

Now Here's the Proposition

WHEN NOTRE DAME GETS STARTED

By Haws

It's too soon yet to place a bet on how the gridiron fight'll pan out at last and who will grasp The nation's football title. For Washington has a husky team And Mich has 'em all out-smarted, And Princeton's great—but you just wait

Till Notre Dame gets started.

They got great ends down at South Bend

And a line that's a real rip snorter They've got some backs that sure make tracks

And you ought to see their quarter-back

Though they got cold decked by the boys from Tech

Let us be not down-hearted For there's two games still and there'll be a kill

When Notre Dame gets started.

It may take a week or it may take a year

Or it might even take forever But when they start—don't fear, dear heart—

They'll never stop them, never! Although Purdue just walked right through

And by Pitt their hair was parted There's two games yet, so hold your bets

Till Notre Dame gets started.

LOCALS BARRED IN TITLE RACE BY NORMAL HIGH

Heavy Field Holds Back Light Backfield of Maroons, Whose Running and Passing Game Fails to Click.

A slow field that delayed the pony backfield may have been all that stood between the proteges of Curly Bradfield and the state Class C title Saturday, but however that may have been, they were definitely shelved by defeat at the hands of the heavier marksmen from Western State high school who won, home with the long end of a 6-0 score.

The heavier state team clearly had a margin over the lighter Maroons, and threatened three times with drives to the eight, ten and fifteen yard lines before they finally collected late in the second quarter by the pass route, Vanderberg passing 35 yards to Eck, who then loped seven yards unopposed across the Buchanan goal line.

ARMISTICE DAY PROGRAM HELD IN STORM AND SLEET

Address by Rev. H. W. Staver in Morning and by A. L. Knoblauch in the Evening.

The Armistice Day observance was held here as scheduled Saturday with the exception of the parade in the morning which was prevented by poor weather.

The exercises were held at the intersection of Front and Oak St. with an address by Rev. H. W. Staver, a salute over an open grave by the firing squad and music by the high school band.

In the evening the Legion and Auxiliary held a family dinner party, open to all service men. Following the dinner M. H. McKinnon acted as toastmaster, introducing talks by H. C. Stark, Oscar E. Swartz, Tom Burks, Arthur Mann, Arthur Johnston, Augusta Huebner, A. H. Miller, George Hanley, and John Mitchell.

Miss Donna Bird then presented several dances and Mrs. H. C. Stark sang "In Flanders Fields" and "Roses of Picardy."

A. L. Knoblauch then gave a very interesting talk on past wars and the probable character of future conflicts.

Selections from the able talk by Rev. H. W. Staver from the porch of the Carl Hamilton home in the morning are given below.

WHAT MAKES A NATION GREAT?

By H. W. Staver
(Excerpts from Armistice Day Address)

In thinking of what makes a nation great one has all history from which to draw his conclusions. Three basic facts appear to be uppermost.

In the first place, it appears that no nation has been greater than its leadership. We may find the matter from any angle we choose, in any area of national life and in any age of the civilized earth and that fact is found to be invariably true. History indicates that whenever leaders have been ignorant, incompetent, oppressive, self-seeking, the nation has been debased and the people compelled to suffer the consequences of the sin and shame of such leadership. But, whenever leaders have been strong, efficient, self-sacrificing, God-fearing, then the nation has been exalted and the people enabled to enjoy the blessings of that leadership. One thing we must never lose sight of in a Democracy we write our own destiny, as a people, in our popular choice of those who shall rule over us. The electorate, in our hands is an instrument of life or death.

In the second place it appears that no nation has been greater than the quality and character of its citizenship. If the dominant and controlling element in that citizenship shall be men and women of lawless, selfish, immoral, irreverent, materialistic mind and spirit that spirit and mind will write it into the laws and institutions of all the land. But, if the dominant element in the commonwealth shall be men and women of high mind, noble soul and useful purpose, then their spirit will write its wisdom and wit into all the things of the realm. As its citizens are and do, so is the nation.

In the third place, it appears that no nation has been greater than the God it leaders and people worship and serve. "There is a Power," higher than human, "that must always be allowed to guide." So speaks one of Victor Hugo's characters, Abraham Lincoln words it another way. He says: "We cannot escape history." History is God in action! "Every great age," declares Emerson, "is a believing age." History says that of nations. It says it, also, of civilizations. And it bears its witness, as well, to the fact that when an individual, a nation, a civilization, a world ceases to believe it ceases to be great.

America has ever been blessed of great leaders, of great citizens and a great God. To cherish the continuance of these is to cherish life. To ignore the means of them is to invite a chaotic death.

Bucaneers to Invade Coloma Next Saturday

Buchanan high school ends their 1933 football season this Saturday, playing Coloma high at Coloma. Ten senior boys will play their last football game for Buchanan in this tilt.

The Bucks, somewhat shaken by their 6 to 0 defeat suffered at the hands of the Western State High eleven last Saturday, will respect the Coloma gridders, who have suffered only one defeat this season.

Although Coloma has never defeated Buchanan, this Saturday's encounter may prove to be another upset for the Bucks because of Coloma's excellent grid record this season.

The Buck line-up may be altered somewhat for this final game, and this fact may influence the outcome. The game, starting at 2 p. m. will be played at the Coloma high school field, located on the school grounds.

11 PCT. PENALTY '32 TAXES UNFAIR WRITES TAXPAYER

Relief for Everybody But the Fellow Who Puts Up Funds For Relief, Says Local Property Owner.

Dear Mr. Editor:

On the 1st day of November, together with all the talk of many jobs being opened up for the jobless and relief grants by the government, comes an article regarding our own county of Berrien.

This article states very concisely that taxes for 1932 remaining unpaid on that date had added to them a penalty of 10 3-4 per cent.

This, to me, is about the most inconsistent piece of work our county has done to date, in that it works a hardship on that person who, though he has been independent and self-supporting as to food, clothing and fuel, stands a good chance to lose his home because of his failure to have the necessary funds to pay his taxes.

I do not begrudge the money spent by the welfare organizations for the needy, on the other hand they have only taken into consideration the one class of needy.

We have before us now the problem of equity and it is certain that those people who have, up to 1932, paid their taxes promptly, are entitled to some consideration because of their inability to raise enough money for taxes, although they have fed and clothed their families without relief assistance. It is also that to penalize them for something over which they have no control is to kick a good dog in the face. They have, in the past, made it possible for the needy to be fed, the city, county, state and national governments, to function and to give them a severe penalty because they are no longer able to fork over, is about the most inconsiderate thing that could be done.

I am sure, also, that our superiors have not taken into consideration the fact that conditions during 1933 are still such that very few people are hoarding about the prosperity of their business.

Today's Detroit paper states that they have 45,000 families on their dole list and Berrien County certainly is not in any better shape than that. This, also in the face of the factories in Detroit operating better than they did in 1932.

I feel that there are several citizens who feel the same as I do and I am here and now voicing a protest against this unwarranted action on the part of our county officials.

Unwarranted? Yes, because 1930 and 1931 delinquent taxes do not have to be paid until 1933.

Without a doubt, there are a few cases where the property owner could have paid their taxes and didn't but these cases are few and far between.

In view of the fact that we who haven't paid our taxes are and are, because of conditions, to do so, are entitled to relief from the usury being practised, just as much as those who are being fed and clothed are entitled to those necessities. We feel that action should be taken to set aside any penalty for non payment of 1932 taxes and to set the time limit of payment forward to, at the earliest, 1935 or 1936.

I would appreciate other citizens who feel as I do on this matter to write their views on this subject to Box 67 care Record, Buchanan, Mich.

TAXPAYER.

Why Subscribe to the Record?

In another page of this issue is an advertisement which illustrates graphically the quantitative comparison between the Buchanan news and other strictly local matter carried in the Record of last week and in a daily competitor.

The totals of the week for Buchanan matter were: Record, 665 column inches; daily, 103 inches. It should be stated that in this Record total was 166 inches of space which was turned over to the local schools and churches and to philanthropic organizations to use at their own discretion without charge. The remainder, with the exception of comparatively small quantity of editorial, historical and other features, constituted purely local news, totaling over four times the amount in the competing daily.

Farmers Credit Union Adds Money Order Service

The Buchanan Farmers Credit Union has completed arrangements with the American Express Co. of Detroit for the sale of their money orders and travellers cheques. This rounds out the service of the Credit Union in fine shape. More and more people are taking advantage of the deposit privileges. Their membership has very materially increased. Quite a good many local people have been accommodated with loans at a time when money is most difficult to obtain.

The check cashing service of this organization has been its outstanding function. Many thousands of dollars worth of checks have been converted into cash for our local people. Through the voluntary contributions of the more active merchants and the co-operation of the First National Bank of Niles it has been possible for the Credit Union to cash all Niles checks without charge and those checks drawn on other than Niles banks at a very nominal fee. We feel that this organization made up entirely of our local people is rendering a real service to this community and warrants your co-operation.

Berrien-Cass Area 'Plans Achievement Round-Up for Winter

The Berrien-Cass Council is putting on an "Achievement Round-Up" which covers a program of events and system of awards far exceeding anything ever attempted before. With the slogan "Victories that are easy are cheap" the troops have set their goal as five new troops, 150 net increase in Scouts, 200 Second Class Scouts, 150 First Class Scouts, and 1200 merit badges. The Round-Up material is in the hands of all troop leaders now and the affair will be in operation from now until Feb. 13. The organization is based on ranch terms and the herdsman is the scoutmaster of each troop. The Corral bosses are Ted Thomas, St. Joseph, Stewart Cooper, Benton Harbor; Josef Cauffman, Dowagiac; Lynn Edinger, Three Oaks; L. E. Stevens, Buchanan; Victor Quigley, Watervliet. The cow punchers are all Scouts who bring in a new member. The range riders are the deputy commissioners in all towns of the Area. The chief wrangler will be the scout executive. The new boys coming in are known as "Mavericks." Every troop in the council has been assigned a definite goal to reach during the next three months. Quota cards are being posted in the headquarters of all troops showing what will have to be accomplished. Large buttons will be issued to every boy bringing in a new member, the Scout enlisting the new member will also receive a large button known as the "I roped one" button. All Scouts signing pledge cards to become second or first class are also given pledge buttons to wear during the round-up. Merit badge Scouts are all asked to sign up for at least two merit badges.

For a number of years Henry Blodgett and sons made "slop brick" but they never "killed dried" on the contrary they were spread over a yard of about a half acre to air dry, as slop brick always have been made, so far as I have known.

I have just had a visit by Dr. Jay D. Wells, a former Buchanan lad, now demonstrator at the dental department of the state university in Iowa City, and I think we have solved the "slop" part of the brick question. There is a fellow there named Charles H. Fuller more commonly known as "Pete," who had a father and whose family used to live in the second house south of Chicago street, on the east side of Days avenue in that sand hill and there with that sand, some cement and water, made brick, and placed them on a rack of shelves for the stuff to "set," hence the kiln drying.

Now, in passing, the most valuable asset of the city of Buchanan is the deposit of blue clay underlying the city, and coming to the most convenient working condition at the river near the dam. There certainly should be some one to take an interest in its development. When I was figuring in it I had opening for sale of entire out put of a plant, in the market in Chicago, for $20 per thousand, even in the Cleveland depression. There would be no use thinking of "slop" brick, for that clay is not of the slop kind, but of the same as the front brick in the Union block; dry pressed, and no other.

John Holmes Digs Again Into Past of Buchanan

Editor Record,

Item by item we scribes seem to be compiling the old-time record of Buchanan. The last issue is the first time I have known there had been a blacksmith shop on the site of the hotel.

There seems to be something of a mixing of stories, but it is hoped there will be a straightening out. In my record that building was erected by Leander P. Fox, without partner. At the time there was a hardware store on the east half of the lot now occupied by the opera house operated by Nathaniel M. Collins and Philander M. Weaver. Their store was the single storied building now on the second lot south of the wagon works, an arched ceilinged room. That firm was buying their stock from Hibbard, Spencer, Bartlett & Co., in Chicago, and that firm financed the erection of the building to replace it and to cover at the same time the west half of the lot which they bought from Mary Arthur. That made the building 62x80 feet. They, at the same time, erected the frame building at the south, 62x22, with a 12-foot alleyway between. It seems to me that Mr. Weaver was busy with the Collins & Weaver block without mixing with Perry Fox.

My story of the hotel is that Fox sold it to Dunbar Bros., Arch and St., who had sold their 300 acres of land, and thought they were called to show the world how to go around which they did forthwith and rapidly, and lasted out a short time. I do not know who followed them as landlords, but the last before Carothers was Charley Hulst.

For a number of years Henry Blodgett and sons made "slop brick" but they never "killed dried" on the contrary they were spread over a yard of about a half acre to air dry, as slop brick always have been made, so far as I have known.

MERCURY FALLS TO TEN ABOVE ZERO TUESDAY

Surprise Storm Threatens Success of Many Hunting Parties Now En Route to North Woods.

The Buchanan district has been visited during the past week by winter weather of unusual severity, heavy snows falling all day yesterday and local mercury readings slumping as low as 10 above zero.

Traffic was made difficult over the week-end by rain and ice which sheathed all highways and kept the wreckers busy for several days.

After the heavy snowfall set in Tuesday afternoon, traffic was easier, snowplows operating that night to keep main roads opened. Some difficulty was reported from drifts on the Portage Prairie road to South Bend.

Six inches of snow had fallen on the level here last night in addition to much that melted as it fell.

The surprise storm caught a number of hunting parties en route to the north woods, George Himmlerberger and C. D. Arnold left Tuesday for Powers, Mich., in the Upper Peninsula. Frank Imhoff and daughter, Irene, and son, Claude, left Monday for a camp near Lucerne, Roscommon county. ## Harold Roe Held Up Saturday On Niles-Buchanan Rd.

Mae West in
"I'm No Angel" at
Ready Theatre

Mae West, who "scorched" the nation with her first starring picture, "She Done Him Wrong," became a national idol, and then took Paris by storm and revolutionized feminine styles, comes back to Niles next Sunday with her new picture, "I'm No Angel." It will open for a three day run at the Ready theatre.

From every standpoint, "I'm No Angel" is a better picture than its predecessor. Miss West is even more colorful as Tina, the Million Dollar Beauty, who tames savage lions and men with equal facility, than she was as the diamond bedecked Lady Lou. Paramount has given the second production of its greatest star an excellent cast, smart direction and gilded mounting.

Mae sings seven "scorch songs," dances the midway, as a remarkable dance in which she moves everything except her feet; puts her head in a lion's mouth; utters a succession of breezy wisecracks which probably will be heard everywhere, as was "come up and see me sometime" until another West picture brings us some more Westernisms.

"I'm No Angel" is a superior picture to "She Done Him Wrong" because it was written directly for the film by Miss West. It takes her on a magnificent journey from a dancer in a cheap carnival show to national fame as the gorgeous Tina, Million Dollar Beauty, courted by society men.

Since Miss West has set the winter fashion mode, it should be duly chronicled here that in "I'm No Angel" she does not wear the extreme gown of yesterday as she did so charmingly in her previous picture. She appears in snarling modish clothes of the day that is, when she is not making a handsome appearance in silken tights, and she always presents a luscious

Her supporting cast is well chosen. Cary Grant, who was her "tall, dark and handsome" in "She Done Him Wrong," plays a similar role in the new attraction, and gives his customary good performance. Kent Taylor plays a second lead. Edward Arnold and Hal Roemer are menace roles. Cedric Belfrage is Mae's love rival. Dorothy Peterson, Russell Hopton, William B. Davidson, Irving Pichel and Walter Walker round out the cast.

New Views

ALL who at this period attempt to follow the rapid flow of new opinions and theories must be aware of a mental flurry comparable to the sensation of being out of breath. Diverse phases of the complex human problem are engaging the attention of thinkers in many lands. As one glances over the fields of art, medicine, theology, and what is termed science, amazing changes of outlook may be noted. Premises once considered immovable are veering; positions long tenaciously held are being proved untenable; conclusions regarded as established forms of government have in some instances been swept away, and some notable changes in the social order are manifest. Many today feel themselves in a changing world and are inclined to fear the strange new.

In the beautiful thirteenth chapter of I Corinthians, Paul writes, "Whether there be prophecies, they shall fail; whether there be tongues, they shall cease; whether there be knowledge, it shall vanish away." Henry Drummond, analyzing this chapter in his book, "The Greatest Thing in the World," points out that Paul shows the transitory nature of the things of earth, and lends thought on to the sublime conclusion that "Love never faileth." He comments thus: "A schoolboy knows more than Sir Isaac Newton knew; his knowledge has vanished away. . . . You buy the old editions of great encyclopedias for a few cents; their knowledge has vanished away. . . . And in every branch of science it is the same. . . . There is a great deal in the world that is delightful and beautiful; . . . great and engrossing; but it will not last. . . . But what is certain is that Love must last. God, the Eternal God, is Love."

Those assured of this great fact know quietness of heart amid temporal changes consequent on the passing into oblivion of many phases of an old order. Those who know something of Christian Science are not only undisturbed but full of hope and good cheer. "Mistaken views ought to be dissolving away," writes Mary Baker Eddy in "Miscellaneous Writings" (p. 290). "since whatever is false should disappear." The very fact that former beliefs and theories no longer satisfy, that they have not stood the test of emergency, is proof that they were not posited on Truth. Viewed in this light the present world upheaval, then, is a reason for gratitude and rejoicing, for it proves that through all vicissitudes human thought must continue to strive for a solid basis for its hope, until it finds rest in God.

But what of the future, to which many may be looking with apprehension? Mrs. Eddy, who foresaw Truth's destruction of error, and the disturbance incident thereto, in conditions such as are now testing the courage of mankind, had so clear a vision of the verities of being that she could write in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" (p. 66): "Trials are proofs of God's care. . . . Each successive stage of experience unfolds new views of divine goodness and love."

So the forward look should not be a fearful peering into imaginary darkness, but an upward look of joyous anticipation. Travelers cheerfully brave rough roads and hard climbing in order to win a vantage point from which to behold a beautiful view; and pilgrims on the ascending road of experience will find themselves more than compensated for any seeming hardship by the loveliness of spiritual views, constantly being revealed to their clearer gaze. This is true in its most practical sense, as many grateful hearts can testify. Some who in recent years have encountered hardships previously undreamed of declare with sincere gratitude that in every situation, no matter how difficult, there has come to their awakened thought a fresh and sweet realization, a new view of the divine care which is far more tender than that which we associate with the action of earthly parents. This has resulted from the better understanding of the nature of God brought to them by Christian Science.

The Apostle Paul had planned a missionary journey to Rome, but it was a roundabout way that took him there, and he reached the famous city as a prisoner. But in the long way traveled toward the place of his desire, how many wonderful views he had of God's infinite love and power! That night in the Philippian prison, when he and Silas, their feet in the stocks, sang praises and "the doors were opened, and every one's bands were loosed!" The rescue from shipwreck and the protection from the bite of the viper at Melita; Paul must indeed have rejoiced as he reviewed these experiences in the quiet of the prison.

So, today, those walking in the clear light of Christian Science will not regret the overturning of human plans, nor hesitate on the brink of unfamiliar experiences; for to them the future signifies further unfoldment of the knowledge of God, a better understanding "of Him whom to know aright is Life eternal" (Science and Health, Pref. p. vii).—The Christian Science Monitor.

Bone-Setters Honored
by Surgeons of Note

The practice of manipulative surgery, as bone-setting is now called, was known to the ancients. An interesting treatise on dislocation was written by no less a doctor than Hippocrates. There are said to have been successful bone-setters under the Roman Republic. Conservative surgery owes bone-setters a past debt. When it was beginning to establish itself they were the only orthopedic surgeons. Apparently they were recognized as legitimate exponents of their branch of therapeutics. William Cheselden, a noted surgeon of the middle of the eighteenth century, sent fractures to the bone-setters, admitting that they were more competent than he to treat them.

A century later Sir James Paget urged his professional brethren, through the British Medical Journal, to "learn what was good in the methods of the bone-setter and eschew what was harmful." Still later, Wharton Flood, another English doctor, who greatly admired Robert Hutton, a bone-setter, studied the latter's methods and after Hutton's death described them in the Lancet. The present school of surgery contains many crude stones.—Detroit Free Press.

City's Well-Being First in Hearts of Athenians

It was because fifth century Athens was a city-state in whose beautification all her citizens shared, that she was greater in her creative achievements than the Italy that fell direct heir to her cultural treasures. In that first democracy men of ability vied in serving a civic ideal not for their own enrichment, but for the city's greater glory. So the rich Athenian esteemed it an honor to finance the production of plays and public festivals shared in by all; so the theaters were made free to all citizens; so civic tasks were shared around among the whole electorate. For the whole pattern which Athens set for the world in democracy was of a society founded upon the well-being of the citizens as a whole, not of a society conducted in theory for the public and in reality for the hoary confederation of special interests. That is why the ideal of beauty in life permeated Hellas from architecture to sports, from public festivals to philosophy.—"Uncle Dudley," in the Boston Globe.

Original American Foods

There has been much controversy concerning the foods originally found in the Americas. It is generally agreed that in North America were tobacco, maize, a certain type of pear and a small variety of tomato. In Central America and the islands the early explorers also found tobacco and tomatoes. In South America, particularly Brazil, wild potatoes were found in abundance, so much so that in about 1810 it was necessary to import thousands of these native plants to develop in order to save the potato crop of the world. It was originally thought that bananas were first found in Central and South America and the islands, but later this theory was the subject of much debate, and it is generally believed today that while bananas were originally in that section of the world, they were also found in tropical sections of the eastern hemisphere at the same time.

Blood Combination That Has Bred Moron People

The name "Jackson Whites" probably was formed from the words Jacks and whites, a Jack being a hybrid. The Jackson Whites of New Jersey are a mixture of negro, Indian and white blood, showing all possible combinations of the traits of these three races. The historical records of the subject show that a number of the freed slaves settled in the Ramapo mountains, where they were joined by occasional whites of very low standing from the surrounding communities. Just how the Indian blood is to be accounted for is uncertain. One theory is that some of these freed slaves were Indians, as it is a well-authenticated fact that at one time some Indians were held as slaves. Another theory is that these were Indians who joined this group of people just as the low-grade white people joined them. As far as mentality goes, the average mental age is from nine to ten years. In other words, these people are practically all of the moron level of intelligence.—Washington Star.

Slow to Recognize America

On February 6, 1778, signatures were affixed to a treaty of commerce and a treaty of amity and alliance between France and the United States. The definitive treaty between the United States and England was signed at the end of 1783. Although Frederick the Great wrote Franklin that he probably would soon follow France in recognizing the United States in 1778, no recognition was extended until about 1786. A treaty of peace and commerce was signed with the Netherlands in September, 1785. A treaty of peace and friendship was signed by Morocco in January, 1787. A treaty had been signed with Sweden in April, 1783. Russia did not recognize the new country or send a diplomatic representative until 1800.

The uneducated is not he who cannot read or write or count or spell, but he who walks unseeing and unhearing, through the busy streets and glorious open spaces of life.

An Armada

Armada is Spanish from the Latin meaning armament. Specifically, it means a fleet of armed ships, the most famous being the Spanish armada destroyed by the English in 1588. Thus, an air armada is a fleet of armed airplanes, or, generally, any fleet of airplanes.

SALE OF ADVENT CHRISTIAN CHURCH RECALLS EARLY DAYS WHEN 1,000 PEOPLE ATTENDED OAK ST. SERVICES

Great Bell of Old South Oak
Structure Now Regulates
Time in City of Nanking, China.

Memories of times when the Advent Christian church was the largest in point of membership and wealth in the community and when Buchanan was the publishing headquarters of the denomination for the west were recalled by the sale of the property at 303 N. Oak street to the Latter Day Saints last week.

It was under the direction of the Rev. Daniel Mansfield and of his wife, Rev. Mehotabel Mansfield, during the sixties and seventies that the denomination achieved its greatest success. Much of this prosperity, however, must be credited to the presence of Josiah V. Himes and his publishing house. Himes was a traveling evangelist for the church by profession and the publishing concern at which he was the nominal head was in fact conducted by his sons. The business was conducted in a building in the rear of the old church on South Oak, composed of two frame stories superimposed on a brick basement. The upper frame section was destroyed by fire and only the brick basement section remains. It is occupied by the Noe service garage. Himes had his presses installed in the basement, the first floor was the composing room and the upper story was used for storage.

Buchanan was the publishing center for the denomination in the section of the country then considered as "the West." The eastern publishing house was maintained in Boston. Here the "Voice of the West" was printed and also a large output of religious books and pamphlets. In the seventies the business was moved to Norwood Park, Ill., a suburb of Chicago.

The denomination began in this locality in the early forties, the first services being held in the structure which then stood at 305 Main street where the house recently occupied by Homer Morley stands now. When non-members in the community raised criticism of their use of the schoolhouse, Royal Morris, father of John Morris, threw open the ball room of the old American house, later known as the Cottage hotel and still standing at 131 Main street. Here they met for several years, and it was an old jest of the community that a number of the pioneer members of the denomination were "converted in a ballroom."

From the American House ballroom the congregation went in the early fifties to the church structure which they erected at Third and Macarasin avenue, and which is yet used by the Seventh Day Adventist congregation. In 1867 the Advent Christian congregation separated from the Adventists and built the large frame structure on South Oak street which is now used by the Bristol Pattern Works. This structure was built in the largest church building in the city, seating in the neighborhood of 650. In the early seventies, under the leadership of the Mansfields, husband and wife, the congregation reached a membership of 280, and its Sunday evening meetings were frequented by hundreds more.

During the residence of the Mansfields, Rev. Daniel Mansfield preached in the morning and his wife in the evening. The latter was reputed to have been one of the most "powerful" pulpit orators in the history of Buchanan. She was a woman of strong and independent personality. Among the traits which drew much attention to her was her independent ideas concerning dress. She did much traveling about and for convenience on these occasions she designed a costume for use in her public work, consisting of a short skirt, about the length worn by all women now, plus a pair of pantaloons of the same material as the skirt, reaching to her shoe tops; and of the same general design as a man's trousers. These she wore when traveling in the pulpit, in spite of the horror of the conservative and the unalloyed delight of the unregenerate.

The Rev. Mansfield, less an orator than his wife, excelled in pastoral work in the homes of his flock. A mild, cheerful man, he was, he was immensely popular in his field, while the vehement personality of his wife made her a force in the pulpit but something of a terror in the presence of the sick and afflicted. "My husband is a very good man, but it does him no credit," she was reputed to have said. "It is just natural for Daniel to be good, but it's a constant battle for me to be good."

The old South Oak church had a balcony in the west end, which accommodated over 100. Jacob Hahn, the sole undertaker and coffin maker of the village, was also the janitor of the church and he was credited with an uncanny skill in "packing 'em in." By filling the aisles and all clear space in the rear near the stoves he contrived to seat as much as a thousand people.

After one evening service Nov. 26, 1890, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Treat were married. The former was then a popular young business man here, and when it became noised around that he would be married at the church that night the structure was packed with a capacity crowd. Perry Fox, one of the leaders in the church, and the uncle of the bride sat in the balcony and counted over one thousand attendants.

The record of the following Thursday said: "The Oak street Advent church was packed Sunday evening, the occasion being the announcement that Mr. Charles E. Treat and Miss Ellen A. Alexander would be married after the evening service. Elder George Miller, rector of the church, performed the ceremony. The young Treat family have the well wishes of the community."

Shortly after the Oak street church was built Perry Fox purchased a bell, the largest church bell ever hung in Buchanan. For many years this bell was rung on public occasions, especially on July 4. When the church authorities attempted to deny the young men the privilege of ringing the bell on Independence Day, they contrived to gain admittance to the belfry on Sunday and attached a small cord to the bell and thence out the belfry window and across to the old Record office then located where the Sands market now is. Then on the morning of July 4th the bell was rung as usual to the great mystification of the church elders, who could not see the fine cord in the air between the two buildings.

When the structure was sold to H. S. Bristol in 1920, the bell was reserved and was donated to the church mission headquarters at Nanking, China. Here it was still in use at last reports. While in California a few years ago Mrs. Ellen Treat talked with the pastor of the Nanking mission who said the old Buchanan bell was used to a great extent to regulate the time of the city. It is a large bell of remarkably clear tone and can be heard for miles. There is only one other bell in the city of Nanking, a smaller one in another mission.

Henry Marhoff, Buchanan Native, Writes From West

A chance copy of the Centennial edition sent to Fort Collins, Col. fell into the hands of a former resident, A. L. Marhoff, a son of Henry Marhoff, who conducted a blind and door factory in Buchanan back in the sixties.

Through a friend Marhoff writes that his grandfather moved from Herkimer county, N. Y., to Bertram township in 1842, when his (A. L. Marhoff's) father, Henry, was six years of age. In 1865 the said Henry Marhoff established his factory west of Oak street on the east side of the millrace. It was in this structure, according to Marhoff, that Richards manufactured the first zinc collar pads. Henry Marhoff lived on Third street near the Advent and Presbyterian churches of that day. I asked him how he moved to a house on Oak street, adjoining an alley which ran through to Days avenue, near where the creek then crossed the latter street. His home then was just west of the clothes hat factory which was between Oak and Days avenue.

The mother of Henry Marhoff was the first white child born in the present limits of the city of Kalamazoo and was in the second graduating class from Michigan State Normal at Ypsilanti. She came to Buchanan to teach school and here met Henry Marhoff.

It was in 1872, the year that A. L. Marhoff left, that the school building on the site of the present manual training building was built and occupied. He states that he can remember when the children marched from the old school building to the new.

ROUND ABOUT BUCHANAN

JUST AN OLD-FASHIONED IDEA

The fact that Buchanan people, paid 82 per cent of their summer taxes, as compared with averages as low as 40 per cent in other towns in the county indicates one of two things, either the city has a very exceptional tax collector or the people are a very exceptional bunch of taxpayers—and most likely it indicates both.

But with all credit to Mrs. Sanders, that percentage could hardly have been achieved here, banking conditions and other things being what they are, without a strong tendency on the part of the local citizens toward paying.

Which may be one reason why the mine run of taxpayers here do not appear to look with great favor on issuing bonds for the construction of sewers. Despite the fact that smooth-tongued gents have assured us in mass meetings that in all likelihood these Public Works Administration loans would never be repaid anyway, that there would be a wholesale repudiation of the obligations and we would just get our sewer for nothing, after having passed on the government money to the contractors, not to mention a sizeable cut received by the engineers.

But the people of Buchanan and the city government as well, seem to be imbued with an obdurate, thickheaded idea that if they contract a debt to the government they are eventually going to have to pay it. The idea of getting a loan of $100,000 and then offering Uncle Sam the privilege of kissing the back of their neck on pay day does not strike them as a feasible proposition.

And as a result of this regrettable and quite old-fashioned tendency of Buchanan taxpayers to consider a debt a debt whether it is owed to John Jones or Uncle Sam, the majority seems to be very offish about contracting more tax obligations, whether for relief work or anything else, until they see their way clear to pay.

And that is apparently why a considerable canvass of the local situation reveals that there are only two classes here seemingly in favor of accepting the government offer of four per cent money for relief construction—those who are well off enough financially to know how they would pay their assessments, and those who feel certain that they would have no assessment to pay and would stand a chance of getting a job.

It is evident that the great majority of those who would eventually have to pay the bills, whether in service charges or in tax assessments, are opposed.

know several in that vicinity, were "owing a fall wheat crop in anticipation of business conditions in the city under the second year of a Democratic administration. L. E. LeCave bragged about the fine lawn in front of his place on Days Avenue all summer but we noticed it was only in front of his place of business.

Mrs. Bird Endows City
Old timers rubbed their eyes when they entered the city hall last week and wondered where they had seen that face before. It was the old clock with the Bird Bus & Dray advertisement on it, and they most likely had seen it in the lobby of the Hotel Rex away back in the seventies, eighties and nineties. The clock was placed in the hotel lobby by George Bird, shortly after he opened his business here in 1862. It had three revolving cylinders of china at the bottom, which turned with the passage of time, revealing successive advertisements. Mrs. Bird presented the clock to the city hall as a memento. The administration accepted the gift with thanks as it solves the problem of a time piece for the room.

MAKING APPLE BUTTER OVER FIRE PLACE

Last week we called a certain home in Buchanan and the lady of the house answered and after a brief conversation excused herself saying that she was making apple butter in a kettle over the fire place and that she had to stay with it and stir it all day. And no sooner had she said it than we could smell the boiled Talmans Sweet cider over the telephone and the only reason we didn't quit our job and rush right over to help was that she never invited us.

Ken Blake, one of Uncle Sam's hired men up at the post office, says somebody ought to say something about people who can't find any work not doing what work there is to do like keeping their walks clean of snow, and that goes for a lot of people who are supposed to be working but have plenty of time for a little brick shoveling to work up an appetite for their buckwheats. We wanted him to sign his name but he says he has too many good friends on his route. How good, Ken?

WITH APOLOGIES TO THE BULL

Well, friends and neighbors we regret to state that a most important item of news got left out of the Record last week, but it was all due to the pressure of ex-traneous matters, the government NRA policies, Lee LeCave's Nil's brow sheet, etc., but what we started to tell about was the way the bull got spread on the corner of Front street and Days avenue. What's that you say—no news in that? Well, but just wait until you hear about who did it. Bob Reamer? No. Gerrett? No. Vern Quinn? No. Lee? No. you might as well give up, it was Omar Kenton and Ira Conrad. They went around that corner like too many people in this town go around corners, the only difference being that in this case they got their punishment. It was Conrad's truck and Kenton's bull, or was the other way around?—anyway, the side of the crate in the rear came off and the bull and cow riding in it were thoroughly spread over the pavement. Fortunately they struck the paving on a rolling slant and were not apparently hurt, and were able to be led off under their own power to a loading chute.

The Pilgrim Fathers who settled in New England never did burn witches alive. They took old women reputed to be witches, hoisted them on a scaffold, and hanged them till they were dead, dead, dead. But the belief lives on. And the believers.

P. T. A. Notes

Mothers' Club will meet in the Kindergarten room at the Dewey Avenue School Thursday, Nov. 16, at 3 p. m.

Mrs. Kenneth Biako will give the talk, the subject being, "How Praise and Blame Affect Children."

About fifty mothers of the Kindergarten, first and second grade children are attending these meetings which are held the third Thursday of each month. They are proving very interesting and a source of inspiration to all.

Grade meetings for mothers of children in the third and fourth grades in high school building will be held Thursday at 2:30 p. m. Nov. 23, at the high school building. Class demonstrations will be given. The topic of the discussion to be led by Mrs. Lloyd Sands is "Train Your Child to Take Responsibility." All mothers of these children come and help make your group meeting a success.

The next regular P. T. A. meeting will be held Monday evening, Nov. 27, at 7:30 in the junior assembly room of the high school.

Through Dr. Waldo a very good speaker has been secured, W. H. Berkley of Cassopolis and editor of the Cassopolis Vigilant. He is recommended as a speaker who can make people think. Come and see whether you agree with him in his statements which may seem revolutionary now.

The Fall Fair held Nov. 2nd and 3rd was a success and we wish to thank all who helped in any way to make it such. The total amount cleared was $70. The distribution of free milk has started this week. Our school nurse reports that the number of underweight children in school is almost double the number in previous years. This is undoubtedly the result of the depression and is becoming more evident now. Only those who cannot buy milk are furnished the free milk and it is at present not being given to the children given warm noon meals. These meals are also being started this week and so being started this week and there are about forty-five children whose parents have filled in applications for them.

Anyone who has not helped with them in previous years and would like to, please call or leave your name at the office. It is necessary as far as possible for two people to furnish each meal when there are so many being fed.

WHISPERING PINES

By Una Kelley

Well, how do you like our white snowy weather? My guess is that you do, and that while it lasts there's going to be more than a few tobogganing jubilees.

I hear the sophomore girls are mad at the Weather Man. Since they are co-champions in soccer, a game was arranged for them with the Niles seniors. Everybody was all pepped up and class spirit was running high, when along came Old Man Blizzard and laid a white but nevertheless, wet blanket on a game for this week.

Have any of you heard the freshmen girls "boohing" and "ahing" about Bill Frame or Batches? How about giving them a break, boys?

What would happen if—"Abie" Webb stopped being so stubborn?

"Donna Bird stopped laughing out loud?"

By the time you read this, the senior football fellows will have played their last football game for B. H. S. on the home field. There's a lot of joy and superiority in being a senior, but there's also a lot of heartache. D'ya get what I mean?

School Slants

General assembly, in the form of a pep meeting was called Friday afternoon.

With Mr. Hyink acting as master of ceremonies, stunts were presented by each class. Many unknown talents were discovered during the occasion. Joe Bachman really can sing as well as eat hot dogs.

A German band composed of Fred Riley, Bob Strayer, George Remington, Dick Schram, Ted Lyon and Eddie Donley, with the aid of Mr. Hyink's German vocabulary was a colorful attraction, including the red noses.

The girls' glee club, under the direction of Mr. Robinson, sang two numbers.

There are 72 children enrolled in kindergarten, and of these 72, parents of 56 have requested that their children be given toxoid. Toxoid is the means of prevention of diphtheria, and protects the child through the rest of his life. Besides the 56 who will be given toxoid at school, ten children were given it before entering. Experiments show that the best age for giving toxoid is from six months to a year, as the toxoid has no ill effects at this time and protects the child through the years when the disease is most fatal.

Doctor Leachman, the children's fund dentist, has been working on children of the rural districts and has completed dental work for the following schools: Howe, Dayton, Wagner, Bakertown, Broceus and Holmes.

The grade children have been inspected for head during the last week. Four cases have been found and these are excluded from school. The treatment recommended is the application of kerosene to the hair for one hour, a shampoo, and the hair then combed with hot vinegar each day until all nits are gone.

Class Activities

English Club

The first section of the eighth grade English classes held a meeting of the English club. Officers were elected. They were: president, Betty Semple; secretary and treasurer, Beverly Koons; critics, Alice Sharp and Phyllis Lamb. These critics look for mistakes in grammar made in Mrs. French's history, English, and social studies classes. Those making mistakes are penalized at the end of the week when the mistakes are reported.

An Armistice Day program was held by the second section of the English class. Selections were: a poem, "In Flanders Field," read by Florence Rose; Velle Gray recited to the class, "America's Answer"; "What Armistice Day Means," was an article read by Dorothy Gross; Mabel Bennett read a field message sent on Armistice Day; Chas. Tainton gave a short talk on the World War; and Burrell Weaver told to the class something about the treaty of Versailles.

One point stressed in the English eight classes is outlining and note-taking. From these notes the class has to write themes.

English 7, 11, 12

Bill Frame took the honorary title of toastmaster at a Velmarian Literary Society toast program on turkey, this week. Those who entertained with speeches on that subject were as follows:

They are observing the characteristics of old dramas and plays from France, Germany, Russia and Scandinavia. Essays on "Why Shakespeare's Plays are Placed in a High School Course" were written by the juniors who finished the unit on Macbeth.

The art of making compositions from outlines and outlines from composition was mastered by the seventh grade.

Musio

The music department is working on a variety of things. The band is practicing for the coming basketball season. The orchestra is practicing symphony concerts. It is doubtful about the glee club. The boys' glee club is rather weak up to now, but the girls are making it for it in extraordinary performance.

Mr. Robinson is writing a number of songs that will be the exclusive property of the high school student body. He is arranging them for the band so that the band may accompany the rooting section singing these peppy and inspiring songs.

Eighth Grade History

Jefferson's administration is the reading material of the eighth grade history class. The class members have devoted some time in examining note books made for the fair. They found where the material was collected that was used in the notebooks. Articles were read from the specially good note books. Among them were: Current Events, Aviation, Transportation, Biographies of the great, living Americans, and the most important Presidents.

Mathematics

The division law of exponents and the division of polynomials are the mysteries that Mr. Hyink's freshman algebra classes are attempting to solve.

In the geometry classes the students are racking their brains over inequalities and their relationship to the sides and angles of triangles. The special properties of parallel lines have also made them sit up and take more interest in this appalling subject.

The advanced algebra class during the past week has been working on special type forms of advanced factoring. The factor theorem and synthetic division have also been in their studies for the week.

Multiplication of fractions has been the interesting work of the commercial arithmetic class under Mrs. Weaver's instruction.

These famous people! "Gangway!"

Before and after school and between classes, crowds gathered at the spot and fought to gain their standing place.

And why shouldn't it create a commotion? Lo and behold! It was a picture of the mighty Bradford.

DO YOU KNOW—That "Dot" Wheeler was born in Paris?—(Illinois.)

That Lillas Peacock is wearing bang sand has deserted her spit curl?

Why Richard Schram blushed so beautifully in journalism?

Famous "Sowbelly" Dinners

It has been the custom for a great many years for the Colorado Mining association and the Colorado Chapter of the American Mining Congress to hold a joint convention in January. The final function of the convention is usually the sowbelly dinner. It usually furnishes the fun of the convention.

Every year there is a new committee of arrangements, which tries to outdo its predecessor in planning out unusual stunts. The menu of the sowbelly dinner consists primarily of sowbelly and beans, old Cornish pastry and those things usually prepared by the early prospectors as their regular menu.

Sometimes tin plates and cups are used instead of dishes. The main dining room is decorated and lighted in primitive manner. These sowbelly dinners are always well attended.

Pioneers of Methodism

The History of Methodism says: "In the British Wesleyan Conference of 1770 'America' appears for the first time, as a single circuit, served by four preachers, Pimoot, Boardman, King and Williams. America reported a total membership of 316 to the conference of 1771. With the report came the urgent appeals of the Americans for more helpers. Five preachers offered to go, and two were accepted. The two volunteers for America from the conference of 1771 were Francis Asbury and Richard Wright."

Many and Curious Are Oddities Found in Cuba

In Cuba there is a species of the honey bee that has no sting and, on account of the mild climate, works the entire year. But there is a fly and ant there that more than makes up for it. "This insect," reports one who knows, "has a habit of getting down your back or front and will puncture your hide at the rate of ten times a second before you crush it. The sting is very painful and the places will fester if not treated with a demulcent. The application of garlic will counteract the effect." Another queer thing, according to this same authority, is a firefly which carries headlights instead of tail light. In other words it has a light at each side of the head instead of at the tail. Native women attending an evening function often put them in their hair for adornment.

Then there is a land crab, called the congoria, that is plentiful along the highways. It is a sociable creature and will enter a house, which is not pleasant if they happen to pinch your foot. But they are good food. The plantain, a species of the banana, is not good raw but, fried or baked, makes a tempting meal. It is "hog and hominy" to the natives, so no one need starve in Cuba.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Ambitious Projects for Harnessing Sun's Rays

Inventions for obtaining power to operate machinery from the heat of the sun's rays have often been patented, but most of them have contained too fatal defects. First of all, the appliances had to be so large that they were utterly unworkable; also, they cost so much that power obtained in this way did not pay; it was cheaper to use electricity or steam.

Important experimental work is being carried out in Canada, Holland and Germany to see whether it is possible to use the sun's heat economically for supplying power. The first experiments are to see whether sunshine can be "bottled." That is, can enough power be collected from the sun during the day to provide light during the night?

Heat rays can be concentrated by means of mirrors and lenses; the present scheme is to collect them by means of large white surfaces and to direct them upon boilers, in which they will generate steam. The steam will be used to operate dynamos, and the electricity made will be stored in batteries.

Early Englanders

Blackened bones of a woman and her child have been found in a prehistoric crematorium on the Surrey Downs. Excavations at Burrows Cross, near Peaslake, have revealed two trenches, 20 feet long, 4 feet wide, and 4 feet deep, walled with big stones. Bodies were cremated in the trenches, and sealed down by another layer of stones, on which other cremations took place. At one end of the trench half-cremated bones were found; all the others must have been completely destroyed, for the heat was so terrific that masses of charcoal and big sandstones, burnt right through, can still be seen. Experts who have examined the trenches suggest that they may have been used by Neolithic people who roamed the Downs about 7000 B. C.

Proper Display of Flag

The flag code as adopted by the national flag conference, Washington, provides as follows: When the flag is displayed in a manner other than being flown from a staff it should be displayed flat, whether indoors or out. When displayed either horizontally or vertically against a wall the Union should be uppermost and to the flag's own right, i. e., to the observer's left. When displayed in a window it should be displayed the same way—that is, with the Union, or blue field, to the left of the observer in the street. When festoons, roses or drapings are desired, bunting of blue, white and red should be used, but never the flag.

Birds Change Habits

Birds so rapidly change their habits in new surroundings that few species remain loyal to their reputation for honesty which they enjoyed in the land of their origin.

Plaster of Paris Made Quite "Permanent" Wave

Just as there are in New York barber schools, where beginners practice on the hair and beard at reduced prices, so there are schools which graduate their pupils to beauty parlors. Here a "facial" or a "wave" may be obtained for the modest sum of 25 cents. One of these schools opened in a new building, from which all the building supplies had not been removed. A customer came in who wished a "white henna" treatment. This is a treatment used to bleach white or light colored hair. They say that a paste is applied to the hair and, after a certain time, removed.

The operator opened a closet, got some material from a bag and made a paste. After it had been applied, the discovery was made that the stuff happened to be some sort of plaster of paris left by the workmen. It hardened quickly and firmly. In fact, the customer had to be removed to a suite where an operation could be performed with a chisel.

The chipping was done as considerately as possible, but the hair was chipped off with the plaster. In the end the woman had to have her head shaved.—Exchange.

Sea Horse Ranks High Among Nature's Freaks

Of all the queer combinations in the animal kingdom, the sea horse (Hippocampus) easily takes the prize, points out Boys' Life, the monthly journal of the Boy Scouts of America. It has the head of a horse, from which it takes its name; the tail of a monkey; the fins of a fish; the abdominal pouch of a kangaroo, in which the male carries the eggs from the time they are laid until they are hatched. With all these borrowed trappings, the sea horse is a real fish and does not live very long out of water.

The tail, which is somewhat longer than the head and body combined, is the only tail in the fish kingdom endowed with the power to grasp things, and with it the sea horse clings to underwater foliage when he desires to rest, continues Boys' Life. In their sportive moments these quaint little creatures wrap their tails around each other and engage in a regular tug-of-war—or a large one will seize a small one around the neck and drag him furiously around in circles in a marine version of "snap the whip."

The Solar Plexus

The solar plexus is the great network of nerves and sympathetic ganglia lying back of the stomach, distributing nervous impulses to the intestines, stomach and glands in the upper part of the abdominal cavity.

Saxophone and Cornet

Before Adolphe Sax invented what has been described as an "intrinsically regrettable instrument," the saxophone, the "goat" of musical instruments seems to have been the cornet, according to Radlitz, who points out that Theodore Thomas wrote in his diary some time in the '60s: "At last the summer concerts show a respectable character and we are rid of the cornet!"

Beasts Once Summoned

Before Judicial Courts

Among curious legal cases before the courts, few bear comparison with those recorded by bygone days, when suits were really heard against the lower creation, says the Law Journal of London. While it is difficult to suppress merriment over the quaint ideas of our ancestors, regarding the culpability of animals, there is no doubt that the trials were viewed seriously.

The warrant for holding animals amenable to the law appears to have been taken from the Jewish law: "If an ox gore a man or woman that they die, then the ox shall be surely stoned and his flesh shall not be eaten; but the owner of the ox shall be quit."

Following this command Moses proceeded to enforce the doctrine of the responsibility of the owner of a dangerous animal and to insure his due punishment in the event of his willingly allowing a harmful beast to run loose. These injunctions, therefore, which sound so strange today, were pursued more or less to the letter in medieval Europe, and, extraordinary though it may seem, in France and other European countries animals in general were held to be amenable to law until the middle of the Eighteenth century.

By the old law of France, if a vicious animal killed a human being and it was proved that the owner knew of its propensity to attack people and suffered the beast to be at large, the owner as well as the animal was hanged.

Smallest Bird in the World

The smallest known bird is the hummingbird. It is found only in the New World, of which it is a native. It ranges from the Strait of Magellan, at the southern tip of South America, to Alaska. There are 43 different kinds of these birds, but only 16 kinds are found north of Mexico. There is only one kind found east of the Mississippi river and north of Florida. This is the common ruby-throated hummingbird which is familiar throughout the eastern half of the United States and Canada.

Wire Through Ice Cake

The melting of ice by means of pressure is a well-known laboratory experiment. It is true that if a fine wire carrying a weight be passed over a block of ice, the ice just below the wire is melted by the pressure and the water thus formed passing above the wire freezes again on being released. Thus, in a short time the wire cuts its way through the ice, leaving the block as solid as before.

Bread, From Prehistoric Times to the Present

However it came about, it seems likely that some ages after the discovery of fire, prehistoric man in his hunt for food found that by picking and eating the heads of the grain, that grew in the fields, he could satisfy his hunger. To avoid eating the whole plant, he learned to grind the grain a bit between stones, and it is apparent from the worn off teeth of mummies that he also ate some of the ground stone along with his grain. However, there we had the first flour.

To make the cracker grain go down better, some one thought of adding water, and, ergo, the first dough.

A few generations later one of the youngsters grew careless and dropped some of his grain and water mixture on a hot stone. Every one looked and tasted—and started dripping more dough on more hot stones. They had discovered that bread was good.

Then one day a careless cave lady forgot and left her dough sitting over night. She didn't know it, but in that time it picked up some wild yeast floating in the air. In the morning when she started to make up the day's dry flat pancakes, she discovered that the batter bubbled and rose on baking and the bread was delightfully tender and moist instead of hard and dry. Then dough was left out over night—and leavened bread was born.

City of Halifax Linked

With American History

Halifax claims to be one of the most strongly fortified cities in the world. Its citadel, or Fort George, standing on an eminence above the city, took nearly thirty years to build. Its splendid harbor is spacious enough to hold the whole British fleet. Point Pleasant park is reserved by the crown for purposes of defense, but is leased to the city for a pleasure ground for the sum of a shilling a year for 99 years. Its Martello tower was built under the direction of the duke of Kent in 1795.

The Northwest arm, famous for its scenery, and its facilities for all kinds of aquatic sports, also boasts a memorial tower, built at the time of the advent of representative government in 1758.

St. Paul's church, Halifax, is the oldest Protestant church in Canada, and contains memorial tablets to such historic figures as Sir John Wentworth, a governor of New Hampshire before the Revolution, and afterward governor of Nova Scotia; and Lt. Rev. Charles Inglis, D. D., first Protestant bishop of British North America.

Vaccine's Beginning

It must have been at a date almost coincident with Jesty's and Jenner's experiments with vaccine that Lady Mary Wortley Montagu brought to England the Turkish method of inoculation for smallpox. The inoculation was not with vaccine, but with the poison of smallpox itself, as stated on her epitaph in Lichfield cathedral, in which Henrietta Inge, daughter of Sir John Wortley, wishes to express her gratitude to Lady Mary for the benefit she herself received from this "alleviating art which softens the virulence of this malignant disease." Lady Mary like Jesty, first tried the experiment of inoculation on her own family. The epitaph is dated 1750. For a time, one supposes, the two methods of inoculation went on side by side, but the Turkish method, proving injurious in too many cases, was dropped.—Detroit News.

Happy to Oblige

Two Englishmen in India spent their leave shooting bear. Their first day they had no luck until sundown, when one got a chance of a shot and killed. It transpired, however, the victim was an old native woman, and no bear. As they were discussing the matter the headman of the village appeared. They pointed out how sorry they were such an accident had happened, and offered to make a reparation. The headman suggested the sum of 200 rupees—or just over $60. Three years later they went to the same district again shooting bear. They arrived at the bungalow at night, and once again the same headman appeared. He made a simple request. "If you salubus have another 200 rupees, I have another old woman for you to shoot."

"Magic Carpet" Fable

Brewer's "Handbook of Phrase and Fable" says: "The magic carpet which, to all appearances, is worthless, but which, if any one sat thereon, would transport him instantaneously to the place he wished to go, is one of the stock properties of eastern wonder-tales and romances. It is sometimes termed 'Prince Faustus's Carpet,' because of the popularity of the story of Prince Faustus in 'Arabian Nights' where it supplied one of the chief incidents; but the chief magic carpet is that of King Solomon, which, according to the Mohammedan legend, related in the Koran, was of green silk."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health," with Key to the scriptures, by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 358): "The evidence of the existence of Spirit, Soul, is palpable to spiritual sense, and is not apparent to the material senses, which cognize only that which is the opposite of Spirit."

Seventh Day Adventist

Sabbath School (Saturday) at 10 a. m.
Lesson Study: "Eating for Strength."

Memory verse: "Let your moderation be known unto all men. The Lord is at hand." Phil 4:5.
Note: "God has given us an ample variety of healthful foods, and each person should choose from them the things that experience and sound judgment prove to be best suited to his own necessities. The word of God places the sin of gluttony in the same catalogue with drunkenness."

"In-toxi-cation means being poisoned. Auto-intoxication, being self-poisoned, is easily possible through wrong eating, improper combinations or mixtures of food, too frequent eating or overeating. This is practically a form of drunkenness with much of its physical effect. Dainties are tempting. It is easy to eat them to excess, spoiling the appetite for simple and more wholesome food and injuring the health. A too free use of sweets, candies, cakes, pies, pastries, and mixtures of milk and sugar can do the body serious harm. Strict moderation in their use should be observed."

The morning service will be in charge of the missionary volunteer society of E. M. College.

Fly Plague in Eastern Lands

Flies of death must swarms of eastern flies be to the people of those otherwise heaven-blessed lands, where sanitation is still almost unknown, and proper drainage is yet frequently absent. It speaks eloquently for the disciplined care of old Rome for the countries it conquered, that in the New Testament the annoyance and danger of swarms of flies are so little in evidence, although the malaria so fatal to those who spent their summers in Rome itself, according to many writers, was no doubt spread very considerably if not mainly by mosquitoes and other fly pests.

Stag Hunting as "Sport"

Stag hunting has been a popular sport among the upper classes in England for almost a thousand years. Sir Walter Scott began his famous narrative poem, "The Lady of the Lake," with the opening line (hinting of a stag hunt to follow): "The stag at eve had drunk his fill." The matter of its cruelty may be open to debate, but it is beyond dispute that stag hunting has had a prominent place in English life and literature for centuries.

Joint Government

The New Hebrides Islands have the rare political status of a "condominium," that is to say, they are under the joint administration and sovereignty of two countries—France and Great Britain.
This situation is in effect the political harmonization of century-long rivalries of explorers, missionaries and traders which were not susceptible to a final and definitive solution to the complete advantage of either country.

Raccoons Like Oysters

Eggs and shellfish are especially relished by the raccoon and this animal has developed great skill in opening oyster shells and scooping out every particle of the flesh contained there.

Finest Tea Lands

There are practically 500,000 acres under tea culture in Ceylon. The finest tea lands, or groves, are 3,000 feet above the level of the sea. Plantations such as these are fabulously valuable, most of them being owned or controlled by stock companies.
