

CAMPBELL SOUP CONTRACTS ACREAGE

Athletic Association Basketball Title Series to Begin Friday Night

Now Here's the Proposition

Uncle
Hank
Hills
Corners
Says:

My dad allus told me never to grab a red hot poker unless sum-buddy throwed it in my lap.

Well, folks, things is just the same old run-around this week, all we know is what we hear at the barber shop.

The farmers around Buchanan have been in the soup for the past five years, so now they are going to capitalize on it and go into the soup business. Soon we will see that fat little cherub in the Campbell Soup advertisements declaiming another of those cheerful little rhymes:

"When once again you eat our soup, just think for appetizer. They raise it at Buchanan with Alf George's fertilizer."

Either that or they will be over looking a good bet.

The Buchanan Faculty club gave an awful party—beg pardon, a awful party at the high school last night.

The Brook
(Adapted from Mister Tennyson's version to fit McCoy's creek) Where Model T's and trucks are sunk

I tumble on the faster
O'er many a tangled pile of junk
And heaps of brick and plaster.
My banks that once but smelled of flowers

Are different in this new age,
For now my shady forest bowers
Are regent with sewage.
A dead cat lies beside a hoe
In manner very clubbish,
For if men come or if they go
They leave with me their rubbish.
Round many a cast-off shoe I slant
Neath many a half dead willow
Where floats a tattered pair of pants
Upon the turbid billow.

To reach at last the old St. Joe
Now keep me strictly humping
For if men come or if they go,
They still continue dumping.

Winnie the Breadwinner in our office says that you spot the folk in town that have kids—they at got those little red signs tacked on the front of their houses. We hope they don't get any of those signs misplaced.

Next Friday night the D's Cafe team will play the Rexall team for the championship of the winter basketball independent series, unless the Reamer team beat the Rexall team last night, in which case the Roots team will have to play the Reamer team to see who gets to play the Rexall—oh shucks, come up and find out for yourself.

Next!

It's this: Why have city commissions when we got barber shops? Do you know that a city commission gets paid every time it meets? But they just get together to collect their pay—everything is really decided in barber shops.

Our platform for the Big Down-with-Commissions and Up-with-the-Barber-Shops is as follows:
Closer shaves for taxes.
Trimmed appropriations.
Sliced salaries.
Cut expenditures.
And how about a lil' tonic?
Straighten up a little in the chair please.

Whatta matter, can't you hold your chin up?
Now how do you cut your appropriations, short or long?
Or shaved round in the back?
Gosh! I beg your pardon, I didn't mean to do that but it's hard to run a city and shave at the same time.

Oh, well, that ear was a little too long anyway. I remember it got in the way last time.

TITLE PLAY-OFF TO BE CONTINUED UNTIL MON. NIGHT

Gold and Bronze Medals Will be Awarded to Players in Champion and Runner-Up Team.

The final title series of the winter basketball program of the Buchanan Athletic Association will begin at the high school gymnasium Friday evening, with the consolation series for the five lower bracket teams definitely beginning at that time and the final play-off depending on the outcome of the game between Reamers and Rexall's teams which were played after the Record went to press last night.

In the event that the Rexall team won that game, it clinched the position of runner-up and the title play-off, best two out of three will start Friday evening.

If, however, Reamer's team defeated the Rexall's, those two organizations are temporarily lodged in a three-way tie with Root's team for second place, and will play off the tie Friday night, delaying the beginning of the title series until Monday evening.

And in case this proves difficult for any of the fans to grasp, they may at least be assured that there will be a red hot basketball menu in store for them, the items of which will be apparent when they get there. The play will continue through Monday and possibly into Wednesday evening of next week. At the conclusion of the series gold basketballs will be awarded to the champions and bronze basketballs to the second place team members.

A medal will be awarded to the player who distinguishes himself by the best sportsmanship on the floor in either the title or the consolation series.

The small admission price of 10 cents will be charged to cover expenses.

I. & M. TO HOLD COOKING SCHOOL IN HIGH SCHOOL AUDITORIUM WITH NATIONAL AUTHORITY DEMONSTRATING

To Stage School Afternoons March 18-20; All Welcome to Attend; No Admission Charge.

A mile out of town, more or less, Ol' Man River, more commonly known as the St. Joe, pursues the even tenor of his way, slightly impeded by man-made obstructions, but nevertheless finding his way by the power of gravity to the lake.

Once he was the front door of the town, now he is the back. Once the town turned his way as its chief avenue of transportation, both freight and passenger. Once the river was the way to the outside world, filling the place later occupied by the concrete highways. Once the small boys ran for the bluff at the steamboat whistle, and the captain and the pilot of the river boat were their boyish ideals of human grandeur.

Once a town that aspired to attract business or population advertised its "water privileges" rather than its railways or its highways. But now you don't hear much about the river any more. Have we lost our dependence on the river? Has Ol' Man River ceased to work for us? Has the use of river power gone the way of ox power? Well, an examination of the fact will prove surprisingly the opposite. Ol' Man River has not even dropped out of the transportation service.

Roots Runner-Up In New Carlisle Cage Tournament

The Roots News Agency basketball team won the title of Runner-Up in the Independent cage tournament held at New Carlisle last week, being eliminated in the finals by the New Carlisle Flashers 32-18, after a stubborn battle whose closeness was belied by the score.

The Roots five was awarded the first game in the Simmons Grocery, South End, on a forfeit when it was learned that the latter team had entered players who were not certified. They then won their second game from the New Carlisle Sparks 20-19, forging ahead in the last 50 seconds on Denno's follow-up shot. The semi-final with the Mishawaka entry was won by the Root team 35 to 1, and was pronounced the best played game of the tournament.

The line-up for Roots was as follows: J. Ellis, C. Denno, M. Dreitzler, R. Dellinger, E. Tucker, D. Ellis, J. Eisenhar and J. Dunlap.

He was next advanced to the post of claim adjuster, then to that of sales manager, then to the post of branch manager.

LITTLE THEATRE GIVES PLAY AT CLARK THEATRE

Production Postponed from Saturday Evening on Account of Illness of Player.

The Playbox Players are expected to repeat their entertainment success of "Three Live Ghosts" with a presentation of "Stepping Sisters" at the Clark Theatre tonight, the curtain rising on the first act at 8 p. m.

The production was originally scheduled for presentation Saturday but was postponed until tonight on account of the illness of the leading lady, Miss Alice Riley.

Once the virus of the theatre gets in the blood it never leaves it. People retire from the stage and settle down far away from Broadway and its theatres, but the little bug will insist on rearing its head every so often.

"Stepping Sisters" is a highly amusing demonstration of this fact and has demonstrated its mirth-provoking powers in all the larger cities of the United States.

From the rise of the curtain until the fall thereof this hilarious comedy is chock full of fun and laughter, with never a dull moment. The situations are most ingeniously contrived and the unexpected is continuously happening.

The Playbox Players feel that a good laugh is due this community and are going to fulfill this long-felt want at the Clark theatre on Thursday evening, March 14, at 8 p. m.

There will be music furnished by the high school orchestra under the direction of Ralph Robinson.

Between Acts I and II Miss Phyllis DeNardo will present a dance solo.

Seats reserved at Glenn Smith's store. Tickets at Portz Food Shop.

WAR VETERANS WILL ORGANIZE AUXILIARY BODY

Women's Group to be Formed at Meeting Tonight in W. B. A. Hall.

Like its sister organization, Ralph Rumbault Post No. 51, American Legion, the G. N. Lyon Post No. 3102, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will soon have a ladies' auxiliary, which will function in the same manner as do the Legion auxiliary, which has become an integral part of the American Legion.

At least, a Foreign Veterans' auxiliary will become more than a mere project if plans of proponents of such an organization are materialized in a meeting for that purpose to be held Thursday night in the W. B. A. hall, where the Lyon post meets each second and fourth Thursday of each month. At this meeting, the proposal to organize a ladies' auxiliary body will be put to a vote, and if it passes plans will be made at that same meeting to further perfect the organization, although officers will probably be elected at a subsequent meeting after a membership campaign is launched.

The G. N. Lyon Post is one of southwestern Michigan's newest foreign veteran posts. It was organized here last fall and now has a roster of thirty-three active members. Harry B. Brown, Buchanan city commissioner, former village president and Spanish-American war veteran, is post commander. Dwight Markham is senior vice commander and John Hittle is junior vice commander. Both of the latter are veterans of the World War, with long overseas service.

At the second semi-monthly meeting of the post on Thursday night, March 28, there will be an open night for all veterans, regardless of whether they are or are not members of the post, and their families. There will be refreshments and cards will be played. Members of the committee for the open-night program are: Dwight Markham, chairman John Ochender and John Hittle.

The local post was named in honor of Miss Gladys N. Lyon, daughter of Mrs. Nancy L. Lyon of Buchanan. Miss Lyon, who died from disease in a French base hospital back of the front lines, was Michigan's only nurse casualty in the World War.

TO CONTRACT 300 ACRES HERE TO GROW TOMATOES

Favorable Price Offer Opens New Source of Income for Buchanan Farmers.

A new major source of income for the farmers of the Buchanan district was indicated at a meeting held at the headquarters of the Buchanan Co-ops Incorporated on Monday, at which a representative of the Campbell Soup Company of Chicago made overtures to local farmers to contract 300 acres of tomatoes for the 1935 season, with possibilities of considerably increased acreage in future years if the venture proves successful.

J. W. Montell represented the Campbell company, and County Agent Harry Lurkins and Professor Mahoney, Michigan State College vegetable culture specialist were also present to advise the 50 farmers who attended.

The company offered to contract at the following price delivered at Chicago: $19 per ton for No. 1; $11 per ton for No. 2. An average fair crop yields from 7 to 10 tons per acre, but yields as high as 24 tons per acre have been attained in Berrien County according to County Agent Lurkins. Cost of transportation to Chicago is estimated at about $3.00 per ton.

A second meeting will be held at the Co-ops office here next Monday afternoon to complete the contract. A total of 300 acres is desired by the company locally. Last year it contracted a total of 1,001 acres in a range of 250 miles. It is estimated that the entire acreage may be contracted here if good results are secured this year. The company became interested in the Buchanan district through the excellent returns secured by Hanley of St. Joseph on a patch of 50 acres which he contracted with the company, growing them on a farm on the Portage road, just north of the state line. Although this patch was badly damaged by hail, the company nevertheless secured better results there than on any other acreage.

A demonstration will be held locally by County Agent Lurkins and Prof. Mahoney on the proper method of setting the plants and on the selection and application of fertilizers.

Mrs. Anna Morley Observes Ninetieth Natal Anniversary

Mrs. Anna Morley celebrated her 90th birthday in her 90-year-old home on Ryerson street yesterday, passing the day very quietly at her home with an observance in company with relatives scheduled for next Sunday.

Mrs. Morley came to Michigan 74 years ago to teach school south of Galien, at the age of sixteen years. The old Galien woods still stood in their primeval grandeur over most of the country around Galien then. Galien was only a small settlement clustered around the handle factory which had located there to take advantage of the proximity of the splendid timber to the Michigan Central rail way which was built through twelve years before her arrival.

She can remember many rides behind ox teams and one in particular when she essayed to drive a team of oxen herself from the home of her uncle Johnathon Cutshaw to that of another uncle Arnold Cutshaw. The oxen ran away with her and her girl companion, bumping the wagon over the corduroy roads and bridges. Her ninetieth milestone found her in good health and in unusual session of her faculties.

ROUND ABOUT BUCHANAN

THE REAL ISSUE

There seems to have been some misunderstanding as to the intent of an editorial published in the Record last week, interpreted by some as a criticism of John Givers.

In view of that misunderstanding let it be stated that the protest was intended not for him but for the hoax newspaper stories which led up to the incident involved.

If it appeared in that manner to Mr. Givers, personally, or to any of his friends, the writer is glad to make any amends that may be made in print, since no affront was intended.

Those who are involved in the publication of "hoax" or faked news stories are usually innocent in intention but we doubt whether they are fully aware of the consequences of such publication. Although it may be news to some, it is yet a fact that there are newspapers and newspaper men who are concerned with the reliability and the truth of what appears as news. To them the publication of "hoax" or faked stories is on the same par with the forging of spurious checks or the adulteration of food or drugs. In fact, it may be said that a faked story is worse than a forged check, since when the check is nailed the damage is ended, but a "hoax" story can never be stopped. When stories are circulated through the press which are not genuine they tend to discredit all news stories. They give rise to that common expression characterizing any and all press reports as "news-paper talk." After coming in contact with a number of them, the public does not know what to believe or what not to believe. The writer of the "hoax" story gets the dollar or whatever pay there is in it; the entire newspaper craft gets the reputation of unreliability.

As to the "humor" involved, we prefer the policy of that prince of present day humorists, Will Rogers. Bill is reported to have made one president of the United States so indignant by his chaff that he forbade his presence in the White House again. It is worthy of note in this connection that when Rogers picks on anyone, he picks on those in high places who are fortified with power and assurance.

BOOST A LITTLE FOR PAVING PORTAGE ROAD AND FEEBUD TRAIL

Although the final form of the $4,800,000,000 federal appropriation bill seems indefinite at the present time, it will doubtless emerge in some form before long, and in the meantime it might not be amiss to do a little timely boosting for the prospects for paving the Portage road and the Red Bud trail, both of which have been approved by the county road commission.

The two projects received approval as items in a list of projects, not all of which will be carried out. But it would appear that improvement of the two roads to form two links of a through north and south highway would be a most worthy project. The Redbud trail has already received much attention throughout a wide area. Residents along the road state that travel over it increased some 400 percent during the past year as a result of publicity. This, despite the fact that at present it is only a gravel road. The planting program to be carried out this spring under the auspices of the Lions club, with a Michigan State College specialist in charge, should eventually add to its attractions.

While Road Commissions intend to develop highway systems for the good of the whole, yet they are constantly subjected to pressure from interested communities, and they would not be human if such pressure did not have its effect. Buchanan has not been active in the past in pressing its own claims and the results are evidence of the defects of that policy.

At least no harm will be done by keeping them fully informed as to the just claims of this community and as to the merit of local highway projects.

Faculty of Wandering

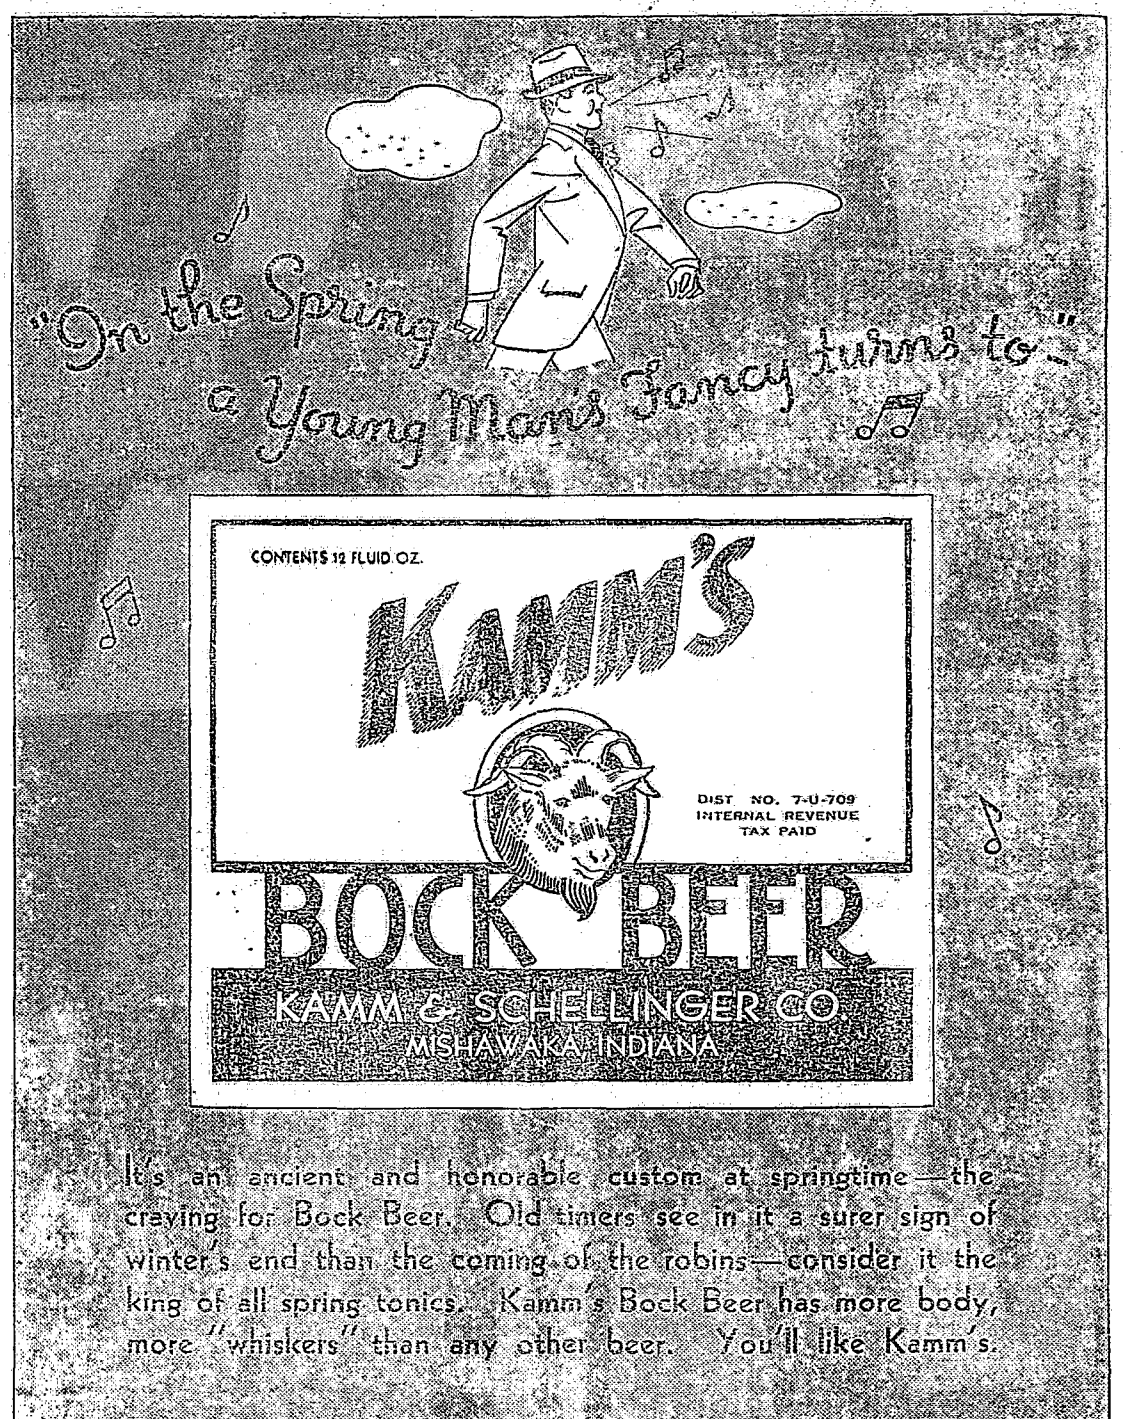

It is one of the worst penalties of wrongdoing that the more deeply a man offends against the moral law, the more unconscious he tends to become of his guilt; for, every declension in character meets out its own anesthetic, as advance in character deepens spiritual susceptibility and insight.

THE BORROWER'S Best Credential

It used to be a common practice by many borrowers to renew their loans over and over again. They paid the interest but, as they were "good for it," did not seem to think it was necessary to be in a hurry to pay the principal.

Today this practice is recognized as unsound and contrary to safe banking principles. Banks are no longer permitted to extend loans indefinitely.

A "clean slate"—all old obligations wiped off—is a borrower's best credential when seeking further credit. The most welcome borrower today is the man who not only can pay, but does pay his loans at regular intervals.

The high scorers were Hattenbach for the seniors, who had 7 points, and Luke for the All-School team who got 6 points.

Senior Class Presents Play

The senior class will present their annual play, "Three Corners Moon" May 10 at the high school auditorium under the direction of Mrs. Velma E. Dunbar.

This play had a long run on the New York stage two years ago. The author of this play is Gertrude Tonkonogy.

The cast is as follows: Beatrice Neal, Albert Webb, Donald Blaney, Lilia Peacock, Geneva Troutfetter, Robert Strayer, Robert Willard, Mary Jane Zerbe and John Heilmann.

This is the summary of the play by the New York Evening Journal: "A chatty study of a cock-eyed household, done with much reliable understanding. Ends in a veritable roar of laughter, gags and plain nitwitisms flying off at all angles—sort of beautiful insanity that makes the state groggy now and then with the buzz of a mad house."

Deeds Selected as All-Tournament Basketball Star

Over the Deeds, guard on the Buchanan high school basketball squad, was placed on the All-Tournament team. Deeds, who will graduate in May, was one of the main cogs in the Bucks machine this last season and also provided plenty of zip for the 1933 basketball team.

PICTURES TAKEN FOR ANNUAL

Paul Frank, photographer, finished taking the students' pictures this week. These pictures are for the year book put out annually by the senior class with the help of other classes.

EDITORIAL

A social hour is important to a school for three reasons: It pops up school; it brings the students closer together, and it catches some people to dance who might otherwise never learn.

Students must have diversion. If it is not planned for them, they will find it for themselves. And sometimes their judgment is not so good. It is the duty of the school to provide diversion for its students, and it should be considered as an integral part of their education.

A social hour aids school spirit in that it gives its students a feeling of being and taking an active part in their school. It is an intangible feeling, yet one that is important if a school is to have harmony and congeniality among its students.

The gym of the high school is not being used every night after school now. A social hour could be held weekly with ease. Are you students for it?

Sophs Triumph Over Seniors in Double Overtime

The finals of the high school interclass were held at the gym Friday after school between the sophomores and seniors. The sophomores had the better team which they proved. It so happens that it is the first time a sophomore team has finished first. The sophomores defeated only by the juniors. The game was well played during the regular periods and the first overtime but the second overtime decided it. The main cog for the sophomores was Beadle, who got three baskets and one free throw. Donley led the losers with three field goals.

IS HER FACE RED?

Measles have started to make the rounds of the upper classes since practically all of the younger generation have had their share. Shirley Howard became the third victim Wednesday when she discovered that her complexion had turned from white to rose red and not because of the object of her affection, either.

Poor Shirley was mortified to discover she had symptoms of the well-known plague among children—measles!

Reporting Inquirer

Question: For the last couple of weeks or so there hasn't been a social hour. In view of this fact, do you think they are worthwhile and do you really want them?

Georgia Upson—I think they are worthwhile and wish we could have a social hour every week.

Max Dreitzler—I really think the social hour is worthwhile. It increases the school spirit, and brings the students together. I think if we would have more of them there would be a change in the students.

Una Kelley—Now that basketball is over and the gym is not in use every night, I believe there should be a social hour once a week. Many people have said they are useless because they don't draw the students who want to know how to dance. Well, maybe not by the hundreds, but it does induce a few and if only for these few it is certainly worthwhile.

FRENCH CLUB MEETING

The monthly meeting of the French club was held last Friday in Miss Shriver's room. The meeting was called to order by Miss Margaret Ann George, the president.

Miss Mary Jane Zerbe reported on a book and a half of "Les Misérables." Audrey Wilcox gave a report on the Linguaphone Institute.

When roll call was taken, each person had to give a French current event instead of answering to his name.

Niles Junior High Hoopsters Defeat Buchanan Team

The Niles Junior High journeyed to Buchanan Tuesday, March 5, and gave Buchanan a good licking. The Niles boys had the game well in hand at all times with the exception of the first quarter. As usual the Niles boys have a fairly good team as they have quite a bit of material to pick from. The high man for Buchanan was Wolford, with five counters, and high man for Niles was Cook with 7 points.

The Buchanan second team composed of eight graders won their fourth straight victory by the close score of 15-14. The point getters were Morris of Buchanan with 3 baskets and 4 free throws, and for Niles McOmber with two baskets and one free throw.

REPORT CARDS

Report cards were received last Wednesday for the first six weeks period of the second semester.

Everyone was so glad to receive them, but after they had received them some were terribly disappointed, while others were too glad for words.

For those who forgot to bring theirs back Thursday morning, they had to retrace their steps back home and get them.

Latin Club Gives Play

The play, "A Day Without Latin," was given Thursday, March 7, in the auditorium under the direction of Miss Shriver and for the benefit of the Latin club members.

The cast was as follows: Charles Wesner, Father Brown; Betty Scarpie, Mother Brown; Shirley Trapp, Alice Brown; Shirley Trapp, Bob Brown; Melvin Campbell, Bob Brown.

Bob Brown came home and told his parents he didn't wish to take Latin and thought he could get along perfectly without any Latin. So his father told him he could try a day without Latin.

At meal time when Bob asked for food he was refused almost everything because the names of the word were derived from Latin words. He couldn't wear his hat because the word hat is derived from a Latin word meaning head. Finally when he was refused a ride in the automobile or a program on the radio, he declared he'd take Latin and "would someone please pass the meat and potatoes."

Gym Show

The annual gym show will be held in the Buchanan High School gym March 21 and 22.

GRADE NEWS

Paragraphs Written by 5th Grade Project of the Seven Health Sisters

Sally Soap
Sally Soap is one of our health dolls which stands for cleanliness. She has a basket on her arm which holds the things needed to keep clean. For example, she has a tooth brush, tooth paste, comb, brush, sponge, nail file, bath salts, towel and wash cloth. Her dress and bonnet are made of toweling. When we get her all done we are going to take her around to the other grades to show the pupils. Mrs. Lamb, the school nurse, thinks that it is a very good idea for health. We like Sally Soap ourselves. We think she is very interesting and she teaches us a lot of things we ought to do.

Helene Antics.

Polly Pop

Polly Pop represents a nice, warm breakfast. She has a brown custume. Her dress is the color of chocolate and her hat is the color of cream. She also has a basket on her arm. She has in her basket a bottle of chocolate. For breakfast she has a hot drink, fruit and a nice warm cereal. If she has toast it is made of whole wheat or rye bread. Polly Pop is trying to teach the children to eat a warm breakfast. Polly Pop says if you eat a warm breakfast you will feel like playing or working harder. Polly Pop is a regular health girl and she wants us to be also. We all like Polly Pop.

In my basket I have grapes, apples, peas, spinach, oranges, lemons, grapefruit lettuce cabbage, and other fruits and vegetables. I eat a vegetable every day. Everyone that comes into our room admires me. Lots of boys and girls do not eat the right kind of food and that is one reason why some people are not healthy. Doctors recommend a green vegetable and a fruit every day.

Norma Brizest.

Tells of Life of Buchanan Man

After going to press last week the Record received from John G. Ham, White Plains, N. Y., the following clipping from the New York Sun which gives additional data on the life of F. Richards Anderson, native of Buchanan, who carved for himself a career as a stage architect and costume designer.

F. Richards Anderson, for many years costume designer for the shows of A. L. Erlanger and Florenz Ziegfeld, died at his residence, 27 Boulevard, New Rochelle, yesterday at the age of 60 years.

He was known as one of the leading costume designers in the country and was associated with Mr. Erlanger for 35 years, while at the same time heading a costume-designing firm of Schneider & Anderson. He was credited with designing and planning the New Amsterdam and a number of other theatres in New York.

Upon Mr. Erlanger's death several years ago Mr. Anderson became general manager of the Erlanger theatrical company and had managed it until recently. He designed the costumes and many of the scenes of "Show Boat" and other Ziegfeld productions, retiring from active business about a year ago.

His mother, Mrs. Laura R. Anderson; his widow and two sons, Norman and F. Richards Anderson, Jr., survive.

AT THE THEATRE

"White Parade" at Hollywood Sunday Through Tuesday

Hundreds of white-uniformed girls paraded before the movie cameras at Fox Film studios recently in one of the most colorful "mob-scenes" in some time. Providing atmosphere for one of several spectacular sequences in "The White Parade," a Jess L. Lasky production which will come to the Hollywood next Sunday matinee for three days. It was not the usual array of extras, but an unprecedented assortment of "types". The scenes depicted were laid in the auditorium of a modern training school for nurses, and the girls were chosen, not necessarily for beauty or past experience in screen work, but as types.

Research has disclosed, according to Producer Lasky, that girls from every station of life, and with varied backgrounds, elect to make nursing their life work.

"The usual Hollywood extras would never do for this picture," said Mr. Lasky. "We selected our extra-players with the same careful attention to detail that we exerted in picking our principals."

"The White Parade," with Loretta Young and John Boles in the leading roles, is the first film to glorify the profession of nursing. Most of the action is laid in a modern training school for nurses, and the story covers the three year period from enrollment to graduation.

Supporting Boles and Miss Young is a brilliant cast, including Dorothy Wilson, Muriel Kirkland, Jane Darwell, Joyce Compton and Sara Haden.

The second release of "The March of Time on the Screen" (the March issue) will be played in addition to an array of attractive shorts on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday's program.

DR. CLAUDE S. BECK

Medical history was made at Lakeside hospital, Cleveland, with the performance of the first operation in the history of the world for the relief of angina pectoris, a heart ailment which in the past has been regarded as incurable and eventually fatal. The operation was performed by Dr. Claude S. Beck, a surgeon at Lakeside hospital. It may mean as much to the world as the discovery of a cure for cancer.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

With Good White Sauce and Cheese You Can't Go Wrong. In planning Lenten menus, the casserole dish and a supply of white sauce and cheese will be our handiest aids. Without them, those who observe the Lenten regulations would be deprived of such savory compensations for the meatless meal as scalloped salmon with peas; creamy macaroni dripping with golden, melted cheese; creamed tuna fish with mushrooms; creamed codfish cakes; vegetables on casserole; flaked fish golden-roasted; and sunny, flavorful cheese fondue.

A very delicious luncheon dish is made with flaked fish served in a goldenrod. Into one and a half cups of medium thick cream sauce is chopped the whites of two hard-cooked eggs and a cup of flaked fish, either canned or fresh. This mixture may be served on triangles of toast or in nests of mashed potatoes which have been buttered. The golden rod effect is achieved by garnishing each serving with sieved yolks of the hard-cooked eggs.

Another delicious Lenten dish is made by combining noodles and equal portions of flaked fish and mushrooms, with a dash of catsup for flavoring. These are placed in a greased baking dish with white sauce into which cheese has been melted. Breadcrumbs are sprinkled on top and the dish is browned in a moderate oven.

During Lent is necessary to substitute enough fish, cheese, eggs

tures of the year is "Great Expectations" by Charles Dickens, which Universal has so faithfully and entertainingly transcribed to the screen as feature 1 of tomorrow (Friday) and Saturday's screen program at the Hollywood. The producers have turned out a masterly production of this highly interesting story—a story that embodies every phase of narrative, from high adventure to seething emotion. It is a picture for every one of the family from grandfather to grandson. Henry Hull, great star of the stage success, "Tobacco Road," plays the lead role. Phillips Holmes, Jane Wyatt, Alan Hale, and George Breakston as "Pip," complete the cast.

Grown into a tall bronzed and handsome young man, Jackie Coogan of "The Kid" fame, returns to the screen for his first adult role in "Home on the Range." Zane Grey's story smoothly transferred to the screen, with Randolph Scott and Evelyn Brent in the romantic and action leads with Coogan. The first chapter of a brand new serial, "Tailspin Tommy" and a new Mickey Mouse cartoon complete the bill. Bing Crosby's new picture, "Here is My Heart," coming to the Hollywood theatre next week Wednesday and Thursday, presents America's favorite radio songster with another opportunity to display his comedy as well as his singing ability.

Adapted from the play, "The Grand Duchess and the Waiter," the film is a bright and frivolous little comedy written about a millionaire crooner's heroic courtship of a haughty princess with whom he falls in love at sight in an elevator. Kitty Carlisle is cast as the princess, and Alison Skipworth, Roland Young and Reginald Owen are prominent in the supporting cast.

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 197): "The less that is said of physical structure and laws, and the more that is thought and said about moral and spiritual law, the higher will be the standard of living and the farther mortals will be removed from imbecility or disease."

Enthusiasm Lacking
If we have no vision or ideals, if life is just a matter of bread and butter, then enthusiasm is impossible.

"The Fisherman's Ring"

For about 700 years the popes of the Roman Catholic church have worn "The Fisherman's Ring" as a symbol of their papal authority. It is named in honor of St. Peter and a little plaque in its center shows an image of him throwing a net from a boat as he once did as a fisherman on the Sea of Galilee. A new ring is made for each pope and broken when he dies.—Collier's Weekly.

Big Berthas in World War

All of the Big Berthas in the world war were fired at an elevation of 60 degrees, says a writer in the Chicago Tribune. Their shells, when they reached the target, traveled at an angle of 30 degrees, the altitude of 19 miles, where the atmosphere is only one-tenth as dense as that close to the earth, were traveling at a 45-degree elevation and at a speed of 3,100 feet a second. At the highest part of the trajectory the shells were traveling at 2,357 feet a second, and when they returned to the 12-mile level they were moving again at 3,100 feet a second. When they struck in France or its environs they were moving at 2,400 feet a second.

Darwin's Tidal Theory

The theory of tidal evolution, first elaborated by Sir George Darwin late in the Nineteenth century, postulated that the earth and moon evolved from a single liquid body which rotated on its axis in a little less than five hours. Owing to its rapid rotation, this body was very oblate and the motion of its particles was continually disturbed by tides raised upon it by the sun. Darwin showed that, granted certain reasonable assumptions, the frequency of vibration of this body must have been the same as that of the tides, and this vibration caused a portion of the body to be separated from the remainder.

Opportunity

ONE of the narrowing and restricting material beliefs which would rob us of our heritage of good is the belief in limited opportunity. In fact many people believe that opportunity comes but once in a lifetime, and that if it is not grasped, life for them is a failure.

To those whose sphere of usefulness seems cramped and circumscribed, or whose environment appears restricted, dull, colorless, the study of the life of Joseph should prove interesting. He had some very gloomy and restricting experiences. However, he did not entertain resentment, but in every experience made use of his opportunity to prove the power of God. Thus, his spiritual thinking lifted him to become a very great statesman. The same qualities he reflected, even when in the pit and in the prison, prepared him for that position of great usefulness and service to which he attained in Egypt, and through which he had a wider opportunity to use his God-given qualities of courage, wisdom, resourcefulness, mercy, and forgiveness.

Opportunity is ever present. The opportunity for useful service and happy, joyous living is never absent. What we need is to pray for vision, and, like Joseph, to use our present circumstances as steppingstones to a higher sense of true living and service. If, instead of beating vainly against restricting circumstances or environments, we open our thought to the unfolding of spiritual ideas and the facts of real being, which alone cast out the false beliefs of restricting environment and lack of opportunity—if we put off limited modes of thought and let that Mind which is infinite divine Love govern our thinking, then we shall find imprisoning beliefs of cramped environment giving place to wider, fuller opportunities.

Jesus said, "I can of mine own self do nothing," and, "The Father that dwelleth in me, he doeth the works." He understood the spiritual scientific relationship which exists between God and man. As the understanding of God as Life is in some measure gained through Christian Science, opportunities for a fuller life will be open to be our inherent inalienable right.

Another false belief which would claim to limit opportunity is that of age. People are apt to think that when they reach what is termed advanced middle age their opportunities for usefulness are rapidly diminishing, and they begin to look on their life as nearly over. Moses at the age of eighty years might have thought that his opportunity for useful work had terminated; but during his forty years' retirement which followed his too impetuous defense of his countrymen, he was being prepared for his great life-work. He advanced in spiritual understanding to the realization of God as Mind, Spirit, and at the age of eighty his mission was unfolded to him. For forty years more he was engaged in the no light task of leading the children of Israel through the wilderness toward the promised land. Mary Baker Eddy says of him (Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, p. 200), "Moses advanced a nation to the worship of God in Spirit." What an achievement! And of him the Bible records that at the age of one hundred and twenty his eye was not dim, nor his natural force abated.

When this great mission was revealed to him, the false arguments of diffidence and reluctance to face the responsibility presented themselves to Moses; it was only when he relied on God's promise to be with him and teach him what to say and to do that his false sense of responsibility and diffidence was replaced by true humility. So he went forward in his work, wherein he was given the opportunity to use the spiritual quality of meekness and receive the revelation of moral law.

On page 246 of Science and Health Mrs. Eddy says: "Except for the error of measuring and limiting all that is good and beautiful, man would enjoy more than three score years and ten and still maintain his vigor, freshness, and promise. Man, governed by immortal Mind, is always beautiful and grand. Each succeeding year unfolds wisdom, beauty, and holiness."

The grandeur and glory of life are reaching out before us in the eternity of good. It is not opportunity which is lacking, for God is the Giver. It is the ability to perceive it for which we must pray. Often fear and care form a mist, but as Truth clears the vision we are enabled to see opportunity as given at hand.—The Christian Science Monitor.

THE NARRATIVE

CHAPTER I.—David Randall, approaching New York on the liner Europa, receives a succession of radiograms offering him $1,000,000. On the liner Europa, he receives a succession of radiograms offering him $1,000,000. On the liner Europa, he receives a succession of radiograms offering him $1,000,000.

CHAPTER II.—New York newspapers publish a statement made by Henderson and his associates, claiming that the world's greatest scientists, Professor Bronson, had discovered a way to travel through space in an inextinguishable time, until they came to a region of the heavens which brought them at last under the attraction of the sun. The statement ends: "Their previous careers, consequently, have been devoted to the sun, and as a result, they are now approaching us."

CHAPTER III.—"It's going to be doomsday, isn't it?" Tony Drake asks Eve. "No, Tony—more than doomsday. Dawn after doomsday." Eve tells him that the Bronson Bodies approach the earth, and that the earth will be destroyed. Tony, who is a member of the League of the Lost Days, is a member of the League of the Lost Days.

CHAPTER IV.—Henderson tells Tony he is to be a member of the crew of the selected Space Ship which Henderson plans to build, with the idea of sending Bronson Beta and his associates to the earth. Henderson, who is a member of the League of the Lost Days, is a member of the League of the Lost Days.

CHAPTER V.—Henderson has not been able to find a method of attack which will withstand the heat and pressure of atomic energy to be used in the attack on the earth. The night before Henderson and his associates arrive at the earth, they are met by a fleet of ships.

CHAPTER VI.—The tides sweep back to the Appalachians on the Pacific side, and quakes shake the entire surface of the earth. The tides sweep back to the Appalachians on the Pacific side, and quakes shake the entire surface of the earth.

CHAPTER VII.—Bronson Alpha collides with the moon and wipes it out. Randall and Eliot James, an English poet whom Henderson has invited to join the colony, leave on an airplane to reconnoiter the new colony in its isolation. They return safely, reporting a bleak universal destruction and a reign of lawlessness throughout the country.

CHAPTER VIII.—Three weeks later, Randall, with Peter Vandervelt, prominent scientist, and Henderson as a member of the party on the Space Ship, and James, who is a member of the League of the Lost Days, are attacked by a crazed mob and each member of the party is killed. Henderson, who is a member of the League of the Lost Days, is a member of the League of the Lost Days.

CHAPTER IX.—The Space Ship will accommodate only 100 persons, with the lower species of life. Henderson, who is a member of the League of the Lost Days, is a member of the League of the Lost Days.

CHAPTER X.—Henderson announces the building of a second and larger Space Ship to carry more people to Bronson Beta. Just before the ships are to leave the earth, Eve and Tony, who are a member of the League of the Lost Days, are a member of the League of the Lost Days.

CHAPTER XI

HENDERSON turned to the crossed blades on the optical instrument and began to count. Every man in the room stiffened to attention.

"One, two, three, four, five—" His hand went to the switch. The room was filled with a vibrating hum. "Six, seven, eight, nine, ten—" The sound of the hum rose now to a full-scale shriek. "Eleven, twelve, thirteen, fourteen, fifteen—ready! Sixteen, seventeen, eighteen, nineteen, twenty—" His hand moved to the instrument that was like a theodolite. His other hand was clenched, white-knuckled, on his straps. "Twenty-one, twenty-two, twenty-three, twenty-four, twenty-five." Simultaneously the crew shifted levers, and the rheostat moved up an inch. As he counted, signals flashed to the other ship. They must leave at the same moment.

A roar, redoubting that which had resounded below the ship, on the night of the attack, deafened all other sound. Tony thought: "We're leaving the earth!" A quivering of the ship that jarred the soul. An upthrust on the feet. Henderson's lips moving in counting that could no longer be heard. The eyes of the men of the crew watching those lips so that when they reached fifty a second switch was touched, and the room was plunged into darkness relieved only by the dim rays of tiny bulbs over the instruments themselves. A slight change in the feeling of air pressure against the eardrums.

Tony reached toward Eve and felt her hand stretching to meet his. The fiery trail of the second Ark, rising skyward on its apex of scintillating vapor already was miles away.

In the passenger chamber the undiminished noise rose in a steady crescendo until all those who lay there were pressed with increasing force upon the deck. Naused, terrified, overwhelmed, their senses floundered and many of them lapsed into unconsciousness.

Tony, who was still able to think, despite the awful acceleration of the ship, realized presently that the din was diminishing. From his rather scanty knowledge of physics, he tried to deduce what was happening. Either the Ark had reached air so thin that it did not carry sound waves, or else it was traveling so fast that its sound could not catch up with it. The speed of that diminution seemed to increase. The chamber became quieter and quieter. Tony reflected, in spite of the fearful torment he was undergoing, that eventually the only sound which would afflict it would come from the breaches of the tubes in the control rooms, and the rooms themselves would insulate that.

Presently he realized that the ringing in his ears was louder than the noise made by the passage of the ship. Eve had relaxed the grip on his hand, but at that moment he felt a pressure.

"It's horrible, isn't it?" Eve cried. "Yes, but the worst is over. We'll be accelerating for some time, though."

Energy returned to him. He struggled with the bonds that held his head, and presently spoke again to Eve. She was deathly pale. He looked at the other passengers. Many of them were still unconscious, most of them only partly aware of what was happening. He tried to lift his head from the floor, but the upward pressure still overpowered him. Then the lights in the cabin went out and the screen was illuminated. Across one side was a glimpse of the trail which they were leaving, a bright hurtling yellow stream, but it was not that which held his attention. In the center of the screen was part of a curved disk. Tony realized that he was starting up at half of the northern hemisphere of the earth.

Once again Eve pressed his hand, and Tony returned the pressure. In the control room, Henderson still sat in the slung with his hand on the rheostat. His eyes traveled to a meter which showed their distance away from the earth. Then they moved on to a chronometer. He had already determined the time necessary for acceleration—one hundred and twelve minutes—and he could not shorten it.

Henderson operated the switch controlling the choice of periscopes. In the midst of the glass screen, the earth now appeared as a round globe, its diameter in both directions clearly apparent. More than half of it lay in shadow, but the illuminated half was like a great relief map. The whole of the United States, part of Europe and the north polar regions, were revealed to their gaze. In wonder they regarded the world that had been their home. They could see clearly the colossal changes which had been wrought upon it. The great inland sea that occupied the Mississippi valley sparkled in the morning sun. The myriad volcanoes which had sprung into being along the western cordillera were for the most part hidden under a pall of smoke and clouds.

Henderson signaled a command to his crew, who had been standing unblinkingly from their slings, at attention. They now seated themselves. "I assure you," Henderson told Tony and Eve, and their fellow passengers, "that except for its monotony, the trip will offer you no further great discomfort until we reach Bronson Beta, when we shall under the necessity of repeating approximately the same manner. In something less than an hour we are going to turn the periscope on France in an effort to observe the departure of the French equivalent of our ships. We are at the moment trying to locate our second Ark, which took its course at a distance from us to avoid any chance of collision, and being between us and the sun, is now temporarily lost in the glare of the sun."

Henderson disappeared through the opening in the ceiling which contained the spiral staircase. Puffs distributed the air inside the ship. Outside, there was vacuum against which the airlocks were sealed. The air of the ship, breathed and "restored," was not actually fresh, although chemically it was perfectly breathable. The soft roar of the rocket propulsion tubes subdued the senses. The sun glared in a black sky studded with brilliant stars.

To the right of the sun, the great glowing crescents of Bronson Alpha and Bronson Beta loomed larger and larger. Eve sat with Tony as a periscope turned on them and displayed them on the screen. They could plainly see that Bronson Alpha was below and approaching the earth; Bronson Beta, slowly turning, was higher and much nearer the ship. "Do you see their relation?" she asked. "Between the Bronson Bodies?" said Tony. "Aren't they nearer to each other than they have ever been before?" "Much nearer; and as Father—Professor Bronson—calculated, Bronson Beta, being much the smaller and lighter, was revolving closer to Bronson Alpha. The orbit was not a circle; it was a very long ellipse. Sometimes, therefore, this brought Bronson Beta much closer to Alpha than at other times. When they went around the sun, the enormous force of the sun's attraction further distorted the orbit, and Bronson Beta probably is nearer Alpha now than it ever was before. Also, notice it is at the point in its orbit which is more favorable for us."

"You mean for our landing on it?" asked Tony. "For that; and especially is it favorable to us, after we land—'if we do,' amended Eve; and she gathered the children to her. She sat between them, an arm about each, gazing at the screen.

"You see, the sun had not surely 'captured' Bronson Beta and Bronson Alpha. They had arrived from some incalculable distance and they have rounded the sun, but, without further interference than the sun's attraction, they would retreat again and perhaps never reappear. "But on the course toward the sun, Alpha destroyed the moon, as we know, and this had an effect upon both Alpha and Bronson Beta, controlled by Alpha. And now something even more profound is going to happen. Alpha will have contact with the world. That will destroy the earth and will send Bronson Alpha off in another path. One almost certain effect of the catastrophe is that it will break Bronson Beta away from the dominating control of Bronson Alpha, and leave Beta subject to the sun. That will provide a much more satisfactory orbit for us about our sun."

"Is," echoed Tony. "—if we get there," said Eve; and she bent and kissed the children. At the end of an hour all the lights in the passenger quarters were turned out, and the earth was again washed on the screen. Its diminution in size was already startling; and the remains of Europe, stranded in a new ocean, looked like a child's model "four and water map."

A point of light showed suddenly very bright, and as a second passed, it appeared to extend so that it stood away from the earth like a white-hot needle. The upthrusting light curved, became horizontal and shot parallel with the earth, moving apparently with such speed that it seemed to have traversed a measurable fraction of the Alps while they watched.

Abruptly, then, the trail zigzagged; it curved back toward the earth, and the doomed ship commenced to descend, impelled by its own motors. In another second there was a faint glow and then—only a luminous trail, which disappeared rapidly, like the pathway of fire left by a meteor.

Plastics rose and traveled on. Indications were that the ships of other nations had got safely away from the ruins of the earth and were following the American Space Ships. The implications of these lights transcended talk. Conversation soon ceased. Exhaustion, spiritual and physical, assailed the travelers.

Gravity diminished steadily, and their habit of relying upon the attractive force of the earth resulted in an increased number of mishaps, some of them amusing and some of them painful. After what seemed like eons of time some one asked Tony for some food. Tony himself could not remember whether he was going to serve the fifth meal of the sixth, but he sprang to his feet with earnest willingness—promptly shot clear to the ceiling, against which he bumped his head. He fell back to the floor with a jar and rose laughing. The ceiling was also padded, so that he had not hurt himself.

The sandwiches were wrapped in wax paper, and when some one on the edge of the crowd asked that his sandwich be tossed, Tony flipped it toward him, only to see it pass high over the man's head and strike directly out of reach, and strike against the opposite wall. The man himself stretched to catch the wrapped sandwich, aid sat down again rubbing his arm, saying that he had almost thrown his shoulder out of joint.

People walked in an absurd manner, stepping high into the air as if they were dancers. Gestures were uncontrollable, and it was unsafe to talk excitedly for fear one would hit one's self in the face. Before this condition reached its crisis, however, Henderson himself appeared in the passenger-cabin for one of his frequent visits. He arrived, not by way of the staircase, but by way of the cable which was strung tautly inside the spiral, hauling himself up hand over hand with greater ease and rapidity than was ever exhibited by any sailor. He was greeted with pleasure—any slight incident had an exaggerated effect upon the passengers; but his demeanor was serious.

"I want you all to be witnesses of the reason for this journey," he said soberly.

He switched off the lights. The screen glowed, and on it they saw the earth. For an hour the Space Ship's passengers watched silently as Bronson's Alpha swept upon the scene, a gigantic body, weird, luminous and unguessable, many times larger than the earth. It moved toward the earth with the relentless perceptibility of the hands of a large clock, and those who looked upon its awe-inspiring approach held their breaths.

Once again Henderson spoke. "What will take place now cannot be definitely ascertained. In view of the retardation of Bronson Alpha's speed caused by its collision with the moon, I have reason to believe that its course will be completely disrupted."

Inch by inch, as it seemed, the two bodies came closer together. Down there on the little earth were millions of scattered, demoralized human beings. They were watching this awful phenomenon in the skies. Around them the ground was rocking, the tides were rising, lava was bursting forth, winds were blowing, oceans were boiling, fires were catching, and human courage was facing complete frustration. Above them the sky was filled with this awful crushing mass.

They would, perhaps, in the last staggering seconds, feel themselves withdrawn from the feeble gravity of their own earth, to fall headlong toward Bronson Alpha. Tony shuddered as he watched. Earth and Bronson Alpha were but a few moments apart. It seemed as if the continents below them, as if the seas were hurling themselves upon the land; and presently they saw great cracks in the abysses of which were fire, spread along the remote dry land. Into the air were lifted mighty whirls of steam. The nebulous atmosphere of Bronson Alpha touched the air of the earth, and then the very earth bulged. Its shape altered before their eyes. It became plastic. "It was drawn out," he said. "The cracks girdled the globe. A great section of the earth itself lifted up and peeled away, leaping toward Bronson Alpha with an inconceivable force."

The two planets struck. Decillions of tons of mass colliding in cosmic catastrophe. "It's not direct," Duquesne shouted. "Oh, G—! Perhaps."

Steam, fire, smoke. Tongues of flame from the center of the earth. The planets ground together and then moved across each other. It was like watching an eclipse. The magnitude of the disaster was veiled by hot gases and stupendous flames, and was diminished in awfulness by the intervening distances and by the seeming slowness with which it took place.

Bronson Alpha rode between them and the earth. Then—on its opposite side—fragments of the shattered world reappeared. Distance showed between them—widening, scattering distance. Bronson Alpha moved, away on its terrible course, fiery, spread enormously in ghastly light.

The views on the visagrap charged quickly. The sun showed his furious flames. The telescopic periscopes concentrated on the fragments of the earth. "They're calculating," Henderson said.

During a lull of humble voices Kyoto could be heard praying to strange gods in Japanese. Eliot James drummed on the padded floor with monotonous finger tips. Tony clenched Eve's hand. Time passed—it seemed hours. A man hurried down the spiral staircase. He went directly to Henderson.

Henderson's voice was tense. "Tell us."

"They have seen the first result," Von Beitz replied. "The earth is shattered. Unquestionably much of its matter merged with Bronson Alpha; but most is scattered in fragments of various masses which will assume orbits of their own about the sun."

"And Bronson Alpha?" "It seems to have been deflected, so that it will follow a hyperbolic into space."

"Hyperbolic, eh? That means," Henderson explained loudly, "we will have seen the last of Bronson Alpha. It will not return to the sun. It will leave our solar system forever. And Bronson Beta?" Henderson turned to the German.

"As we have hoped, the influence of Bronson Alpha over Bronson Beta is ended. The collision occurred at a moment which found Bronson Beta at a favorable point in its orbit. Favorable, I mean, for us. Bronson Beta will not follow Alpha into space. Its orbit becomes independent; Bronson Beta, almost surely, will circle the sun."

Some of the women burst out crying in a hysteria of relief. The world was gone; they had seen it shattered; but another would take its place. For the first time they succeeded in feeling this.

A short time later, a man arose to bring the women water; he remained suspended in the air. "Tony reached up and turned on the lights. The man who floated was sinking slowly toward the floor, his face blank with amazement. "We have come," announced Tony loudly, "very close to the point between Bronson Beta and Bronson Alpha, where the gravity of one neutralizes the gravity of the other. Bronson Alpha and the fragments of our world, pulling one way, strike an equilibrium here with the pull of Bronson Beta, which we are approaching."

Tony's heart raced. It was difficult to breathe; he felt himself faint, dizzy and nauseated. His brain reeled.

The air was becoming filled with people. The slightest motion was sufficient to cause one to depart from whatever anchorage one had. Tony saw Henderson going hand over hand on the cable toward the stair, ascending head foremost, his feet trailing out behind him.

"That was all he remembered. He fell into coma. When his senses returned he was lying on something hard and cold. He explored it with his fingers, and realized dully that it was the glass screen which projected the periscope views. It was the ceiling, then, on which the passengers were lying in a tangled heap, and not the deck. Their positions had been reversed. He thought that he was stone deaf, and then perceived that the noise of the motors had stopped entirely. They were falling toward Bronson Beta, using gravity and their own inertia to sustain that downward flight. He understood why he had seen Henderson pulling himself along the staircase. Henderson had been transferring to the control room at the opposite end of the ship.

The passengers were breathing, gasping, hiccupping; their hearts were pounding; their faces were stark white; but they seemed to be alive. Tony knew they would be all right as soon as the gravity from Bronson Beta became stronger. He knew that the voyage was more than half finished. He fell into a state between sleep and coma.

Some one woke him. "We're eating. How about a sandwich?" He sat up. The gravity was still very slight, but an hour later conditions were improved for moving about the chamber, by the starting of the motors which were to decelerate the ship. The floor was firm again. On the screen at their feet they could see Bronson Beta. It was white like an immense moon, but veiled in clouds. Here and there bits of its superficial geography were visible. In four hours the deceleration had been greatly increased. In six, Bronson Beta was visibly spreading on the screen. Deceleration held them tightly on the floor, but they could crawl across each other laboriously, and in turn stare at the floating, cloudy sphere upon which they expected to arrive.

The hours dragged more, even, than they had on the outward journey. A word of warning went through the ship. The passengers took another drink of water, ate another mouthful of food, and once again strapped themselves to the floor. Henderson turned on more power.

A half hour passed, and he did not budge. His face was taut. The dangers of space had been met. Now came the last great test. At his side again was Duquesne. So great was the pressure of retardation that it was almost impossible for him to move, and yet it was necessary to do so with great delicacy. A fractional miscalculation would mean that all his work had gone for nothing.

In the optical instrument to which he screwed his eyes, he stared at a bright foaming mass of what looked like clouds. A vast abyss separated him from those clouds, and yet its distance shortened rapidly. He looked at the gauge that measured their altitude from the surface of the planet, and at the gauge which reckoned their speed. Suddenly the clouds seemed to rush up toward him.

Henderson pressed a stud. The retardation was perceptibly increased. Sound began to pour in awful volumes to their ears. Suddenly Henderson's lips jerked spasmodically, and a quiver ran through the hand on the rheostat. He pointed toward the screen with his free hand, and they had their first view of the new world.

Majority Have Black Hair The vast majority of mankind have black hair, and eyes showing various shades of brown.

Flour Contention in U. S. According to government estimates the annual flour consumption in the United States is about 100 pounds for each man, woman and child, says Pathfinder Magazine. About 85 pounds of this is used in the form of bread (125 loaves) and the remaining 15 in the form of cakes, pastries, etc. It requires slightly less than four bushels of wheat to produce this amount.

"After the Storm—Calm" The most usual form of the proverb "The calm after the storm" is "After a storm comes a calm"; this is found in several languages. Shakespeare uses it in Othello: "If after every tempest come such calms." Dryden, Moore, Thomson and other poets refer to the calm following a storm. Thomson, among others, also refers to the "boding silence" prevailing just before a tempest. Dryden says: "A horrid stillness first invades the air, and in that silence are the tempests born."

Heavy Fighting Reported as Greek Government Seeks to Put Down Insurrection—Senator Robinson Scores Huey Long in Heated Senate Session.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

© Western Newspaper Union.

THE Greek government is making a grim effort to stamp out the fast growing revolt which started in Crete and has spread to the mainland. Greek government planes bombed the home in Crete of former Premier Eleutherios Venizelos, and also struck at five naval vessels manned by rebels standing off the shore of Crete. Venizelos is openly heading the forces of sedition, and reports say, has seized $1,000,000 from the Canea treasury to finance the revolt.

The rebellion has been plotted for a whole year, and broke when 20 naval officers, both active and retired, seized the Salamis arsenal. As the revolt spread, rebels boarded the five warships while the crews were ignorant of the plan, and put under stress. Government planes were dispatched to the scene and pursued the rebel ships down the Aegean sea. The cruiser Averoff was struck by an aerial bomb while the vessel lay in Souda bay, near Crete, and the two other ships were reported to have been overtaken and bombed near the island of Cythera with undetermined damage.

Martial law prevailed throughout the country; rail, telephone and telegraphic communications have been cut off and normal activities suspended.

Heavy fighting with serious losses on both sides have been reported in the Struma valley, and in the Macedonian city of Kavalla. Fear has been expressed that the country will be plunged into a factional civil war of unestimated proportions. The government has offered amnesty to the rebel troops if they capitulate peacefully.

Saloniki harbor has been heavily mined in preparation for an attack by the rebel fleet, and land batteries have been reinforced by heavy caliber naval guns. Eight additional classes have been called to the colors as wounded troops pour into Saloniki from the battlefield. The government claims 100,000 loyal troops, 60 airplanes and a quantity of heavy motorized artillery are ready, although good part of this equipment is said to be old and defective.

A report from Alexandria claims that Venizelos has abandoned Crete and fled toward Egypt.

Justice Holmes was born in Boston, the son of the noted American poet of the same name. He entered Harvard and was in his senior year when the Civil War began. He enlisted as a lieutenant, was promoted to a captain and retired with the rank of colonel. He was wounded three times. After the war he returned to school and obtained his law degree. In 1882, Holmes was elevated to the Supreme court of Massachusetts, and in 1902, President Roosevelt appointed him to the United States Supreme court. On October 4, 1902, when he was eighty-seven years old, he became the oldest man ever to sit on the bench of the Supreme court. He retired in January, 1932.

SENATE administration leaders

Have decided to virtually abolish NRA when it expires in June, and set up in its place a plan of self-government in business, eliminating present coercive measures, and giving over administrative functions of the new program to the federal trade commission. This would end one of the administration's most spectacular and far-reaching experiments. In its general form, the plan calls for permission to join in voluntary codes regulating trade practices and eliminating unfair competition. Price fixing will be outlawed. Business and industry will agree to minimum wages and maximum hours, and only when these standards are violated, can the government apply compulsory codes.

At the same time United States District Judge W. C. Borah, in New Orleans, denied a government petition to compel a box manufacturer to comply with the maximum hour and minimum wage provisions of the lumber code, ruling that the national industrial recovery act is unconstitutional. The ruling is expected to bring before the United States Supreme court the constitutionality of the interstate commerce clause of the lumber code.

THAT "ancient repository of dignity," the senate, has been treated to an exhibition of personalities, vituperation, barely avoided its fire encounters, and a general up-roar, centering about Senator Long that should set a record for even that august body. Goaded into action by the almost daily tirades of Louisiana's Kingfish, majority leader Joe Robinson of Arkansas arose, white with rage, and let loose a castigation designed to blast the irrepressible Long into submission. Robinson appealed to the senate to assert itself and put Long, whom he called "a madman," in his place. Vice President Garner and more than a dozen senators shook hands with Robinson when he closed, and galleries applauded until the chair threatened to clear them. It had no perceptible effect on Long other than to cause him to rush back to the senate chamber, and renew his attack on Robinson.

The next day Huey precipitated another verbal free-for-all when he resumed his one-man campaign against Postmaster Farley and the New Deal in general. Long charged that Farley was instrumental in quashing an indictment against a bank in which Norman Davis, "ambassador at large," was interested. For his trouble, Kingfish received a liberal supply of ridicule. He also sent to the senate post office committee a letter in which the accusation was made that Farley is "profiting" from 25 business concerns in New York city, involving violation of four criminal statutes. When questioned, Farley said he had no statement to make.

CHANCELLOR HUEY was not pleased with an announcement that Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, would visit him to discuss the proposed Anglo-British pact. He sent word that he had a "cold" and could not see Sir John. Officials in London derided Hitler's cold, and attribute it to the fact that Hitler is determined to say when the visit will be acceptable. High sources in Germany have intimated that Hitler will not welcome Sir John unless Britain recognizes Germany's equality.

ITALIAN government officials state that nearly 1,000 aviators and several squadrons of planes have sailed for East Africa, and that a second wave of troops has been started to join the 20,000 already massed in Somalia. General Graziani has been named governor of Somalia, and commander of the troops.

FACING its third "revolutionary general strike" in fourteen months, President Carlos Medinilla's government turned the situation over to Fulgencio Batista, army commander in chief, who withdrew to bring some order out of the Cuban chaos. Nearly all government employees have joined the general strike, and those working in the Havana municipal government.

MONEY markets of the world reacted violently after President Roosevelt declared his administration would seek further jacking up of commodity prices. Stocks rallied in New York, government bonds sagged, and the falling British pound rose four cents. The President hurriedly issued another statement explaining that his advocacy of higher prices did not mean further devaluation of the dollar, at least not for the present. The first statement was made by the President at a press conference when he was asked if he believed prices had now risen sufficiently to warrant stabilization. He replied that they had not; that they were still too low in relation to debts.

KOKI HIROTA, Japanese foreign minister, sees in the dispute over settlement of Japanese farmers in Arizona, a spark which may ignite flames of discontent and cause regrettable consequences between Japan and the United States, he told the lower house of the Japanese diet. He expressed extreme regret that American authorities had not been able to settle the matter, and said he was pressing for an early solution. Exclusion of the Japanese has been asked under the alien land ownership law, and it is probable that no fundamental solution can be arrived at until the exclusion clause of the immigration act, which has been hanging fire since 1924, has been settled.

DONALD RICHBERG, executive director of the National Emergency council, and one of the closest advisers of the President, "guaranteed" that there would be no monetary inflation as long as Franklin D. Roosevelt is President. His statement came in answer to a questioner at a lecture in Boston.

"If we are to assume that President Roosevelt will be President for the next six years, I can tell you this: I can guarantee there will be no inflation while Franklin D. Roosevelt is President," Richberg said.

He dodged further discussion of the subject, and refused to comment as to what was being done by the government internationally and nationally on monetary policies. However, Richberg did touch on the Townsend plan for payment of $200 monthly to all persons over sixty. He said:

"If everybody over sixty is to get $200 a month, you can be certain it is going to come out of the pockets of everybody between eighteen and sixty."

"When those under sixty have arrived at the unselfish attitude where they are ready to dig to pay everybody over sixty the $200 a month, there will have been a tremendous spread of real Christianity. But the government can't get the money out of thin air."

THERE seems to be no doubt about the "pink slip" clause in the income tax law being repealed. Overwhelming sentiment for its abolishment has been expressed in both houses of congress, and the house ways and means committee has already approved the resolution offered by Chairman Doughton. Polls taken disclose a heavy majority in the senate favor repeal, and both Democratic and Republican house leaders are pledged to lend their strength to prompt passage of the measure

A Personal Message

ONLY once in a great, great while is a theatre manager so impressed with a motion picture's excellence and superiority, that he is tempted to make a simple, sincere statement to his patrons and back it up with his personal signature.

This desire was never greater nor more justifiable than it is now—in the case of "THE WHITE PARADE" opening Sunday matinee for a three-day run. For seldom does a better opportunity to underwrite a picture's greatness present itself.

"THE WHITE PARADE" is such a picture—worthy of guarantee without reservation. It is a glorious story, a memorable motion picture. With it we present the first issue of "THE MARCH OF TIME ON THE SCREEN." Together they represent 2½ hours of the finest entertainment your money can buy.
