipment in the long distance office, the connections are set up a few minutes in advance of the conference. The rates are inexpensive.

More than a year ago, following a number of requests for service of this type, the first such telephone conference took place when an official of the Kellogg Company of Battle Creek seated in his own office, talked with Detroit managers in Chicago, Westport, Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Cincinnati. Later the same day, he held a second conference with representatives in St. Louis, Kansas City, Omaha, Des Moines and Minneapolis. Each man took part in the discussions and heard all the conversation of the others.

The cost of the two 30-minute "meetings" was a very small fraction of what it would have cost to bring all the conferees to Battle Creek.

Those two telephone conferences were arranged more or less as an experiment by the Michigan Bell and the American Telephone & Telegraph companies, but from then was worked out the present telephone conference plan.

The telephone conference plan is expected to be utilized in many ways, such as the launching of sales campaigns in widely separated territories; the quick discussion by headquarters and branches of price schedules or competitive situations; for giving detailed instructions or announcing new plans and policies; for consultations by physicians or attorneys; for boards of directors meetings; conferences between police or other law enforcement agencies, and even for visits and discussions by widely scattered members of families on anniversaries or in case of emergency.

Income Tax Laws

The first income tax that was levied in the United States was primarily a war tax levied during the period 1861-1872. The second income tax provision became a law August 28, 1894. This was declared unconstitutional. The amendment of the Constitution giving congress power to lay and collect income taxes became operative February 13, 1913. The income tax was passed October 3, 1913.

Among the Bible citations in this passage (Mark 10:43-45):
"But whosoever will be great among you, shall be your minister: And whosoever of you will be the chiefest, shall be servant of all. For even the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following: "Obeying his precepts, following his demonstration so far as we apprehend it, we drink of his cup, partake of his bread, are baptized with his purity; and at last we shall rest, sit down with him, in a full understanding of the divine Principle which triumphs over death."

Sunday School at 10 o'clock. Interests in home presents a scene that simply beggars description. Buggies, wagons, plows, machinery of all kinds, furniture and bedding were intermingled with the debris of the building and uprooted and shivered trees; and amidst all little Nora, aged 4 1/2 years, was found dead with her doll in her arms. One leg was broken, ribs broken and neck supposed to be broken. Mrs. Wilson was found among the broken lumber unconscious. Her injuries are internal and severe. Mr. Wilson was found about fifteen rods from where the house stood badly hurt and moaning piteously. Ernest was driven into a big hedge, had one leg broken, part of his under lip torn off, which is feared by many, will disfigure him for life. They are all doing well at present.

Curtis Hall's house and barn was blown to pieces, nothing left standing. Many trees in his orchard were cut off by flying missiles, himself hurt in the back by flying timbers. Mrs. Hall has a severe cut on the back part of her head. A piece of wood one and a half inches long was taken from the wound. She is also bruised about the back and face. The doctors think they are now out of danger. He also had several hogs killed, chickens with all their feathers blown off and killed, one cow killed, horses bruised, wagon torn to pieces, farm implements broken and gone. Some of the hogs that would weigh 200 pounds were carried 35 to 40 rods.

The shingles were torn off from George Hall's house, porches were strained, trees broken and fences blown down. The family escaped injury.

My barn, machine house, corn cribs, shedding, yards, fences, and some trees are a total wreck, one pig was killed and seven blown away, my house racked and the chimneys blown down. My family is unharmed.

Yours, etc.,
Orlando Hall.

"MICKY" AND HIS GANG

Old Timers' Corner

Berrien County People in the Iowa Cyclone
Brooklyn, Ia., June 2, 1882.
Editor Record.—An attempt to describe the terrible scenes witnessed by the people of this community during the past few days would be a task. Destruction, ruin and devastation are mild terms when applied to the conditions of things in the path of that terrible cyclone that swept over our quiet neighborhood with such terrible and fatal result last Saturday night, June 17. The storm struck Peter Kraft's farm, from the south and completely demolished everything, and hurled his once happy home over acres of ground. The family took refuge in the cellar and came out unharmed.

James Dearthoff's house was unroofed, barn blown down, buggy house blown away, buggy damaged, plows broken, one cow killed, and horses hurt, granary gone and cannot be found, fences the down and many of the posts gone or broken. One half of a corn crib eight feet high and sixteen feet long was carried about thirty rods and driven six feet into the ground, and orchard badly damaged. The family is unharmed.

and in small quantities is more economical than quantity buying with consequent spoilage. On the other hand it saves time and often money to stock up on staples and such perishables as can be well cared for.

Milk, cream and butter are produced in quantity at this season and they are particularly rich in color and flavor due to the rich, green pasture feed of the cows. They should be kept as cold as possible in a refrigerator, spring house or cool cellar. Eggs are fairly plentiful but should be purchased in small quantities and kept cold. Cheese is an excellent food for summer as it goes so well with the popular but less satisfying cold dishes. According to one of our greatest nutritionists, Dr. H. C. Sherman of Columbia University, it is, but let us quote him—"In most localities cheese gives a greater return in value for the money expended than other staple foods of animal origin!"

At this season practically all meats, broilers, fryers and fowl of the poultry family and many varieties of fresh and salt water fish are available and at moderate cost, according to the cuts or varieties desired.

Fruits are increasingly plentiful. With the passing of the small fruits come into market including raspberries, blackberries, blueberries, currants and sweet and sour cherries. These fruits are good at breakfast, lunch or dinner by themselves or in the form of muffins, cakes, pies or other made desserts.

The vegetable season is coming into full swing as almost every type is in market either native grown or from localities where the season is more advanced. Among the most plentiful and economical to buy are the bunches of carrots and beets, green peas and beans, new cabbage and the summer salad components lettuce, tomatoes and cucumbers.

Salad dressing and olives should always be kept on hand in the summertime, for they go well with salads, sandwiches and cold cuts.

Here is an interesting recipe for tomatoes stuffed with chicken salad:

3 ripe tomatoes, 4 or 5 pound fowl, 1 onion, sliced, 1-2 cup vinegar, few drops tabasco sauce, 2 bunches celery, salad dressing, lettuce, capers.

After the chicken is cooked, cut into small pieces, let it marinate, that is, stand several hours or overnight in a mixture of the vinegar, 1-2 cup olive oil or vegetable oil, onion, tabasco and salt.

Cut celery stalks and some of the tender leaves into small pieces and let stand in a cold place until crisp. Mix enough thick, well-seasoned salad dressing with the chicken to coat the pieces well. Shortly before serving add celery and more dressing if needed. Stir mixture lightly so as not to break up the chicken. Add more salt if needed.

Cut the tomatoes so that they fall apart into quarters, place on crisp lettuce and fill the center with chicken salad. Add a spoonful of salad dressing and sprinkle a few capers over the top.

Former Congressman E. Y. Webb of North Carolina Declares Mid Dogs and Rattlesnakes Preferable to Liquor.

"If we are willing to sell our souls and bodies—and that is what the presence of legalized liquor does—I can tell you a way to raise revenue that beats whisky all hollow," declared Judge E. Y. Webb, in his charge to the grand jury at the opening of the U. S. District Court at Asheville, North Carolina. Judge Webb was a former member of Congress and was one of the authors of the Webb-Kenyon law that prevented the importation of intoxicating beverages into dry territory before national prohibition. We quote from the judge's charge as given in the Christian Science Monitor: "A group of millionaires who see a way to escape income taxes formed an association to bring back liquor and let the little man pay the revenue to the Government," said the judge. "They are aided by the manufacturers of beer and whiskey. The only real argument that can possibly be advanced in favor of the legalized sale of liquor is that of revenue.

The average death rate 20 per cent and drunkenness has decreased 50 per cent.

"There are several classes of people who want liquor back. First, there are the confirmed drunkards. They don't count for much because they won't be here long anyway, they just want to be able to get it a little easier. Then, there is a group who would like to have the company of congenial drunkards who would gather in the saloons. There is another group of those who would like to make money out of handling liquor. And, lastly, there is a rich class who see in the sale of liquor a chance to make poor men pay the taxes that are taken from bloated incomes.

"It would be far better to turn loose a thousand mad dogs and ten thousand rattlesnakes in North Carolina than to bring back the legal sale of liquor."

G. M. Building Features Century Progress Exposition

"The General Motors Building rears its bulk aloft, a giant shaft of gold," says one writer describing the magnificent panorama of the Century of Progress Exposition by night. With the Fair but a few days old, the General Motors Building is recognized as one of the most thrilling spectacles at night.

Three hundred and fifty flood and projector lamps bathe the orange, yellow, red, silver and blue building. The orange-gold tower is the focal point of attention, rearing its 177 foot height conspicuously into the many-hued heaven created by the genius of Joseph Urban, supervisor of color and lighting for the Century of Progress.

Exterior lighting of the General Motors Building alone consumes enough electricity per night to pump water for a city of 2,000 inhabitants, or to provide home and street lighting for a city of 7,500 inhabitants. An average of two million, three hundred thousand watts of electricity a day is used. Monthly consumption will amount to sixty-nine million watts. This is equal to 92,000 horsepower a month.

Approximately three times this amount of current is consumed in the interior of the giant structure for power in the Chevrolet-Fisher Body assembly plant and other action exhibits and to light the seven main rooms.

Jack-in-the-Pulpit Food

The Jack-in-the-pulpit which most of us think of chiefly as a flower furnished food for the Indians and medicine for our grandmothers. Indians used to find the turnip-shaped root a nourishing and appetizing food when cooked. A sirup made by mashing the root and mixing it with vinegar and molasses or honey was prepared by pioneer housewives as a remedy for coughs and colds, and the dried and pulverized root was considered by them an effective dose for colic.

Clay as Food

There are certain people on the earth who eat clay. They are found in China, New Guinea and Malaya. Often this curious food is treated in something like the same way that other nations treat grain. It is mixed with water, made into a paste, and freed from sand and stones and rubbish. Then it is shipped into little cakes and mixed in an iron sucepahn.

Spices are of Great Value in Cookery

Christopher Columbus was responsible for many things when he discovered America. He was searching for a route to the Indies by which cheaper spices could be brought to Europe, spices to season and preserve foods. We, who use spices and condiments sparingly, do not realize how valuable they were to countries where there was little or no natural refrigeration, where meats must either be tough or very "gamey." Plenty of seasonings were a more or less effective disguise for this gaminess.

The discovery of America by Columbus has had a profound effect on the eating habits of the world, for American inventiveness has made possible artificial ice whereby modern foods are ripened and kept in perfect condition from land or sea to the table. In hot weather it is desirable to buy fresh foods frequently in small quantities in order that the foods served may be at their best. An overcrowded refrigerator cannot do its work properly.

In order to share in all the good things which are plentiful and reasonable in cost this week, including practically all the fresh and smoked meats, the advice to buy frequently must be followed. After having had broiled and fried chicken and fowl in all its manifestations from fricassee to pressed chicken, a roast chicken or two, frying size, will be much appreciated. Large roasting chickens are not usually plentiful until the early fall.

The interesting variety and the reasonableness of fresh fish and shell-fish make it a good food for other days than Friday.

The fruit stalls are especially interesting with their groups of berries and small fruits. There are blueberries, raspberries, and huckleberries, sweet and sour cherries with some currants and gooseberries for variety and the preserve kettle. Watermelon and cantaloupe are the outstanding fruits this week but there are

Food Market Advice

This is an old saying, "The early bird catches the worm," but it holds true for the marketer to a remarkable degree. If you have visited your market between eight and ten in the morning you have seen the heaps of fresh, crisp, green vegetables, the colorful un-wilted fruits and have perhaps bought more than you anticipated because everything looked so attractive. Later in the day the choice is limited and the hotter the day the more care is needed in the home to restore the desired freshness.

The chief lesson that heat teaches us is the necessity of properly drying for food and planning meals so as to reduce leftovers to a minimum. Even bread may mold very quickly on warm humid days. Buying frequently

The Chinese are credited with having invented this household decoration. They first printed or painted it by hand. Later they developed a system of making it with printing blocks. Some of the finest wallpapers are still made by the Chinese.

Best Light for Working
The American Standard Code of Industrial Lighting recommends an illumination of from 10 to 15 foot-candles on the work plane for close work in offices. To avoid eyestrain the illumination should not be less than 6 foot-candles, but higher illumination increases the rapidity and accuracy of office work. Indirect lighting is not necessarily the best form of lighting for an office. Two things are essential for good lighting—viz., sufficient intensity and absence of glare. Under proper conditions semi-direct lighting, or even direct lighting, may be satisfactory. Indirect lighting is more costly to install and maintain than semi-direct or direct lighting. Walls should not be white or dark in color. A light buff is a good color for walls. Ceilings should be white. Walls and ceilings should have matt surfaces.

What Causes That?
A university professor is making an exhaustive study to see how eye color is inherited, and why blue-eyed parents sometimes have a brown-eyed child. Perhaps some other emmetropic scientist might endeavor to solve the problem of hereditary ear-wagging. Darwinians may claim that such ability merely denotes closer kinship with the lower animals. Yet every man secretly longs to enjoy this claim to distinction. Eminent men, diplomats and divines, have confessed to hours spent before a mirror trying hard to wag. Schoolboys more readily admit the fascination of the wriggling ear, and one who can do it is the hero of his class.—Exchange.

Tennyson Prophecy Amis
Of Alfred Tennyson, the story is told that when a boy his grandfather asked him to write an elegy on his grandmother, who had recently died, and he put a small sum of money into the future poet's hand on the completion of the "job," saying: "There is the first money you have ever earned by your poetry, and, take my word for it, it will be the last." A singularly false prophecy, for probably no poet who ever lived made more money by his poetry than Alfred Tennyson.

Spiders Not Insects
Spiders are not classified as insects because their structure is entirely different. Spiders have eight legs whereas insects have only six. Furthermore, in the class Arachnida, which includes in addition to the spider, the scorpions and mites, the head and thorax are grown together but in the Hesperopoda, which includes all the insects, the head, thorax and abdomen are distinct. There are other differences but those mentioned are the chief ones.

It is Going to be Terrible if It Is Fully Enforced
An ordinance adopted and promulgated by the common council of the village of Buchanan during the early seventies is about to be haled from the archives of the past, dusted off and used as a basis of action in a dispute between neighbors over the possession of a flock of hens in the town limits, according to city officials. They state that the ordinance is valid and may be enforced if invoked. It reads in part: "No live geese, ducks, guinea hens, rabbits or other fowls shall be brought into or kept in any open yard or other enclosure, any part of which is within 100 feet of the dwelling house or residence of another."

Measures of Time
In astronomy there are three kinds of time—sidereal, apparent solar time and mean solar time. The first is used for astronomical purposes exclusively; the last is the ordinary time of civil life. Sidereal time is the time defined by the earth with respect to the stars, and a sidereal day is the interval between the passage of the meridian across a star and its next succeeding passage across the same star. Solar time is defined by the rotation of the earth with respect to the sun. Since the motion of the earth is not uniform, solar time is not satisfactory for daily use, and for this purpose mean solar time has been devised. The mean solar day has the average length of all the solar days of the year.

Picturesque Old Stile Lives Only in Memory
Where are the turnstiles of older days? A traveling man who motors over most of the highways and byways of New England says he does not know where there is a single one. Generally they were built into a fence-line to debar vagrant cattle and permit the passage of humans. No two exactly alike, they were picturesque components of stone walls and rail fences. Generally there was a step or two of stone which elevated the stile above a foot or two above the ground.

Measures of Time
In astronomy there are three kinds of time—sidereal, apparent solar time and mean solar time. The first is used for astronomical purposes exclusively; the last is the ordinary time of civil life. Sidereal time is the time defined by the earth with respect to the stars, and a sidereal day is the interval between the passage of the meridian across a star and its next succeeding passage across the same star. Solar time is defined by the rotation of the earth with respect to the sun. Since the motion of the earth is not uniform, solar time is not satisfactory for daily use, and for this purpose mean solar time has been devised. The mean solar day has the average length of all the solar days of the year.
