BANK TELLERS, too, must be Handwriting Experts

You may never write your signature twice alike on a check. Yet, despite these many variations, the paying teller in your bank must be prepared to recognize instantly your writing. A momentary "slip" on his part might mean heavy loss. He must be on the alert to detect anything wrong. He must know all the necessary facts about your account, to enable him to handle every transaction quickly and safely. It is a credit to him that in the handling of thousands of transactions he rarely "slips."

This ability is not acquired in a day or a week. Time and patience and careful, thorough training are required. The result is service and protection for you.

THE NARRATIVE

CHAPTER I.—David Ransdell, approaching New York on the liner Europa, receives a succession of radiograms offering him $1,000, finally $20,000, for an exclusive news-story. He declines the offer, and the man who brings him from South Africa, Ransdell noted, has been secretly commissioned as Captain by Lord Rhondin and Professor Bronson, the astronomer, to fly across the Mediterranean, the last time of a large traveling case containing photographic plates. His instructions are to deliver them to Dr. Hendron in New York. Tony Drake calls at the Hendrons' apartment. Ransdell arrives and Eves, Hendron's wife, who is deeply in love, introduces Tony to Ransdell.

CHAPTER II.—New York newspapers publish a statement made by Hendron and Bronson, the astronomer, of the world's greatest scientists. The prepared statement says that Professor Bronson has discovered two planets, which must be broken away from another star or sun. He traveled to the moon, the first space for an incalculable time, until they came to a region of the heavens which he named "The Beta." Under the attraction of the sun, the statement ends: "Their previous course, consequently, has been toward the sun, and as a result, they are now approaching us. The result of the collision of these two approaching bodies are referred to as Bronson Alpha and Bronson Beta, the latter being the smaller—about the size of the earth, and revolving about Bronson Alpha, as the moon does about the earth.

CHAPTER III.—"It's going to be doo-doo, but I," Tony Drake says. "No, Tony—more than doo-doo, Dawn after doo-doo, she'll hit him, and she'll hit the first time the Bronson Bodies approach the earth they will not hit it, but the second time, Bronson Beta, will pass, and the other will hit the earth and demolish it. To give me a moment of time, Bronson Beta, so much like the earth, is what is occupying the center of the universe of the League of the Last Days.

CHAPTER IV.—Hendron tells Tony he is to be a member of the selected crew of the projected Space Ship which Hendron plans to build, with the idea of landing on Bronson Beta, and the scientist advises him to gain a knowledge of agriculture and proficiency in manual work. Tony rounds up suitable men and women to build the ship at a town in northern Michigan. Just before the planet's first approach, Tony tells Hendron to report to Hendron the existing conditions throughout the country.

CHAPTER V.—Hendron has not been able to find a metal or an alloy which will withstand the heat and pressure of landing on Bronson Beta, and the scientist suggests that he use the existing conditions throughout the country.

CHAPTER VI.—The tides sweep back to the Appalachians on the Pacific side, and quakes change the entire surface of the earth. The Washington government moves as many millions as possible to the great Mississippi valley. The Hendron expedition arrives with unanticipated earthquakes, the seismic disturbances having started the day Hendron and his crew leave New York for the continent.

CHAPTER VII.—Bronson Alpha collides with the moon and wipes it out. Ransdell, who has been invited to join the colony, leaves on an airplane, recommissioned as the Hendron colony is in ignorance of conditions elsewhere. They return safely to the earth, and a reign of lawlessness throughout the country.

CHAPTER VIII.—Three weeks later, Ransdell, with Peter Vandenberg, a prominent New York lawyer, by Hendron as a member of the party on the Space Ship, and James, Hendron's son, are in a devastated country. They are attacked by a crazed mob and each member of the party wounded. But they return alive, and Ransdell has found and brought back a sample of metal which he claims is indispensable to the construction of the Space Ship.

CHAPTER IX.—The Space Ship will accommodate only 100 persons, with the lower species of life. Hendron is chosen to lead the new earth. There are 1,000 picked men and women in Hendron's camp. When half of them are in a state of a hunger-crazed horde, Hendron calls the survivors into the ship and sends a note of the thousands in the attacking horde are wiped out by the searing blast coming by the ship.

CHAPTER X.—Hendron announces the building of a second and larger Space Ship to go all the way to Bronson Beta. Just before the ships are to leave the earth, Eves and Tony, watching on the fringe of the encampment, find two little children, left there by their father, who has disappeared. Eves and Tony, obeying their father's orders, they take the little ones on the ship. As the last air lock is about to close, Peter Vandenberg, Ransdell's great physicist, lands from a plane to join the party. He is pessimistic concerning the efforts of other nations to emulate Hendron's attempt to reach Bronson Beta and land safely in his Ark.

"And we must take one of the reputed scorpions of the earth."

"What?" asked Tony.

"The grasshopper—the locust. Such an insect will be vitally necessary to keep the greenery from choking out our new earth; and the one best suited for this job is, paradoxically enough, one of mankind's oldest scorpions, the grasshopper. He is an omnivorous feeder and would keep the greenery in check—after he got his start. Our first problem may be that he will not multiply fast enough; and then that he will multiply too fast. So to keep him in check, and also the butterfly and the moth, we will take parasite flies. We will have to have them—two or three of the dozen common Trichinella have been chosen.

"We are bringing along vials of mushroom and other fungi spores. Otherwise vegetation would fall down, never disintegrate, and pile up till everything was choked. A vial the size of your thumb holds several billion spores of assorted fungi—in case the spores of the fungi of Bronson Beta have not survived. They are absolutely essential.

"Also, we are taking bottles of stagnant pond water and another of seawater containing our microorganisms such as diatoms, plankton, unicellular plants and animals which form the basis of our own biotic economy and would supplement, or replace, such life on the other globe.

"About animals—" Hendron halted.

"Yes, about animals," Tony urged.

"There is, naturally, still discussion. Our space is so limited, and there is most tremendous competition. Birds offer a somewhat simpler problem.

"The matter of dogs and cats is the most difficult," Hendron said, closing the subject. Air pumps murmured somewhere within the ship, which seemed half-alive. Electric generators hummed, and from somewhere came the high note of one of the electronic engines. Tony left Hendron and went from the ship.

That night the emigrants from the earth gathered again in the dining hall. Hendron addressed them, outlining the general final preparations, which were augmented by specific, printed instructions to meet such contingencies as could be foreseen.

After the meeting the crowd moved outdoors and stood awhile, looking at the Bronson Bodies. The spectacle was one of weird beauty, and one calculated to strike terror in the bravest.

Already the desolate and wounded surface of man's world was striding to their approach. Slight earthquake shocks were felt from time to time, and the very winds seemed to be moving in a consciousness of the awful cataclysm which was drawing near. All over the world, the tides—unnaturally absent since the shattering of the moon—rose again and licked up the sides of the fresh, raw shores; the people who huddled on mountains and prairie plateaus that night knew instinctively that this was indeed the end.

Tony sought out Eves. "Come walk with me," he said.

"I'd like to. It's so strange to wait, with everything done that matters. For it's all done, Tony; everything that we're to take with us has been prepared and put in place."

Tony was excited and on edge, with nerves which he tried to quiet and could not.

"Do you suppose," he said, "there'll be other ships starting from this side of the world tomorrow night and from the other side, the evening after?"

"Father doesn't know. When the radios were working well, months ago, he broadcast the knowledge of David's metal. It must have been obtainable from volcanic eruptions in other places. But we're no real news of anyone else ready to start. One thing is certain. No ship can count upon the arrival of any other. Each crew has to assume that it may be the only one that gets across to Bronson Beta."

"And a—lucky if it lands, too," agreed Tony.

"The English, Father thinks, surely have preserved enough organization to build and equip one ship, and the French, the Germans and Italians ought to do the same. Then there are the Russians and the Japanese at least with the potential ability to do it. There's a chance in Australia and another in South Africa—Lord Rhondin would head any party there. Father thinks."

"Anyone else?"

"A possibility in Argentina, and China."

"That makes twelve, counting our two."

"Possibilities, that's all. Of course, we know nothing about them. Father guesses that if twelve are trying, perhaps five may get slips out into space."

"What five?" demanded Tony.

"He did not name them."

"Five into space beyond the attraction of the world."

"The world won't be left then, Tony," Eves reminded him.

"Right. Funny how one keeps forgetting that, isn't it? So there'll be no place for them to drop back to, if they miss Bronson Beta. They just stay—out there in space—in their rocket-utensils."

"They were off by themselves now, and Tony drew her nearer to him. She neither encouraged nor resisted him. He tightened his arm about her, and felt her softness and warmth against him. For a moment more she remained motionless, neutral; then suddenly her hands were on his arms, clasping him, clinging to him. Her body became tense, thrilling, and as he bent, her lips burned on his.

She drew back a little, and at last he let her. In silence he kissed her again; then her lips, close to his, said: "Farewell to earth, Tony."

"Yes," he said, quivering. "Yes; I suppose this is our last sure night."

"No; we leave tonight, Tony."

"Tonight? I thought it was tomorrow."

"No. Father feared the last night—if anyone knew it in advance. So he said tomorrow; but all his calculations make it tonight."

"How soon, Eves?"

"In an hour, dear. You'll hear the bugles. He deceived even you."

"And Dave?" asked Tony feebly. Dave Ransdell now was his great friend. Dave was to be in command, except as to scientific matters of the party in the second ship; Tony was himself second only to Hendron on the first ship; and Tony had no jealousy of Dave for that. Moreover, Eves was to travel in the ship with her father and Tony; if he was saved, so would she be. And Dave might, without them, be lost. Tony had told himself that he had conquered his jealousy of Dave; but here it still held him.

"No," said Eves. "Father told Dave tomorrow, too. But we leave the earth tonight."

"So tomorrow," said Tony, "tomorrow we may be ourselves, with yesterday's seven thousand years." He held her again as he thought of his hour—the last hour of which he could be sure.

"Come away," he said. "Come further away from—"

"From what, Tony?"

"From everybody else." And he drew her on. He led her, indeed, toward the edge of the encampment, where the wires that protected it knitted a barrier. And there, holding her, he heard and she heard a child crying.

There were no children in the encampment. There never had been. No one with little children had been chosen. But here was a child.

Eve called to the child, and it ceased crying; so Eve had to call again for a response that would guide her to it in the dark.

There were two children, together and alone. They were three and four years old, it appeared. They knew their names—Dan and Dorothy. They called for "Papa." Papa, it appeared, had brought them there in the dark and gone away. Papa told them to stay there, and somebody would come.

Eve had her arms between the wires, and the children clung to her hands while they talked. Now Tony lifted them over the wires; and Eve took them in her arms. The little girl asked if she was "Mamma," Papa, it appeared, had gone away a long time ago.

"Months ago only," Eve interpreted for Tony, "or they wouldn't remember her."

"Yes. Probably in the destruction of the First Passage," Tony said; and they both understood that the mother must be dead.

"He brought them here to us," Eve said; and Tony understood that, too. It was plain enough: Some father, who had heard of the camp and the Space Ships, had brought his children here and left them—going away, asking nothing for himself.

"Dear and loud in the night a bugle blew; and Tony and Eves both started.

"Gabriel's horn," muttered Tony. "The last trump!"

"Father advanced the time," returned Eves. "He decided to give a few minutes more of warning; or else he fooled me, too."

"You are carrying that child?" asked Tony. Eve had the little girl.

"Yes," said Eves. "You are carrying the boy?"

"Yes," said Tony. "Rules or no rules; necessities or no necessities, if we can take sheep and goats I guess we can take these two."

"I guess so," said Eves; and she strode strongly behind him into the edge of illumination as the great floodlights blazed out.

The buildings were all aghast; and everybody was bustling. The loading of the two Arks long ago had been completed. The passengers ran back and forth, calling, crying, shaking hands, embracing one another.

They were all to go; every one in sight was billed on the Space Ships; but some would be on one ship, some on the other. Would they meet again—on Bronson Beta? Would either ship get there?

Tony, hurrying to his station, appreciated how wisely Hendron had acted in deceiving them all—even himself—as to the night. Here he was, second in command of the first Space Ship, carrying a strange child in contravention of all orders. The chief commander's daughter also carried a child.

No one stopped them. Not Hendron himself. It was the last hour on earth, and men's minds were rocking.

The bugles blew again; and Tony, depositing the boy with Eves, set about his business of checking the personnel of his ship. Three hundred yards away Dave Ransdell checked the personnel of his larger party.

Ransdell, for a moment, ran over. He asked for Hendron, but he sought, also, Eves. Tony did not interfere; he allowed them their last minutes together.

A third time the bugles blew.

Tony completed his check of crew and passengers. Thrice he blew his whistle.

From off to the right, where the second ship lay, Dave Ransdell's shrill signal answered.

"Close valves and locks!"

There was no one on the ground. No one! All checked and tallied, thrice over. Yet as Tony left the last lock open to gaze out again and listen, he heard a faint cry. The father of the children!

Could he take him, too? One man more? Of course they could make it. Tony withheld the final signal.

The voice was faint and far away, and in its thin notes could be detected the vibrations of tense anxiety. It came from where the airplane field lay. Presently he made out syllables, but not their meaning.

"Hello," he yelled mightily. "Who is it?"

Back came the thin, shouted re-

AT THE THEATRE

"Evelyn Prentice" Packs Powerful Dramatic Punch!

William Powell and Myrna Loy, who, teamed in photoplays of the mystery type, have won immense popularity in varied forms of this drama, are reunited in one entirely different from anything they have done in the past in "Evelyn Prentice," vivid Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production playing at the Hollywood for three days starting next Sunday matinee.

This time, as in "The Thin Man," they again play husband and wife, but this time both are enmeshed in an amazing problem, worked out in one of the most dramatic courtroom scenes presented on the screen in many a month.

It is the drama of the work of a great criminal attorney, who, through an amazing trick of fate, finds his own wife enmeshed in the tangled maze of motives and evidence in which he is struggling to save a woman's life.

Powell plays the amazingly clever criminal lawyer whose feats before a jury and whose brilliant coups make him a legal sensation. Miss Loy plays the society wife, who, through a mis-step, finds herself linked to a murder case in which her husband is defending another woman. Suspense runs high, and an amazing denouement solves the mystery with a surprise to the audience, as a twist of evidence gives the sensational case an entirely new aspect. Thrills and comedy, mystery and suspense, keep a rapid fire succession in the fast-moving drama.

Edward Brophy, Harvey Stephens and Little Cora Sue Collins add additional laurels to the brilliant acting of Powell and Miss Loy.

Laid against a background of the sunny south, enhanced by southern beauties, garden dances, bay melody and rollick romance, "Kentucky Kernels" brings Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey to the Hollywood theatre tomorrow (Friday) and Saturday in their funniest, merriest and maddest vehicle. Establishing a precedent in Wheeler and Woolsey productions, "Kentucky Kernels," (feature one boasts a plot, strong and intriguing, plus romantic and comical situations.

If you have ever gone to college, or if you have never gone, you are certain to thrill to the screen story of a care-free youth when you see Tom Brown in "Bachelor of Arts," feature two of Hollywood's Friday and Saturday program. Anita Louise, Arline Judge, Frank Albertson and Stepin Fetchit are in the cast. Chapter 13 of "The Red Rider" and a Buddy cartoon completes the bill.

Emerging as a new co-starring triumph, "The Age of Innocence," coming as the first feature of a double bill next week Wednesday and Thursday, presents Irene Dunne and John Boles in a dramatic romance of extra-ordinary poignance and beauty.

Thrilling mystery, tingling suspense and the most novel detective plot presented in some time are the features of "Sing Sing Nights," the Harry Stephen Keeler mystery story which plays as feature two on next week's Bargain Nights bill. Conway Tearle, Mary Doran, Boots Mallory and Hardie Alberight have the principle roles.

At the top of the spiral staircase, he rushed forward, his eyes aghast. "Dunquesne! By G—, Dunquesne! I'm delighted. You're in the nick of time. In forty minutes we would have been away from here."

Dunquesne gripped Hendron's hand, and skipped around him as if he were playing a child's game. With his free fist, he smote upon his breast; he shouted so that the entire chamber reverberated. "Am I a fool that you should have to tell me what hour was set for your departure? Have I no brains? Do I know nothing about astronomy? Have I never studied physics? Idiots, charming friends, glorious Americans, fools! Have I no brain? Can I not anticipate? Here I am. Suddenly he let go of Hendron's hand and stopped dancing. He bowed very gravely, first to Hendron, then to Tony, then to the crew. "Gentlemen," he said, "let's be going. Let's be on our way."

"What about the ships that were being built in other countries in Europe?" Hendron asked him.

"The English?" returned Dunquesne. "They will get away. What then, who knows? Can you muddle through space, Cole 'Eadron? I ask it. But the English are sound; they have a good ship. But as to them, I have made my answer, I am here."

"The Germans?" demanded Hendron.

The Frenchman gestured. "Too advanced! They have tried to take every contingency into account—too many contingency! They will make the most beautiful voyage of all—or by far the worst. As to all the others, again I observe, I have preferred to be here."

Tony looked at his number and found his place. Eves was near by him, with their two children beside her. She had sat up to welcome him. "I've been terribly nervous. Of course I knew you'd come, but it has been hard waiting here."

"We're all set," Tony said, as he adjusted himself on the floor harness.

Below, in the control room, the men took their posts. Hendron strapped himself under the glass screen. He fixed his eyes to an optical instrument, across which were two hair lines. Very close to the point of intersection was a small star. The instrument had been

WYNN GIVES GENERAL ASSEMBLY

A general assembly in charge of George Wynn was given Friday, during home room period in the auditorium.

A very interesting speaker, Mitchell J. Gary of Western State Teachers' college, gave a speech on "Aristocracy in Athletics."

Mr. Gary gave four rules for learning the play of football; namely: one must learn to say no; must relax, must increase capacity, and must increase his vision. His speech was based on these four facts.

Besides announcements of party and interclass games, it was announced that there will be a charity game Wednesday.

Assembly closed with a few yells led by John Fulks.

TRY, TRY AGAIN!

Why George, it isn't slippery, is it? Well, how did it happen? Were you driving very fast? These are some of the questions that were hurled at one of our smallest freshman the other morning as he came to school.

It seems as though George Ernst found it too icy in the road for safe driving so he thought one of the banks would be safer. We can't see what happened, but George started up the bank. Lo and behold, he spilled two or three cans of milk.

It is too bad some of the city fellers weren't out there to quench their thirst for "real cow's milk," wasn't it, George?

SEA SCOUT MEETING

Monday evening the Sea Scouts held their meeting at the Legion Hall. A new member, Tom Yurkovic, has joined crew number 2. A line or so of the Gettysburg address was read and then each member was required to finish it. They received points for it. Those passing tests were: Dale Boyce, Melvin Campbell, Robert Neal and Jack Banke.

Last Saturday the scouts went to South Bend where they went swimming at the Y. M. C. A.

INTER-CLASS BASKETBALL

The series of inter-class basketball games has come to an end. The results for the first teams are: sophomores and seniors tied for first place; juniors took second place and the Junior High and the freshmen tied for third place.

The results of the second teams are: juniors and sophomores tied for first place; freshmen and Jr. H. tied for second place and the seniors took third place.

The tournament of this inter-class will start this week. The different teams will play the team they draw.

SOCIAL HOUR HELD

A social hour was held Monday night after school in the high school gymnasium.

Ben Franklin, popular member of the junior class led the band in a great style that was enjoyed by everyone.

Una Kelley, Phyllis DeNardo and Marion Miller gave several vocal numbers throughout the program.

ALONG THE CORRIDORS

Can you imagine Evelyn Dolph dragging about having two "bids" to be taken to the high school party?

One of the girl's parents received a letter from the high school. What do you suppose it contained? Why, one of the well-known tokens of affection. This girl is now using the envelope as a book mark.

All the girls are making eyes at Eddie Donley. Why? Haven't you seen all the medals?

Elouise Squires has acquired the maidenly habit of blushing.

Rose Lynn Ernst has changed her hair part back to the side.

Josephine Yurkovic has changed hers back to the middle. Some swap.

THE MEASLES

The measles seem to be the vogue now. The latest victim is Alice Ruth. She got the "jitters" when she was told she had the measles.

The senior class members are old enough to vote now, at least for their class distinction. No one can find out who the worst pest is.

Class Activities

Girls' Physical Ed' Finishing up basketball by playing a single round-robin—in the work of the gym classes. Along with basketball all classes are starting work for the gym show.

G. A. A. Members of the junior G. A. A., including the seventh and eighth grades, hiked to Niles and back Saturday morning.

Home Economics The Home Ec class seven is studying the breakfast unit and working in the laboratory, cooking cereals.

The eighth grade Home Ec class is making pajamas. Smocks are being made by the ninth grade class.

Home nursing is being studied by the tenth grade.

The tenth grade girls served refreshments for the principals' meeting Tuesday.

English The freshman English class has just finished a mastery test on quotations, adjectives, and adverbs. They will begin working on literature.

The works of William Cullen Bryant and Edgar Allan Poe have just been completed by the tenth grade English divisions.

Better check up on yourselves, boys.

1. Running and walking in front of girls when unnecessary, and, when necessary, not excusing yourself.
2. Roughness, such as pushing and slapping, often times the girls receiving the blows.
3. Loud whistling.
4. Cheiving gum, publicly.
5. Wearing hats in school building.
6. Loud talking.
7. Not opening doors for girls. (Not so common).

Here are some ill-manners for the girls to check on:

1. Putting make-up on in public.
2. Chewing gum.
3. Whistling.
4. Loud-talking.
5. Publicly criticizing people's clothing.

Glendora

Mrs. Ina Hill is ill with the flu. Mrs. Clara Fletcher went to Birmingham, Ala., Thursday to visit her brother, who is very ill.

There were 150 present at the supper given in the basement of the Trinity Lutheran church, Friday evening. After supper the school children gave a play, entitled "Fooling the Agent." An accordion selection was rendered by Clara Hanover and Mollie Debus and Others club of the Gardner sang two numbers.

The Mothers and Others club of the Gardner school will meet Friday to piece a quilt.

Mr. and Mrs. Norris Bachman and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Smith spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Weaver.

The Landy Bridge club gave a 6:30 supper Sunday evening for their husbands at the James Findel home. There were 24 present. After supper bridge was played. Prizes went to Mrs. Lloyd Bowles, Victor Styburski, Lena Paul and Gerald English. Low to Mr. and Mrs. Sam Woollet.

Mrs. Chester Boswell, Kalamazoo, is visiting at the home of C. P. Smith.

A large number attended the Rebekah lodge in Galien Thursday evening.

Robt. Weaver has tapped his maple bush and reports a good run of sap.

Walter Wetzel is now employed in St. Joe.

John Woods slipped in the bath tub while taking a bath and broke three ribs.

Mrs. Lou Walton is gaining slowly from the injury she received when she fell on the ice.

COD LIVER OIL—Once a Punishment—Now a Treat

Stop trying to force your children to take nasty-tasting, fishy flavored cod liver oils. Give them Coco Cod—the cod liver oil with a delicious chocolate coating. Their bodies grow daily with vigorous, athletic strength! Mrs. Merder of Milwaukee says:

"My child took Coco Cod yesterday 20 lbs. Now, in two weeks she weighs 25 1/2 lbs. and she has not been ill since."

Other cod liver oils have cod liver oil and D, but Coco Cod is also rich in Vitamin B—the appetite and growth promoting vitamin.

Start your children with Coco Cod today. At all drug stores.

TIRE, WORN OUT, NO AMBITION

HOW many are just dragging themselves around, all tired out with periodic weakness and pain? They should know that Lydia E. Pinkham's Tablets relieve periodic pains and discomfort. Small size only 25 cents.

Mrs. Doris Williams of Danville, Illinois, says, "I had no ambition and was terribly nervous. Your Tablets helped my periods and built me up." Try them next month.

WEEK AND SKINNY MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN

Saved by new Vitamins of Cod Liver Oil in tasteless tablets.

Found of firm healthy flesh instead of bare, scrawny bones! New vigor and energy instead of listless fatigue! Steady, quiet nerves! That is what thousands of people are getting through the first week and discovery—the Vitamins of Cod Liver Oil concentrated in little sugar coated tablets without any of the horrid, fishy taste or smell.

McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets, they're called "Cod Liver Oil in Tablets," and they simply work wonders! A little box of 3, seriously sick, rosy and gained 10 1/2 lbs. in just one month. A girl of thirteen after the same disease gained 2 lbs. the first week and 2 lbs. each week after. A young mother who could not eat or sleep after baby came out with her health back and gained 10 lbs. in less than a month.

You simply must try McCoy's at once. Remember if you don't gain at least 3 lbs. of firm healthy flesh in a month get your money back. Demand and get McCoy's—the original and genuine McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets—approved by Good Housekeeping Institute. Refuse all substitutes—there are none better.

1st insertion Dec. 13; last Feb. 28. MORTGAGE SALE

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made by Fred Wilcox and Mabel Wilcox, husband and wife, to the Industrial Building and Loan Association, a Michigan Corporation, dated the 11th day of September 1926, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Berrien County, Michigan, on the 22nd day of September 1926, in Liber 150 of Mortgages, on page 201, by failure to make installment payments of principal and interest at maturity, and for four months thereafter, whereby the mortgagee elects and declares the whole of the principal and interest now due and payable as provided by the terms of said mortgage.

The amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice is the sum of $997.20, of principal and interest and the further sum of $35.00, as an attorney's fee provided for in said mortgage, and no suit or proceedings at law or in equity having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now therefore, NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and the Statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described therein, or so much thereof, as may be necessary to pay the amount so as aforesaid due on said mortgage, with six per cent interest from the date of this notice and all other legal costs together with said attorney's fee, at public auction, to the highest bidder, at the front outer door of the Court House in the City of St. Joseph, Berrien County, Michigan, on Monday, the 11th day of March 1935, at ten o'clock in the forenoon.

The premises to be sold are situated in the City of Buchanan, Berrien County, Michigan, and are described in said mortgage as follows, to wit:

Lot sixteen (16), in Ross and Alexander's Third Addition to the Village (now city) of Buchanan. Dated December 12th, 1934. Industrial Building and Loan Association, Mortgagee.
