

Now Here's the Proposition

Worsted in Battle With Big Fish

The breed of fishermen must be sadly degenerated these days when a prominent local sportsman can't land a minnow without breaking his hand, but that was the case with Harris Simpson, who is wearing his left arm in a sling this week after a titanic battle with a minnow in the St. Joseph river near the I. & M. plant. As Simpson tells it (and we make it a rule always to take a fisherman's word) he had jerked the minnow out in a net and stepped on a boat which was turned upside down, en route to the minnow pail when he slipped, catching his weight with his left hand.

Squelching Genius

Somewhere in this favored land there will be a talented young man or a young woman scanning the columns of this issue to see whether their piece was printed or not—the piece entitled "Town Characters."

Well, they won't find it. Trouble is, the "town character" they led off with is a guy as prominent about this town as a sore thumb and while he never took a shot at us yet, if he loves us he has never taken the trouble to tell us about it. Yet you read about two lines and it is as plain as a lighthouse in a fog who this town character is. The letter is not signed, nor does the name of the author accompany it separately, the architect of "town characters" apparently preferring to let us serve as a front if there is any shooting, but Mr. Webster, in his popular compendium of language, describes a character in that sense as a "unique or extraordinary individual, an odd or eccentric person." And this person, by the description, is mostly odd.

Anyway people as a rule don't like to be referred to as "characters." All of us old birds around town may be real "characters," but we are not going to stand around and let any young snip call us that. And if anyone wants to so characterize us in the public prints, let 'em sign what they write!

Open Season Holes-In-One

The past week was the occasion of an open season for holes-in-one in golf courses, one being registered at Orchard Hills and another on Harry Frew's course down at Bridgman—where in heck is that note we got from Harry—it was a Chicago doctor that did it, 222 yards with an iron. The doc is some pill roller, eh what?

Story of How Democrat Congressman Was Rewarded For Aid to Michigan By Having Buchanan Named For Him

Selection of Name was in Gratitude for Aid During the Toledo War.

Now that a presidential campaign is in the making it may be reasonable to raise the old question of why it was that a town that has voted Republican since General John C. Fremont first headed up the party in 1854, not omitting even the time when Herbert Hoover headed it up in 1933, should be named after a Democratic president.

Of course the straight of the matter is that the township of Buchanan was organized and named after James Buchanan some years before the town was platted in 1842. It was April 1, 1837, that a message was brought to the cabin home of Dr. C. C. Wallin, located about a quarter of a mile from the mouth of McCoy's creek and about adjacent to the present L. E. Spafford home, notifying him that the new state of Michigan had authorized the organization of the township of Buchanan. The administration of Michigan was then Democratic. In fact the state remained Democratic until the middle fifties when it lined up in the ranks of the new Republican party on the slavery issue. The state had named the new township after Buchanan, who was not to be president until another 20 years had passed.

The selection of the name was undoubtedly because of the gratitude that the state held for Buchanan, then congressman from Pennsylvania, because he had espoused the cause of the weak territory in its struggle for statehood and especially in the "Toledo War" with Ohio over the boundary between the two states.

On that occasion even the down right Andrew Jackson had "gone political" and sided with Ohio because the presidential election was impending and Ohio, with a 1,500,000 people had more electoral votes than Michigan with 80,000. Jackson was much interested in seeing the election of his political heir, Martin VanBuren.

Consequently Jackson and his aides awarded the coveted strip on the south containing the site of the city in Toledo, to Ohio, attempting to appease Michigan by offering in compensation the upper peninsula, which was to be taken from Wisconsin which had practically no population at all and therefore no political influence. All might have been well had not the young fire brand, Steven Mason, been governor of Michigan at the mature age of 26. Gov. Mason dispatched a rash note to President Jackson informing him that Michigan would at all costs defend the territory allotted to it by the Ordinance of 1787, and that the state of Ohio and the United States itself would violate it at its peril.

When Governor Lucas of Ohio moved to establish the authority of that state in the little settlement of Port Lawrence, later Toledo, Gov. Mason issued a fiery call for volunteers, which responded to the number of about 600. It is said that they reported at Detroit, lining up on the Campus Martius in that city and Gen. Williams in command waved his sword and shouted forward march. The recruits from the backwoods stood and gaped, whereupon the General again waved his sword and shouted, "Forward March."

But the recruits stood as though they were planted, whereon the general looked them over with disgust and snorted, "Oh hell, come on."

Whereon the recruits, having been addressed in language they understood, followed him to Toledo. There Gov. Mason came as commander-in-chief, mounted on a white charger and everything was very gallant and romantic. Bloodshed was averted more from the fact that Gov. Lucas, being more politic and mature, in years, deferred temporarily and hid his time, depending on the power of the national government to settle things his way.

President Jackson forthwith notified Gov. Mason that he was discharged from office and his successor, a Porter, was named. But the Michigan pioneers were very much taken with the dash and spirit of their young governor. The first night Gov. Porter slept in Michigan they bombarded the hotel with rocks and he was obliged to doff his dignity and crouch under the window to avoid the missiles that came crashing thru the window. So Porter left in a high dudgeon for Wisconsin and Mason remained governor, President Jackson notwithstanding. But the national government found another way to put the heat under the audacious state of Michigan—they served notice that Michigan would share in the public lands receipts when and not until they made terms with the government. That cut off an important source of income and the politicians began to see why it might be wise to accept the terms, and it eventually worked out that way.

But in the meantime one of the new leaders in Congress who took the side of Michigan was James Buchanan, then in his prime as a political leader, and a member of congress from Pennsylvania. It was the tragedy of Buchanan that he did not attain the presidency until he was practically unfit to serve through advanced age and ill health. His term fell in the years of 1857 to 1861. By life-long habits of thought Buchanan was committed to a conciliatory policy toward the south and when the southern states declared for secession, he is reported to have met the emergency by wringing his hands. In the thirties and forties he was known as a forceful speaker and a national leader. He delivered a speech in congress championing the cause of Michigan.

And so it must naturally follow that when the state was organizing new townships, the thought occurred that it would be a graceful gesture to recognize the congressman from Pennsylvania and the new township which was carved from the west side of Niles township was accordingly named Buchanan. And in the course of events, the little cluster of huts around the sawmill and shingle mill expanded into a town and was given the same name.

All as a reward for his generous aid during the Toledo War. And doubtless, as James Buchanan, "The Batchelor President," leans over the parapets of Heaven and gazes over the fair realm and city named for him, he mutters to himself: "By gum, it was worth it!"

Rex Shreve Wins Firebuilding Medal

Rex Shreve, Star Scout of Troop No. 41, Buchanan, won first place in the firebuilding contest held by that Troop Tuesday evening, June 16, at the regular troop meeting. This contest was held to promote an interest in the methods of building a fire under different atmospheric conditions. The time for this contest was 9 minutes and 45 seconds. Second place was captured by Herbert Russell, a First Class Scout, having his fire in 11 minutes.

The fires built with one or two matches wet or dry wood, flint and steel, and burn a string 18 inches from the ground as the rules required for each week. The first elimination of the contest reduced the contestants from 18 to 8 members of the troop, the second from 8 to 4, the third from 4 to 2 and the last from 2 to one, which was Rex Shreve.

He was a World war veteran having served as first lieutenant in the construction department of the aviation section overseas.

Mr. Howe was born in Buchanan, but spent most of his early life in this city, coming here with his parents in 1893. After finishing high school he was employed for some time in an architectural office, following which he studied for one year in Paris.

Upon his return to America he was associated for two years with Cram, Goodhue, and Ferguson of Boston, following which he moved to Detroit, where he was employed by Albert Kahn several years, and then by Smith, Hinchman, and Grylls up to the time of his enlistment.

Softball

Wilson's vs. I. O. O. F. The Wilson Dairy team in their new uniforms of blue and yellow, won their third game of the season by defeating the Odd Fellows 14 to 6. Wilson's started Jesse on the mound but he was off his usual form and the Odd Fellows ganged up on him for 6 runs or 4 hits. Proud checked them with a shut-out after that. Wilson's tied it up and went on to win with ease. Harkrider and Capt. Bachman led the attack with three hits out of four trips up piece.

Harkrider, the ace third sacker for Wilson's, was injured when he tore the ligaments loose in his right foot. It will probably keep him out of next week's game.

Summary: Wilson's 3 0 3 0 5 0 3 14-17-4 I. O. O. F. 6 0 0 0 0 0 0 6-4-8

Then Wilsons widdled them off in the next two innings and went ahead 8 to 6. Then the Chevrolets tied it up in the 6th. Wilsons went ahead in their half of the sixth, 11-8 being the final score. The Wilsons were led by Covert, new first baseman, who got a homer, a triple and a single. Chevrolet, without the aid of their Three Oaks boys, had 8 errors, which helped the Wilsons get their runs. Mrs. C. Stretch Hurt in Car Mishap

Mrs. Claude Stretch incurred 8 broken ribs and painful bruises when the car which she was driving en route home from Niles on Saturday afternoon struck a car driven by William Abele, which drove from a side road in front of her. Mrs. Stretch was bound for home on the Niles-Buchanan road in company with Mrs. Myrtle Asmus of Cassopolis and William Mlake of Niles. She said that she saw the Abele car approach from the side road north from the Thompson school, but took it for granted that he would stop before going out on the pavement. Instead, apparently unmindful of the through traffic, he drove out directly in front of her. His car was struck on the side by that of Mrs. Stretch and careened across the road, upsetting in the ditch. He was taken out unconscious but recovered his faculties en route to the Pawating hospital, where it was found that his injuries were confined to his nose. No one was with him. Mrs. Stretch's fellow-passengers incurred only minor bruises.

Upon his return to America he was associated for two years with Cram, Goodhue, and Ferguson of Boston, following which he moved to Detroit, where he was employed by Albert Kahn several years, and then by Smith, Hinchman, and Grylls up to the time of his enlistment.

And—tch! tch! And a Couple of Tuts—Harrison was Wrong About The Swimming Hole.

Berrien County records, Buchanan, Michigan. Gentlemen:

I am enclosing a stamped addressed envelope for reply whether you have the files for the years 1868 and 1870. Or are they lost in the several movings of the office? I would enjoy looking over these two years. During the past year and a half we have been gathering data for a history of "The Berrien Circuit of the United Brethren Church." We have our church records practically complete, except for a few years prior to 1860.

The Buchanan church was a part of this circuit until 1868. According to the records of St. Joseph conference of which this was a circuit, the annual conference was supposed to have convened in Buchanan in these years, 1868-70. I have in my possession, Cowls History of Berrien and Van Buren Counties, 1880, Coolidge History, 1906; according to these authorities, the United Brethren was the third to be organized, (1846), following the Methodist and Presbyterian; but it was the first to build, in 1849. When the class was disbanded about the time of the World War, the property was sold to the Christian Advent and later to the Latter Day Saints.

It will be 32 years ago the third Tuesday of this month that I started as "devil" in the old office, under the ownership of Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Bower, who, before the year was out, disposed of their interests to the Mac C. Chamberlin Company, when Pearl Woodworth, the foreman, became the local manager, which specialized in Chicago job printing. It was at this time that all the issues were bound up, there being some papers printed in Buchanan going back to 1857. In those hand set days among the "stick-angels" were Bessie Haslett, Bessie Royer, Edna Bates, Hattie Hathaway, Nellie Cathcart and Julia Murphy. The bookkeeper, stenographer and head interleave in the job department was Maggie Blake.

Mention has been made several times of "that old swimmin' hole." Rol Black was right about it being across from the mouth of McCoy's "Crick." I have heard this for years from five of the most reliable men of Buchanan, now living and dead—Newt. Batchelor, "Spider" (Del) Jordan, George Black, "Buffalo" (Herb) Hanover and Pearl Woodworth. Remember this was prior to the building of the dam. Raising and lowering of the water sent the boys to the old sycamore tree near the foot of Moccasin Bluff. But before the boys could swim they paddled around in the "Single S" and the "Double S" at and near the old "Crick" headgates down the hill back of the old Union school; also, another place was near the old dam just up the "Crick" from the old "spur" bridge.

Why doesn't Harrison Merrill mention the Sunday evening candy parties, in "Spider" Jordan's candy cases, when the boys—and some of the older ones would pay their quarter for the quarter of an hour of sweetness. It was a money maker for Del, for two nickel candy bars swallowed rapidly ended their aspirations. Howard Mead one evening devoured more than $1.50 worth of the best candy, in 15 minutes, turning to Del he stated: "As it is supper time, guess I'll be going home to supper."

They used to tell a story of Merrill's inventive genius as a youth. In order to obtain a new bicycle, he promised his father he would be up and let the chickens out by seven each morning. He kept his word—he would hop out of bed prior to the allotted time, pull a string from the chicken coop door to his window—then back to bed. Gathering data on the history brings to light the easier life and larger salary a pastor can enjoy these days compared to the days of 1862, according to the records; the salary and circuit was as follows: Berrien, $80; Lake, $40; Buchanan, $6; Dayton, $5; Galien, $20; Perry's Corners, $15; Rhode's appointment (Royalton), $10; total, $176. Only $154.15 was paid on the assessments and New Troy, Chickaming and Weesaw charges were formed.

"Reddy" Spohn never gave me a chew of tobacco, but Harrison did beat me to those "four for a nickel" chocolates with English walnut meats.

Yours truly, Robert A. Davis.

Failure to Hit Costs Blues Game

Failure to bunch hits cost the Buchanan Blues another game Sunday, the Oak Ridge Dairy of South Bend defeating them 5-1. D. Topash pitched an excellent game, allowing only six hits which was the number allowed by Hyeveant of the Oak Ridge nine. Each pitcher struck out nine.

Along McCoy's Crick

By Harrison Merrill
Your historian, the writer, as previously forecast now tackles that interesting chapter in the development of Buchanan when the Silver Cornet band of the 90's was the leading social, if not musical, element along the o' crick.

The writer tackles the subject with a certain degree of confessed modesty and with much trepidation. Be that understood!

To get at this latter intelligently—and that should be the purpose of all historians—one must create the atmospheric background that existed at the time to wit.

Since the beginning Buchanan had always been noted for its fine musical organizations. Always, after listening to remarks set forth by strangers within the gates Crick people were able to overcome all objections by saying, "Well, anyway, we've got a good band!"

But along in the early 90's interest in musical matters, so far as brass bands were concerned, was at an exceedingly low ebb. Most of the horn players had either passed on or had been deported.

As a result the air, socially and musically, was stifling.

Hulda Hahn, Katie Deering and Ivah Henderson, instructors on the piano-forte were struggling to keep interest in that instrument alive and with fair success and Dr. Dodd on Days avenue, was giving lessons in singing to certain young men who were planning a career with HI Henry.

These women, their backs to the wall, struggled to keep Buchanan on its feet musically and in doing so, earned the everlasting gratitude of many Crick people including the writer who took lessons from all four of said instructors and who, therefore, owes what progress he has made at the keyboard and on the rostrum to such early instruction.

People who study abroad—and this is not said jestingly—no matter what progress they make, must, if fair, attribute their successes to the groundwork laid by those who first taught them their flats and sharps.

There were a few brass musicians within the village limits at the time but much professional jealousy existed and there was little chance of bringing them together. Mr. Charles "Pete" Fuller, who had been graduated, summa cum laude, from the Muskegon Heights Conservatory, on the valve trombone, was making personal appearances at various social functions but refused to mingle with the lesser fry.

Mr. Will Wood attending the La-Porte, Ind., School of Higher Watch Making also was majoring on the B-flat silver Courtoise cornet but on his frequent week-end visits to the village, refused to perform on that instrument outside of the Presbyterian church choir, where he served as the dispano diapente for the new pipe organ.

Ed. Steele, John Graham and a number of other high class musical gentlemen, had hung up their instruments and Buchanan for the nonce, musically considered, was as dead as a door nail.

It was at this time that the idea of starting a boys' band, one that would reflect credit on the village—which it subsequently did—first took form. A general call was issued and a notable array of young men unusually talented responded.

The first meeting was held at the home of Charley Myler on Chicago street, first door south of Front street. The names of the young men who were willing to give their all in an effort to re-establish Buchanan in the musical sun were recorded after which the session was given over to a discussion of the kind of uniforms that should be worn, those in favor of blue with gold trimmings being in the majority.

At the next meeting, held at the same place, the next day, it was agreed that only those socially prominent would be allowed to join the organization. Also plans for an ice cream social to raise money for the new uniforms were discussed pro and con. From then on progress was rapid!

Prof. Albert J. Field, one armed E-flat cornetist of Niles was secured as instructor and arrangements made to hold nightly rehearsals in the room over the First National bank. The young men were then, on paper, assigned the instruments they should play and they also were measured for the new uniforms. In due time the instruments and uniforms from the C. G. Conn factory at Elkhart arrived.

In a sense the new band was born under a cloud for, at its first rehearsal while the young musicians were trying out their new horns, the noise being somewhat terrific at the time, robbers from outstate bored through the iron door of the big iron safe on the floor below and after several charges of dynamite had been set off some $247 in bank notes was removed from circulation so far as Buchanan was concerned. Officers later held that the band members were not acting, or rather tooting, in collusion with the bandits. This somewhat dissipated the cloud!

The first piece tackled by the young band was "Northern Lights" opus 46, by Lightworthy, in 2-4 time, key of G. The second number was "Over the Waves," a waltz suite in D, also by Lightworthy. The dirge "Dolores" for use on Memorial Day completed the repertoire for the first year.

The writer recalls, regretfully, that the young organization was somewhat snooty when it came to membership requirements. The application of William Miller, for drum major was ruthlessly turned down for the reason, as stated, that the young cemerter took too long strides when walking. The members figured that he would have reached the cemetery before the rest of them got over the brow of the Front street hill in the Decoration day parade.

Also the time is recalled when Gideon Rouse appeared before the organization and made an impassioned appeal to have his son, Ralph "Ted" Rouse advanced from fourth to third E-flat alto but without avail. He was given to understand in no uncertain way that the law of seniority was in force and the son had been a half hour late in arriving at the first meeting.

The untiring efforts of members of the band anxious to restore the village to its rightful musical position in the nation somewhat disrupted business along Front street but no complaint was offered by the buying populace.

It is recalled that George "Parky" Parkinson, official cobbler, in the Noble shoe store, used to stand out in front of the place and shoe prospective customers away when young George Noble, one eye closed to aid in his tonal efforts, continued his daily studies on the valve trombone. Also at the Runner drug store on the corner people in need of relief (not ERA) were obliged to pick the remedies off the shelf and take their own chances so as not to interfere in any way with the B-flat cornet efforts of the promising young artist, Martin "Mart" Steele.

Further east on Front street the people were obliged to go without their daily swigs of coca cola, then being introduced for the first time, while young Will Brodrick, clerk in the Barmore drug store, perfected himself on the snare drum. It was this same Mr. Brodr-rick, by the way, who served the first ice cream soda, either a lemon or a vanilla, in the village.

From the homes along the Crick the moans and groans of the various instruments could be heard through the day and night. Beauty sleep was at a premium in each neighborhood. But no one complained although the effect of such loss of sleep probably is very apparent along the o' Crick even unto this day.

Mr. Frank "Stub" Sanders was the official bass or tuba player. Mr. Ellis Roberts, son of the Rev. J. A. Roberts of the Presbyterian church, performed somewhat brilliantly on the bass drum; John Charliwood was a third B-flat cornetist; Glenn E. Smith, who also doubled on the fiddle, was third E-flat altoist; Jake C. Rough performed on the baritone, and Frank Whitman was the lone clarinet player.

In connection with the latter it is recalled that one Memorial Day just as the band was headed for the cemetery a heavy rain storm made its appearance soon after the parade started and as the procession passed by the Whitman home on Front street, Mrs. Whitman rushed out and stopped everybody until the son could put on a raincoat and rubbers. The rest of the marchers, including the veterans, getting wet to the hide as a result of the delay.

Then there was Clayton Niles, who was a very fine piccoloist, Charley Myler, altoist, and a number of other artists, including the writer, who was a third B-flat cornetist. Often there would be guest stars present. Often Signor Peterio Fuller, the trombone virtuoso, would appear with the organization. Also Signor Willard Wood, soloist, would perform in his best Arabian manner.

It was this band that assumed the musical load in Buchanan for several years or until Frederick Mead, Molar College graduate, in the class of 1902, arrived in town to carry on. Return engagements were played at Berrien Springs, Sawyer, New Troy and Eau Claire, showing that the residents thereof were true music lovers.

A PLEDGE OF FREEDOM... AN ELECTRIC RANGE.

To love and cherish her

WHEN you promised to love and cherish her, you didn't contemplate making a kitchen slave of your wife. Yet that is what it amounts to if she has to toil over an old-fashioned, roasting hot stove through the humidity of summer.

With an electric range, a whole meal including the roast, may be prepared in the oven at a temperature so cool that flowers will not wilt standing on the range. Better than that, your wife can cook a delicious meal entirely by automatic control and spend her time on lovely afternoons out-of-doors or at whatever recreation she prefers.

An Electric Range is a pledge of freedom for the housewife. Select your range right now!

Gets Bride and Degree Same Week

The following is taken from a Golden, Colo., paper and is concerned with the wedding of Ross Lyon, grandson of Mrs. Nancy Lyon, and a frequent visitor of relatives here.

He received his degree from the Colorado School of Mines the same week, receiving also the Bellis award for four years of outstanding service with the school band. His sister, Miss Johanna Lyon, who acted as bridesmaid, has spent several summers with her grandmother and is well known here.

Miss Margaret A. Schnars, of Greeley, became the bride of Ross M. Lyon, Colorado School of Mines senior, in an attractive home wedding, May 29, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Schnars, Denver, at 8:30 o'clock.

Miss Johanna Lyon, sister of Mr. Lyon, attended Miss Schnars as bride's maid. Wayne Schnars, classmate of Mr. Lyon, was the best man. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Mr. Lyon is the son of Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Lyon of Golden. He was graduated from St. Petersburg, Fla., high school, winning a scholarship to the Colorado School of Mines. He received a degree in mining engineering in the commencement exercises. While attending Mines, Mr. Lyon has been greatly interested in work with the School of Mines band. He has been the drum major during his four years there and is a member of Kappa Kappa Psi, honorary band fraternity, and won a name for himself in his playing of the tympanies. He was also a member of the fencing team, manager of the swimming team one year and an R. O. T. C. officer.

The young couple plan to make their home in Golden for the present.

ROSE GARDEN IN BLOOM
Having been favored with an invitation to visit the rose garden at the Dumbolten home, we called early one morning and found that Mr. Dumbolten, the gardener, was already on the job. The gorgeous array of beautiful roses was one well worth seeing and a sight to be remembered. Mr. Dumbolten has spent considerable time and money on his garden and the results are marvelous. On one small bush there were six large blooms of roses on one small stem. A J. B. Clark bush gave one the impression of a well arranged bouquet which had been set into the ground as the flowers were so well balanced and in perfect bloom. A Talsman rose had been grafted and the long sturdy stems with the beautifully blended colors seem most unreal. A dainty Killarney rose also takes the eye, and then there is an abundance of American Beauty climbers. Being unfamiliar with the names of all the roses, we suggest that perhaps you might see them for yourself.

Local News

Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Johnson of Glencoe, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Johnson and Mrs. Baum of "Denver," visited Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Otto Schurr.

Dr. J. H. Berrien attended a meeting of the Berrien County Medical Society at Niles last night, hearing an address by Dr. John T. Hodgen, Grand Rapids.
