Buchanan Athletic Association Holds Initial Games of Cage Series

LIONS ELECT TO SPONSOR SECOND PARTY

Now Here's the Proposition

THE SOCIAL ITEM I am the Social Item. I am the echo of clothesline gossip. I am the grapevine telegram in print. I record the minor and publishable doings of unimportant people. I tell where Mrs. Jones went on Tuesday. I tell what she ate on Friday. I tell what she washed on Monday. I am the quintessence of the inconsequential. I am the epitome of piffle. I am the bunk. BUT— I proclaim the importance of the unimportant. I proclaim the consequence of the inconsequential. I announce that the little doings are the greatest. I assert that a wedding is more important than a law suit. And that a Sunday dinner is of more consequence as an institution than a general election. I mock the press of servile lands which reports only the doings of the nobility for the edification of flunkies. I proclaim that Mrs. O'Grady is probably as good as the Colonel's lady. And maybe a deal better. To me one side of the railway track is no better than the other. And Mayme Smith's birthday party rates as much space and position as Miss Vere de Vere's debut. For I am the evidence of an ideal of social democracy that has taken on form and flesh. I am the realization of old Tom Jefferson's prophecies. I am the symbol of a great achievement. I am the token of things to come. I am a dream come true. I am the Social Item.

D'S CAFE LOSES FEATURE GAME TO 3 OAKS FIVE

Attendance at Future Games to be Limited to Adults; Remainder of Series Played Off Wednesday Nights.

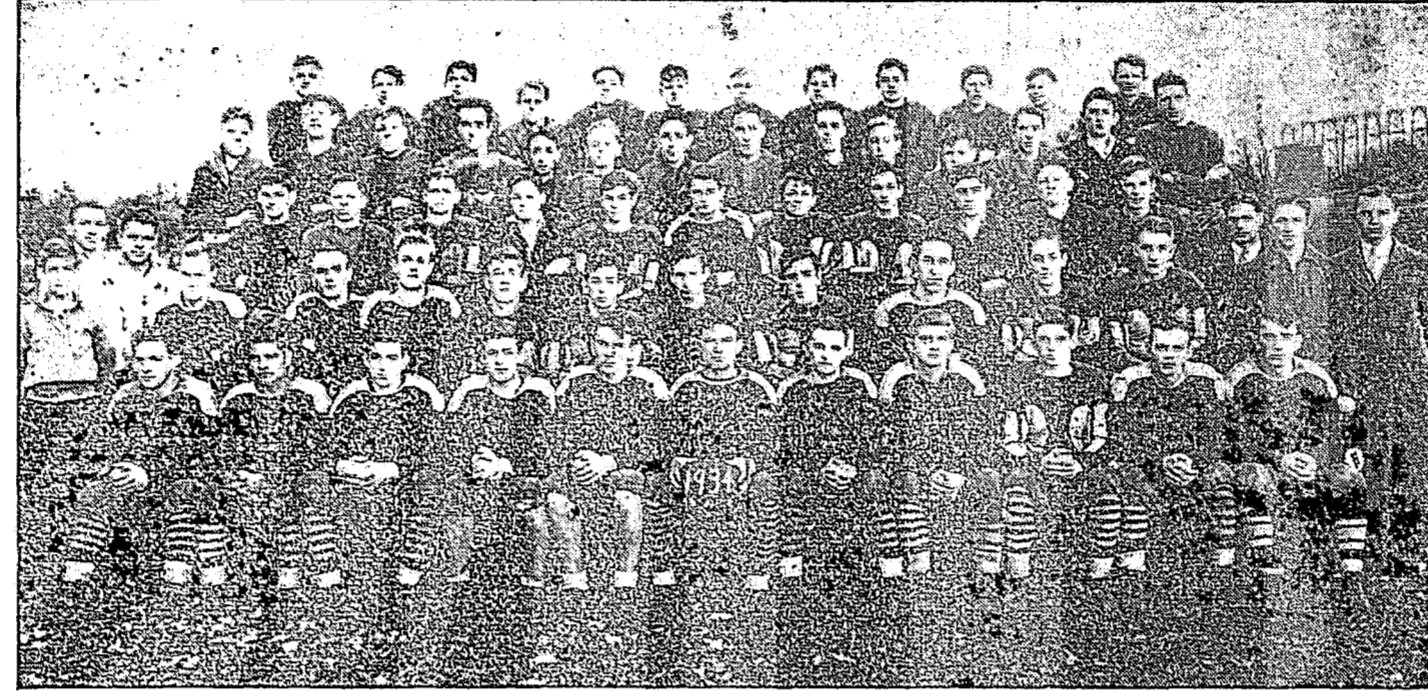

The Buchanan Athletic Association opened its basketball schedule at the High School gymnasium on Monday evening with four games played between eight teams, nearly fifty players over high school age getting a touch of the sport in the three hours of playing. Since there are only seven teams in the league, a feature game was played between the D's Cafe team and the Three Oaks FERA team coached by Dickthorne, which was won by the latter organization 15 to 13. The two teams battled on even terms throughout, the locals displaying a fast clever passing game but falling down in the shooting department because of lack of practice to date. The D's cafe team comprises Glenn Jesse, R. Ellis, Bill Frame, Donley, Tucker, W. Zachman, B. Zachman.

The Wilson Dairy team lost to the American Legion team in an evenly played match, 11 to 10. The Wilson squad comprises Imhoff, Bachman, Hanlin, Harkrider, Dunlap, Dreitzler, Dempsey, Schultz. The Legion team comprised Chain, Bailey, Eisenhart, Fabiano, Rolfe. Brodrick's Rexall store won a one-sided contest from the Co-operatives by a score of 35 to 9, the latter organization displaying an inability to locate the basket. The Brodrick team comprised Chubb, F. Smith, Fette, Dreitzler, Wynn, Conrad, Bolster. The Co-operatives included Babcock, Zachman, Dumbolten, Letcher, Koenigshof. The Roots News Agency team won from Reamers in an interesting game 18 to 15. The Roots team comprises Juhl, Dellinger, J. Ellis, R. Barbour, N. Barbour, Lawson, Penwell, Stelter. The Reamer team is made up of Al Leiter, Sulhand, Sommers, Topash, Marrs, Heierman, Morris. The schedule of games for the next two weeks will be played on Wednesday nights of Dec. 5 and 12. Contests will be as follows: Dec. 5 7:15 p. m. Reamers vs. D's Cafe. 8:00 p. m. Wilsons vs. Brodricks. 8:45 p. m. Legion vs. Co-operatives. The Roots News Agency team will draw a bye for this evening. The schedule of games is under

LOCAL WRITER DISCUSSES REMEDY FOR ROAD HOG HAZARDS IN IMAGINARY DIALOGUE WITH REPORTER

Driving Dumbbells, Auto Psychology, Problem of the Split Second Explained in Article. (The following interesting and informing article is the first of a series on ways and means on mitigating the automobile hazard, written by L. B. Spafford, writer, and former Lyceum artist.) An interview with L. B. Spafford, Record Reporter: Mr. Spafford, I overheard you talking about automobile accidents and what might be done to lessen them. It seemed to me you had some good ideas. Would you mind telling me about them? Mr. Spafford: I have studied the matter to some extent but I have no reason to believe that I am an expert on this subject. It does seem, however, that some more effective methods for lessening automobile accidents might be employed. Certainly the methods now used are not very effective. You are acquainted, of course, with the efforts made by automobile insurance companies, automobile associations, automobile manufacturers, Chambers of Commerce and other groups. Newspapers also have inaugurated campaigns for this purpose and have done excellent work. But all these enterprises together have not lessened automobile accidents for they are increasing from year to year.

CO-OPERATIVE WIN SUIT VERSUS STATE TAX BOARD

Ingham County Circuit Court Reverses Ruling of State Tax Body on Farm Sales Tax. Michigan farm co-operatives, contesting the ruling of the state tax board in exacting a three per cent sales tax on farm purchases of materials, used in farm production, won a favorable verdict at the conclusion of their case in the Ingham county circuit court last week. A. J. George, manager of Co-operatives Co-operating of Buchanan was a witness in the suit. The following article on the outcome of the suit is taken from the Lansing State Journal of the issue of Nov. 23, 1934: Sales of merchandise to Michigan farmers for use in the production of crops intended for sale are not subject to the state sales tax, according to a ruling handed down Thursday afternoon by Judge Leland W. Carr of Ingham county circuit court. It was estimated that Michigan farmers would save between $500,000 and $1,000,000 annually under the court's decision on the petition of Farm Bureau Services, Inc., for a determination of rights under the sales tax law. Judge Carr held, however, that such sales of merchandise intended to be used for production of grains, fruits, or vegetables for consumption by the grower, rather than for sale, are subject to the tax together with certain transactions between farmers and millers and among members of co-operative creameries. The court held that a concurrent resolution passed by the 1933 legislature expressing legislative intent to exclude sales for production from the sales tax was decisive of the issue when considered together with the language of the statute which had been characterized by the plaintiff as ambiguous. The farm bureau services, Inc., which filed the action against the state board of tax administration, sells merchandise for carrying on of agricultural, dairying, horticultural and similar pursuits. No question as to the validity of the sales tax act was raised, but the issue was whether the sales tax applies to sales of seed, fertilizers, farm machinery and similar property intended to be used and actually used in productive operations for purposes of sale. The plaintiff contends that the language of the statute is ambiguous and that it was the legisla-

American Legion Issues Statement National Policy

Claude McGowan, commander of Ralph Rumbaugh post of the American Legion post of the American Legion, has requested that the following statement of Legion policy receive local publicity in order to correct current misunderstanding: "In order that the American people may—in the crossfire of publicity sponsored by certain groups and organizations—understand the position of The American Legion as to World War veterans, it is stated as follows: "The Legion stands as advocate of compensation for war disabilities and deaths, with hospitalization when required. It is proponent for hospitalization in Federal hospitals for disabilities not service incurred only when it is actually necessary and in cases where the veteran is unable to pay for care privately. This is a privilege granted to all citizens in similar circumstances in private or public hospitals. "The responsibility for the medical care of the civilian group is in the community; the responsibility for the care of the veteran who fought for the whole people is vested in the Federal government. "The American Legion seeks only to restore to productivity as far as possible maimed and sickened bodies among the 5 per cent of us tolled off to do the fighting for the rest of us. This principle, with minor variations as to plan and procedure, has been America's policy. (Continued on page 5.)

Carping Critics Seldom Back Judgments With Their Money, Says Film Executive

C. J. Bell, Karamount Sales Manager for Michigan, Talks Before The Lions Club. If you think there is no box office compulsion tending to defeat the drive for cleaner movies you should read the reports of theatre receipts as given in current issues of magazines dealing with the business side of films, according to C. J. Bell, sales manager for Karamount Pictures in Michigan, who addressed the Lions club on the problems of the industry Wednesday evening. Too often those who are criticizing the less desirable pictures are not giving financial support to their preferences at the ticket window. Whereas that large section of the public who prefer dirt in films are going to see them and the result appears to be that the industry is being actually financed by those who like 'em risque. And in pictures as elsewhere, he who pays the fiddler calls the tune. In the course of his very pertinent address Mr. Bell cited the following facts concerning box office receipts. During the past year in one of the theatres of Indianapolis, the low gross taken in by any picture was $2,500 by "The Sign of the Cross," while "She Had to Say Yes" was high with $12,000. In Kansas City such smutless pictures as "The Case of the Howling Dog," "Happiness Ahead" and "Judge Priest" grossed $3,800, $11,000 and $4,600, while "I'm No Angel" grossed $20,000. In Los Angeles "Peck's Bad Boy" grossed $7,250, "Little Women," $15,500 and the salacious "Riptide" grossed $28,500. In Philadelphia at the same theatre "Happiness Ahead" grossed $7,500, while "I'm No Angel" grossed $32,500. In Buffalo, N. Y. two risque pictures, "Dancing Lady" and "I'm No Angel," boxed $31,000 and $27,000 respectively to top the list of profitable pictures since Jan. 1, 1933, while such an outstanding film as "The House of Rothschild" boxed only $18,000, and such "family" pictures as "What Every Woman Knows" and "The Case of the Howling Dog," boxed only $13,400 and $6,000. In Denver, Colo., the two "family" pictures, "Wagon Wheels" and "Peck's Bad Boy," took in $3,500 and $6,000 respectively, while the two "hot numbers" as "Belle of the Nineties" and "Hi, Nellie!" grossed $16,500 and $19,500. There are exceptions of course, to this rule of the profits of the salacious. In New York City "Little Women" grossed high with $109,000, but among the high plays from the box office point of view were "I'm No Angel," "Riptide," and "Roman Scandals."

ALL DOGS OF CITY ORDERED IN QUARANTINE

State Pasteur Institute Head Sends Orders to Health Officer as Results of Rabies Findings. A quarantine of all dogs in Buchanan has been ordered by City Health Officer R. H. Snowden, acting under instructions from Dr. W. H. Emerson, superintendent of the Pasteur Institute of Ann Arbor, as a result of the finding of rabies in the head of a dog which bit several residents of the city last week. The instructions state that all dogs of the city must be quarantined for three months and must be allowed to appear in the open during that time only on the leash. This means that no dog may be permitted to run loose even on the premises of its owner's home on pain of being shot. The dog which occasioned the quarantine was a stray black and brown mongrel, which ran amuck in the business district, biting several. All who were bitten are under treatment and it is urgent that any further cases of dog bite be reported to the city physician at once.

Clark Equipment Buys Patent Right New Rivet Device

The Clark Equipment Company announced this week the acquisition of the patent rights to the Huck rivet, development work on which has been carried on to date in Detroit. It is likely that the development work will be completed in Detroit, but it is expected that when such development is completed the rivet will be manufactured at the Buchanan plant. The rivet represents a new feature in the construction world in that all operations of setting the rivet may be conducted from one side of a wall, eliminating the inconvenience of working from both sides. B. H. S. Cage 5 Plays Berrien Springs Tonight The Buchanan high school cage team will play its initial game of the current season with the Berrien Springs high school team on the latter's floor this (Wednesday) evening. The first home game will be played here against the Niles quintet Friday evening, Dec. 9.

Over Breakfast

Coffee

By A. C. Clapp

I wrote, a short time ago to the Division of Investigation, U. S. Department of Justice, Chicago office with Melvin H. Purvis, special agent in charge, asking information about that field office's work and particularly about the achievements and individuality of Mr. Purvis, the doughty devastator of the sometime Dillinger gang.

It would make good write-up material, and more dramatic and headline than any mere gangster escapades.

Imagine investigating the Federal investigators. The answer came back courteously and curtly that the information was not to be had.

However, the Investigative Division did pretty well by this writer. In a few days a massive envelope containing eight pamphlets and mimeographed reports with a signed letter from J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Division of Investigation, Dept. of Justice, Washington, D. C., and he operates a busy office keeping open 24 hours a day. Mr. Hoover's only overseer is Homer S. Cummings, U. S. Attorney General, who heads the Department of Justice.

Much of the literature has to do with criminal statistics as to age, sex, home residence, etc., of offenders and interests chiefly sheriffs and police chiefs. Age 19 seems to be high water mark in crime.

Hoover's men, as the agents of the division, are sometimes called, 450 of them in all, are allocated, a chart here shows, to 30 field offices distributed thru the U. S. The Chicago office has jurisdiction in northern Illinois, northern Indiana, west half of Michigan, all of the upper peninsula, and the east half of Wisconsin.

Melvin H. Purvis' first got into the Dillinger case in Indiana when Dillinger escaped from Crown Point and fled in a stolen car to Petone, Ill., across a state line, which latter fact violated the Dyer or federal motor theft act.

The Chicago men under Purvis trailed Dillinger hotly and up at Little Bohemia, Wis., wounded the public hostile, who then escaped, but not before W. Carter Baum, one of the agents, was shot and killed. Killing a division agent in line of duty constitutes another federal offense. Thereupon Hoover's men "vowed" to "get" Dillinger for this murder and did so.

BUTCHER THE SHRIKE

"WHO is Butcher the Shrike?" asked Peter Rabbit. "He's new to the Old Orchard," replied Skimmer, "and you probably haven't noticed him. I've often seen him in the South. There he is now, on the tip-top of that tree over yonder."

Peter and Johnny Chuck looked eagerly. They saw a bird who at first glance appeared not unlike a hopper and resumed his watch for something else to catch.

"He certainly has wonderful eyes," said Skimmer admiringly. "He must have seen that grasshopper way over there in the grasses before he started after it, for he flew straight down. He doesn't waste time and energy hunting aimlessly. He sits on a high perch and watches until he sees something he wants. Many times I've seen him sitting on top of a telegraph pole. I understand that Bully the English Sparrow has become terribly nervous since the arrival of Butcher. He is particularly fond of English sparrows. I presume it was one of Bully's children you saw in the thorn tree, Peter. For my part, I hope he'll frighten Bully into leaving the Old Orchard. It would be a good thing for the rest of us."

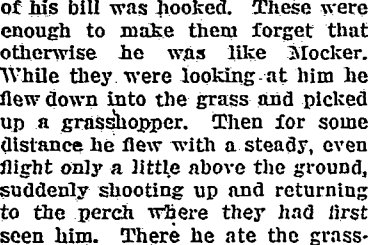

"But I don't understand why he fastens his victims on those long thorns."

"For two reasons," replied Skimmer. "When he catches more grasshoppers and insects than he can eat, he sticks them on those thorns so that later he may be sure of a good meal if it happens there are no more to be caught when he is hungry. Mice, sparrows, and things too big for him to swallow, he sticks on the thorns so that he can pull them to pieces more easily. You see, his feet and claws are not big enough to hold them while he tears them to pieces with his hooked bill."

"Does he kill many birds?" asked Peter.

"Not many," replied Skimmer, "and most of them are English sparrows. He is a good deal like Killy the Sparrow Hawk in this respect. Hello! Now what's happened?"

Butcher the Shrike.

Three months later in July, outside a little movie house in Chicago they "got" him.

Purvis and his men also "got" "Pretty Boy" Floyd, one of the "last" of the gang, this fall in East Ohio.

Beside the Dyer Act, the Federal Racketeering Statute and the Interstate Kidnapping Act, both passed in the past Spring, have pushed more work along to the Division and they have risen to the occasion. In the current year they have crushed several kidnaping and racketeering syndicates, and now are called into the Lindbergh case again for investigation.

Hoover's men are the Johnnies who put the public enemies on the spot. A federal job, or if requisite, even death. It's the biggest little peace army in the world. Personnel and organization does the trick and though they number few, the force is growing apace to cope with their constantly augmented duties.

Of course Hoover's men do not prosecute offenders, but investigate and capture criminals whom the district attorney of the Department of Justice decides to prosecute for federal offenses. These far exceed 60 in number, but do not include violations of the counterfeiting, narcotic, custom and smuggling, postal and immigration laws.

The latter belong in the investigative jurisdiction of the treasury and post office departments, which their own Secret Service investigate. Prosecution in these two departments also are handled by Department of Justice district attorneys. Even congress and the president go to this department for legal advice and prosecutory offices.

At grand headquarters in Washington the division has organized plus 4,500,000 finger prints, largest collection in the world, and a crime research laboratory which with microscopes studies handwriting, guns, bullets, typewriting and any material in evidence.

The Division receives 2,200 finger print cards from police chiefs all over the country daily and over 46 per cent of these are then and there identified as having previous criminal records.

They are very busy at Washington and the other 29 field offices and if you know of crime by perjurers patent law violators, national bank embezzlers, kidnapers, white slavers, spies, bribers, etc., just call up Division of Investigation Department of Justice, Melvin H. Purvis, special agent in charge, and add work to their crowded hours, but they will jump right in and see the case through, right, thank you.

Doom of Mississippi Packets

Stenboating on the Mississippi received its first setback in the general disruption of ordinary business caused by the Civil war. And it was just beginning to recover when more sinister opposition appeared in railroad competition, and as the steamboats supplanted the old hand-propelled broadbents and keel-boats of an earlier time, so the speedier railroads gradually took away all through river traffic; and the great Mississippi packets were a thing of the past.

To Reduce Relief Wages

The present 40-cent-per-hour rate of payment for relief labor in Berrien county will shortly be abandoned and a reduction of from 10 to 15 cents per hour will be put into effect, according to a statement by Mrs. Ann Parsal, quoted in county dailies.

Mrs. Parsal was quoted as follows:

"It has long been by contention that wages for emergency relief work should not exceed industrial wages. Such a situation makes for unrest and discontent, and few people realize the extent to which radicalism has advanced in some sections. We cannot get men on public relief to take jobs in private industry when they get more pay by working on relief projects. This is not the purpose of relief. Our aim is to return workers to private industry as rapidly as possible. Lower wage rates will also make it possible to give more jobs to more jobless men part time work and thus supplement direct relief dotes."

Both national and state relief work officials expect the new policy to result in considerably more part time employment as the amount of money in relief channels will not be reduced but spread out to assist a greater number.

Still another significant point of the Hopkins order is the return of individual communities of the controlling voice in the administration of work relief. The blanket wage rule, applying to all communities alike, has proved unsatisfactory.

At the present time there are 400 men on work relief projects in Berrien county, Mrs. Parsal said.

Triple Observance At Rough Rehm Home Nov. 29th

Thanksgiving day will be marked by a triple observance this year at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Rehm and Mrs. W. R. Rough, since this year November is an exact coincidence of the 88th birthday of Mrs. Rough, the 35th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Rehm and of the holiday itself.

Mr. and Mrs. Rehm were married on Mrs. Rough's birthday, but only occasionally do the two anniversaries fall on Thanksgiving day as this year. The threefold occasion will be celebrated with a quiet dinner party limited to the immediate family.

Mrs. Rough has spent the past 42 years since her second marriage in the old mansion at the corner of Main and Third street where she now lives. She came to Buchanan 66 years ago at the age of 22 from Millheim, Pa., with an excursion of homeseekers from the Pennsylvania German settlements. The company dispersed at Elkhart and Mrs. Rough, then Miss Kate J. Young, came on to Niles by stage and thence to Berrien Springs, where she joined friends. She was married to Levi Barnhart, Oct. 7, 1869 and they moved to a farm a mile and a half south of New Troy. Mr. Barnhart died in 1883 and she was married again December 8, 1892 to W. R. Rough of Buchanan.

Mrs. J. C. Rehm, with whom she lives, is her only child.

Mrs. Rough maintains good health, and is very active for her age, in spite of a hard attack of pneumonia last spring. She cares for chickens on the family lot and loves to work about the grounds out of doors.

Four possibilities for the office of state commissioner of agriculture were endorsed as suitable by seventeen leading farm organizations of Michigan and their names were presented at the headquarters of the state farm bureau Friday. They are:

Elmer A. Beamer of Blissfield, president of the Michigan Livestock farmer.

Earl C. McCarthy of Port Huron, county agricultural agent for St. Clair county and former operator of a Huron county farm.

William G. Hardy of Stanton, manager of a co-operative potato marketing association.

James Thompson of Jackson county, former member of the state legislature and now a farm operator.

Two names that have received prominent mention for the post were left off this list. They were former Congressman John C. Ketcham of Hastings, co-author of the Capper-Ketcham agricultural act, and Fred L. Woodworth, former collector of internal revenue at Detroit.

Four other names were submitted at the meeting but did not obtain sufficient votes for an endorsement of the entire group. They were former Commissioner Herbert E. Powell of Ionia; G. Ellwood Bonine of Cassopolis, son of the late former State Senator James Gordon Bonine; Harry A. Riley, Bellaire farmer, and A. B. Cook of Owosso, former master of the Michigan State Grange.

Nathan P. Hull, of the Michigan State Grange and Michigan Milk Producers' association, presided at the meeting. He quoted Fitzgerald as saying he would "welcome suggestions" from farm organizations on the choice of the new commissioner.

Fitzgerald promised in his campaign speeches that he would pick a "dirt farmer" for the post of commissioner. He probably will seek a man who not only operates a farm but is a proven executive.

First Weather Records

The first weather records in America, so far as known, were kept by Rev. Johann Campanius, who recorded the weather each day in the colony of New Swedish near the present site of Wilmington, Del., for the years 1644 and 1645.

Timber wolves which are reported to be ravaging the live stock of Portage Prairie are more likely to be coyotes, in the opinion of Glenn Vite, who killed one of the animals in the past summer. The miscreants have not been seen since last summer when an old female and several young were observed at various times. The old one was larger than a fox but of much the same build and color, with the brownish-black color of the coyote.

Coyotes have been reported to be invading Michigan in recent years probably from the west via Canada. This is the first time on record that a coyote has been seen in the vicinity of Buchanan.

FISH AND FISH SAUCES

FISH is always in season, as canned, pickled and smoked fish are available in almost any inland city when the fresh ones are not to be found in the market. There are occasions other than in hot weather when jellied fish is desirable; the following is a favorite:

Jellied Fish.

Remove the bones and skin of a two-pound fish. Chop fine and add a half cupful of water, a teaspoonful of grated onion, two dozen blanched and finely chopped almonds and a dash of cayenne. When all these ingredients are well blended pack into a mold and steam for an hour. Serve on lettuce with mayonnaise dressing.

Fish a la Reine.

Put one tablespoonful of butter into a saucepan and when melted add one tablespoonful of flour, mix well and add one cupful of rich milk, stir and cook until smooth. Remove from the heat and add the yolk of one egg and three mushrooms finely chopped, a tablespoonful of salt and a dash of pepper. Add to this one and one-half cupful of flaked fish—any cold boiled or canned fish will serve. Heat over hot water and serve in potato baskets.

Roe Sauce.

To make roe sauce, wash the roe, drop into boiling water and simmer for twenty minutes; drain and with a silver fork remove all the membranes; add one-half cupful of butter and place over a dish of hot water; when very hot add a half cupful of cream, a half teaspoonful of salt, a pinch of mace and serve in a sauce boat.

Sauce Tartar.

Place four egg yolks, four tablespoonfuls of water, and four tablespoonfuls of olive oil together. Stand in a dish of hot water and stir until the mixture thickens; take from the heat, add a tablespoonful of tarragon vinegar, two chopped olives, one chopped sour pickle and a tablespoonful of capers chopped fine; add one tablespoonful of finely minced parsley, a half teaspoonful of salt and a dash of cayenne. Serve at once.

Final Banquet of Scout University

H. C. Stark, head of the University of Scouting, which has been in session for several weeks at Niles, closing Tuesday evening, will preside over a final banquet to be held at Berrien Springs on the evening of Dec. 13.

Over one hundred men have attended these schools during the past six weeks and have taken instruction in Elementary and Advanced troop leadership, Red Cross First Aid, Junior Leadership, Cubbing, Sea Scouting, Troop Camping and General Council Organization. Attendance this year has been better than 96% average.

During the last meetings examinations will be given and those who satisfactorily complete the work will be given certificates by the Training Committee of the Council.

He announced this morning that Mr. Raymond A. Hoyer, Professor of Boys' Guidance at Notre Dame will be the speaker of the evening. Mr. Hoyer, because of his thorough understanding of boys, is in great demand as a speaker and the Council is very fortunate in booking him for this occasion. Mr. Hoyer conducts that Scouting Course in the summer at Notre Dame also. This address, while marking the close of the fall training school, will be the first of a series of five lectures on "Boy Nature" which the Council will offer this winter. The five lectures will comprise a specialization course and scouts will be given credit in their training work. The banquet and the balance of the lectures are open to all interested in scouting. The scoutmasters associations of the area will hold joint meetings for each of the following lectures also, and have decided to steak fries, chili suppers, etc., with each meeting. After the lectures there will be round table discussions on troop problems.

"CONTACT"

By Dick Schram

The last five years have seen the greatest developments in the aviation industry since its birth thirty-one years ago. Incidentally, contrary to popular belief, the Wright brothers DID NOT build or design the first aircraft. Various types of flying machines are mentioned in age-old manuscripts of the Greeks, and in the history of China, opposing armies used huge kites to lift observers high in the air, from where information regarding the enemy forces was obtained, and, at various times, rocks and flaming oils were dropped on the men below.

However, the first positive data was recorded late in the nineteenth century, when Otto Lilienthal, a German, made many successful glider flights in the hills along the Rhine. Many of Lilienthal's theories and observations form the basis of aerodynamic engineering as employed today.

Be that as it may, in the last five years, the average cruising speed of American transport planes has jumped from 95 miles per hour to 195 miles per hour! And there are many planes whose cruising speeds greatly exceed the speed given, for example, the new luxury liner of the TWA lines, the Douglas, carrying 13 passengers and a crew of 3, cruises at 215 miles per hour. Even more astounding is the fact that this huge transport plane, if matched with the fastest planes at the National Air Races five years ago, would have equalled the mark set by Lowell Bayles in a tiny, high-powered, specially built racer at the 1929 races.

Another fact, not usually realized by the flying public, for that matter, is the outstanding superiority of the American airways system, as well as the equipment, over the European countries. In Europe, the average cruising speed is from 80 to 140 miles per hour, and the planes equipped with radio only a small percentage of the airline system. The average European transport plane is five to eight years old, especially in France and England, where most of the equipment used is re-designed from post-war bombers and transports. Added to this is the fact that, of the planes equipped with radio, and modern navigating instruments, only one out of every five or six have a two-way radio, with which the pilot can be in direct contact with the ground station. Most of the radios use code, which is practically useless in a barrage of static, and most of the planes have only a receiving set.

With the establishment of a United Airlines base in South Bend at the Bendix Airport, it is now possible for anyone to eat breakfast down town in South Bend, or Buchanan, board a Boeing transport at the Bendix field, and have dinner in the evening in Los Angeles or San Francisco.

Fares on the airlines are surprisingly low, for instance, the fare from South Bend to Kalamazoo, via American Airlines, is $2.55, a little higher than rail fare. The fare from South Bend to Detroit, on the same route, is $8.25, as compared to about $7.25 by rail.

The accommodations and comforts found on the modern airliner fully equal, if not surpass, those on the most modern pullman car. The seats are of the overstuffed type, deep, with adjustable reclining backs. Individual ash trays and reading lamps, for night travelers are by each seat and curtains at the windows shut out the sunlight if the passenger wishes to sleep. And, reclining in a soft, deep chair, with no dust, smoke or annoying clatter, it's very easy to doze and sleep for miles and miles of smooth travel. By employing sound deadening material in the walls of the cabin, even the engine roar has been reduced to a point where conversation may be carried on in a normal tone of voice, the engine noise being no greater than that in any modern automobile traveling at one third the speed of the airliner.

And, several times during the hour, the pilot or co-pilot reports the position, altitude, weather conditions, and general information by two-way radio to the ground stations at the various airports along the route. By the same method he learns the weather conditions ahead, and receives orders along the way.

Truly, in comfort, safety, speed, and convenience, the modern airliner far surpasses any other method of transportation.

Considering the progress made in the last five years, it's not too fantastic to think of the airliners to be developed in the next five years. Traveling at speeds of 500 miles per hour, in the stratosphere, carrying 100 to 150 passengers—well, perhaps not in the next five

In a Thankful Spirit

The true observance of Thanksgiving Day does not manifest itself in the mere celebration of abundance.

That was not the spirit of the little band that first observed Thanksgiving Day. They had few worldly possessions. But their hearts were rich empires of courage, faith and hope. They did not give thanks for the small blessings of a single day; they were thankful for the possession of health, security, and the strength which they knew would enable them to go forward and conquer the hardships of a New World.

America today gives thanks in this old-time grateful, conquering, forward-looking spirit.

Donnabelle, Like Love, Finds a Way

Keys aren't necessary to enter the balcony of the gym, so it was proved by Donnabelle DeWitt Tuesday noon.

Tuesday during the noon hour the senior and junior girls had volleyball practice. While the game was in full swing, someone had to see if she could make a basket by serving the ball. But to everyone's surprise the ball rested in the balcony.

Before Miss Boyer could locate any keys, DeWitt had given one jump and was climbing up the window wire. She finally reached the balcony, and then, having the ball once more on playing ground, the game continued.

Junior High Cagers Begin Cage Practice

When Coach "Doc" Miller summoned the junior high for basketball practice, forty seventh and eighth grade players turned out. The invitation was not extended to the freshmen, but about six were selected.

The interclass squads that will represent the junior high will be chosen from the squad.

"No schedule has been made up to date."

Inter Class Basketball Games Start

Mr. Wynn has announced that the boys interclass basketball will get under way after the holidays. All classes will have two teams with the possible exception of the seniors, who only have eleven men signed up to date.

There will be one round of play and then there will be an elimination tournament.

SIGNALS OVER

Although the football season is over at Buchanan high school, there are still a few enthusiasts roaming the halls.

"Chuck" Wesner, one of the student managers, on coming down the school stairs last week, misjudged the last step and ended up in a body block.

"You look good, Chuck," shouted Danny Topash. "You might get Dretzler's job of blocking next year."

Editorial

With all the harsh Puritanical ideas the Puritans handed down to us, they have given us one beautiful thought which finds its expression in our national holiday, Thanksgiving.

There are many views on the day Thanksgiving. To some people it just means a good excuse of eating more than usual. To others it is just another holiday when there is no work. To a few others it really means what its name implies—a thanksgiving to God.

"Yes," some of you will say "but what have I to be thankful for? I'm poorer than ever." We all have life haven't we? Most of us have health and love also. Certainly deep thanks should be given for these. And they are only generalizations. In each life there are definite things to be thankful for, some big, some little, if one will only look. When these are sought for and found, Thanksgiving Day possesses a deeper, truer meaning.

OUR HERO!

Haw! Haw! Look at Jackson! These were the words uttered by one of the students in sixth hour study hall.

Here is the reason. The window was wide open, and Jackson decided in order not to get wet, he would close it. This he did, but the window was so far open that the poor hob had to lean way out to get hold of the latch. All that could be seen were his feet. Finally after stretching to the fullest extent, Harold got hold of the latch and slammed it shut.

You should be congratulated, Harold, on this heroic deed.

ALONG THE CORRIDORS

When did Don Flener obtain that fine gold chain he wears on his right wrist? Have you noticed it? The practice for the junior play seems to be progressing fairly well. This play is going to be a "dilly" one. Be sure and get your tickets early.

It seems John Hattenbach has a new pad of paper almost every day. Why? You should see the notes he writes to—well you know whom.

Don't let Una Kelley or Lewis Paul say that the reason they are who makes a senior and freshman so-much-together is that they have their parts in the play to study. Bah! Well, what do you think?

My! My! My! Harold Jackson thinks the junior play is grand but not for reasons you think. It just means he can see Evelyn Dolph, date nights, and still save himself the exertion of walking all the way from his house way up on Front street to her's way up on Main.

Did you know Don Blaney tried to wear or put on Miss Hanlin's fur jacket? For shame, Don!

Chemistry
Students of the eleventh grade chemistry class are working on acids, bases, and neutralization. They are also determining why some acids are strong and some are not. This is due to a thing known as ionization.

General Science
The eighth grade general science classes have finished the unit on heat. They have discussed types of heating systems, fuel and also methods for insulating homes.

For some time they have been working on plays for the December assembly program. These plays are written by the eighth grade. In these plays the students show some scientific fact they have learned this year.

Home Economics
The seventh grade project this week is designing aprons to be worn in foods classes.

Limit on luncheons and supper and preparation of cream soups have been accomplished by the 8th grade classes.

Value of meat and its place in the diet has been the subject of the ninth grade classes, also general methods of cooking beef, pork and lamb.

The 10th grade home economics classes are beginning the unit on "Home Management Discussion." The problems that are to be discussed are:

- "When shall we eat?"
- "Courtesy at the table."
- "Table service."
- "Setting table for banquets, luncheons, and dinners."

Commercial Dept.
Derivative drills, short-word drills, sentences and arranging work on a page was the work of the eleventh grade typing classes.

The short practice set was completed by the bookkeeping class. They reviewed the work at the end of the fiscal period—the statements and closing a ledger.

Instruction on notebook work in review of chapters is being received by the 7th grade history class.

The 8th grade have been reviewing their notebooks. They are also reviewing the Making of the Constitution.

Reading the Christmas Carol is the work of the 8th grade English class.

Original verse is the project for the seventh graders this week.

English 9
The freshmen English classes have taken their mastery test over predicate nominatives, direct objects, and the recognition of subjects.

English 10
The mastery test which covers adjectives, adverbs, and adverbial modifiers has been taken by the sophomores.

Journalism 11-12
The chapter on "Journalistic Exposition" has been the work of the journalism class for the past week. This chapter covers editorials of various types.

Buildings Settle Unevenly
A world-famous example of a building settling unevenly because of an unsatisfactory soil foundation is the Leaning Tower of Pisa in Italy. This building started to settle unevenly while it was being built and has continued to settle ever since. That it started to settle while in course of construction some hundreds of years ago is indicated by the fact that efforts were made to correct the slant of the upper floors by building them higher on the sinking side. Even these upper floors on which correction was made are very much off level.

Local Write Discusses Remedy For Road Hazards

fous bodily injury through an automobile accident. In 1935 it will be one in each 130, so it is said. In other words, Mr. Reporter, as you travel in your car in 1935, you will have one chance in 3,400 of being killed and one chance in 130 of having a broken arm or leg, fractured skull, fractured spine, concussion of the brain, a nervous shock, contusions, lacerations, internal injuries or one of the thousand and one types of injuries that occur in automobile accidents. One mathematical shark, after compiling a record of the John Dillinger killings has figured that it would require 10,487 Dillingers running wild over the country fully equipped with machine guns to match the deaths that occur daily from automobiles.

Reporter: Yes, Mr. Spafford, we know the conditions fairly well. Newspapers, I think, have done a great deal. But what have you to suggest that has not already been tried?

Mr. Spafford: The various enterprises for lessening automobile accidents have, of course, been entered into in good faith. But it appears that all of them, together, have had little effect for automobile deaths have risen from approximately 19,000 in 1924 to approximately 29,000 in 1933.

These efforts, for the most part, have been directed toward urging drivers to learn the mechanism of the car. But later statistical analysis show that accidents due to lack of knowledge of the automobile are relatively few. Drivers have been urged to see that their brakes, lights, tires and other equipment are in good working order. But it now appears that the great majority of accidents occur with cars that are apparently in good condition. Drivers are warned to drive carefully in fog. But 54 per cent of the accidents in 1933 occurred in clear weather. Drivers are warned to be very careful on wet or icy roads. But 74 per cent of the accidents in 1933 were on dry roads. Drivers are told to drive carefully in turning corners or in coming out of an alley. But 79 per cent of the accidents in 1933 were on "straight ahead" roads. Drivers are urged to learn how to park cars and to back out of parking places. But very few accidents occur from lack of this kind of skill. Drivers are impounded to not pass on a curve or on a hill. Yet only about one per cent of the accidents in 1933 were so caused.

To sum up and to add a few details, the bulk of the accidents throughout the United States occur with passenger cars, apparently in good condition, on clear days on dry roads, driven by persons who may or may not know how to park, who may or may not understand the mechanism of the automobile, but who drive at relatively high speeds.

Reporter: Do you think these statistics are true?

Mr. Spafford: I do not know. They appear to have been compiled with a great deal of care. They are accepted by the Automobile Chambers of Commerce. I do not think anyone doubts their correctness.

Now to go back to the point I was trying to make, if every automobile driver in United States should suddenly decide to obey all these injunctions—to obey all traffic rules, all laws of the municipality and of the state, the great American automobile slaughter would still be with us. In 70 to 80 per cent of the accidents in 1933 there was no violation of traffic laws or drivers' codes except the one to "drive carefully," or "drive sanely." One might gather from this that the present safe driving efforts are not on the right track.

Reporter: Mr. Spafford, I am willing, for the present, to agree with all you have said, but you have not yet offered a suggestion.

Mr. Spafford: I am coming to that; it appears more or less obvious that all the urgings to drive carefully, all the safe driving advertising put out by automobile insurance companies, statistical pamphlets, safe driving lectures, municipal laws and state laws and all other safety efforts have not touched the vital spot in this problem. By vital spot I mean 70 to 80 per cent of the killings.

Reporter: Do you mean to recommend that this safety advertising, statistical pamphlets, laws, etc., be abandoned?

Mr. Spafford: Of course not. They doubtless have done a great service and have saved many lives but I believe that something else is needed. I think we should study the problem from another point of view. It would be a fine thing, of course, if every driver would learn the mechanism of his car, would learn all about brakes, tires, lights and all the other automobile equipment. It would be a fine thing if he would learn all about the hazards of fog, slippery streets, etc., but that is not what I am thinking about now. I think we need a new kind of study. I think we need to study psychology in relation to the automobile. I think this study should be taken up in high schools and possibly in other schools.

Aids Police in Bandit Chasing

I do not think there is much use in trying to educate the present generation of middle aged people along this line. We have demonstrated our dumbness by standing helpless while 30,000 people are killed in a year. I think our case is almost hopeless. But I think the coming generation might be trained not to become driving dumbbells.

Reporter: You speak of automobile instruction in schools, not merely mechanical instruction, but also psychological instruction. What do you mean by psychological instruction? Can you give me an example?

Mr. Spafford: I could cite hundreds of examples, each one with a little different psychological angle. Take this one for instance. Johnny Juniper, age 20, starts out with his automobile. The sun is shining and the roads dry and smooth. The road is straight and there is little traffic. He speeds up to 60 miles per hour. Ahead is a cross road. Johnny says to himself, "My brakes are in good order so if any one pops out of that road I can stop quickly. I can stop in 100 feet." Suddenly another driving moron jumps out at him from a side road. O. K. so far. He has violated no laws or codes or injunctions. But at this point an unknown factor enters. Here is something Johnny did not know. That something made all the difference between safety and danger, between life and death. Johnny did not know that in the average person there is a delay of one-fifth of a second between the thought and the act. He did not know that one-fifth of a second elapsed between the time he decided to put on the brakes and the time he actually did. He did not know that because he had a headache that one-fifth of a second was lengthened out into one-third of a second. And because he was worrying about a spare tire that was stolen from him the night before this one-third second was lengthened out to three-fifths of a second. He did not know that in that three-fifths of a second he had gone ahead fifty-three feet before he started to put on the brake. The result was two junked cars and two boys in the hospital. When Johnny came out of the ether the next morning he said he could not imagine how it happened. Of course he couldn't. He did not understand automobile psychology. I use "automobile psychology" for want of a better term. Perhaps you can think of one.

Hundreds of examples might be cited, each with a little different psychological angle, each one showing, however, that the split second is the important factor in 70 to 80 per cent of the automobile accidents. On every automobile trip we miss death time after time by split seconds and think nothing about it. It is the lack of understanding of the split second that causes the majority of the accidents. One cannot study the split second without studying the peculiarities of the human mind—in other words, psychology. No safe enterprise, so far as I know, has paid much attention to the split second in automobile driving. I think we might dispense with some Greek and Latin in our schools, if necessary, in order to admit instruction in what I have termed "automobile psychology." Each accident might be made the basis of a lesson.

It may be too much to expect that the present generation of middle aged dumbbell drivers will ever learn anything about automobile psychology. We shall probably go on killing each other as long as we live and stand gaping at each other wondering what to do about it. But the brains of the younger generation has not yet become trophied by contact with civilization. The students in our schools have keener minds. They have a more sensitive sense of justice and I predict that they will not long submit to this wholesale slaughter.

If there be any truth in what I have said, then the thing to do is to gather facts, make tests and make close observations with reference to the split second in automobile driving and human psychology in its relation to the automobile. The thing to go is to put this in printed form so that this information is available to teachers and students in our schools. If there is any logic in this suggestion, I think the newspapers should agree together to encourage such instruction. That is suggestion number one.

Reporter: That is an interesting point of view Mr. Spafford and we shall give it due consideration. Perhaps something can be done about it. But I think you had another suggestion.

Mr. Spafford: Yes, I had. But this relates more particularly to your work as an editor. I have studied to some extent the methods employed by newspapers to help lessen automobile accidents. One paper publishes a box on the front page urging one day that drivers obey traffic signals and urging the next day that drivers sound the horn in emerging from alleys and so on day after day. Another newspaper prints a diagram each day showing how acci-

THE most modern protection against gangster bullets is found in this new Ford V-8 police car, 32 of which have been delivered by the Ford Motor Company to the Detroit Police Department for use in bandit chasing. The windshield of the new police cars are made of multi-plate bullet-proof glass, and in each windshield is constructed a gun port, which will accommodate a .38 calibre police special revolver, a .45 calibre service pistol, or a single barrel sawed-off riot gun. The gun ports obviate the dangers incurred to officers in leaning out of the car while chasing bandits. The ports may be closed and locked when not in use. Officers are shown above demonstrating the operation of the gun ports in one of the new Ford V-8 police cars now in operation in Detroit.

ture's intention to exempt such sales; from the sales levy. The defendant insisted that the language of the law does not permit the interpretation of the plaintiff.

Judge Carr pointed out in his opinion that the basic rule of statutory construction is that the intention of the law-making body be carried out if possible, and that if the language of a law is ambiguous recourse may be taken to its legislative history.

Intent Clearly Established
The plaintiff claimed that into the production of every crop designed for sale there necessarily enters the seed, the fertilizers, fungicides and insecticides and fences for the protection of the crop, and a portion of the value of the farm implements used in the preparation of the ground, the cultivation of the crop and the harvest, and that such sales in the ultimate analysis are for the purpose of resale.

Judge Carr said a consideration of the language of the statute led him to the conclusion that such an interpretation was clearly established as the legislative intent by the concurrent resolution, which said it was the intent of the law makers to "exclude any sale of anything used exclusively in the manufacture, assembling, producing, preparing, or wrapping, crating, and otherwise preparing for delivery any tangible personal property to be sold."

The legislature further stated in its resolution that the word, "producing" should be construed to include agricultural production, the opinion set forth.

May Not Amend Prior Act
Judge Carr said that if the resolution may be considered at all it is clearly decisive of the issue although it is obvious that the legislature may not amend a prior act by a joint or concurrent resolution.

"If in the present instance, however," the court continued, "the language of the act is open to the interpretation among others the plaintiff contends should be given to it, follows that recourse may be had to the resolution as indicating the actual intention of the law-making body."

Judge Carr expressed his belief that the interpretation is permissible and that the construction suggested by the legislature in its resolution must be accepted.

The court concluded as follows: Exemptions to Law Noted
"It follows from the conclusion reached as to the interpretation of the statute that sales made by plaintiff of personal property to farmers, dairymen, fruit growers, and others, to be used directly or indirectly in the production of crops intended for sale are not within the purview of the act, and the proceeds of such sales are in consequence not subject to the tax. It is obvious, however, that such sales of merchandise intended to be used for the production of grains, fruits or vegetables for consumption by the grower, rather than for sale, are subject to the tax.

"The further question is presented, however, with reference to certain feed and flour grinding operations. It appears that in some instances grains are brought in to the mill to be ground into feed, the mill owner taking a part of the feed so ground by way of compensation for the service rendered. There seems to be some dispute on the record as to whether feed returned to the farmer is regarded as sold to him. Clearly such transaction is not a sale within the

Edison Disliked Decorations

Upon Thomas Edison's second trip to Europe the French Telephone company offered him a decoration which required that he wear a long sash. But the Edison flatly refused with the assertion that he couldn't "stand for that." Persuaded by his wife, he did however consent to wear the little red button of the Legion of Honor. But whenever he saw any American approaching he would slip the button into his pocket for fear, as he said, "they might think I am trying to show off."

Designating Labor Day

AT THE THEATRE

"Life of Vergie Winters" at Hollywood Starting Sun.

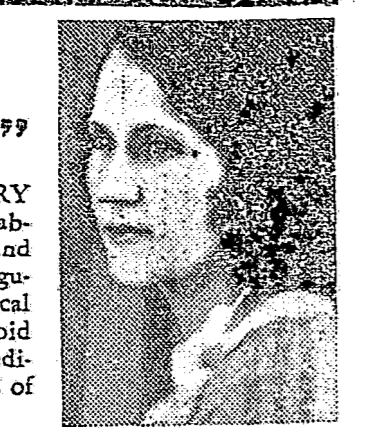

Striking straight to the heart with its sincerity, its human qualities and its poignant drama, "The Life of Vergie Winters" takes its place as one of the noteworthy screen achievements of the year. Not only does this RKO-Radio picture at the Hollywood for three days starting Sunday, provide Ann Harding with a distinctive and powerful role, but it also tells a story that must rank as one of the really beautiful romances of our time.

"The world has become so terrifically conscious," says slithering Fie "that when you want to turn right or left at night you wake up to find your hand stuck out beyond the bed."

Languages of the World The languages of the world, according to origin, history of nationality, are placed in the following great groups: (1) Indo-European languages (including Teutonic, Romance, Slavonic, Keltic, Iranian, Armenian and Indian languages); (2) Sino-Tibetan languages; (3) Caucasian; (4) Malay-Polynesian; (5) the monosyllabic or isolated languages; (6) Japanese-Korean languages; (7) Hamitic-Semitic; (8) Bantu languages; (9) languages of the interior of Africa; (10) Dravidian; (11) American Indian. There is another group called "unclassified languages."

The Word "Scamp" The word scamp originally signified a traveler, but three hundred years ago when a man traveled he generally had a good excuse for doing so, for few left home save when compelled, and to be a traveler was practically equivalent to being a scamp.

"I took your Tablets for painful periods. My back ached and I had cramping pains. This medicine relieved the pain immediately. I am able to do my work now."—Mrs. C. G. Woodard, Route 5, Box 71, Moulton, Ala.

pletes the week-end show. Next week Wednesday - Thursday (Bargain Nights) brings another deluxe double feature program, with Marlene Dietrich portraying the "noble and notorious" Catherine of Russia in "The Scarlet Empress", as feature number one, and a new stellar team of gay comedians, Guy Kibbee and Aline MacMahon, in Warner Bros. "Big Hearted Herbert" as feature number two. The picture is based on an uproariously funny story by the famous author, Sophie Kerr, while largely comedy, is spiced with a delightful romance with the charming Patricia Ellis and Phillip Reed in the roles of the lovers. Aline MacMahon, as the mother, takes a hand in smoothing the way for the lovers by taming her nagging and ill-natured husband, played by Guy Kibbee in the title role. Others in important roles include Helen Lowell, Robert Barrat, Henry O'Neill and Hale Hamilton.

AN ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR makes a lot of food cost little...

WITH ADEQUATE refrigeration in your home, there's no need to pass by the "Today's Specials" you see at the stores—fearing perishables won't keep. The steady low temperature of your electric refrigerator will keep the meat fresh—the vegetables unwilted—the milk and cream safe and wholesome through the winter as well as the summer. It makes no difference in the annual saving when you buy it. A good rule is to provide two cubic feet of refrigerator capacity for each member of your household.
