The Bottom Must Be Deep We hear Mr. Bouws of the gas headquarters being kidded a lot lately about wine, women and song or at least about the two latter, but we have never got to the bottom of it yet.

Spring Has Come Two crocus blooms, orange-colored, were out last week at the Pat Clemens home on Terre Coupe Road.

Several ladies in the vicinity of Moccasin and Third street were seen busily raking gardens and spading for spring planting the first of the week.

In Which We Get Tomato-Minded Well, all us dirt farmers was down at the Co-op Monday afternoon, listenin' to the big tomato man hold forth and if we do say it ourselves, we was quite tomato-minded before the meeting was over.

But just as we was askin' for a contract blank and was about to pledge our whole garden plot, four rods square, the tomato guy says "ten acres or we won't play with you," and the deal was all off as far as we were concerned.

Wilson McLeod Named Blossom Publicity Head

Buchananite is Appointed to Write Bud Fete Copy for More Than 200 Papers.

Buchanan, which in the few years that bloom fetes have been an annual institution in Berrien county saw two of its fair Amazons elevated to the exalted position of blossom queen, namely Gladys Dempsey and Cecelia Eisenhart, again finds itself signally honored in witnessing the selection of a Buchanan man as publicity director of the 1935 Blossom Festival.

This week, the publicity committee for this year's fete named Wilson M. McLeod, well-known Buchanan newspaper man to that post, which is the first time the powers-that-be of the bloom fete have gone beyond the confines of Benton Harbor and St. Joseph for a person to fill this important position.

Mr. McLeod has had more than 20 years experience in newspaper work, which includes service on daily papers in New York, Detroit and Pittsburgh.

Sunshine Temple Revival Continuous Until April First

Large crowds and good interest has been manifested at the revival now in progress at the Sunshine Temple. During the past week we have been favored with the presence of a number of visiting ministers, namely Bishop Barnett of Niles and Rev. Fred Miller of Ohio.

Miss Marie Post and Miss Helen Zoog of Goshen, her associate in training at Epworth hospital, in South Bend, were week-end guests at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Post.

JUDGE WHITE IS CREDITED WITH UNIQUE RECORD

Percentage of Decisions Upheld by Supreme Court Rivalled by Few Circuit Judges.

Voters of Berrien county who are interested in the election of a circuit judge on April 1, will be interested in the splendid record of Judge Charles E. White, present incumbent, who is a candidate to succeed himself in that important office.

In a letter from the circuit judges of the sixth Judicial Circuit of Michigan, dated March 16, Judge Glenn C. Gillespie writes Judge White:

"I have just completed a survey of the cases appealed to the Supreme Court from all of the circuits in Michigan from 1914 to 1934. I find that during this period 88.3% of all cases were affirmed and 11.7% were reversed.

In Washnetaw county, this state, where considerable interest is being shown in the judgeship election, a large advertisement in the Ann Arbor Daily News refers to the splendid record of Judge White of Berrien county and compares it with the apparently poor showing of their own incumbent judge.

In considering the record of Judge White it might also be stated that only one court day was lost in Berrien county during the years 1932 and 1933. Judge White spent 16 days in other courts during these years, while outside judges spent 15 days in Berrien county. Figures for 1934 are not yet available but it would seem safe to assume that this county has continued to receive the full working time of its court.

Local republicans are working zealously in the interest of Judge White's candidacy and point with pride to the efficiency of the

OLD CHICAGO ROAD OVER PORTAGE PRAIRIE HISTORIC ROUTE EMIGRANT TRAVEL IN DAYS BEFORE RAILROADS

Route Still Remains as Highway of Travel from Bertrand to New Carlisle.

Although the old Chicago road across Portage Prairie yet remains, a monument to the travel of the days before the railways, it has been largely lost to mind in the stretches of a century that the road was once an artery of emigrant travel hardly eclipsed in importance by such storied highways as the Oregon trail, the Santa Fe Trail and the old National Road through the Cumberlandlands into Central Ohio and Indiana.

Yet there are still living a few men and women who can remember when the white-topped wagons were still trailing westward over the road, and when it was a main route for drovers herding sheep and cattle on foot to Chicago from central and southern Michigan and from northern Ohio and Indiana.

Walter Mitchell, Bakertown, Dies

Funeral services were held on Wednesday from the Swem Funeral Home for Walter Mitchell, 10 year old son of Clyde and Viola Mitchell, R. R. 3, Buchanan, the services being held from the Swem Funeral Home with Rev. Paul Carpenter in charge and burial was made in Bakertown cemetery.

OLD NUTT HOME, LOCAL LANDMARK, RAZED BY FLAME

Fire Originating in Defective Flue Destroys Property of Grace M. E. Church of South Bend.

A landmark of pioneer times was destroyed with the burning of the large ten-room house on the old Joseph Nutt farm four miles north of Buchanan shortly after 6 a. m. Monday.

The Buchanan fire department was called and made a run to the scene but the flames had progressed so that the building was almost burned by the time they arrived. They kept the flames from spreading to an out-building.

The fire was believed to have originated in the attic from a defective flue. Shortly after the morning fire was built in the farm kitchen, smoke was detected in the second story and the attic was on fire. All the furnishings were saved except in one bedroom.

Local republicans are working zealously in the interest of Judge White's candidacy and point with pride to the efficiency of the

$8,000 BONDS RETIRED DURING THE PAST YEAR

City Has Cash on Hand to Carry Until Tax Payment, Instead of Borrowing as in Past Years.

Continuance of a debt retirement program which has reduced the bonded obligations of the city from $58,000 in 1930 to $23,000 at the present date, and the existence of sufficient funds in the treasury to carry all ordinary expenses until the payment of taxes in July, a situation unparalleled in several years, are outstanding features of the annual city financial report which is carried on another page of this issue.

It will be of interest to taxpayers to know that in the past year the last of the sewer bond issue of $48,000 contracted in 1928, has been entirely wiped out. On March 1, 1930, there remained of these bonds $30,000 still unpaid. This entire remainder has been wiped out during the five years of extreme depression, notwithstanding loss or temporary unavailability of funds in three closed banks, and an unparalleled relief burden, the city share of which reached $7,000 for the past year.

In addition the payment of $5,000 in waterworks extension bonds in the past year wiped out the last of the $18,000 issue made in 1918. Of this retirement, $15,000 has been paid during the five depression years since 1930.

There now remains only $23,000 in the old waterworks bonds contracted in 1893 and refinanced in 1909, to mature in 1939. Since 1930 $8,000 of the original waterworks issue of $50,000 has been paid.

Since March 1, 1930 the city has paid a total of $69,500 in bonded debt and notes. To complete the picture it is necessary to state that at present the city owes $3,500 borrowed on notes at the time of the closing of the banks, and also is obligated for $500, which later item, however, was loaned to the city to buy bonds, the interest of which is to go to the perpetual care of the Oak Ridge cemetery.

The presence of sufficient funds in the treasury to carry all ordinary expenses until the payment of summer taxes is unusual, as it has been customary for many years for the city to borrow several thousand annually in the spring to carry the expenses until July. Last year the city avoided borrowing by an arrangement with a main creditor whereby $4,000 in current expense was carried until summer taxes came in.

4th 4 1/4 Liberty Loans Called for Redemption Apr. 15

Notice has been received by the Gallen-Buchanan State bank from Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Secretary of the Treasury, Washington, D. C., that all of the U. S. Government Fourth 4 1/4 Liberty Bonds ending with the terminal digits 5, 6, and 7 have been called for redemption on April 15th.

Mr. Morgenthau advises the local bank that these securities can be exchanged for new U. S. Treasury Bonds bearing 2 1/2% interest due 1955-60 if presented to your bank on or before Wednesday, Mar. 27, 1935.

The holders of these securities who wish to reinvest their funds in U. S. Bonds are urged to check over their bonds and present them for exchange at the earliest possible date.

CAMPBELL SOUP CO. COMPLETES CONTRACTS HERE

New Industry to Add Largely to Local Cash Income, Furnish Labor to Trucks and Hand Workers.

Three hundred and fifty Buchanan farmers assembled in two consecutive audiences at the Buchanan Co-ops auditorium Monday afternoon to hear the offer of the representatives of the Campbell Soup Company for contracts for tomatoes for their Chicago plant.

The Campbell Soup Company opened their Chicago tomato plant last year and contracted mainly in Illinois and southern Wisconsin. They contracted fifty acres on Portage Prairie, the returns from which were so encouraging that they decided to buy the Buchanan district for a tentative experiment project of about 300 acres this year.

Many farmers were prevented from contracting by the company's stipulation that no contract of less than ten acres would be accepted. They stated that they made this requirement because the problem of transportation might be difficult in smaller acreages.

It is felt that if the contracts are continued here they will result in a very satisfactory distribution of farm income here. The returns average about $160 per acre, or $48,000 from 300 acres. Considerable of this amount will necessarily be distributed locally to truckers and labor at planting and picking time.

Will Rogers is Fire-Eating Political Boss in New Film

Will Rogers has played an amazing variety of roles. In the fifteen talking pictures he has made to date, the star has been an oil millionaire, a mid-western farmer, a hermit, a meat packer, a druggist, a Kentucky judge and many other things.

But until now Will has never enacted the role for which he is perhaps best fitted of all—a politician. In real life he is one of the best-informed and keenest students of politics in the entire country but until he made "The County Chairman," which will begin a three day run commencing next Sunday matinee at the Hollywood, he has never had an opportunity to transfer such a character to the screen.

North Buchanan

The Redbud Club met at the home of Miss Vivian Russell Wednesday, March 20. Luncheon was played, prizes being won by Mrs. Freda Wallace, Miss Dorothy Vincent, Mrs. Pearl Fryman, and Mrs. Ella Decker. Guest prizes were won by Mrs. Milford Fuller and Mrs. Mildred Gess. Plans were made for a potluck dinner to be held in two weeks at the home of Mrs. Pearl Fryman.

Silk Armor Long Used

Because of its remarkable ability to deaden blows and even stop certain bullets, silk armor has been used in many countries from earliest times almost to the present day. In fact, writes H. L. Berg, Blue Ash, Ohio, in Collier's Weekly, thousands of English soldiers were padded silk neckties during the World War. Incidentally, Archduke Francis Ferdinand, whose assassination started the war, wore a vest of silk armor on the day he was shot in the head in Sarajevo, Serbia.

"The County Chairman," written by George Ade, tells a mirthful, shrewd and dramatic story of small-town politics in a day when American village life was far more colorful and isolated than it is today.

Will is seen in a role suited to his talents—that of a fire-eating boss who owns the town, but who gives more than he takes throughout his career. He's a small-town desperado, with plenty of big town ideas.

In "The County Chairman," the support of many well-known players who have appeared with him in earlier pictures. Louise Dresser, Evelyn Venable, Kent Taylor, Bertton Churchill, Mickey Rooney and Stepin Fetchit.

Michigan Gas & Electric Company

Duchanor, Mich.

March 21, 1935

Dear Friend:

Your radio is modern—your automobile—your dress and hat.

GAS is modern and you have it—but do you own all of its conveniences?

GAS for COOKING? YES! But is your gas range—insulated—automatic—equipped with sanitary cooking top?

DOES your home have automatic GAS-HEATED water? It needs no human hand or human thought. It reduces all of your actions to one—opening the faucet.

Come in and see these MODERN devices at our showrooms—they are priced low and sold on terms.

There is no reason why you cannot enjoy these services—their operating costs are surprisingly low.

Yours very truly,
Mich. Gas & Elec. Co.

STOMACH TROUBLE?

Mrs. Cora E. Cain of 21 Spruce St., Akron, Ohio, said: "A little less than a year ago my daughter, Marie (shown) was a physical wreck due to stomach trouble. After giving her Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery I soon noticed a change in her and she kept on improving. She surely is a different girl—no more crying spells, eats and sleeps well, and her teachers often remark about the difference in her school work." New size, tablets 50 cts., liquid $1.00.

BERRIEN COUNTY PARENT-TEACHER ASSOC. APRIL 4

To Assemble at St. Joseph Y. M. C. A. for Annual Election and Assembly.

Berrien County Parent Teacher groups will hold their annual meeting at the Y. W. C. A. in St. Joseph Thursday, April 4, beginning at 10 o'clock E. S. T. Election of officers and short reports from local presidents will be a part of the day's program.

Plans will be completed for delegates to attend the state P. T. A. convention at Bay City the last week in April. Arrangements have been made for a bus to carry 40 passengers. Associations belonging to the county council will be given first place for their delegate. Other delegates will then be accepted until the quota is full.

See that your dues have been sent to Mrs. R. N. Mongreig, Stevensville. Delegates names may be sent to Mrs. R. N. Smith, Water-vliet. This is a real opportunity.

The morning discussion on "Tuberculosis" by Mrs. Stebbins from the Pine Crest sanatorium, will give us much information on this most dreaded disease and what is being done for its cure and prevention. Also something about Berrien county's plan of caring for school children. Mrs. Stebbins is a delightful speaker.

The outstanding feature on the afternoon program will be the county music program. Following resolutions passed at the mid-winter meeting, practical plans for teaching vocal music were worked out. A chorus of children from Sorters school will open the program. Teaching plans will be discussed by Mrs. Sarah Shine, who began the traveling teacher method on March 18 in nine schools. Mrs. Jennie Mecham will speak on the value and place of music in rural schools.

Installation of officers is to be a new feature on the county program.

Groups are invited to bring picnic lunches. Arrangements are made for coffee at 5c a cup and small tables are available. All Parent-Teacher groups are cordially invited.

The following program will be given:

Morning session convening at 10 a. m. E. S. T. Community singing; 10:15, invocation; 10:25, singing session, election of officers, reports of presidents; 11:20 "Tuberculosis, Its Cure and Prevention," Mrs. Stebbins, Pine Crest Sanatorium. Adjournment.

Afternoon session at 1:15. Children's chorus, Sorter school; "What We Teach in School," Mrs. Sarah Shine; 1:45, "Value and Place of Music in Rural Schools," Mrs. Jennie Mecham. Installation of County officers, Mrs. E. M. Totzke; State Convention plans, reports and other business.

Adjournment, 3:30.

Mrs. M. J. Langthorn has arrived from South Bend to make her home with her daughter, Mrs. F. E. Holley.

COUNTY I. O. O. F. REBEKAH MEET HERE MARCH 27

Buchanan, Galien and Berrien Center to Hold Joint Meeting Here Tuesday.

Big events in Odd Fellow circles are in store, culminating in the meeting of the Berrien County Odd Fellow and Rebekah Association here next Wednesday evening, March 27, at which an attendance of 300 from some twenty lodges is anticipated.

On Tuesday evening at the local hall a class of 19 from Galien and four from Buchanan received the first degree. Tomorrow night the members of the local lodge will journey to Galien, where the second degree will be conferred on the same class. Next Tuesday night at the local hall the third degree will be conferred on a class of candidates from Buchanan, Galien and Berrien Center, with all three lodges attending.

March 29, the losers of the Encampment contest will entertain the winners at a fish supper. On the following night the local encampment will take a class of candidates to South Bend for a Tri-County meeting, at which the Patriarchal degree will be conferred by Encampment 9, South Bend.

Stepping Sisters Entertainment Hit At Clark Theatre

"It was a grand little play—ask the man who saw it," is about as adequate a description of the presentation of "Stepping Sisters" by the Playbox Thursday evening as can be made.

This particular writer has always shied nervously from appraisals of the work of individual players in amateur production, first, because it would be only his opinion anyway, and not a very informed opinion at that, and secondly, there is always an educational side to be considered.

It can be fairly said, however, that the production gave evidence of excellent training and that all were good and several were stars. The Playbox has fairly won its spurs as an organization for the presentation of good plays, and worthwhile entertainment. It is to be hoped that the audience who witnessed the event will all be good boosters for future plays.

Mrs. Ralph Sebesty is suffering from a felon on her finger.

Mrs. Floyd Allsopp of Dayton is much improved from severe illness at Pawating hospital.

Total Quarantine 220 in Epidemic Measles Now Waning

An epidemic of measles reported to be the most extensive in number of cases of any epidemic of any disease in many years is now in the recession, with a total to date of 220 quarantines, and an additional number of cases suspected as measles but not reported.

The city health officer stated that many local people apparently do not realize the necessity of reporting such cases to the city, on pain of possible penalty.

Home owners who have measles quarantine cards now on their homes are requested to return them to the city health officer and save future printing expense to the city.

When the Bank Asks for A FINANCIAL STATEMENT

When you ask for a loan, and the banker asks you for a statement, do not resent this as implying doubt of your ability or assets; or as a meddlesome "nosing" into your private affairs.

Your banker, even though he may have known and done business with you for years, must still ask for a statement when you borrow money, because in that way only can he show his directors and the bank examiners that his loans are justified by facts and figures.

When your banker asks for a statement, he is not questioning you; he is following the rules of sound banking and justifying himself as a banker worthy of the name.

G. A. A. Girls Ankle to Niles in 5 Mile Hike

The G. A. A. girls ventured on a hike to Niles last Saturday afternoon accompanied by Miss Lois Boyer.

Meeting at the corner of Front and Fortage streets, the girls left town about one o'clock for a stern hike.

While at Niles, they attended the Ready Taft in "Ret Hot Tires." The girls who braved the trip were: Georgia Upson, Emeline Delibac, Mary Heiermann, Ruth Wilsey, Margaret DeWitt, Dorothy Jerue, Bernadine Reinke, Iris Dalrymple, Mary Mae Dretzler, Shirley Trapp, Ruth Beardsley, Margaret Furner, Thelma Heckathorne and Margaret Huss.

Junior Hi Cagers Are Defeated by Niles Striplings

The Little Bucks journeyed to Niles Monday, March 11, and suffered a licking, in fact, two of them. The high point getters were Trapp for the Bucks with two field goals and two free throws, and Cook of Niles with three field goals and two free throws.

The second team, which won a hard fought decision at home, lost by a score of 15 to 19. The main point getters were Simpson of the Bucks with 5 points and McOmber of Niles with 7 points.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY

The weekly general assembly program was held last Friday afternoon in the high school auditorium by a group of teachers on the subject of "Citizenship."

Participants in the first skit were Tom Fitch, George Lauver, and Theodore Fiefer; second skit, Marion Miller, Charles Wesner, Dorothy Dunlap; third skit, Geneva Troutfetter, Lillias Peacock, and a group of 7th and 8th graders; fourth skit: Bob Irvin, Jerry White, Shirley Trapp; fifth, Donabelle DeWitt and a group of students; sixth, Donald Beck, Keith Dalrymple, Philip Birong, Richard Donley; seventh, Dale Lyon, Keith Dalrymple and John Fulks.

FAULTY PARTY

A faculty party was held Wednesday, March 13, at 6 p. m. in the sewing room of the high school building. Supper, which consisted of waffles, sausages, grapefruit, and coffee, was served by a committee consisting of Miss Shriver, Miss Bender, Miss Anderson, and Miss Carnagan. The waffle bakers were Mr. Stark, Mr. Miller, Mr. P. J. Moore and Mr. Wynn. Each one was provided with a dainty apron and bandeau which were very becoming.

The tables were attractively decorated and a good time was had by all. At least you would have thought so had you stood near the room from which peals of mirth and laughter issued. You would have laughed yourself had you seen the busy waffle bakers at work, or was it play? They must have had some experience before because only a few were scorched or burned. A pretty good record, eh?

Announcements

Spring vacation will start tomorrow night. There was a cooking school here Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday afternoons, March 18, 19 and 20, in the high school auditorium.

The general assembly of March 22 will be in charge of Miss Lucille Quade.

A superintendents' meeting was held at Eau Claire Monday evening March 18.

The gym show will be held tonight and Friday March 21 and 22.

EDITORIAL

The position of the school librarian in his or her efforts to keep the library orderly during classes or after is a ticklish one. It is the duty of the librarian to keep order and see that everyone possible has a chance to get what he needs. But how is a librarian to accomplish this?

After all, a librarian does not possess the full authority of a teacher. He is but a student. He cannot peremptorily tell Johnny to shush and be sure Johnny will. He cannot demand that Mary find what she is looking for and then leave, instead of idling her time away, and expect that Mary will do it as she would if it had been a teacher. The few times a librarian does demand these things, she is immediately labeled an "old crab," a "grouch," and a few other names applied to people with downward lines in their faces.

Students, take pity on the librarians' plight. Give them your co-operation with a little cheerfulness. They need it.

Bob Squier is Showing Indications Being Air-Minded

Are there young aviators and aviatrixes popping up in Buchanan?

This week, Bob Squier, sophomore, was carrying some pictures of airplanes autographed personally by Charles Kingsford Smith, Wiley Post and others. Bob's brother, Carl Squier, is the vice-president and sales-manager for the Lockheed Air Corporation in Burbank, Calif., and he procured these pictures for Bob.

Well, can Bob's friends imagine the happy look on his face when the postman gave this package to him?

Ambitious or What? My goodness, but these sophomores are an ambitious bunch of youngsters. Quite a few of them received all A's and besides they are so helpful to any senior who is in distress.

On one occasion a sophomore girl even picked up some papers that a senior girl dropped. Keep it up, sophs, you have a good start!

Librarians' Meeting The librarians met last Monday evening and had a lesson on simple mending of books, which included tipping in of pages and pasting the cover of books on.

Sea Scout Meeting Sea Scouts met Tuesday evening at 7:30 at the Legion hall. The evening was spent on true and false questions, concerning astronomy. Points were given to Seardler crew, who received the most points, defeating crew No. 1 by one point.

Tom Yurkovic, William Kuntz, and Arthur Trapp passed tests on how to use the life belt and buoy.

SENIORS HOLD MEETING To finish up some old business the senior class met in Mr. Hyink's room Thursday.

Voting whether or not to take a trip to Chicago on senior skip day was one of the problems presented to the class. The class also voted on what to leave the school as a gift from the senior class. It was decided that a score board for the football field would be the gift to be strived for.

Mrs. Dunbar, the senior class adviser, handed out pamphlets on vocational topics for going to college.

Grade News The pupils of the grade school fully enjoyed the art collection recently brought to the school and seem to have taken an increased interest in good pictures. They wish to thank all who helped in any way to make the exhibit a success. From the proceeds realized, they were enabled to purchase four fine pictures:

"Autumn" by Ernst, "Pioneers" by Amick, "Can't You Talk" by Holmes, "The Swing" by Hencke.

Music One of the boasts of Mr. Robinson, the music instructor of the Buchanan high school, is that the glee club has been asked to sing over station WSBT, South Bend. At the present time the club is rehearsing for that event.

Using two dollars' worth of "night oil" is what Mr. Robinson claims to have done this week writing music for different parts of orchestra.

The high school orchestra furnished music for the play at the Clark theatre Thursday night.

More or Less Straight Dope On the Diamond

"Danny" Topash, senior of Buchanan high school, and an all around athlete, has succeeded in gaining a tryout on the Eau Claire Bears pitching staff.

Last season Topash, who is a right-handed speed-ball pitcher, pitched for the Buchanan Arrows.

It has been reported that Louis Letter, a last year's graduate from Buchanan high school, has been doing noticeable work around first base, with the Boston Braves.

Velmarian Lit Will Present Its Monthly Program

This week Friday the Velmarian Literary Society will present their monthly program. The unit to be presented is Poetry and Drama. The program is as follows: Gentle Master Spencer, Clarence Bradley.

Gertrude Stein, Lillias Peacock. Modern Poetry, Janet Kelley. Aeschylus and O'Neill, Marguerite Babcock. Most Splendid of Elizabethans, Ben Jonson, Mary Jane Zerbe.

Class Activities

English 7, 11, 12 To study metrical tales and ballads is the work of the seniors. Finishing the study unit on Johnson and starting the romantic writers is the work of the juniors. Looking up dictionary meanings and synonyms occupies the time for the 7th graders.

Grade News A Viking project is nearing completion in Miss Ekstrom's fifth grade. It began with a study of the Scandinavian peninsula. The teacher read, "Rindeer of the Waves" to the children. It is a story of a Viking boy who found and rescued his father from the hands of an outlaw who has unfairly defeated him in a battle. The children have illustrated the story by drawing pictures of the events. They have made Viking ships, helmets and shields. A group will work out a scene on the sandtable. At present we are reading the old Norse tales.

Mrs. French's fifth grade entertained Miss Ekstrom's fifth grade with an auditorium program, Wednesday afternoon. The program was the outcome of a review of European geography.

Russell Leazenby spelled down his class in Mrs. French's fifth grade.

In that room they are reading from the health readers. Foods, their choice and preparation, has furnished material for study. They have learned health rules and have written letters to friends telling about their health rules. Each child is keeping a health chart.

Miss Abell's sixth grade is making a bird calendar and keeping a record of spring birds. They are also making a color chart and are coloring and painting people. In a spell-down, the girls beat the boys. Barbara Swartz spelled the whole room down.

Miss Ream's room is studying bills, receipts, and writing checks. The children of the first grade at the high school building are fixing a Dutch project on the sand table. They have made gayly colored windmills for it and have learned some songs about the Dutch people. Their language lessons have been about the same subject.

Miss Bohl's third grade has completed their study of winter birds, having made bird booklets. They have placed suet around the trees and have attracted blue jays and nut hatches.

The fourth grade at the high school is swimming the Reading channel. The people finishing with the best test scores are Phyllis Carlisle, Robert Bachman, Catherine Babcock, Richard Snodgrass, Geneva Williams, Robert Mullen, Janice Walters, William Montgomery, Richard Trapp, Hubert Conant and Laura Heiermann.

The best arithmetic workers are Catherine Babcock, Phyllis Carlisle, Frances Fuller, Richard Snodgrass, Mona Weaver and Geneva Williams. They have finished a list of 246 long division problems successfully.

Science The mechanical effects of electrical current has been studied by the senior physics class. They have also studied the direct current motor.

The chemistry classes have been working on carbon and carbon compounds. This requires a special branch of chemistry which is organic chemistry. There are over 200,000 carbon compounds. The class saw a moving picture "The Refining of Crude Petroleum."

Study of electricity in the home, and the purposes of transformers and fuses have all been studied in the general science class. The calculation of electric light bills and the use of the electric motors have also been completed.

Commercial Department The shorthand students completed the disjointed prefixes. This week they are learning several new phrasing principles. Friday they will have work on dictation and transcription of business letters.

Typing telegrams and messages from rough drafts keep the first year typists busy.

Bills and statements is the typing work for the 12th grade. The first month's work in the practice set has been finished by bookkeeping students.

Mathematics Fire insurance, life insurance, and taxation are the types of businesses worked with by the 8th grade arithmetic classes. The 7th grade students are working with bank slips, and balances, and deposit slips. Studying defenses, discharges, interests, and usury keeps the Commercial Law class occupied.

History The powers of congress to tax and to regulate commerce is the chapter being studied by the 12th grade history class.

The 10th grade is studying the French Revolution. Needs and forms of government is the chapter that is occupying the time of the 9th and 10th grade citizenship class.

Home Ec The 7th grade Home Economics classes are working on the breaking fast foods. They are now pre-

Chicago Road Over Portage Prairie Historic Route

 the same year that Congress voted in Michigan in 1837.

But when the lands to the south had been settled westward to the Mississippi and the Missouri, the Erie Canal was opened in 1825, the Chicago road was surveyed in the same year from Detroit to Chicago and the stage was set for more than two decades of travel over the northern route.

The great emigrant horde that thronged the Chicago road in an almost continuous stream of traffic in the thirties and forties, came from several sources, but mainly by the Erie Canal and by steamer from Buffalo to Detroit, or by the Genesee Pike which was the westward extension by land of the Erie Canal. The Genesee Pike skirted the southern edge of Lake Erie past Cleveland and left the lake near Toledo, crossing the Maumee river and striking northwest to a junction with the Chicago road in Lenawee county. Other wagon trains came from New York state through Canada, crossing into the States at Detroit and following the Chicago road west.

There were several other feeder roads from the south crossing the Ohio and Indiana state lines, the last in progression westward being the Michigan road, which came north from Indianapolis through Logansport to South Bend and thence west to Michigan City, where it joined the Chicago road.

It was a mixed and motley stream of travel that poured over the road in the days of its glory. Most of the travel consisted of emigrants from northern and western New York state, New England, and the regions of Pennsylvania and New Jersey immediately to the south. In it the light-narrow-tread Yankee wagon predominated but there were doubtless many of the great heavy wagons of the Conestoga type, specimens of which may be seen in the Studebaker museum in South Bend and in the Chicago Historical Society museum. The travel over the trail was then more difficult from the fact that the Yankee wagon was narrow-tread and would not travel in the same track.

The Yankee wagon finally predominated and became the prototype of the wagon used universally throughout the north and central west and which was manufactured in large quantities in other days in South Bend and Niles and at the Rough Wagon Works in Buchanan.

The Yankee wagon was lighter and handier than the Pennsylvania wagon, and more useful for farm hauling. It was developed in New England and in northern New York, and reflected the development of the needs of small farmers. The farm wagons still in use today have the same width of wheel tread and are built on the same lines. They were suitable for draught with two horses or oxen.

The Pennsylvania or Conestoga wagons were far heavier, and were developed for heavy freighting in the mountain regions of western Pennsylvania, when the main westward route for heavy freight was through that region to Pittsburgh to connect with the flatboats and steamboats of the Ohio river. When the Erie Canal and the Great Lakes freight routes were opened its era of large scale usefulness ended. Its heavy stability reflected the character of the German farmers of Conestoga township, Pennsylvania, where its manufacture originated. It was admirably adapted to freighting in a rough country. It had a curved bottom like a boat, to prevent its load from slipping backward and forward, and the front and back cover bows slanted outward at an angle of 45 degrees. The tongue did not drop when the wheelers were unhitched but was a still pole. In the rear of the wagon hung the "St. Andrews cross" consisting of two timbers crossed in X-shape and on the side of the wagon was a heavy feed box. When the teamster stopped to feed at the Cottage Hill tavern, he would put the cross under the outer end of the tongue to support it and bolt the feedbox to the wagon tongue, hitching his teams on either side. On the axle between the rear wheels was the tar bucket.

Over Breakfast Coffee

(By A. C. Clapp)
 Spring begins Thursday, March 21, (today) at 8:18 a. m. when the sun passing along the ecliptic crosses the celestial equator and brings a trainload of heat to the north.

This carrier system of operating over sky high switch tracks bears slight resemblance to the fragrant breezes and bright flowers which it ushers in. Yet, try as he may, this writer can think of no better scheme of celestial mechanics for bringing about the return of the seasons.

Drove over to the gas station to get the car greased. The attendant said, "What are your books?" I: "Shakespeare." Attendant: "I never could get to like Shakespeare." I: "This Merry Wives of Windsor" is a comical, witty story and a dandy play. If you saw it on the screen you would say it was a humdinger." And he would, too.

THE NARRATIVE

CHAPTER I.—David Ransdell, approaching New York on the liner Europa, received a succession of diagrams offering him $1,000, finally $25,000, for an exclusive newspaper interview on the mission that brings him from South Africa. Ransdell, noted aviator, has been secretly stationed at Cape Town by Lord Rhondin and Professor Bronson, his astronomer, to fly across the Atlantic in the liner, with a large traveling case containing photographic plates. His instructions are to secure the Dr. Cole Henderson, in New York. Tony Drake calls at the Henderson apartment and finds the doctor and Eve Henderson, with whom Tony is deeply in love, introduces Tony to Ransdell.

CHAPTER II.—New York newspaper publisher and scientist Henderson and concurred in by sixty of the world's greatest scientists. The preparedness movement made Professor Bronson has discovered two planets, which must have broken away from our solar system and traveled through interstellar space for an incalculable time, until they came to Earth. The collision of these planets brought them at last under the attraction of the sun. The statement, made by Henderson, is that the collision has been modified by the sun, and as a result, they are approaching Earth. The result of the inevitable collision must be the end of the earth. The approaching planets are Bronson Beta, the larger, and Bronson Alpha, the smaller—about the size of the earth, and revolving about Bronson Beta as the moon does about the earth.

CHAPTER III.—"It's going to be doomsday, isn't it?" Tony Drake asks Eve. "No, Tony—more than doomsday. Doomsday is the day that tells him. She explains that the first time the Bronson bodies approach Earth, they will be destroyed, but the second time, one, Bronson Beta, will pass, and the other will hit the earth. The result of the collision will be the destruction of the earth. The members of the League of the Last Days.

CHAPTER IV.—Henderson tells Tony he is to be the pilot of the selected crew of the projected Space Ship which Henderson plans to build. With the idea of flying to Bronson Beta, and the scientist advises him to gain a knowledge of agriculture and proficiency in many arts and elementary mechanics. Tony rounds up suitable men and women to be on the ship as a crew. Henderson established in northern Michigan. Just before the launch, Henderson returns to New York to report to Henderson the existing conditions throughout the country.

CHAPTER V.—Henderson has not been able to find a metal or an alloy which will withstand the heat of the sun. He has decided to use a mixture of metal and plastic in propelling the Space Ship. The night before Henderson and his immediate family return to Michigan as the tides rush through the streets of New York.

CHAPTER VI.—The tides sweep back to the ocean from the east and to the mountains on the Pacific side, and quakes change the surface of the earth. The Washington government moves as many millions as possible to the west coast. Henderson and his party leave New York for the continent.

CHAPTER VII.—Bronson Alpha collides with the moon and wipes it out. Ransdell and Elliot James, an English poet whom Henderson has invited to join the crew, are on an aerial reconnaissance, as the Henderson colony is in ignorance of conditions elsewhere. They return safely, reporting almost universal destruction and a reign of lawlessness throughout the country.

CHAPTER VIII.—Three weeks later, Ransdell, with Peter Vandenberg, prominent New Yorker, selected by Henderson as a member of the crew, fly over a large section of the devastated country. They are attacked by a band of marauders, a member of the party wounded, but they return alive, and Ransdell has found and brought back a sample of metal which chemists have been unable to discover, and which is indispensable to the construction of the Space Ship.

CHAPTER IX.—The Space Ship will accompany the launch with the lower section of Eve Henderson is conveying to the New Earth. The launch is delayed by the arrival of women in Henderson's camp. When half of them die in an attack by a band of marauders, Henderson calls the survivors into the ship and sends it aloft. The thousands in the attacking horde are wiped out by the searing blast emitted by the ship.

CHAPTER X.—Henderson announces the building of a second and larger Space Ship so all may escape to Bronson Beta. The first launch is delayed by the arrival of Eve and Tony, walking on the fringe of the encampment. Henderson's children, left by their father, who has disappeared. Despite Henderson's orders, they take the little launch and try to leave. The launch is about to be closed. Pierre Duquesne, France's greatest physicist, is the first to join the party. He is pessimistic concerning the efforts of other nations to emulate Henderson's project to reach Bronson Beta and land safely in his air.

CHAPTER XI.—After 29 hours' travel through space, after the destruction of the earth, Henderson and Duquesne get their first glimpse of Bronson Beta's surface.

CHAPTER XII.—Henderson lands his ship on Bronson Beta, but no trace is found of Ransdell's or any from Europe or other parts of the world. The air is found to be perfectly fit for breathing. Eve, leaving the ship for the first time, walks with Tony on the surface of the New Earth. Henderson is satisfied that the ship for the first time is afloat. The ship is found to be perfectly fit for breathing. Eve, leaving the ship for the first time, walks with Tony on the surface of the New Earth. Henderson is satisfied that the ship for the first time is afloat.

CHAPTER XIII.—

THE first view of the new world I flashed through the remnants of cloud to all the passengers. Below them was a turbulent rolling ocean. Where the force of their blasts struck it, it flung back terrific clouds of steam. They descended to within a mile of its surface, and then Henderson, operating another lever, sent out horizontal jets, so that the ship began to move rapidly over the surface of this unknown sea.

To every one who looked, this desolate expanse of ocean was like a leucoderm breathing from God himself. Here was something familiar, something interesting, something terrestrial. There was no longer the incomprehensible majesty of the void.

The Space Ship had reached the surface of Bronson Beta and was traveling now at a slow, lateral velocity above one of the oceans. Henderson worked frantically with the delicate controls to keep the ship poised and in regular motion; yet it rose and fell like an airplane bounding in rough winds, and it swayed on its horizontal axis so that its pilot ceaselessly played his fingertips on the releases of the quick blinets which maintained equilibrium.

The sullen, sunless ocean seemed endless. Was there no land? Had the cities, had the mountains and plains, been mere optical illusions? Still the views observable from the side periscope flashed upon the screen and showed nothing but empty sea and lowering cloud.

Then, on the far horizon, land appeared dimly.

A cry, a shot that drowned the tumult of the motors, broke from trembling lips. Speedily they approached the land. It spread out under them. It towered into hills. Its extent was lost in the mists. They reached its coast, a bleak inhospitable stretch of brown earth and rock, of sandy beach and cliff upon which nothing grew or moved or was. Inland the country rose precipitously; and Henderson, as if he shared the impatience of his passengers and could hear no more, turned the ship back toward a plateau that rose high above the level of the sea.

Along the plateau he skinned at a speed that might have been thirty miles an hour. The Ark drew down toward the new Earth until it was but a few feet above the ground. The speed diminished, the motors were turned off and on again quickly. There was a very short, very rapid drop; bodies were thrown violently against the padded floor; the springs beneath the seats recoiled; and there was silence. The ship settled at a slight angle in the earth and rock beneath it.

The Ark was filled with a new sound—the sound of human voices raised in hysterical bellow.

"Henderson!" rose the shout; and men and women, almost equally hysterical, rushed to him. They had to clap hands on him, touch him, cry out to him.

Tony discovered Eve at his side, struggling toward her father, and weeping. Some one recognized her and thrust her through the throng.

Men and women were throwing their arms about each other, kissing, and screaming in each other's faces. At last some one opened the larger and brought out food. People who had eaten practically nothing for the four days began to devour everything they could get through their hands upon.

Tony, meanwhile, had somewhat recovered himself. He made a quick census and shouted: "We all are here. Every one who started on this ship survived!"

It set off pandemonium again, but also it reminded them of doubt of the safety of the second ship.

"Where is it? Can it be sighted?"

"How about the Germans?"

"The English? . . . The Japanese?"

Their own shouts quieted them, so that Henderson at last could speak.

"We have had, for three days, no sight of our friends or of any of the other parties from Earth," he announced. "That does not mean that they all have failed; our path through space was not the only one. Some may have been ahead of us and arrived when the other side of this world was turned; others may still arrive; but you all understand that we can count upon no one but ourselves."

"We have" cried; that we know. And none of you will question my sincerity when I repeat to you that it is my conviction that fate—fate—fate—far more than our own efforts has brought us through."

"I repeat here, in my first words upon this strange, new, marvelous world what I said upon that planet which now lies in shattered fragments about our sun; we have arrived, not as triumphant individuals spared for ourselves, but as humble representatives of the result of a billion years of evolution transported to a sphere where we may reproduce and recreate the life given us. . . ."

"I will pass at once to practical considerations."

"At this spot, it is now late in the afternoon of Bronson Beta's new day, which lasts thirty hours instead of the twenty-four to which we are accustomed. For the present, we must all remain upon the ship. The ground immediately under us is still baked hot by the heat of our blast at landing. Moreover we must test the atmosphere carefully before we breathe it."

"Of course, if it is utterly unbreathable, we will all perish soon; but if it proves merely to contain some unfavorable element against which we must be masked at first until we develop immunity to it, we must discover what it is."

"While waiting, we will discharge one of the forward rocket tubes at half-hour intervals in the hope that our sister ship will see this signal and reply. We will also immediately put into operation an internal radio system and listen for her. I wish to thank those of you who acted as my crew during this flight, and who in spite of shuddering seas and stricken bodies stuck steadfast to your posts. But there is no praise adequate in human language for the innumerable feats of courage, of ingenuity and perseverance which have been performed by every one of you. I trust that by the morning we shall be able to make a survey of our world on foot, and I presume that by then we shall have heard from our sister ship."

Eve and Tony walked back and forth through the throng of passengers, arm in arm. Everyone was talking. Presently some one began to sing, and all the passengers joined in.

One of Henderson's assistants put a slip of paper before his chief. He read it:

Nitrogen, 43 per cent; oxygen, 24 per cent; neon, 13 per cent; krypton, 6 per cent; argon, 5 per cent; helium 4 per cent; and other gases, 5 per cent.

Henderson looked at the list thoughtfully and took a notebook from a rack over the table. He glanced at the assistant and smiled. "There's only about a 3 per cent error in our telescopic analysis. It will be fair enough to breathe."

The assistant, Borden, smiled. He had been, in what the colonists came to describe as "his former life," a professor of chemistry in Stanford university. His smile was naive and pleasing. "It's very good to breathe. In fact, I drew in a large sample and breathed what was left over for about five minutes. It felt like air; it looked like air; and I think we might consider it a very superior form of air—remarkably fresh, too."

"That's fine. We'll go out in the morning."

The night came on clear. The viscreens, which had been growing darker, showed now a dim, steady light. It was the light of the earth-dweller, Bronson Alpha, shining again upon the survivors of men as it set off on its measureless journey into infinite space, other specks of light reinforced it; and the stars—glints from the debris of the world settling themselves in their strange circles about the sun.

Exhaustion allied itself to obedience to Henderson's orders. The emigrants from Earth slumped down and slept.

Tony lay down, but did not sleep. A thought had been stirring in his brain for a long time. Some one would have to take the risk of being the first to breathe the air of Bronson Beta. A small sample was not decisive. He should test it himself. They should send him out first. It was a small contribution, in Tony's mind; but it would help justify his presence on the Ark.

"They might send some one useful," he thought. "Henderson might sacrifice himself in the test."

The more he thought, the more he worried. He could open the airlock and drop to the ground.

He lifted the levers that closed the inner door, balanced them so that they would fall automatically. He stepped between it and the outer door. The lock slammed; the levers fell. He was in pitch darkness.

He opened the outside door. He leaned out—his breath in his mouth. He drew in a breath.

A hot, rasping, sulphurous vapor smote his nostrils. He shuddered. Was this the atmosphere of the new planet? He remembered that the blast of the Ark had cooked the ground around it.

Gasping, with running eyes, he lay down on the floor and felt with his feet for the iron rungs of the workmen's ladder that ran from the now inverted bow of the Ark to the upper door and matched that on the opposite end. He began to descend. He coughed and shuddered. With every step the heat increased.

His feet touched the ground. It gave off heat like the earth around a geyser. He ran away from the looming bulk of the ship. His first fifty steps were taken in stinging vapors.

Then—cooler air blew on his face. Sweet, fresh, cool air!

He inhaled lungfuls of it. It had no odor. It was like earth air washed by an April rain. It did not make him dizzy or sick. He did not feel weakness or numbness or pain. He felt exhilaration.

He flung out his arms in ecstasy. Beside him a voice said quietly: "It's splendid, isn't it, Tony?"

He could have been no more startled if stoups had spoken or a mummy had sat up in its sarcophagus. He stiffened, not daring to look. Then into his icy veins blood flowed. He turned in the lush, starlit dark.

"Mr. Henderson, I—I—"

"Never mind." The older man approached. "I think I know why you came. You wanted to be sure of the air before any of the rest of us left the ship."

"Tony did not reply. Henderson took his arm. "So did I. I couldn't sleep. I had to inspect our future home. I came out on the ladder half an hour ago." Henderson checked. "Duquesne was on my heels. I hid. He's gone for a walk. I heard him fall down and swear. What do you think of it? Did you see the aura?"

"Beautiful. Isn't it?" Henderson said softly. "Nothing like it on earth. It was in rippling sheets when I came out." Then in shafts of a colorful cathedral. It made faint shadows of the landscape. I venture to say it's a permanent fixture. The gases here are different from those on earth. Different ionization of solar electrical energy. That red may be the neon. The blue—I don't know. Anyway—it's gorgeous."

"You mean—this thing will play overhead all night every night?"

"I think so. Coming and going. It seemed to me that it touched the ground over there—once. He pointed. "I thought I could hear it—crackling faintly, swishing. It's going to make radio broadcasting bad; and it'll affect astronomical observation. But it is magnificent."

"Like the rainbow that came on Ararat," Tony said slowly.

"Lord! So it is! God's promise, eh? Tony—you're an odd fellow for a football player. Football! What a thing to hover in the mind here! Come—let's see if we can find Duquesne. The wily devil wanted to be first on Bronson Beta. He came out of the Ark like a shot. No. Wait—look."

Tony glanced toward the Ark. The lock was opening again.

They watched the fourth man to touch the new soil make his painful descent and run across the still hot earth. They saw him stop, a few yards away, and breathe. They heard his voice ecstatically. They heard him weep.

Henderson called: "Hello—James?"

Tony saw Elliot James undergo the uncertainty of hearing that voice come through the empty air. Then James approached them.

"How beautiful!" he whispered. "I'm sorry. I thought some one should try the air. And—I admit—I was keen to get out. Wanted to be first. I suppose, I'm humiliated."

Again Henderson laughed. "It's all right, my boy. I understand. I understand all of us. When I came out, I half expected you others would be along. It's in your blood. The reason you came here one by one, alone and courageously, is the reason I picked you to come here with me. It makes me rather happy."

On the outcrop of stone ledge they seated themselves. They looked and breathed and waited.

Occasionally one of them spoke. Usually it was Henderson—casting up from his thoughts between periods of silence memories of the past and plans for the future.

"We are here alone. I cannot help feeling that our other ship has in some way failed to follow us. If, in the ensuing days, we hear nothing, we may be sure it is lost. Bronson Beta belongs to us. It is sad—tragic. Ransdell is gone. Peter Vandenberg is gone. Smitho. That Taylor youngster you brought from Cornell. All the others. Yet—with the world gone, who are we to complain that we have lost a few more of our friends?"

Tony moved away from them. He was stired with a great restlessness. He wandered toward the ship; and he saw, in that glowing, opalescent night, a woman's form; and he knew before he spoke to her, that it was Eve.

"I was sure you'd be out," he said.

"Tony?"

CHAPTER XIII

"HERE are you and I, Tony. Here!" Eve stooped to the ground and touched it; the dry fiber of a lichenlike grass was between her fingers. She pulled it and stood with it in her hand. They had seen it, they both remembered; it was what had made the ground brown in the light of the dying day.

"This was green and fresh, Tony; perhaps ten million years ago; perhaps a hundred million. Then the dark and cold came; the very air froze and preserved it. Do you suppose our cattle could eat it?"

"Why not?" said Tony.

"What else may be here, Tony? How can we wait for the day?"

"We aren't waiting."

"No; we're not." For they were walking, hand in hand like children, over the bare, rough ground. The amazing aura of this strange world lighted them, and the soil smoothed, suddenly, under their feet. The change was so abrupt that it made them stare down, and they saw what they had stumbled upon; and they cried out together: "A road!"

The ribbon of it ran to the right and left—not clear and straight, for it had been washed over and blown over; but it was, beyond any doubt, a road! Made by what hands, and for what feet? Whence and whither did it run?

A hundred million years ago?

"Where were they?" said Tony, almost as if the souls of those a hundred million years dead might hear, "when they were whirled away from their sun? What stage had they reached? Is this one of their Roman roads on which one of their Yarros was marching his men to meet a Hannibal at Bronson Beta's Cannae? What was at one end—and what still awaits us there? A Niceret of Sargon saved for us by the dark and cold? Or was this a motor road to a city like our Paris of a year ago? Or was it a track for some vehicle we would have invented in a thousand more years? And is the city which we'll find, a city we'd never dreamed of? Whatever it was, their fate left it for us; whereas our fate—the fate of our world—? He stopped.

"I was thinking about it," said Eve. "Out there is space—in scattered stones circling in orbits of their own about the sun; the Pyramids and the Empire State Building, the Washington monument and the tomb of Napoleon, the Arch of Triumph! The seas and the mountains! Here the other thing happened—the other fate that would have been ours if the world had escaped the cataclysm. What sort were they who faced it here, Tony? Human, with bodies like our own? Or with souls like our own, but other shapes?"

"On this road," said Tony, "this road, perhaps, we'll see."

"And learn how they faced it, too, Tony; the coming dark and the cold. I think, if I had the choice, I'd prefer the cataclysm."

"Then you believe our world was better off?"

"Perhaps I wouldn't have—if we had stared," amended Eve. "What happened here, at least left their world behind them for us."

"Come here." Drawing her close, he clasped her, and himself quivering, he could feel her trembling terribly. He kissed her, and her lips were hot on his. A little aghast, they dropped away.

"We seem to have brought the world with us. I can never give you up, Eve; or share you with anyone else."

"We're too fresh from the world, Tony, to know. We've a faith to keep with—"

"With whom? Your father?"

"With fate—and the future. Let's go on, Tony. See, the road turns."

"Yes."

"What's that?"

"Where?"

She moved off the road to the right, where stood something too square and straight-edged to be natural. Scarcely breathing, they touched it, and found metal with a cold, smooth surface indented under their fingertips.

"A monument," said Tony, and he burned a match. The little yellow flame lighted characters engraved into metal—characters like none either of them had ever seen before, but which proclaimed themselves symbols of meaning.

"They had an artist, Eve," he said.

"With five hundred million years of evolution behind him."

"Yes. How beautiful this writing is engraved! Will we ever read it? . . . Come on. Come on!"

But the monument, if it was that, stood alone; and consideration of others, if not prudence, dictated that they return.

But they did not re-enter the ship. Duquesne was determined to spend the first night on the ground; and Henderson and James agreed with him. James had dragged out blankets from the Ark, and the five lay down on the ground of the new planet. And some of them slept.

Tony opened his eyes. The sun was rising into a sky not blue but jade green.

He rested his body on his elbow. Below him, the sea also was green. It had been gray on the steamy yesterday. But an emerald ocean was more familiar than an emerald sky. He watched the white water roll on the summits of swells until it was dispersed by the brown cliff. He looked back at the Ark. It stood mysteriously on the landscape—a perpendicular cylinder, shining and marvelous, enormously foreign to the bare, brilliant landscape. Behind it the chocolate-colored mountains stretched into opalescent nowhere—the mountain into which the road ran, the road beside which stood the stele adorned by a decoration like nothing else that had been seen in the world.

Tony regarded his companions. Henderson slept on a curled arm. His flashing eyes were closed. His hair, now almost white, was disheveled on his white forehead. Beside him Duquesne slept, half-sitting, his arm folded on his ample abdomen, and an expression of deep study on his swarthy face. Elliot James sprawled on a ledge which the sun now was warming, his countenance relaxed, his lips parted, his straggling red beard metal-bright in the morning rays.

Eve slept, or she had slept, near to Tony; and now she roused. She was lovely in the yellow light, and looked far fresher than the men. Their clothes were stained and worn; and none of them had shaved, so that they looked more like philosophical vagrants than like three of the greatest men produced in the Twentieth century on the earth.

Tony watched Eve as she gazed at the sun, anxiously maternal. To be a mother in actuality, to become a mother of men, was to be her role on this reawakened world.

As she arose quietly, so as to disturb none of the others, Tony caught her hand with a new tenderness. They set out toward their road together.

Suddenly Tony saw something that took the breath from his lungs. It was a tiny thing—on the ground. A mere speck of color. He hurried toward it, not believing his eyes. He lay down and stared at it. In a slight damp depression was a patch of moss the size of his hand.

He lay prone to examine it as Eve stooped beside him in excitement like his own. He did not know mosses—the vegetation resembled any other moss, on Earth. He recollected the hope that spores, which could exist in temperatures close to absolute zero for long periods, had preserved on Bronson Beta the power to germinate.

Mosses came—on Earth—from the President's special message calling for abolition of utility holding companies stirred up a storm that probably surprised even such an astute politician as Mr. Roosevelt. The President urged legislation to abolish those holding companies which were unable to show they were operated in the public interest. Representative Bertrand H. Snell, Republican leader, immediately attacked the message, claiming the President had denounced propaganda against the proposed legislation, and was himself propagandizing for it. Utility companies also swung into the battle, and thousands of investors in utility stocks are reported to have sent in protests to congress. In the senate, Norris, Nebraska Republican, offered a resolution calling upon the federal trade commission to investigate propaganda regarding the legislation. The senate approved without debate. Charges were made by utility companies that because of the administration's campaign against public utilities "the value of utility securities has declined by three and one-half billion dollars since 1933." Enactment of legislation to halt holding companies will cause enormous loss to the American family, one power official testified before the house interstate commerce committee.

Secretary Morgenthau revealed plans to dip into profits from gold seizure to retire $674,625,630 of the national debt through the use of gold certificates. Potentially inflationary, it will deprive national banks of the power to issue currency, and save the government an annual interest charge of $18,500,000. Questions on inflationary implications were avoided by the treasury officials, but they admitted the plan would "put gold back to work which can be expanded."

The maneuver will place in the hands of the federal reserve banks $674,625,630 of gold certificates, which must be used as backing for issue of the same sum in federal reserve notes to retire the bonds. Note issue against the bonds could be expanded if currency demands warranted, to about $1,687,500,000, since a federal reserve note need not be backed by more than 40 per cent of gold or gold certificates in like percentage. What will happen will be the immediate simplification of our currency system. The treasury and federal reserve banks will have all the authority to issue money. The plan involves retirement on August 1 of $674,625,630 of 2 per cent federal securities and substitution of federal reserve notes for $657,337,080 of outstanding national bank currency. These bonds will be retired with surplus funds created by devaluing the Roosevelt dollar from 100 cents to 99.65 cents, gold. The total profit was $2,812,000,000.

THE senate smacked down Senator Huey Long for his filibustering tactics and his efforts to amend the administration's $4,880,000,000 work relief measure. The Kingfish had demanded alterations in the work relief bill which would take $100,000,000 away from the $600,000,000 earmarked for CCC work and allot it to students in colleges and universities. Long's amendment was defeated by a vote of 55 to 27. To prove that old adage of "politics makes strange bedfellows," Long was aided by Senator Hiram Johnson of California, who declared that the senate should have something to say about methods for spending the huge sum sought by the President. Johnson has heretofore been considered a supporter of the President. Long's amendment brought forth other proposed changes which should keep the senators busy arguing for several days. The bonus bill may be dragged in and an attempt made to make it a rider to the relief measure, and inflationists and leaders of other "ists" will insist on having their say.

ALL outstanding first Liberty loan bonds have been called for redemption by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau. The $2,000,000,000 outstanding has been called for June 15, before which time the treasury will likely offer lower interest-bearing securities in exchange for the first Liberties, saying the government some $14,000,000 in annual interest charges.

NEW Deal policies took two more batterings as Federal courts held both the AAA and NRA unconstitutional as regards intrastate business. The administration might find some consolation in another ruling which held the radical Frazier Lenke farm mortgage bill was valid. Federal Judge Merrill E. Otis, at Kansas City, declared the Frazier-Lenke law was constitutional, "although unwise in many of its provisions and almost incomprehensible matter." Judge Otis said his ruling was not the first in which the act was upheld, and that an appeal was already before the United States Supreme court and a decision might be expected shortly. The AAA was declared invalid as regards intrastate business by Federal Judge Ira Lloyd Letts at Providence, R. I., who issued an injunction restraining Secretary of Agriculture Wallace from enforcing the act against three Rhode Island retail milk dealers, on the grounds that their business was conducted entirely within the state, and the national government had no right to interfere. At Newark, N. J., Federal Judge Guy J. Fabe ruled the national recovery act unconstitutional as applied to intrastate commerce "because it attempts an unlawful delegation of legislative authority." The latter decision agrees with that handed down by Federal Judge Niels in the controversial Weitzen steel dispute.

CHANCELLOR ADOLPH HITLER'S "diplomatic" cold is over, and he will welcome Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, to a conference beginning March 23. Accompanying Sir John will be Capt. Anthony Eden, lord privy seal, and disarmament authority. After the Berlin visit Eden will go to Moscow to talk with Soviet leaders. The Berlin conferences will discuss rearmament of Germany's rearmament in exchange for an air Lorraine pact with Great Britain, France, Italy, and Belgium, and an eastern security pact with Poland and Russia. Limitation of armament by all nations will also be taken up. The visit is complicated by a recent announcement that Germany possesses military aviation in violation of the Versailles treaty. Because of this, France may invoke the Rome accord with Italy and Franco-British declaration at London in support of its move to keep the reich from giving the air force official sanction.

AFTER twenty months of bargaining, the documents conveying full title to the Chinese Eastern railway to Manchukuo were initiated in Tokyo, thus eliminating Russia as a factor in Manchukuo. The written approval of the agreements was signed by Koki Hirota, Japanese foreign minister; Dr. Constantine Younteff, Soviet ambassador to Japan; and by Gen. Ting Shih-Yuan, Manchukuoan minister of finance. The consideration was 140,000,000 yen, or about $89,800,000. The documents require that all three governments approve them before their formal signing about March 23. Thus is ended forty years of Russo-Japanese contention.

Insull was "delighted," since it was the end of the Insull prosecutions, although another charge of embezzling $104,000 is pending. Further, Insull faces a charge of violating the federal bankruptcy laws, but it is believed that the verdict in the criminal courts case will discourage efforts to try him.

THREE Illinois farmers refused to tell the government census takers how much their farms were worth, and how heavily they were mortgaged, claiming such information was none of the government's business. The trio were arrested and held for a grand jury, charged with violating the census act.

THE house appropriations committee favorably reported out the Department of Agriculture appropriations bill for the 1936 fiscal year. A cut of $513,878,758 was due largely to a $411,022,428 slash in the AAA item. The total bill calls for $683,278,758, of which $570,000,000 would go to the Agricultural Adjustment Administration activities. At committee hearings it was explained that it is impossible to estimate how much would have to be obligated because of the crop control program, but the AAA item was a rough estimate of processing tax collections and is not controlling. Henry Wallace, secretary of agriculture, told the committee that the farmers' share of the national income is now about 10.2 per cent, and that it should be 13 to 16 per cent.

Wallace said "true prosperity" cannot come "until there has been a very material increase in the output of physical goods, industrial goods, and agricultural goods."

"If in some way it were possible to turn out 50 per cent more industrial goods at a price definitely lower than the present price," the secretary testified, "the result would be to make it possible for agriculture to buy more with the agricultural dollar and there would be more factory workers to be fed in the cities."

EVEN though the senate will not act immediately on the "pink slip" bill to repeal income tax publicity, income tax figures will not be available to the public for six months, according to internal revenue officials. While it is likely the act will be repealed, the house having so voted, it is not anticipated that the senate will act on the measure for some time. Even though the latter might not act favorably, there remains considerable work to be done before the figures can be made public, and income taxpayers may be confident that prying neighbors cannot have immediate access to such information. In the senate a drive has been started for higher federal income and corporation taxes. Senator LaFollette offered an amendment proposing a new scale of income taxes to yield $260,000,000.

FRENCH courts have formally indicted 19 persons, including Mrs. Stavisky, for the Stavisky scandal that rocked the government after the financial debacle, which caused losses of millions of francs to investors, had broken Stavisky, known as "Handsome Alex," died from a gunshot wound as police tried to arrest him in January, 1934.

Several novel and original ideas were presented for the pictures of the months. A song composed by Mrs. VanEvery was sung by the "Barnyard Quartet" comprising Mr. and Mrs. VanEvery and Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt. Mr. and Mrs. Allen Pierce presented a puppet show, "Jonah and the Whale."

When Worlds Collide

spores; and here, reawakened by the sun, was a remnant of life that had existed eons ago, light-years away.

Tony jumped up and ran about on the terrain; a few feet away, Eve stooped, again. Other plants were burgeoning. Mosses, ferns, fungi, vegetation of species he could not classify, but some surely resembling growths larger than mere mosses.

He heaped Eve's hands and his own, and together they ran back to the three who were staring, as they earlier had gazed, at the green sky.

Then Duquesne saw what Eve and Tony held. "Sacre nom de Dieu!" He leaped to his feet. Hendron and James were beside him.

With one accord, they rushed toward the Space Ship. "Get Higgins!" Hendron shouted. "He'll go mad! Think of it! A whole new world to classify! . . . And it means that we will live."

Before they reached the sides of the ship the lock opened. The gangplank dropped to earth. Van Heltz appeared in the aperture, and Hendron shouted to him the news.

People poured from the Ark; they stepped upon the new soil. They waved their arms. They stared at the hills, the sky, the sea. They breathed deep of the air. They handled the mosses, and ran about finding more of their own. They houted, sang. They laughed and laughed.

The first day on the New Earth had begun.

Head County FERA Schools Tells of Scope in Berrien

"Unfortunately—or may I say unhappily—the folk of Berrien County are unaware of the vast reaches of the Emergency Relief Organization. Many people think of it only as a sort of bread-line affair, where the recipient is given shelter, bed, and meals. There are other activities on the E. R. A. agenda of far more importance to Berrien residents than that of housing and feeding depression victims."

The venerable W. H. Woodley was speaking. Professor Woodley began his teaching career when 17 and with a brief sojourn in Texas and Arkansas universities in the role of educator, his life has been passed in this county. At this time he is chief assistant to Anne C. Parsal, Administratrix, and S. C. Mitchell, President of the Superintendents' Association of Berrien county of all E. R. A. educational work in Berrien. His duties align him as head of the E. R. A. educational department. Professor Woodley resumed:

"Our educational program is, I believe, the most important of all E. R. A. activities; it is a real boon for those adults whose schooling has been inadequate to fit them in to the requirements of present-day business life. The plan is to help these handicapped men and women to be self-supporting. For the women, there are classes in which they are taught domestic science, decorations, budget planning, and the art of needle work. Handicapped men are put through courses in manual training, shop work, mechanical drawing and business methods. But this is not all. The social side is given a prominent place in our educational agenda. Music and the drama occupy prominent places on our roster. Bands are organized, choral groups are formed, and community playlets fostered. Annually these literary and musical units are assembled to give performances in the various communities in the county. Experience teaches that wherever these social bodies are encouraged the culture of the community becomes immeasurably improved."

Queried as to the number of Berrien county people now listed in the educational classes, Professor Woodley replied:

"At this time there are more than 700 persons enrolled and the classes are growing larger each week. To tell all that has been accomplished by our department would overtax the available space of a newspaper story. Suffice to state that all of the classes—domestic science, needle-work, manual training, music, dramatic, and choral bodies—are always largely attended and the work is carried out with the utmost enthusiasm. We have another feature in our work designed for the amusement and physical development of youth—the recreation or gymnastic department, and these classes like the others, are well attended."

Professor Woodley furnished the Record with a list of the classes and teachers in the various Berrien communities. The teachers of these classes have been recruited from the unemployed:

They follow—

Benton Harbor—teachers, Lillian Bonham and Harry P. Snyder, educational subjects; band and orchestra teacher, F. W. Moyer; aviation, Don King; dramatics, Muriel Oberg; Negro classes, teachers, Dr. Williams, educational subjects; Marie Brown; vocal music, dramatics; A. L. Roberts, instrumental music.
