MAROON ELEVEN TO MEET NILES HERE SATURDAY

Evenly Matched Teams to Meet on Local Athletic Field Gridiron with Bets Even on Present Dope.

Plenty of fireworks are promised Saturday when Buchanan clashes with the Niles Redbirds, traditional rivals for many years.

The Maroons, strengthened by their 19 to 0 defeat of Watervliet Friday, have a slight edge on Niles as far as statistics are concerned.

Niles was crushed 31 to 0 by Benton Harbor last Saturday, and this fact adds to the uncertainty in the Cardinal team. There is not quite so much confidence manifested by the Niles student body or team in former years.

The Redbirds looked rather bad in the Benton Harbor game, and fumbled repeatedly and showed a marked lack of team play, while the Buchanan eleven showed great improvement in the Watervliet encounter.

The Buchanan backs repeatedly sliced off tackle around end, and plunged through center for long gains before being hauled down by the Watervliet secondary.

Buchanan seems to have a slight edge as far as field generalship is concerned, the Niles backfield making serious errors in calling plays at times.

As far as weight is concerned, Niles has the advantage, outweighing the locals by about five to ten pounds, a factor not to be overlooked.

Saturday's game, however, will see in action two of the most evenly matched teams to carry the colors of Buchanan and Niles, as Coach Davidson, of the later city, has been drilling the Cardinals harder than ever in preparation for this game.

There has always been intense rivalry between the two schools, and every inter-scholastic contest, football or basketball, is a thriller, neither team quailing until the final whistle.

A glance at the scores of former years gives some idea of how the games stand.

In seven games, since 1926, Buchanan has won four, totaling 82 points against Niles' 59, for the seven games. During this period, the Maroons were under the direction of Coach Bradford, the present mentor at Buchanan high.

In 1926, playing at Niles, the Maroons won 21 to 0, employing the forward pass to some advantage.

The following year at Buchanan, the locals again won, 18 to 0. The year 1928 provided an upset, the Maroons losing a hard-fought game, 7 to 6, when the kick for extra point went wide. In 1929, playing at Buchanan, the locals came back and trounced the Cardinals, 18 to 12. The 1930 game at Niles proved that a Niles team can fight and they won, 13 to 0, this being the only game of the seven that the Maroons were held scoreless. Not satisfied, Niles came to Buchanan in 1931, playing on a muddy field and won again, 21 to 6.

Correction

In the item in the Record of last week in regard to the election of officers by the Fort St. Joseph Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution at Niles, it was stated that Mrs. Sig. Desenberg was named regent. Mrs. L. M. Desenberg was elected to that office.

by means of a much heavier line and well-functioning power plays. Many remember this game because of the fact that the dirigible Akron flying over during the second quarter, stopped the game for some time.

Last year at Niles, as most will remember, Buchanan, with one of the most powerful teams ever developed here, won easily 13 to 6. It was this team that defeated Kalamazoo State high, recognized conference champions. In this game of last year at Niles, Coach Bradford used the entire first team only part of the game, substituting frequently.

And this year here at Buchanan, gives Niles their opportunity, to even the score in games, but whether they are able to do it or not will be decided Saturday in what promises to be the most colorful game of the season, with the tradition and rivalry of years renewed.

Prices for the game remain the same, 35c at the gate and will be played at 2 o'clock.

"THAT LITTLE GAME" Inter-national Cartoon Co., N.Y.—By B. Link

"Paddy" Starring Gaynor and Baxter at the Hollywood

Janet Gaynor and Warner Baxter are together again for the first time since they were seen in "Daddy Long Legs," in their latest picture for Fox Film, "Paddy, the Next Best Thing." The film opens Sunday at the Hollywood Theatre for a three-day run. In this film, Miss Gaynor and Baxter respond to the popular demand for more pictures in which they are both featured. And the roles they portray are the type which give each of them their greatest opportunities thus far. Miss Gaynor is a young, impish colleen, who adds a strong dash of roughness to her famous wistfulness and thereby creates a new kind of character for herself. Baxter has the part of a big-hearted fellow who, much as he may try, cannot help falling head over heels for her. Walter Connolly, highly reputed player of the dramatic stage, has a featured role in support of Janet Gaynor and Warner Baxter. Others in the cast include Margaret Lindsay and Mary McCormack. An all-star musical, "All the Stars," and Paramount news completes the program. Heading the double-feature bill Friday and Saturday of this week comes a daring screen record of these hectic times, which gives Richard Barthelmess the material for his latest production, "Heroes For Sale," playing in combination with Buck Jones in "The Thrill Hunter." The story of "Heroes For Sale" minces no words or situations in portraying the career of a "forgotten man." The action commences with the world war in which the main character played by Barthelmess, is rewarded for his bravery with wounds that leave him a wreck of his former self. His effort to rehabilitate himself leads him into many adventures and into a stirring romance until he is caught in the tide of the "breadline" classes. The Buck Jones feature, "Thrill Hunter," provides just that for those who love action and bustling comedy. It's Jones' very latest, and it is not a western, its locale centering mainly around a Hollywood movie studio, with Jones' background as a cowboy star given plenty of thrilling play. A picture so out of the beaten path, so extraordinary in its conception and portrayal that it will shock the spectator with its grim revelations, comes to the Hollywood on bargain nights next Wednesday and Thursday, under the title of "The Mayor of Hell," with James Cagney in the stellar role. The story is a burning indictment of a certain class of so-called Reform Schools in which boys of tender years are subjected to almost unbelievable cruelties. While the author has painted these conditions in flaming drama that burns into the heart, he has based his story on facts brought to light in recent investigations of boys' reformatories. The story deals with an institution ruled by cheap politicians and honeycombed with graft.

Announce New Bonus Offer Until Wednesday, Oct. 25

(Continued from page 1) stick to it, victory and honor will be yours. Coupons discontinued. At the suggestion of numerous baby sponsors, we are discontinuing the publication of the 100-free vote coupons. It must be obvious to all that merely collecting these coupons never would be sufficient to win for any baby, and the time spent in rounding up the coupon votes might better be devoted toward getting subscriptions, on which the returns are much greater.

Patronage

By Irene Foulkes (Wife of Congressman Foulkes) Yes, Yes, we are going to say something about patronage. This is a method adopted whereby we can sneak up on it without starting ourselves or causing alarm. Added to the old complications of patronage come now the modern twists, "merit," "efficiency" and the Civil Service, which for many years has been more than unkind to Democrats and today has thousands of them frothing at the mouth. In the last 12 years of Republican rule about half a million government employees have entered by the way of the Civil Service. It is curious political phenomena of which some archeologist will write a few centuries hence that during those 12 years those who were appointed under the Civil Service were mostly Republicans. Not that Democrats did not take the examinations and get good "ratings." But somehow when a post was to be filled the Republican who had also passed the exam with about the same rating was given the job. Hence it may be said of the Democrats: "Many were called but few were chosen," as it is written of the guest who forgot his "tux" at the wedding feast. That is only part of it. Each president in those years swept in to office by successive great thousands who had taken no Civil Service exam. It was a generous gesture, but you'll be amazed to know that hardly one among those thousands was a Democrat. And, of top of that, all these are on the jobs for life. Naturally the present administration is trying to solve that fast one. It began by terminating the service of all employees who had also passed the exam with about the same rating. It announced a determination to oust those who had been "covered in" or "blanketed in" (you choose the word you like best) by Executive Order. They are like the small boys at the circus who crawled under the tent and are sitting in reserved seats. Again the Democrats are ignoring as much as possible the so-called merit rule. It had the idea, except perhaps one department, that of agriculture. Why should the Democrats act this way? For one thing, Civil Service is not an unmixed good any more than the old spoils system was an unmixed evil. If you are inclined to worship the Civil Service system and are quick tempered with the paper work and reach for a lucky star, here's what is mainly wrong with the Civil Service system: You think when you elect Roosevelt and he names his Cabinet that now the government is in new hands. That is where you kid yourself shamelessly. Those men are only figureheads in most departments. The real rulers are those who reign a lifetime in the department and they tell the new "head" that he may do this and he must not do that. The fathers figured we had a government whose head was Congress, whose right arm was the Executive and whose left arm was the Judiciary. That's been changed. The three now are about on a level, with Congress a little behind. That also is changed by the ownership of public officials, bought and paid for like sheep at the shambles, by the Morgan et al. Now we have in fact a government of but two parts, that run by the Bureaucrats, who are not only supreme for a lifetime but are working toward making their office hereditary, as with the dynasties of King and Emperor.

Get this in your noodle: There are men in the department of agriculture, who were put there by Jardine; there are men who were put there by Hyde and there are men who are as out of sympathy with Roosevelt's farm program as Sweden is said to be with Norway. Sweden, with accent on the vice versa. The Bureaucrats have the old farm board who pass upon the qualifications of applicants for positions who are Hooverites and who must take a sinister joy in putting the knife of rejection between their victim's ribs. There are men in the treasury department who are faithful servants of Mellon, Meyer, Mills and Morgan. They sing that old song: "For whoever king may reign, I'll be the vicar of Bray, sir." What to do about it? Let them pass their examinations as President Roosevelt plans. Get rid of the barnacles. They say the government will go bump if their experience is not used? There are but few men living whose places could not be taken by others and the world go on, unchanged. When you do this, you get rid of the inferiority of public servants to the public because they have life jobs. You'll rid yourself of the snip at the office window and the bored official who waits on you. You'll get something more than tolerance.

Unbridled patronage is only an older evil. Always liked that hum, man touch when the mother came and asked that her two sons be one on the right hand and the other on the left of the Master when he became King. Who said women were new in politics? Who said patronage is unnatural? And when the other ten of the party heard of the attempted grab it is recorded that "they were moved with indignation." Washington's full of it! But the answer must not be overlooked: "Ye know that I over them and their great ones exercise authority over them. Not so shall it be among you; but whosoever would become great among you shall be your servant, and whosoever would be first among you shall be your slave." If patronage would give us that, make me avoid to serve rather than greedily for power, there would be many great and many first among us. Out in North Dakota the coyotes got so bad that cowboys with rifles spotted them from airplanes and killed them off. Next year the rabbits were so plentiful they ate all the grass and many a good cow pony had its leg broken in a rabbit hole. Men had upset the balance of nature, and paid for it. Civil Service has done something like that to our government. We killed off the prairie wolf to patronage and dunned if the rabbits ain't running us ragged. Our motto for awhile should be: "Let the lone coyote howl."

Oldest Part of Globe The aborigines of Australia are said to be among the oldest inhabitants of what geologists tell us is the oldest part of this globe.

Electrical Storms Electrical storms appear in all parts of the United States. Northwestern Florida has the most—about 50 a year—while the San Francisco area of California has the least.

Goethe's Joy in Life Goethe lived joyously for those things which gave him delight; fresh air, country exercises, the best in literature and art, the theater, and the performance of his manifold duties. He lived for the moment and thought for eternity. Art and literature, for him, had to be positive; the product either of joy or of a need to purge sorrow. Negativeness, the besetting sin of our age, he condemned. "Negativeness is nothing," was one of his sayings, which have come down to us, but it is an axiom we seem to have forgotten, particularly in literature.—London Saturday Review.

Prayer for Light Moxley was traveling along an unfamiliar dirt road through some woods, on a dark night, when a sudden storm arose. At each flash of lightning he would take a few steps forward and then wait. The rain continued to pour and the thunder roared. Finally, as the lightning grew less frequent, the thunder louder and the road more difficult to travel, his misery expressed itself in this prayer: "Oh, Lord, if it's just the same to you, please give me a little more light and a little less noise."—Pathfinder Magazine.

English "Public Schools" The term "public school" does not mean the same in England that it does in the United States. Eton, Harrow, Winchester and the like are the famous public schools, but tuition is charged. The schools in England which compare with our own public schools are called "free schools." Only the poorer classes attend for the most part. They are not considered as having as high standards as the thousands of private schools in England.

RACE TIGHTENS "BIT AS NEW ENTRANTS SURGE UP IN LIST; NEXT 14 DAYS TO SEE ACTION

Vote totals in the Personality Baby Election continued their upward march this week. As this is written Wednesday night at the close of the first bonus, and with the deadline for this week's issue imminent, it is impossible to make extended comments. Nevertheless, a glance at the standings below will reveal interesting highlights.

First and foremost, you will notice that the race tightened up considerably. This was brought about by a burst of activity on the part of some previously inactive sponsors who went to work with a will, determined to bring their babies up in the front lines. At the risk of resorting to stereotyped phrases, we say, "It is anybody's race right now." We say this advisedly, since a mere subscription or two separates a major part of the entrants, and there is not one baby, anywhere in the active list that could not be put on top with an hour's effort.

Second, you will note that honors are pretty evenly divided between Buchanan city entrants and those from outside villages and rural sections. There are some mighty attractive babies both in and outside the city limits of Buchanan, and sponsors of both seem to be having equal success in boosting their favorites.

The first bonus ended last night, and a new and exciting bonus offer is announced on the opposite page. Final eliminations were put over until next week at the request of several people. However, these eliminations WILL BE MADE NEXT WEEK, and all entrants for whom no subscriptions have been turned in will be removed from the voting list. Therefore, if you have a favorite baby in the list that has no subscriptions to his credit, see that at least one is turned in before next Wednesday night. Otherwise, we will be compelled to remove this name from the list.

As announced last week, the following voting list is on a restricted basis; that is, some votes are saved out for each baby and put in his ballot box reserve, against the time when the sealed ballot box will go into effect.

BUCHANAN BASEBALL FANS WATCH WORLD SERIES WITH PRIDE

By Carson Donley

Many Buchananites remember with pride their baseball team of a few decades ago. The Buchanan nine seemed to have no trouble in disposing of the rival teams disputing their supremacy.

The baseball fans of the vicinity were convinced that Buchanan pitching was winning its games.

Their pitcher was a tall, well-built youth of 19 who lived in the nearby town of Mishawaka. His name was Fred Fitzsimmons, and he is now the ace of the New York Giants pitching staff and also the National League's best fielding pitcher.

His rise was rapid. The Muskegon, Mich., team heard of him and gave him a contract. He accepted and made such a record that he was purchased by the Indianapolis team of the American Association, who in turn sold him to the New York Giants, after realizing a nice profit.

His record this year of 17 wins and 12 defeats, while not the best, is certainly good. His friends in this town all join in wishing him luck in the present World Series.

Who's Who

Edward Spasek, one of the most popular boys in the sophomore class, was born in Chicago, Dec. 14, 1917.

The first six years of "Eddie's" scholastic career were spent in Chicago schools. Then he moved to Dayton with his mother, and in the fall of 1932 entered the high school of Buchanan, where he has attained a high scholastic record.

Being very popular among his fellow schoolmates, he was this year elected to the position of president of his class.

"Eddie" has gone out for football both of his high school years and shows promise of being a very outstanding quarterback as he has brains, speed, and a skilled way of "forwarding passing."

Today marks the four hundred and forty-first anniversary of the completion of the first ocean voyage by Columbus. Today we look back on this great deed, which, because of his persistency, immortalized this great man.

For many years Columbus had an idea that the world was round. He hoped that some day he would realize his ambition and give proof to the unbelievers.

When Columbus first appealed to Queen Isabella she refused to grant him ships and supplies for the voyage. And yet, Columbus finally persuaded her—by persistency.

During that unforgettable voyage, many were the times when the sailors would have given their most cherished possessions to turn back. Many were the times when the crew were on the verge of mutiny. And yet, Columbus held them to their posts, by persistency.

In the schools and homes the factor of persistency cannot be stressed too much. All the teachers and parents should try to impart to the youths of today this fact: Choose your goal in life and then stick to the job until you reach it.

Rose Zachman, a freshman with blond hair and brown eyes was born in North Dakota, fourteen years ago.

When still quite young, Rose came to Buchanan with her parents and has always attended the local schools.

She likes all of her school subjects and is very fond of Latin.

As Rose is interested in sports, she is going out for soccer and intends to be a future member of the G. A. A.

A certain Chicago Sunday newspaper is conducting, in its Society Section, a contest to find "the most glamorous women in Chicago."

Quoting their idea of what they think this glamor should be like— "A partial definition of glamour would include intelligence, personality, vitality, background, elegance, and what, for want of a better word, one must call 'style sense'" and to think that we've been letting Mae West get by all this time with only a few curves and an "I'm no angel!" reputation! ## Wake Up Your Liver Bile Without Calomel

ADD You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes the good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the wrapper. Beware of cheap imitations. Get the genuine. Ask your druggist. 25¢ at drug stores. ©1931 C. M. Co.

WHISPERING PINES

By Una Kelley

Better class Cuban women are never seen on the streets at night. It's "DeClasse." They would not think of having their hair washed until three hours after lunch (afraid it will make them sick!) The floors of Cuban homes and apartment houses are always tile and even the most ramshackle dwelling will have a gorgeous tiled bath room.

The interesting statements above I learned from Miss Ruth Comer, who is back here on a visit from Havana, Cuba.

Up until the time I talked with Miss Comer I had thoroughly believed that many of the stories newspapers were printing about the recent revolutions and the state of affairs in Cuba had been highly exaggerated. The news, it seems to me, Friends of Miss Comer have written her stating that conditions on the island are even worse than the papers have been printing.

The greatest threat to the Americans seems to be Communists. The Cubans have always been fond of Americans, but lately the Communists, who have a large hold on the island, have been spreading propaganda. Every block they have now put up posters claiming, "Down with the Yankees!" "Down with American capitalism!" Everyone can see the significance of that.

Miss Comer herself was in Havana during the first revolution when Machado was forced to flee. She can calmly tell you that heat, it seems to me, is not an everyday occurrence. Another common occurrence was to see a group of natives chasing a "porrista," the name of Machado's henchmen, down the street. When caught he would be killed and his home, usually a strikingly beautiful one, rifled and plundered. Machado had 400 of these "porristas," and it is reported that the revolutionists managed to kill every one.

For eight days there were no businesses operating. Only canned foods were obtainable and near the end of this period even these were not to be had.

"Havana," Miss Comer summed up, "is more fascinating than it is beautiful."

Class Activities

Health Department

Dr. E. R. Leachman, dentist for the Children's Fund of Michigan, is making his headquarters at the Buchanan high school.

He began work on the children of the nearby rural districts Monday.

Every year, Dr. Leachman is sent by the state to various schools in Michigan. For the past four years he has fixed numerous students' teeth in Buchanan high school, and in its nearby rural districts.

History

Mrs. Whitman's citizenship class is studying the chapter, "Helpful Conditions in Social Life."

The tenth grade history classes are covering the struggle between Rome and Carthage.

The twelfth grade history students are on the subject of the American Revolution.

Physical Education

The various gym classes have been divided into soccer teams, which play against each other during the class period. The winners of each team play after school. The captains of the first hour teams are Ruth Jean Henslet, Beatrice Neal and Douglas Hand.

The captains of the second hour teams are Pauline Topash and Lillian Peacock. Fourth hour team captains are Caroline Hattenbach, Dorothy Jerue, and Vivian Mogford. Team captains of the fifth hour are Marian Milder, Elouise Squires and Maxine Howe.

Each team has selected a name of a well known university, the predominating ones are Yale and Notre Dame.

The soccer tournament will be played off this week.

Jean Russell won the tennis match from Alene Dodge.

English 7

Among the posters representing the 8th grade Good English club the best submitted were drawn by Cecil Stewart, Wanda Topash, Robert McClure and Sam McCormick. A play under the direction of Iris Dalrymple and Dorothy Gross was presented recently.

To the strain of "We the people of the United States," the 8th grade march into history class to continue learning the preamble to the Constitution. Outlines and dramatization directed by Miss Brewer are the subject of events happening during the 13 weeks of summer, are drawing the attention of the students.

In order to receive a background for the early American history, the 7th grade history students are doing supplementary reading concerning the "Life in Europe During the Middle Ages." Themes on the Crusades and pictures of castles or viking ships will complete the work.

Science

The physics group has started work on the barometric thermometer. The experiment of Otto van Guericke also is being covered. This consisted of two hemispheres with an inside diameter of 22 in. which were put together and the air pumped out. No cement was used and it was found that eight teams of horses, four pulling each way, could not pull the two hemispheres apart. The reason for this is found in the fact that it was held together with a force of well over 21,000 pounds.

Torriceilli's barometer, which is used for the forecast of weather and determining the height above sea level, will be taken up in connection with the others. Numerous appliances which work because of air pressure are also being studied.

The chemistry division has been studying the theoretical make-up of the atom. Ahrenius, a Swedish investigator, was the first to expound this theory. Mosley, an Englishman, did brilliant work in this subject later.

The biology students have just finished studying how animals from the largest to the smallest, obtain their food supply and they are learning how plants, from one-celled plants to the giant redwoods, obtain theirs.

The eighth grade science class is working on the importance of matter.

Music

Members of the music department have been organizing for a musical comedy under the direction of R. R. Robinson. The entire cast will be taken from the music department and the play will be presented to the public.

Physical Education

Boys' gym classes have been playing soccer outside the building. As long as the weather permits they will continue playing outside.

Commercial Dept.

Typing 11 classes are now typing sentences and are working on drills using the fourth-finger keys. This completes the keyboard and they hope to increase their speed from now on.

Shorthand students are learning rules for expressing s, x and the past tense of words. They are writing words which come under these rules.

The bookkeeping class is reviewing credit sales and purchases. The students are also working on investment and withdrawals.

English

Seventh grade English classes are working on parts of speech, in other words, learning that "work" is a verb, not a preposition; that "he" is a pronoun, not a conjunction, etc.

They have also been practicing letter writing so that when Christmas comes around, they can write letters correctly to Santa Claus.

The juniors have been learning where to place commas and other marks of punctuation. Paragraph arrangement has also been a topic of interest.

Senior English students have been arranging paragraphs and constructive points in themes. The theme topics have been read and discussed in class.

Domestic Science

In Miss Thompson's home economics classes, the seventh grade is studying breakfast breads; the eighth grade, luncheon vegetables and different articles of food in technical laboratory work; and the ninth grade, the preparation of dinners and meat substitutes. The sophomores, however, are beginning their sewing course with the making of woolen clothes, including skirts, suits, coats and dresses.

The cafeteria class is also sewing now, but plan to open the cafeteria around Thanksgiving time. Their schedule will then be arranged so that every other week, one half of the class sews while the other half cooks.

During the past week the sophomore girls have been doing work in painting. Exceptionally good work was accomplished by Thelma Bliss.

Shop

The eleventh grade group of mechanical drawing is working on lettering, and geometrical construction.

The advanced division is taking up machine shop drawing.

Mathematics

Mrs. Weaver's commercial arithmetic classes are working on the six per cent method.

The class has had an arithmetic spell down and the victorious ones were Russell Proud, first; Shirley Howard, second; and Donald Blaney, third.

Modernistic drawing is the work of the eighth grade.

The seventh grade classes are pointing off decimals correct to the nearest thousandth.

Mr. Hyink has become very generous in bestowing upon all of his classes, except geometry class, tests for the week.

The algebra nine class is working on the subtraction and use of parentheses.

The geometry class is concentrating on the theorems concerning parallel lines.

The subtraction of square roots and the work on quadratic surds has been the work of the advanced algebra class.

English 9

Miss Hamilton's ninth grade English classes have memorized passages from "Thanatopsis," Bryant's famous poem on death. They are also working on their exercise books in punctuation and grammar.

English 10

The mastery test in capitals has occupied the time of the sophomores for the last few days. The class reviewed for two days and had the examination the third day.

Journalism

The journalism class is busily engaged in the chapter, "Building Action-Stories," in the journalism text book. They have been writing news stories of historical events.

Languages

The Latin club will hold its first meeting of the year Friday. They will elect the officers and plan a program for the year. A discussion will also be held on the prospects of new members, and different committees will be chosen.

Latin 9 students were severely tested on their knowledge of the "dead language" when the class engaged in a vocabulary spillover. Many of them decided that they should do a little studying before the monthly test.

Subjunctive mode has been the topic of study in the second year Latin classes. No wonder some of these "sophos" go around in a daze. A vocabulary spillover was also held in the first year French class. The students have been trying to master a few possessive pronouns with some success.

Several of the French 12 students have received letters from English students in French schools. The geography of France is being studied. The maps and literature are written in French, making it much more difficult.

Class Meetings

A senior class meeting in charge of Mrs. Dunbar, was held Wednesday, Oct. 4.

Election of the following officers took place: James Everingham, president; Mary Donley, vice president; Ruth Cripe, secretary; Donald Burrus, treasurer.

The freshman, sophomore and junior classes have not met this week.

Did you know that in a certain type of prehistoric animal, namely the Stegosaurus, the brain was smaller than a puppy's? In fact, it was so insignificant that nature installed a branch brain in its hind quarters to keep its rear following in the direction that it's head intended going!

Beer Drinkers Filthy "Beer may be served at the White House but it will never cross the threshold of Chief of Police John L. Sullivan's home," writes John M. Flynn, sports editor of the Pittsfield, Mass., Eagle. "The head of Pittsfield's law enforcement body, speaking at the banquet given to the Boys' Club sized up beer drinkers in a manner that will never be copied as newspaper or radio advertising for the 3.2 per cent alcoholic beverage. In urging the boys to keep their bodies clean he admonished them not to drink beer. "Keep away from beer which makes men fat and lazy with shapeless bodies," the chief warned.

ed his audience. "The filthiest people I have ever known have been beer drinkers. One would not think of washing his feet with beer without using water afterward and surely one should not put in his stomach what he would not consider fit to be put on his feet."—Pittsfield, Mass., Eagle. Increased Beer Drinking Detroit: A sudden increase of beer drinking in the Detroit area, since 3.2 per cent beer was legalized in Michigan was reported by Walter S. Petty, assistant collector of customs. Petty ordered the customs border patrol to take immediate action to curb the runners. At Fort Huron, border patrolmen arrested two men and seized a 35 foot boat, a passenger car and a truck loaded with Canadian beer and whiskey. Beer Versus Soft Drink "In many soft drink establishments, where ice cream, pop and candy was depended upon as a revenue maker, business has fallen off sharply," says the "Forum" of Fargo, N. D. speaking of beer sales. "This is also true in drug stores equipped with fountains. . . . And there is not nearly as much ice cream, candy and soft drinks being purchased." This is the Fargo, N. D. answer to the fallacious idea that beer would increase business. The women are crowding into the beer saloons. There is not, in most places, the slightest attempt to regulate the attendance in the saloons; you can find men, women and children in many of them. Boys of any age are buying beer in Chicago saloons; and in those of many other towns. Milwaukee saloons are simply a return to the dirty old fly-specked free lunch variety; the big stomachached German beer bung starting bartender. Not long prior to the National W. C. T. U. convention in Milwaukee one of the saloons near the center of the town was raided as a disorderly resort. "Even some of the better hotels are now catering to females in their beer bars," says a writer in the Chicago Tribune (Aug. 12, 1933). "When we approach the bar we are accosted by females unknown to us with invitations to join them in a drink. "Since they drink liquor and smoke cigarettes until they carry a man's breath—they no longer have either modesty or feminine charm." Col. Howe, the president's secretary, speaking from the confines of his library at Washington, promises that the prohibition law will be enforced, although the government's political supporters are doing all possible to break down law enforcement and respect for the law against liquor. While Louis Howe is thus talking, a veteran from Camp Grant near Rockford, Ill., wrote one of the Rockford, Ill., papers, that the men in the reconstruction camp are openly solicited by Rockford bootleggers in dives: "The truth of the matter is that liquor is not only easy to obtain but veterans are actually solicited by citizens of Rockford, especially in the district between the Northwestern and Illinois Central depots. The veterans are criticized for buying liquor, but what about the citizens who sell it and concentrate on the veterans?" Hammond, Ind. (April 28)—A charge that payments of $500 to the Democratic State Central committee's campaign fund were demanded of those seeking to become importers of beer was made today in supreme court. Judge V. S. Reiter admitted an affidavit to that effect by Abe Rosen, of Gary, in a case involving the validity of the State beer control law. The saloon comes back on the eve of Mother's Day. While the churches are observing Mother's day, the new styled saloons are preparing to do a land office business. The work of mothers lies in ruins before our eyes. A Personal Proclamation After a life-time of steady fighting against the saloon and its gang, I find myself suddenly immersed in a beer regime, with the saloon so thinly disguised as to make an alibi a joke. My grocery will sell beer, my neighboring news stand, restaurant and drug store will sell beer. Beer has invaded my city and has told me to like it or hate it. A boycott is impracticable and un-American. It is doubtful if the church has the "intestinal fortitude" to carry it out. An organized "dry" drive movement may develop in due season. What can I do now?

As long as I am clothed and in my right mind I do not propose to buy in beer-groceries, beer-drug stores, beer-cafes, or beer-joints under any other name. They may not hiss me. I do not wish them ill. Every business man is so hard pressed that beer sorely tempts him. But I wear him a fond farewell. I do not have to buy my breakfast food over a bar. BUCHANAN PIONEER HISTORY

FIRST GRAVE IN HOWE CEMETERY THAT OF FRANCES HOWE, WHO WAS ONLY 3 YEARS JUNIOR OF GEO. WASHINGTON

Granddaughter of Pioneer Woman has Chair in Which She Rode Overland in Covered Wagon at Age of Ninety.

To continue the recital of stories that local rural cemeteries have to tell, perhaps none in the community recall more of historic and human interest to those who know the facts than that of Frances Howe, mother of Frederick Howe, both of whom lie in the Howe cemetery which the latter founded, three miles southeast of Buchanan.

Frederick Howe was the ancestor of the several Howe families of this vicinity, and settled in 1835 on the old Howe homestead, now occupied by Emory Rough. He came here twice before and settled from his native Cortlandt, Cortlandt county, N. Y., the first time on horseback in 1831, the second time with a team of horses and a buckboard in 1835 and the third time with teams and covered wagons and his herd of cattle, also his wife, his twelve children and his mother, Mrs. Frances Howe.

At the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Byron Treat, on the South Bend road just inside the city limits, is the old leather covered chair with the legs sawed off so that it could be set inside the covered wagon which bore Frances Howe overland from Cortlandt, N. Y., to Portage Prairie, at the age of 90 years.

Mrs. Treat also has her grandmother's bible which she carried on her lap throughout the journey as her consolation and refreshment for the long and tiresome journey. From it she read, so tradition of the Howe family says, as she made the trip, often aloud to her many small grandchildren, as they jolted over the rough pioneer trails in the historic westward trek.

Three years after they arrived here Frances Howe died at the ripe old age of 93 years, and was buried in the Howe cemetery, in which hers is the first recorded grave. By the dates on the stone, she died Oct. 4, 1838, at the age of 93, according to which she was born in 1735, only 3 years after the birth of George Washington.

Her son, Frederick Howe, donated to the people of Portage Prairie the plot where the cemetery now stands, on condition that it be open to the public for burial without charge. Its maintenance and improvement including a gate-way and three fences, has been entirely by donation, and thus far has always been looked after by one of the Howes, his descendants. He also donated for public use the land on which the Howe school now stands.

Another grave in the Howe cemetery which brings the thoughtful visitor to a pause is that of Aaron, son of Jacob and Sarah Huff. The inscription on his stone states that he died March 10, 1863, while fighting in the defense of his country as a private in the 21st Indiana Volunteers, at the age of 18 years. Buried at the top of the stone is a canon and a pile of cartridges, and over his grave and overshadowing the stone itself is a thriving rosebush. And they still have a negro problem in the south.

Food Market Advice

The choice of meats need be little limited by the pocketbook as there is no scarcity of beef, lamb, fresh or smoked pork or of poultry. Meat dishes may be varied by using brains, liver, hearts and tongues. The cheaper cuts of meat are always flavorful but since they tend to be less tender they respond to long slow cooking. Steaks may be tenderized by pounding with a wooden mallet. Either sweet or French dressing may be pounded into round, flank or chuck steaks for added flavor and tenderness.

At this season of the year the housewife has a wide choice of fish and the kind to buy will depend on what is plentiful in the localities. It seems unfortunate that more people do not try the different kinds of fish, which make their appearance in the markets at various times of the year when the fishermen have been lucky in catching them. The choice is almost endless, haddock, cod steak, mackerel, salmon, halibut, swordfish, flounders, sea scallops, lobster, sea bream, bluefish, butterfish, clams and oysters from the Great Lakes, whitefish, blue pike, yellow perch, carp, sheep heads, mullets, lake herring, white bass and lake trout.

Of course you will not find all these fish offered at one time at one place but the variety offered is increasing as people discover the fine eating qualities of different kinds of sea food. Both white and sweet potatoes are plentiful and in the economical class. Since there are many ways to cook potatoes there is no reason for not serving them in variety at least once daily.

The real apple season has arrived with several varieties of both cooking and eating apples available. The Jonathan plays a double role but the delicious apple is an eating variety. An apple at bed time is enjoyed by many. Apple pie with cheese for dinner is probably America's favorite dessert.

Grapes are also in season, the blue Concord and red Niagara being most plentiful. The well known Rocky Ford is in market, the melon we used to call muskmelon rather than cantaloupe. The pink-meated melons are also available together with the honeydew.

Lettuces and green peas are now scarce and high. Spinach and green beans are relatively high. Onions are unusually cheap and plentiful. Egg plants is also plentiful.

Heart Disease Two out of every hundred persons in this country are suffering from heart disease.

Ann Arbor Firm Makes Railplanes For Pullman Co.

Combining the best points of aircraft streamlining and rail coach architecture the Stout Engineering Laboratories, Inc., at Dearborn, placed on view this week the first of its new "Railplanes" built for the Pullman company for high speed rail service. William B. Stout, president of the laboratories, who directed the experimental work and construction details of the new car, stated that it is equipped to operate as a unit with either oil powered gasoline motors or oil-burning Diesel engines. The speed tests are to be conducted this week. Ninety miles an hour is expected.

The fundamentals of Pullman Corporation had in mind in building the Railplane were adequate strength with the least possible weight to decrease rolling resistance and full streamlining to reduce air resistance at high speeds.

Pullman officials declare their aim was to produce a vehicle for rail service which would have the lowest operating cost per passenger mile of any known form of transportation.

While no indication of the operating cost of the "Railplane" are available authorities agree that it should be relatively modest. It was pointed out that the similar Clark "Autotram," successfully demonstrated at Niles, this summer, can go 4 1/2 miles on one gallon of gasoline, indicating a power cost of roughly 4 cents per mile. In actual performance the "Autotram" cruised at 75 miles per hour negotiating a grade of .5 per cent at 72 miles an hour, with sixteen cylinder engine which develops 160 horsepower.

The Railplane is sixty feet in length with a seating capacity of 57. Total weight is 25,000 pounds, an extremely light construction. It is streamlined, lack of resistance to air being more marked than in anything designed for railway purposes.

Aerodynamic experience and wind tunnel tests, believed to be the first ever conducted on rail equipment, determined the shape of the car. An added feature of avoidance of air resistance is in the location of the pair of engines. These are mounted on the forward truck. Here they offer no impediment to the wind, and can be easily reached for repairs. One engine drives the front axle and the other drives the rear. All mechanism is controlled by one operator in the car's nose.

The construction of the car body is of great strength, the frame work being welded high tensile strength steel tubing. There is not a bolt or a rivet in the entire body frame. The shell, or outside of the car, is of duralumin, a heat treated aluminum alloy having the strength of ordinary structural steel but weighing only one-third as much.

The car is air-conditioned for all temperatures, hence the windows are sealed. Care was used to avoid all breaks in the smooth outer surface of the car. Steps are folding and when raised conform to the contour of Michigan Gas & Electric Seeks to Block Dowagiac City Plant Move Suit was filed Saturday in the Cass county circuit court by the Michigan Gas and Electric company to prevent the contemplated expansion of the Dowagiac municipal power plant to supply the city residential and commercial light and power.

The municipal plant was originally designed to supply light and power to city-owned buildings, parks and streets. Suit was instituted by George A. Mills, president of the utility to secure an injunction to prevent the proposed construction until funds have been properly set aside in the annual budget of the city, and restraining city officials from issuing or negotiating bonds to finance the project.

Mrs. Frank Habicht and Mrs. R. J. Burrows were in Chicago Monday. Mrs. H. R. Adams and daughter, Louise, spent Monday at the Century of Progress.

The regular meeting of the Eastern Star, O. E. S. No. 74, was held last evening in the lodge rooms. Michigan Speeds Road Construction

The Chicago office for the distribution of federal money for relief highway construction reports that the four states under its jurisdiction, comprising Illinois, Michigan, Indiana and Kentucky, are now beginning to speed up in definite application for project construction.

To date, said J. T. Voshell, head of the Chicago office, it has approved enough highway work to make considerable business for cement mills and quarries this winter. Although construction, where it has been started, will stop in another month, contracts will be let throughout the winter.

For federal approval, the roads must be of a particular sort—they must fit into state and even national road plans. A definite part must be main roads, and equally definite parts must be feeder roads and spurs of established roads.

Indiana is expected to offer plans for $4,900,000 worth of extension roads by spring. Forty projects in Kentucky have been approved, contracts let for 20. Thirty projects have been approved for Michigan and work is under way on 12. Eleven pieces of road work have been approved for Illinois and ten more will be approved shortly.

The Chicago office has $17,500,000 for Illinois; roughly $12,700,000 for Michigan, $10,000,000 for Indiana and $7,500,000 for Kentucky.

The last legislature enacted the Kulp law permitting the diversion of highway funds for welfare relief after fixed obligations had been met. Johnson said substantial payments of highway money are due the counties and he urged that boards of supervisors, in their meetings this month, include as much as possible from that source in their budgets.

The state, under its new $12,000,000 welfare relief law, is receiving $1,000,000 a month from sales tax revenues. This is being apportioned to the counties on the basis of need, and not according to population, Johnson said. The index used is the number of dependents compared to local ability to pay.

Reduce Motoring Costs with Dixie Golden Hi-Powr Gasoline

Dixie Golden Hi-Powr, the triple value gas, is High-Test, High-Octane and Overhead Lubrication. It is a quick-starting, high-powered anti-knock and non-carbon forming gasoline.

It is this last feature which reduces carbon removal and valve grinding costs to a minimum. Through the special lubricant which is fused with the gasoline at the refinery, every intake of gas has its proper amount of lubrication to keep carbon from depositing and baking on the valves, stems, piston heads and in the combustion chamber. This means less valve trouble and less frequent valve grindings and carbon removal.

Dixie Golden Hi-Powr is now sold at the price of regular gasoline. Every Dixie Station has it.
