The Truth

Politicians, experienced and successful, have told me repeatedly to avoid any reference to the Townsend plan, to let Townsend followers believe, if they wished, that I was in favor of that plan, and so obtain their votes.

If the garnering of votes and reelection were the sole purpose, and the end could be held to justify the means, such advice would be good.

If a candidate is to be frank and fair he should neither seek votes nor by silence deceive voters as to his position. I realize that I have incurred the opposition of many sincere, honest, respectable voters because I would not promise to vote for a $200 per month pension.

Being past sixty myself, having many friends who have reached or passed that age, being sympathetic and desirous of retaining the goodwill and support of the people of this district, were it possible to advocate the Townsend plan, I would gladly do so.

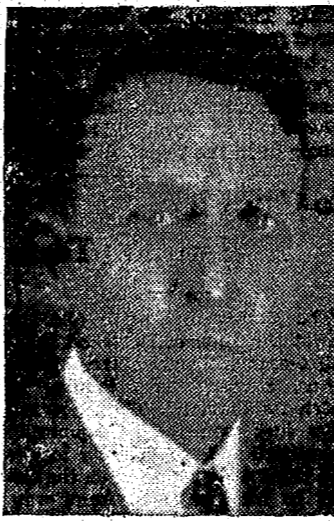

But, in common with, I believe, the majority of the people of this district, I believe that a pension of $200 per month is neither feasible nor just and that such a plan can not at the present time be enacted into law.

When so many, many, honest, hard-working men and women receive far less than $50 per week for back breaking, mind-wrecking toil, why, except to gain a few votes, should I promise an impossibility? The candidate who promises you something which you know he can not deliver is not serving your interests; he is seeking his own self-advancement and puts that above truth.

There are more unemployed, by a 'million people, than when the New Deal took over. Nineteen million people are now on relief. The cost of living is high and it is going higher. I can not, in order to obtain votes, promise to vote for an additional federal transaction tax of two per cent, which, as Dr. Townsend said, will fall principally upon the laborer and the farmer pyramided sales tax which will add and which means, as he said, a from ten to thirty per cent, to every article you use, eat, or wear when I know that the result will be disappointing.

I believe in adequate relief, in adequate security for the unfortunate as well as for the aged, administered by local authorities, honestly and fairly, free from waste, extravagance, and political manipulation, and for that I will work.

Chicanery, misleading statements, promises impossible of performance—to these I will not resort.

If you wish honest, conscientious, and faithful service, your support is solicited. Respectfully, CLARE E. HOFFMAN, Republican Candidate for Congress, Fourth District of Michigan. Political Adv.

Primary Money to Come in September

State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Dr. Eugene B. Elliott, announced Saturday the first installment of primary school interest money this year will amount to $10,766,509, which is $272,020 less than last year's installment. The second installment will also be proportionately lower. It will provide an average of $7.70 for each census child compared with last year's $7.93.

The State Legislature provided for a total distribution of $37,400,000 including the Primary School Interest Fund to the 6700 school districts of the state for this year. This is an increase of $1,360,000 over last year. With the shrinkage in the primary interest fund, it will be necessary to appropriate over twenty-three million dollars from the State General Fund, which derives its revenue largely from the sales tax. Dr. Elliott said the first installment of Primary School Interest Fund would come early in September.

GEN. ALLISON PRAISES U. S. PHONE SERVICE

Chief Signal Officer of Army Cites Value of a Nation-Wide, Integrated System

Major General J. B. Allison, Chief Signal Officer of the U. S. Army, in a hearing on the War Department Appropriation Bill for 1937 before a sub-committee of the Committee on Appropriations, made some interesting comments on this country's telephone service and the organization which furnished it. During the course of his testimony General Allison said:

A Highly Trained Personnel
 "We in this country have the most telephonic communication in the world. The American Telephone and Telegraph Company, the parent organization of the various Bell telephone units, controls the telephonic communication of this country. . . . If you pick up the telephone here on the desk and state that you would like to speak to Mr. John Doe, who lives at 400 Market Street, San Francisco, and that you do not know his number, central would invariably ask you to hold the phone. In a few minutes, she would have your party and if you knew the party to whom you were talking, you could recognize his voice. The reason for this is that the A. T. & T. Co. not only prescribes the spacing of the coasting coils and repeating stations, but they require that the personnel that sets up your circuit have the highest degree of training before they will ever permit them to serve the public.

Technique of Overseas Service
 "Likewise, if you should ask to speak to London, your call would go into the Long Lines office at New York, where highly technical trained personnel would decide, according to the season of the year and the time of the day, whether to give you an intermediate or a high frequency radio circuit. If the former, you would go out over Rocky Point, Long Island; if the latter, from their station at Lawrenceville, near the coast of New Jersey; and when you said 'hello' to London, your reply would come through Houlton, Maine, by long wave; and through Netcong, N. J., by short wave, and thence through the underground telephone circuits back to your instrument.

Value in an Emergency
 "The high character of service rendered by this company is made possible only by a centralized coordination and supervision of the various integral units which make up the system. Under its existing organization and in its present high state of efficiency, its potential value to the country in event of grave emergency is almost beyond conception. Any action which would tend toward a return to the old loose arrangement of independent telephone companies would be decidedly detrimental to the cause of national defense.

An Impartial Statement
 "In making this statement, I wish to say that I do not own a dollar's worth of stock in the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, but I am mindful of the wonderful service they rendered national defense during the World War at a time when I was personally charged with furnishing the Signal Corps replacements for the A. E. F."

Half-Timbered Houses
 In Lisieux are streets of ancient half-timbered houses not equaled elsewhere in France.

Early Use of Word "Caucus"
 One of the first uses of the noun "caucus" was made in John Adams diary, February, 1763.

Must Notify Gov't. Before Making Wine

A warning that it is illegal to make wine for home consumption without informing the federal government that such wine is to be made was issued today by Fred W. Beltz, Supervisor of the Michigan-Ohio District of the Alcohol Tax Unit of the United States Treasury Department.

Beltz pointed out that while it is possible for the head of a family to manufacture up to 200 gallons of wine a year for the use of himself and his family, he must notify the tax unit at least five days before beginning such manufacture. "Under federal statutes," Beltz said, "any wine produced without sanction of the federal authorities who are charged with the enforcement of the United States internal revenue laws is illegally produced and is subject to seizure."

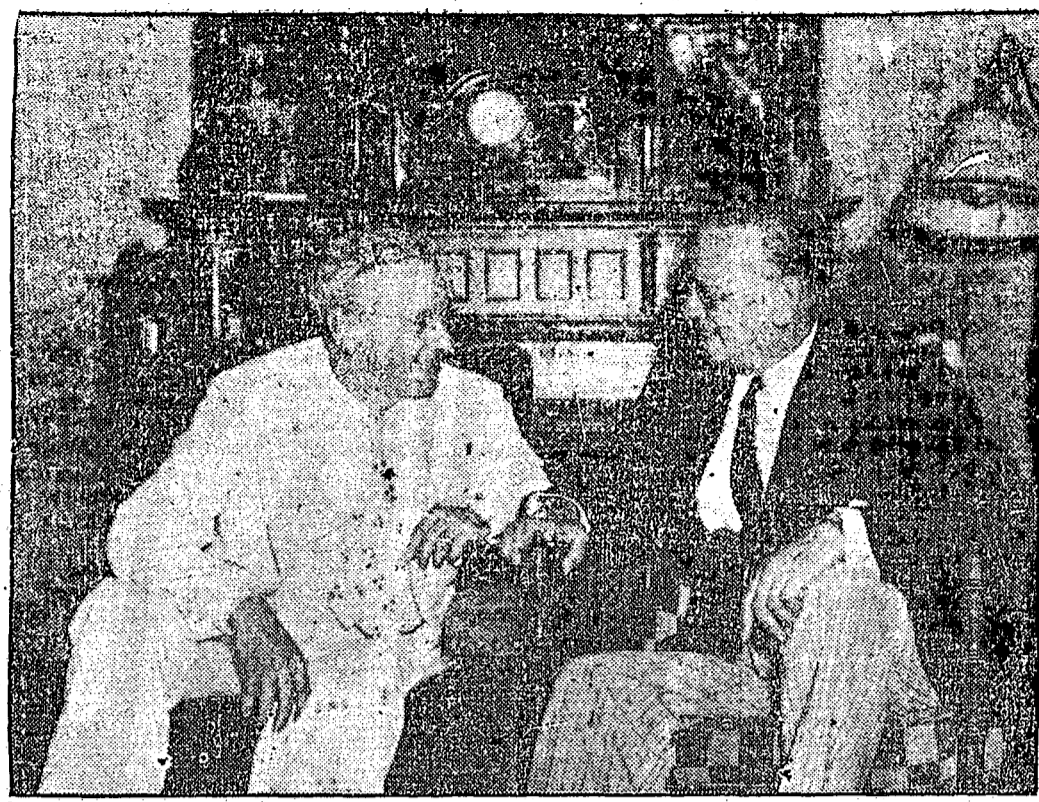

Beltz' statement to winemakers continued: "Although extensive newspaper publicity was given a year ago in connection with this matter, it is believed advisable that the information furnished at that time be repeated in order that persons intending to manufacture wine from the 1936 grape crop may have knowledge or be reminded of the requirements of the law with respect to the manufacture of wine. The law makes a distinction between wine produced for home consumption and wine produced for commercial purposes. Wine for home consumption, if produced by a head of a family in a quantity not exceeding two hundred (200) wine gallons per annum, is not subject to tax, and may be produced in a legal manner by filing a notice of intention to produce such wine with the Alcohol Tax Unit of the Treasury Department at least five days prior to the beginning of the production. Such notice may be filed with no cost at the present time or at any time up to five days prior to commencing manufacture of the wine. Such wine cannot be sold, nor used at any place other than the place of manufacture.

"Qualifying to produce wine for sale is considerably more complicated, and the person or firm desiring to do so must first obtain a permit as a manufacturer of wine from the State authorities in conformity with the State liquor laws. After obtaining such permit and before beginning manufacture he must apply to the federal authorities for qualification and approval of his winery premises, as wine for sale can be legally manufactured only on a qualified bonded winery premises.

"All persons in the State of Ohio and Michigan interested in the production of wines either for home consumption or for sale may obtain full instructions and the necessary forms for complying with the federal laws by addressing a letter or post-card of inquiry to the District Supervisor, Alcohol Tax Unit, Bureau of Internal Revenue, Standard Building, Cleveland, Ohio."

Prospect For Gold In Upper Peninsula

Prospecting for gold on a larger scale than ever before conducted in this state is now under way inland from the shore of Lake Superior west of Marquette, once again focusing the attention of Michigan upon the gold possibilities of the upper peninsula. Fifteen geologists and their assistants, headed by Dr. W. A. Kelly, professor of economic geology and paleontology at Michigan state college, are conducting exploration work in the wilds northwest of Negaunee and Ishpeming. The prospectors are making a detailed study of rock formations beginning at the old Ropes gold mine three miles northeast of Ishpeming to ascertain whether the gold-bearing strata at the Ropes mine and the nearby Michigan gold mine extend to other parts of the district. Between the time of discovery in 1880 and the time of closing in 1897 the Ropes mine produced more than a half-million dollars in gross value of gold bullion.

Old miners and engineers are speculating as to whether Fortuno will lead the expedition to the place where nearly 100 years ago a state geologist, Dr. Douglas Houghton, discovered gold in this region. The official reports say he found enough gold to fill an eagle's quill and that it was obtained "from the bed of a little stream of water." Dr. Houghton drowned in a storm off Keweenaw point before he had disclosed the secret of where he had obtained this gold.

There have been recurrent waves of interest in gold prospecting in the upper peninsula since Houghton's discovery, but the discovery and attention of miners that little time and money have been expended in search for and study of the gold-bearing rocks and other prospecting work.

State geologists declare that the rocks and formations in which gold has been known to be present in this region are apparently not dissimilar in general character to those in the Porcupine district of Ontario where some of the largest and richest gold mines in the world are now operating.

The current expedition will prospect for other minerals as well as gold.

Parrot Spoke Lost Language
 Only once, it is believed, has a scientist discovered a parrot that spoke numerous words and phrases of a lost language. This occurred in South America about 1800, says Collier's Weekly, when the famous German naturalist, Alexander Humboldt, found such a bird speaking the tongue of the Aturi Indians, all of whom it had outlived for several decades.

Tax-payers!

Keep your tax record clear
 . . . make second payment on the 10-YEAR PLAN
by September 1st, 1936

TAX-PAYERS of Michigan last year set a notable example for the people of America by paying or reviving their taxes on hundreds of thousands of pieces of property.

And remember: if you failed to put your taxes on the ten-year plan last year you can still do so by making the first two payments, plus 4%, and a small extra charge on the first part.

Many thousands of tax-payers cleaned up their back taxes in full. Other hundreds of thousands put them on a ten-year plan by paying one-tenth of their total indebtedness for 1932 and prior years.

Now the second payment is due. It amounts to only one-tenth of the amount involved, and to it must be added a carrying charge of 4%.

Don't miss making this payment.

Note:
 By paying up your taxes now on the 10-Year Plan you save 8% to 36% on future payments.

MICHIGAN'S 10-year plan, as enacted by the legislature, provides that on unpaid balances the taxpayer is to add interest at the rate of 4% per annum from September 1, 1935. In other words, on this year's installment the interest charge is 4%. On next year's, 8%. In 1938 it will be 12%. In order to save these advancing costs you can now anticipate all payments by adding only 4%.

By Order of Augmented Administrative Board of State of Michigan

Extend Season For Steelhead Trout

Steelhead trout, the fresh-water "tarpon" of Michigan waters, will provide fishermen with three months of high quality sport this fall during the special open season on this species in certain, designated inland lakes and streams of the northern part of the state.

The season, in effect, is an extension of trout fishing in certain designated waters and continues open throughout September, October and November.

Anglers troll for the steelheads with heavy spoons and lines and within the past several years the sport has come to have a high ranking among the fall outdoor pastimes of the state.

The steelheads begin to enter the waters tributary to Lake Michigan early in the fall in sizes up to 15 or more pounds and will readily take a spoon-hook. Since these fish ordinarily do not remain in trout streams during the regular trout fishing season, the fall trolling is the only means sportsmen have of going after them, legally.

Waters in which trolling for steelheads will be permitted again this fall are listed as follows:

Muskegon river, Muskegon and White lakes, and White river, Muskegon county; White river down from the dam at Hesperia, Pentwater and Stoney lakes, Oceana county; Muskegon river down from Rogers dam, Mecosta and Newaygo counties; Pere Marquette river down from Indian bridge, section 23 T18N, R16W.; south branch Pere Marquette river down from Riverview bridge, sections 35 and 36, T18N, R16W., and Pere Marquette lake, Mason county.

Manistee river, Manistee, Arcadia and Portage lakes, Manistee county; Manistee river down from Trunkline US-131, Wexford county; Round, Platte, Bronson, Lake

Snappy Headgear

This, one of the season's smartest designs in hats, is worn with just the right verve by Anita Colby, who is seen in current RKO Radio pictures. It is of black felt with the visor of patent leather bound in the felt. A thin strip of the material also bands the hat and ties in a careless little knot at the front.

Ann, Lower Herring and BetSle Lakes, Benzle county; Mullet and Burt lakes, Indian and Crooked rivers and Sturgeon river down from the dam at Wolverine, Cheboygan county; Crooked river, Crooked and Pickerel lakes, Emmet county; Lake Charlevoix, Charlevoix county, and channel below new powerhouse at Elk Rapids, Antrim county.

A special open season governs the taking of steelhead trout from the Soo Rapids, St. Mary's river, Chippewa county. This season is open from June 1 to and including Sept. 15.

Afflictions of Musicians Just as athletes have to contend with sprains, bruises, and charley-horses, so do musicians suffer from certain ills which come as a result of steady playing. For instance, as a bandsman points out, cornet players often contend with chapped lips, bass viol players develop blisters on fingers used to pluck the strings of their instruments, violinists suffer from swelling of the neck glands because of constant pressure of the fiddle, and the more susceptible of the sax or oboe players get continuous headaches from the constant vibration of their instruments in their heads.

Sept. Court Has Busy Schedule

Prosecuting Attorney E. A. Westin at Work on Important Criminal Cases up This Term

The September term of court promises to be an unusually heavy one this fall according to Prosecuting Attorney Edward A. Westin. More criminal cases will be tried than at any other term of Circuit Court in several years.

The most important case, one which will attract the greatest amount of public attention, will undoubtedly be the case of the People vs. Coleman, who is charged with having murdered his wife's paramour, Charles Morelock.

Besides the Coleman case, the September term will include the case of the People vs. George Gima, who is charged with shooting his drinking companion in the back as a result of a quarrel over the possession of a quart of wine. Also scheduled is the case of the People vs. Gowski, charged with shooting his daughter's escort in the mouth with a rifle. In addition to these, the September docket lists several cases of assault with intent to do great bodily harm, bad check cases, and other cases of lesser interest.

The September term opens on September 14, and the jury is summoned to appear the following Monday, September 21st. Criminal trials customarily take precedence over civil trials and the prospects are the trial of criminal cases will consume two or three weeks.

Prosecutor Westin is working night and day in preparing his cases for trial in order that they may all be disposed of at the September term. Much of the work of preparing cases for trial has to be done after hours, since the prosecutor's time during the day is practically all taken up with consultations with the people who call to consult with him on a variety of subjects varying from murder to howling dogs. As high as 30 and 35 people a day seek the help of the prosecuting attorney in ironing out their difficulties.

Cites Benefits to Property Owners, Local Government

Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald this week issued a statement reminding taxpayers that they must act at once, if they wish to take advantage of the savings offered by the 10-year installment plan of paying delinquent taxes.

"September 1 is the deadline," the governor declared. "Those who paid their first installment last year, and those who wish to come under the plan by making two payments at once, will find it to their advantage, I am sure, to visit their county treasurer."

Last year, the governor recalled, treasurers' offices were jammed during the closing days, causing much inconvenience and delay. To avoid this, he urged that payments be made as early as possible.

While the state is standing the expenses of the tax collection drive, Governor Fitzgerald declared it was acting merely as a collection agent. Ninety per cent of the delinquent taxes collected remain in the local community where they originate. They are used for the support of city, township, school district, or county government.

"The state is deeply interested," he explained, "for the reason that a self-supporting local government is the best kind of a government. It is managed by its own people. It is not subject to evils of remote control. Likewise, when a local community handles its own affairs, it does not become an additional financial burden to the state. The local unit of government, the state, and the people in general profit when taxes are paid."

It was Governor Fitzgerald who championed the advertising campaign for tax collection last year, which resulted in the payment of $15,000,000 in first installments, of which $13,500,000 went directly for the upkeep of local governments.

Man Turns Cave Dweller After Losing His Farm

Beebe, Ark.—Frank Lee, Claiborne county fisher and trapper, claims to be the state's only cave dweller, as he recently completed remodeling a huge cavern into a home.

The cave, one of many that can be found in a rock bluff more than 1,000 feet long and 75 feet high, is 60 feet square, with an opening measuring ten by eight feet. Using rough lumber, Lee has made a door which can be swung open to admit sunlight and fresh air in the winter and cool breezes in the summer. Lee, a bachelor, lost his farm by foreclosure and decided on the cave home.

INFANT TOLL HIGH IN U. S. DEATH RATE

Mortality Greatest in First Five Years of Life.

Washington.—For the modern, the first five years are the hardest, and of these, the first year is 12 times as fatal as any of the next four. A recent thoroughgoing study by the Census bureau of deaths and their cause in 1934 disclosed that the five-year period which most nearly approaches the first period in fatalities is that between the ages of seventy and seventy-five.

This might bring the improper conclusion that if a person gets through the first five years it is likely that he will live to be seventy. The dividing line, however, lies somewhere just under sixty. There are slightly more deaths under sixty than beyond that age.

Of the 1,157,440 deaths in 1934 that were analyzed by the bureau, 585,696 were under sixty; 571,744 were after sixty. The study, for comparative purposes, covered those 34 states which have been reporting their vital statistics regularly to the bureau since 1920.

Some of the Causes

Among the causes, the diseases of early infancy—congenital debility, premature birth and injury at birth—accounted for almost half the deaths of those under one year. Pneumonia, diarrhea, enteritis and congenital malformations covered another third. Whooping cough and influenza also claimed heavy fatalities among babies.

A close, general analysis, covering not only child but adult deaths, disclosed that about one out of four dies of heart or some circulatory disease; one out of nine dies of cancer; one out of ten from diseases of the nervous system; one of ten from infectious or parasitic diseases, with about the same rate for accidents and for digestive disorders.

Most of the fatal illnesses of man lie between the skin and the bones. Only one of every 813 die of bone ailments, one of 685 from skin diseases. One out of every 370 dies of chronic poisoning and intoxication. And just one out of every 166 lives long enough to die of old age. Curiously enough, one death was attributed to senility between the ages of forty-five and fifty. The period claiming the largest number of such deaths, however, was between eighty and eighty-five.

Some of the diseases that ranked highest in fatalities were: Tuberculosis, 57,897; cancers and other tumors, 123,211; diabetes, 24,826; cerebral hemorrhage, 81,968; endocarditis, 53,240; myocarditis, 124,592; heart diseases, 42,348; bronchopneumonia, 34,254; lobar pneumonia, 44,791; violent and accidental deaths, 108,140; digestive diseases, 106,171.

Generally, the study showed that the modern was troubled most with his heart and circulatory system, next with cancers and tumors, has a nervous system that shatters, falls prey to dozens of infectious and parasite-carried diseases and is subject to a broad category of accidents. Beyond these, he has a stomach and digestive tract that may take him away. But smallpox, the scourge of a century ago, has almost vanished from the bodies of Americans. There were only nine deaths from smallpox in the area covered.

Some of the rarer diseases showed themselves, however. Two died of the plague. Scurvy took 28. Beriberi claimed four. And, perhaps indicative of the depression, only two died of gout.

U. S. Men's "Beauty" Bill Is $600,000,000 a Year

Chicago.—The American man spends about two-thirds the amount women do for "beauty aids," according to the results of a national survey announced here. While women are paying nearly $800,000,000 annually to beauty shops and for cosmetics, men are spending about $600,000,000 a year in barber shops and for shaving lotions, hair tonic, massages and manicures.

The nation's annual barber shop bill is reported to have dropped from $750,000,000 in 1928 to approximately $500,000,000 in 1936, yet the masculine use of other items to enhance the appearance of the face and hair has increased about 25 per cent.

On the basis of the 1930 census $16.21 a year is spent by the adult male for "beauty aids," as compared with the estimated $22.29 for women.

Italians Are Rated as Most Talkative

London.—Italy is the most talkative nation in Europe and Germany is a poor second, according to the ratings of a European radio survey.

While Holland is the least garrulous nation on the air with only 12 per cent of its broadcasting time devoted to talks, the two countries ruled by dictators allot more time to talking than any other form of radio entertainment.

The stations of Italy devote 45 per cent of all available programs to talking, and those of Germany devote 27 per cent. After Germany the country with the most to say is Norway with 25 per cent "talk time."

Bob Rowe Writes of Lake Voyage

Tells of Forest Fires on Isle Royale, and of the Grounding of the "Mary Margaret."

As forest fires destroyed hundreds of acres of virgin timber on Isle Royale in Lake Superior, the steamer Mary Margaret of Benton Harbor stood by last week, to give aid and rescue persons endangered by the flames.

A vividly interesting account of the Mary Margaret's adventures was written by Robert Rowe, young Benton Harbor man who is serving as mate on the vessel, in a letter to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Rowe, of Benton Harbor.

The Mary Margaret, which had seen more than 10 years of service as a fruit packet between Benton Harbor and Milwaukee, was re-fitted this year as a passenger boat, to run from Isle Royale to the mainland. At the time the letter was written the boat was without the services of its pilot and extra seaman, so that Captain E. R. Eaglesfield and Rowe were running the boat themselves. With a short wave radio, the boat keeps in contact with all the camps on the island and the Navy seaplanes that fly in the vicinity.

"This is our first trip around on the north side of the island," the letter says, "and you all ought to see the rocky cat-holes we have run into. When we go in we just check down as slow as possible and I take soundings all the way in. The only bad part of it is that at one moment we are in 50 feet of water and then suddenly up pops a rock ledge about two feet under the surface. Then I beller and the old man rings Eddie (the engineer) full astern and we back away and try somewhere else. Oh I say, it's great fun.

"The national park service came in at 3:30 and at 4:10 we were free and clear. Sure looked bad for a short while though because a fresh wind came up about 1 o'clock and screwed us around a bit. But then it died down and we were ok. We are now proceeding to Rock Harbor camp. Rowe finished his letter at 12:30 the next night, saying: "We are back in Houghton and everyone is happy. We plowed through a little fog going to Rock Harbor camp last night, but it didn't delay us much. Today we

"I really don't know just what the poor army would have done if we hadn't been up here, for there are no other boats that can haul supplies and get in these shallow harbors. The U. S. S. Paducah is here from Duluth but she will hardly come near the island, and the Seminole won't go in anywhere because she draws too much water. Neither one of these boats is any good for handling supplies for they have no hold space, so the only thing they can do is transport men. I am wondering just what will happen when all these men have to be taken off either because of the fire or because of cold weather."

While anchoring for the night in Florence bay, on the north side of the island, Rowe wrote: "I never dreamed that a place could be so quiet at night as some of the spots around that island are. Tonight there isn't a sound of any kind to be heard, not even a cricket, a bird or anything else. Even the sea gulls have passed out around here. But I'm thankful for a good night's sleep without a bunch of CCC's batin' around the boat."

"There are plenty of small fires around this side of the island but most of them seem to be spot fires; probably caused by sparks from the other side of the island. In a high wind such as we have had at times recently, fire brands carry for five or six miles."

The next day the Mary Margaret ran into difficulties, but it got away safely: "We left Florence bay this morning at 7 o'clock and ran down the beach to Thompsonite Beach (the camp site) and unloaded one man, an officer. Started away at 9 o'clock and (listen to this—the inevitable) we are sittin' high and dry on a rock reef 1,000 feet off shore. We are on an even keel and sittin' on the reef from amidships aft. The stern is up about a foot. We have radioed for the coast guards and the national park service boats and they should be here within another hour. It is now 10 a. m. and we have been in since 9 a. m. I believe we can get off if we can hold her stern over to keep our wheel clear. There is no sea at present so we are safe in that respect."

Rowe then left his typewriter, but at 12:30 he returned and wrote: "Well, we're still sittin' on our little rock waitin' for aid. The coast guards came in from Todd Harbor, about 10 miles south of here with their surfboat, but they were too light to do any good; couldn't pull any. The Crawford, a big coast guard cutter, is on her way from Grand Marais, Minn., and the national park service boat is on the way. The latter should be here very soon. We have taken soundings all around us and I don't believe we will have any trouble when we get help."

Early that evening he wrote again: "The national park service came in at 3:30 and at 4:10 we were free and clear. Sure looked bad for a short while though because a fresh wind came up about 1 o'clock and screwed us around a bit. But then it died down and we were ok. We are now proceeding to Rock Harbor camp. Rowe finished his letter at 12:30 the next night, saying: "We are back in Houghton and everyone is happy. We plowed through a little fog going to Rock Harbor camp last night, but it didn't delay us much. Today we toted some supplies down to Chippewa and while we were there quite a fresh breeze came up and things again look bad for them there. The fire is starting to bear down on 'em. "It's a lucky thing that the recent winds have been running in puffs and lasting only a few hours otherwise the lodge there would have been gone long ago. I hope they will be able to save the place but it is not likely. The main fire of the island at the present time is right at Chippewa and a strong breeze from any direction would take them."

USE BIG NAVY GUNS TO DEFEND HAWAII

Banned Warship Rifles Are Turned Over to Army.

Honolulu, T. H.—The army uses navy guns to guard Oahu, the island on which lies the largest military concentration under the American flag.

This paradox of coast defense is due to diplomats and the formulation of the Washington treaty. The treaty banned the addition of 16-inch guns to the battleships, so the surplus "rifles" were turned over to the army.

Two of these guns, mounted on carriages constructed by the army's ordnance department, were proof fired recently at Fort Barrette, 20 miles west of Honolulu, guarding the western approach to the island.

Their performance showed strikingly their defense capabilities in time of emergency. Each is capable of hurling a 2,100-pound projectile over a maximum range of 45,000 yards—nearly 26 miles. They can be swung around and elevated to a maximum of 55 degrees.

Hence they could drop a shell at nearly any spot on a line described by the perimeter of the island, guarding it from attack from virtually every side.

The guns weigh 140 tons each and are as large as any in the world.

Army experts believe they are of infinitely more value for defense than the lighter, mobile anti-aircraft guns and indicate they may recommend construction of similar batteries at other points.

A similar battery at Fort Weaver now guards the entrance to Pearl harbor, the navy's mighty mid-Pacific base.

AT THE THEATRE

Jean Hersholt Starred in Stirring New Screen Success!

The affection of a father for his two motherless sons and the heart-break and sorrow, turmoil and triumphs that this love brings the parent is the motivating background for the widely-heard-of Darryl F. Zanuck Twentieth Century production, "Sins of Man," opening Sunday at the Hollywood Theatre with Jean Hersholt starred.

Hersholt is seen as the sexton and bell ringer of the church in a small Tyrolean village. Karl, the older son is expected to follow in his father's foot-steps but secretly harbors dreams of being an aviator. The other boy, Gabriel, has been a deaf-mute from birth.

Karl breaks his father's heart when he announces that he is going to America and study flying. Shortly afterwards, the old man is joyously surprised to find that Gabriel is beginning to hear. To be completely cured, he must be taken to a noted surgeon in America.

In the meantime, Karl's daring has won him a reputation in America and the boy writes his father of his success. Hersholt forgives him and decides to visit him in America and at the same time prepare the way for Gabriel's impending operation.

In America Karl and his father are happily reunited. But it is only for a short while, as Karl is soon afterwards killed in an airplane crash. In the mean time war has broken out in Europe and Hersholt hears that his native village has been demolished.

The years go by. Hersholt becomes a doddering old pauper, wandering around New York and barely managing to keep himself alive.

How Hersholt and his younger son, Gabriel, are brought face to face after twenty years, and how the old man recognizes his boy, makes one of the most touchingly human pictures ever produced in Hollywood.

Comedy, melodrama and romance are mixed lavishly in "Florida Special," newest contribution from the Paramount Studios, which opens Friday at the Hollywood Theatre, with Jack Oakie and Sally Eiler in the leading roles.

A new and baffling mystery melodrama, "Murder by an Aristocrat," comes here next Wednesday and Thursday, with Lyle Talbot, Marguerite Churchill and Claire Dodd in the leading roles.

Permanently scarred as the result of injuries received in an airplane crash, an infuriated movie star takes his wrath out on two other members of a strange human cargo marooned on a financier's desolate ranch. Louis Hayward plays the film star and Bernadene Hayes and Wallace Ford enact the two desperados who stir up considerable excitement during the unfolding of "Absolute Quiet," new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer melodrama, coming Wednesday and Thursday to the local theatre.

By L. L. STEVENSON
 Observations here and there: A Times Square window cleaner, working a dozen stories above the street, dropping his wiping cloth . . . and making a grab for it . . . Cold chills . . . A window full of 13-cent neckties . . . With ready tied bows at nine cents . . . I'd pay a lot more to be able to get that same effect with evening ties . . . No, matter how hard I work, they always come out lip-sided . . . A big lobster waving a languid claw at a pretty girl peering into a restaurant window . . . The old rascal . . . Bootblacks battling over a choice position in front of an Eighth avenue vacant store-room . . . Forty-third street blocked with big busses bound here and there . . . Taxicab drivers engaged in horn practice . . . As if they could blow them out of the way . . . A bearded old sand-which man, clad in a choice assortment of rags, advertising a beauty shop.

Wall street: A messenger boy with a handful of yellow envelopes, whistling and smoking a cigarette at the same time as he strolls along leisurely . . . A young man with a black grip chained to his wrist . . . and a policeman on the other end of the chain . . . The scars in the side of the Morgan building . . . The last mementoes of the great Wall street explosion . . . Guards stopping and questioning those who would crash the gates of the Stock Exchange . . . A top-hatted broker with a red carnation in his buttonhole . . . The dignified spire of Trinity . . . George Washington atop a pedestal in front of the old sub-treasury . . . A street preacher imploring passers-by to turn to God . . . Great temples of Mammon housing thousands of workers . . . and the dingy piers of the East River.

Meditations: Wonder what became of those tokens the Interborough Transit Company had made when it anticipated an increase in subway fares to seven cents? . . . Why the engineers who designed the Forty-second street station of the municipal subway allowed only one small entrance and exit on either side of Eighth avenue? . . . Why New York taxicab drivers won't open or close doors for their passengers? . . . Why some box office men regard themselves as superior to those who pay their salaries by buying seats? Why New Yorkers will risk death by crossing streets against traffic and then spend ten minutes looking at men drilling asphalt? . . . Why bank tellers don't go cuckoo counting money all day?

Sidewalk cafes adding a Paris touch to the old town . . . and giving patrons snot and grit along with food and drink . . . A commuter struggling through Forty-second street traffic with a big coil of garden hose over his shoulder . . . Bryant park torn up again . . . That seems to be its natural state . . . Once it was a reservoir . . . A young man "clocking" pedestrians as they pass an empty storeroom . . . Making a count for someone contemplating opening a business there . . . Helen Hayes, who in a little more than a month will cease being Queen Victoria . . . For the summer only, however.

Tourists staring at downtown skyscrapers . . . Their clothes proclaim that they came from Europe . . . Americans probably look just as funny to them . . . The glistening fireboats moored at Pier A . . . They look as if they were straining at their moorings in their eagerness to go into action . . . The sun shining on the red buildings of Ellis Island . . . Don't hear so much about that gateway nowadays . . . Idlers leaning against the sea wall railings at the Battery . . . Coast guard cutters resting at piers . . . and the funny little ferry that runs over to Governors Island.

Maybe I'm wrong, but it seems to me that New York changes its character with the change of seasons. In winter, it's cold, hard, artificial. In summer, it's hot, tired and inclined to be curt. In autumn, it's rebellious, those who have been away to the shore or mountains resenting return to steel and concrete and those who have been forced to stay here through the heated term, resenting months of imprisonment in apartments and tenements. In spring, it's like a lot of prisoners released without parole or probation and inclined to be a bit boisterous over their luck. Right now, it seems to be an overgrown village, friendly and with leisure to gape at excavations, line up alongside Riverside Drive and stare at the Hudson and block pedestrian traffic whenever there is a window demonstration.

See Our State Fair Governor Urges

Through the State Fair Board, Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald has issued a proclamation asking all residents of Michigan to try and pay a visit to the Fair this year.

"It is entirely proper and fitting," he wrote, "that the 87th Michigan State Fair should be used as an instrument to celebrate the 100th anniversary of Michigan's state-hood by depicting the progress which we have made and the results which have been obtained from the time our ancestors carved out of the Old Northwest Territory the prosperous and dynamic State of Michigan.

Cites Progress
 "One hundred years ago we were less than 90,000 people, scattered along the Detroit river and the southern borders of the State. Indians still roamed the forests and the interior of Michigan was practically an unbroken wilderness.

Rich State
 "Today we have over 18,000,000 acres of land in farms with a valuation of nearly $800,000,000. More than 1,897,000 horses and cattle graze on the hills, valleys and flat-lands of our state. We rank fourteenth in the value of the farms and eighteenth in the number of farms. In 1934, the income to the farmers of this commonwealth was estimated to be $115,689,000. Our industrial development has startled the world and the products of our shops and factories are found upon the farms, the roads, and in the homes of every civilized people in the world."

Telephone Device Gives Warning on Time Limit

Leipzig—It no longer is necessary to watch the clock to avoid extra charges in telephoning. When the telephone operator announces that the three-minute interval is up it is often the case that the parties talking are in the midst of a conversation that cannot be finished without an extra fee. An ingenious telephone call-time has been devised which warns of the approach of the end of the call. The device consists of an hour-glass arrangement which rings a bell at the end of two and a half minutes. The half-minute which follows before the end of the telephone period should be long enough to finish the conversation. The phone call alarm, which is shown at the Leipzig fair, is devised for world-wide use, as the limit for a telephone call is three minutes in virtually every civilized country in the world.

Ginger is here shown taking a lump of sugar from Miss Virginia Lyon. The Fair will be held this year Sept. 4 to 18 inclusive.

CONQUER SAHARA BY MODERN TRANSPORTS

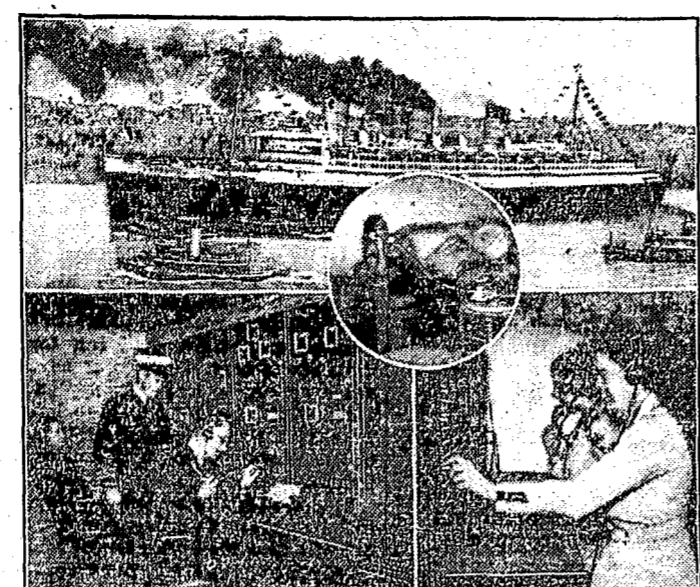

Expedition Makes Surveys for Passenger Lines.

Washington, D. C.—"The world's biggest, fiercest, most death-dealing! Come and look at it! In a cage of bus lines, air lines, rail lines! Admission, one round-trip ticket!" Thus may the French advertise a new exhibit in their many-ringed circus of French West Africa. And the new catch has been that bitterest enemy of human life, the wild, the untamable, the unconquerable: the Sahara desert. "A French expedition has completed a new north-south link in the surveys for lines to carry passengers regularly across desert wastes which had been virgin solitudes until the machine age arrived with its superhuman relentless energy," says the National Geographic society. "The new route starts at Tindouf, an oasis on the high Dra plateau of western Algeria, and plunges through about 800 miles of the Sahara's primeval desolation to Walata, French Sudan. It skirts the eastern edge of Mauritania. Both settlements are on east-west trade routes, but travel across the blistering vastness between them has previously been classified as an expensive way to commit suicide.

Jumping-Off Place "Tindouf, the northern terminus, is a jumping-off place for the upper left-hand corner of the Sahara, which practically blots out life across the top half of Africa, except for a coastal border and a sprinkling of interior oases. Already, on several routes, white busses with windows curtained against the blinding glare of the sun and sand haul passengers along ancient caravan trails to desert hotels of sunbaked mud, furnished with white iron beds and chairs on carpeted floors. "Signposts point the way through geographical oases where temperatures average somewhere around 120 degrees by daylight and tumble at sunset toward the freezing point. Raincoats can safely be omitted from baggage strapped atop the busses. Travelers may find settlements rejoicing over their first rainfall in decades. "Thus mechanical progress subdues the desert which was formerly one of the greatest barriers in the world to human travel, pitted with doom, littered with tragedies. Its dangers were braved only for the fabulous profits from traffic in desert gum-arabic, salt, dates, ostrich feathers and kola nuts of the Sudan, or that basic commodity of Africa's "black ivory" days—slaves. "The new Tindouf-Walata route crosses territory which was shunned before, threatened as it is with the two greatest dangers of desert travel: nature in a state of utter desolation and human nature in the very rawest. Tindouf is a palm-shaded oasis on a rocky waste of smooth sandstone, sloping down from the Atlas mountains. The sandstone, only occasionally broken with a stretch of rough gravel, is remarkably "good going" for motors. Surrounding areas are steppes, semi-desert stretches supporting such vegetation as clumps of plantain 50 or 60 yards apart, but hardly enough for hospitality.

Lift Sand Skyward "Soon enough the route crosses the Igudi desert, where sand dunes creep stealthily forward on the strength of swirling winds, gradually obliterating waterholes, and miniature whirlwinds lift sand skyward to form "waltzing jinns". The eastern edge of Mauritania must be crossed, in spite of the imperfectly subdued Moors, an Arab tribe that is proud of being a bit more cultivated than other Arabs—more literary, more pious, quicker to aid the faithful, quicker to despise the unbeliever, quicker to evade the French military patrol cars from Tindouf. Then comes El Juf, about 375 miles of shallow depression in a bowl of red sandstone cliffs, one of the least penetrated parts of the Sahara. Apparently quite flat, its arid surface is barely broken with small dunes and scattered clumps of half-dead gray shrubs, the whole beset with a shimmering in a fierce dry heat. "Walata, the southern terminus, is the first habitable spot encountered in the journey longer than that from New York to Chicago. And "habitable" in Walata means less than it would imply outside the desert. For this is a population center only for the Tuarogs, a sturdy Berber tribe in which generations of contest with their greatest adversary—the Sahara—have produced a breed that is keen and quick, with the inhuman endurance of steel. A desert sandstorm is simply their substitute for a bath. These "People of the Veil" have developed a technique of building complicated mud cities of houses several stories high with inclosed stairways, and roofed-over streets lined with cafes and shops. And they have also developed a technique of living in them. Here the women enjoy an unusual freedom, preserving traces of a matriarchal society. The men, fanatically veiled to the eyes, are deadly fighters, although their weapons are crude shields of antelope hide, pointless swords and arm daggers."

New Liner Queen Mary Has Double Ship-to-Shore Telephone Circuits

The S. S. Queen Mary, pride of England's shipping industry and largest man-made thing afloat, is, of course, the last word in maritime equipment. Included among the numerous arrangements for the convenience and comfort of her passengers is the most extensive telephone layout aboard any vessel. This super-liner is equipped with apparatus providing not one but two independent ship-to-shore telephone circuits, making it possible for passengers to carry on simultaneous conversations while at sea, with friends in America and in Europe. During the Queen Mary's maiden voyage westward, ending in New York City on June 1, a total of 284 telephone calls were completed from and to the ship, and it is estimated that about half that many more were not completed because of the difficulty of locating passengers who were not in their cabins. The liner was in contact with New York's "Long Distance" at frequent intervals from the time she left Southampton until after she had dropped anchor at Quarantine. Conversations with the ship linked passengers with telephone subscribers on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, in the Middle-West, and in Canada. In addition to the telephone conversations, numerous radio broadcasts from the vessel were transmitted over the ship-to-shore telephone circuits to the broadcasting chains on land. All of the 700 first class passengers have telephones in their staterooms, and the 1,400 passengers in the other classes are served through telephone booths in all parts of the ship. In addition, the entire personnel of the ship is provided with telephone service. Calls are handled through a three-position switchboard, similar to that in a large hotel, located on A Deck. Four young women operators and a male night operator are required to care for the telephone business of the ship, which on the maiden voyage averaged 2,000 "local" calls a day. The Queen Mary brings the total of ocean liners having telephone connection with the Bell System up to nineteen. This comprises practically all of the large transatlantic liners. Ship-to-shore service in the Atlantic is handled on the American side by two stations on the New Jersey coast. These stations maintain contact with ships on four different frequencies, the frequency used in any given case depending upon the distance of the ship from the coast and the time of day or night. In general, the greater the distance, the higher the frequency.

Clark Equipment Makes Street Car Parts

(Continued from page 1) and $16,000 for the 40 passenger type. The advantage of the street car on the basis of the above figures is obvious. The use of rubber on large, flat contact surfaces renders the new cars almost noiseless and vibrationless. They have a maximum safe speed of 50 miles an hour and an accelerating and stopping speed of at least twice that of the old street car. The bodies of the car embrace the newest developments for the comfort of the passengers, including form fitting seats upholstered in leather, with salinized stainless steel tubular frames, non-glare lighting and scientific heating and ventilation. A feature which is much emphasized is the use of the hypoid gear drive made by the Frost Gear company, Jackson, a subsidiary of the Clark Equipment company. This gear is of the spiral bevel type and is practically noiseless from the fact that it operates entirely in oil, the surface being entirely filmed with oil, which precludes the noisy clash of metal against metal. More than 400 pounds of pure rubber is used in building each car. This is considerably more than goes into the average motor truck or bus, including that in the tires, Shepard said. Rubber is used chiefly in two places on the new street cars—the wheels and the springs. The wheels are really flanged steel bands with great discs of rubber supporting the axle. The rubber disc in the wheel separates the metal tire from the rest of the wheel. The hub of the wheel and the axle also are separated from the frame of the truck by rubber. Large rubber springs are used for this purpose. There are four for each axle, sixteen to each car. The axle is attached to a metal band which is vulcanized to the outside of the rubber spring. The frame of the truck is attached to an inner metal band on the spring and therefore is suspended entirely on rubber with no points of contact between metals. Each spring is tested to support 5,000 pounds. The load on each spring when an empty car is at a standstill is 1,600 pounds. New types of motors, controls, and brakes were developed to give the new car fast and smooth acceleration and retardation. The new control is featured by a greatly increased number of resistance points which permit the speed to be stepped up quickly in a smooth acceleration. This has been accomplished by putting 120 points on the new control, in contrast to the nine to eighteen on the old type of cars. The acceleration rate is nearly five miles per hour a second. This will permit the car to make a faster "getaway" from a standstill than the average automobile. The maximum service braking rate is also nearly five miles per hour a second, while the emergency braking rate is nine miles per hour a second. Battery Brakes for Safety Another innovation is the electro-magnetic brake, which is energized by a battery instead of from the trolley. Thus it will operate at all times. It insures against slid-ding regardless of rail conditions, and does not generate excessive heat in the wheels. A magnetic brake is suspended at each side of the truck a fraction of an inch above the rail. It is a horseshoe magnet 41 inches long. When the magnet is energized it grabs the rail. At its maximum excitement one brake will exert a pull of 15,000 pounds. There are four on each car so the maximum pull will be 60,000 pounds—equivalent to a drag on the moving vehicle of 30 tons. The magnetic brake is one of three types with which the car is equipped. Another is the dynamic brake which is the motor. When the power is shut off the motor acts as a generator and retards the car. The energy thus created is changed into heat which is thrown off in the summer and utilized to warm the car in winter. The third is the air brake operating the brake shoe. This is used only in the final phase of the braking operation and when the car is parked.

All Act Automatically The three brakes act automatically and are complementary to each other from a single foot control. A necessary part of the new vehicle and its increased speed was a reduction in weight. The bodies are made of a newly developed light-weight steel. The whole car weighs 34,000 pounds or 10,000 to 20,000 pounds less than present models. Surface lines officials decided to place all of the new cars on a single line to obtain a complete test of their ability to speed up traffic and attract new riders. The Madison street line was selected as affording the best testing ground since it is not mixed in with other lines. The 83 cars will completely reequip the line. Each car costs slightly more than $15,000. The total outlay will be approximately $1,250,000. The new cars will be paid for from the surface lines' renewal and depreciation fund which now totals more than $19,000,000. This fund has been idle since 1920. It was authorized under the 1907 transit ordinance for the purpose of building reserves to make needed replacements and for rehabilitation.

To maintain a proper valuation in the property account of the company, 156 old cars will be junked. Surface lines officials admit that a major program for replacing existing equipment is necessary but assert that purchase of additional cars will depend on how soon a new franchise is obtained and its terms. The Abbott plan of reorganization, which contemplates merger of the underlying companies in the system into one new corporation, provides for release of the renewal fund for replacement purposes.

Statue Turned Into Bullets The equestrian statue of King George III, torn down July 8, 1776, in the New York celebration of the Declaration of Independence was turned into 42,500 bullets. Electrical Storms No section of the country is entirely free from electrical storms, but along the immediate Pacific coast they are comparatively rare.

Original Name for Tinting The original name for tinting was frivolta. It was very popular during the middle and latter part of the Nineteenth century. Naming Boston, Mass. Boston, Mass., derives its name from the Lincolnshire Boston, from which town many citizens set sail for New England in 1630 and the next few years. Government Printing Office The act of congress authorizing the government printing office was passed in 1850, but the actual establishment took place March 4, 1861.
