

Now Here's the Proposition

Uncle Hank of the Blues Corner Sez:

The way a lot o' us git muddled, we can't tell the differents between what we think is so and what we wish wuz so.

Ex-Patriates

Though we live like a swell in a city hotel yet our hearts will go back just the same. To the rose-colored dawns on the tree-shadowed lawns in the little old towns whence we come.

MOTOR TAXES

The auto owner has to bear a whole lot more than his just share of taxes, we maintain! Whenever legislative gents need cash to liquidate expense, they hasten to ordain another levy on the man who owns a new or antique van that burns up gasoline.

Old Uncle Sam grabs off a few Bucks every time a new Car's sold and Michigan Takes three per cent of what one pays.

After he's labored hard to raise the price of a sedan. And no small portion of the cost of fuel by gas stations tossed into one's tank is tax--

Though vigorously we protest The robbery that soon divests us of our hard-earned dough, The chaps who have authority To hi-jack folks like you and me And fill our souls with woe Refuse to stop their practice vile But, on the contrary, they pile More burdens on our backs--

Someday, we hope, our sovereign state Will grow much more considerate About the auto tax!

ROUND ABOUT BUCHANAN

One of the old landmarks of Buchanan disappeared this week with the removal of the great old wild cherry tree in the corner of the old Carlisle property on Main street. This tree measured about 3 1/2 feet through the trunk, well above the root spread. Ashley Carlisle stated that it was a large tree as far back as his memory extended, which would be now almost 100 years. The tree had been struck by lightning several times and was dying at the top.

The Buchanan high school grid team will be an eye-fall when it takes the field next fall, according to P. J., who has just completed the purchase of 15 new uniforms, getting under the wire just before the price went up. The suits will consist of maroon pants instead of the old khaki-colored pants, a jersey with the lower half maroon and the upper half and arms white with black monograms, and white headgear. An improved type of shoulder pad has been ordered, affording better protection.

One Buchanan merchant says that he is not selling nearly as many garden seeds this spring, because of the fact that people are increasingly depending on the stores for fresh vegetables. Now that there are fresh vegetables in the stores the year around there is less kick in getting them in season, he states. And he also says in private that less and less women know how to cook vegetables anyway.

One of the old-school gentlemen who continues to raise his own fresh garden sass is Rex Milhon, of the Buchanan Co-ops force. Mr. Milhon has been having fresh onions, radishes and lettuce for two months from his hotbed at his suburban home at Baker-town.

All merchants were doing a hand office business in eggs Saturday.

The local grocers met with a wet reception from Dame Nature on their first half holiday yesterday. They had been planning enthusiastically various outings, including Mr. Bob Reamer, who stated that he would go home and move three loads of dirt. Oh well, there'll be another Wednesday afternoon next week, boys.

Rural Schools of Berrien County Plan Annual Music Festival April 28

South County Schools to Gather at Niles H. S. With 800 Singing

April 28 will be a heyday for the rural school children of the south half of the county for on that day, at 3 P. M., they will hold their annual music festival in the Niles high school auditorium. All through the year they have looked forward to and worked for this event. Between 800 and 900 children will participate.

This is the first time the southern part of the county has held a festival separate from the other schools. The rural school movement has grown so rapidly that over 8300 children are receiving instruction this year. Since there is no building in the county ample enough to accommodate so large a number in one festival the music committee has divided the county into three sections. The Niles festival opens the gala occasions on April 28th at 3 p. m. St. Joseph will hold one on April 29th, with about 800 children in attendance and the last one will be on April 30th at the Armory in Benton Harbor where about 1500 will participate.

The programs will be identical at all three places, except for a surprise number. The selections consist of songs and rhythm band numbers by the primary grades, songs by the older boys and girls, separate and together, in both one and two parts, and harmonica productions.

The rural school music work had its origin in 1934-35, when at the suggestion of the county school commissioner, the County Parent-Teachers Association put on a campaign for more music in the rural schools. Their objective, to cause the parents and school boards to become "music minded," was reached so rapidly that the movement of putting a traveling music teacher in the field was made in the last ten weeks of that school year, in ten schools in the northeast corner of the county. Mrs. Sarah Shine of Coloma was the teacher.

So well has the idea taken that 86 schools, few of which had ever had music instruction before, now have the work, some twice a week and some once a week. There are six traveling teachers and in some schools the regular teacher gives the instruction. The work is outlined for the county, but of course the schools that have two lessons a week make more rapid progress than those with only one.

This work in the rural schools not only gives the pupils a preparation whereby they may be able to participate in the music activities of the city and village where they will attend high school, but will insure a music-conscious rural folk who will help to prove the truth of the old saying "A singing people is a contented people."

Scouts Plan to Attend Jamboree

Throughout the country scouts and their leaders are busily making preparations for attending the National Jamboree which will take place in Washington from June 30 to July 9. Many boys in Berrien and Cass counties are working at various jobs to earn money to get their reservations in on time.

Edward Pascoe who is chairman of the local Jamboree committee is making every effort possible to help the boys who are planning on attending. Our boys will be part of the troop being organized by the Berrien Cass Council. Two of the leaders who have so far been chosen to go are Otto Helwig, Scoutmaster of troop 43 Stevensville, and Donald Paul Scoutmaster of troop 37 Cassopolis.

Within the shadow of the Washington monument, near the Lincoln Memorial, in sight of the White House, the Boy Scouts of America are building this short lived city. It will house twenty-five or thirty thousand scouts for 10 summer days of fellowship, exchange of ideas, deepening of patriotism, to return home and do a better job as young citizens. What a thrill our lucky representatives will get. Florida rubbing shoulders with California and Maine, Kansas Scouts forgetting dust storms as they meet Scouts from the Ohio flood areas. In planning their Jamboree,

Offers Chance to Future Farmers

Richard Schwartz Announces Dutch Belted Assoc. Jr. Memberships

Believing that the beautifully-marked breed of cattle whose ownership was not so long ago limited exclusively to the nobility of Holland needs only proper introduction to win a place in the future farming scheme as one of the most practical of all dairy breeds, Richard Schwartz of Buchanan, secretary-treasurer of the Dutch Belted Cattle Association, is announcing a plan of co-operation with future dairymen through the offer of Junior Memberships to boys and girls belonging to Future Farmers of America clubs, 4-H Clubs, or high school agriculture classes.

Any minor who becomes the owner of a Dutch Belted pure bred animal will be permitted under the terms of the offer to become a Junior Member for only $5, the regular senior membership fee being $25. The Junior Membership entitles the holder to all the advantages of regular membership except that of voting in the annual meetings. If the boy or girl continues to be an owner of one or more Dutch Belted pure bred until he or she becomes 21, automatic senior membership follows.

Members are pledged to sell only calves from good stock for project work or foundation stock. Special literature will be issued in their interest from time to time and contests will be held and suitable awards made for calf-raising, breeding, showing, milk tests and other points. It is felt that membership in a national cattle association will be a valuable experience and will also furnish a real incentive to the future farmer.

Makes Progress On Picture Plan

East Makes More Suggestions For Old Photos Suitable For Preservation

Jesse H. East, former Buchananite now living at 15 East Avenue North, Battle Creek, reports that he has met with very encouraging success in his project for the collection and preservation of pictures of early Buchanan scenes, but that he still has a very long way to go before his collection is satisfactory.

He suggests that not only in Buchanan but in the homes on adjacent farms there may be pictures of interest. When the pictures are collected they are to be suitably arranged and placed in a scrap book for preservation in the Buchanan library. He requests that anyone who has such pictures that they are willing to contribute, take them or mail them to R. R. Rouse, care of Mead's Barber shop.

He makes the following additional suggestions:

Original electric power plant; construction of old wooden dam; construction of present dam and power house; pictures of teams at work hauling stone, supplies, etc.; Old Pear's Flour Mill, original state; old steam fire engine; old hand pumping engine; old lively stable views, rigs, etc.; old Morley Foundry; old Nimble Nickel (Morley); old grocery delivery teams and crews; street scenes and celebrations; old skating rink; Lee & Porter water power drive or rope transmission; Lee & Porter train wreck; old wooden St. Joe bridge.

ON SUPPORTING A LIBRARY

Some three decades or so ago when Andrew Carnegie was casting about for the most beneficial way of bequeathing his millions to social betterment, he decided on the building of libraries.

Mr. Carnegie had the best of advice on the subject. We do not have the quotation at hand, but he justified his choice something like this:

"Most philanthropy seems to be directed toward the salvaging of the 'submerged tenth' of society. I want to help the 'emerged nine-tenths'. I believe that my money will be of far greater service devoted to that end. I know of no greater contribution to community education and to the individual and especially the young person who is trying to pull himself upward, than that made by a good library."

The maintenance of a library costs money. It requires a tax levy. When that levy is fixed we can tell exactly what the cost will be on the community and we can easily figure what it will cost us. But here is one way to look at it. Youth is definitely exposed to many agencies which tend to pull it down. This cannot be escaped in a human world, so the alternative is to take steps to provide as many alternatives with the opposite tendency as possible. When young people get into trouble, whatever the cause or occasion, it costs money. It is impossible to tell how much, but it costs and it also costs heavily, in time, in character in travail of spirit. A character disaster to one youth may cost the equivalent of a year's support of a library.

There are limits to tax expenditure and the city commission must draw the line somewhere. But it is significant that in very few towns in Michigan the size of Buchanan have the city authorities seen fit to draw that line to exclude support of a library. It seems to be the general sentiment in the great majority of Michigan towns and cities that they can afford to support a library.

It is quite likely that most of them would add that they cannot afford not to support one.

How You Can Step Your Beet Tonnage UP
IN EVERY LINE OF BUSINESS, men have made vast studies to improve and increase production for whatever they grow or make.
The Farmers and Manufacturers Beet Sugar Association is right in step with these modern practices. Experience on hundreds of farms, over a period of years, has demonstrated that Beet tonnage can be increased by following up-to-date farming methods.
For example:
The information compiled from 17,000 individual grower records shows that for every 10% increase in stands, you can make a gain of a ton of beets per acre!
You can get such results with Narrow Rows and Closer Spacing!
World wide tests show that the most profitable tonnage is obtained by 20 inch Rows
On the basis of 20 inch rows—a 100% stand blocked 10 inches apart, gives you
30,000 Beets per Acre
And don't forget—liberal applications of commercial fertilizer pay!
Broadcast before seeding and drill in fertilizer with the seed.
Narrow rows—closer spacing and liberal use of fertilizer means bigger tonnage for you!
And bigger tonnage means bigger profits for you!

VERMONT TO MARK 150 YEARS IN UNION

Prepare Now for Celebration in Year 1941.

Montpelier, Vt.—"Fourteen years as an Independent Republic—One Hundred and Fifty Years as a State of the Union." Such is the unique story which will be reviewed in 1941 when Vermont dedicates the entire year to a statewide recognition and celebration of the 150th anniversary of her admission to the Union.

Plans are to be outlined by a state commission provided for in a joint resolution just signed by Governor Aiken. The commission is to report its suggested plans and program to the Vermont legislature of 1939.

This recognition by Vermont may tend to make all states of the Union admission-conscious, since Vermont was the first state to be admitted to the Union after the original thirteen. This was the starting of a "Long Trail," over which thirty-four other states have followed Vermont into the United States, a procession of states beginning with Kentucky in 1792 and culminating with New Mexico in 1912.

Build Up Program.
Governor Aiken's signing of the joint resolution passed by the legislature is not merely an official commitment to the idea of the recognition of the 150th anniversary in 1941 but also a signal for the mobilization of the people of the state in support of a 1939-1941 program of so-called "Sesquicentennial Objectives."

The attainment of these objectives during 1937-41 is regarded by Vermont as the building of an appropriate and necessary preliminary stage setting to prepare the state for the formal recognition and celebration in 1941.

A five-point program has been built up out of suggestions sent to the state chamber of commerce by individuals, organizations and newspapers. The program affords the following picture of some phases of the Green Mountain state in 1941, resulting from the proposed pioneering and perfecting activities during the last four years of the first 160 years of the life of the state:
During 1937-41 the attractiveness of Vermont shall be greatly enhanced through the wholesale removal of roadside and other blemishes which here and there disturb the exquisite beauty of Vermont scenery. Special attention by the towns to the erection of road direction signs along town rural roads will enable citizens and guests easily to find their routes.

Expect to Be Busy.
Vermont's welcoming hospitality both in winter and in summer shall become familiar to many more people through the speeding up of various activities and developments.
Vermont shall become busier through playing to the movement for the decentralization of industry, thus restoring and building up industrial activity in the valley and mountain villages.
Vermont shall become more widely known through the expansion into other fields of originality and initiative recently displayed in the official handling and reporting of town and state finances and affairs. Vermont town and state reports have become "news" in other states, because they have demonstrated "modernization" in the handling and reporting of local and state finances and affairs. Four other states have adopted the Vermont plan of a "town report competition."

During 1937-41 Vermont shall witness the utter extinction of the old-fashioned town report. "Modernization" in these documents shall seep into every nook and corner of the state. Thus the mass production of modernized public reports shall be achieved in Vermont, which is serving as an experimental demonstration plot in this regard.

Free Classes Plant Art Where None Had Grown

Chicago. — Butcher, baker and candlestick maker are getting art lessons free—and eating them up.
The Chicago Art Institute installed a twelve-week course as an experiment in fostering art among persons too timid or poor to enroll. The success was a surprise.

A draughtsman took his daughter, fifteen years old to watch him; she picked up a brush and now excels her father. A machinery manufacturer seeking diversion, was turned into a painter of pastels. Mothers leave children at home with dads to wield a brush. And a structural steel painter who joined the course is now depicting flowers.

Farmer's Lost Cow Found Underground

Berne, Ind. — When Reuben Romney went to bring his cows in from pasture he discovered one missing. He walked around the field, found no break in the fence and no trace of the cow. Yet when he called he heard an answering "moo" beneath his feet. Peering down, he saw the head of the cow—she had slid into the small opening of a jagged sinkhole.

Artist Captures Jamboree Spirit

THIS happy Scout portrayed on Norman Rockwell's painting for the official poster of the National Scout Jamboree typifies the spirit of friendship and adventure which will be the lot of 25,000 American boys who will camp with Scouts of other lands on 350 acres at Washington, D. C., loaned them by Congress for their Jamboree from June 30 to July 9. In the shadow of the Washington Monument a tented city will be the scene of the greatest demonstration of Scouting ever held in the new world. The national grand review and President Roosevelt's welcome will attract large throngs to the nation's capital. Other principal events include a Convocation at the Washington Monument on the evening of July 4 and a world brotherhood pageant to be held in connection with the closing campfire.

Zodiac Is Ancient Name for Band Around the Sky

Zodiac is the ancient name for an imaginary band extending around the sky, having for its middle line the ecliptic or apparent path of the sun. It was early fixed at a width of sixteen degrees so as to include the orbits of the five known planets—Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter, and Saturn—as well as the sun and the moon. The stars that appeared to be permanently fixed in this zodiacal band were grouped into twelve constellations, each being confined to 30 degrees, or one-twelfth of the circle, though it did not necessarily fill up that space. This system made it easy to define the positions of sun or planets at any time.

The names for the twelve signs of the zodiac, based on fancied resemblances between the arrangements of the stars and certain pictorial outlines which form the substratum of the Assyro-Babylonian cuneiform alphabets, are mostly animal in character, probably having been chosen for animistic reasons, observes a writer in the Chicago Tribune.

Starting with the month of March, which the ancients counted as the beginning of the year, the twelve months are represented by the following twelve signs: Aries, the ram; Taurus, the bull; Gemini, the twins; Cancer, the crab; Leo, the lion; Virgo, the virgin; Libra, the balance; Scorpio, the scorpion; Sagittarius, the archer; Capricornus, the goat; Aquarius, the water carrier, and Pisces, the fishes.

Belted Kingfisher Has an Interesting History

The belted kingfisher, whose scientific name is Ceryle alcyon, has rather an interesting history if one believes the mythologies, says a writer in the New York World-Telegram.
Once upon a time, long and long ago—so long ago that the people of those days believed many things that were told them by poets, prophets and soothsayers—the kingfisher was a man, a king of Trachina, and was called Ceix. He was the son of Lucifer—which should have got him into plenty trouble—but he had the good luck to marry a faithful woman, Alcyon, daughter of Aeolus, god of the winds.
Ceix was drowned while on a journey to consult the oracle of Claros. His wife learned of his death and her loss in a dream and went searching for her husband along the sea shore where she found his body in the edge of the water. Her sorrow was so great she threw herself into the sea with a rattling maniacal laugh to drown herself—but the gods were filled with compassion and turned both her and her husband into kingfishers, and called them Alcyons, hence the kingfishers, a genus belonging to the Alcyonidae.

Beautyfying of Highways With Pine Trees Urged

Ionia, Mich. — A proposal to beautify State highways by planting pine trees on state-owned land abutting the highways has been made by Willard C. Cribbs, Ionia county agricultural agent. In six years, he says, pine seedlings which could be planted by CCC workers, would not only add to the beauty of the landscape but would form perfect wind fences.
Cribbs has planted 57,000 seedlings on his 300-acre farm in Kalamazoo county and intends to plant 18,000 more this year. Pines planted 11 years ago now are 12 to 17 feet high, he says.

VANISHING INDIAN STAGES COME-BACK

Marked Increase in Wyoming Tribes Is Noted.

Cheyenne, Wyo.—Wyoming's so-called "vanishing Americans" are a thing of the past, a check at the Shoshone Indian reservation at Fort Washakie revealed.

The Wyoming red men, after decreasing in many cases faster than caedes, are riding the upswing line of the population graph and are increasing in many cases faster than the white man. Termination of the Indians' once steady march toward oblivion is credited by Indian affairs officials to more food, better medical care and increasing resistance to disease.

A population increase of 502 among the Wyoming Indians between 1920 and 1930 was reported. The two tribes on the reservation, Arapahoes and Shoshones, numbered 1,343 in 1920 and had increased to 1,845 in 1930. The rate of increase has continued since 1930. It is estimated that the reservation will contain nearly 2,250 Indians by 1940 unless an epidemic reduces their numbers.

Knowledge that the race is not doomed combined with modern science is responsible for the increase, according to John Collier, Indian commissioner.

"The Indian of today knows he has a future side by side with the white man," Collier said in an interview. "It is a scientific fact that a feeling of racial inferiority and subjugation will deplete population with almost epidemic speed."

Modern farming methods have played a major role in reversing the trend of the Indians' population graph.

Game in China
China, despite its large population, abounds with game in many regions. It is estimated the country has a larger duck population than America.

U. S. Building Legation on the Summit of Cape

Monrovia, Liberia.—Work is under way on a new $500,000 United States legation building, under direction of Lester A. Walton, United States minister to Liberia.

The building is being built on the summit of a cape extending into the Atlantic and will face the ocean. Weeks of dynamiting were necessary to level huge boulders on the rocky site. Soil was then spread so that trees and flowers may grow. The legation will be about half a mile from the British legation, which stands on the south shore of the cape. The cape is the coolest part of Monrovia but had never before been used for dwellings because of its rugged state.

Keeping Up With Science

You Need Not Stop Reading in Order to Rest the Eyes

Good Advice Given by Ophthalmologist

Cambridge, Mass.—Read when, where and how you like, but insist on sufficient illumination, use glasses if glasses are necessary, and have a periodic eye examination every two or three years.

This is the fundamental principle for the care of the eyes, Dr. Theodore L. Terry, instructor in ophthalmology at the Harvard medical school, declared in an address here.

Do not try to save your vision by avoiding reading, sewing or the movies, he advised, because eyes do not wear out. It is disease, he declared, that destroys vision.

To avert disease he advised periodic examinations. Often, he said, diseased conditions can be discovered in such examinations before the patient notices any symptoms. Naturally the eyes are then much more amenable to early treatment than when the maladies progress.

Some Danger Signals.

Aside from these regular examinations, however, Dr. Terry also urged examinations when any blurring of vision, inflammation or pain in the eyes, or headaches related to their use, is noticed. Important danger signals, he warned, are rainbow-like halos around artificial lights, and blurred vision early in the morning which clears as the day advances.

Any eye examination, he emphasized, should invariably include a general survey of the eye as a whole because that organ very frequently can be used as a barometer of disease in some other part of the body. At times, he said, evidence of other dangerous diseases have been found in eye examinations, and, again, many are amenable to treatment if discovered early. Included among diseases of this type, he cited, are kidney disorders, tuberculosis, syphilis, various blood diseases, several types of poisons and even brain tumors.

The Eye Grows.

Periodic check-ups, he continued, are also important to meet changing conditions of the eye, for that organ, like the fingernails and the hair, has the ability to grow throughout life. Thus, even adults occasionally need changes of glasses, possibly every two years. If glasses need to be changed every few months, he warned, it may be the beginning of a serious disease, maybe glaucoma, diabetes or cataract.

While improper glasses do not produce permanent damage to the eyes, except in the case of crossed eyes or possibly in nearsightedness, they may be responsible for ocular fatigue, sleepiness and headaches. Concerning crossing of the eyes, Dr. Terry said that in many instances it can be corrected by glasses if they are used soon after the condition begins, even in children eighteen months of age. An operation corrects the appearance but does not restore normal eye condition. A misalignment in the adult, he said, is usually due to a spasm or paralysis of one or more of the eye-turning muscles and may indicate serious trouble.

Ground Fire Found Bad Medicine for West's White Pine

Washington.—Fire in the forest, which is now actually used in the South as a tool for the control of yellow pine timber growth, is still wholly "bad medicine" so far as western pine is concerned.

So declares E. F. Rapaeger of the U. S. Forest Service who has recently completed a study of fire effects in the great historic timber lands of Idaho, which Lewis and Clark saw on their famous exploration trip during the presidency of Thomas Jefferson. Mr. Rapaeger has studied extensive areas of Western white pine in this region, and finds that the effects of even "mild" ground fires are never beneficial. He found that fire damage was discernible in three different ways: through understocking and reduced yields, through decay started in burn wounds on the trees and through the encouragement of excessive branching which results in rough timber of lowered market value.

Mr. Rapaeger concludes: "Evidently complete protection from fire is essential from infancy to maturity if the aim is to grow Western white pine of high quality."

Hayfever a Product of Civilization, Says a Scientist

Ragweed Flourishes on Newly Denuded Ground

THOSE unfortunate persons who must sneeze and sniffle their way through every summer and fall, unless medical treatment or vacation resorts can give them relief from hayfever, are paying the price of civilization.

This view of a miserable ailment was recently presented by R. P. Wodehouse, scientific director of the Arlington Chemical company, to members of the American Institute of New York city.

An enormous increase in ragweed and certain other hayfever-causing plants is a by-product of our modern civilization which has disturbed the soil and its natural balance of vegetation, Dr. Wodehouse pointed out. Ragweed plants were scarce before civilization came along to plow up large sections of land, dig ditches for sewers, level off stretches for roads and otherwise disturb the vegetation. Other plants cause hayfever, but ragweed causes more than half the cases of this ailment which afflicts three out of every hundred Americans.

Hayfever Is an Allergy.

Hayfever belongs in the group of diseases called allergies. An allergy is an extreme sensitiveness to some particular substance, such as pollen, which is not generally irritating.

The hayfever patient and others who suffer from allergies, however, are not invariably abnormal, Dr. Wodehouse suggested. It is their environment which is abnormal. Dr. Wodehouse said that allergy is seldom evident with respect to those things old in the experience of the human race.

Pine trees, he pointed out, produce far greater quantities of pollen than ragweed plants, but no one seems to get hayfever from pine pollen.

Immune to Pine Pollen.

"The human race," he said, "must certainly have been cradled in an atmosphere of pine pollen and has ever since been subjected to annual exposure to it. We are all immune to pine pollen and to a certain extent to the pollen of most of our deciduous forest trees."

Ragweeds cannot grow in competition with other plants, but when the ground is disturbed for any reason, the ragweed is the first to take possession of the newly denuded ground. Civilization has made a ragweed paradise of this continent, Dr. Wodehouse maintains, and the "end is not yet in sight, for the ragweeds are still on the increase as more and more areas are laid open to them."

Reflected Light Used in Matching Colors

Durham, N. C.—Housewives with a piece of silk or skein of yarn to "match," hold the sample against the piece they are shopping for, and decide whether or not the colors agree. In the very much larger shopping jobs that industry has to take care of, much more exact matching processes are necessary, and these are taken care of by a scientific light-analyzing and measuring device, the spectrograph. How this operates was told before the meeting of the American Physical society of Duke university, by Prof. Arthur C. Hardy of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

With the spectrograph, light reflected from the sample or standard is split into its component spectral parts, and the exact wavelength of each of these portions is determined, as well as a measure of its intensity. The result is a numerical formula exactly describing all the parts of the light and telling how it is put together.

Barbecued Camel an Old American Dish

Washington.—Try asking for barbecued camel at a roadside refreshment stand some time, if you want a real, old-fashioned American dish.

You won't get it—"no camels today." But 10,000 or maybe 20,000 years ago, when the earliest known Americans, called Folsom men, were alive, you could have eaten camel steak with them, broiled over a blazing camp fire.

Faenontologists of the Smithsonian institution have identified as "camel" some of the bones found by a Smithsonian expedition at the only known dwelling site of Folsom man, in northern Colorado. Bison was another meat familiar to these oldest Americans.

Give-and-Take

TULLY WINFIELD picked up his good looking, carefully creased trousers and held them up to the window that overlooked the campus. He sighed. "They're down to the last threads," he told himself. "If I could sit on a cushion they might last a week, but on those hard seats they won't hold me three days, let alone three months!"

His shirt tail flapped as he moved about the bare little room, for every minute of wear on those warning red threads must be saved. Three months to go—ninety days—and then he would be Tully Winfield, Attorney-at-Law!

He spit on a blunt finger tip, and it sizzled against the station on the gas stove; then he set about the business of ironing his shirt. The back of it was split, but his sweater was still intact. Sweaters and shirts were a cinch! But how could a fellow hide the seat of his pants?

He put on the trousers with uneasy satisfaction. If they were only as good as they looked, what a triumphant finale it would be!

Thoughtfully, Tully made his way across the campus. Pants he must have! But how? He couldn't earn them. There wasn't a half hour to spare. And he couldn't write him. He'd seen how things were at Christmas though they had all tried to hide the worst. Dad hadn't gone to his lodge on Wednesday night. Said he was too tired to change, and the truth of it was—his shoes were shot!

Tully scowled fiercely, remembering young Jack's too indifferent air. Pretending he didn't want to go to the Junior Rally!

"Say! Just who do you think you are?"

Tully came back to the campus and stared into Claude Reagan's pale blue eyes. "What?" Tully asked, rudely curious.

"I started," Claude said, "that if there isn't room enough on the campus for you to walk without walking on me, I'll throw you off."

Tully looked at him, beginning to understand. He looked down and saw the imprint of his own large foot on Claude's expensively shiny shoe. He, Tully Winfield, had been wondering about pants and he'd actually stepped on Claude Reagan, who drove an imported roadster and changed his suit every day in the week!

Tully's seat, during Professor Arnold's written quiz, was across the aisle from Claude Reagan's and as Claude deposited his ornate brief case on his desk, students caught the flash of a diamond ring and a platinum wrist watch.

"A regular Midas," Tully murmured. "Even his eyebrows are golden!"

A ripple of laughter ran around the room as Claude glared at Tully, and Professor Arnold rapped sharply for order. Then the big room was quiet except for the scratching of pens.

Presently Claude went forward to consult Professor Arnold about a question. He returned, his eyes intent on his paper and he tripped over Tully's feet and fell sprawling in the aisle. He picked himself up hurriedly and glared at Tully.

Tully rubbed his shin and looked at him in pained surprise. "Are you trying to climb the golden stairs, Reagan?" he asked.

Again laughter rippled over the room and this time Professor Arnold suppressed a smile before he rapped for order.

"You'll pay for this!" Claude said in a hoarse whisper.

"I expect to," Tully whispered back.

The gong sounded at last, and the class began to file out through the narrow entrance. Tully, directly in front of Reagan, stopped abruptly, blocking the exit; then he bent over slowly and proceeded to tie his shoe string. Claude stared, and the students behind him, unrestrained by the gavel, started to laugh.

Claude's face reddened, then his expensive shoe came up and landed a vicious kick right where the threads were weakest. There was a moment of stunned silence as a long, jagged break appeared in Tully's pants.

Tully straightened. He smiled and bowed to Claude. "Thank you, Reagan," he said as he strolled away.

Inside of his barren room Tully turned two somersaults and rubbed his hands together gleefully. "Hot Zigzag!" he said.

Then he summoned the landlady's boy and wrote a note. It said: "My dear Reagan: You probably know enough law to know that you owe me the price of a pair of pants. (You know. Assault, presence of witnesses, etc.) Please send me ten bucks by bearer.

Tully Winfield.

"P. S. The pants were not exactly new, but the fact that you were permitted to administer the needed kick should equalize matters.

T. W."

Bought Army Commissions As late as 1880 commissions in the British army were bought and sold legally by English military men, says Collier's Weekly. Rochelle Hudson, Marian Nixon, Ralph Morgan and Andy Devine are featured in the cast.

Great Cast in "Mohicans" Randolph Scott, Binnie Barnes and Henry Wilcoxon head one of the greatest casts of stars ever assembled on the screen in "The Last of the Mohicans," Reliance Pictures' film version of the immortal James Fenimore Cooper classic, which begins a two day engagement here starting Friday.

They are playing together in "Mama Steps Out," which will be shown here on Friday and Saturday program. The story is a comedy of foreign society and match-making, adapted by Anita Loos from the stage play "Ada Beats the Drums," by John Kirkpatrick.

Betty Furness, Stanley Morner, Gene Lockhart, Edward Norris, Gregory Gaye, Ivan Lebedeff and Heather Thatcher are others in the cast.

Farmers and cottagers in the vicinity of Diamond Lake, near Cassopolis, last Friday became suddenly aware of the presence of a noisy flock of Ravens, but upon investigating they found that the commotion was caused not by a number of the large black birds that quote "Nevermore" but by the members of the Raven Patrol of Troop 41, who had arrived for a week-end camping trip.

The group of scouts and their leaders spent the time from Friday until Sunday afternoon in hiking, cooking, playing games and passing outdoor scout tests; those to make advancement were Gene Kobe, Gael Pierce, Jack Frank, Cecil Coleman and Elwood Vergon. Saturday they took a night hike through the woods to Cassopolis, where they purchased confectioneries and baked goods and then returned to camp in separate groups. Another patrol of Troop 41 will have an overnight camping trip this week-end.

Evangelist Bertha Meadows of St. Louis, Mo., is preaching in that good old southern camp meeting style. Special music at every service. Rev. Chas. This is our annual spring revival and we are extending a special invitation to you to come and enjoy this treat with us. Rev. Mrs. Meadows is an international evangelist. She spent 3 years in China, also in the Philippine Islands and Hawaii. Her messages are inspiring and she has good results proving the days of great revivals are not over. She just closed in South Bend with 64 added to the church. Services every night at 7:30. Pastor Gladys M. Dick.

(Keith Dalrymple)

At this time every year, it is necessary for high school students to make out schedules for the following year. The schedules are arranged for ahead of time; therefore, each individual should figure out his course and take subjects that will be of benefit to him. However, this is not an easy task to do; and one often finds out too late that he has taken the wrong course. No one is to blame for this, and nothing can be done to alter the situation; circumstances truly change many things.

The high school student has already started on his work, whether it's right or wrong; but the junior high student has his work ahead of him, and a word of advice at this time may be of value. The best advice that could be given a junior high school student is: find out what you can do well, find out if you like to do this line of work, and, when you get in high school, map out a course that will aid you in the occupation chosen. If this field requires a college education, by all means take a college preparatory course.

If these same junior high people are in doubt about their life's work, take a semi-college preparatory and commercial course, but make sure that you get the credits necessary for enrollment at college.

SEVENTH GRADE HOME ECONOMICS

The Microphone staff received this letter from a seventh grade girl who feels that our readers would like to read what the seventh grade home economics class has been doing Her letter is as follows:

Dear Friends:

I know you all would like to know about our seventh grade cooking class, so I am writing about it. Most of the semester we have been preparing breakfasts, setting tables correctly, and learning table manners. In our textbooks, for example, it shows us exactly how to break bread into pieces and then spread it, and to take the napkin from the table with the right hand.

During this period we have prepared cereals, beverages, fruits, and muffins. Last Thursday our group of "chefs" had our final test on having an ideal breakfast for a growing girl. Venessa Paul and Helen Swartz were the judges. Our breakfast consisted of sliced oranges, cream of wheat, cocoa, and toast. Miss Krebs, our director, watched us while we ate so she could tell who had listened to her during our cooking periods. She also watched our table manners closely.

We all enjoyed the breakfast very much, and we feel we have really learned a great deal so far.

SENIOR PLAY NOTES

It's going to be rather tough, to say the least, for the cast to stay inside the auditorium after school during these gorgeous spring days, and the nights—well, play practice is usually out shortly after nine!

Bob Neal and Melvin Campbell both propose to Alice (guess who?), and the act as played now is screamingly funny. Of course, the situation is a romantic one and will be enacted as such when the characters "get down to business."

Bob Neal really got some choice "razzberries" from the whole cast (leaving out the dining room door) when he attempted to kiss Alice, and Melvin Campbell proposed in such a stiff manner that Mr. Elbers commented on the fact that it must be his first such proposal.

SCHOOL SLANTS

A slight disturbance was caused in senior English class last week, because several of the more enterprising boys in the class, Bob Squier, Melvin Campbell, "Vic" Vigansky, and James Hausman conspired to keep a bull dog in the room after class had begun. Mrs. Dunbar didn't see the canine usurper until the entire class was in hysterics watching him chew James Hausman's foot. The dog also consumed one pencil (owned by Melvin Campbell) and several spelling papers before he was escorted to the door by Victor Vigansky.

The Future Husbands' Club proved by their successful candy sale last Thursday that they are really learning to cook—at least most of them are!

Here and there—George Riley and Virginia Arnold are going together more than ever; Imogene Russell seems to have a pretty steady chauffeur after school; Margaret Miller and George Lauver will go together again (?); South Bend is the goal of all Phyllis's ambitions; "Pinky" Fitch and Arliss Fairman can be seen walking together any day; "Flashy" Boyce's picture is in a downtown window holding a bulb; Max Beadle is in love again; Joe Bachman has taken a liking for Berrien High School rings very suddenly; Luke, Lewis, Jesse, and Simpson are pitching for B. H. S. in baseball games.

During one of the English classes the students were asked to use various words in sentences. Suddenly the teacher called upon Junior.

"Please give me a sentence using the word ontheotherhand." Junior paused for a second and softly said, "On one hand she wore a ring, on the other hand she wore a bracelet."

Always on the Job

STREETS are deserted. Homes are dark. Night has wrapped the community in slumber.

In one building, however, a light is still shining. It shines on steadily through the hours of darkness until, at last, the dawn heralds the stir of another day...

That light sums up the eternal vigilance of the telephone. It is truly a beacon of public service, one that stands ready to serve any one, anywhere, any time. And always with the same promptness and skill and courtesy.

All that modern telephone service can mean—all its protection and convenience and comfort—is yours to command twenty-four hours a day. It takes no holidays. It is, in an old familiar phrase, "always on the job."

Answers to Banking Questions

Why Is Public Confidence So Important to a Bank?
There are two main reasons why public confidence is so important to a bank.

In the first place people must have confidence in a bank before they will deposit their money. This means confidence in the honesty, integrity and ability of the bank officers, plus the belief that sound efficient methods are used in its management.

Secondly, public confidence is important because it gives the bank assurance of stable deposits. This, in turn, enables the bank to loan or invest its funds for reasonable periods in sound business undertakings. It is the revenue from these loans and investments which makes it possible for the bank to pay its operating costs, build up reserves and pay stockholders a fair return on their invested capital.

Kit Carson's Niece Says Scout Wasn't Illiterate

Boonville, Mo. — Kit Carson, contrary to the legend that he was illiterate, learned to read and write as a boy, according to Mrs. Bertha Carson Amick, niece of the plainsman and Indian fighter.

Mrs. Amick bases her contention on family correspondence concerning Carson in her possession, and on direct word from the scout's children.

Carson was born in Kentucky in 1809, and came to Old Franklin, Mo., with his family when he was ten. It was in Old Franklin that he went to school. He played with his friends along the banks of the Bonne Femme, Salt Creek and the Missouri itself. As a lad in his early teens he watched the first steamboats puff slowly up the "Big Muddy" and tie up at the wharf of Old Franklin.

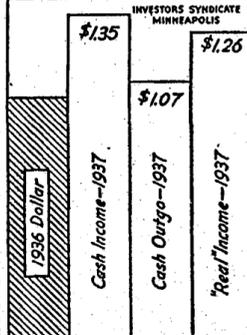

Leaving school, he went to work as an apprentice to a saddlemaker, according to Mrs. Amick.

Carson worked at making saddles for a time, then dropped his tools to lead the way in conquering the West.

Where Snails Live
Snails live, in summertime, in open woodlands and are found under rocks and dead logs. In the summer they are usually a dull pinkish brown and are vegetarians, for the most part. They hunt the same sort of shadowy, cool open woods that the thrushes do, and hundreds of them are eaten by thrushes, who pick the little tenants out of their front doors and swallow them, leaving the shells to tell the story.

American Income Rises 35 Cents; Living Costs Gain 7 Cents In Year

PURCHASING POWER February, 1937, Compared with February, 1936

THE above chart, illustrating the extent to which the average American has benefited from the rise in national income during the last twelve months, is based upon the monthly consumers' study of Investors Syndicate, of Minneapolis. For every dollar in the pockets of Mr. and Mrs. Public in February, 1937, there was, thanks to improved income of every classification, $1.35 in February, 1937.

At the same time, the outgo for February, 1937, was only $1.07, compared with $1 a year earlier, which put Mr. and Mrs. Public 26 cents ahead on every dollar of earnings. This increase in "real" income represents the average of the total dollar incomes involved in the following gains per dollar: investors, 47 cents on every dollar; wage earners, 33 cents; salaried workers, 13 cents.

Rents were up 12 cents on every dollar last February as compared with the same month of 1936; food rose five cents; miscellaneous items were up 7 cents, and clothing advanced one cent.

Brushing the Teeth
In 1777, one year after the outbreak of the American revolution, the social revolution of brushing teeth was introduced in France. It was introduced at the court of Versailles by an English doctor. It met numerous enemies. Some diners kept their teeth healthy by picking up a chop joint and gnawing away at the bone.

New Orleans' Waterfront
The Mississippi waterfront of New Orleans is almost a continuous wharf, receiving about twenty million bunches of bananas a year, coffee, mahogany, molasses and jute for baling cotton. Cotton is shipped in large quantities and the city is one of the leading market places for the fiber.
