Tells of 1926 Tornado Which Killed Three on Batchelor's Island

Was Second Cyclone to Hit Buchanan District

Buchanan has been visited by two cyclones in its hundred-odd years of life, the first in 1845 and the last in 1926. The first was in the days when the place was a struggling saw-mill town in the woods along McCoy's Creek. It traveled the usual northeasterly direction, striking only the east edge of the settlement, and leveling to the ground the framework of the house now occupied by Mrs. Anna Morley, which was then in course of erection. The frame work was of course set up again and the house completed after the storm. The tornado mowed a path through a maple grove east of town.

She was staying at the cottage of her uncle, Al Flenar, that day. It had been a still, hot morning, and the air was humid and heavy following an early morning rain. The first noticed at the Flenar cottage was the sound of a dull roaring off in the southwest almost exactly like the sound of a heavy freight train. But the sound increased to a louder roaring and a wind started up, indicating that a hard blow was coming. However, no one thought of danger. Mrs. Flenar asked her niece to shut the shutters on the cottage. Marie went out but by that time the wind was blowing so hard she could not shut them. Then she tried to go back into the cottage but the wind blew her from the door. She managed to throw herself on the ground on the top of a little knoll on the side of which the Flenar cottage is located, and there she grabbed the trunk of a young peach tree with both hands.

There she lay and then she could see the tornado--an inky black cloud just over Moccasin bluff, and coming rapidly. Apparently it did not touch the ground until it hit the brow of Moccasin bluff, and as it did so the cloud suddenly turned from black to brown as it filled with dust and debris. Closer it roared, the sound increasing until it seemed to Marie that it would shatter her eardrums any moment. It struck the river and scooped up hundreds of gallons of water. Then it struck the island. She held fast to the tree and saw the Greathouse cottage whirl by her, then small buildings, following a spiral track. Then the boards, timbers, debris of all kinds began to rain down on her. She was completely buried in the boards, timbers and branches, but fortunately, no timber struck her a direct head-on blow or she would have been killed. During that seemingly age-long space of a few seconds it seemed to Miss Herman that the next second would mean death.

Miss Herman ran to the east shore of the island, looking for the several boats that were tied there before the storm struck, but all had been blown away. She saw one near the opposite shore and swam across to it, rowing the remaining distance. When she started swimming she discovered that one wrist was fractured but she managed to negotiate the distance and then row with one arm. A call was made from the Alta Denno home and in a few minutes Dr. Strayer, Dr. Snowden, Dr. Curtis and Dr. Wallace were on the scene, and an ambulance had arrived. Mary English died a few minutes after arriving at the hospital and Floribell Powell died at 5 p. m. that day.

Albert Houswerth Tells Effect Freeze on Calif. Fruit, Vegetables

Smudge Fires Blacken Skies, Landscape at Los Angeles

Relative to the severe freezes on the Pacific coast, the Record has been privileged to print a letter written by Albert Houswerth, who spent two months in that section. Because of its interest we reproduce it in its entirety: Mr. and Mrs. John Houswerth of Jackson and myself and wife left Chicago on the evening of Jan. 5 for Los Angeles, Calif. The trip was without special incident, and the weather was mild. But in passing through western Texas and into Arizona on the afternoon of Jan. 7, snow began to fall, making things look more blue than white. This continued through the following night and until we reached Alhambra, Calif., the ground was covered. We were interested in seeing the orange groves being lit up with smudge fires. At Alhambra the snow had ceased, but I never saw a whiter frost, and the water and ground were frozen. I wondered if they were having a spell of Michigan weather or of Florida weather or what. We arrived in Los Angeles at 7 a. m. Jan. 8, and located suitable quarters. We noticed on arrival great clouds arising as though from an impending storm, but on inquiry we were told that it was from smudge fires from the orange groves. We visited a number of groves of lemons, oranges and grape fruit. Their resistance to cold is in the order named. The lemons are very tender, and some lemon trees will not bear a single good fruit. Many orange grove crops are ruined, but most of the grape fruit are all right. Many of the lemon trees looked as though fire had burned them. Lettuce, cauliflowers and vegetables were damaged. These happenings had boosted prices, which were yet very cheap compared with those in Michigan. The first two weeks were quite cool, but thereafter except for a few days we had California weather. The rainfall has been above normal, reservoirs are full and growers have a water supply for the next two years. The mountain tops are covered with snow and their sides green with shrubbery, but most of the flowers were killed by freezes. The sheep, white cattle, and white chickens are black from the smudge. Things in Los Angeles are not blackened much, as the fruit groves are several miles out. While the damage is estimated at 30%, there is plenty left for all. Our landlord, a real estate dealer, says business is good. The churches are well filled, the theatres are well filled and some people seem to be pretty well filled. We read the Record with great interest, just like a letter from home. A. E. Houswerth.

Mrs. W. Fritz Dies in Indiana

Mrs. Willey Ann Fritz, 83, died Thursday evening, Feb. 25, at the home of her sister, Mrs. Mollie Jones, at Columbus, Ind., as the result of a stroke incurred Feb. 13. Mrs. Fritz had gone last fall to Columbus to spend the winter. The remains were brought to Buchanan and funeral services were held in the Hamilton Funeral home Sunday, Feb. 28. Paul Carpenter preached the funeral sermon. She was buried beside her husband, the late George Fritz, in Oak Ridge cemetery. Pallbearers were William Kohman, Ellis Wilsey, John Luke, A. Hamblin, M. Wideman, Jay Glover. She was born near Westville, Ind., Jan. 30, 1854, the daughter of Leslie and Elizabeth Williams. She was married to George Fritz of Elkhart at Buchanan, March 27, 1873. He preceded her in death March 1, 1935. Soon after their marriage they moved to Sump-ton's Prairie near South Bend, where they farmed for a number of years, having charge of the William Oliver farm. They then moved to Alabama for several years, and on their return to South Bend Mr. Fritz was employed at the Oliver factory. They moved to Buchanan in 1919. Never having had any children of their own, they made a home for three children, Lenora Adams, now Mrs. D. A. Curl of South Bend; Harry Rudduck of Mishawaka and Edward Adams of New York State. Surviving are her sister, Mollie Jones of Columbus, Ind.; a step-brother, M. O. Burdett of Buchanan.

Double Misfortune in Waterman Family

Miss Raedel suffered skull bruises and leg injuries, but was not fatally hurt. Among those from outside the city who attended the Waterman funeral Friday were the following: four children, Earl Waterman and wife, Loren Waterman, Mrs. Myrtle Raedel, Mrs. A. L. Snyder, all of Chicago; two sisters, Mrs. Amanda Christopher of Chicago and Miss Jessie A. Keene, Fort Wayne, Ind.; a granddaughter, Mrs. Frank Choloroske and two daughters, Nancy and Sally of Evanston, Ill. The two great granddaughters are remaining for a visit with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Waterman.

Board Suggests Special Poll

Supporters Challenge Action But withhold Maundamus Pending Conference

Following decision of the city commission at the March meeting Monday evening not to take action on the proposed charter amendments on the ground of improper form and irregularities in signatures, it seems likely that individuals favoring the amendments will meet with the members of the city commission and the city attorney at an early date to iron out the alleged defects and put the amendment in proper form for submission, possibly at a special election. A. S. Bonner, a leading member of the original commission which formed the charter, was present at the Monday evening meeting and stated that in his opinion it would be better to submit the amendment at a special election, apart from other considerations. When the objection was raised that it would entail extra expense, he stated that the proposal is important enough to justify that consideration, and that the matter could be better decided apart from any candidacies. Atty. Landman who had been retained as counsel for H. S. Bristol, sponsor of the petition agreed later to hold a meeting with the city officials to discuss the form of the petition for amendment and the advisability of submitting it at a special election. Objections made at the commission meeting Monday evening included the following: in at least three cases wives signed their husbands names, in violation of the statute requiring all signatures to be genuine; there was no provision for salary for the mayor or for his successor in case of death; there was no provision for the elision of several clauses in the original charter that would conflict with certain provisions in the amendment. It was contended by the attorney for Bristol that only a petition for an amendment was submitted and that the city attorney was legally required to prepare the proposal for submission. Representatives of the city government stated that they had no objection to bringing the matter to a vote, but that they were dissatisfied with the form of the proposal. They stated that they felt there would be no prejudice against the proposal if it were submitted at a special poll and that its importance warranted a separate submission.

IRRESPONSIBLE AND PROUD OF IT

To a stranger—as the proverbial man from Mars—dropping on these human shores it would likely sound quite strange to hear the storm of objections which always meets any proposal to cut down automobile speed limits.

Although a grand total of 38,500 were killed in automobile accidents last year, Michigan ranking proudly up in the list of states, we hang tenaciously to the right to step hard on the gas pedal. The 38,500 who cooled off on slabs in the morgue tell only part of the story; the other part may best be studied in the wards and rooms of the hospitals. Of the 1,000,000 who were injured, many thousands had years cut off their lives, since it is a matter of common place knowledge that the shock of a severe injury with internal complications leaves its effect even after apparent recovery.

Day by day in Buchanan cars whiz down Front street, 10, 15 miles or more above the legal limit of 15 miles an hour in the business district, drivers eyeing a distant light, with no regard for the chance of a child popping out from between cars. Through kindly providence or a lucky chance no one has been run down to date, with the exception of David Decker, who was evidently not in possession of his faculties when he walked in the path of a truck.

Yet there are cries of rage when authorities try to bear down to strictly enforce speed limits. Attempts are made to intimidate business men and city authorities, by broadcasting stories of speed traps. It is apparently an outrageous imposition on liberty to enforce speed limits, as no one in this age can successfully pursue happiness at less than 25 miles an hour in the business district and 50 miles an hour up outside.

WISHING YOU A PLEASANT TRIP

Beg pardon—we wouldn't for worlds be prying or intrusive, but how far along are you on your barrel?

Your barrel of beer if we have to explain everything. For we learn from the columns of the valued Michigan Manufacturing and Financial Record that Michigan beer drinkers inhaled the grand, not to say staggering total of 3,680,244 barrels of beer in 1936, and that means close to a barrel apiece for every man, woman, child and babe in arms. Granting that the babes in arms are not as a rule weaned on beer, we can reasonably assume that the above total represents over a barrel apiece for adults.

Not pleading innocence, we don't know off hand what an average beer bottle holds, but suppose a pint. And say the beer barrel holds the regulation 31.5 gallons—that would be the grand astronomical, gastronomic total of 927,421,488 bottles. It does seem like we might have done a little better and made it a round billion.

Now placing all these bottles side by side and allowing four inches to each bottle, we would have a row of bottles approximately 58,500 miles long or nearly twice around the globe. And if you could just start at one end and drink your way around a couple of times—oh boy, pleasant journey.

THE LITTLE RED SCHOOL HOUSE

There is at present a survey in progress of the one-room schools of seven counties of southwestern Michigan, undertaken by the School of Education of Northwestern University co-operation with the W. K. Kellogg Foundation of Battle Creek.

The area covered, has a population of 280,000 and nearly 800 one-room rural schools. It is asserted as the result of a preliminary survey that teaching methods in these schools have not kept pace with those in urban areas. Salaries for the teachers averaged $42 per month. Most of the teachers were high school graduates with one year of normal training. It is asserted that it was not unusual to find pupils using texts that had been used by their parents. With few exceptions, the school rooms were said to be bare and unattractive, with rows of desks screwed to the floor, teachers desk, stove and a small case of textbooks the only furniture. Interiors were painted a dull brown or drab gray.

The writer knows a number of rural teachers and certainly believes their attainments are equal to their tasks, and doubtless well in advance of the salaries they receive. But he has often wondered how long the antiquated country schools would remain in use. We have little doubt that if the exact ages of the country schools of Bertrand and Buchanan townships could be ascertained they would be found to run from a half century to around 80 years. Many of them have interesting stories. Sentiments cluster about them. There is the old Holmes school, two miles west of Buchanan on the Galien road, built years before the Civil War. There is the Kansas school and its mate, the Nebraska school, now known as the Womer school. These schools were built in 1857 and are accordingly 80 years old this year. Their names are reminiscent of catastrophic events leading up to the Civil War. The entire north was surging with excitement over the strife in "Bleeding Kansas," and the radical abolitionists, who abounded in Michigan and about Buchanan, were enraged over the Kansas-Nebraska bill.

Since the question of slavery in those territories was to be decided by vote, expeditions of settlers were being fitted out in Michigan to populate especially Kansas with anti-slavery voters. And down the old Chicago road went caravan after caravan of white-topped prairie schooners, bound for Kansas. As they through the school district of Bertrand past the new schools, the residents caught the enthusiasm and named the new buildings in the spirit of the times. For many years these schools were the social and cultural centers, where the children went to school by days and their elders attended singing and penmanship schools and spelling bees by night. Even more was the old Dutch Corners school a social center. But the world cannot live on sentiment or reverence, and it is beginning to be apparent as they are becoming increasingly a discredit to the communities which they serve. At some future date the must be replaced. In Galien they are already being displaced by the new central school in the village.

There is not much doubt that these antiquated buildings would have been scrapped years ago had it not been for the expensive program of stone and concrete road construction which beggared the country districts around Buchanan for a decade. Six years ago we knew of farms of 80 acres that paid $400 in taxes and special road assessments yearly. This was confiscatory and it is not to be wondered that educational facilities fell behind. However, the highway tax burden has been greatly lightened, and with the return of better times it would seem that the country districts might well begin to think of modernizing their public schools, or of abolishing them outright for some system of centralization in the town.

Thomson Home Historic Spot
Pioneer of Niles-Buchanan Road Made Trip By Water Scotland To Niles

The family of longest residence on the Niles-Buchanan road is undoubtedly the Thomson family, living opposite the Thomson school about three miles east of this city, and settled by Samuel Thomson, a braw Scotch ladie fresh from Glasgow in 1844.

The place is now occupied by his son, Samuel Thomson, Jr., and his grandson, Thomson, and the story they tell of the coming of the first Thomson to this district throws an interesting light on the changes in methods of travel. Samuel Thomson, Sr., came with his family from a small village about five miles out of Glasgow, Scotland, and they made the entire trip to the present Thomson farm by water, save for the five miles from Merristown to Glasgow and the two miles from Niles out to the farm.

They took a ship from Glasgow, landed at New York city and took another ship to Albany, where they took an Erie canal packet boat to Buffalo. There they embarked in a lake steamer for St. Joseph, and at St. Joseph they took one of the small steamers which used to ply between Niles and the mouth of the river.

The story is a little more complex, from the fact that while the family made the entire trip this way, Mr. Samuel Thomson himself took a separate journey leaving his family for a time at Detroit, he took the Michigan Central, then a state owned railway running almost to Kalamazoo. He walked the fifty and more miles from Kalamazoo to Niles in a day, and trudged out to the vicinity of the farm where he now lives, having a Scotch acquaintance in the vicinity. He selected for purchase the 80 acres where the Thomson home now stands, largely because it had a log house much better built and more commodious than the average. Then he went back to Detroit and accompanied his family around the lakes to Niles.

The Thomsons now use for storage in the barn two large iron-bound packing boxes which were used to ship the family household effects to America in 1844. They also still preserve a number of articles that were brought over from Scotland, the most interesting being the large solid brass clock now a valued exhibit in the St. Joseph historical museum at Niles. This clock was the handiwork of a Glasgow clocksmith, doubtless much over a hundred years ago. It was owned by an invalid who had it made so that he could learn the time any time of the day or night by pulling a cord whereon the clock would strike the nearest hour and the nearest quarter.

In the hall of the fine old farmhouse hangs a beautiful and complex barometer, fashioned in the form of a violin of beautifully polished wood, and including also a thermometer. They also have a fine writing cabinet of inlaid wood, and portraits of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Thomson, Sr., painted in oils. They also still have the surveyors chain brought from Scotland by the senior Thomson and used by him in surveying work in this district.

Two of the children of the original family survive, Mr. Samuel Thomson, Jr., who is 82, and a sister, Miss Agnes Thomson, who lives across the road.

Harrison Merrill Has A Birthday

The editorial offices of the Kalamazoo Gazette took over the "Just For Fun" column, usually conducted by "Penn E. Wise" (Harrison Merrill) on the occasion of his birthday Feb. 25, while the usual conductor is alleged to have staid at home and celebrated the occasion by shoveling out his neighbors' driveways. The office product, in part was:

Basil Harrison Merrill was born on Moccasin avenue in Buchanan, the beautiful, on McCoy's creek, which leads into the St. Joseph river, the beautiful. The date was Feb. 25, in the previous century.

Basil attended school kiddy-corner across from his home, starting to the classroom as soon as he was able to creep. He graduated at 11 and spent the next year reading all the uncensored books in the village library.

Becomes a Smithy

At the age of 13, young Basil entered the employ of his father, George Wellington Merrill, and the following day became president and secretary of the blacksmith shop. Working at the forge each day, he soon became known as one of the slickest forgers in Berrien County. He was very thrifty and accumulated funds for an advanced course in blacksmithing at Carnegie Tech. But the automobile arrived and ruined the demand for farriers, to use a trade term. It was then that Basil laid aside the leather apron and red undershirt to become a white-collar worker.

Still Dislikes Autos

Due to this unpleasant experience, Basil still dislikes motor cars. He has never owned nor driven such a vehicle. His only concession has been a few payments made on cars for friends who have been in financial distress.

"Had it, not been for the auto, I would be standin' beside the forge in my native village," he fondly recalls. "I have the physique and the heart for this work and I still have the old forge, bellows, tongs, apron, and hoof rasps."

Celebrate—And Argue
BUCHANAN—Residents of this city awoke Thursday morning to find flags flying and a festoon of bunting strung across the Main street corners in honor of the birthday anniversary of "The Sage of McCoy's Creek," Harrison E. Merrill, the humorist of The Kalamazoo Gazette, one of the "home town boys" of whom Buchanan is justly proud. What should have been a very peaceful observance, however, was marred by several disputes over which of his birthdays should be celebrated. No one here knows how old Mr. Merrill is and men and women, ranging in ages from 30 to 90, are claiming in heated discussions, to have had the honor of attending school with him. One of the young women says he writes like a young man, while another, who taught school back in log cabin days, proclaimed from a wheel-chair, the honor of having licked him into a good boy with an elm switch cut from the bank of McCoy creek.

Following rumors that Merrill was to visit Buchanan today, plans were made to meet him at the station with a parade headed by the survivors of the band in which he played years ago. This will be followed with the members of the old hose company in which Merrill was a champion runner, the city council, and various luncheon clubs.

Plans were under way to have Mr. Merrill address the luncheon clubs. The humorist's old friends were also busy assembling some gifts for him.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

I wish to thank all the organizations, fraternal chapters and individuals who in any way contributed to the American Red Cross flood relief fund. I take this means on advice of Admiral Grayson, since it is impossible to thank each donor individually. Berrien County raised $16,900. Of this Buchanan raised in cash $974.84. Without a generous local response this could not have been accomplished. Since this official total was released, I have received $5 from the Portage Prairie Home Economics club of Bertrand, $95 given jointly by the Odd Fellows, the Rebekahs and the F. D. I. club, and $5 given by the Matrons and Past Matrons club of Sylvie Chapter No. 74 O. E. S. I also wish to thank the Gallen-Buchanan State Bank for forwarding the donations through their banking facilities without charge, the Hollywood theatre for their generous aid in advertising without charge, and the Berrien County Record for its co-operation. The drive in Buchanan is now closed. Thanks again to all.

Mrs. J. C. Strayer, Buchanan, Chairman.

Birds, Worms as Food While crows may seem strange as food, it is a fact that practically every animal is eaten in some part of the world, says the Washington Post. Raw locusts are consumed by the Hottentots and other South Africans eat dragon flies. The Dyaks of Borneo peel off the bark of trees and capture young grubs for food. Committee is Appointed For 'Apprentice' Plan

New Co-operative Project Between St. Joseph Schools and Industrialists to Be Worked Out.

Appointment of a committee to study a cooperative plan between high school and industries for the development of an apprenticeship system, was announced Saturday by John Cox, secretary of the St. Joseph Chamber of Commerce. The committee was appointed by Herbert Kerlikowski, Chamber of Commerce president.

A group of industrialists met with school authorities this week and talked about the difficulties in getting apprentices to the skilled and semi-skilled factory trades. The committee will endeavor to work out a plan whereby high school students can be trained for factory work.

The project will be based on a similar plan, now used in Dowagiac, but will be modified to fit local conditions. The Dowagiac plan has been in operation since last fall, and was started with the assistance of the state department of public instruction.

Members of the Chamber of Commerce committee will be E. E. Holden, superintendent of schools; C. L. Milton, high school principal; George Campbell, assistant superintendent of the Upton Machine company; Albert Dezel, employment manager of the Auto Specialties Manufacturing company; Clyde Swigert, of St. Joseph Machines, Ind.; E. C. Davidson, printer; and N. F. Lahr, general manager of Cooper, Wells & Company.

School Music Fete To Be In Sections

Annual Music Events To Be Held During Last Week in April

Berrien county's annual rural school music festival will be divided into two, or possibly three sections, when it is given the last week in April, according to Mrs. Jennie Burton Mecham, county school commissioner. Twenty-five teachers of music in rural schools met this week at Berrien Springs to make plans for the coming festival.

Twenty-four hundred children took part in the 1936 festival, which was given in the Benton Harbor naval armory on May 1. Difficulties have been found, however, in handling such a large group and in finding a building large enough to give the concert satisfactorily. Massed singing of choral numbers by the entire 2,400 was a feature of last spring's festival.

This year's festival will be divided into two sections, Mrs. Mecham said. One will give a recital in the southern part of the county and the other in the northern part. The northern group still remains quite large, however, and

Mrs. Mecham said it may be necessary to divide it into two sections before the festival is held.

Cash awards of $3, $2 and $1 are to be given first, second and third prize winners in the two divisions of the contest. Contestants of the first, second, third, and fourth grades, will compete in one division, and fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth graders will be in the other division. Uniformed officers are to visit each school and talk on safety.

Will Interest All Farmers and Horse Lovers

A two reel picture with sound, "Horse Power in Action" to be shown at the Hollywood Theatre, Wednesday, March 31st. Arrangements have been made by The Gallien-Buchanan State Bank for Manager Hoffman, of the Hollywood Theatre to show the interesting two-reel sound picture, "Horse Power in Action" on Wednesday, March 31st as an addition to the regular program. There will be no increase in prices. The educational film was produced and is distributed by the Horse and Mule Association of America. The scenes were taken at horse shows, in judging rings, on race courses, at pulling contests, and at field demonstrations of big hitches. Valuable hints on feeding, correct shoeing and harnessing horses and mules are given and illustrated. Real excitement is afforded by pictures of ton weight drafters pitting their rippling muscles against dynamometers in the pulling contests. Farmers and stockmen and everyone else interested in horses and mules will enjoy this educational feature, which is in addition to the regular show.

124,000 Trees To Be Planted in Berrien Co.

Extensive Soil Erosion Program to Be Carried Out in 1937. Plans for planting 124,000 trees and shrubs during 1937 as a part of the soil erosion control program were announced today by the Berrien county deconstruction area of the United States soil conservation service. The project planned 52,000 trees, mostly of the hardwood varieties, during the 1936 fall season, according to E. C. Sackrider, project manager. The Berrien county project, located in two areas, one near Benton Harbor and one near Barrien Springs, has been in operation a little more than a year. During this time, the plantings already have given substantial protection against soil erosion to hundreds of acres. Mr. Sackrider declares. This land includes fields formerly subject to severe erosion by wind and water. Farm woodlands have proven important from the standpoint of erosion control. In addition, the timber provides a source of supply for fuel, fence posts and other farming and commercial uses. In the soil conservation service's program, a supply of fence posts is essential, and the farmer benefits if he can grow them on his own land. The farm woodland management department of the service takes measures to give the soil the greatest possible protection against erosion. Thus farm woodlands are only one phase of the general program now being demonstrated in the Berrien county area. Each field and each farm is treated as a separate problem, and each gets individual treatment, according to its specific needs and adaptabilities. Mr. Sackrider urged that farmers who have woodlands protect them from grazing.

Answers To Banking

What does a Bank's Statement of condition show? Bank statements are divided in two parts, "Assets" and "Liabilities". One of the most important items in the statement is the amount the bank owes to depositors. Of equal importance are the assets the bank has to meet these obligations to depositors. The chief debt of a bank is the amount of deposits of its customers. Its chief resources for paying these debts are usually cash, deposits in other banks, loans, government bonds and other readily-marketable securities.

A bank's next obligation is to its stock-holders for the money they have invested in the ownership of the bank. This item is listed on a bank statement as "capital." Capital, surplus and undivided profits constitute added protection to depositors.

New Michigan Peach Varieties A good peach crop was produced in the test orchard of the South Haven, Michigan, Experiment Station during the past season which afforded an excellent opportunity to observe some of the newer peach varieties. Many of these new kinds are gradually acquiring a place on the list of standard varieties.

Among the very early yellow freestone varieties, the Oriole, which was introduced a few years ago by the New Jersey Experiment Station, continues to show promise. It ripens about a month before Elberta and has particular promise for roadside and near-by markets. It is a little soft for long distance shipping. It continues to be a heavy and reliable producer and it is very hardy.

A comparatively new variety that probably has attracted more attention than any of the other new kinds in recent years is the Golden Jubilee, also introduced by the New Jersey Experiment Station. It ripens about three weeks before Elberta. The fruit is of the Elberta type and is large and attractive in appearance. While it cannot be listed among the very hardy varieties, it is much harder than Elberta.

Another new variety, Hale-haven, introduced by the Michigan Experiment Station in 1932, is now in bearing in large numbers in certain peach districts and reports on its behavior have been generally favorable. This variety ripens about seventeen days before Elberta. It is a yellow freestone of high color and productiveness.

Fertile Hale is another new variety of promise. It ripens about with Elberta, or a little later, and has a combination of the characteristics of J. H. Hale and Elberta. It is harder than either of these varieties. It is coming into bearing in considerable numbers in Western Michigan and is meeting with rather general approval. —Stanley Johnston.

Refrigerated Meat Lockers Storage of fresh meats, fruits and vegetables in rented refrigerated lockers is a growing practice in many Middle Western farm communities. The development of the cold storage locker idea has been rapid. Iowa had but a dozen plants offering the service a year ago; now the number is around seventy-five.

While some of the plants have been built only for refrigerated lockers, most of the installations have been in small packing houses cold storage, artificial ice or municipal power plants and creameries. Rental charge for the refrigerated space averages around ten dollars a year, the cost varying somewhat with communities. The most common size space rented to farmer patrons holds from 150 to 200 pounds of meat. For those taking only part of a locker the charge is levied on a per-pound basis.

The saving to farmers on pork, the difference between the market value of the animals plus the cost of killing, processing and storing, runs about six cents a pound. In preparing meats for the locker the killing can be done either on the farm or at the plant. But to insure a good quality product it is necessary to get the product into the coolers as soon as the animal heat is gone. The better equipped plants first chill the carcass, then it is cut up and wrapped in handy sized packages. After packaging, the meat goes to the sharp freeze room for three days; from here it goes to the lockers where a constant temperature is maintained. Each farmer-patron has his own lock and key and can drop in and select his choice of meat whenever he is in town.

Some who have used the lockers advise boning the bulkier cuts, particularly beef, to save lockers space. They also say that by doing this the meat tastes fresher after several months if it has been boned. Wrapping the meat is also important. Many favor a first layer of waxed or parchment paper, then putting it into clean flour sacks. All packages should be labeled.

At many refrigerator plants a butcher is on hand to kill the animals, and to chill, cut and wrap the carcasses. The charge for this service ranges from a cent a pound in some communities to two and a half cents. In the latter case, that of a Wyoming butcher, the service also included rendering the lard and curing the hams and bacon.

The Country Gentlemen. An interesting and tasteful food novelty which may be purchased in a Buchanan store is a package of those Swedish "hardtack" disks, known as "Spis Brot," coming four to a package, each disk about the size and thickness of a phonograph record and with a hole in the middle which would just about fit the average Victrola standard. And no doubt if you put in on the indentations of the disk would reproduce the Swedish national hymn or one of those rare old Dalecarlian folk songs.

MOVIES

After the Thin Man Smash Hit Entertainment

The mixture of comedy and drama which W. S. Van Dyke unfailingly injects into a mystery picture is evident again in his latest effort, "After the Thin Man," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer film, which opens Sunday for three days with William Powell and Myrna Loy in the starring roles.

Sequel to that memorable masterpiece of cinema mystery, "The Thin Man," this was written by the same author, Dashiell Hammett, and surrounds the inimitable stars with a sparkling cast of favorites, into the singular maelstrom of Chinatown. There is murder, of course.

All-Star Cast Joe Cook, one of America's greatest clowns, comes to the Hollywood Theatre on Friday and Saturday in "Arizona Mahoney," his first full-length comedy, in which he is supported by Robert Cummings, June Martel, Larry Crabbe, a three-ton elephant, a talking goose and a 22 inch cannon.

"Sonja Henie will give you a thrill in a million with her perfect young beauty and her dazzling artistry on crystal ice in her first Twentieth Century-Fox screen triumph, "One In A Million," the Queen of the Silvery Skates is supported by Jean Hersholt, Don Ameche, Arline Jerns, Adolphe Menjou, the irrepressible Ritz Brothers and Ned Sparks and Dixie Dunbar, who are featured in the spectacular musical smash of 1937 which will be shown Friday and Saturday.

Will Rogers Back In Greatest Role The memory of countless chuckles with the beloved Will Rogers has created an unprecedented public demand for the return of America's homespun humorist in "Ambassador Bill," Fox triumph opening Wednesday, a role close to the heart of the unofficial ambassador of the United States.

Once again you laugh with the cowboy philosopher as he takes full advantage of the hilarious situations which fill the story. Pronounced as Will Rogers' most natural and human role, "Ambassador Bill" also features Greta Nissen, Marguerite Churchill, and Gustav von Seyffertitz.

HOLDS COMMITTEE MEETING OVER CONFERENCE CIRCUIT

When an important matter arose recently in connection with the work of the New York Board of Trade in which action could not be deferred, telephone conference service was called upon, and so successful did it prove that it has been decided to adopt it as a regular feature of the work of the Board.

To call this meeting held by telephone, an executive of the Board gave the telephone operator the names and telephone numbers of the men wanted. At 3:15 P.M. each man's telephone bell was ringing. There was a chorus of "hellos." The Chairman informed the nine other men that this was a special meeting of the Executive Committee of the New York Board of Trade. The roll was called and the voice of each man was easily recognized as he answered "present."

One man announced his name and made a motion. Another man gave his name and seconded the motion. Before the vote was taken, an opportunity was offered for discussion. When the motion was unanimously carried, another motion was similarly passed, and the meeting was then declared adjourned. The whole procedure occupied about six minutes.

In commenting upon the service, Percy C. Magnus, President of the New York Board of Trade, declared, "It is a great time saver, and money saver and it permits of instantaneous group decision."

Formerly Called Gaul France is the modern name of the country which was formerly called Gaul, a word shortened from the Greek name Gallatia. The Gauls were the original possessors of the land, but the Franks, moving out of the German province of Franco-nia, conquered the land, and called it France or Frankreich.

Garden Clubs Hit Roadside Eyesores Timed to be of value in the oncoming tourist season the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan is speeding up its "Roadside Improvement and Safety Campaign." A general invitation is being issued to every organization in the state to cooperate.

Identical bills have been introduced in both houses of the Legislature which would place nominal control of the roadways in the hands of the highway department. Senator J. Neal Lamoreaux, Grand Rapids, introduced a bill in the Senate and James G. Mullen, Wallace has introduced a bill in the house.

"By roadside improvement and safety the federated garden clubs does not mean going out and clearing all natural bird habitats from the roadsides just to utilize welfare labor," E. C. Goddard, law department, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, states. "It is the more unsightly abandoned structures, dumps, gravel pits and unregulated placement of roadside advertising which make ugly roadways, that the group is enlisting aid in cleaning up," says Mr. Goddard who is chairman of the Michigan branch of the National Roadside Council.

"Control of the roadways is a perfectly normal, natural process, if rights of motorists and motorizing tax payers who pay for the roads are to be protected," W. Woodbridge Dickinson, St. Joseph, chairman of the roadside improvement committee states.

"There is little use in opening scenic highways at great expense to the state if they are permitted to immediately become infested with all sorts of conditions which make for unsafe driving and offset within a few months the primary purpose of the development. There are several new highways being subjected to this process at the present time," Mr. Dickinson concluded.

Petitions are in circulation over the state by the 85 garden clubs comprising the federation. Resolution forms have been supplied many civic groups and woman's organizations for the purpose of joining the move to clean up Michigan roadsides.

Buchanan's fighting "Bucks" are, for the first time in their history, awaiting a shot at the class "B" district championship trophy, which will be at stake next March 5 and 6 at the district tournament in St. Joe. Previously E. H. S. has been rated as a class "C" school, but this year because the enrollment jumped above the 300 mark, we automatically moved into class "B" competition. This means that the "Bucks" will have such competitors as Niles, St. Joe, Dowagiac, Three Rivers, Sturgis, and South Haven. All of these have good ball clubs. However, our coach, John Miller, has moulded together a quintet that has gained praise from many of our neighboring sports writers, and he as well as the students, thinks that our team will be on a par with any class "B" team that we are sent against.

One thing that would be commented on rather unfavorably is our school spirit at games. We haven't supported the team as well as we should have, but we are sure that the students that see the team in action at St. Joe will really yell for good old E. H. S., and let the official work his own ball game.

EDITORIAL
By Keith Dalrymple
The little matter of removing ice from the sidewalks has grown into quite a problem around Buchanan in the past few weeks. This is not only dangerous and a big hindrance, but it is also quite unnecessary. For the elderly people, coming home from social affairs after dark, it is especially dangerous. Now if everybody would take some common table salt, and throw it on these very slippery places, we would soon be rid of this difficulty.

TO THE SENIORS
By Billy Poorman
The seniors, leaders of our school, will soon be leaving their high school days behind to start planning a course of their own. No longer will they have a teacher to lend a helping hand upon their paths of success; no longer will they have a fellow student to depend on; they must push on under their own power. The more initiative and intuition they have, the more power they will generate on the upward climb.

Different people have different goals for which they strive: for a happy home, others for popularity, and the minority for wealth. No matter what their success in life may be, they have but themselves to thank. Every man may reach his goal if his willpower and determination are strong enough. Many people have fallen short of their goal and many more will fall, but it is due to the fact that sometimes or somewhere on their upward climb their chance evaded them. Perhaps it was caused by financial reasons or some unforeseen object, but more likely it was that somewhere along the climb they found the going tedious and so took a detour to brighten the journey. Nearly all have found that such a detour will not lead to any goal, and by taking it they have lost that spirit which is so necessary in their upward climb of life.

Your country owes you a living if it is true, but it will not bring it to you. If you are a citizen, or a man sincere and loyal to your country there is a living there for you.

TO A PENCIL
I know not where thou art;
I only know
That thou wert on my desk
A moment ago.
And as I turned my head to View the clock,
Some heartless wretch
Went "west" with thee.
I know not who it was,
Nor shall I ask.
Perchance,
It might have been
The guy I swiped thee from.

The Safety Talk was given by Mr. MacBride, state policeman from the station at New Buffalo. He gave a brief history of the state police, stated laws of driving and many causes and results of accidents. Duane Chain, a seventh grader, acted as master of ceremonies.

The pep meeting in charge of Clyde Shaffer and Imogene Russell included short talks by seniors who played their last home game. Two new cheer leaders, Evelyn Briney and Elaine Blaney, led yells.

JUST A BIT OF ADVICE

Boys have more or less realized the impossibility of escaping women. Resigning themselves to this inevitability, and trying to facilitate matters for the girl, they prefer these hints for the "Buchanan belle":

Wear a delicate perfume; otherwise he's liable to think there's a stray cab in your purse.
Be nice to the poor boy. After all, it's his money.
Don't stall him off too long; he might not come back again.
Don't take him too seriously—he doesn't mean everything he says.
Don't talk about other fellows when you're with him. Men are funny about that.
Don't say goodnight at 11:30 on a 12:00 date, he's liable to say goodbye to you.

The Latin Club had an excellent time at the meeting which was held Feb. 22. Roll call was answered with a fact about Roman and Greek architecture. Anyone failing to respond was fined ten cents. Latin games were played. Robert Wesner and Herbert Russell, who were in charge of the meeting, read papers on chariot races, doctors, and burial ceremonies.

FUTURE HUSBAND'S CLUB

This club has been very active in many functions around school and should be given much credit for the fine pep meetings they have sponsored. HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

Mrs. Dunbar's eleventh grade English classes had quite a time preparing essays recently. The subject was, for the girls: "My Opinion on Men," and for the boys: "My Opinion on Women." The result was a big laugh for both boys and girls, as they took their slams good-naturedly.
Here are two of the essays that were considered very good. (Of course we let the lady have her say first.)
What I Don't (And Do) Like About Boys
By Maxine Chismore
I don't like—boys who come up unexpectedly and sit around looking through family albums.
I don't like—boys who takes a girl too much for granted.
I don't like—jealousy in a boyfriend.
I don't like—boys who, when introduced to parents, cannot carry on an intelligent conversation, or at least an attempt, without a mumbled "hello" or pleased "meet cha."
I don't like—boys who can't take a hint when given one.
I don't like—boys who don't change their "line" once in a while (of course there are exceptions but most of them do have a "line.")
I don't like—boys who, after a dance is over, do not escort you right back to your table instead of trying to detain you on the dance floor until the next dance.
I don't like—boys who insist upon talking on subjects in which I am not interested.
I don't like—boys who have a "superiority complex."
I don't like—boys who are too agreeable.
I don't like—boys who can't hold their own in a quarrel.
I don't like—boys who do not show respect for feminine ability.
I don't like boys—who insist upon quarreling over nothing.
These are the most general facts concerning my dislikes about the mannerisms of boys, but there are some good things about them

Women

There are a number of ways in which you may look at your particular feminine attractions, all of which could be summarized into a short essay like this, but I will endeavor to illustrate a few of the types which are most prevalent in the modern high school. First, and probably the most common, is the "golddigger." You can usually tell their type when you ask them for a date. They ask, "Where are we going to go?" And after you've told them if they get a chance to go to a better place, you get "ditched." My feelings toward a girl of this type are few and far between.
The next type, very common, is the emotional type. She will fall all over you and feed you a line that is soft soap (90% lie) and usually you are sucker enough to believe her. When a more efficient lover makes his showing, you are treated like you had a case of measles and scarlet fever combined.
I could talk on and on, but my paper is limited so I will try to summarize a man's viewpoint on women. From the ages of twelve to seventeen, fellows get cases of "puppy love"—which soon pass over. Then from seventeen on you are more seriously affected and you look at women as more of a companion. Finally you meet a girl that possesses your requirements for a perfect wife and you marry her.
The number of women married in the United States might be divided like this: (This is my own deduction.)
65% married for true love.
30% married for money.
4% married because of social standing.
1% for something different to do.
I am not a woman-hater, as might be suspected, but I think there is great room for improvement in the modern lady's life.
The algebra students are studying special products. These are rules which help them to find the product of certain algebraic expressions by mental computation.
Plane geometry students are beginning the chapter on finding the areas of polygons.
Solid geometry students are studying theorems which are related to dihedral angles. These angles are formed when two planes intersect.
Percentage, as it is applied in commercial business, is being studied in general mathematics.
The chemistry divisions are studying different types of chemical reactions, and the general science classes are studying molds and yeasts.
The shorthand class had a test over chapter eight and has begun work on abbreviating principles.
Continuing reference books is the work in office practice.
The typing eleven classes are continuing their business letters.
The bookkeeping class is dealing with practice sets.
The twelfth grade English class is studying songs, both sacred and secular, and the simple lyric.
Eleventh grade English classes are beginning the return to sentiment in poetry, including the writers Goldsmith, Thomson, Gray, and Cowpens.
Oliver Wendell Holme's works are being studied by tenth grade English classes.
The seventh grade geography class is studying manufacturing. Spring poems are being studied in the eighth grade.
History ten is studying absolutism in England under the Stewart rulers.
The good citizen in his economic life is the study of the citizenship class.
The senior history classes are studying Cleveland's administration as President.

SENIOR
Phyllis De Nardo—She's a very peppy sort of person with her sparkling brown eyes, and dark brown hair. Her feet are very nimble after a number of years of dancing. Phyllis can tap or toe dance equally well, and she often sings torch songs to accompany a tap dance. She played French horn in the band her first three years in high school and this year is drum major. Playing popular music is also one of her specialties. She especially enjoys movies if Jean Harlow or Claudette Colbert are in them, and she positively goes into ecstasies when Henry Fonda appears on the screen. Phyllis loves to dance (ballroom) and one of her favorite pastimes is drinking cokes and eating potato chips. She will be eighteen on the twenty-ninth of December.
JUNIOR
Dale Lyons—His is the awfully deep bass voice you've heard booming down the corridors during glee club. Dale is also a member of the band, in which he plays a bass horn. His hair is blonde and he has green eyes. He'll be sixteen January the fourteenth. Dale intends to take up dentistry, and last summer he assisted one of the local dentists. His greatest passions are "going steady" and dancing. He said, "If you mention a Niles girl, be sure to say a brunette!"
SOPIHOMORE
Martha Trapp—Her birthday is February twenty-fifth, and she will be fifteen. She has brown hair and her eyes are very gray. Movies are her passion, and collecting movie stars her one hobby. Martha's greatest ambition is to become a doctor. She hopes to go to college and realize this ambition. One of her family says that she has a very bad temper, but she controls it admirably. Martha loves to dance.
FRESHMAN
George Lauver—A freshman who made the football team as assistant water boy! His birthday is in April. George is a librarian this year, and a member of the Library Club. Gaby Hartnett is his favorite baseball player, but he has no special favorite in football. Mashed potatoes are his favorite food, and Joe E. Brown rates highest when it comes to movie stars. He has been known to chisel on Jimmie King with a certain freshman girl.
HOP HO'ORS FROSH
A social hour was held Feb. 24, in the high school gym to give the "frosh" a second chance to learn how to dance. The students danced to the music of the jazz band. The senior class sold candy bars and gum during the hour.
Johnny
Teacher (pointing to a deer at the zoo)—Johnny, what is that?
Johnny—I don't know.
Teacher—What does your mother call your father?
Johnny—Don't tell me that's a louse?
All Excited
In a certain barber shop last week a customer was being shaved, shampooed, massaged, manicured and shined. In the midst of it a man rushed into the shop, grabbed the customer by a fat shoulder, yelled in a lathered ear, "Hey, Scarlotti! your house is on fire!"
Half shaved, half shampooed, half massaged, half manicured, and half shined, the customer leaped from his chair, dashed out the door, down the street at a full gallop, then suddenly stopped dead, and with a curse muttered, "What the h--- I am I running for? I'm not Scarlotti!"
Mistaken Words
The juniors were having a class meeting one day last week in connection with selling tickets for their junior play. Miss Krebs was giving a talk about selling as many tickets as possible in order to obtain a full house. Just as she said, "Get out," Wallace Lewis stepped in the door. Hearing only that phrase, he quickly returned fighters on the second team have won consistently this season, losing only two games. Among the outstanding players on "The Bees" are: Burrell Weaver, Marshall Doak, Don Beck, Marne Trapp, Matt. Rouch, Keith Dalrymple, Pete Donley, and Mark Heiney.

Have you noticed "Kissy" Jerue's ring on a very good looking blonde girl; Dale Lyon's evident interest in Bonnie Mitchell; Joe Bachman talking to a red-head; George Riley drawing pictures constantly; Jerry White and his freshman girl; Bob Neal's mania for curly hair; and that "Art" seems to be dancing with his former girl friend at social hours?

The junior high basketball team won a game from Niles last week. They were defeated, however, by the freshman. Niles includes the ninth grade in their junior high and so has much good material available from the freshman. In Buchanan, the freshman are members of the high school squad and so cannot be used. The team, coached by "Doc" Miller, did very well but could not hope to win without the other members of the squad being eligible.

Phyllis De Nardo—She's a very peppy sort of person with her sparkling brown eyes, and dark brown hair. Her feet are very nimble after a number of years of dancing. Phyllis can tap or toe dance equally well, and she often sings torch songs to accompany a tap dance. She played French horn in the band her first three years in high school and this year is drum major. Playing popular music is also one of her specialties. She especially enjoys movies if Jean Harlow or Claudette Colbert are in them, and she positively goes into ecstasies when Henry Fonda appears on the screen. Phyllis loves to dance (ballroom) and one of her favorite pastimes is drinking cokes and eating potato chips. She will be eighteen on the twenty-ninth of December.
JUNIOR
Dale Lyons—His is the awfully deep bass voice you've heard booming down the corridors during glee club. Dale is also a member of the band, in which he plays a bass horn. His hair is blonde and he has green eyes. He'll be sixteen January the fourteenth. Dale intends to take up dentistry, and last summer he assisted one of the local dentists. His greatest passions are "going steady" and dancing. He said, "If you mention a Niles girl, be sure to say a brunette!"

MEETS CHESS OPPONENT 34 YEARS AFTER GAME BY WIRE

John J. Robinson, president of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company, met for the first time last summer a man against whom he had played a 12-hour game of chess 34 years ago. The man was Harlow B. Daly, an employee of the United Shoe Machinery Corporation and last year's city champion of Boston in chess.

Their game was played on Memorial Day in 1902. Mr. Robinson, then a cable splicer with the New York Telephone Company, was one of 20 members of a Brooklyn chess team which played against the Boston Metropolitan Chess Team, of which Bertrand A. Smalley, publicity manager of the New England Tel. & Tel. Co., was then captain. The games were played by telegraph, moves being interchanged by wire.

Mr. Robinson's game with Mr. Daly started at 9 A. M. and ended at 9 P. M., when Mr. Daly offered a draw and Mr. Robinson accepted. Near the close of the game Mr. Robinson wired to Mr. Daly that Daly had a chance to win, but Daly could not see it at the time.

Mr. Smalley looked up Mr. Daly last summer at Mr. Robinson's request, and a meeting between the two former opponents was arranged. Mr. Daly had preserved a paper on which he had recorded all the moves of the game they played 34 years ago, and admitted that Mr. Robinson was right when he wired that he had a chance to win.
